

VERMONT CYNIC

FEBRUARY 3, 1971

Rollins Discusses UVM Policies For Tenure And Reappointment At Student Association Meeting

At the January 27th meeting of the SA Senate in Marsh Lounge, Billings, Vice President Alfred Rollins explained UVM's tenure and reappointment policies.

Several members of the Faculty Policy Committee were also present to take part in the open discussion which followed Rollins' explanation.

Rollins noted that the policy of tenure evolved out of the need for American universities to maintain certain standards of academic quality and then proceeded to explain the process involved in reappointment and tenure.

All personnel decisions take place within the individual departments and are initiated by the departmental chairmen. The chairman is expected to consult with several members of his particular department and, after having done so, submit a recommendation to the Dean. The Dean, in turn, submits the recommendation to the Vice President of Academic Affairs.

Two copies of the recommendation are written, one of which is studied by the Faculty Policy Committee, the other by the President and the Vice President.

The Academic Council, which is composed of the deans of the colleges and the Vice President of Academic Affairs, and the Faculty Policy Committee meet separately in order to discuss the departmental recommendations. The final decisions regarding reappointment and tenure are made at a joint meeting of the Academic Council and the Faculty Policy Committee. This joint meeting is chaired by the President of the University who, although the legal authority to make the decisions lies in the hands of the Board, does have the authority to make the ultimate decision.

Rollins emphasized the fact that the procedure by which the President is advised is complex and that the decision-making process involves a great many people, often times as many as thirty to forty in all of the various stages.

In the open discussion which followed, a senator questioned Rollins as to the purpose of tenure. Rollins replied that tenure protects the academic process from interference due to economic, religious and political reasons. It is a form of job security which serves to protect the incompetents as well as the competent.

Regarding the loss of tenure at UVM, there are three areas which are considered before a decision is reached: teaching, research and service, i.e., the putting of professional knowledge to use in the community.

Rollins was questioned as to the importance of research. Rollins replied that, in order to be an effective teacher, a person must be self-generating and must perform in a manner which will serve to challenge himself. Through research, an individual applies his mind to a particular problem and, hopefully, finds a solution to the problem. The value of publishing is that it enables one to expose his ideas in a way in which they can be widely tested and challenged. Publishing is important in that it serves as a medium whereby an individual can relate to professionals in his own field and, consequently, can be judged by his intellectual equals.

Rollins stipulated that the University does not wish to choose between good teaching and bad research or bad teaching and good research. He noted that the tenure decisions are often difficult to make, for they involve the problem of balance judgement in the areas of teaching, research and service.

Rollins was further questioned as to what students can do to influence tenure and reappointment decisions. Numerous departments have student advisory committees which directly advise the departmental chairmen. Course surveys are also used to determine an instructor's teaching capabilities. However, the final decisions regarding reappointment and tenure are irrevocable, i.e., if students are unaware of an instructor's loss of tenure until after the decision has been finalized, there is nothing that the students can do to change the decision.

Several senators wished to have a list published annually which would name all the instructors up for tenure and to have the meetings at which tenure decisions are made open to the public. Rollins stated that there are some instructors who would regard such a list as an invasion of their privacy rights and, moreover, did not believe that the appropriate way to make a tenure decision is at a public meeting. To allow for more student involvement in tenure decisions, Rollins finally suggested the formation of a student-faculty committee to work on these problems.

At the closing of last week's SA Senate meeting, there was a general feeling of discontent among the senators. This was due to the fact that many senators had hoped to discuss specific tenure cases, a matter which both Vice President Rollins and the Faculty Policy Committee refused to take up.

Parenti-Barrows Confrontation Due To Destruction Of Political Posters

Michael J. Parenti and ex-Marine Paul E. Barrow, a 19-year-old UVM freshman, engaged in a heated discussion over Barrow's destruction of posters advertising "Revolutionary Films" on the evening of January 28.

Barrows was seated in the Den when another student came in and started to put up a poster. Barrows read the poster which stated, "Revolutionary Films. Celebrate 10th anniversary of the NLF. Celebrate 3rd anniversary of Tet Offensive. Having read this, he tore the poster from the wall, ripped it up and returned to his seat.

The student who had put up the poster repaired it, but Barrows again tore it to pieces.

At this point, the student with the posters appealed to Parenti. No one is sure what was said during their exchange, but evidently enough was said to prompt Barrows to ask Parenti to "step outside." Parenti refused, replying that he did not want the incident to evolve into a student-faculty conflict. Barrows, who was by this time quite upset, told Parenti that he was a hard hat.

Eventually both parties returned to their seats and the incident came to a finish.

However, news of the conflict found its way to some Vermont newspapers who relayed the news to many, amongst them, Edward Eurich, chairman of the UVM board of trustees. Eurich's reaction was, "I personally have been waiting to see what Parenti's next move would be. The only question in my mind was where and when he would make it."

Parenti's comment on the confrontation was, "I am distressed that people take it upon themselves to tear down political posters because they don't happen to agree with the views of the organizations that sponsored those posters."

He felt that Eurich was "condemning the person who tried to stop the vandalism, not the vandal."

Parenti also stated that a group of students and faculty members are going to ask President Andrews to investigate acts of vandalism that interfere with political rights on campus.

When asked why he destroyed the posters, Barrows replied, "Well, they said revolutionary films and everything, and that was groovy, but they said that the films were celebrating the Tet Offensive, and that kind of seemed, well, you know when I read it, the first poster was downstairs here (Simpson). So I read it over pretty good, and I just, it really got me teed off. It seemed to me that they were celebrating the deaths of a couple of thousand Americans that died during the offensive. They had a post tet offensive and my battalion was overrun during that. Two of my friends were messed up. They had one last year after I'd left and a buddy of mine got killed. If I'd left it up it would have been like I was a turning my back on everybody I'd served with. I just couldn't see it."

A source within the administration called the incident a "tempest in a teapot," and stated that he did not believe that Mr. Eurich's remarks would be taken seriously by the administration.

Robbins Is Chief Of CYNIC Board

Ralph Robbins has been chosen to succeed Gary Barnes as Editor-in-Chief of the Vermont CYNIC. Robbins, a resident of West Orange, New Jersey, has worked for the paper for two years. During his first year he served as manager of Business and Advertising.

Ralph is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. After finishing UVM, he plans on going to law school.

Robbins feels that there is "a tremendous amount of untapped creativity at UVM."

Sarah Schuyler will be the new Assistant Editor of the CYNIC. She has been on the staff for two years and was formerly the Managing Editor.

Sarah, now a sophomore, is an English major. She lives in Danvers, Connecticut.

The newly created post of Associate Editor will be held by Annie Fertig.

This is Annie's third year with the CYNIC. In the past she served as Managing Editor and most recently was the Assistant Editor of the newspaper.

Fertig, a resident of Cortland, New York, is majoring in Philosophy. He is in his Junior year at UVM.

The job of Managing Editor has been taken by Jill Davidson. Jill is a Freshman and majors in Home Economics. She lives in New Milford, New Jersey.

Succeeding Lynda Hirsch as News Editor is Charlie French. French is a Freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences and has not yet decided on a major. He lives in Oakville, Ontario.

Jeff Yacker, a sophomore, will replace Phil Elwert as Feature Editor. This is Jeff's first year with the paper.

A political science major, Yacker comes from Cranford, New Jersey. Before coming to UVM, Jeff was the News Editor of his high school newspaper. He hopes to enter a career in journalism.

The post of Business Manager will be held by Terry Demas. Terry joined the CYNIC staff this fall. Last year he was the Treasurer of the Student Association.

A resident of Barre, Vermont, Demas, a Junior, is majoring in Speech.

Replacing Dave Kopacz as Sports Editor is Ken Wittaker. Ken began working for the paper this fall as a sports writer.

Before coming to UVM, Ken was the Sports Editor of his high school newspaper.

Wittaker is enrolled in Pre-Med and is majoring in Chemistry. He is a Junior and lives in Chamford, New York.

Tickets for the two Festival 71 concerts are available now at the University Store, Bailey's Music Rooms, Sunshine Mountain on Mechanics Lane, Lafayette Radio & Electronics on Shelburne Street, and the Upstairs Record Shop.

Tickets are $4 each for the Upstairs Record Shop.

The Feb 20 concert, with the Chambers Brothers, the Allman Brothers Band, and Dark Horse will begin at 1 p.m. in the gymnasium. Tickets are $3.50 each.

Pricing of tickets for the film and slide productions, which begin at 8 p.m. Feb 19 in Patrick Gymnasium, will soon be announced.

Ice Competition Fails To Materialize; Parties Are Expected To Compensate

After months of investigation, the Festival 71 Committee has failed to come up with a satisfactory activity for the Saturday evening of winter weekend.

As a result, there will be no scheduled event for the night of Feb. 20 this year, and the committee will poll the campus for ideas for 1972 right after the coming festival.

In November, the committee announced that competitive presentations on the ice at Gutterson Rink would be the Saturday night activity.

But only two living units responded to the possibility, so the event had to be cancelled.

Areas the committee has investigated since March, 1970 ranged from competitive international dancing to a winter Mardi Gras.

The investigations began after many people expressed dissatisfaction over the 1970 winter carnival. The main complaint was that the weekend provided no outlet for "emotional release."

Choreographers from as far away as Connecticut met with the committee, and with the special President's Committee on Winter Weekend, but could come up with no dance routine suitable for competitive demonstration.

The most appealing dance routines were so complicated that even the professional dancers couldn't put on an impromptu demonstration before the committee.

These endeavors did not resume in the fall.

The committee looked into the Mardi Gras idea, but concluded that a costume parade around the campus in the middle of February would be impractical.

It was also pointed out that the only competitive aspect of the concept would be production and presentation of costumes—other than a royalty campaign.

Interscholastic athletic competition for Festival 71 could not be arranged, since scheduling is done years in advance. A basketball game scheduled for the weekend was in conflict with time reserved for one of the Festival concerts.

A spokesman for the committee said that although the cancellation is regrettable, Saturday night parties should compensate adequately for the gap in the schedule.

Points for the President's Cup—the trophy awarded to the living unit displaying the most complete spirit of the weekend—will be given for party atmosphere, he noted.

The trophies will probably be awarded at the informal snow games scheduled for the afternoon of Feb. 21.

The site, composition, and rules for the snow games will be posted and distributed at the end of this week.

Also to be announced will be an approximate breakdown of points to be considered for the President's Cup.

Twelve UVM Faculty Members Contest Constitutionality Of Loyalty Oath

Twelve faculty members at the University of Vermont have refused to sign the state's loyalty oath required for educators. The group has enlisted the aid of the American Civil Liberties Union in its fight to have the oath declared unconstitutional. Farmer Gov. Philip Hoff will act as counsel for the group.

On Thursday, January 21, summonses were served to twenty-two UVM trustees and to Vermont Attorney General James Jeffords asking them to appear in the District Court within twenty days.

The case is now before a special three judge tribunal. If they declare the oath unconstitutional, it will be up to the state to decide whether or not to contest the decision. However, if the judges uphold the validity of the law, Hoff plans further court action.

The twelve plaintiffs claim that the oath deprives them of the rights of free speech and assembly, due process of law and their privacy. These rights are guaranteed by the Constitution and are found in amendments 1, 5 and 14.

The loyalty oath is required of a superintendent, principal or teacher in a public school of the state, or a professor, instructor or teacher who will be employed hereafter by a university or college in the state, which is supported in whole or in part by public funds.

Those taking the oath are asked to "solemnly swear or affirm that (they) will support the constitution of the United States of America, the constitution of the State of Vermont, and the laws of the United States and of the State of Vermont."

Although only twelve faculty members have been adamant in their refusal to sign the oath, according to Alfred Rollins, vice president for financial affairs, a "substantial list" of UVM faculty have not yet signed.

The reason so many oaths were not signed was apparently due to a clerical error. When a change of personnel occurred, the oath was inadvertently removed from the contract all faculty members sign to gain employment with the University. By the time the error was detected many new employees had been hired.

The twelve plaintiffs said that they were unaware of the existence of any loyalty oath until this past December, when they received a letter from Rollins explaining the error and asking them to sign the oath.

The administration at UVM is trying to maintain a neutral position on the issue. A source within the administration remarked that the oath was not worth the importance attached to it since enforcing it is all but impossible.

President Andrews and others have said that although the oath was probably created with the best of intentions, it would probably present no great deterrent to anyone who wished to ignore its strictures.

Pops Night Will Present Festival King Candidates

At least four fraternities will introduce candidates for king of Festival 71 at Pops Night, to be held at Memorial Auditorium on Feb. 16.

Although no candidates for queen will be presented at Pops Night, all women's living units have been asked to submit a name of one person to be included in a conventional queen campaign.

The fraternities involved in the campaign are Alpha Gamma Rho, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Other entertainment possibilities for the evening are now being explored.

The Festival 71 committee cannot afford to subsidize Pops Night activities this year. Therefore a very small admission charge will probably be made to cover rental and miscellaneous expenses.

Pops Night will be held on a Tuesday instead of the previous Friday because Memorial Auditorium was long ago committed to Champlain College basketball action for the latter date.

Voting for royalty candidates will take place during the day of Feb. 18.

Committee Of Friends To Help Ailing Lane Series

Nearly 200 men and women in the Greater Burlington area, in company with fellow patrons of the arts in St. Johnsbury and Springfield, have gone to work for the George Bishop Lane Artists Series.

A Committee of Friends of the Lane Series has been formed to help the Series meet a problem common to many organizations these days—the inability of resources to keep pace with rising costs.

Bernard H. Zais of Burlington is chairman for the effort which has been planned by a steering committee whose members include Parnell C. Kirby, Glenn M. McKibben, Allan J. Rosenberg, Mrs. Richard A. Snelling, and Hilton A. Wick.

Pianist Rudolf Serkin and soprano Beverly Sills are honorary chairmen.

Last spring Lane Executive Director Jack Trevithick reported that artists and production costs have been rising faster than Lane income from endowment and tickets can keep pace. Over the past few years, the Lane Committee has used the substantial balances accumulated over the early years of the Series to maintain the top level and quality of the Series.

The balance is now exhausted and approximately $40,000 in additional annual income will be needed to maintain the Lane Series at its current level next year and in the next few years.

The alternative would be to curtail the Series and Mr. Zais, who has been a member of the advisory committee of townspeople, faculty and students, said "The Friends of the Lane Series believe Mrs. Lane's magnificent gift means too much to our community—indeed to our whole state—to let this happen."

Accordingly, he said, the group has devised two opportunities "to provide an attractive means for all who love and recognize the value of the arts to help Burlington and the larger Vermont community retain the place of honor and prestige the Lane Series has given."

A patron's program invites individuals and organizations to make gifts which will be recognized in a souvenir program being developed for the 1971-72 season.

There will also be an opportunity for firms and organizations to purchase advertising space in the program, he said. William Wheeler of Wheeler, Wood, & MacLeod, is chairman for the advertising phase of the campaign.

Separate campaigns are being

Help the CYNIC Grow

The CYNIC, unlike large city newspapers, is extremely flexible. It has only been a year since the CYNIC has changed its size and format. We are still in our infancy. With just a little help from many people with new ideas, this paper will become a mature and creative piece of journalism. Positions are available in all of the following areas of the CYNIC. We will not describe the function of each here, we would rather talk to you personally. Indicate which area of the CYNIC interests you the most and return the blank to the CYNIC office in Lower Billings as soon as possible either in person or via messenger service so we can organize ourselves more effectively.

News	Feature
Business	Production
Advertising	Sports
Entertainment
Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____

(continued on page six)

Traffic, Disease And Slums Plague South Vietnam As Result Of War

SAIGON (UPI) South Vietnam, a country plagued by unrelenting horror, has been changed in the last decade, the cities often terrible, overcrowded slums. Rapid, unplanned, unaided change has transformed a country once loved by Americans. South Vietnam, once a peaceful, fertile land, is now a country of horror, a country of death, a country of suffering.

or, slums, disease and a rising death toll have totally changed the country. The average population density is 125,000 persons per square mile (200 per acre), giving Saigon the densest population in the world. Tokyo by contrast, has only 10,000 persons.

All the cities in South Vietnam have been hit. Saigon, the largest city, has undergone changes visible at night in a few days, months. Once a spacious city of 250,000 with wide boulevards and parks, it was referred to as the "Paris of the East." Today four million people live in Saigon and its surrounding area.

Twenty years ago the city was a small town of 100,000 people. It was a city of wide boulevards and open spaces. Since then, the two cities have completely grown together. The city of Saigon has become a city of slums, disease and a rising death toll.

During the decade of the 1960s, the city of Saigon has become a city of slums, disease and a rising death toll. The city of Saigon has become a city of slums, disease and a rising death toll.

Sanitation, housing, shortages, and disease are only some of the problems. Urbanization has caused Vietnamese cities. There are shortages of public schools and teachers. In Saigon there is one teacher for every 100 pupils. Schools are forced to run in shifts from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Elsewhere children are lucky to attend school at all.

There is a traffic problem too. The Honda 50cc motorcycle has virtually replaced the bicycle. The cycles are light and fast and their drivers reckless. Saigon has a pollution problem that has already begun to smother the city.

Public services are either failing or non-existent. All major cities lack adequate sewage disposal, garbage collection, telephone, electrical facilities, transportation, and medical facilities. In DaNang the water is contaminated and sewers don't exist. Because of the lack of garbage cans, homes and shops pile their garbage on the sidewalks, where the poor pick the piles until a truck comes.

The country continues to plague the Vietnamese. Even though there is a temporary reprieve in the military situation, it is doubtful it will have any effect on a city which has had a 50 per cent inflation rate for five years. Food and goods continue to be scarce and more difficult to buy. Of the 300 billion dollars budget planned for 1971 by the South Vietnamese government, 120 billion dollars have yet to be printed.

Political power is shifting to the cities with urbanization. And several groups have gained influence. Trade unions have formed and some have even undertaken strikes. Veterans have become effective enough to demand reparations upon their return. Refugees, Buddhists and students have movement influence. Their threat to the existence of the government being real, they have had to bear the brunt of police repression. Students have no rights because they are always suspected of draft evasion or protest.

There are troops and Nationalist Police on nearly every street corner. 2,000 troops are assigned to Thien's Presidential Palace alone. The palace and ground cover two city blocks—contrasting greatly with the surrounding slums and slums and it is crowded with barbed wire. All government buildings and installations are surrounded by barbed wire fences.

The cities of South Vietnam have become concentration camps—those inhabiting them cannot leave them; they lack the means, and often are not allowed to by the government if they do have the means. People living in rural areas must face the military. This often means fighting, napalm, bombs, defoliants, and the like. The countryside is not a safe place to live.

The country continues to plague the Vietnamese. Even though there is a temporary reprieve in the military situation, it is doubtful it will have any effect on a city which has had a 50 per cent inflation rate for five years. Food and goods continue to be scarce and more difficult to buy. Of the 300 billion dollars budget planned for 1971 by the South Vietnamese government, 120 billion dollars have yet to be printed.

Political power is shifting to the cities with urbanization. And several groups have gained influence. Trade unions have formed and some have even undertaken strikes. Veterans have become effective enough to demand reparations upon their return. Refugees, Buddhists and students have movement influence. Their threat to the existence of the government being real, they have had to bear the brunt of police repression. Students have no rights because they are always suspected of draft evasion or protest.

There are troops and Nationalist Police on nearly every street corner. 2,000 troops are assigned to Thien's Presidential Palace alone. The palace and ground cover two city blocks—contrasting greatly with the surrounding slums and slums and it is crowded with barbed wire. All government buildings and installations are surrounded by barbed wire fences.

The cities of South Vietnam have become concentration camps—those inhabiting them cannot leave them; they lack the means, and often are not allowed to by the government if they do have the means. People living in rural areas must face the military. This often means fighting, napalm, bombs, defoliants, and the like. The countryside is not a safe place to live.

Charles Carr To Lecture

There will be a lecture sponsored by the Christian Science Organization on Monday February 8, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. This lecture titled "Education Film" will be given by Charles M. Carr, C.S.B.

Mr. Carr attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1942 he left his position as a physicist to join the Christian Science movement.

Charles Carr is a Christian Science minister. Also a Christian Science teacher, he is currently on tour as a member of the Board of Lecturers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Everyone is invited to this lecture and to stay for the question and answer period afterward.

Charles Carr is a Christian Science minister. Also a Christian Science teacher, he is currently on tour as a member of the Board of Lecturers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Everyone is invited to this lecture and to stay for the question and answer period afterward.

Thursday, Feb. 4
4th Contemporary Music Symposium: Gerald Marks in "ASCAP" in pop, philosophy and religion. In concert, 4 p.m., North Lounge, Billings Center, and at 8:30 p.m., same place. Sponsor: Edwin Oryndoff, on "The Schindler System of Musical Composition." Lane White Lane White Series, concert, "Honor," 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium.

Friday, Feb. 5
4th Contemporary Music Symposium: Open rehearsal of Larkin Poole's "Time Cycle," 10 a.m., in Allen Chapel, and at 8:30 p.m., same place, a concert of contemporary music. "Friday at Four," open house at the Arena Theatre, 4 p.m.

Saturday, Feb. 6
The University Players, with the cooperation of the Department of Speech and Drama, present Peter Weiss's "The Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat, As Performed by the Indolent of the Ayotain of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade." English version by Geoffrey Skelton, 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. $1.50 adult; student 75 cents. Box office, Box 2004.

Sunday, Feb. 7
Varsity Track vs. Maine, 12 noon, Outdoor Field House. Women of UVM Winter Dinner Dance, members may leave seats.

Monday, Feb. 8
Varsity Swimming vs. Holy Cross, 3 p.m., Parkside Pool. Lane Film Society Series presents "Great Ours" with Laurel and Hardy, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, each preceded by a showing of the Flash Gordon Serial. Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Tuesday, Feb. 9
Varsity Basketball at Massachusetts, 7:00 p.m. University Players present "Marat/Sade," 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. Details under Feb. 5.

Wednesday, Feb. 10
University Players present "Marat/Sade," 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. Details under Feb. 5.

WATCH FOR: Feb. 8: Flamingo Motion film. Single admission tickets to "Marat/Sade" go on sale at the Lane Office. Women of UVM Home Arts Group meet: Feb. 9: First in a series of lectures on Environmental Quality. Feb. 10: Physics Colloquium. Feb. 11: Lane White Series concert, "Modern Jazz Quartet." University Senate meeting: Feb. 12: Post dinner movie: Feb. 13: Lane Film Society Series presents "Marat/Sade," with Laurel and Hardy, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. shows, Benedict Auditorium.

S.A. Elections
An S.A. election to fill Senate vacancies will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9th. Elections will be held for three town senators and for senators from Ansel Wilts and Robinson. Candidates should sign up by Friday Feb. 5th at the dorm desks and for townpeople at the S.A. office in Billings. To qualify one must be a member of the unit he or she seeks to represent, must not be on probation, have a cum. of 1.70 or better, and must be eligible for participation in student activities under University regulations.

World '71 Summer Program
Kappa Delta Pi, the Education Honor Society, will sponsor a slide showing and discussion for those interested in the World '71 summer program on Feb. 11 at 3:00 p.m. in 409 Waterman. Former participants will show slides of their experiences in England this past summer. The program is now expanded to include areas in England, Finland, Japan, and Africa.

Any questions concerning the program will be answered. Everyone is welcome and refreshments will be served. For further information contact Dr. A. H. Wheeler.

Scholarships Available
Delta Delta Delta sorority is offering two $550 scholarships to any full time women students. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need will be considered. Applications are available at the Financial Aid office or the Tri-Delta house at 143 South Willard. Deadline is March 1, 1971.

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting
There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in rejoining SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting
The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the student's role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

the ski shop

A complete Sportswear Shop

OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 9 PM
EXCEPT SATURDAY

50 Pearl St. 388 Shelburne Rd.
Essex Jct. Burlington
879-0737 862-5488

VISIT OUR FAMOUS BARGAIN BASEMENT

THE RED DOG

PRESENTS

CELEBRATION

0100-000

FEB. 8—FEB. 13
OPEN 8 PM TO 2 AM
HAPPY HOURS 8 PM & 10 PM
Reduced prices on all drinks
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
SIX NIGHTS A WEEK
LOCATED AT
165 CHURCH ST.

BOUTILIER'S

VERMONT'S LARGEST
ART SUPPLY CENTER

Great Variety of Cardboards

112 CHURCH STREET

Pegton's yardstick

ON

115 St. Paul St. The Park

"Fine Fabrics for the Home Sewer"

THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP

... announces its new framing service.
With this ad save $1.50 on any framed poster until Feb. 10

30 CHURCH STREET

Our Drive-in Windows Make Banking Easy at.....

Chittenden TRUST COMPANY

UNIVERSITY OFFICE
WILLISTON ROAD

Coca-Cola

COCA-COLA BOTTLERS OF BURLINGTON
AVAILABLE ANYWHERE ON CAMPUS

WOW

Jesse James and Co.

167 Church St.
Burlington

ALBANY, VERMONT

AND WOOD SHIRTS $13-
UNIQUE JEWELRY
OLD THINGS

GREAT THINGS FOR SPRING

MONDAY-THURSDAY 9AM-7PM FRI. TILL 9 SAT. TILL 7
OPENING 200M-LANE STREET-ST. ALBANS, VERMONT

UFO

4 IDENTIFIED STYLES

Jeans & Scrub Denims & No Waist Corduroys 11. Overalls 12.

SIZES 5-13 ALL SIZES

MAYFAIR

Church St., Burlington

Open Friday night until 9:00

Traffic, Disease And Slums Plague South Vietnam As Result Of War

SAIGON (CPN) South Vietnam, a country plagued by unprecedented horror, has been changed in the last decade. The cities often veritable concentration camps. Rapid, unplanned social change has transformed a country first entered by American combat troops over six years ago, if now seems barely recognizable because of effects from urbanization.

Twenty years ago the cities were separated by a couple of miles of boulevards and open spaces. Since then, the two cities have completely grown together.

Slums, refugee camps and a rising middle class have totally filled the vacuum. The average population density is 125,000 persons per square mile (200 per acre), giving Saigon the densest population in the world. Tokyo by contrast, has only 50 persons per acre.

All the cities in South Vietnam have vast slum areas where refugees at the rate of one million per year have been arriving since 1965 from rural areas. Since 1964 Cam Ranh's population has tripled, and in DaNang, where marines landed more than five years ago, the population has doubled to 400,000.

A rough estimate of the number of people living in the slums and refugee camps in Saigon would be two and a half million or more than 60 per cent of the city's inhabitants. A refugee camp is something never forgotten. From the air the different colored huts look like a patchwork of the sun, but on the ground it is a spectacle of filth, garbage and dirt. Children are everywhere. They play among paper wrappers and cardboard or whatever they are given or can find.

The shanties, huts and tents are cheap and built out of any material handy: paper, cardboard, U.S. and French tin, flattened beer cans, plastic or canvas. The most common material is the stolen, corrugated tin, which is supposed to be used to can American-brand soft drinks and beer in South Vietnam. The tin is pre-stamped with labels. So desperate are the materials that a shanty is often "decorated" with Pabst Blue Ribbon, Budweiser and Miller High Life labels by the hundreds.

Cooking in the camps is done over open fires and sanitary facilities involve an outhouse and a water faucet shared by several families. The rancid stench of sewage permeates all the canals and puddles of these slums. After the first monsoon rain, the streets fill with up to two feet of water and carry all the accumulated garbage to the canals which run into the rivers of Saigon. The smell makes habitation along the river unbearable.

Disease is also a problem. During the floods of the monsoons one sees hundreds of drowning rats. The World Health Organization in 1967 said bubonic plague had reached epidemic proportions in South Vietnam—a result of the sanitation level created by the influx of refugees. Diseases such as smallpox and cholera abound, and a mother here expects only half her children to survive.

Sanitation, housing shortages, and disease are only some of the problems urbanization has caused Vietnamese society. There are shortages of public schools and teachers. In Saigon there is one teacher for every 106 pupils. Schools are forced to run in shifts from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Elsewhere children are lucky to attend school at all.

There is a traffic problem too. The Honda 50cc motorbike has virtually replaced the bicycle. The cycles are light and fast and their drivers reckless. Saigon has a pollution problem that has already begun to kill off trees.

Public services are either faltering or non-existent. All major cities lack adequate sewage disposal, garbage collection, telephones, electrical facilities, transportation, and medical facilities. In DaNang the water is contaminated and sewers don't exist. Because of the lack of garbage cans, homes—and shops pile their garbage on the sidewalks, where the poor pick and the piles until a truck comes along to collect it.

The economy continues to plague the Vietnamese. Even though Thieu implemented a reform in the monetary exchange rate last September, it is doubtful it will have effect upon a society which has had a 50 per cent inflation rate for five years. Food and goods continue to be more and more difficult to buy. Of the 100 billion piaster budget planned for 1971 by the South Vietnam government, 120 billion piasters have yet to be printed.

Political power is shifting to the cities with urbanization. And several groups have gained influence. Trade unions have formed and some have even undertaken strikes. Veterans have become effective enough to draw repression upon themselves. Refugees, Buddhists and students have enormous influence. Their threat to the existence of the government being real, they have had to bear the brunt of police repression. Students have no rights because they are always suspected of draft evasion or protest.

There are troops and Nationalist Police on nearly every street corner. 2,000 troops are assigned to Thieu's Presidential Palace alone. The palace and ground cover two city blocks—contrasting greatly with the surrounding camps and slums—and it is encircled with barbed wire. All government buildings and installations throughout South Vietnam are encircled in barbed wire mazes.

The cities of South Vietnam have become concentration camps—those inhabiting them cannot leave them, they lack the means, and often are not allowed to by the government if they do have the means. People living in rural areas must face the military. This often means fighting, napalm, bombs, defoliants, and the like. The countryside is not a safe place to live—consequently the people are trapped into living in the slums and refugee camps just as if they were trapped by the barbed wire at Auschwitz or Dachau.

Charles Carr To Lecture

There will be a lecture sponsored by the Christian Science Organization on Monday February 8, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. This lecture titled "Education Plus," will be given by Charles M. Carr, C.S.B.

Mr. Carr attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1942 he left the business world to devote himself to the Christian Science healing ministry. Also a Christian Science teacher, he is currently on tour as a member of the Board of Lecturers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Everyone is invited to this lecture and to stay for the question and answer period afterward.

Thursday, Feb. 4
4th Contemporary Music Symposium: Gerald Marks on "ASCAP: its purpose, philosophy and significance" in our society. 4 p.m., North Lounge, Billings Center; and at 8:30 p.m., same place, composer Edwin Gershefski on "The Schillinger System of Musical Composition." Lane White Lane White Series concert, "Hamlet," 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium.

Friday, Feb. 5
4th Contemporary Music Symposium: open rehearsal of Lukas Foss's "Time Cycle," 10 a.m., Ira Allen Chapel; and at 8:30 p.m., same place, a concert of contemporary music. "Friday at Four," open house at the Arena Theatre, 4 p.m.

Saturday, Feb. 6
Varsity Basketball at Rhode Island, 8 p.m. The University Players, with the cooperation of the Department of Speech and Drama, present Peter Weiss's "The Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat, As Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade," English version by Geoffrey Skelton, 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. $1.50 adults, students 75 cents. Box office, Ext. 2094.

Sunday, Feb. 7
Varsity Track vs. Maine, 12 noon, Gutterson Field House. Women of UVM Winter Dinner Dance; members may invite guests.

Monday, Feb. 8
Varsity Swimming vs. Holy Cross, 3 p.m., Forbush Pool. Lane Film Society Series presents "Great Guns" with Laurel and Hardy, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, each preceded by a chapter of the Flash Gordon Serial, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Tuesday, Feb. 9
Varsity Basketball at Massachusetts, 7:30 p.m. University Players present "Marat/Sade," 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. Details under Feb. 5.

Wednesday, Feb. 10
University Players present "Marat/Sade," 8 p.m., Arena Theatre. Details under Feb. 5.

WATCH FOR: Feb. 8: Fleming Museum film. Single admission tickets to "Jitterbugs" go on sale at the Lane Office. Women of UVM Home Arts Group meets, Feb. 9: First in a series of lectures on Environmental Quality. Feb. 10: Physics Colloquium. Feb. 11: Lane White Series' concert, "Modern Jazz Quartet." University Senate meeting, Feb. 12: Folk dancers meet, Feb. 13: Lane Film Society Series present "Jitterbugs," with Laurel and Hardy, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. shows, Benedict Auditorium.

S.A. Elections

An S.A. election to fill Senate vacancies will be held Tuesday, Feb. 9th. Elections will be held for three town senators and for senators from Austin Wilks and Robinson. Candidates should sign up by noon Friday, Feb. 5th at the dorm desks and for townspeople at the S.A. office in Billings. To qualify one must be a member of the unit he or she seeks to represent, must not be on probation, have a cum. of 1.70 or better and must be eligible for participation in student activities under University regulations.

World '71' Summer Program

Kappa Delta Pi, the Education Honor Society, will sponsor a slide showing and discussion for those interested in the World '71 summer program on Feb. 11 at 3:00 p.m. in 409 Waterman. Former participants will show slides of their experiences in England this past summer. The program is now expanded to include areas in England, Finland, Japan, and Africa.

Any questions concerning the program will be answered. Everyone is welcome and refreshments will be served. For further information contact Dr. A. H. Wheeler.

Scholarships Available

Delta Delta Delta sorority is offering two $550 scholarships to any full time women students. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need will be considered. Applications are available at the Financial Aid office or the Tri-Delta house at 143 South Willard. Deadline is March 1, 1971.

Gathering for Food Store

Dance Music
Bring Your Own To Jam
Bring Yourself
2 Bands
8:00 Saturday Southwick Redstone
Free Admission

SCOPE Meeting

There will be a meeting on Monday, February 8 at 3 p.m. in Conference Room C of Billings for all those who are interested in resurrecting SCOPE for this semester. People are needed who are willing to work. Officers will be elected. Everyone and his friend is invited.

Radical Student Union Meeting

The Radical Student Union will be holding a meeting this coming Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge, Billings Center. The meeting is planned primarily to bring together people who feel a need for an organized movement on the UVM campus. Among the topics for discussion will be the issues surrounding reappointment, tenure, and the students' role in the process. Also to be discussed is the type of education given at UVM and the relationship between the student, the university, and the community. How the RSU relates to the nationwide movement in relationship to the war and other student actions will also be discussed. Some tentative action is planned for some of these areas already so bring your ideas and thoughts and be ready to get it on.

the ski shop

A complete Sportswear Shop
OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 9 PM
EXCEPT SATURDAY
50 Pearl St. 388 Shelburne Rd.
Essex Jct. Burlington
879-0737 862-5488
VISIT OUR FAMOUS
BARGAIN BASEMENT

THE RED DOG

PRESENTS
CELEBRATION
FEB. 8—FEB. 13
OPEN 8 PM TO 2 AM
HAPPY HOURS 8 PM & 10 PM
Reduced prices on all drinks
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
SIX NIGHTS A WEEK
LOCATED AT
165 CHURCH ST.

BOUTILIER'S

VERMONT'S LARGEST
ART SUPPLY CENTER
Great Variety of Cardboards
112 CHURCH STREET

Pegton's yardstick

ON
115 St. Paul St. The Park
"Fine Fabrics for the Home Sewer"

THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP

...announces its new framing service.
With this ad save $1.50 on any framed poster until Feb. 10

30 CHURCH STREET

Our Drive-in Windows
Make Banking
Easy at.....

Chittenden
TRUST COMPANY
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

COCA-COLA

COCA-COLA BOTTLERS OF BURLINGTON
AVAILABLE ANYWHERE ON CAMPUS

WOW

Jesse James and Co.
167 Church St.
Burlington
ALBANS, VERMONT

ANDI WOOL SHIRTS $12.
UNIQUE JEWELRY
OLD THINGS
GREAT THINGS FOR SPRING

MONDAY-THURSDAY 9AM-7PM FRI. TILL 9 SAT. TILL 7
OPENING SOON—LAKE STREET, ST. ALBANS, VERMONT.

4 IDENTIFIED STYLES

Jeans 8.
Scrub Denims 8.
No Wale Corduroys 11.
Overalls 12.

SIZES 5-13 ALL SIZES

MAYFAIR
Church St., Burlington
Open Friday night until 9:00

White House Children's Conference

Because of the relevancy of the White House Conference on Children for all members of the University community, a follow-up on this event is being planned, which will take place in Billings Center sometime this month. This event will take the form of a mock White House Conference and will center on the implications which this conference has for UVM. The purpose of this event will be to share with the members of the University the ideas and suggestions presented at the Washington conference. Realizing that the concerns for children are a universal concern which relates to all of us, participation in this event is encouraged. This is an opportunity to open our everyday university lives to a bit of relevant experience.

And because good food is essential to a good life we feel this effort can become something more than just a store. It will be a place for people to gather and share... a community cen-

"THE COMPLETE BAKERY"

106 NORTH ST.

LAFAYETTE RADIO
ELECTRONICS
370 Shelburne Road Owned and operated by I.E.S. 658-4616

E.J. Prespon & Son Inc.
 17 1/2 Ave. Church Street • Bellingham
 Phone: 325-1111 • Telex: 9-0000 • 3-13-68
 Open Friday 10:00-5:00 P.M.
 CLOTHING ACCESSORIES

DOMINO'S

Burlington, Vt.
658-3664

UP
12" Pizzas
15¢

25¢ Off 16" Pizzas

PIZZA DELIVERED FIVE

EDITORIAL

The Facts Of Life

Frustrated, the student started to leave, but before leaving he turned to the instructor and said: "Let me know if anyone in your class dies." If you have tried to "add" a course this semester, you can easily sympathize with this student. In one required economics course, forty students were turned away, while thirty-five were permitted to enroll. This is only one illustration; each of you can offer another. Neither the faculty nor the registrar is to blame, for both are doing their best under the present circumstances. We are merely pointing out the fact that the over-crowded situation has become so critical, and that even if there is no tuition increase, students will not tolerate this gross overcrowded condition if it continues.

Assuming the faculty is indeed pressed to their limit, and assuming that UVM's present financial conditions will not permit a substantial increase in faculty, is there any course of action that will ease these tensions? The Psychology Department should be commended for their efforts. The Department is actively investigating a relatively new method of teaching, known as the Keller Method. This teaching method enables a student who is part of a large group to advance at his own pace, while at the same time receiving personal instruction through discussions. Not only is this method economical because no new equipment is needed, but no additional staff members are needed either. This method has already been proven effective at various universities. It has also been successfully tested on a small scale at UVM. According to Associate Professor Musty of the Psychology Department, the Keller Method will be tried at UVM on a larger scale shortly. If this is as successful as past experience indicates it will be, how long will it take for other departments to adopt such methods? If it is any consolation, the students will not permit it to take too long.

Another possibility is to reduce the course load to four courses. A modified proposal of a thirty-six course load (five course load for each of the first four semesters and a four course load during the last four semesters) has already been submitted to the Arts College Faculty and will be submitted to the Faculty Senate Curriculum Committee. Not only will this help alleviate the continually increasing load that is being placed on the students, but from a practical standpoint, this would reduce the faculty load thereby decreasing the number of students in each class. Unfortunately this proposal has already been tabled once, and does not seem to be getting anywhere. Some faculty believe UVM would be "cheaper" its degree because fewer courses would be required for graduation. Harvard and Yale have already adopted this program, and nobody is knocking either of those schools. Other departments argue the difference between a three credit course and a four credit course, and how each will be counted. Thank you for being so dedicated! While the faculty is arguing semantics, the students are suffering.

Assuming the present circumstances will remain the same, a major change must take place, and must take place soon. This is not a threat, but rather a fact of life.

I Pledge Allegiance

The loyalty oath required for educators by the State of Vermont has become obsolete. It serves no useful purpose and is merely a remnant of the McCarthy era in politics, when loyalty oaths and patriotism were synonymous.

Vermont's oath asks the signer to swear to uphold the Constitutions and the laws of the United States and Vermont. However it fails to take into consideration the fact that by signing it, a person may be swearing to uphold laws that are unconstitutional.

Another fault of the loyalty oath is that it is discriminatory. The only people required to take it are those who teach or serve as administrators in schools or universities partially or wholly supported by the state.

A University is symbolically a place where the interchange of thoughts is free and unrestricted. By its very nature, the loyalty oath stifles a person's freedom of expression and thus places severe limits on academic freedom.

Due to the reluctance of most administrators, the loyalty oath has not been strictly enforced, but as long as it exists there will always be the opportunity to use it for repressive purposes.

If the State of Vermont feels it necessary to have a loyalty oath, we would suggest an oath that asks an individual to affirm his loyalty to the concept of educating other people and creating in them an awareness of their responsibilities to themselves and others.

CSF

A More Creative CYNIC

A more creative and receptive CYNIC is the goal of the new CYNIC Editorial Board. The Board recognizes its somewhat limited response to student desires, but this is due in part to a low level of student participation.

The CYNIC wishes to improve CYNIC-student relations by keeping direct lines of communication open. The Board stresses the individual nature of student contribution; not only are columns and articles welcome, but also ideas and suggestions for improvement. There is much within the structure and operations of the paper which might be improved. One person's ideas can have lasting influence upon the publication. The CYNIC is, after all, a student newspaper.

S.J.S.

Somniator

Remember Wally Schirra?

by Jeff Yacker

"Quick—how many of you know the names of three astronauts who are at this moment cavorting around the lunar surface?"

"What does lunar mean, teacher?"

"What does astronaut mean, Miss Johnson?"

"Oh, I know. I know. My brother says that astronauts are those men who fly around in rockets and go to other planets."

"Yes, that's right, Susie." Very good. Now class, will somebody please give me the names of the planets.

An elementary school today? Well, not quite, but close. There was once a time, when kids in school were herded into an auditorium in order to watch a large television show John Glenn or Wally Schirra or Gordon Cooper blast off from Cape Canaveral (remember?) for a three-orbit or six-orbit flight lasting the better part of an afternoon. For the entire day the country's mind was fixed on our valiant emissaries to the stratosphere. Enormous monitor screens were set up in Grand Central Terminal; the tower in Times Square kept us posted to the second on every sneeze or cough in the capsule.

And then they were circling the moon; and then they were circling even closer. Finally in July, 1969 Neil Armstrong realized the goal set by President Kennedy back in 1961. But after the lunar landing, there was a noticeable decline in interest for the space program. Ho hum, oh, are they going to the moon again? Well, I'll be darned. A body'd think once'd would be enough.

There must be some logical explanation for this attitude; the people in Eastern Rumelia are probably more concerned about Alan Shepard (him again?) than we are. Possibly, because WE are paying for the flight, and not the Eastern Rumelians; possibly because WE can sense a certain element of waste in the space program today. Take a breath when you step off the plane at Logan or LaGuardia or Newark or JFK; try swimming in Lake Champlain this summer; get up enough courage to ride through one of our numerous city slums. Yet we have spent millions in order to send three delegates from Middle America to pick and kick around a barren satellite, and return with a few stones to a beaming Richard, Pat, Tricia, Julie, and David, all aboard the U.S.S. Gargantuan. Every American (excluding those Radio-Libs and other grungy types of bums who are burning our campuses today) MUST feel a sudden surge of patriotic pride when the three men splash down; after all, we did beat those lousy Russians, and prove once and for all our technological prowess. And anybody who doesn't agree with that, well, there's a war going on somewhere if you want to get away from all this hubbub.

Whitney Wake Up!

To A Racist Vermont

Contrary to popular belief, Vermont is saturated by racism. As if the Insuburg Affair was not enough to show the sickness we are suffering from! It is too bad that in the first state to ban slavery, equality is still being negotiated. Just remember, White Boy, time's a-runnin' out.

My purpose is to document specific areas where racism is rampant, whether it be overt or latent racism in institutions or individuals. Hopefully, the reader will leave the world of fantasy and join in the struggle against the most destructive force in our country. The best place to start is in the sacred halls of UVM.

Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 reads as follows: "No person in the United States shall on the grounds of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance." In the summer of 1968 a team headed by John G. Bynoe, Regional Civil Rights Director of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, came to the University of Vermont campus to check on its compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Law. Was the University recruiting and offering involvement to minority groups in accordance with this law? After the investigation, Mr. Bynoe sent a letter to President L. S. Rowell in which he made ten recommendations to assist in the compliance with Title VI. Of these ten, six have yet to be fulfilled.

The review team recommended that representatives from urban areas be invited to the University to become acquainted with its programs and facilities. To comply with this suggestion the University contacted certain black alumni from the New York City area to help in recruitment. The University's efforts to tap this limited resource provided by black alumni have been nominal.

The committee also suggested that advertisements be placed in minority group periodicals such as the Bay State Banner and the American Negro. By so doing the University would bring its interest in people into many homes of minority group persons. The University does not advertise in any periodicals whatsoever, but does advertise in the normal recruitment bulletins such as those distributed by the Educational Testing Service.

In addition to these recruiting efforts, the review team suggested that a representative of the University visit urban high schools to recruit minority students. At no time has the University formally allocated funds for the sole purpose of urban recruitment. Most of the funds for this purpose come from the Admissions Office.

This year UVM went to Switzerland to recruit prep school students. "A most effective method of establishing the University of Vermont's desire to increase minority enrollment with the minority communities in large urban areas would be to have minority students actively participating in varsity athletics. Accordingly, every effort should be made to attract minority group athletes for the major sports at the University of Vermont and to insure that the activities of the athletes are well-publicized in the minority community." states the committee. There are currently no more black athletes here on scholarships than there were in 1968.

The committee also encouraged the employment of a minority group person in a full-time position "to work in program areas designed to increase minority group enrollment at the University." This has not been done. In fact only this year Mr. Robert Fordham has been given the directive to find a black administrator who could spend part-time on minority recruitment.

If the University did manage somehow to bring minority group persons here, would it be able to assure them of off-campus housing, regardless of race, color, or creed? The University has made no attempt to answer this question posed by the review team. There has been no effort to check the policies of those homeowners which advertise the availability of their housing to college students.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Whitney—do you still think there is no racism in Vermont? Open your eyes! Ask a few real questions and see how many answers you get.

Student Suicides A Serious Problem

To The Editor:

One of the serious problems in college and university life today is the lack of attention to the personality needs of the students. Suicide is the second most common cause of death on the campus, topped only by automobile accidents; but those who have studied the subject believe that half of the latter are "concealed suicides," thus suicide actually leads the list. Dr. Howard A. Rusk of the New York University Medical Center collected estimates that 90,000 students each year will threaten suicide, one in ten will make the attempt and that there will be 1,000 actual deaths resulting. Beyond this, he calculates that among six million students, "some 600,000 have emotional problems for which they need professional assistance." The National Institute of Mental Health finds that "the factor of human isolation and withdrawal" appears to be critical; and the colleges recognize the serious problem created by these "loners" and are trying to provide help but admit (in hundreds of letters to us from deans) that they do not have adequate solutions.

This waste of some of the nation's finest young people is intolerable. Since for every actual death, nearly a hundred have felt so desperate as to threaten it, much light could be thrown on the subject by learning what factors enabled the fortunate ones to work out of their difficulties and keep going.

With the help of a friend who is vitally interested in this subject, the American Institute of Family Relations is carrying out a nationwide study of what is being done and what could and should be done. We need to hear from as many students and former students as possible who have faced such a crisis. What pulled them out of it? Was it aid furnished by the college or university? or other community organization? or by a friend? or religion? or reading? Just how did they save themselves?

We will not publish the names of any individuals or schools; the information will be handled statistically and anonymously. If you can call the attention of your readers to this study and ask for volunteers who will write their experiences to me ("personal" at the above address, it may contribute toward saving valuable lives.

We shall certainly be most grateful for any help you can give.

Cordially yours,

Paul Popenoe, Sc.D.

President, American Institute of Family Relations

Mr. Spinner Defended

Dear Mr. Barnes,

You are full of sh-t.

As a student of Mr. Spinner, I wish to take issue with your expose of Mr. Spooner's Contemporary History class.

(1) Promptness & silence are only the most basic courtesies necessary for the functioning of a lecture class. Many teachers assume their students know this but Mr. Spinner unfortunately knows better.

(2) The vast nature of the course materials precludes the opportunity for the student to attempt to lead the teacher off on a tangent during lecture. HOWEVER during the "compulsory discussion" sessions

Mr. Spinner is only too anxious to discuss any point that a student might raise. In fact at most times it is difficult for him to find any student willing and able to open his mouth and intelligently discuss any point.

(3) Perhaps you were whispering or writing this magnificent article at the time but Mr. Spinner said that contrary to what he had written there would not be any quizzes.

(4) One last point (although your babbling article offers me many more points with which I could take issue). If you knew enough about Contemporary History to be able to select your own books, why bother to sign up for a class? Read them on your own!!!

I would be willing to wager that the purpose of Mr. Spinner's first day discourse was to offer any student unprepared with his "research for relevancy" the opportunity to continue his search elsewhere—with a course load that is not as heavy.

I sincerely hope that the close of your tenure as editor will afford you the time to put off this illusionary journalistic powers to more truthful pursuits.

Caroline T. Eastmont

Two-Seventy-Two Pearl St. is an old four-story apartment house occupied mostly by students from UVM. Last October the residents banded together to force the landlord to make repairs. They became the core of a group called BATU (Burlington Area Tenants Union) dedicated to fight shoddy housing and high rents. The author of this poem is a student here and was the first President of BATU.

The Ballad of Two-Seventy-Two
by Bruce Alger

The people needed housing
The landlord wanted dough
He raised the rent and cut the heat
And let repair work go

And then one day the rains leaked in
And watered down the plaster
Ceilings weak with age and rot
Started to fall faster

The tenants called the landlord
But he was out of town
They left a plea for help, they said
"The walls are falling down!"

The landlord got the message
His course was to ignore
If things there got too bad, we'd move
And he'd re-rent for more

The people called the City
To ask the City "Please
Use the laws and powers you have,
Fix this slum before we freeze"

The inspector wrote a letter
To the landlord, Clark Hinsdale
Told him to fix the building
Or else he'd go to jail

Of course he didn't mean it
It was only done for form
So the people got a lawyer
And the City got a storm

The City was not softened
The inspector was afraid
To push too hard this slumlord
By whom, he said, he's paid

So the tenants got together
And said "Hinsdale get them
Until you fix the building
You'll get no more in rent."

For many months this war has raged
With no help from the City
So the tenants painted day-glow signs
And made the building pretty

The newsmen thought that this was great
When folks like you and me
Could hang the City's dirty wash
For everyone to see

The City was embarrassed
Great charges did they place
Against this scoundrel Hinsdale
Who'd caused them to lose face

To punish this great slumlord
Who'd caused them such a scandal
The City shut the power off,
The tenants live by candle

The proud old lady is falling down
Repairs? The landlord won't
We pledge to stay till they carry us out
We're going to prove our point

People have a right to live
The dollar is not King
The greed of one won't rule the many We'll put him in a sling

VOLUME

LXXXIX

VERMONT CYNIC

NUMBER

1

RALPH ROBBINS

Editor-in-Chief

JILL DAVIDSON

Managing Editor

SARAH SCHUYLER

Assistant Editor

ARNOLD M-FERTIG

Associate Editor

CHARLIE FRENCH

News Editor

JEFF YACKER

Feature Editor

KEN WHITTAKER

Sports Editor

BRUCE WAGONER

Assistant

GARY GABSO

Advertising Manager

TERRY DEMAS

Business Manager

BARRY WILSON

Circulation

GARY H. BARNES

Student Advisors

WALLY JOHNSON

Student Advisors

Options reported in editorial are not necessarily the views of the CYNIC. The CYNIC is a student newspaper and its editorial policy is to report the facts of the situation as they appear to the editors of the CYNIC.

Published weekly during the school year by the Vermont
Cynic, Inc., a non-profit organization. The Cynic is published by the Vermont
Cynic, Inc., a non-profit organization. The Cynic is published by the Vermont
Cynic, Inc., a non-profit organization.

Printed in U.S.A.
Copyright © 1971 by the Vermont Cynic, Inc.
All rights reserved.

Special Staff:
Bonnie Rodway, Mark Tinsdale, John Stewart, Mike
Rosenberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Glassy, Tim Beckford, Sandy Magid, Mike Brown, Bill Bode, Robert Frougfield, Dave Eppes.

News Staff:
Arlene Erikson, Sue Solomon, Louise Stinson, Gene Peroni, Ely Arnold, Mike Fish, Alice Carter, Jill Sorenson, Cedric
Sorenson, E. Dwyer Day.

Photo Staff:
Paul Smith, Scott Mackay, Gary Nathan, Chuck Underhill, Maurice Smith, Doug Collette, Brooks McCabe.

Business Staff:
Marge Miller, Melanie Meyer, Debby Talpis.

Production Staff:
Nancy Chasinski.

Advertising Staff:
Steve Kays, Bill Gibson.

Photography:
Greg Polveres, Gene Peroni, Student Photo Service.

Race Relations Increasingly Strained In Illinois Community

Illinois - a progressive mid-western industrial state - Cairo - a dusty Delta town further south than Richmond, Virginia. (That's right, look at a map.) Bounded by the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers and the hills of Kentucky, exotic pine trees flourish in Cairo, Canabrooks cluster in the lowlands and the back-country hills are frosted with cotton.

During the Civil War, Cairo sympathized with the South, and today there is little realization in the attitudes of whites towards Blacks that Reconstruction, let alone the Civil Rights movement of the '60s, has happened. Six thousand people, half of the Black, half of them white, populate "Little Egypt." On summer nights Negro jug bands play on street corners for pitched coins and are expected to live on that - if they are not some of the 30% unemployed Blacks on welfare. When Blacks can get jobs, they work as field hands at 50 cents an hour. There are some part-time jobs open to Blacks at Burkhardt's, the largest local industry, which manufactures foamy products for autos. They offer a base salary of $1.65 an hour. Despite the local high unemployment, Burkhardt's draws 40% of its workers from the white labor pool of Missouri and Kentucky. Black women work as domestics for $15 a week for a 40-hour week, so that white families with incomes as low as $5,000 can afford to have "their Negro."

Blacks are jammed into the Pyramid Court housing project - a cluster of low-rise apartment buildings. Fifty-six per cent of Cairo's housing has no plumbing and is made of cheap lumber and tarpaper that burns away like a match. Six hundred houses have been destroyed, and only 10 new ones built in the past decade.

The town as a whole is dying, and whites, too, suffer from the regressive leadership of the old guard. Twenty-seven per cent of the population (including whites) are on welfare, and their overall rate of unemployment is 12%. Though what employment exists is open mainly to whites, pay scales are a mere pittance.

A small group of a half-dozen men have made fortunes estimated at over a million dollars each at the expense of both Blacks and whites from one of the poorest counties in Illinois. Harry Emerson, president of First Bank and Trust Co., is considered "the most powerful man in Cairo." He also heads the Public Utility Commission which for years deposited its money in Emerson's bank and received no interest. Another powerful reactionary force is General Harry L. Bohlen, former bank director, insurance agent and retired Lt. Gen. in the Illinois National Guard. Dr. Flint Bondurant, whose medical practice milked Cairo's poor for years, prevented the construction of a medical center there.

These men, and men like them have been pillars of the Cairo Chamber of Commerce, which for the past 30 years has tried to lure industry to Cairo with the bait of an anti-union, low-wage climate. But many businesses, which have been drawn to Mississippi by this bait will not chance Cairo, because Chicago-based labor union strength could cause serious trouble for them. In addition, the political situation in Cairo has been termed "unstable."

Cairo's "instability" is a result of two decades of civil rights activity. The first winning battle in 1946 was a demand for equal pay for Black and white teachers. In 1963 Blacks demonstrated to open up the public swimming pool. They won in court, but the city chose to close the pool altogether. Blacks were beaten and their cars and homes burned when they attempted in 1965 to integrate movie houses and bowling alleys. In 1967, a Black soldier was killed while in jail. A 72-year-old Black gardener was bludgeoned to death with a baseball bat by the "fire and brimstone" preacher Larry Potts. Potts claimed that the old man was trying to rape his wife and got off clean - "just liable homicide."

The unstable situation in Cairo has grown shakier, particularly since Blacks formed the United Front in April 1969. The United Front has demanded 50% control of all levels of political and socio-economic institutions in Cairo. White reaction to Black demands was predictably hostile. The United Citizens for Community Action (UCCA) - a euphemistic guise for the White Hats, a vigilante mob of 600 "emergency" deputized whites - resorted to shoot-ins on Pyramid Courts and burnings of UF-owned property. The UCCA has close ties with the White Citizens Councils of America and the American Nazi Party.

Black retaliation to white hostility is a boycott of the 44 white businesses located on downtown Commercial Street. The 20-month boycott has definitely hurt Cairo's already failing economy. Eight businesses have gone bankrupt. "The boycott's killing Cairo," one white businessman said, and says a UF spokesman, "If this continues, there's gonna be a lot more businesses closed." White merchants admit their receipts have dropped 40%.

Blacks, due to a cooperative effort, are surviving the boycott better than whites. They travel either 32 miles west to Cape Girardeau, Missouri, or 35 miles east to Paducah, Kentucky, to shop. The Chicago-based

Renovation Planned For Billings In Near Future

by Mark Butterfield

In an interview with the CYNIC, Richard Hansen, Director of Student Activities, explained that funds were already appropriated for a renovation of Billings Center, and that these repairs were not done over the Christmas holidays because there "wasn't enough time to do the required work."

The purpose of the renovation is to provide an adequate food service area for the next five years, in lieu of a new Student Union.

With the exception of moving some conference rooms to the loft, only the bottom floor would be changed. Seating capacity at the Den would be increased from 160 to between 290 and 300. A great number of new seats will be located at the existent office area. To accomplish this, office space would be moved to the current location of the food bar and covering about one half of the present Den. Saga would be relocated to the East Wing of Billings and the conference rooms would be destroyed and moved to the loft. Additionally, the women's restroom would be moved to SPS lab, and the possibility of a fireplace has been mentioned. Aesthetically speaking, Hansen said that the improvements would not "disrupt" the architectural beauty of the building.

A total of $60,000 will be spent on the project, with $10,000 from the Student Association, and $50,000 from the State. These funds have already been approved. Hansen said that some work will be done near the end of the semester, and continuing into the summer.

Hansen then stated that the main reason these improvements were being done is that realistically speaking, with the present U.V.M. appropriation from the State of Vermont in jeopardy, a new Student Union is far away from reality.

How To Win The Draft Lottery

MASTERING THE DRAFT
Copyright 1971 by John Striker and Andrew Shapiro

In the last few months we have been receiving hundreds of letters inquiring about the lottery system. This mail reveals widespread misunderstanding. Although each letter recites different facts, all the letters center around two basic questions: when will I be exposed to the draft lottery? how can I control my exposure so as to overcome it?

Now there are clear detailed answers for everyone in a recently published booklet called "How to Win the Draft Lottery" (New York 1971) by Mr. Jack Werlow. Although the title is rather hard-sell, it is not without foundation. "How to Win the Draft Lottery" does more than explain the intricate workings of the lottery system. It also devises various "game plans" designed to win the lottery. These game plans are not only well-thought-out and easy to follow but also perfectly legal.

The heart of the booklet is divided into three parts: "The Lottery Pool in 1970," "The Lottery Pool in 1971," and "The Lottery Pool in 1972 and Later Years." These three parts are geared to the annual growth and change that occur within the lottery pool. Each year new priority groups and subgroups are added to the pool. Depending upon which group you fall into, you may be highly vulnerable to or virtually immune from the draft - regardless of your lottery number.

Usually, it is essential to move from one group to another at just the right moment. One successfully planned move will win the draft lottery. Bearing this in mind, Mr. Werlow expounds what he calls the "laws of motion" prevailing within the lottery pool. A reader will be guided by these fundamental laws whenever he chooses and executes one of the "game plans" offered at the end of "How to Win the Draft Lottery."

Some of the more important laws of motion had their first effect on New Year's Day 1971. On that day, as the author explains in detail, two new groups formed within the 1971 lottery pool: the 1971 Extended Priority Selection Group and the 1971 Second Priority Selection Group.

Membership in these two Groups is determined by the laws of motion: If on December 31, 1970, you were in the 1970 lottery pool, and your lottery number was higher than the highest number reached by your draft board, then, on New Year's Day, you moved from the 1970 First Priority Selection Group to the new and dangerous 1971 Extended Priority Selection Group. Men in Extended Priority have the highest draft vulnerability of all men in the lottery pool.

Even worse, Extended Priority can, as the author explains, drag on for months of years unless you plan and execute a successful escape from the Group. Various escape routes are laid out in one of the cleverest "game plans" at the end of "How to Win the Draft Lottery."

Another widely used "game plan" will be the one that tells how to move from First Priority to Second Priority. The plan is based upon the very latest changes in lottery procedure implemented this fall and winter. The plan allows you to win the lottery without risking a year of vulnerability, or even a month, or a week. Indeed, one version of this successful "game plan" lets you gamble and win on your lottery number without risking a single day of vulnerability to the draft.

Questions & Answers

Mr. Werlow also writes about the assignment of lottery numbers and the function they perform within the lottery pool. This part of the booklet clarifies exactly which men are covered by each lottery drawing and how their numbers relate to those drawn in other years.

"How to Win the Draft Lottery" is must reading for all draft counselors and anyone who hates to gamble and lose when his liberty is at stake. This booklet is the best up-to-date explanation of the draft lottery available today. Besides telling you how to win, the booklet may also alert you to legal errors your draft board has already made in assigning you to the wrong priority group within the lottery pool. If your book store does not yet have "How to Win the Draft Lottery" in stock, you can order it directly from the publisher, by sending $1.00 to Brooklyn Bridge Press, P.O. Box 1894, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11262.

Please continue sending your proposals for draft reform to us at "Mastering the Draft," Suite 1202, 60 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017. We plan to cover Washington in the near future and want to have your ideas with us.

FRANKLY SPEAKING by Phil Frank

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

© 1970 College Press Service
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823

Question: "I've been taking various antibiotics, prescribed by a dermatologist for acne daily for about 4 years. I'm wondering what long-term effects this has on my system." And:

For several years now I have been bothered with acne. What are the principal causes of blackheads and clogged pores? Is the best thing to do or not to do about them, and oily skin in general? What about commercial preparations like Clearasil? Is acne generally outgrown?

Answer: A leading scourge of youth, acne is an inflammation or infection of tiny pores containing hair and oil glands (pilosebaceous follicles). About 90% of young people are affected, usually on the face and neck, although pimples may appear as far down as the waist. Oily skin and acne are associated.

The vast majority of cases are mild and are outgrown with no residual scars. Such cases are best treated by washing infected areas 3 or 4 times a day with soap which helps decrease oiliness and keep the bacteria down to reasonable numbers. It also promotes drying and washes out blackheads, etc. There are special soaps available for this purpose, although they are not always needed. Control of dandruff and other oily conditions of the scalp also help to control acne. Recent evidence indicates that a diet makes no difference in treating acne and there is no need to avoid food like chocolate, nuts, etc. except for the very rare person who notices a distinct relationship between specific foods and pimples. Ritual prohibition of foods will undoubtedly continue, it is probably no more than adult counter-aggression. Agents such as Clearasil can be helpful and are recommended.

Sunlight or a special ultraviolet lamp, used under the direction of a physician, can be beneficial. The pressure of examinations and other stresses often cause flare-ups as do certain types of heavy make-up and contact with wool or other rough clothing.

In very severe cases antibiotics are used, with tetracyclines (a family of broad spectrum antibiotics) being the most frequently used. At times, people are maintained on small doses over a period of a few years. Eight years might be a new local record and it does sound like an awfully long time. Unless you started very young or are having a very long adolescence you must be pretty close to the age of outgrowing it. I wonder about the long-term effects also.

To paraphrase a modern warning: Do not pinch, squeeze or mutilate a pimple as severe infection and scarring can result.

Question: Would you please tell me where a person can go for a discreet diagnosis of VD? Also, what is the percentage of VD on College campus?

Answer: College health centers vary a lot on how they handle the treatment of VD. Many are more than happy to treat the student and keep the information confidential. Others are a little, or a great deal backward, and get uptight over anything involving gonitis. Call first and inquire about which category your

WOW

BLOW YOURSELF UP
TO POSTER SIZE
2 FT x 3 FT $3.50
1 1/2 FT x 2 FT $2.50
3 FT x 4 FT $7.50
BLOW-UP PO BOX 589 NY 10010 NY

Life Insurance is Good Property!!
Investigate Dividend Histories Before You Invest
Dave Allen, Campus Representative
National Life of Vermont
184 So. Winchell Ave., Burlington, Vt. 804-6819

Summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
summer
C.W. post

Full range of undergraduate and graduate courses, special institutes and workshops. Residence halls available. 2 sessions: June 28-July 30 and August 2-September 3 (day and evening). Phone (516) 299-2431 or mail coupon.

Summer Session Office
C.W. Post Center
Greenvale, L.I., N.Y. 11548

Please send me Summer Sessions information bulletin.
☐ Undergraduate ☐ Graduate ☐ Day ☐ Evening

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
If visiting student, which college _____

THE PHI MU DELTA PHILOSOPHY

To the men of Phi Mu Delta the concept of fraternity means the aggregation of individuals tied by a common bond of inner satisfaction known as brotherhood. Brotherhood at Phi Mu Delta means unceasing pride in our membership and its accomplishments. In our fraternity, lasting friendships are born, experiences are shared, and a lifetime of dedication to, and belief in, the worthiness of a Greek fraternity system is established. Emphasis is on constant development of the individual. Our national constitution states: "Character, ability, and willingness to support the fraternity and its principles shall be the basis of eligibility to membership." The creed of "Fraternity, Democracy, and Service, is the basis for our commitment to the TOTAL MAN. We the brothers of Phi Mu Delta have pride in our past and faith in our future."

EXHIBITION AND SALE
UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT
FLEMING MUSEUM
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 8
10 A.M. to 5 P.M.
7 P.M. to 9 P.M.
CHAGALL, BASKIN, ROUAULT, DAUMIER & MANY OTHERS
ARRANGED BY FERRANDO NOTEN GALLERIES BALTIMORE, MD.
ORIGINAL GRAPHICS

Stagolee Struggles Against Oppression

Who is Stagolee? He's the "brother on the block" who knows the life of the ghetto. He has seen it all—poverty, violence, degradation. In living it, he has become aware of his oppression, aware of the power politics which are shaping his life. He begins to fight back, and in his struggle against oppression, he becomes a new man.

Last year, American Documentary Films produced a film called Stagolee: An Interview With Bobby Seale. In it, Seale spoke about the emergence of his own political awareness and his vision for the future. A former comedian, Seale said, "You don't make people happy by just telling jokes anymore. You have to solve things, and if you're not a joke."

As he spoke about his life in prison, Seale explained that the only way to survive was to wage psychological warfare against the prison structure, to appear to enjoy those punishments which the prison authorities feared most.

For society in the future, Seale advocates "A society that makes some sense, a socialistic system of some sort where the people have some power." In his eyes, "power to the people" is more than radical rhetoric; it is the key to a society where people are truly equal, where real, human relationships are possible and people live in cooperation rather than competition with one another.

Stagolee was shown on campus last week by Education of Whites About Racism, a group concerned with informing people about racist attitudes and institutions. EWAR plans to sponsor a speaker early in March, and will be conducting other programs from time to time.

Laurel and Hardy, appearing in "Great Guns"

Laurel And Hardy Star In 'Great Guns'

The third Lane Film Society presentation features comedians Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Great Guns." It will be offered on Saturday, Feb. 6, at two showings, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. in Benedick Hall, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Tickets, priced at $1.00, are available this week in the Lane Office, 236 Waterman, and also at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Lane Office at 656-3418.

Preceding the feature film, chapters 5 and 6 of the Flash Gordon series will be presented.

Other films in the series will include "Jitterbugs" with Laurel and Hardy, Feb. 13; "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," with W. C. Fields, March

6, and "Never Give a Sucker an Even Break," with W. C. Fields, March 13. Consecutive chapters of Flash Gordon will also be on view at each showing.

This spring's Lane Film Society offerings are billed as "American Comedies of the Thirties"—a Saturday night movie series for all members of the family.

The story of "Great Guns" concerns a gardener and chauffeur who join the Army to look after their rich, hypochondriac young employer, who has been drafted. The Army resents the two inept rookies as an institutional insult, and therein lies the many misadventures of Laurel and Hardy.

Also starred in the film is Sheila Ryan. Running time is approximately 80 minutes.

Marat/Sade Describes Napoleonic Era

by Lane Marshall

Preview on Marat/Sade: "Marat we're poor and the poor stay poor. Marat don't make us wait any more. We want our rights and we don't care how. We want our revolution now!"

So sing the mental and emotional cripples in "Marat/Sade." It's a full title gives an excellent summation of the play's initial intention: Peter Weiss' version of The Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat, As Performed by the inmates of the Asylum of Charenton, Under the Direction of the Marquis De Sade. The year is 1808, the revolution is over and Napoleon is in power. In Charenton, the gray-skinned "sisters" mechanically bludgeoned these charges into submission. As an aid to their rehabilitation, the Marquis De Sade has prescribed a play and the audience, behold a play within a play. The audience however soon realizes that the line between reality and imagination is very fine, the line between sanity and madness even finer, and at times we will find it hard indeed to distinguish which side of the line we are on.

The play may start as predicted, but mad men are mad men because they are unpredictable.

The play was written in 1964 and first produced at the Schiller Theatre in London. Later, in the same year, it was presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company in London. Among all of his works, Mr. Weiss' version of Marat/Sade has been acclaimed his most striking, with its fearless exhibition of the grotesque and direct relevance to our times.

"Marat/Sade" will be presented by the University Players, in cooperation with the Department of Speech and Drama, on the evenings of February 5, 6, 7, at 8 p.m. in the Arena Theatre. Admission is $7.50 with an ID and $1.50 without. For information or reservations call 656-2094.

Photography Exhibits On Display Next Week

Seven one-man photography shows will be featured in Billings Center starting next week in conjunction with Festival 71.

The exhibits will be shown by some of the most noted photographers in the state. The displays will encompass a variety of themes, and some of the photos will be available for sale.

Each one-man show will be set up in Marsh Lounge, and viewing will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Kicking off the week of exhibits on Tuesday will be Fred Hill, a professional photographer from Burlington. On Wednesday, a member of the Student Photography Service will sponsor a display.

William Weinberger, a professional photographer from Burlington, will be featured on Feb. 11, and will be followed the next day by one of his local colleagues, Betsy Thrasher.

On Feb. 15, a professional photographer from Middlebury, Frank Gohoke, will display some of his works.

Two reporter-photographers from The Rutland Herald, Nicola C. Marro and Thomas K. Slayton, will be featured on the following day.

The last of the series of exhibits, on Feb. 17, will be by Santos Padilla of the University Photography Service.

Oil-Eating Bugs Provide A Solution

Biotechnika International, Inc., a year-old research and development company in Alexandria, Virginia may have taken science one step forward in its constant grappling with oil spills.

According to "Chemical & Engineering News," the American Chemical Society's weekly technical journal, Biotechnika has produced a microbial "cocktail" composed of twenty different oil-hungry microscopic bugs. The oil-eating bug mob—one trillion of them to an ounce—tackled a 10-square-foot-layer of oil on a Potomac River estuary. The oil was cleaned up within four days.

"Our bugs eat up Kuwait and Venezuelan crude," said Dr. Edward N. Azarovitz, a microbiologist in charge of research at Biotechnika. The mixture of nineteen earth microbes and one sea microbe breaks oil down to carbon dioxide, water, sugars and proteins. Azarovitz pointed out all these materials restore nutrients to fish that otherwise might not survive an oil spill. Fish fed the microbe-digested oil in the company laboratory seemed in better condition than other fish fed on regular food.

The microbes didn't fare so well. "They die off," according to Azarovitz. "They like the land. When they have eaten the oil they've had it. There is nothing else they can eat in the ocean."

Azarovitz feels the biggest challenge was determining the proper mixture which can be adjusted for various geographical areas, climates, and times of year. Oil is introduced to the growing microbe cultures, he says. Azarovitz, "they get to like the stuff." Later the microbe mixture is freeze-dried and packed with special nutrients "to help give them a running start when they get into the water."

Because sea-living microbes naturally break down oil, Biotechnika's concept is not new. What is unique is the increased speed with which the selected land-sea microbe mixture breaks down oil concentrations.

What it will do on the real thing remains to be seen. Biotechnika's next step is to sic its microbe crew on an actual oil spill.

DA's Report On October Demonstration

SAN JOSE, Cal (CPS)—The investigation into violence which occurred here during President Nixon's Oct. 29 visit that gained so much national attention has ended not with a bang, but a whimper.

Despite the original claim and counter-claim of mass rioting, conspiracy, and widespread felonious acts, a District Attorney's inquiry has found little evidence of such crimes. Former Sen. George Murphy and Gov. Reagan had hit hard for the need for "law and order" following the rock-throwing spree which occurred here. Murphy called the demonstrators "anarchists" and claimed that he might have been "ripped apart" by the group. Nixon used the rocks that greeted his motorcade as a catalyst for speeches in support of Republicans seeking reelection. There were also charges that the incident was part of a "conspiracy." Local radicals have been insisting that the violence was setup in order to create a campaign issue designed to boost the failing Murphy campaign. Added to this boiling pot were charges that San Jose Police Chief Ray Blackmore provided inadequate protection for the President's limousine, allowing the brief flurry of rock-throwing. Blackmore in turn blamed the Secret Service.

I know
I'm going to die.
I know my fate. I feel it.
I'm in ROTC, but I still know my fate.
Why don't I get out?
I have a low number.
What about leaving the country?
I'm too lazy.
What about an appeal?
I'm still too lazy.
Why am I writing this?
Because I do know my fate.
When one dies it is too late.
It is when one is living that he tells people that it isn't good to have war.
When one is dead, people can't listen to him.
Only when one is living will people notice him.
Writing a silly poem.
But it is true, I am to die.
Maybe people will notice this. Isn't this strange?
That I know my fate.
Oh yes, I can hope, but once I'm dead, people won't know I hoped.
Oh yes, I can write—but only when I'm dead will they say—heh! he knew he was going to die.
Then what an amazing fellow I will be.

Wrap your love in a 'LoveBundle'

And put a LoveBug next to her heart. This FTD Valentine's bouquet comes with a lift-off corsage called the LoveBug. She wears it on Valentine's Day. Order the LoveBundle early. Delivered almost anywhere in the country.

Send the FTD "LoveBundle" for Valentine's week.

CHAPPEL FLOREST INC.
LOVE THE FLOREST
LABRANCE FLOWER SHOP INC.

FRYE BOOTS
FOR MEN AND WOMEN
From $92.50

AT SUNDANCE
18 No. Winooski Ave.,
Burlington

LOOKING FOR JEANS?

NEVERMORE

8 No. Winooski Ave.

HI & LO RISE CORDS
HI & LO RISE DENIMS

BIB OVERALLS
WESTERN SHIRTS

"Welcome to George's" GEORGE'S RESTAURANT

The Best in Pizza Pies
Served With Your Favorite Beverage
TAKE OUT SERVICE
147 NO. WINOOSKI AVENUE

Keep up with the times with house of fashion eyewear, inc.

ATTENTION ALL UVM STUDENTS

MIDAS MUFFLER SHOP
699 PINE STREET
BURLINGTON, VT.
862-7500

OPEN 8:00 A.M. TO 6:00 P.M.
6 DAYS A WEEK

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER
10% DISCOUNT ON ALL WORK

BANK AMERICARD AND MASTER CHARGE ACCEPTED

STUDENTS: PLEASE
BRING YOUR I.D.

WOW

Lane

The "White" Lane... the Modern J... described as "the... ensemble... The Thursday... formance will... rial Auditorium... 8:30. It is sold... Other "White... the spring calen... pop singer Tom... ing for the... (Mitchell), Ma... Lorin Holland... and the rock... April 12.

There will be... gram for to... ance. Most of... be works of... Lewis, leader... ble. Also, ma... bers will be im... In addition

Maine Abort

ORONO, Me... student "Sp... loan fund at... Maine has pr... criticism by... politicians... Control Fund... by the flude... and was given... from manda... activities fee... So that they co... dividual share... the committee... er activities... made that requ... Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

With student... Committee m... sailed along... very until la... politicians set... past two week... Curtis, admit... legal, said he... to it. Univer... country attor... investigations... Students ran... they are tryi... woman studen... abortion to pr...

Several fem... rowed up to S... defray abortio... New York... are legal.

Lane Series Features Modern Jazz Quartet

The next concert on the "White" Lane Series features the Modern Jazz Quartet, described as "the first pure concert-ensemble of jazz."

The Thursday, Feb. 11, performance will be held in Memorial Auditorium and begins at 8:30. It is sold out.

Other "White" concerts on the spring calendar include folk-pop singer Tom Rush (substituting for the cancelled Joni Mitchell), March 5; pianist Lorin Hollander, March 11; and the rock musical "Hair," April 12.

There will be no printed program for tonight's performance. Most of the numbers will be works of composer John Lewis, leader of the ensemble. Also, many of the numbers will be improvised.

In addition to John Lewis, the group includes Milt Jackson, vibraphone; Percy Heath, bass; and Connie Kay on the drums.

The MJQ previously appeared on the Lane Series in March, 1960. The Free Press critic reported that the Quartet "filled the evening with top-notch musicianship, exciting compositions and interesting musical coloration."

Recently, when the MJQ played at the White House at the invitation of President Nixon, one of the special guests was Senator George Aiken of Vermont. It is reported that the Senator, when he entered the East Room, directed his wife to sit near the door, so "we can leave when the music starts." However, the couple remained for the entire concert and greatly enjoyed the music.

The group has been presenting concerts more or less regularly since 1955. The MJQ was founded in 1951, when four soloists of the former Dixie Gillespie orchestra met in a New York studio for a recording session.

The world-renowned group has won top ranking in all the major polls, including the International Critic's Poll.

When critic Jay Harrison of the N.Y. Herald-Tribune heard

The Modern Jazz Quartet

MJQ has appeared at Carnegie Hall, Town Hall, and music and art festivals around the world. Their concert at the Maggio Musicale in Florence, Italy, marked the first jazz concert at that festival.

They have also appeared at festivals in Germany, Belgium, the Newport Jazz Festival, the Stratford, Ont., Shakespeare Festival, the Monterey Jazz Festival, and at the University of Connecticut and Illinois.

the MJQ in New York, he wrote: "The MJQ is quite a wondrous group, though not having heard it before, I was totally unprepared for its vast originality in details of sonority and the members' genuine grace of execution."

And C. H. Garrigues of the San Francisco Examiner, commenting on the MJQ's performance of the Modern Jazz Quartet. The result was often sheer beauty."

Maine Students Establish Abortion Loan Fund

ORONO, Maine (CPS) — A student-sponsored abortion loan fund at the University of Maine has provoked outraged criticism by many of the state's politicians. The Population Control Fund Committee was established here in December by the student government, and was given a budget of $5,000 from mandatory student activities fees. Students were told that they could have their individual share (.75¢) taken from the committee and used for other activities. No student has made that request.

Several female students borrowed up to $400 each to help defray abortion expenses in New York, where abortions are legal.

With student opposition to the Committee minimal, the fund sailed along without controversy until local papers and politicians seized on it. In the past two weeks, Gov. Kenneth Curtis, admitting the fund was legal, said he was still opposed to it. University police and county attorneys have begun investigations.

Students running the fund say they are trying to allow any woman student who wants an abortion to get a safe, legal one.

Essay Writing Is Eliminated

OTTAWA (CPS/CUP) — The Canadian student Liberals have declared the writing of essays "almost always a complete utter waste of time" and are busy establishing an essay bank to help Liberal university students with their academic chores.

Parloined essays are presently available on most campuses through fraternities or residence organizations—but usually at a price.

According to Liberal student President John Varley, "with the essay bank we will be bringing into open a procedure which always existed behind the backs of professors and teaching assistants. It will allow the students more time for engaging in what is far more educative—direct political involvement."

The bank will include essays written by well-known academics, as well as students, and will be available free to all Liberal party members.

WHAT'S?
WOW

The Redwood

"The Place to be after the game"
COMING—WED. 10
Collin Hurd Memorial Night
8 pm—1 am All Proceeds To Be Put In Trust

CHAMPLAIN LANES 985-2824

Hours 10 A.M. TO 1 A.M.

- Automatic Pin Setters
- Expert Ball Fitting & Drilling
- Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
- Cocktail Lounge
- Snack Bar
- Hurricane
- Billiards
- Dancing

AIR-CONDITIONED 16 LANES

Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages & Hors d'Oeuvres South Of South On Shelburne St.

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES
140 CHURCH ST.
ACROSS FROM CITY HALL
OPEN UNTIL 1 AM
"QUALITY FIRST"

LOOKING FOR THE LOWEST AUTO RENTAL RATES IN TOWN?

RENT A NEW PINTO FROM NORDIC FORD FOR $7 PER DAY & 7¢ PER MILE.

Other Ford Cars and Trucks also available.

Drivers must be 21 years old

RENT-A-CAR

Call 864-0231

Album Review:

Stephen Stills

by Doug Collette

STEPHEN STILLS: Musically speaking, there can be a number of reasons for an individual to split from a group, temporarily or permanently, to do solo work. For instance, Neil Young had a double life (with Crosby, Stills and Nash as well as with Crazy Horse) simply because, although he does basically the same kind of material, there are things he can do with his three famous pals that he can't do with Crazy Horse; and vice-versa. Or as in Paul Kantner's case, to confine himself just to working with Jefferson Airplane would mean being creatively stifled. With Steve Stills, the circumstances present still another example: he wants to get into some things that are essentially different from what he does as part of the band.

The first two tracks of Stephen Stills, however, might be misleading. "Love for the One You're With" has a harmony section remarkably similar to the last bit of "Suite: Judy Blue Eyes." "Do For The Others"—presenting Stephen Stills—As—One—Man—Band, overdudding all the instruments on a soft lament in the vein of "4820." After that, Stills begins to venture into some new areas. There is a very pleasing gospel chorus on a number of tunes and it's probably most effective on the rhythm-and-blues "Church (Part of Someone)." Some nice flute and sax on "Cherokee" accompanies rubbery guitar reminiscent of Eric Burdon's "Monterey." Stills even tries some orchestral production on "To A Flame" and "We Are Not Helpless," the latter of which has the simplicity and directness that is in nearly all of Stills' lyrics.

We are not helpless, we are men. On the whole though, the material doesn't seem to be of the high caliber of what I've heard Stills do before. Then again, perhaps it's the treatment the songs are given. The best cut is the simplest: a live set called "Black Queen" where Stills fingers some ringing acoustic blues. Listening to most of the rest of the album, there's a thought in the back of my mind that the tunes would do better without all the frills. As it is, I'm beginning to wonder if they'll stand the test of time.

S.A. Spring Film Series

WHERE: Life Science Auditorium
TIME: 8:00 p.m. sharp
ADMISSION: None, open to all

REGULAR SERIES

January	29	FOOLISH WIVES (Erich von Stroheim)
February	5	"M" (Peter Lorre)
	26	LITTLE CAESAR (Edward G. Robinson)
March	12	BILL OF DIVORCEMENT (John Barrymore, Katherine Hepburn)
	19	THE INFORMER (Victor McLaglen, Preston Foster)
1. Marx Brothers	2	COCOANUTS
February	9	HORSEFEATHERS
March	7	ROOM SERVICE (Eugene O'Neill)
	9	DUCK SOUP
2. Marlene Dietrich
March	13	THE SCARLET EMPRESS (John Lodge)
	16	THE BLUE ANGEL (Emil Jannings)
	20	BLONDE VENUS (Gary Grant)
	23	DESIRE (Gary Cooper)
	30	DESTINY RIDES AGAIN (James Stewart)

SPECIALS: There will be several special movie showings this semester. The first will be THE BOYS IN THE BAND which will be shown March 5, 1971 at 7:30 p.m. in Life Science Auditorium. Cost is $1.50

For information call Extension 2053

Jerry's Place

CLEANERS & TAILORS
16 NORTH STREET
BURLINGTON, VT. 05401

In Honor of George's and Abe's Birthdays...

Shirts laundered and pressed for 22 cents each (5 shirt minimum)

Offer good only for February.

EXCLUSIVE ENGAGEMENT NOW PLAYING
Mat. Wed. Sat. Sun. 2 PM Every Evening 7 & 9

DIRECT FROM DENMARK

"Threesome" is the first film from Denmark since "I Am Curious" and "Without a Stitch"

RATED X

STATE

No one under 18
Admitted—ID's required
In Downtown Burlington
IN TECHNICOLOR

THE REBEL IS HERE!

Featuring

Bar-B-Que Ribs

Bar-B-Que Chicken

Roast Beef on Hard Roll

Plantation Fried Chicken

Fresh Sea Food Dinners

1/4 lb. Burgers

Delicious dinner in a unique atmosphere.

Mammoth Mart
Shopping Plaza

Shelburne Rd.
So. Burlington

"THE ONLY SOUTHERN REBEL THAT WAS EVER A CHICKEN"

Now showing evenings at 6:30 & 9:15

TORA! TORA! TORA!

The Incredible Attack on Pearl Harbor as Told from both U.S. and Japanese sides

in color

BURLINGTON PLAZA
CINEMA 1 & 2

Now Showing!

Mon. Thru Thurs. at 7:00 & 9:15
Fri & Sat at 2:00-7:00-9:15 & 11:00
Sunday at 2:00-7:00 & 9:15

Love means never having to say you're sorry.

LOVE STON

Ali MacGraw
Ryan O'Neal

The Year's #1 Best Seller

John Marley & Ray Milland

STRONG

Show at 7 & 9 pm

"A remarkable film!"

Judith Crist
NBC-TV (Today Show)

LAST SUMMER

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Emmanuel L. Hild presents
AN ALLIED ARTISTS FILM
CLAUDE CHABROL'S
A French Poetry
about Friendship

Catamount Clippings

The Faculty Senate has recently given its approval to a new policy for admission to the University. Even the CYNIC has echoed the cry of "Academic First."

Despite the fact that the Senate has recognized that further considerations will be given to applicants, it will be "only after academic excellence has been established the priority of any applicant to the University."

Perhaps such a policy requires a few moments of contemplation in order to temper this seemingly absolute viewpoint. The ancient Greeks had a saying, and even though it has become a cliché, it is still very applicable. The phrase, "a sound mind and a sound body," sums up the whole purpose of education in general.

In the modern educational setting where the mind appears to be all, where the scientific attitude seems to be stressed, the policy which has been forwarded is applicable. However, does not the University have a further commitment to both the social community and to those who come to the University seeking a pathway for acceptance and success into that community. That is, a commitment to the physical man.

The body is an integral part of any human being, as is the mind. The two areas are complementary and hence one should strive for the maximum interplay of the two. The ideals of competition and fair play are valuable and rare commodities in the present day. Athletic competition is a valuable means of attaining these ideals.

Indeed, the primary purpose of the University is to obtain an education, and the goal of every student therein should be to do his best within that educational setting. What I am suggesting here is that the concept of education be broadened to include all aspects of the individual.

Many applicants to the University have spent a good deal of time and effort in pursuit of athletic, and as a consequence their grades may have suffered. Are these people to be left behind for those who have chosen to seek their success from their textbooks? Are they to be denied their just reward for hard work?

In summary, let us look upon the athlete, and the athletic program, with respect. It is a hard road, and should be justly rewarded. Fair competition, an essential to the American ideal, is also an essential to the athletic ideal. Striving for academic excellence is also worthy of a good deal of respect, and a necessary component of the well-rounded individual. Let not the University fall victim to limiting itself to the mind and forgetting about the physical man.

Records Fall; Thinclads Take Annual AAU Meet

Eleven meet records fell at the Second Annual Vermont AAU Indoor Championships last Saturday at UVM Gardner-Collins Cage. Fine performances were shown by all winners who were led by Charlie Baldwin and Judy Blanchard of the Green Mountain Athletic Association. The University of Vermont Track and Field Team took top honors with 66 points followed by Dartmouth College with 30 1/2 and Green Mountain A.A. with 29. The Green Mountain A.A. won the women's division with 27 points followed by the Valley Stream Comets of Valley Stream, N.Y. with 20 1/2, Lyndon Institute with 18, and Lake Region with 17 1/2 points.

Baldwin, winner of the GMAA 55-mile Road Race held January 23rd won the 1,000 yard run and the mile. He broke the meet record in the mile with a clocking of 4:22.4.

Catamount co-captain Jerry Learned, who ran neck and neck with Baldwin throughout the entire race, finished second with a time of 4:25.4; his best time ever in that event. Donny Baker of UVM put in his best mile time ever of 4:37 in his third place effort.

In the women's mile, Janet Bristol of the GMAA ran an excellent 5:10.6 mile while UVM sophomore Judy Blanchard, competing for the GMAA, posted record-breaking victories in the women's 50 yard and 300 yard events. Miss Blanchard clocked 6.5 seconds in the 50 yard dash and 40.8 seconds in the 300.

Perry Bland of the Cats switched leads with Dartmouth's Ron Bishop in the two-mile run, but best Bishop with a new meet record of 9:49.8, shattering the old record of 9:55.5 by 5.7 seconds. Bishop had a finish time of 9:51.

Charlie Stoeker jumped a fine 20 feet 2 1/2 inches to win the long jump event for the Catamounts. Teammates Glen Milizia, Chuck Bosley and Steve Coon took third, fourth and fifth places respectively.

Jimmy Comstock of the University of Vermont track team, put in another one of his outstanding performances in the 35 pound weight throw with a toss of 48 feet 8 inches. Teammate Mike Bilza took a close second in the shot put with an excellent heave of 45 feet 7 inches, about two inches off from the winning distance of 47 feet 10 1/2 inches.

Louis Kantmils of Dartmouth College set a new meet record in the pole vault with a height of 13 feet. Bruce Lawrence and Henry Forgues of UVM were second and third respectively while Catamount Billy Reynolds took fifth place.

The UVM track and field team will be back in action this Saturday at the Gardner-Collins Cage in an exciting dual meet with the University of Maine.

The Ball Is Bouncing Our Way BU And Adelphi Fall

by Dave Clark

Four players hit double figures as the Cats played a tenacious defense as UVM upset Adelphi University Tuesday night 66-74.

Vermont was led by the shooting of Tom Clay who had 25 points followed in succession by Jim Ducey, Ray Ortiz, and Rich Treia with 19, 18, and 15 respectively. This victory boosted Vermont to an overall record of 6-8.

The Cats' zone defense worked very effectively against a strong Adelphi team. Vermont led by as much as 19 in the second half.

Vermont controlled the boards through most of the game as Mark Miller and Rich Treia had 13 rebounds a piece.

Adelphi, plagued by a cold night from the floor and a multitude of fouls was still in the game most of the way even though they trailed throughout the game.

Three days previous to this win the Cats posted a victory over Boston University. These two hoop-victories boost Vermont's record to 6-8 for the season.

The leading scorer for UVM was Ray Ortiz with 20 points. Ortiz is now averaging 15.3 points a game for the first 13 games of the season. Second to Ortiz is Vermont Captain Tom Clay who carries a 13.8 average.

One of the big reasons for the Vermont win was the Cats' strength on the boards. UVM had 10 more rebounds than B.U. with 40 compared to 30 for the Terriers. Vermont's rebounding was led by Mark Miller and Rich Treia who had 11 rebounds apiece.

The Cats showed a good sound defense as in the first half they only allowed 24 points and a total of 11 shots at the hoop. Vermont's defense proved too tight at times as three UVM players fouled late in the game. Twelve of the Cats 20 fouls came in the second half and a great many of these in the last 10 minutes of play.

Junior center Mark Miller, who had 11 rebounds, also showed himself on the scoreboard with 16 points. Miller was "on" with 7 of 9 from the floor and 2 of 4 from the charity line. Other scorers for the Cats were Jim Ducey, Rich Treia and Greg Ashford all with 7 and Tom Clay with 6 points for the night.

Vermont had a comfortable lead all night long until the closing minutes of the game. The Cats led 52-39 with 3:43 left in the contest and everyone including this reporter thought the "game" was over with a UVM win a surety.

What happened in the next 3 1/2 minutes causes ulcers in coaches but also makes for exciting games. Vermont began losing the ball on turnovers and missed shots and suddenly the score was 58-52 with about 1 1/2 minutes to play. Vermont fans and players began to panic as what was 2 minutes before a sure win was now a fight for the victory.

With 59 seconds left Greg Ashford of Vermont was fouled at center court by Vic Gathers.

Bickford Fires To Crane Past UNH Defender

The Ball Is Bouncing Our Way BU And Adelphi Fall

by Dave Clark

Four players hit double figures as the Cats played a tenacious defense as UVM upset Adelphi University Tuesday night 66-74.

Vermont was led by the shooting of Tom Clay who had 25 points followed in succession by Jim Ducey, Ray Ortiz, and Rich Treia with 19, 18, and 15 respectively. This victory boosted Vermont to an overall record of 6-8.

The Cats' zone defense worked very effectively against a strong Adelphi team. Vermont led by as much as 19 in the second half.

Vermont controlled the boards through most of the game as Mark Miller and Rich Treia had 13 rebounds a piece.

Adelphi, plagued by a cold night from the floor and a multitude of fouls was still in the game most of the way even though they trailed throughout the game.

Three days previous to this win the Cats posted a victory over Boston University. These two hoop-victories boost Vermont's record to 6-8 for the season.

The leading scorer for UVM was Ray Ortiz with 20 points. Ortiz is now averaging 15.3 points a game for the first 13 games of the season. Second to Ortiz is Vermont Captain Tom Clay who carries a 13.8 average.

One of the big reasons for the Vermont win was the Cats' strength on the boards. UVM had 10 more rebounds than B.U. with 40 compared to 30

for the Terriers. Vermont's rebounding was led by Mark Miller and Rich Treia who had 11 rebounds apiece.

The Cats showed a good sound defense as in the first half they only allowed 24 points and a total of 11 shots at the hoop. Vermont's defense proved too tight at times as three UVM players fouled late in the game. Twelve of the Cats 20 fouls came in the second half and a great many of these in the last 10 minutes of play.

Junior center Mark Miller, who had 11 rebounds, also showed himself on the scoreboard with 16 points. Miller was "on" with 7 of 9 from the floor and 2 of 4 from the charity line. Other scorers for the Cats were Jim Ducey, Rich Treia and Greg Ashford all with 7 and Tom Clay with 6 points for the night.

Vermont had a comfortable lead all night long until the closing minutes of the game. The Cats led 52-39 with 3:43 left in the contest and everyone including this reporter thought the "game" was over with a UVM win a surety.

What happened in the next 3 1/2 minutes causes ulcers in coaches but also makes for exciting games. Vermont began losing the ball on turnovers and missed shots and suddenly the score was 58-52 with about 1 1/2 minutes to play. Vermont fans and players began to panic as what was 2 minutes before a sure win was now a fight for the victory.

With 59 seconds left Greg Ashford of Vermont was fouled at center court by Vic Gathers.

Ashford made a crucial free throw to make the score 61-57. There was no score by Vermont for the next 40 seconds and BU made 1 free throw so the score is 61-58. Enter center court Vermont's free throw hero Jim Ducey. Ducey made 2 shots on a 1 and 1 situation to put the "sure" win on ice for the Cats. Rich Treia fouled James Garvin of BU and Garvin put in his one shot to end the scoring for the night.

by Tim Bickford

THE INSIDER

Boston State and Salem State have always been two very similar teams, with their own very adept stick handlers who always give us trouble. Playing Boston State after having already beaten them 6-2 would seem like a chore because of the overconfidence factor. The Boston Arena is very similar to an old barn, the only difference being that a barn is cleaner. However we did realize that the game would be a difficult one with them proving it to us as they scored in the first 50 seconds. We did not panic, yet remained frustrated throughout the first period. The second period produced a 6-2 lead with a number of trips to the bin on both sides. We opened the game up and took advantage of their mistakes. The third period we coasted home with Fred Hunt cashing in for his third hat trick. Boston University played St. Lawrence after our game and we all somehow got the feeling that those guys were not so awesome as they used to be.

We all snuggled up to sleep in the Copley Square Hotel gleaming over our string of victories and thinking about the game. UMass and Bowdoin were victims of our dreams as we awoke in first place. The next question was how long could we maintain this prestigious position or was it a twenty-four hour blessing with our standing dropping with the next puck.

The next puck teetered a little before it rolled the right way and I'm not sure whether one of the two blind mice did not have something to do with it. Anyway, Salem State played probably one of its best games all year, and made us earn the right to tie the record string of six straight wins. Again we faltered at the beginning, but the remaining goals did not come as easily with us incurring twenty-four minutes in penalties. Salem proved to be one of the toughest teams we have played all year. It was a hard fought win and gave us the preparation we needed for New Hampshire, our toughest opponent remaining on the schedule. We cannot afford to count on any win, as each team we play has one of their biggest games of the year against us. Hopefully, the rubber will keep bouncing the right way so that when the big ones roll around we won't have to depend on a teetering puck.

Cats Climb On Top Of II

by Dave Higgins

(Editor's note: The Wednesday night game against Division One power New Hampshire was not available at press time.)

After vaulting into first place with a 7-3 victory over Boston State Saturday, the University of Vermont nearly gave it away against a fired up Salem State on Monday evening. A meager crowd of approximately 2,000 saw a less than inspired first period, from the Cat standpoint, that only a fine third period could save for a 4-2 Vermont victory.

Again the scoring came from the torrid first line but this time it was not Fred Hunt. Ned Grant, the overhauled veteran wing and Patry Wright, each hit the net for two scores with Hunt getting assists on all but the last goal. Grant, who celebrated his birthday the day of the game, scored a goal, with only 11 seconds left in the second period to tie the match. That goal changed the momentum from Salem to UVM and sent the Cats into the locker room eager to come out for the third and final stanza.

The ice men from Burlington came out flying. Wright, who had missed a goal on a breakaway earlier in the period, took a Ted Yeates pass at 8:56 and flipped the puck passed Vince Capannocio for the lead. Grant finished the scoring at 11:53 when he received a Wright pass and drove up the right side firing the puck over Capannocio's shoulder.

Ned Grant

The game was marred by an excessive amount of penalties including nine in the final third. Many calls were beyond belief. Any Catamount drive in the first period seemed to be halted by the quick whistle of the referee. That initial period saw a fired up bunch of Salem players who gave the UVM crowd the biggest scare of the young season. For two periods the crowd sat back wondering if the streak was about to end. Dick McBride hit first in the game only 34 seconds into the game. To add salt to the wound Salem State was a man down at the time. Patry Wright came back at 14:28 to tie it up but Bob Fitzgerald put Salem back on top less than one minute later.

ICINGS: Fred Hunt had his second hat trick in two games in the Boston State win. When asked what he thought of being in first place, coach Jim Cross answered, "It's a good feeling. We've never been there before." The first place climb was caused by two upsets. Colby destroyed previously undefeated Massachusetts 8-2 and AIC topped Bowdoin 4-2.

UVM Sinks CoastGuard

Bouncing back from its heartbreaking loss to the McGill team, the UVM swim team defeated a determined Coast Guard squad and breezed to a victory over U.Mass.

Coast Guard proved to be a strong team and they led through most of the meet. Again, the last freestyle relay proved to be the decisive factor. The team of Alexy, Small, Gilbert, and Radimer turned in a five team effort to defeat Coast Guard. The final score was 59 to 54.

At U.Mass, the aquacats won every event except the last relay, finishing the meet with a final score of 78 to 35.

Super star Don Macomber bounced in a winning way to sweep the diving events, while standout John Radimer swept the freestyle event including a five 500 yard swim.

On February 6, the Cats will host Holy Cross at the Forbush Pool to extend their 4-1 record.

The change in Editorial Board on the CYNIC brings forth a native of Chelmsford, Mass. to take the Sports Editorship. Kenneth F. Whitaker, a Junior, replaces outgoing Editor David F. Kopacz, a Senior from Springfield, Vermont with this issue.

Whittaker is presently First Vice President of the Inter Residence Association (IRA) and was a Resident Assistant in Converse Hall last year. Whittaker was the football writer for the CYNIC this past semester and lists among his credentials the post of Sports Editor with his High School paper.

The new Sports Editor intends on giving more attention to feature stories and continuing the expansion of coverage to more minor sports. Kopacz will remain as the Hockey writer through the end of the season.

WANT TO GO SKIING ?

NOW YOU CAN RENT A COMPLETE OUTFIT FOR ONLY $30 A SEASON. ALL SIZES—ALL KINDS INC. HEADS AND HARTS. JOE BERRY 250 S. Union St. 62-0903

Every Friday Afternoon!
HAPPY HOURS
4-6

AT THE

blue tooth

Drinks Reduced

Live Band—No Cover

"THE MAD TEAPARTY"

Wed.—Sunday

TONY'S PIZZA

OPEN UNTIL 3 A.M.
ORDERS TO GO

COLLEGE MAN'S FRIEND

PEARL ST.
BURLINGTON

WOW

is coming!

A Particular Place for Particular Skiers...

Exciting skiing for all skills. Complete variety in steepness and difficulty, from the Chute and Fall line, among New England's steepest to gentle Vixen. Ski the Mini-Area within our area! Headquarters of 9 leading Ski Clubs. Special Ski Week rates. Write: Folder, Information.

MAD RIVER GLEN
SKI AREA

Waitfield, Vermont • Routes 100 and 17

"MOST LOVABLE
SKI AREA
IN THE
UNITED STATES
IN ONLY ONE STATE"
BY HUNGARIN MAGAZINE

Ski
Mad River's MINI-AREA within an area

Unique "Birdland" has its own 5 trails, chair lifts and 3 other lifts on mid-mountain. The base and third the way up — the top one-third below the ridge. You'll get lost, yet well controlled descent. It's enthusiastically approved by skiers of all ability!

AMERICAN

SKI-TAXI
SERVICE

All Fares Per Person
round trip, in groups of 5

Bottom Valley	5.00
Middowns Mtn.	5.00
Skyline No. 1	7.00
Mad River & Glen Ellen Area	7.50
Sugar Bush	7.50
Stone Area	7.50
Middlebury Snow Bowl	8.00

For Reservations CALL:
American Ski Taxi—Tel. 802. 864-0470 37 Crowley St., Burlington

To all ski areas within 50 miles
of Burlington.

Pick up at any school or any other designated area.

Leave Eri., return
Sunday or any other time.

VERMONT CYNIC

CYNIC Interview:

Trustee Candidates Voice Their Opinions

Editor's Note: Three vacancies on the UVM Board of Trustees are to be filled by election in the state legislature sometime in the near future. As of press time, seven people have declared themselves candidates for the positions. They are: Senator Robert Boardman, John O'Brien, and Madeline Harwood, and Representatives Esther Cohen, Benjamin Gould, Edmund Miller and Martin Powell.

The CYNIC was able to contact six of these candidates, being unable to reach Robert Boardman. Senator John O'Brien declined to answer any questions over the telephone, although he offered to answer written questions sent to him in Montpelier. O'Brien was informed that press deadlines made this impossible; O'Brien still declined. He has been outspoken, however, on the subject of UVM. In the February 3 issue of the Burlington Free Press, O'Brien declared that UVM was "an honor at one time" and is now a "disgrace." He further stated, "South Prospect Street is now populated by an army of the great unwashed. They want to change things, but they don't even know how to change their shirts."

The remaining five candidates were asked identical questions; all were aware that their answers would be published.

Representative Benjamin Gould was interviewed first.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have not analyzed it yet; I have no comment. In the first place, I am not yet elected. In the second place, I can't make statements until I'm over there and can look, but I'm not out on a witchhunt. I'm applying to be a representative for the General Assembly on the Board, and I feel I should report back there on what's going on, if I'm elected.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: In the first place, my background is such that I think I can be a great deal of help. My background is in education training, as a member of a school board for nine years; I have been in city government, on the Board of Aldermen, and I've been in the General Assembly. I have been a trustee of a college; I know many problems at colleges. I don't think I can solve the world, but I can help.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: Many members of my family graduated from the University although I did not. I think the students are a nice bunch of people, a nice bunch of kids. I think they're doing their thing like maybe we did in my day. I think there are certain rights the students have, and certain rights the college has.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I'm not prejudiced against anybody. If I am, I come with an open mind.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: Nothing's wrong.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: Well, I think they have some problems which can be solved. I'm not sure that the Board of Trustees can solve them; but I think that what's needed is an airing of problems by students and faculty, and maybe the members of the Board of Trustees. If they would just get together, I think a lot of this comes from not understanding what other people are trying to do.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I'm very fond of them. I'm an Owl (Lamda Iota) and my son was a Fiji. I guess that's close enough.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: No, I'm not. I'm opposed to obscenity, but I can understand both sides.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: The only thing I have to comment on, that, in respect to what I've read and observed, is that more Vermonters should be allowed to participate in that sort of thing. I think it's wrong for the University to come out and say "we're going to hit the out-of-state" — that's just like the sales tax; the tourists will pay our way here in the state of Vermont — which I don't think is right.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: Financially — that's what I've been for since I have been elected representative. I'm for full funding. I will work for that and want to work for that. I think I will also help the situation I first spoke to you about in regards to Vermont students. I think it all lies in...

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: Well, I have an apartment. I have a student there. And I'm very happy. Does that answer your question?

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I'm not prejudiced in regards to race, creed, color, or sex. I believe we're all equal.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: Why don't you ask me, what is right with UVM? There's a lot wrong and there's right too. As a matter of fact I think the University is essentially all right. I want to support the Administration as much as I can, and I think they need support. I'm a member of the New England Board of Higher Education, and being a member of that organization, it appeared to me that the University of Vermont must have been doing something right. UConn had trouble, UMass had trouble. I think Vermont was one of the few universities that didn't see the use of violence. It was due to the fact that the University of Vermont had good leadership that we didn't have any outstanding trouble.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I have none. I don't prejudge anything until I've seen both sides of the coin.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

A: I think I'm prejudiced in favor of the students and the professors. I don't side with the conservative elements in the community. I think they're too many of the Beckley types.

Q: What is wrong with UVM?

A: I have no theory on what is wrong. I don't know if there is anything wrong with it. I would very much like to learn more about it before making a statement. I don't believe in condemning something until you know what's going on.

Q: How can you help UVM?

A: I'm not sure whether I can. But I do think a women's viewpoint should be considered on a Board where there are twenty-three members, and not a woman on the Board. It seems to me that with a co-educational college, we should bring in a women's viewpoint.

Q: What is your opinion on the students at UVM?

A: I don't know too many. Generally speaking, though, they seem a wonderful, wholesome group of kids. I wouldn't doubt but that they're even more serious-minded than most.

Q: How prejudiced are you?

Disc

Thursday, Feb. 11

University Senate meeting, 4:15 p.m., Tower Lounge, Westman Building.

Lans White Series Concert, "Modern Jazz Quartet," 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium.

Friday, Feb. 12

Folk Music Society at Norwich, 1 p.m.

"Friday at Five," open house at Arena Theatre, 4 p.m.

Folk dance music, 8 p.m., Southwick Ballroom.

Varsity Skiing at Dartmouth Carnival, Hanover, N.H.

Saturday, Feb. 13

Varsity Swimming vs. Connecticut, 1:30 p.m., Fortbank Pool.

Varsity Track at Bates, 1:30 p.m.

Freshman Basketball vs. Johnson and Wales, 2 p.m., Patrick Gymnasium.

Varsity Skiing at Dartmouth Carnival, Hanover, N.H.

Varsity Basketball at New Hampshire, 8 p.m.

WATCH FOR: Feb. 15, last day to add Evening Division classes.

Feb. 17, S.A. Speakers Bureau presents post Anne Sexton. Planning Museum speaker, Chauncey Loomis on "Weird and Tragic Shore." Feb. 18-20: Winter Festival Feb. 20: Board of Trustees meet. ALSO OF INTEREST: Feb. 25: International Ice Review, Europa Folk Spectacular on ice, 8 p.m., Memorial Auditorium, benefit of Medical Center Hospital Auxiliary. Tickets on sale Feb. 10-$2.50, $3.75 and $4.75. Phone 862-1364 or mail: Int. Ice Review, Shelburne Post Office.

Spring vacation has been changed from March 29-April 3 to April 5-10.

S.A. Elections

Elections for next year's S.A. constitutional officers will be held the week before vacation, at the end of March. Those interested in running should sign up, between now and Monday, March 1st, at the S.A. desk. The officers are those of President, Vice President of Internal Affairs, Vice President of External Affairs, Vice President of Financial Affairs, Vice President of Student Activities, and Secretary.

Scholarships

Available

Delta Delta Delta sorority is offering two $550 scholarships to any full time women students. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need will be considered. Applications are available at the Financial Aid office or the Tri-Delta house at 143 South Willard. Deadline is March 1, 1971.

Speaker's Bureau

SA Speaker's Bureau

Presents John English (from New York City) in concert, Friday the 12 in North Lounge Billings at 8:00 p.m. Admission Free

Help Wanted

And the list of OVP projects is continually growing!!!!!!

Agency: Environmental Action Projects

Project: The possibilities here are almost unlimited. There are many requests for speakers and community action projects. There are many issues that need to be raised to public attention.

Agency: VISTA

Project: There are many requests here for students to work on projects which operate in areas of extreme need. Job descriptions are available.

Agency: Lake Champlain Committee

Project: There are a variety of needs such as office work, helping with the newsletter, photo exhibit of pollution on the lake, developing films, and exhibits to have in the office.

Agency: Reading and Recording for the Blind

Project: Students who want to work to find ways of serving the needs of the visually handicapped in the Burlington area are needed.

Agency: UVM Tutoring

Project: Tutors are needed to work at Thayer School. Students work on a one-on-one relationship helping children who are having problems in school—both academic and social.

Agency: The Place

Project: The Place is a drug center where kids can go for help. The Place needs students who are interested in this problem and want to do something about it.

This is by no means the end of the list, as there are many more projects that lack leaders and still others that are waiting to be discovered. At the same time many people are needed for those projects in operation, as for example, being Howard Family Services, Big Brothers, Tutorials of all types, and Parents without Partners. For more information come on up to the OVP office.

The Friendly Folk, UVM Art and Literature Collective

The Friendly Folk Share Creative Activity

The Friendly Folk, the University of Vermont's new art and literature creative collective, is the outgrowth of the publication of a literary magazine. There are no editors or officers; members are simply people working together, finding and publishing original work. With a new magazine to be published once a semester and the frequent publication of significant individual works, The Friendly Folk hope to stimulate and share creative activity in the university community.

The first published work is a large color photograph of a North Country sunset. The photograph is the work of Susan Carol Kessler, an undergraduate poet-photographer and English major who recorded the sunset at her home in the Worcester Mountains, looking towards Whiteface. She has compiled a book of similar nature photography and poetry which she expects to have edited and published soon. The camera used was a Nikon mat with Ektachrome X film. George Little Press printed the poster in four color photographs.

The Friendly Folk heartily thank the good people who donated money to fund the Burlington needy, when the poster was distributed. Donations have amounted to $175 so far, and this has been deposited with the Burlington Community Action Council (O.E.O.). The money will be spent to purchase food for the needy when the Council food co-op begins this Spring. Posters are still available in the West Balcony of Billings.

English Majors' Seminar Programs Are Scheduled

The English Majors' Seminar Program, a series initiated in the Fall of 1966, is pleased to announce its schedule of offerings for the present semester. The class of new informal, one-night seminars is as follows:

1. Topic: Black Music—20th Century (Bessie Smith movie)
Leader: Mr. Edmund Benne and Mr. Paul Eckholt
Time: February 11, 1971 (Thursday) 1:00 p.m.
Place: Dewey Lounge (2nd floor Old Mill)
2. Topic: Cultural Influences upon Modern Poetry
Leader: Mr. Sidney Papp
Time: February 23, 1971 (Tuesday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: Marsh Lounge, Billings Center
3. Topic: Joyce's Ulysses—The Critic's "Wet Dream"
Leader: Miss Linda Becker
Time: March 3, 1971 (Wednesday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: 300 Old Mill
4. Topic: Sherlock Holmes
Leader: Mr. Michael Zlotache
Time: March 4, 1971 (Thursday) 8:00 p.m.
Place: Dewey Lounge (2nd floor Old Mill)
5. Topic: Shakespeare's World View
Leader: Mr. James Howe
Time: March 9, 1971 (Tuesday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: Dewey Lounge (2nd floor Old Mill)
6. Topic: Broughton Poetry Reading
Leader: Mr. T. Alan Broughton
Time: March 18, 1971 (Thursday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: Dewey Lounge (2nd floor Old Mill)
7. Topic: Potting and Poetry
Leader: Miss Shirley Johnson
Time: March 23, 1971 (Thursday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: 320 South Willard Street, Burlington
8. Topic: Hermann House (Shapenwolf, Damien, and Magister Lauder, The Glass Bead Game)
Leader: Mr. Gary Miller and Mr. Philip Sheridan
Time: March 31, 1971 (Wednesday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: 104 Old Mill
9. Topic: The Poetry of Richard Brautigan
Leader: Mr. William Stepien
Time: April 14, 1971 (Wednesday) 7:30 p.m.
Place: 206 Labette

Each of the seminars is led by a faculty member from the Department of English. Although the topics are generally literary-oriented, any student with a definite interest in any of the subjects to be discussed is more than welcome to attend. There is no charge for any of the programs in this series.

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES

1140 CHURCH ST.
ACROSS FROM CITY HALL
OPEN UNTIL 1 AM

"QUALITY FIRST AT PONCHO'S"

BLOW YOURSELF UP

TO POSTER SIZE
2 FT x 3 FT $3.50
1 1/2 FT x 2 FT $2.50
3 FT x 4 FT $7.50
Your original inkjet photograph, 4x6 in. or larger, mounted on a poster board, with a 1/2 in. border. Each poster board is 24 in. x 36 in. (U.S.A.) 10.
BLOW-UP. PO BOX 588 NY 10010 NY

Thinking of Buying a V.W.? Think Twice!

- Volkswagen's prices have gone up—Pinto at $1919 base price is directly competitive with the least expensive bug and more than $150 less than the Super Beetle.
- Pinto has 75 horsepower in its basic engine, for more power than a V.W. (100 horsepower engine also available)
- Pinto has a 3 inch shorter turning radius than a V.W. for greater maneuverability
- Pinto requires less servicing than a V.W.—8000 miles between oil changes—36,000 miles between lubrications
- Pinto is 7.2 inches wider than a V.W. and is 6.2 inches wider for greater stability
- Pinto has doors 7 inches wider than a V.W. for ease of entry
- Pinto has a hot water heater and defroster with a three speed fan, for faster warm up and better heating than a V.W.
- Pinto has 4.6 inches more shoulder room than a V.W. in the front seat and 7 inches more knee room in the back seat

See Ford's newest better idea—
The Great new Small Car that will kick up its heels at Imports.

Pinto

Now at From $1985 delivered

NORDIC
TOTAL TRANSPORTATION CENTER
1000 Rutland Road, Burlington, Vermont 05401 • Telephone (802) 864-9691 • FAX 710-850-6991

Discover the Hide-A-Way

(Bon Appetit!)

"Gang Of Yahoos" Besiege Academic Freedom At UVM; Racial Injustice Perpetuated

By Richard B. Weaver

Assistant Professor of Political Science

If there is one lesson I have learned from the study of government, it is that policy is never self-executing. What an organization says it will do is often quite different from what it does. Nevertheless, policy statements are not entirely meaningless. Every policy statement is a promise that an organization will not to promote certain interests and values. Such statements constitute an invitation. They invite anyone who holds these interests or values to these values to exert pressure on the organization to keep its promise. Only if sufficient pressure is exerted will the promise ever be kept.

The University made a promise late in 1969 which has not been kept because not enough pressure has been exerted. The policy statement on "Multi-Racial Diversity at the University of Vermont," approved by the Academic Council and the Board of Trustees, includes four important propositions:

1. "Diversity is essential for education as well as service. The University has an obligation to provide a multi-racial diversity in its population. Otherwise, its graduates will find themselves educationally disadvantaged."

2. "It is not enough merely to welcome racial minorities to the university campus. In order to implement its expressed goals, the University must actively seek out such students and faculty and make them a part of the university community."

3. "Inasmuch as the largest such minority in the nation is the black population, priority must be given to the enrollment of qualified black students and the appointment of qualified black faculty."

4. "Like any program, the policy of ensuring a multi-racial diversity must be supported by the University through the investment of time, effort and money."

Today this policy is a sick joke. Virtually no "time, effort and money" is being invested to "actively seek out" minority students and faculty. There are only two black faculty members and nineteen black students on this campus. The University has not even explored most of the possibilities for financing the recruitment and maintenance of minority group students.

Our Equal Opportunities Committee recommended last November that the University spend about one percent of its budget to ensure that at least one percent of our student body would be black this fall. But even this "tokenism" was too much for the administration. "We were told," in effect, "that it was a bad time to raise such a controversial issue."

It is easy enough to see why the Administration would say that. The University is besieged this year by a gang of yahooes who are trying to destroy our freedom to teach and learn. If we respond to that threat by perpetuating racial injustice, we will destroy academic freedom ourselves without any help from the yahoos.

A Randall Herald reporter's observation a few months ago—that the "only difference between Vermont and Mississippi is the Mason-Dixon Line"—is not QUITE true. One this campus, racism does not wear a white sheet. Nor does it speak with a cracker drawl like those Southern sheriffs in the flicks. Education is a New England accent and a conscience in go with it. It is inherent in the nature of institutional racism that none of us can escape responsibility for.

We can't see it very clearly from Burlington, Vermont, but there is a world out there and it's mostly non-white. As Stokely Carmichael warned last week, "It is in the white liberals' self-interest to stop the oppression because if they do not, then when we come to the final confrontation and it's a blood bath, there'll be no distinction between who was a white liberal and who was a bad white boy." President Andrews and Vice President Rollins need to be reminded of that. Let them know that you want them to be what they want to be: part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Dear President Andrews:

I (we) request that funds be committed to ensure that at least one percent of the student population this fall will be black, as a first step toward compliance with the official University policy on Multi-Racial Diversity.

Sign

(Bring or send to Equal Opportunities Commission, 351 Waterman Building)

Army Considers 'Moral Acceptability' Of Draftees

Mastering the Draft

Copyright 1971 by John Striker and Andrew Shapiro

Immorality and the Draft

Though it may appear ironic to some people, the Army does not want criminals in the ranks. The procedure used to screen out these undesirable is mildly amusing, quite complex and, undoubtedly, widely misunderstood.

A young man's moral acceptability will be determined at his preinduction physical examination. If he has been convicted of a felony (generally a crime with a maximum punishment of one or more years in prison) he will not be accepted for induction at the time of his physical. However, his case will be sent to an Armed Forces Moral Waiver Determination Board. This Board will conduct an investigation and may, in its discretion, "waive" the moral disqualification and accept the registrant. The registrant has no control over whether he will be blessed with a waiver. Army Regulations, by the way, list some of the more typical felonies. These include riot, murder, sodomy and cattle rustling.

The Army also utilizes three other categories of offenses: minor traffic offenses (i.e., improper blowing of horn), minor nontraffic offenses (i.e., robbing drivers or loitering), and nonminor misdemeanors (i.e., reckless driving or leaving a dead animal). The exceptions are the Army's not ours.

Minor traffic offenses (single or multiple) are not disqualifying and no moral waiver is therefore required. The same is true for a registrant who has committed a single nonminor traffic offense. Two or more nonminor traffic offenses or any nonminor misdemeanors require a waiver. The waiver may come from different individuals depending upon the combination and severity of the crimes. For example, three minor nontraffic offenses may be waived by the Commander of the Armed Forces Entrance and Examination Station where you take your physical. However, a record of four or more nonminor traffic offenses requires a waiver from the U.S. Army Recruiting Commander.

In each of these cases, a waiver may or may not be granted, depending upon the results of an investigation.

In addition to young men with criminal records, disqualification may result if the registrant has been having "frequent difficulties with law enforcement agencies, criminal tendencies, a history of antisocial behavior, alcoholism, drug addiction, sexual misconduct, questionable moral character, or traits of character which make him unfit to associate with other men." Once again, however, such disqualification may be waived.

There is, however, one situation in which a waiver will not be granted. This case arises when a registrant has criminal charges filed and pending against him. This does not include charges involving minor traffic offenses. The disqualification will last only so long as the charges remain pending.

In some cases, a young man with criminal charges pending against him will have the judge offer him military service instead of a trial. According to Army Regulations, the young man will still remain unacceptable.

However, young men who have violated the draft law and who, as an alternative to trial, are offered the option of being inducted, are acceptable. Therefore, check the charges before accepting any offers from a judge.

Men on parole, probation, suspended sentence or conditional release are generally not acceptable and will be disqualified for so long as they have an obligation to the court. The exceptions arise when the suspended sentence is "unconditional" or the probation is "unsupervised unconditional." In these cases, the registrant may be found immediately acceptable.

A young man who is disqualified as morally unfit and for whom no waiver is granted will be considered "administratively unacceptable" and will be placed in class IV-F.

Some young men have reasoned that it would be better to commit a felony now and avoid having to refuse induction (a felony also). Why not choose a felony with a maximum sentence of, say, three years, rather than risk refusing induction?

(continued on page nine)

Example Of Nixonian Illogic On War, Economy

by Bruce Alger

An underground commission set up to study the drift of political winds in Washington has formed one of a secret meeting held in the basement of a high ranking Pentagon official's home last Friday. A well known political figure met with a member of his cabinet and several generals to discuss the possibility of expanding the war to save several governments from Communism.

Parts of the conversation were as follows:

MEL: Well, Mr. President, we sure pulled a fast one with Cooper-Church! You showed great foresight to sneak in all those loopholes so we can bomb the hell out of Hanoi and all the neighboring nations. We were running short of space for our bomb stockpile and almost had to reduce production of war material in general.

DICK: Well, Mel, let me make that perfectly clear. I didn't actually sneak anything. I had to make a lot of promises and lower a few HEN priorities to pull it off. This nation was on the verge of a serious economic crisis. If the Gross National Product growth rate should falter, then this inflation will result in a Depression. We must have a war to survive and, frankly, these students were really putting on the pressure. We were out of excuses to satisfy them.

MEL: But sir, I can see how the invasion of Laos will be a great boon to our economy, but remember Cambodia? These kids just don't understand the responsibility of leadership. How do you plan to get away with it?

DICK: Well, Mel, let me make that perfectly clear. For the past several months I have sent combat flights over North Vietnam in the guise of stopping enemy buildup that would prevent withdrawal of troops. I have also made a big noise about the prisoners of war and even held two raids to rescue some. This has come gradually and with careful study. Since I can not have troops in any of these countries, I sent thirty thousand instructors to teach their armies, and with all my air power, I can prolong this war for years. The enemy majority gimmick works well in addition to that. If we tell people that they like us, most of us believe it. Now, I promised to bring home our boys, and I shall keep that promise. Because of that promise, I was forced to open the war in Laos. The enemy was in Laos and we had to drive them out to protect and speed the peaceful withdrawal of our own troops. The Establishment will understand about the GNP, and if we blame the invasion on the students, how can they argue?

MEL: Great, sir; you really make it seem as if you were forced to widen the war in order to limit our involvement. The students can't protest, because you were only keeping your promise to them.

DICK: Think, Mel; some people don't realize how hard it is to be President. No one would believe the truth that America needs a war to prevent a depression, so I have to use other excuses. If I had my choice, I'd rather have Ron's job in California, but my people need me here.

UNKNOWN VOICE: Mr. President, this week's casualty figures are in as U.S. dead, 42; Communist dead 1049.

DICK: Good; we are in. Anyone who believes that, is sure to believe the rest of my logic.

SST May Bring Year-round Skiing

A skyful of SSTs spreading vapor and particulate matter across the edge of space might create the same sort of weather horror brought on by a blanket of volcanic dust back in 1816. That summer, according to the February issue of SCIENCE DIGEST, New England suffered its worst weather ever recorded. A six-inch blanket of snow covered the entire Northeast in early June, followed by those snowstorms in July and August when temperatures averaged 40° F. There were no crops at all that year.

"If you don't like New England weather, wait five minutes"—Mark Twain

Whitey, Wake Up ... To Racism At UVM

by Brooks F. McCabe

Well Whitey, now that you have had a week to look around—what have you found? Just the same money white environment of Anglo-Saxon faery? That comes as no surprise. A review team from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare was also struck by the stoniness of this campus.

The investigation group came to the campus in August 1970 to check the University's employment practices. They turned their findings "unsatisfactory" in the evaluation letter submitted to President Andrews. This proved to be quite a perceptive judgment on their part when one considers the erroneous figures they were given! As stated in the report:

"Statistics furnished by the University, as of July 10, 1970, indicate that the active employees number 2643. Of this total, 31 are Black; 16 are Orinians; 7 are Spanish speaking, and 4 are American Indian."

Because a more accurate figure puts the number of Blacks closer to 15, these figures furnished by the Administration contain an error of one hundred percent! Although the Administration admittedly questioned their figures, they made no attempt at that time to rectify them. In the letter of response to the harsh criticism of the review team, the Administration again used these wrong figures! Perhaps the legal term is gross negligence.

The committee's strongest reproach concerned the University's recruitment procedures:

"The term was furnished with a 'Statement of Educational Policy Concerning Multi-Racial Diversity at University of Vermont' which was adopted at the December 8, 1969 trustees meeting. This statement includes the following:

In order to implement its expressed goals, the University must actively seek out such students and faculty and make them a part of the University Community. In as much as the largest such minority in the nation is the Black population, priority must be given to the enrollment of qualified Black students and the appointment of qualified Black faculty."

The present staffing patterns indicate that there are some persons who have not gotten the message."

The committee noted that the various department chairmen only consider outstanding minority applicants. By so doing they require minorities to generally be more qualified than the non-minority employees working in the same position. Perhaps because there were no outstanding black applicants, the English Department has just hired a white man to teach Black Literature. However, by the University's own statement, any "qualified" black person could have had the job. I sincerely believe there is no such person available!

This hardly coincides with the recommended "imaginative Affirmative Action Plan."

Of the 145 University employees having the authority to hire personnel, only 10 are women (3 of whom are in the school of nursing) and NONE are members of a minority group. Under these circumstances, what are the chances that those seeking a new chairman for the Department of Home Economics will hire a black woman? Racism is self-perpetuating!

And then the University cannot understand why no black students have yet used the Placement Service upon graduation! Why has the University appointed someone full-time to recruit a black person to work part-time on minority recruitment?

Whitey, are the contradictions in the University's policy clear now? Would you like to see something done about minority employment? Just remember, you only hear about new staff appointments AFTER THE FACT! Whitey, wake up!

Life Insurance Is Good Property!!

Deferred Premium Plans Available

Eugene R. Marshall, UVM '69, Campus Representative
184 So. Winthrop Ave., Burlington, VT. 864-6818

National Life of Vermont

Letters

(continued from page four)

phases of family living is a serious defect in our American educational system. We certainly waste time on a lot of less important subjects.

You might like to run all or a part of it in the CYNIC. I'm sure there are times when one needs such "filler." I edited the CYNIC myself a long time ago. I saw some copies earlier in the year and thought it a considerable improvement over previous years.

Very truly yours,
J. Ralph Spalding '23

Editor's Note—The article from the Hartford Times described a course offering at Goucher College entitled "Nuts and Bolts in Contemporary Society." Two faculty members teach the course; its purpose is "to give instruction in shell appliance repair and how to paint, wallpaper, plaster, preserve wood, fix stuck doors, do some carpentry and simple plumbing, tune up—automobiles, and build, from a kit, a stereo FM receiver or AM/FM radio." The response from Goucher students was overwhelming.

Editorial Commended

To the Editor:

I want to thank your editorial writer for the clear and fair statement on the Senate Admissions Committee resolution adopted by the Senate at its January meeting. I believe he expressed very well the attitude of the committee and its intentions in presenting the resolution; presumably a majority of the Senate shared our convictions. We believed that it was appropriate to restate the obvious. With you, I hope that the University will take a definite stand on this issue and flatly state, "Academics First."

Roy Julow
ex-chairman
Senate Admissions Committee

TISSOT

the NOW look for swingers of all ages. She'll like the larger-than-life look of this handsome watch. It's right in line with her new fashion. She'll also like its superb Tissot accuracy. Yellow or white top, steel back. $89.95 your own personal time computer. Really rugged PR-616 4-dial 2 push-button chronograph registers and intervals of seconds, minutes, hours. Tells regular time, too. Stainless steel, matching bracelet. $125. With strap. $115

PR-616

E.J. PRESTON & SON
MEMBER AMERICAN CAR SOCIETY
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON
Phone: 864-1100, 864-1101, 864-1102
Open Monday 10:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
CLOSED SUNDAYS

Tricky Knicks

Lace up your knees high boots and step out looking knifty in closefitting knickerbockers from the Mayfair. These in blue herringbone cotton, sizes 5-13, $12. Lots more, too at $12-$13.

MAYFAIR

Church Street - Burlington

Open till 9 Friday evenings

June Annenheit

WOW is coming!

Our Drive-in Windows Make Banking Easy at....

Chittenden TRUST COMPANY

UNIVERSITY OFFICE WILLISTON ROAD

cynic verse

Because of You

by Jay Blumsohnoff

Each day spent with you was special
You taught me how to appreciate life and renewed my faith in people
There was a time when I thought I had forgotten laugh
Because of you I have forgotten how to cry for myself, but not for others
Because of you I have learned to see things that never before existed in my world
I tried to thank you for opening my eyes,
But you kissed my lips and thanked me
And, because of you, I understood.

FEBRUARY 11, 1971

al..."

like a beach"

Do you think that if UVM

is a small, yet important

all that UVM is a case of a student at UVM get if controlling the police issue first. They'd be lowering black students who ARE don't be worth the money

probably only want to

UVM is a radical method to ing to be housed any day.

that I always thought of

and to that guy Parent.

him just waiting for their

Vermonter Society News. If

Mr. Schow? Hum-

Johnson. Didn't like Hum-well, I just didn't off imported from New something?

Anyway, mister, I don't more. I think we'd better your stinking newspaper.

please, sir, put that don't get violent.

respond?

February 4, 1971

the recruitment, the disapmembers of the Student a result of several recent estimated the seriousness of

Ed Ganz. In your denial

you have made a grave

the decision against his this University which reof the tenure committees.

let no time was Dr. Nolifor itself. Realizing the truly feel that his teach-

He is an asset to the appoint Professor Ganz to

of the German department at this University is a student participation or the betterment of the

the employment of the certain already tenured, in-will like to request that the examination. In any event, he means of righting these thing will gradually fade members and students. It is going to be made to bring more blacks to this administration, but it now

I cannot comprehend. I and openly admit that we ous to such a situation as reason for failure to even committee last fall.

he invited on was com-

December, in a speech honor the concept of due ing the principle of due and credence to the

our society at home and administration as evidenced

UVM-President Rollins and

UVM-President Dyson at the Extensive reforms are diversity is maintained at a

Vermont was recognized

while he was President

we presently have, that

ing necessary and vital re-

it appears that the Adis stagnate.

Eugene Braddon

Town Senator

Student Association

WOW

THE RED DOG

PRESENTS

WORLD

FEB. 15-FEB. 20

OPEN 8 PM TO 2 AM
HAPPY HOURS 8 PM & 10 PM
Reduced prices on all drinks
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
SIX NIGHTS A WEEK
LOCATED AT
165 CHURCH ST.

WRUV Back On Fulltime Schedule

WRUV-FM is back on a full-time schedule. We have many locally produced shows as well as network shows. The BSC Theatre is back on Tuesday evenings and we are now featuring a Country & Western show Sunday evenings. Radio Free Vermont is on at 11:00 a.m. and 11:00 p.m. and our regular jazz and folk music shows are on with jazz workshop being changed to Monday and folk music to Friday. On Sunday with Terry Demas returns alternate week evenings. We have a new moneying staff. Student manager is Sam Elwyn and John Goodwin is the program director. Stan Hoch has returned as music director. We can always use more people. No experience is necessary. Anyone interested in working in radio should contact one of the above mentioned people at 658-4420 or 656-3214.

The schedule is as follows:
Sunday 12 p.m.—Gospel Hour
1 p.m.—Music Dept. Tapes
1:30 p.m.—Music of the Masters
4 p.m.—C&W TIME
7:30-10 p.m. Vt. Free Form Radio
Monday—4 p.m. Lt. Classics
4:15—Children's programming
4:30—Broadway showtime
5:30—Conversations at Chicago
6:00—Jazz Workshop
8:00—Music Dept. Tapes
9:30—Music of the Masters
11:00—Free Form
Tues.—4:00—Lt. Classics
4:30—Music for the Keyboard
6:00—BBC Theatre

8:00—Music of the Masters—may start earlier or later depending on length of BSC Theatre
11:00—Free form
Wed.—4:00—Music of the Masters
4:30—Jazz workshop
6:00—Music Dept. Tapes
9:00—Music of the Masters alternating w/ On Sunday w/ Terry Demas
11:00—Free form
Thurs.—4:00—Lt. Classics
4:30—The Music of...
6:00—Soul sounds w/ Larry McCrory
8:00—Music Dept. Tapes
9:00—Music of the Masters
11:00—Free form
Friday—4:00—Lt. Classics
4:15—Children's Pgm.
4:30—Chamber Music
6:00—The Future of...
6:30—Folk Music w/ Bob
8:00—Music Dept. Tapes
9:00—Music of the Masters
11:00—Free Form
Saturday
12 p.m.—Lt. Classics
12:30—Children's Pgm.
1:00—Down to the Sea
1:30—Urban Confrontation
2:00—Open live from the Mt.
6:00—American Country Music
6:30—From the Midway
7:30—Anything Goes
8:30—Radio Free Vermont
9:00—Music of the Masters
11:00—Free form

Album Review:

LAYLA/Derek And The Dominos

by Doug Collette
LAYLA/Derek and the Dominos. Any double-LP album is a heavy dose of rock 'n' roll, but in the case of LAYLA, it's especially true. Derek and the Dominos get rolling with the very first track, and except for a couple of quiet cuts, like the exotic, acoustic-based "I Am Yours," they never let up. Unlike most double albums, this set doesn't lag; the hand keeps the pace up well and should your attention start to wander, they'll grab you with something. "Layla" and the "other" ascribed love songs, mostly written by Eric Clapton and Bobby Whitlock, are not exceptional compositions, but they do have a certain quality that makes them much more than the pleasant pop songs they first appear to be. pop, rock 'n' roll, country and blues blend in fine fashion and are treated to first-rate musicianship (lots of bass and drums, too, which I'm particularly fond of—thank you, Carl Radle and Jim Gordon). Eric now has more confidence in his voice and, alone or with organist Whitlock, he exhibits a crying vocal style that's quite distinctive.

At Clapton's request, Duane Allman helped in recording LAYLA and you'll hear his piercing bottleneck guitar slipping and sliding all over the place. In "Key to the Highway," a Willie Brown blues, he and Clapton engage in a guitar duel that rivals those of

Lane Films Offer Laurel And Hardy

Comedians Laurel and Hardy in "Jitterbugs" will be the featured film on Saturday, February 13, in Marsh Life Sciences Building. Preceding the comedy, two chapters of the Flash Gordon serial will also be shown.

The movie will be shown at both 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Running time for "Jitterbugs" is 90 minutes.

Tickets, $1 each, may be purchased in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Lane Office at 656-3418.

The first two films in the current American Comedies of the Thirties series are "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" with W. C. Fields, March 6, and "Never Give a Sucker an Even Break" with W. C. Fields, March 13. Chapters from Flash Gordon will be exhibited before each feature movie.

In "Jitterbugs" Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, with the help of Vivian Blaine, make up a two-man zoot-suit band. Then the masters of old-time comedy become involved with racketeers and confidence men. Between jitterbugging sessions they establish law and order.

Laurel and Hardy fishing for laughs

Vermont Educational Television Programs

The history of man's fascination with the stars from star-gazing to the space exploration of today, and an interview with the outspoken atheist who objected to the astronaut's Bible reading, are coupled with more immediate issues such as nuclear power plant construction in Vermont. Educational Television evening programming Feb. 15-19.

"Other Planets—No Place Like Earth," is the history of man's oldest science, astronomy. Monday (Feb. 15) at 6:30 p.m. on "The World We Live In." At 9 p.m. Monday Madelyn Murray O'Hair, a leading spokeswoman for atheism, debates over construction at Vermont with progressive theologian Dr. Edward Bauman. Nuclear power plant construction and its continuation, a topic that inflamed Vermonters both pro and con during the Vermont election, is featured Thursday (Feb. 18) at 8:30 p.m. on NET Playhouse presents "The Re-Discovered Film: Once in a Lifetime," a 1930's film starring Jack Oakie, Zasu Pitts, Alane MacMahon, and Gregory Ratoff.

mont, is "tried" in debate Tuesday (Feb. 16) at 9 p.m. on "The Advocates." The "Music of the 20th Century" with avant-garde composer and pianist Yuji Takahashi performing at 6 p.m. Wednesday (Feb. 17) is followed at 9 p.m. by the nostalgic music of "The March King: John Philip Sousa."

Nostalgia, the cinematic variety, is featured Thursday (Feb. 18) at 8:30 p.m. on NET Playhouse presents "The Re-Discovered Film: Once in a Lifetime," a 1930's film starring Jack Oakie, Zasu Pitts, Alane MacMahon, and Gregory Ratoff.

Facility Provides

Abortions

A new facility to perform legal abortions in New York State is now available.

Broadcast House is a large, modern, fire-proof structure located at 180 E. Route 59 in Nanuet, (Rockland County) New York, a suburb of New York City, (15 miles North). The staff consists of New York State Licensed Obstetricians and a certified Anesthesiologist, all of whom are on the staff of local hospitals. The preoperative and post-operative rooms are staffed by Registered Nurses. Abortions are performed by suction curettage on an outpatient basis. (The patient is able to leave after resting about 2 hours in the recovery room.) A physical examination, complete blood testing and urinalysis is included. We work in close conjunction with a licensed laboratory where a blood bank and RHO/GAM are available.

The fee for the complete procedure is $200.00 under local anesthesia, (up to 12 weeks gestation). General anesthesia is also available. There is an added charge of $15.00 for complete blood work.

Abortions are performed Monday through Saturday. Calls for cases to be scheduled should be made between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Upon request, reservations for overnight accommodations can be made at the Sheraton Inn, Holiday Inn, or Howard Johnson's. Transportation from any of the airports is available ($25.00 round-trip private limousine) from La Guardia, Kennedy, Newark and Westchester Airports. By highway, the facility is located 1 mile east of Exit 14 of the New York State Thruway, 1 mile west of Exit 1 of the Palisades Parkway on Route 59, Nanuet, New York.

Cornell Opens Planned Parenthood Clinic

Ithaca, N.Y.—(I.P.)—Cornell University recently announced that it has entered into an agreement with Planned Parenthood of Tompkins County for the use of space in the Sage House, adjacent to Sage Infirmary, for a Planned Parenthood Clinic.

Mark Barlow Jr., vice president for student affairs at the University, said that most of the second floor of Sage House will be used for the clinic, which will be an auxiliary to Planned Parenthood's main clinic at Tompkins County Hospital.

The clinic, which will be operated by Planned Parenthood and administered by the Planned Parenthood staff and boards, will be for counseling, examinations and prescriptions only, Barlow said.

"We decided ourselves some time ago, for example, that all cases requiring major surgery or intensive care be admitted to Tompkins County Hospital, rather than be cared for at Sage," he said.

Dr. Barlow said Cornell's willingness to enter into such an agreement is based in part on the University's growing realization that there are many areas where Cornell can operate and share in the delivery of health care to the community. Cornell has agreed to provide equipment also and to help staff the clinic, which will serve any person for whom the clinic is more conveniently located than the one at the hospital, whether that person is connected with the University or not.

Elmer Meyer Jr., dean of students at Cornell, said the arrangement with Planned Parenthood is part of the University's recognition of its responsibilities in the area of sex education. In a prepared statement, Dean Meyer said:

"There is a considerable amount of ignorance and confusion on sex education matters among college students. Lack of knowledge in this area can lead to a range of personal problems from unwanted pregnancies to venereal disease that make it difficult, if not impossible, for the affected student to pursue his or her educational goals."

"For this reason and in response to numerous requests from students, a program of sex education is being developed through the Dean of Students Office here. To date a number of projects have been initiated. Among them, the office assisted a group of students who prepared a sex education pamphlet that has been made available to all undergraduates."

SONY MODEL TA-3200F STEREO AMPLIFIER
500 WATTS

Manufacturer's Specifications:

HF Power (Total): 320 watts, 8-ohm load; 500 watt, 4-ohm load. RMS Power per Channel: 110 watts, 8-ohm load; 130 watts, 4-ohm load. THD: Less than 0.1% at rated output; less than 0.06% at rated output; less than 0.03% at 1 watt. Frequency Response: 5 Hz to 200 kHz, -0.2 dB. HF Power Bandwidth: 5 Hz to 35 kHz, 8/N Ratio: 110 dB below full power output, short circuited input. Damping Factor: 170 at 8 ohms, 1 kHz. Input Sensitivity: 1.4 volts. Input Impedance: 75 k ohms. Dimensions: 15 3/4 in. w x 7 7/8 in. h x 12 3/4 in. d. Suggested retail price: $349.50 (optional walnut case extra).

LAFAYETTE RADIO ELECTRONICS
370 Shelburne Road Owned and operated by I.E.S. 658-4616

SKI SALE
20% to 50% off

500 Pair of Fibreglass, Metal & Wood Skis - All fantastically reduced
"NO ONE UNDERSELLS THE SKI RACK"

FOR EXAMPLE...

FISCHER SILVERGLASS RACER SKIS

Reg. $75.00

NOW

$38.99

Ski
the Rack

15 Center Street
Downtown Burlington

• BankAmericard
• Master Charge
Open Daily 9 AM to 10 PM

CHAMPLAIN LANES
Hours 10 A.M. To 1 A.M.
985-2824
Automatic Pin Setters
• Expert Bill Fitting & Drilling
• Complete Stock of Pooling Tables
• Cocktail Lounge
• Snack Bar
• Horseshoe
• Billiards
• Bowling
ALL CONDITIONS 16 LANES
Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages 5 Minutes South Of Route 59 On Shelburne Rd.

"Welcome to Georgia"
GEORGE'S RESTAURANT

The Best in Pizza Pies
Served With Your Favorite Beverage

TAKE OUT SERVICE

147 NO. WINOOSKI AVENUE
862-7449

the o

© 1970 College Press Service
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Warner,
M1 48923

Question: Please write an argument for having. He claims that men first contract sheep, which sailors used for their capsize before voyaging. However, I refuse to get that horny. Can he possibly be right?

Answer: About the venereal disease, "that horny" he's right. The word "horny" means a man's first contract sheep, which sailors used for their capsize before voyaging. However, I refuse to get that horny. Can he possibly be right?

Question: My boyfriend and I couldn't believe that not in itself is dangerous, even, he suffers from an occasional be

Northern Coalit

The New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution became a reality on Saturday, February 6, 1971. A meeting in Brattleboro at St. Michael's Episcopal Church resulted in the formation of the coalition whose purpose is to conduct an educational program about vital controversial questions regarding the operation of nuclear power plants. This program will support a full-scale intervention before the Atomic Energy Commission in connection with the Vermont-Vermont plan.

Consistent with Jeffersonian principles of checks and balances, the coalition's statement of purpose says that the intervention will make possible a presentation of all views.

Officers elected were Mrs. Esther Benoit, Putney, chairman; William Toomey, Marlboro, secretary; Mrs. Cabot Holbrook, Brattleboro, treasurer; Mrs. Portia Weikel, Leavenworth, coordinating secretary. Three committee chairmen were elected to help implement the purposes of the group. They were Quint Larson, U. Mass, Amherst, public education; Mrs. Diane Sides, botham, Putney, finance; Mrs. Harriette Lynn, Bennington, legal.

Relators advisors to the coalition are Drs. Allen Hoffman, David Ingis and Richard Kofler;

Vermont Has
Of Plant Specie

Vermont has five times as many different plant species per square mile as the entire area of New England.

This statement, difficult to believe with little plant life in sight on a cold February day, was made by Frank Conklin, Seymour, a man who should know.

The 75-year-old associate curator of Pringle Herbarium at the University of Vermont is author of "The Flora of New England," and, most recently, "The Flora of Vermont."

This most recent volume, rich in knowledge about plant life in the state, explains his statement about the variety of vegetation found. The state has 1,927 species scattered across its 9,609 square miles, or 20 species per square mile. For all of New England, the figures are 2,882 species in 66,608 square miles, or .043 species per square mile.

A combination of varied conditions produces this variety. Vermont has mountain areas where alpine plants are found, lowlands hospitable to the water-mead and the star-dockweed, and its north-eastern highlands, the only place in the state where the rough aster and the low fly-honeyuckle grow.

Temperatures regulate the growth of some Vermont plants, with the flowering dogwood found only in the two southern counties, while the woodland cuds, the butterwort and the mountain-cranberry avoid that warmer climate of the Bannock Belt.

There are relics of the past, such as a rare variety of goldenrod found in Vermont only on Gardiner's Island, off Ferrisburg, and with a history back to the long-ago days when Lake Champlain was an arm of the Atlantic Ocean.

The major reason for the profusion of species in the soil itself. It has both the sweet and the acid soil. The wild leek, the lopsided and the blue pondweed, as examples, prefer the sweet soil, and in the many bogs and wet spots can be found bog-stars, bog-beans and tufted loosestrife.

the Dominos

Johnny Winter and Ruben Darden, and that's by no means the only one of its kind on the album. There are a few other tracks that stick in my mind. The 1969-70 "It's Too Late" is perfect for a group called Dominos. With the screaming guitar and wailing vocal of "Little Wing," the band offers tribute to Jimi Hendrix and a little later the Clapton-Albino guitar slash through the first half of the title track before slipping to the rear to provide a softer, more melodic background to Jim Gordon's (I guess) vocal part.

But these songs aren't really highlights, because LAYLA is one consistent album. It stands up to repeated listenings and it is literally full of satisfying rock 'n' roll. I wish there were more like it.

And Hardy

Laughing for Laughs

ion Programs

ent, in "tried" in debate Tuesday (Feb. 16) at 2 p.m. in "The Advocate."

The "Music of the 20th Century," with avant-garde composer and pianist Yui Takahashi performing at 6 p.m. Wednesday (Feb. 17) is followed at 9 p.m. by the nostalgic music of "The March King," John Philip Sousa.

Nostalgia, the cinematic variety, is featured Thursday (Feb. 18) at 8:30 p.m. when NET Playhouse presents "The Re-Discovered Film: Once in a Lifetime," a 1930's film starring Jack Oakie, Zasu Pitts, Alice MacMahon, and Gregory LaRocca.

Facility Provides

Abortions

A new facility to perform legal abortions in New York State is now available.

Broadway House is a large, modern, five-story structure located at 180 E. Route 59 in Pleasant, (Rockland County), New York, a suburb of New York City, (15 miles north). The staff consists of New York State Licensed Obstetricians and a certified Anesthesiologist, all of whom are on the staff of local hospitals. The preoperative and post-operative rooms are staffed by Registered Nurses.

Abortions are performed by suction curettage on an outpatient basis, (the patient is able to leave after resting about 2 hours in the recovery room). A physical examination, complete blood testing and urinalysis is included. We work in close conjunction with a licensed laboratory where a blood bank and RHO-GAM are available.

The fee for the complete procedure is $200.00 under local anesthesia, (up to 12 weeks gestation). General anesthesia is also available. There is an added charge of $15.00 for complete blood work.

Abortions are performed Monday through Saturday. Calls for ones to be scheduled should be made between 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

Upon request, reservations for overnight accommodations can be made at the Sheraton Inc., Holiday Inn, or Howard Johnson's Transportation from any of the airports is available ($25.00 round-trip private limousine) from La Guardia, Kennedy, Newark and Washington Airports. By highway, the facility is located 1 mile east of Exit 14 of the New York State Thruway, 1 mile west of Exit 1 of the Palisades Parkway on Route 59, Nanuet, New York.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Warner M.D.

© 1970 College Press Service

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Warner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823

Question: Please write an argument my roommate and I are having. He claims that man first contracted venereal disease from sheep, which makes sense for their enjoyment during long, wondrous voyages. However, I refuse to believe that anyone could get that horny. Can he possibly be right?

Answer: About the venereal disease, he's wrong. About getting "that horny" he's right. The word for sexual contacts between humans and animals is sodomy (which can also refer to certain sexual practices among humans). Sheep inevitably seem to be mentioned when this practice is discussed. This is probably related to our availability and the loneliness of being a shepherd. While offensive to most people, such sexual practices are thought to be not uncommon.

Question: My boyfriend and I occasionally smoke pot. I do not believe that pot is itself dangerous to one's health. However, he suffers from an occasional bout with a urinary infection which supposedly stems from some kidney trouble. I recently had infectious hepatitis.

We have read that the toxins of grass are cleaned from the system through either the kidneys or the liver. Therefore, we would not aggravate or affect our weakened organs?

Answer: The active ingredient in marijuana is a complicated chemical called tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) which is very potent in tiny amounts. Ironically, staff peddled as THC is usually not, but may be a veterinary anesthetic which is very dangerous to man with. The exact path the chemical follows in being detoxified is not entirely clear. Like many other substances, it will likely be detoxified in the liver and eliminated in the urine. In the usual amounts, it is unlikely that it would place a strain in the liver or kidneys. As with any potent substance, it is possible to find some people whose health is adversely affected by the use or abuse of marijuana.

It is very unusual for men to have urinary tract infections without there being some underlying illness or abnormality. I hope your boyfriend has been examined by a capable physician. Such a physician would also tell you that it would be wise to stay away from alcohol for many months or perhaps a year following infectious hepatitis. Alcohol is a known liver toxin.

Northern Coalition On Nuclear Pollution Is Formed

The New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution became a reality on Saturday, February 6, 1971. A meeting in Brattleboro at St. Michael's Episcopal Church resulted in the formation of the coalition whose purpose is to conduct an educational program about vital environmental questions regarding the operation of nuclear power plants. This program will support a full-scale intervention before the Atomic Energy Commission in connection with the Vermont plant.

Consistent with Jeffersonian principles of checks and balances, the coalition's statement of purpose says that the intervention will make possible a presentation of all views.

Officers elected were Mrs. Esther Ponske, Putney, chairman; William Tomney, Marlboro, secretary; Mrs. Cabot Holbrook, Brattleboro, treasurer; Mrs. Portia Weiskel, Leverett, Mass., coordinating secretary. Three committee chairmen were elected to help implement the purposes of the group. They were Quint Lawson, U. Mass., Amherst, public education; Mrs. Diane Sides, UMass, Putney, finance; Mrs. Harriette Lyon, Bennington, legal.

Science advisors to the coalition are Drs. Allan Hoffman, David Inglis and Richard Kofler.

U. Mass., Amherst, Larry Gay, Marlboro College, Edward J. Flanagan, Irving Lyon and John F. Wolstein, Bennington College.

Legal advisors to the organization are Judge Beatrice J. Brown, Brattleboro, R. Lawlor Cooper, Springfield, Vermont, and Anthony J. Roman, Washington, D.C. It is hoped that other attorneys and scientists will offer their help to the new group.

International Ice Revue Presented At Memorial Auditorium

The glitter and grace of a big ice show is being brought to the Memorial Auditorium on February 25 at 8 P.M. by the Auxiliary of the Medical Center Hospital of Vermont. The International Ice Revue will be performed by a company of European dancers, singers and skaters making their first American tour.

The "Ice Revue" will perform on a plastic ice which was perfected in Japan for Expo '70. This ice surface is easily installed, making it possible for the ice show to be presented in a comparatively small auditorium.

The production is stunningly staged, costumed, and lighted and features a stellar cast of fifty top skaters, singers, and instrumentalists from Russia, Poland, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Turkey, and Greece. The show offers comedy, thrills and breath-catching spectacle galore.

Tickets are $2.50, $3.75 and $4.75 and will be available starting Feb. 10 from 10 A.M. to 3 P.M. at Shepard and Hamel's and in the Mary Fletcher Unit main lobby. The special line $62.1384 at the Mary Fletcher Unit will be connected on Feb. 10. Please don't phone the main switchboard at the Fletcher.

Vermont Has The Greatest Number Of Plant Species In New England

Vermont has five times as many different plant species per square mile as the entire area of New England.

This statement, difficult to believe with little plant life in sight on a cold February day, was made by Frank Conkling Seymour, a man who should know.

The 75-year-old associate curator of Fringle Herbarium at the University of Vermont is author of "The Flora of New England," and, most recently, "The Flora of Vermont."

This most recent volume, rich in knowledge about plant life in the state, explains his statement about the variety of vegetation found. The state has 1,527 species scattered across its 9,449 square miles, or 20 species per square mile. For all of New England, the figures are 2,882 species in 66,008 square miles, or .043 species per square mile.

A combination of varied conditions produces this variety. Vermont has mountains where alpine plants are found, lowlands hospitable to the water-mead and the star-dockweed, and its north-easterly highlands, the only place in the state where the rough aster and the low fly-honey-suckle grow.

Temperatures regulate the growth of some Vermont plants, with the flowering dogwood found only in the two southern counties, while the woodland cucumber, the butter-wort and the mountain-cranberry avoid that warmer climate of the Rutland hills.

There are relics of the pre-glacial as a rare variety of goldenrod found in Vermont only on Gardiner's Island, off Ferrisburgh, and with a history back to the long-ago days when Lake Champlain was an arm of the Atlantic Ocean.

The major reason for the profusion of species is the soil itself. It has both the sweet or loamy soil and the acid soil. The wild hick, the leopard and the black poplarwood, as examples, prefer the sweet soil, and in the hilly hags and wet spots can be found dog-ears, bug-bones and tuffed lupines.

In contrast, mountain-holly, Labrador tea, small cranberry and the pitcher-plant are found in the acid bog.

The University botanist's book is the fourth edition of "The Flora of Vermont" to be published. The others, all printed since 1900, were mainly catalogs or lists of the plants, while this much more ambitious effort contains keys and illustrations to aid in identifying species.

The third edition was published by Dr. E. J. Dole in 1937. "Since that time there have been many changes," Seymour explained. "Species formerly unknown in the state have invaded it, species already known have spread, and some have disappeared."

His ambition is to see recorded every plant from every town in Vermont where it grows. This work, he estimates, is now only one-tenth done.

The introduction and spread of plant life in Vermont has been affected by contemporary living, the book explains. There are the old methods, with birds carrying the seeds, with winds spreading weed-grass, waters transplanting such plants as the flowering rush.

Other plants, such as the bouncing-bet, were introduced for cultivation, but have escaped and maintained themselves. Still other plants, such as the star-thistle, are here because the seed was accidentally mixed with crop and garden seeds.

Areas near parking lots are often sites for new plants, probably because cars, carried the seeds there, imbedded in dust or mud from other regions.

Seymour, stymied by snow, is leaving Feb. 26 on his third trip to Nicaragua to add more specimens to his vast collection from there. With him will go two graduate students, E. Bruce Nelson and John T. Atwood, Jr. and Dr. Henry K. Sweeney, a world authority on edges "who was so excited about what we collected before that he decided to go along and see for himself this time."

Seymour has more than scientific reasons for the six-week "or maybe more"-trip. "The rigors of a Vermont winter make Nicaragua very alluring," he has decided.

IF YOU'RE NOT SATISFIED, WE'LL DO IT OVER.

NEW YORK CLEANERS
37 Adams Street
Whitehall, Vermont
835-3041

Innovative Instruction In Psychology Classes: Keller Method Meets With Initial Success

by James A. Brown

Some day, should you take introductory psychology, you would have to get a 100 to pass the course, and you would not have to attend a single lecture! This "some day," may be next semester, as the Psychology Department plans to adopt a revolutionary new teaching system, the Keller Method, in some, if not all of its aspects.

Here is how the system works, as Keller set it up for his own classes. The course material was broken down into ordered "units," each unit consisting of a reading assignment and a group of study questions. When a student felt ready, he took a quiz on the unit. The quizzes were administered by student proctors—undergraduates who had successfully completed the course. The quiz was graded by the proctor, who then questioned the student about any incorrect answers. Should the quiz grade be high, and should the proctor feel that the student successfully "defended" his incorrect answers, he was then allowed to go onto the next unit. If the student had failed the quiz, he would have been able to re-take it as many times as he needed, without penalty.

There were no formal lectures, only small discussion meetings on the topics, and a small number of demonstration-type lectures. The lectures were given only to those who qualified by having reached a specific unit level. In this way, the lectures themselves became a motivating force for the student to advance. No exams were based upon the lectures, and no student had to attend!

By the end of the semester, students who had completed all of the units took an 'A' into the final exam—an exam worth a relatively small percentage of the grade. The final grades in Keller's class were impressive: the bulk of students received A's, there were few B's, fewer C's and D's, and a relatively low number of failures.

The psychology department, meanwhile, has made no firm commitment to the system as yet. It is in the process of testing the feasibility of various aspects of the program, to make it plausible here, and, of course, problems of implementation have yet to be worked out. However, Dr. Henry, Chairman of the Undergraduate Committee of the Psychology Department, feels confident that "students will have the opportunity to enjoy many of its advantages within the coming year."

Several advantages are obvious: the system allows students to progress at their own pace; there is a minimizing of lecture; and a maximizing of student participation. Dr. Henry adds, "the Keller Method can allow for highly individualized instruction, despite large classes, and it demands perfection at Keller's Note."

Last week's editorial offered the Keller Method as our solution to the overcrowded situation that now exists at UVM. More information has been obtained and more will be forthcoming.

every step. Each of these factors should result in a greater understanding of the basic concepts," Keller's students also noted advantages. For instance, they had a greater feeling of achievement, and, for they received recognition of themselves as people, not as just bodies in a lecture hall. Keller observed that his students' study habits improved over the semester, as well as their attitude towards testing—that their worry about final grades diminished. Finally, the students put in the best word of all—they felt that undertaking the course was "enjoyable."

Disadvantages to the system are minimal. These few students who needed to be "spoon-fed," did have trouble adjusting, but most of these students, too, successfully employed, and enjoyed the Keller Method.

Last week's editorial offered the Keller Method as our solution to the overcrowded situation that now exists at UVM. More information has been obtained and more will be forthcoming.

MATINEES WED., SAT., SUN. AT 2 P.M.
EVERY EVENING AT 7 & 9 P.M.
SPECIAL MATINEE MON. FEB. 15, 3:30 P.M.

SPICEY
PETER SELLERS
GOLDIE HAWN
COLOR "There's a Girl in My Soup"
STATE

WHAT'S? WOW

STRONG
Shows at 2-7 & 9 p.m.

THE NEWCOMERS
faced every challenge to claim a dream!

WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS

THE WILD COUNTRY
TECHNICOLOR

COMING! MASH!

Now showing evenings at 6:30 & 8:15

TORA TORA TORA!
The Incredible Attack on Pearl Harbor as Told from both US and Japanese sides

BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2

Now Showing!

Mon. thru Thurs. at 7:00 & 9:15
Fri. & Sat. at 2:00-7:00-9:15 & 11:00
Sunday at 2:00-7:00 & 9:15

Now Showing!

Mon. thru Thurs. at 7:00 & 9:15
Fri. & Sat. at 2:00-7:00-9:15 & 11:00
Sunday at 2:00-7:00 & 9:15

JOHN MURRAY & RAY WILLIAMS

FREE Shuffleboard Pool

ATTENTION!

The Redwood
"The Place to be after the game"

THE 2nd ANNUAL MISS REDWOOD 1971 CONTEST WED-FEB.17th

ENTRIES NOW OPEN—ONE OR MORE ENTRIES FROM EACH SORORITY INDEPENDENTS WELCOME
INFORMAL DRESS
JUDGING—ON PERSONALITY, POPULARITY, GOOD LOOKS!
SIGN-UP FOR JUDGING & ENTRIES—NOW!
ONE JUDGE FROM EACH FRAT.

MANY GREAT PRIZES!
CALL 864-9504—OR SEE PAUL.

START YOUR WEEK-END AT THE REDWOOD!

HAPPY HOUR EVERY TUES. & THURS 9-11
Open Sundays 12-11 p.m.

FOOD Bring your IDs.

Big Ben pizza pub

207 COLCHESTER AVE.
(COR. EAST AVE.)
BURLINGTON, VT

Across from Trinity
A Stone's throw from UVM

ANNOUNCES FREE DELIVERY!

ALL Big Ben PIZZAS ARE 11" - 8 slices

9:30 AM to 1:00 AM
Fri. & Sat. until 2 AM

PROUDLY PRESENTS
THE FINEST PIZZA ANYWHERE

Owner - Manager
Dom Rossi

phone ahead 864-0711

GET THE BEST FOR LESS!

Minarsky's (9) Super Play Leads Towards Victory (R. Frowenfeld)

THE GINGERMAN

ON TUES. AND THURS.
SPECIAL DINNERS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS—ONLY 75¢

HAPPY HOUR 5:00-6:00 WEEKNIGHTS
106 NORTH ST.

Cat-nip

By WEE ROSENBERG

The sun doesn't shine anymore in Amherst, Mass. Once exemplary of insurance company calendar portraits, the little community now crouches under constant shadows cast by the industrial fortress to the west—the campus of the University of Massachusetts.

As the bus bearing the University of Vermont hockey team approached the gloomy towers Monday morning, a curtain of silent determination settled on the contingent. Massachusetts handed the Catsmounts their only Division II hockey loss of the year back in December.

But as the morbid monotony receded, the bus broke into the same blithe atmosphere that characterized the entire ride. For on Monday the Catsmounts were on their way to Amherst College, an underdeveloped nation in the world of ECAC hockey.

The bus ride was typical, which was why it was beautiful.

As the vehicle crossed the Arctic Circle and moved into sunny southern Vermont, Coach Jim Cross and John Moynihan, WJOY's voice of Vermont hockey, began one of their typical nonconclusive arguments. Moynihan trailed 4-0, to the delight of eavesdropping players, by the time we reached Dummerston.

Chatter was exuberant and diverse all along the Vermont Transit chamber. That intangible spirit which puts Vermont hockey in a class by itself hovered over the bus, obliterating the noxious fumes that always accompany that mode of transport.

After almost 200 miles of nostalgia, laughter, frivolity, and the aforementioned moment of meditation, the Division II leaders arrived at Amherst College, home of indelible memories of David Eisenhower and his wonderful pranks.

The players moseyed about town and returned to the rink about 10 minutes later. It's that big.

The game was a routine matchup of a fine hockey team against an inferior squad. It was poorly attended, questionably officiated, and had an overall air of unreality.

The Catsmounts put the win in their pockets and climbed back aboard the bus, ducking the tropical rainstorm that, once in Vermont, turned into a sleety spray of something that can only be described as obocene.

Monday night's bus ride was more treacherous than the afternoon hockey game. The driver, Paul, took it slow and, although many riders had trouble concealing their jitter, avoided the fate of a sedan, which spun off Interstate 89 near Royalton.

A quiet satisfaction marked the return trip. Studying, card playing, napping, and quiet conversation in the back of the vehicle, while again up front, Squint Pitman dazzled a spellbound audience with tales of his exploits.

Monday night's showdown at Gutterson was on everyone's thoughts as the bus slid to a standstill beside the friendly rink. Home ice is a critical factor in a big game.

But there's nothing like a bus ride to enemy country. The incidents can be captured in print; the moods and feelings can only be experienced.

I guess this must be what is meant by "together."

Amherst Levelled Cats Meet With Unexpected Battle

By DAVE BOPACE

Perhaps the Vermont Catsmounts can be excused for looking beyond Amherst to next Monday's game against Massachusetts. Regardless of the season, the Cats bounced back, from a rough, penalty-plagued, defeat in New Hampshire (6-3), to win a rare Monday afternoon contest over Amherst 9-5. That match can only be described as an out-thrust of the UMH battle. Only four penalties were called during the Amherst onslaught with the lone Vermont foul coming with 30 seconds left in the game.

The Cats, 12-5 overall and 18-1 in their division, will not appear in action until the Massachusetts game set in the friendly confines of Gutterson Field House. UMass, the only Division Two loss on the Cat record, lost a tight 2-1 contest to Bowdoin over the weekend. Although this drops the Redmen into third place, it by no means indicates that the Cats will have an easy time.

Vermont will have to show

Cats Race Across Blue-Line Vying For Puck Control Dunnington (3) And Simmons (8) Lead The Charge

better than they did against Amherst if they expect to take UMass. The Vermont sextet received a scare from Amherst before opening up a strong lead at the end. The Cats built a 5-1 lead on unassisted first period goals by stellar defensive ace Ted Yeates and the Vermont leading scorer Fred Hunt. After Amherst's Ted Longely hit at 5:30 of the second stanza, UVM came back with three from Patty Wright, George Minarsky and Ross McDonald. McDonald's shot was the third unassisted score of the game.

Although this should have allowed the Cats to coast in, it did not turn out that way. Twice the Amherst six closed to within two, at 5:3 and 7:5, with 5:25 left in the contest. The Cats pulled out of reach ten seconds later on Tom Crane's slap shot. The icing on the cake was applied by Yeates who slammed in his second goal of the game on a pass from Ned Grant.

The game proved to be an offensive battle with little real hitting and checking. Dave Reese gave up four goals while stopping 14 shots. Both Steve Eckerson and Peter Pitman saw action with Eckerson giving up the last Amherst goal.

Goalie Paul Koulouris of Amherst College played an outstanding game holding the Cats down to only nine. Over test of his 31 saves had goal written on them.

ICINGS

Coach Jim Cross thought his players did "some good things out there" but suffered from a lack of completion of their plays. Minarsky was cited for his "super" play.

(Continued on p. 9)

THE INSIDER

The frustration we felt after losing to New Hampshire was as great as any we have felt all year. Why did the puck go in so easily, when our cage was like a keyhole? How could they possibly have scored six goals on us when we played the best hockey of our previous six games? Who was to blame, and how could we relieve this inexorable tension? As soon as we made the slightest defensive mistake, it resulted in a hot line to our goal, yet our mistakes were minimal.

If we look ahead to February 15, this miserable agony could possibly turn into ecstasy. Perhaps, during the middle of this week, we will combine our frustration of the past with our quest for total revenge, and suddenly at 7:30 Monday evening, there could be the greatest outburst of aggressiveness since the ECAC finals of last March. Each member of our team has been eyeing UMass in the college hockey scores, and watching that date when they'll walk into Gutterson draw closer and closer. We have had three consecutive overtime games with them, and we respect them as much as any team on our schedule. They have proven to be as frustrating as New Hampshire. We simply cannot afford to undergo another dosage.

We have a week to prepare physically and psychologically for this undertaking. This past weekend UMass tied Merrimack and lost 2-1 to Bowdoin. They must feel determined to regain first place. As so many other games are, this is a "must" win, but it feels stronger than that.

Being the number-one team in the division means defeating the best. This will be our biggest test to date. If the defense does not swallow the key to our goal, if our forwards do not forecheck them to death and pummel their goals, then we will deserve the burning disappointment that would result.

WOW

Jerry's Place

CLEANERS & TAILORS
16 NORTH STREET
BURLINGTON, VT. 05401

In Honor of George's and Abe's Birthdays...

Shirts laundered and pressed for 22 cents each.
(5 shirt minimum)

Offer good only for February.

ELEGANCE STYLE QUALITY

20 College Street
CORNER OF S. VERMONT AVE.

Tel. 658-4321

BOUTILIER'S

VERMONT'S LARGEST
ART SUPPLY CENTER

Great Variety of Cardboards

112 CHURCH STREET

A complete Sportswear Shop

OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 9 PM
EXCEPT SATURDAY

50 Pearl St. 388 Shelburne Rd.
Essex Jct. Burlington
879-0737 862-6488

VISIT OUR FAMOUS
BARGAIN BASEMENT

Rumors have been circulating changes to be made around the rink. Friday found me journeying to speak to the man who knows the of the Hockey team, Jim Cross.

The frequenters of the rink have fared the frustration of peering through chain link fence which encircles it, already included in the budget, the moved and glass installed in its place.

Indeed, Cross is as concerned with seating arrangements as in the work and plans are in the works to do some

It is obvious that the fans fall portion of the contest due to the the standing which we are all forced to remedy the situation. The p bleachers has been discussed. A re approximately one third the cost ed by the University. Needless to encouraging but unfortunately not bleachers would be shifted to the area plagued by inadequate seating.

The Freshman Coach, George me some information about a can instrumental in initiating, "The Hockey." The flyers and bumper signs to get money players to come to this University be directly solely to those who unable to afford the indisputably tuition. Perhaps in this way, the the University's athletic scholarship concept a little more palatable. To has been encouraging.

Just a note of personal interest, the full realization that I may be I can see having an opposing clu of line on the ice (or on the play by, UNH last week. However, tion for the sheer fact that they sticks in my craw, and taunting a also seen in that contest, seems to ish. It's a very safe gamble to acce man when there are ten spectators, and the whole front line of the fo you, and I suppose his a real laugh on the ice from the middle of a the children who do these things to with the victims of their pranks. I would be a change in attitude.

New Team Leaders

The team leaders in Cross Country and Soccer for the University of Vermont have been chosen for the 1971 season.

For the long-distance, two freshmen got the nod to lead the squad, Donald R. Baker and Peter E. Bisset. Baker makes his home in Vergennes while Bisset hails from Simsbury, Conn.

Both runners helped to lead the team to a second place finish in the Yankee Conference Championships last year.

The Varsity soccer club has chosen to elect tri-captains for the coming year. The three who were honored are Peter Bernhardt, Buffalo, N.Y.; David Ojala, from Proctor Vt. and Rick Walway who lives in Essex Jct.

Walway, named MVP of this year's squad, was a first team. All-Yankee Conference selection. Ojala, the other hand, made honorable mention for that for the Conference and was the recipient of the annual Hal Grier Award.

Draft... (continued from page 7)

Such reasoning is faulty. In the first place, does not mean a registrant will not be inducted. Secondly, even if a waiver is available, the registrant might be inducted anyway.

The courts have consistently refused to of the Armed Forces. For example, in one argued that he should not have been ordered criminal charges were pending against him. To adopt the defendant's contention would who has been ordered to report for induction date he is ordered to report, commit an activity to his benefit as a valid inducement.

A more reasonable view is that the due the authority from accepting a named after inquiry that a registrant is ing criminal charges. While the reg the Armed Forces to refuse to accept a right in the registrant to refuse to be inducted.

We welcome your questions and comments. "Mastering the Draft," Suite 1202, 60 East N.Y. 10017.

PIZZA DELIVERED FREE!

DOMINO'S PIZZA

10 N. Winooski Ave.
Burlington, VT.
658-3333

155 North Avenue
Burlington, VT.
658-3664

PIZZA DELIVERED FREE!

DOMINO'S PIZZA

PIZZA COUPON

25¢ OFF 16" PIZZAS

15¢ OFF 12" PIZZAS

ed ected Battle

Massachusetts game set in the friendly confines of Greenhouse Field House, UMass, the only Division Two team on the Cat record. Just a light 2-1 contest to Bowdoin over the weekend. Although this drop, the Redmen into third place, it by no means indicates that the Cats will have an easy time. Vermont will have to show

Puck Control Lead The Charge

Cross said, "His passing was great and if we had finished our game of the power we could have scored early on in the game." Cross also credited Amherst's Kaulbars with an outstanding game. "He stopped at least six good shots on us in the first period and kept his team in the game." Hunt, the sophomore first line wing, retained his UVM scoring lead and now has 20 goals, four less than the single season mark set by Minarsky two years ago. Wright's goal gave his 14 for the year and Minarsky added his 11th.

(Continued on p. 9)

SIDER

After losing to New Hampshire we have felt all year. Why, when our cage was like a possibility have scored all the best hockey of our was to blame, and how terrible tension? As soon as we made mistakes, it resulted in a mistakes were minimal. February 15, this miserable into ecstasy. Perhaps dunk, we will combine our with our quest for total re-30 Monday evening, there burst of aggressiveness since March. Each member of our team in the college hockey state when they'll walk into closer. We have had three with them, and we respect on our schedule. They trying as New Hampshire, to undergo another dosage, are physically and psycho-king. This past weekend lost 2-1 to Bowdoin. They gain first place. As so many "must" win, but it feels team in the division means be our biggest test to date. How the key to our goal, if check them to death and we will deserve the burn-aid result.

shop
SPORTSWEAR SHOP
LIGHT UNTIL 9PM
SATURDAY
388 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington
862-5488
FAMOUS BASEMENT

Catamount Clippings

Rumors have been circulating that there are changes to be made around the rink over in Goshen. Friday found me journeying over to the Gym to speak to the man who knows the story, the Coach of the Hockey team, Jim Cross.

The frequenters of the rink have, no doubt, suffered the frustration of peering through the heavy chain link fence which encloses it. For next year, an already included in the budget, the chain will be removed and glass installed in its place.

Indeed, Cross is as concerned with the inadequate seating arrangements as is the most avid spectator, and plans are in the works to do something about it.

It is obvious that the fans fail to see a sizeable portion of the contest due to the poor seating, and the standing which we are all forced to do does little to remedy the situation. The possibility of new bleachers has been discussed. A recent estimate was approximately one third the cost originally anticipated by the University. Needless to say, things look encouraging but unfortunately not definite. The old bleachers would be shifted to the soccer field, another area plagued by inadequate seating.

The Freshman Coach, George Kremer, also gave me some information about a campaign he has been instrumental in initiating. "The Friends of UVM Hockey." The flyers and bumper stickers all boil down to one goal: to get money for talented hockey players to come to this University. The money will be directly solely to those who normally would be unable to afford the indisputably high out of state tuition. Perhaps in this way, those who begrudge the University's athletic scholarships will find the concept a little more palatable. To date, the response has been encouraging.

Just a note of personal interest, and I say it with the full realization that I may be severely criticized. I can see booing an opposing club for conduct out of line on the ice (or on the playing field), as seen by UNH last week. However, booing the opposition for the sheer fact that they are the opposition sticks in my craw, and taunting a man to a frenzy, as also seen in that contest, seems to be extremely childish. It's a very safe gamble to scream obscenities at a man when there are ten spectators, three security cops, and the whole front line of the football team between you, and I suppose it's a real laugh to throw beer cans on the ice from the middle of a crowd. I would like the children who do these things to stand face to face with the victims of their pranks. I think perhaps there would be a change in attitude.

New Team Leaders

The team leaders in Cross Country and Soccer for the University of Vermont have been chosen for the 1971 season.

For the long-distance, two freshmen got the nod to lead the squad, Donald E. Baker and Peter F. Buser. Baker makes his home in Vergennes, while Buser hails from Simsbury, Conn.

Both runners helped to lead the team to a second place finish in the Yankee Conference Championships last year.

The Varsity soccer club has chosen to elect tri-captains for the coming year. The three who were honored are Peter Bernhardt, Buffalo, N.Y.; David Ojala, from Proctor Vt. and Rick Valway who lives in Essex Jct.

Valway, named MVP of this year's squad, was a first team All-Yankee Conference selection. Ojala, on the other hand, made honorable mention for that for the Conference and was the recipient of the annual Hal Grig Award.

Draft.... (continued from page five)

Such reasoning is faulty. In the first case, committing a felony does not mean a registrant will not be drafted since a moral waiver is available. Secondly, even if a waiver is wrongfully granted, the registrant might be inducted anyway.

The courts have consistently refused to overturn the judgement of the Armed Forces. For example, in one recent case, a registrant argued that he should not have been ordered for induction since criminal charges were pending against him. The court responded: "To adopt the defendant's contention would mean that a registrant who has been ordered to report for induction could, prior to the date he is ordered to report, commit an offense and, if the charge was pending at the date he is to be inducted, use his criminal activity... to his benefit as a valid reason for refusing to be inducted."

"A more reasonable view is that the regulation does not preclude the authorities from drafting a registrant when it determines after inquiry that a registrant is morally fit despite pending criminal charges.... While the regulation does not require the armed forces to refuse to accept a registrant.... it creates no right in the registrant to refuse to be inducted."

We welcome your questions and comments. Please send them to "Mentoring the Draft," Suite 1202, 60 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Ortiz (10) And Miller (45) Go For Two Maine Bears Prove Too Much For Trackmen

by John Stowell

The University of Vermont track team suffered a defeat at the hands of the University of Maine Black Bears, 70% 33%.

The Black Bears, who were led by the most double winner in the state, won nine of twelve events. Gilmont posted wins in the 50-yard dash with a time of 5.6 and the long jump with a leap of 21'8".

The Catamount event winners were Henry Forgue in the long jump, Mike Biliza in the shot put, and Jerry Learned in the one mile run.

Mike Biliza heaved an outstanding distance of 46'2 3/4" to better his toss of 45'3" in the Vermont A.A.U. meet held January 30th. Forgue took the pole vault event with a jump of 12'6" followed by teammate Bruce Lawrence who scored a very close second.

Jerry Learned put on his greatest mile performance of his college career with a clocking of 4:24.6. Donny Baker, a freshman, put in his finest mile time ever with 4:34.5, two and one-half seconds better than his record of the A.A.U. meet.

Baker, contributed to Vermont's scoring efforts with a second in the two-mile run.

The other scoring efforts for the Catamounts were three places by Steve Coon, Frank O'Brien, and Craig Stearns in the 50, 600, and 55-yard high hurdles respectively. Phil Elwert, UVM record holder of the 1,000 yard run, took a second in that event with a time of 2:30.4 while UVM long jump ace Mike Enson leaped 21'3 1/2" to gain a very close second place in the long jump.

The Cats will travel to Lewiston, Maine on Saturday for a match with a tough Bates College track team for their second dual meet of the season.

50 yd. dash: 1. Gilmont (M) 2. Vick (M) 3. Be Alsop (M) and Coon (V) 4. T. 5.6

600 yd. dash: 1. Good (M) 2. Carver (M) 3. O'Brien (V) 4. 1:15.3

1000 yd. dash: 1. Stevens (M) 2. Elwert (V) 3. Shepard (M) 4. 2:18.9

One mile: 1. Learned (V) 2. Ward (M) 3. Bove (M) 4. 4:24.6

Two mile: 1. Warner (M) 2. Baker (V) 3. Learned (V) 4. 9:56.6

55 yd. high hurdles: 1. White (M) 2. Bird (V) 3. Stearns (V) 4. 1:17.3

Long jump: 1. Gilmont (M) 2. Enson (V) 3. Carter (M) 4. 21'8"

High jump: 1. Kendrick (M) 2. Lashane (M) 3. Good (M) 4. 6'3" Pole vault: 1. Forgue (V) 2. Lawrence (V) 3. Marshack (M) 4. 12'6"

Shot: 1. Biliza (V) 2. Peterson (M) 3. Cook (M) 4. 46'2 3/4"

35 lb. weight: 1. Partridge (M) 2. Cook (M) 3. Handon (M) 4. 2:45.4

Mile relay: 1. Maine 2. Vermont 3. 3:34.8

This is the first meet of a series. All times and distances considered as new records.

Catamounts Tougher Than Panthers

by Dave Clark

Crowds inspire teams and big crowds inspire even more. The size of the crowd at the game against state rival Middlebury Monday night was to put it mildly, inspiring. In spite of the lack of support the Cats played a good game and won 7-6-4. So much for the editorial, now for the game.

Vermont showed a potent offense and a game controlling defense in upping their record to 7-10 after suffering two week-end defeats at Rhode Island and Massachusetts. The Cats lost to Rhode Island on Friday night 93-84 and to the Redmen 86-51 on Saturday night. Mark Miller played one of his best games of the season scoring 24 points and grabbing 9 rebounds vs R.I. Tom Clay was second in the scoring with 20 while Rich Trele led the team in rebounds with 12. The game against UMass was not one of the better efforts of the year for UVM as the Cats were led in the scoring department by Jim Ducey with only 11 followed by Mark Miller with 10.

The game against Middlebury on Monday night was not an outstanding one for either club. There was a total of 35 turnovers between the two teams as Vermont led the way with 18. Vermont played a better defense but the Panthers controlled the boards getting 42 rebounds as compared to 31 for the Cats.

The leading scorer for the night for both clubs was Vermont captain Tom Clay who tallied 20 points. Clay shot 10 of 12 from the foul line to account for half of his points total. Also scoring well for the Cats were Ray Ortiz and Jim Ducey with 18 and 16 pts. respectively.

Middlebury was under the gun as the Cats from the floor as the Panthers made only 27 of 51 shots for a poor 33%. Vermont made the same number of shots from the floor but the Cats took 31 fewer shots getting 27 of 30 for a very respectable, in fact, excellent 54% for the night.

The Panthers had no trouble moving the ball as they passed very well and were able to control their offensive boards, but they just couldn't get the ball through the hoop. Middlebury got four consecutive shots at the basket at one point but they missed them all.

Vermont showed a good offense as they were not bothered very much by the full court press Middlebury threw at them. The Cats were moving well with some head passing but also hitting the open man under the baskets on well run plays.

Middlebury is a very strong team with four freshmen on the varsity squad. They gave a good account of themselves as 1 in 2 most of the players will agree.

The leading scorer for the season remains Jr. Ray Ortiz followed closely by Tom Clay and Mark Miller. Ortiz carries a 19 pts per game average with 14 and 13.

The Frosh beat the Norwich Frosh 76-74 in overtime as Fred Zimmerman sank two free-

inside BASKETBALL

by Mike Brown

Our victory over Middlebury this past Monday may have looked impressive to an outsider, but take it from the "insider," it wasn't. Coming off our tough road trip last weekend, where we lost to Rhode Island and U. Mass., and the fact in the back of our minds that Middlebury had beaten St. Michael's by nineteen points, caused us not to be as psyched or as confident as we could have been.

Once the game began and "Ducey" handled the ball the way he usually does, and Ortiz and Clay were hitting the way they usually do, along with Trele and Miller rebounding as they usually do, our worries were put to rest.

But nevertheless we lacked our usual zip and speed, which is why we didn't blow the Middlebury boys out of the gym. We were slow on defense and our offense was stagnant at times. The reason for our sluggishness was because we were all just plain tired. We played two games on two successive nights, Friday night at U.R.I. and Saturday night at U. Mass.

With only Sunday for a day of rest, we came out and played, not up to par, against Middlebury. There was no doubt that the weekend road trip had exhausted all of us, myself included. The bench gets awfully hard and threesome at times.

throws with four seconds left. Zimmerman was the leading scorer with 35 followed by Dave Kashulines and Mark Lantz with 22 and 18 respectively.

The Cats next home game is on the 17 of this month against Connecticut.

RIP THIS AD OUT
FOR 10% OFF ANY PURCHASE

Jesse James and Co.
EXCITING JEWELRY
& UNUSUAL THINGS FOR GUYS AND GIRLS
167 Church St.
Burlington
OPEN MON. THURS. SAT. 9:30 am-7 pm
FRI. UNTIL 9

Macomber Shows Superb Form For Diving Victory

Swimmers Trounce Holy Cross

The UVM swim team, fresh off a victory over Holy Cross, is presently preparing for the contest with U. Conn. next Saturday at the Forbush pool.

With the defeat of Holy Cross, Leggett's team boosted its overall record to four wins and one loss. It was a sound victory for the Catamounts.

Willard has come back strong after having sat at the last two meets due to a garbed heel. Another standout for the place honors in all the events except the 400 yard Free Relay and the 1000 yard competition, which was taken by Montavane of the opposing club.

Three of the water cats Don Macomber, John Stephens and Bruce Willard all earning the laurels. As can be seen, Willard has come back strong after having sat at the last two meets due to a garbed heel. Another standout for the home club was John Radimer, who posted a winning time of 5:19.1 in the 500 yard swim.

As the present record indicates, the swimming club is having a successful season. Next Saturday will prove to be a hard test as U. Conn. is recognized to be a very strong club. However, Leggett's squad hopes to send the Huskies dog-paddling back to Storrs, Connecticut.

Hockey

(continued from page eight)

The lack of hitting was evident by the absence of penalties. McDonald was caught with 10 seconds remaining and stopped the Cats chance to play an entire game without a foul.

Needed!

Art Locke, coach of the Varsity Basketball Squad, has announced that his club is in dire need of a manager. The team has now only seven games left until the season ends with the bout with Rhode Island on the first of March. Any students who are interested in helping out the basketball program in a non-player capacity are urged to contact Locke over at the Gym.

TONY'S PIZZA

OPEN UNTIL 3 A.M.
ORDERS TO GO

COLLEGE MAN'S FRIEND

135 PEARL ST.
863-9127

WOW

is coming!

Every Friday Afternoon!
HAPPY HOURS
4-6

AT THE
blue tooth

Drinks Reduced
Live Band—No Cover
"THE UNION JACKS"
Wed.—Sunday

Skiing Does Not Have To Be Competitive

COUNTRY MOUSE EMPORIUM

146 CHERRY ST.

OPENING SAT, FEB.13th

PANTS BY UFO & COUNTRY MOUSE
SHIRTS BY HIMALAYA

PIPES, PAPERS, INCENSE

BLACKLITE AND CUSTOM
POSTERS.

A Particular Place for Particular Skiers...

Exciting skiing for all skills. Complete variety in steepness and difficulty, from the Chute and Fall line, among New England's steepest to gentle Vixen. Ski the Mini-Area within our area! Headquarters of 9 leading Ski Clubs. Special Ski Week rates. Write: Folders, Information.

MAD RIVER GLEN SKI AREA

Waitsfield, Vermont • Routes 100 and 17

WINTER WEEKEND
PRESENTS
THE BIGGEST SHOW EVER TO HIT NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

7:30 THURS 18

THE JAMES GANG
TAJ MAHAL
J GEILS BLUES BAND
REDEYE

7:30 FRI 19

MORT SAHL
PAUL WINER AS SWEET PIE
STUDENT PRODUCED FILMS

1:00 SAT 20

CHAMBERS BROTHERS
ALLMAN BROTHERS
DARK HORSE

This page the courtesy of the University Store

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 5

A Clarification Of The Facts

Editors Note: The following letter was received from the "Vermont CYNIC" on 1/15/70.

To the Editor:
A letter to the Editor of the Burlington Free Press and the "Vermont CYNIC" on 1/15/70.

Recently John Phillips, president of the Student Association, took a trip to Asia. A Delegation from the National Student Association and the "students" of the National Student Conference also proposed that we call for demonstrations against that we issue an ultimatum to the N.S.A. doesn't stop the war by May 1 we will U.S.

My objections are:
1. He does not have the right to sign behalf of the student body of the University does not have the right to make any part of the student body.
2. He did not get approval from the student activity funds to pay his way or use the funds of the Student Association go running around the country, open Association on matters which do not concern the Association.

John Phillips
U.V.M.

Editors Note: This is the editorial note.

THE BURLINGTON FREE PRESS
IN OUR OPINION
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1970

Embarrassment

THE IMAGE of the University of Vermont continues to be tarnished, not by "incidents," but by members of the UVM community. And it is so unnecessary, regrettable, and avoidable.
Why, especially at this time of anti-UVM sentiment, did John Phillips, president of the UVM Student Association, travel to Saigon to sign a "peace treaty" with the Communist Government? The same as Phillips just was both foolish and provocative.
Someone should inform Phillips and others of the fact that they are attempting to lead a lost cause. The days of such campus rebellions are past.
The issue raised by the College Post.

Editors Note: The CYNIC question.

Q. Why did you send a copy of your letter A. I got ahold of a transcript from the "New York Times" and I read it and I was quite upset. And when I had time to really sit next day, it had already been sent and it was too late.
Sidebotham then spoke about the S.A. morale of our troops in Southeast Asia.
Regardless of what he does, he went goes out there in our name and he is reflecting upon the University.
"I'm personally against his ideas. I should be brought up in the S.A. I don't think it's there for. It's a focusing point for action to run out there for that meeting of political origins to it."
"When our guys are over there, these things like that it doesn't help our boys. You start doing things like that and you killed."

Editors Note: In response to the letter, John Phillips issued this statement.

John Phillips

To the Editor:
A recent letter to the editor in the Burlington Free Press and an editor's note stated some facts concerning the UVM Student Association and Mr. John Phillips. Both the editorial and Mr. John Phillips' letter in the Free Press were true since I signed nothing while I was in the U.S. I am not of signing anything.
Further, Mr. Sidebotham alleged that the UVM Student Association funds. This is also untrue. The UVM Student Association is a member of the National Student Association, which UVM is a member. As a member, we have the right, and even the responsibility, to question the dominant view of our society, question the dominant view, or question the dominant view, not even bother to classify ourselves as "left" or "right."
John Phillips
President
Student Association

A Clarification Of The Facts

Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to the "Burlington Free Press" and the "Vermont CYNIC" on Wednesday, February 11.

To the Editor:

A letter to the Editor of the Burlington Free Press & Vermont CYNIC.

Recently John Phillips, president of the University of Vermont Student Association, took a trip to Ann Arbor Michigan to sign a "People's Peace Treaty" with North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

A Delegation from the National Student Association went to North Vietnam to write a peace treaty between the North Vietnamese and the "students" of American Universities. The National Student Conference also proposed:

"We call for demonstrations across the nation on Feb. 10 and that we issue an ultimatum to the Nixon Administration that if he doesn't stop the war by May 1 we will stop the Government of the U.S."

My objections are:

1. He does not have the right to sign a treasonous document on behalf of the student body of the University of Vermont. Also he does not have the right to make any political decisions on behalf of the student body.

2. He did not get approval from the Student Association to use student activity funds to pay his way out and back. He should not use the funds of the Student Association for political activity or to go running around the country, spending money of the Student Association on matters which do not concern the Student Association.

John B. Sidebotham
U.V.M. '71

Editor's Note: This is the editorial that grew out of that letter.

Embarrassment at UVM

THE IMAGE OF the University of Vermont is being tarnished, not by "radicals" but by members of the UVM community. And it is so embarrassing, and so embarrassing.

When the University of Vermont Student Association, led by John Phillips, president of the UVM Student Association, travel to Michigan to sign a "People's Peace Treaty" with North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, the UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

The UVM community is embarrassed.

UVM Responds To Auditor's Report

A recent audit report of the University of Vermont has stirred some controversy. According to a local press report, University officials have been charged with "careless administration" of their funds.

The auditing firm of Archibald Peisch performed the audit. The audit, taken annually at the end of each fiscal year, is a study of the overall internal control system at the University. Certain recommendations were made by Mr. Peisch which were forwarded to Mr. Dyson, Vice President for Financial Affairs at UVM. This is the normal procedure that has always been followed.

On January 27, 1971, Mr. Dyson submitted to Mr. Peisch a fifty page reply to these recommendations. The report included the University's position on each recommendation.

Officials at the University feel that the findings of the report have been blown out of proportion. According to Mr. Dyson, "the suggestions that were made were relatively minor suggestions. Wherever we could follow any of the suggestions that were made, naturally we followed them."

Mr. Peisch clarified his findings to the CYNIC. We did offer quite a few suggestions and criticisms; they did not concern subjects of major importance. They are a matter of routine bookkeeping and routine procedure.

We gave the University a complete and unqualified certificate stating that the financial position of the University was correctly stated, and that the operations for the year were correctly presented. I think the University has a good system and is being well administered; there are short comings as there are bound to be with a big institution like that.

Certain recommendations in the auditor's report were based on differing accounting philosophies rather than a breakdown of internal controls.

Mr. Peisch feels that although the importance of the report should not be under stated, "there is no reason for the legislature to get into a lot of detail."

The CYNIC has a copy of the auditor's report and Mr. Dyson's replies to its recommendations. Any interested person is welcome to examine the report.

Out-of-state Applications Decline

by K. Dussan Booy

According to Richard L. Gerard, Admissions Program Coordinator, there has been a sharp decline in out-of-state applications for admission to next year's freshman class at UVM.

Mr. Gerard stated, "We are off by about 1200 out-of-state applications, so we are now talking about 4200 out-of-state freshman applications, and last year they were 5400 out-of-state freshman applications. In-state applications are about the same, 1600."

Mr. Gerard, who has been working closely with Vice-President Rollins on admissions, stated 2 main reasons for the decline in out-of-state applications. "First, is the economic factor. It probably has had some bearing on a number of people. Secondly, because we were so hard last year in terms of the number of offers we made from total applications that this may have discouraged a number of students from applying."

Even though there has been a decline in applications Gerard stated, "In a preliminary look the distribution of quality in the applications is about the same as last year."

"Most private colleges, and we have to look at our out-of-state applications on the private college plain, last year held their own or showed a slight decrease in total applications, and that 5400 for us last year was a 20% increase from the previous year. This year's number is a little more realistic, probably in terms of where it should be."

Mr. Gerard pointed out that while there will be roughly 240 in-state transfer students accepted, there will be no out-of-state transfer students. "The decision was made early because of the enrollment crush we would not accept out-of-state applications. So that's been our policy all year long."

He cited a few exceptions, such as, someone about to move into the state.

He also stated that policy of academic excellence recently adopted by the Faculty Senate has more or less always been the admissions policy. He sees this policy as just a matter of something on record from the University Senate. The College are very heavily involved in the decision making this year, so they will be the ones that will be implementing it.

Gerard emphasized that the total application is the most important criteria for determining a student's ability. "The best indicator of a potential for academic success is the kind of work the student has done throughout high school. When we start bringing in all the other things like test scores, but we don't talk about any certain cut off score. They are secondary and become a part of the whole application as we pull it together."

The Senate also approved an AAUP resolution which requires that the amounts of salary increase for merit and for cost-of-living adjustments be separately specified.

The next meeting of the Faculty Senate will be held in the Lower Lounge in the Waterman Building on Friday, March 12 at 4:30 P.M.

Recycling: One Way Of Creating A Better Environment

This Monday a group of environmentally conscious students living in Mason and Coolidge Halls began a "concerted effort to recycle their garbage."

Each student is dividing the garbage into five categories and putting it into special containers in every hallway. From there the waste is moved to the dormitory basement, until enough has been accumulated to be sold.

Three of the five categories of the garbage are: paper, glass and metal, all of which can be sold to salvage dealers in Burlington and southern Vermont for prices averaging ten dollars a ton.

The organic waste is being composted (turned by a biological process) into a cheap fertilizer near the Shapton Motor Inn. The rest of the garbage, such as plastic and aerosol cans still present a problem, for as of yet no way has been found to safely and ecologically dispose of them.

Hopefully the project will pay for itself, but for now, the Experimental Program and the dormitory funds are paying for containers and transportation.

The group also hopes that success in the initial program will motivate other dorms, fraternities and even local residents to start their own recycling projects or will perhaps cause them to join the one now in existence.

The purpose of the entire effort is to stop the filling of the Winooski River Flood Plain. This area, just North of Burlington, is presently serving as a dump site. The group also hopes to raise people's consumer consciousness. This means making them aware of exactly what type of product they are buying, what is contained in it and where the disposed product ultimately goes. Most people never take the time to consider that nothing ever simply gets "thrown away."

Anyone interested in learning more about this project should contact David Alexander at extension 301, or visit him in room 301, Coolidge Hall. He is very anxious to help in any way possible and is open to any suggestions you may have.

Remember, this paper can be recycled and every ton saved keeps approximately seventeen tons from perishing.

Few Students Attend Pops Night

A small but enthusiastic crowd of approximately 250 people attended the Pops Night presentation Tuesday evening in Memorial Auditorium. The traditional production, which precedes UVM's Winter Weekend, consisted of three short pieces prepared by three fraternities which are sponsoring candidates for King of Winter Weekend.

Phi Delta Theta, sponsoring Lou Thomas, presented "The Greek Way," which was a humorous take-off on the classical Greek comedy Lysistrata. Sigma Phi Epsilon, whose candidate is Bill Neilson, staged "I am Embarrassed (Red)," which combined the children's story of Little Red Riding Hood with the motif of certain Swedish-made films. The evening concluded with Alpha Gamma Rho's "Shary Rider," which depicted two hippie-radical-freaks searching for a queen of UVM's Winter Weekend. The five Festival '71 queen candidates were introduced before the first shift; they will all conduct a conventional campaign.

A spokesman for the Festival Committee said that although the audience was disappointing in number, those in attendance seemed to enjoy the production. The director also said that the fact that Pops Night was scheduled on a Tuesday this year might have been responsible for the small turnout. He added, however, that the admission price of 25 cents, necessitated by rental costs, didn't seem to frighten anyone away.

Festival '71 Begins Tonight; Many Activities Are Planned

After months of preparation, the stage is set for Festival '71: winter weekend at the University of Vermont.

Important hockey games on Monday and Wednesday, and the introduction of king candidates at Pops Night activities Tuesday have set the spirit of the weekend, which begins officially Thursday at 7:30 p.m. with a four-hour concert at Patrick Gymnasium.

Featured at the concert will be the well-known James Gang, the blues of Taj Mahal, the harmonies of Redeye, and the J. Geils Blues Gang.

On Friday, UVM students, faculty, and alumni can chide all day at discount at Madonna Ski Area in Jeffersonville.

Meanwhile, in the morning, entries in the snow sculpture competition will be judged. And at 7:30 p.m. in the gymnasium, eight 16-millimeter films and eight multi-image slide shows will be projected onto one mammoth screen at the south end of the gym.

In addition to the films and slides, comedian and political satirist Mort Sahl will be featured; as will local pianist Paul Winer.

At 1 p.m. on Saturday, the Chambers Brothers, the Allman Brothers Band, and Dark Horse will appear in concert in the Patrick Gymnasium.

And on Sunday afternoon, the finals in Phi Gamma Delta's broom ball ice hockey (continued on page five)

One of seven films to be presented Friday night.

CYNIC Interview:

Phil Hoff Believes Loyalty Oaths Accomplish Little

by Jeff Tackler

QUESTION: Mr. Hoff, what do you think of the University of Vermont as an educational institution today?

ANSWER: Well, I'm tremendously encouraged by what I see. I'll be honest when I first came here to Vermont in 1951, I was not terribly impressed by the University of Vermont at that time. I think in the end, you judge a university by the character of its faculty, and the faculty here at the University has improved just enormously in the some twenty years that I've lived here. In the end, I think the University is going to be a bastion for many things: one, for freedom, which I think we are going to find increasingly threatened.

QUESTION: Would you care to comment on the Parent case?

ANSWER: I really haven't followed the Parent case that carefully. I certainly agree with the position taken by the Board of Trustees. I hope we haven't reached a point where we convict a person before he's proven guilty. That would have been a travesty had it gone the other way.

QUESTION: What are your views on loyalty oaths in general? Do you think they are necessary or superfluous? (The question was in reference to the UVM Loyalty Oath Case.)

ANSWER: I frankly think they are superfluous. I really don't think signing a loyalty oath accomplishes very much. If a person is really intent on being disloyal to this country or its institutions then he is not going to have any hesitancy about signing that oath. So I just wonder what in the end it accomplishes. I just don't think you can dictate loyalty; I think loyalty is based on belief and conviction, and this is pretty much a personal thing. QUESTION: Do you think they (the oaths) were necessary when they were instituted in the McCarthy era?

ANSWER: Clearly not. There is a historical tendency in this country to turn to this kind of device. It's almost as though we were attempting to reassure ourselves. But no amount of self-reassurance is going to do it. You are either loyal or you are not. And, loyalty is a pretty complicated thing—take Ralph Nader—to some people he is complete anathema to the democratic way in this country, and yet, in a very real sense, he is the greatest living American today.

QUESTION: Did you have any problems during your tenure as Governor with the Legislature over the subject of UVM, such as there exists today?

ANSWER: When I came in as Governor, previous governors had really shut the University out for a protracted period of time, in terms of financial help. By the time I finished my term of office, I was the person who was the bastion of strength for the University.

QUESTION: It seems to many people up on the hill that there is almost a vendetta down in Montpelier against the University.

ANSWER: Don't feel badly about it. . . there is a strong current of anti-intellectualism today in this country.

QUESTION: The odd thing is that many people in Montpelier sincerely believe that the University of Vermont is a radical hot bed, and nothing could be further from the truth.

ANSWER: You have to look at the University within its context. . . and its context is the State of Vermont. The other thing is, as we get into difficult times, people begin looking for a scapegoat device to, what John Gardner pointed out, blame others for all your ills.

Hitler blamed the Jews. Right now there is a strong current of anti-intellectualism, and again, it emanates from the desire of people to blame others.

QUESTION: Do you think the present anti-intellectual mood can be related to the present Administration in Washington?

ANSWER: You know that I'm not a very pro-Nixon man. And what has happened, you have an Administration that has attempted to take advantage of the prevailing mood in the country. What they have done is played to a mood that has already existed, and fueled it.

QUESTION: Do you have any personal political plans?

ANSWER: Not at the moment. QUESTION: But, you are not disliking the mood.

ANSWER: I would say at this particular point I have no political ambitions, but I would not forever shut the door for I'm an issue-oriented person. I have very strong convictions about what is happening and what is not happening in our society. But, as far as becoming a live political candidate, I don't see that at this moment.

Former Governor Hoff has spoken many times at UVM.

The Trustee's Meeting will be held Sat., Feb. 20, at 9:30 a.m. in Memorial Lounge, Waterman Building. All are welcome!

EDITORIAL

A WHITE, MIDDLE-CLASS GHETTO

The University of Vermont is clearly a segregated institution. Whether or not it will remain one is now the question facing the Administration. President Andrews and Vice President Rollins have been adamant in their support of racial equality yet, paradoxically, they have been equally adamant in their refusal to implement the proposals made by Prof. Warner and the Equal Opportunities Committee.

By remaining an all white University, UVM has nothing to gain. If it chooses, however, to open its doors to members of all minority groups, the benefits would be incalculable. The most readily apparent of these would be that this University might take on some semblance of reality in regards to the rest of society and not isolate its students, as it now does, in a white-middle-class ghetto.

By opening people's eyes to the facts of life in America, the University would be providing a tremendous educational service. By allowing its students to continue living in the totally unrealistic conditions that now prevail, the University would be perpetuating a greater disservice.

We urge the administration to immediately begin an extensive program of minority-group recruitment. We also urge the students of this University to show their support for such a program by filling out and returning the coupon found in this issue. C.S.F.

A PROBLEM OF COMMUNICATION

John Phillips, with the support of several members of the S.A. Senate, has called upon the Administration to re-examine its policies of tenure and reappointment. The S.A. Senate has passed a motion which created a committee to conduct public investigation of tenure and reappointment cases brought to it by a faculty member. The S.A. is also beginning a student critique campaign, so that students' opinions about a professor may be registered before his case for reappointment or tenure comes into question.

President Andrews has informally agreed that the tenure and reappointment policies of the University merit further investigation. The S.A. has gotten no response, however, from the Administration concerning their motion.

The problem seems to be one of communication. If the Administration and S.A. both are willing to re-examine tenure and reappointment policies, why then has there been no real communication between the two parties? It is the responsibility of both the Administration and S.A. to cut the rhetoric and to get together and resolve the question. Without co-operation of both parties, nothing of lasting worth can be accomplished. S.J.S.

A BIT OF FREE ADVICE

With the arrival of Festival '71, there is much skepticism. The future of the weekend and our campus depends on the outcome of this weekend. We have already been informed that our behavior at the concerts will be closely monitored. According to Chief Barrett, 15 deputy sheriffs in addition to the regular campus police force will be present as a precautionary measure.

Various other rumors have been circulating the campus, but the CYNIC will not elaborate on them because we have been unable to substantiate their authenticity. In keeping with the theme of Festival '71, however, we submit the following song by The Mamas and Papas:

A bit of free advice,
We'll tell it to you now.
If you've got some habits,
Some people won't allow
Be cool, be clean,
If you know what I mean.

R.R.

The Sisco Kid

A. Williams (Sisco)

What student power?

Within the last two years, especially since the Democratic Party Convention in Chicago during the summer of 1968, there has been an enormous preoccupation with the topic of student power. The power usually referred to is the ability of reactionary groups to act or react against the system. This writer will briefly agree there exist rather small and class groups of students that fill their membership rolls predominantly with alienated students of the nation's colleges and universities. This column is not primarily concerned with the power of the massive student forces within the American system, but, rather, it will linger on investigating power held by those students who consciously remain within the boundaries of the system at large.

At present there exist no effective student lobby groups as political entities on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C., nor from here on the campus of UVM to Montpelier. It has been argued that students don't have the income to financially support the elaborate political machinery needed for effective lobbyists. I seriously doubt this in the case of students and students' parents will manage to come up with the money needed to cover additional tuition raises as they did last year, and have done in the years past. I shall return later to the present tuition situation as a political problem.

This writer is beginning to align with the school of thought expounding the theory that students, while bearing an interest in their affairs, are satisfied with allowing other students to work for them well being, as they are more importantly concerned with the larger problems of the world and humanity. Mightily, one can tour dorm halls and hear the ceaseless cocktail party conversations of students. Whereas these conversations used to be characterized in cartoons by groups of Ph.D.s with martini at cocktail parties, the image can now be illustrated by almost any snapshot of a late night dormitory BS session.

While most of us are content to elect other students to the various positions allowed at our universities, UVM especially included, we seem to forget our representatives and tend to manage the affairs that affect us if they are no greater than the simple problems of getting to classes and arranging dates for this week-end. It appears that even the term "student government" has achieved usage only in the taboo status. It is evident that student participation in campus elections is down, giving ample argument for our legislators to acquiesce in favor of the 18 year-old vote. But in these days of the disinterested student it is becoming increasingly difficult to find not only qualified students to run for elections, but even enough concerned students to fill the ballot lists for these poorly participated in elections.

A predominant trend of disinterest in university affairs usually hits the nation's campuses as soon as the second or third week in the academic year. Upon the campus of UVM, such groups as S.A., I.R.A., I.F.C., Panhell, and the various student committees of each college within the University are left abandoned by their constituents as soon as the first of October of each year. These groups have received a tremendous amount of assistance and high recognition from President Andrews, the many Deans, Chairmen of the various departments, and faculty committees. Yet, these same student officials are invariably not even known by the student populace that elected them. The student groups are elected by the student community to lobby student grievances to the university community, but each group has discovered their positions are not even cognizant to the same students they were described to protect.

Student Power

In and about our own state capital of Montpelier there have been some very effective moves to label the UVM campus as one controlled predominantly by last-of-its-kind revolutionary-minded students and extremists. We students laugh at these ignorant accusations, but the feeling exists in Montpelier by some, coupled with the Governor's inexperience, that the state education services have to be cut back financially to create a better balanced budget for the State of Vermont. This affects every student at UVM and will certainly harm present programs and the growth of our university. We have deluded ourselves into believing we are more powerful than the ordinary citizen, but what is our great power doing to alleviate our university's financial plight?

Unfortunately, it may seem to us, the acquiring of student status does not include political powers greater than those of the ordinary citizen. Our recourse in attempting to influence the tuition increase at UVM can only be accomplished by the only act open to every citizen, the writing of a letter to our legislators, Governor, and University President. The ability to persuade our parents to do the same might indicate some powers during this war of the generations, but those powers would probably be more on the order of the occult and not political. We should make more of an effort as students to realize our responsibility of participatory citizenship both within the university and national system.

Law's Proper Function

Lawrence Webster

I am of the opinion that the founding fathers of this country wanted to construct a government which was able to endure and also be a just form of government for the people. The political nature of this government should have been of little consequence at that time. If a government were established on a just and enduring basis, order would have prevailed among the people's thoughts and deeds. A nation founded to would elect the most simple, non-oppressive government possible.

With this government each individual would have an appreciation and understanding of the responsibilities and privileges which coincide with his presence and which, which coincide with his presence under the system. A state of this high caliber would in no way become involved with the individual except for the protection afforded him in his domicile and on the land. Each individual would be responsible for his successes and his failures. The individual would not look to the state for help in poor times and he would not have to be grateful to the state in times of plenty. A state of this type would let human development happen in a logical manner.

Poor people would be fed before educated. Population flow would be more natural, eliminating slums in cities and lack of labor in rural areas. Basic economic factors, i.e., land, labor, and capital, would not be displaced through legislative decisions. Law habitually renege on its proper function. When law goes beyond its function it acts in opposition to its own purpose.

The law has placed the COLLECTIVE FORCE at the disposal of the unscrupulous who wish, without risk, to exploit the person, liberty, and property of others. It has converted plunder into right, in order to protect plunder. And it has converted lawful defense into a crime, in order to punish lawful defense.

Whitey, W Racism Evid

Whitey, are you beginning to catch on to the problem. As a white, you are responsible for the perpetuation of racism. A University can perpetuate racism. Let's examine our budget!

We all know that this is a tight budget. UVM has dropped from a high of 10% more for fiscal year '72. Fuel cost $100,000, and workmen's compensation UVM already has the highest out-of-pocket going up again. The faculty also carry such a black financial picture, how can afford $100,000 for a minority recruitment. The original fiscal year '72 budget of million dollars over that for '71, and recruitment program. To resist this 10 million dollars worth of increases that minority recruitment.

One hundred new positions are to increase and not one new hire has yet possibility exists that next year's growth less than this year's. Are we losing ground? In such a tight year the school of AU completely new department at a meager. Apparently this Physical Therapy Dept. than Blacks. Also the University of Health Scholarships from its gains increase the Black population course, standing concerning the Allied Health, be initiated with small cost to the Univ.

Attacks On U

by Mike D...

Recent attacks on the University of Vermont Sunday News, and the UVM have reached a fever pitch, not unlike the minds healthy criticism, but when critics of personal attack, destructive under and reactionary vendettas, it is no longer to the fact that the UVM has appeared an editorial entitled "State could be asking some valid questions, only serves to inflame and distort meaningful dialogue and discussion of Sunday Newspaper" chosen to indicate racist attitudes, not only in its editorial. This editorial stated, that all those Black Students at UVM should "However, it could be that these people the problem of racism in Vermont. After University, including the Trustees, is diversity in its population, which is one students. Telling people to leave when simple solution, but it does not leave discussion of problems. And, contra students, faculty members and adm willing to sit down and "trap" with any. It is ironic that one local paper calls has ignored the first duty of a free press readers with facts and opinions based poor bit of journalism (an editorial UVM-Feb. 11), which inferred that was a "fuzzy-minded, outdated activist fuzzy were the facts. Obviously, the w and passed his ignorance onto his read. The editorial stated that Mr. Phil sign a peace treaty with the communis conversation with this writer, Mr. Ph.

Alert Profes "Patriotic" A

Today a would-be assassin fired at Edward Andrews. The bullets missed thanks to the alert action of Prof. happened to be standing nearby and the gunman's hand as he was taking a The public response was immediate reported in frontpage headlines: MISGUIDED GUNMAN. State So an investigation. "A lot of people an appropriations to UVM when they using karate on people." UVM fr personally have been waiting to se would be. The only question in my would make it."

A former trustee, G. M. Scott, inter today about the assassination attempt follows: "We ought to suspend Parent business bias away from the soft Burlington Free Press Editorial stated: but a publicity hound who ought to go When contacted about the incident "It's under investigation. I deplore stands for, but, you know, sometimes. Our fraternity leader complained to Parenti shouldn't shoot four-letter disparage. His language didn't bother girl friend who is only a helpless coed with him said that when she heard the gunman, the word made her swoon." The gunman, named Joe Paloutka, paratrooper in the French Foreign Le in 1954. He is now an agricultural st war. "When I realized how commie might, so, then I said yeah, Presu commie-coddler, then, I gee, I dunno at Dienhienpu, I just blew my my tough knocking the gun from my ha this outside and he refused. He ain't Vermont Sunday News prints Stunk, headlined: VET HERO IS FIGHTER. The story praised Pa demanded that Parenti be "publicly expiring."

UVM spokesmen said that while would be upset at the sight of a libera could not on general principle app "A university," Vice-President Al R where we don't shoot at each o Andrews indicated that no further Paloutka who is in his sophomore year. Most students and faculty when thought it was "amusing." When a had been getting Professor Parenti read the funny papers."

FREE P WOULD LEGAL

DETROIT, Mich. (CPS) The Detroit FREE PRESS, a part of the Knight newspaper chain, called for the legalization of marijuana in a February 5 editorial, and "an all-out war on heroin." "Admit that the campaign to suppress marijuana by outlawing it is a failure, and has diverted society's spotlight from more serious drug problems."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Scapegoats Useless

To The Editor:

A Vermont Sunday newspaper quoted me as saying to its staff writer: "I am in trouble." That quotation is an outright fabrication. In fact I refused to make any comments whatsoever to that newspaper. I did not say "I am in trouble" because I do not believe I am. Rather it is this nation that is in very serious trouble. Let me explain:

The American people are seeing the great bulk of their taxes used to buy $100 billion in armaments every year. Public money is used to buttress the profits of corporations at home and the bank accounts of tin-born dictators abroad. In the midst of a widespread poverty affecting at least 40 million of our citizens, old and young, white and black, we are treated to a wasteful multi-billion dollar outer-space program. Our air, water and land have been plundered and polluted by big industries perhaps to the point of no return. As inflation and unemployment worsen, and consumer buying power decreases, the Nixon Administration gives tax-cuts not to ordinary working citizens but to the big corporations (estimated at approximately $3 billion this coming fiscal year). Meanwhile the Vietnam war goes on; the toll of casualties climb and the fighting and bombing extends into Laos and Cambodia.

Now it may come as a surprise to some readers, but I did not cause these problems. The only sin I and others like we have committed is to insist upon pointing out the tragic trends facing this nation. No amount of slander, threats and lies heaped upon us by self-appointed vigilantes, certain news reporters or a few ambitious politicians who are anything towards solving the problems of this nation and this state. Those who profess a love for their country might start devoting less energy to hunting for scapegoats at UVM and more energy toward attacking the immense political, social, economic, and environmental problems besetting this nation. Sincerely, Michael Parenti

Suggests Political Organizations

To The Editor:

I wish to correct an erroneous impression left by the news release of 2/11/71, entitled "Trustee candidates voice their opinions." According to the article, Rep. Father Cohen was reported to have replied to the query "What is your opinion of the students at UVM?" "Aha. The student body seems isolated from reality." The text continues: "I don't think it's very revolutionary. The kids here seem to have their feet on the ground" etc. There is an obvious contradiction in the preceding report. Rep. Cohen has stated that she did not say the first statement attributed to her. Following text of her statement one can only conclude A Misquote. Carol Brown

Questions To Ponder

To The Editor:

Those few letter writers and minor public officials who are making a career of attacking Prof. Parenti might ponder these questions: When a professor castigates a student for committing an act of vandalism and for unlawfully interfering with the rights of other students, should the professor, rather than the student, be the object of your criticism? As supposedly responsible citizens concerned with campus disorder and with acts of political vandalism and violence against property and person, do you have any criticism to make of those who destroy other people's posters? Or is it your position that we have the right to tear down and mutilate any announcement or poster we dislike? Do those who say they dislike and deplore Prof. Parenti's ideas have any notion of what his ideas are? Have they ever read any of his writings or heard him speak? Sincerely yours, Cheryl Smalley.

Contradiction

To The Editor:

I join those who request that the officers of the Student Association not use their official positions to participate in national politics, since a single organization can never represent the many different political views held by students on this campus. Instead, I suggest the formation of organizations such as Student Democrat, Student Republican, and any others, whose sole purpose is to be involved with politics. Then the leaders of these organizations can "state specifically what group they represent, and a person who is not a member of that group need not be offended by views which differ from his own. Everyone is a member of the Student Association whether he likes it or not, and even if at least 75% of the Student Body is anti-administration, which I concede is likely, it is not fair for the Student Association to speak as the "voice of UVM" on political matters. It is possible for two

Burlington Cover-Ups

To The Editor:

I do not claim to have knowledge about what goes on inside the local press. I have only stated possibilities that I have heard around the campus, and I might add that I have committed several that seem too unpalatable to be real. So in the end I am left with the question I began with: why must a local newspaper continue to discredit a university by tainting first its student newspaper, a political science professor, and now its Student Association President? In this period of criticizing UVM personalities for their treasonous actions, it is surprising to note that in the Burlington Post Office Building the U.S. Declaration of Independence, Constitution and other documents of like importance in a permanent display have been covered up by a portable rack containing forty forms necessary for completing various types of income taxes. Yet adjacent to the rack of forms is an empty wall. Can it be that the post office is attempting to cover up our cherished documents that form the basis for our great democracy?

OBSERVATIONS

by Arnold M. Fertig

That this University is faced with problems from all sides is an undeniable fact. On one front we find students, some in search of an education, others waiting until their IIS expires. Almost all demanding a more relevant and curricula while on the other side we find conservative trustees, legislators and local editorial writers. In the middle crouches an administration striving for a liberal image among students and a domineering responsible one "on the outside."

FACT: Recently, Student Association President John Phillips used funds placed at his discretion by a vote of his organization to travel to Michigan to attend a National Student Association meeting.

FACT: While there, he was presented with a treaty of peace prepared by students recently visiting North Vietnam, signed in the name of the People of the United States and the People of Vietnam.

FACT: Phillips was not asked nor did he sign the treaty.

FACT: In an interview with a Burlington Free Press Reporter a few days before their deadline for last Thursday's issue Phillips told them of the above facts.

RESULT: Last Thursday, John Phillips was blasted by the Free Press in an unsigned editorial. His actions of signing such a treaty in the name of the UVM student body were labeled "both foolish and provocative." It was implied that budget cuts would be expected from actions such as these.

ANALYSIS: The above is only one incident where the local press has taken facts relating to this university and distorted them in their editorial columns. This

VERMONT CYNIC				NUMBER 3
RALPH ROBBINS Editor-in-Chief
SARAH SCHUYLER Assistant Editor		JILL DAVIDSON Managing Editor
GENE PERONI Photography Editor	CHARLIE FRENCH News Editor	JEFF YACKER Feature Editor	KEN WHITTAKER Sports Editor
BRUCE WAGONER Advertising Manager	GARY GABSO Advertising Manager	TERRY DEMAS Business Manager	BARRY WILSON Circulation
GARY H. BARNES Student Advisor
Special Staff: Bruce Brunner, Mark Torrison, John Stowell, Mike Rensberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Galtier, Tim Beckford, Sandy Magid, Mike Swann, Bill Brad, Robert Froehlich, Dave Koppa.
News Staff: Arlene Erickson, Sue Solomon, Louise Stanton, Gene Payson, Rip Arnold, Mike Fish, Alan Carter, Bob Stevens, Cole.
Feature Staff: Maureen Smith, Brenda McCabe, James Abrams, Doug Calhoun, Gary Hanson, Bruce Alger, Anna Fertig.
Production Staff: Marge Miller, Melodie Meyer, Debby Talpo.
Advertising Staff: Steve Kass, Bill Giblin.
Photography: Greg Peterson, Student Photo Service.

Hanoi Rock Group Jailed For "Depravity, Debauchery"

Hanoi Pop Group Jailed

SARGENT (PCNS) The members of the daily known pop group in North Vietnam are now in a Hanoi jail, convicted of encouraging young people to lead a "debauched, depraved and orgiastic way of life."

The decision was handed down in early January by the Hanoi Municipal People's Court, and reported in the

Jan. 12th issue of the capital newspaper, Hanoi Today.

The band, with seven members led by Phan Thanh Tien, was playing what South Vietnamese call "New Music," a combination of French-influenced Vietnamese love ballads played against a background of popular music.

Hanoi Today's reporter called it melancholy, heart-rending, provocative, and romantic. The newspaper account said that Tien and his group struggled in records from Saigon and copied others from Saigon and American radio stations. They had frequent musical parties in places decorated as to look mysterious, the paper added.

For these crimes, Tien and his group were charged with:—Demeaning depraved imperial culture and counter-revolutionary propaganda.

Inducing the young to lead a debauched life, quit their jobs, become lazy, and disobey their parents.

Encouraging hoodlums, theft, rape and blackmail.

Impairing the implementation of state policies.

Affecting order and security.

Reading distorted propaganda opposing socialism.

Seriously harming the well-being and dignity of women.

Found guilty, Tien was sentenced to 15 years in jail. The sentences for the other band members ranged downward to 18 months imprisonment.

The court said that the trial evidence, the "depraved reactionary cultural works of the defendants," would be destroyed.

History of Illustrations on Display

A collection of illustrated books and manuscripts covering four centuries in the history of the development of the printed illustration is on display now at the University of Vermont's Bailey Library.

Glenn from the library's rare book collection, the display has been arranged by John L. Boucher, head of special collections, to trace the development of book illustration from the richly decorated manuscripts of the 15th Century through the simple woodcut designs of the 16th to the fine hand-colored lithographs of the 19th Century.

One of the most notable works in the collection is a 15th Century Italian manuscript of the works of Cicero, once part of the library of Lorraine E. Chouteau of Wilkeson, who served as President Lincoln's Registrar of the Treasury.

Because it is in the University's library collection, the manuscript is known to classical scholars as the "Codex Vermoniensis." It has been the subject of several scholarly studies during the past few years, including a formal examination by Prof. Brady Gilkland of the UVM classics department and a study by a French classical scholar.

The earliest book on display, also a work with Vermont connections, is Le Recueil on two-volume, "Troismes," printed in Paris in 1494. It has very simple woodcuts representing the earliest technique for printing illustrations as distinguished from hand-painted illuminations.

"Le Recueil," with others in the exhibit, was a gift of Frederick Billings of Royakton, who purchased the famous library of George Peckham Marsh and presented it to UVM in 1881.

Also notable in the display is an unusual volume, "Fables in Context," printed in Rome in 1564 with over 100 etched plates, an unusual technique for books of the period.

A later technique of illustration included in the Bailey Library display is the "active" edition of John James Audubon's "Birds of America," with over 550 hand-tinted lithographs.

The collections will be on display in the main lobby of the library through mid-March. It is open to the public daily from 8 a.m. to midnight and on Sundays from noon to midnight.

BASS WEEJUNS

FANTASTIC!

at only $12.90

WERE $19.00

DISCONTINUED STYLES LIMITED QUANTITIES

When you can save on famous for quality Bass Weejuns—you know you've got a buy! A group of discontinued styles worth your checking into. Sizes to 10 AAA to C in group.

THE TOWNE SHOP

A Fashion Group Store—Downtown Burlington

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

Investigate Dividend Histories Before You Invest

Dave Allen, Campus Representative
184 So. Winooski Ave., Burlington, Vt. 804-8819

National Life of Vermont

Great Double-Feature!

Sideral ELECTRONIC TISSOT

Take Tissot's ultramodern Sideral fiberglass-and-steel watch case, add Tissot's tiny, electronically powered movement. What you have is a remarkably durable and accurate timepiece, a real double-your-value buy. With calendar, stopless stem top. $69.95.

E.J. Preston & Son

THE NEW VICTORIAN INN

A Renaissance of Elegance
Gracious Hospitality
Generous Refreshments
Gourmet Food
Impeccable Service
Enjoyable Entertainment
Modest Tariff

Ember lounge 11:30 am. Till Wee Hours
Luncheon Served Daily Mon.-Fri. 11:30-2:30 pm
Dinner served Nightly Mon.-Sat. 5-10 pm
Sunday Dinner 12-9 pm
Reservations Appreciated
Monique & John Ladue Innkeepers
1710 Shelburne Road.
South Burlington, Vt.
864-0338

BOYD'S MUSIC

206 MAIN ST. 863-4613

BURLINGTON, VERMONT

Vermont's Largest Drum Dealer has new location with a large supply of drums, Avedis Zildjian Cymbals and all the accessories you'd ever need.

What the top stars are playing you'll find at Boyd's. Kustom, Sunn, Acoustic, Marshall and Standell Amplifiers. Complete P.A. Systems.

Gibson, Epiphone and Gretsch Guitars.

Trumpets, Trombones, Saxophones, Clarinets and Flutes—all best brand.

Removes. New and used.

DEEP POWDER HAUS

ALPINE SKIERS—SICK OF LIFT LINES?
TRY CROSS-COUNTRY ON WEEK-ENDS!

LARGE SELECTION OF CROSS-COUNTRY EQUIPMENT

BETWEEN DOMINO'S AND SUNDANCE

16 NORTH WINOOSKI AVE

ETV Specials

A mid-winter "bash" at the University of Vermont and the special concerns of American black women are included in evening feature programs on Vermont Educational Television Feb. 22-26.

Scenes and excerpts from the annual UVM Winter Festival Feb. 22 at 9 p.m. Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women and Director of the Office of Racial Justice for the YWCA, will speak with host Edwin Newman on "Speaking Freely" Tuesday (Feb. 23) at 8 p.m.

Composer Ned Rorem's songs are performed by soprano Joyce Mathis and pianist Lynn Crigler on "Music of the 20th Century" Wednesday at 8 p.m. Professional filmmakers will comment on films submitted by Vermont high school students competing in a Vermont ETV-sponsored film competition.

"Paradise Lost, Part 1," Clifford Odets' classic drama of the decaying middle class of the Feb. 24 at 6 p.m. At 9 p.m. Depression, will be performed Thursday (Feb. 25) at 8:30 p.m. on NET Playhouse.

The exotic influences of weaver Dorothy Young's world travels are reflected in her work, as shown Friday (Feb. 26) at 9:30 p.m. on "The World of the American Craftsman."

WATCH FOR: Feb. 22: Fleming Museum film, Feb. 23: Environment lecture, Annual meeting of Chittenden County College Employees, Credit Union, Feb. 24: University Senate meeting, University Orchestra concert, Feb. 27: Lane Chamber Arts Series presents the Don Redlich Dance Company, 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium, Feb. 28: A Lane Extra—Bill Cosby and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, shows at 5 and 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium.

Billings Center Governing Board proposes to accomplish the following: Informal Atmosphere, Entertainment, Local Talent Cultivation, Efficient Use of Billings Center, Discussion, Increase Communication, Faculty and Student Participation.

How: Billings Coffee House (Proposed) Needed: People to organize and operate—Pick up information and application at Billings Information Desk (Student Activities Office) Timing: Current Semester

Radical Union

There will be a Radical Students Union Meeting, Sunday at 7:30 in Marsh Lounge Billings.

Hoff to Speak

There will be a movie presented by the Zero Population Growth (ZPG) chapter of the University of Vermont at 8:00 P.M. on Monday, January 22, at Given Hall in the Given Medical Building. Following the movie, Phil Hoff will be present to deliver a speech on overpopulation.

The movie, called "The Time of Man" is a 60 min., color film distributed by the Natural History Museum. Basically an anthropologist's view of overpopulation, it centers on indigenous tribes of New Guinea and South America, and how they react with their environment. It draws comparisons with one tribe which is living in harmony with nature, and another which is destroying its environment through exploitation and is now beginning to suffer the consequences. It points out that overpopulation is not only a matter of too many people, but also of people's relationships with the ecosystems.

Scholarships

Delta Delta Delta sorority is offering two $550 scholarships to any full time women students. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need will be considered. Applications are available at the Financial Aid Office or the Tri-Delta house at 143 South Willard. Deadline is March 1, 1971.

UVM Orchestra

The University of Vermont Orchestra, conducted by Professor Frank Lidal, will present a concert in the Allen Chapel at 8:30 P.M., Friday, February 26. The concert is free and open to the public.

Two Mozart symphonies in G minor are being programmed to illustrate the difference between early and mature Mozart: the rough-hewn No. 25 (K. 183) and the polished and well-known No. 40 (K. 550). Professor Thomas Read and his wife, Evelyn, will be featured as soloists in the Vivaldi Concerto for Two Violins in D minor (Fame 100). The program will close with a Suite, Wood Notes, by William Grant Still, one of the first American Negro composers to attain wide recognition in the classical field.

No Pantsuits

PAINTSVILLE, Ken. (CP's/FPS)—Fifteen girls in Paintsville, Kentucky, will have to submit to paddings before they can re-enter school. This punishment was proclaimed after they wore pantsuits to school last January 27 during near-zero weather.

The school had already refused to allow girls to wear pants on cold days, after being requested earlier to change the policy. So, the principal said, the girls were guilty of a "deliberate rules violation." He then told them to go home and not to return until they were willing to be paddled.

Bailey Library Schedule of Hours
Winter Festival Week-end
1971

Feb. 19 (Friday)	8:30—5:00
Feb. 20 (Saturday)	8:30—5:00
Feb. 21 (Sunday)	Regular Hours (12 noon—midnight)
ALL NIGHT STUDY	Regular Hours

Talent-Lade Begins on

(continued from page one)

tournament will be staged at the fraternity house at 144 South Willard St.

The Festival Committee is confident that the frustrating delays which plagued last year's film competition have been eliminated.

One director explained that the main problem in 1970 was synchronization of the film and slide shows on two screens, so they could be shown coincidentally to both sides of the gym.

With only one screen being used this year, that project is no longer necessary, he explained.

No other gaps are foreseen either. According to a committee spokesman, the time lapse between the end of the film presentations and the announcement of the winning entries has been adequately filled.

The Media-On Film and

At Montreal's Exposition '67 World's Fair, probably the most popular pavilion was that of Czechoslovakia. And the biggest drawing card inside was the multi-image slide show.

Although the slide presentations to be featured at Patrick Gymnasium on Friday evening are not as intricate and provocative as those at Expo, the principle and effect are the same. The impact of a multi-image slide show is based on when each image is projected on the screen, how long and in what combinations the images remain.

The entries in the upcoming slide competition each involve three images on the screen. The arrangements of each show are as varied as the groups producing them.

There will be nine slide shows projected in the gymnasium on Friday night. They are scheduled to be alternated with seven 16-millimeter student-produced films.

The films and slide shows average to about five or six minutes each in length.

According to Robert Ansel, Festival 71 assistant production director, the 16-millimeter film range is drawn from abstract experimentation to a regular story.

Ansel said the slide show topics range from a religious experience to ways of making people happy.

Most of the organizations submitting films or slide presentations have been developing their entries since late last fall. Rehearsals have been taking place for the past couple of weeks in various locations.

All entrants have been advised and helped by the 1971 Film Festival Advisory Board. Board members are Frank Marshall, cinematography instructor of the Department of Edu-ary display is the "artwork" of John James Audubon's "Birds of America," with over 500 hand-colored lithographs.

Display

The collection will be on display in the main lobby of the library through mid-March. It is open to the public, daily from 10 a.m. to midnight and on Sundays from noon to midnight.

m. Patrick Gymnasium. Five p.m. Taj Mahal, the J. Geils Band.

Modern, U.S. Department of Science, New Concepts and Museum, Marsh Life Sciences with the Environmental Studies car and administrative offices

Picture judging, 10:30 a.m. to all day.
U.S. Williamstown, Mass.
3 p.m., Forbush Pool.
7:4 p.m.
and multi-image slide shown, 8

9:30 a.m., Memorial Lounge, of the Mount Carmel, 9:00

Executive Board, 10:30 a.m.,

Williamstown, Mass.

at Storrs, Conn. concert, 1 p.m., Patrick

Brothers and the Allman

Senator Robert Packwood, Survival," 7:30 p.m., Ira Allen

the Environmental Studies

Volume 1 is available from 2.50 each or $4 if you wish to Add $1 for mailing charges.

the Museum film, Feb. 23:

Feb. 24: University Senate

Feb. 25: Lane Chamber and Dance Company, 8:30 p.m.

and Extra—Bill Cosby and the 5 and 8:30 p.m., Memorial proposals to accomplish the

Pick up information and ask (Student Activities Office)

UVM Orchestra

The University of Vermont Orchestra, conducted by Professor Frank Ladral, will present a concert in Ira Allen Chapel at 8:30 p.m. Friday, February 26. The concert is free and open to the public.

Two Mozart symphonies in minor are being programmed—40 (K. 417) and 41 (K. 417). The difference between early and mature Mozart is the rough-hewn 40 (K. 417) and the polished and well-known No. 40 (K. 417). Professor Thomas and his wife, Evelyn, will be featured as soloists in the Mozart Concerto for Two Violins in D minor (Fama 100). The program will close with Suite, Wood Notes, by William Grant Still, one of the first American Negro composers to attain wide recognition in the classical field.

No Pantsuits

PAINTSVILLE, Vt. (CPS/PS)—Fifteen girls in Paintsville, Kentucky, will have to submit to padding before they can receive school. This punishment was proclaimed after they wore pantsuits to school last January 27 during near-zero weather.

The school had already refused to allow girls to wear pants on cold days, after being requested earlier to change the policy. So, the principal said, the girls were guilty of a "deliberate rule violation." He then told them to go home and not to return until they were willing to be padded.

Hours of Hours
Weekend
3:30-5:00
5:30-8:00
Regular Hours
(12 noon-midnight)
Regular Hours

Talent-Laden Fete Begins on Campus

(continued from page one)

tournament will be staged at the fraternity house at 168 South Willard St.

The Festival Committee is confident that the frustrating delays which plagued last year's film competition have been eliminated.

One director explained that the main problem in 1970 was synchronization of the film and slide shown on two screens, so they could be shown coincidentally to both sides of the gym.

With only one screen being used this year, that project is no longer necessary, he explained.

No other gaps are foreseen either. According to a committee spokesman, the time lapse between the end of the film presentations and the announcement of the winning entries has been adequately filled.

The Sunday afternoon activity, which was initiated by Phi Gamma Delta, may become a regular winter weekend event if successful, one committee member observed.

He pointed out that a scheduled event for Sunday afternoon may help ease students back into collegiate routine.

Directors of Festival 71 are Louis J. Tesconi of Rutland, chairman; Jeffrey F. Bliss of Swanton, finance; Stephen C. Connor of Rochester, N.Y., production; and Mike Rosenberg of Burlington, publicity.

The festival's assistant directors are Robert Ansel of Jamesville, N.Y., and Howard Pachtov of Newton Centre, Mass., production; Joel Bradley of Burlington, publicity; and Ellen Musinsky of Swampscott, Mass., finance.

Miss Cynthia Coy of Glen Cove, N.Y., is secretary for the committee.

Festival Schedule

Thursday, Feb. 18: First Festival Concert, 7:30 p.m. Roy L. Patrick Gymnasium, featuring the James Gang, Taj Mahal, the J. Geils Blues Band, Redeye.

Friday, Feb. 19: Ski discount day, Madonna Ski Area, all day; snow sculpture judging, 10:30 a.m.; competitive films and slide shows, and Mort Sahl, Patrick Gym, 7:30 p.m.

Saturday, Feb. 20: Second Festival Concert, 1 p.m., Patrick Gymnasium, featuring the Chambers Brothers, the Allman Brothers Band, Dark Horse.

Sunday, Feb. 21, afternoon: Broom ball ice hockey finals, Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, 168 S. Willard St.

Trophies for the films and slide shows, as well as the Jennings snow sculpture trophy, will be awarded on Friday evening.

The Media--Moving Precision On Film and Multi-Image Slides

At Montreal's Exposition 67 World's Fair, probably the most popular pavilion was that of Czechoslovakia. And the biggest drawing card inside was the multi-image slide show.

Although the slide presentations to be featured at Patrick Gymnasium on Friday evening are not as intricate and provocative as those at Expo, the principle and effect are the same. The impact of a multi-image slide show is based on when each image is projected on the screen, how long and in what combinations the images remain.

The entries in the upcoming slide competition each involve three images on the screen. The arrangements of each show are as varied as the groups producing them.

There will be nine slide shows projected in the gymnasium on Friday night. They are scheduled to be alternated with seven 16-millimeter student-produced films.

The films and slide shows average to about five or six minutes each in length. According to Robert Ansel, Festival 71 assistant production director, the 16-millimeter film range in theme from abstract experimentation to a regular story.

Ansel said the slide shows range from a religious experience to ways of making people happy.

Most of the organizations submitting films or slide presentations have been developing their entries since last fall. Rehearsals have been taking place for the past couple of weeks in various locations.

All entrants have been advised and helped by the 1971 Film Festival Advisory Board. Board members are Frank Masch, cinematography instructor of the Department of Film, John Smith, who heads the University Photography Service, Lyn Jarvis of Vermont Educational Television, and John K. Worden of the Department of Speech.

The board sponsored seminars in the fall on some of the fundamental techniques of film production.

Hopefully this will result in a finer product than the productions of 1970, although many of these were considered excellent by the judges.

One problem faced this year by the committee was time. With only one night of film and slide productions, scheduled, the number of entries had to be limited.

Rather than screen the productions prior to the performance and eliminate some, the directors decided that the effort and investment warranted showing all entries. The number now stands at 16.

Also featured with the films and slides are satirist, Mort Sahl and local pianist Paul Winer.

The Entries

The following organizations have entered 16-millimeter films to be shown Friday night competitively:

Film Club
Graduate Student Association
Lambeth Inn
Office of Volunteer Programs
Representatives-at-Large Student Photography Service
With Hall

The following organizations have entered multi-image slide shows to be shown competitively Friday night:

Alpha Epsilon Pi
Alpha Gamma Rho
Delta Hall
InterVarsity Christian Fellowship
Phi Delta Theta
Sigma Phi Epsilon
Outing Club
Tupper Hall
Zeta Beta Tau

Three Men, Five Women Vie for Royalty In Festival 71 Elections Held Thursday

The Festival 71 royalty campaign, abandoned in the fall because of an apparent lack of interest, has been resurrected by a new apparent demand.

Three candidates for king were presented with skits at Pope Nite activities Tuesday in Memorial Auditorium. They are Norman McLure of Alpha Gamma Rho, William Neilson of Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Louis Tomasi of Phi Delta Theta.

Five queen candidates were also introduced—conventionally—Tuesday night: Jean Carlson of Patterson Hall, Lynda Darling of Alpha Chi Omega, Jane Davis of the Wilkes-Davis-Wing complex, Pamela Gilman of Delta Delta Delta, and Donna Kimer of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Voting will take place all day Thursday in lower Billings Center. A university identification card will be necessary to cast a ballot. The winners will be announced at Friday night's film competition.

A sophomore, Lynda was Greek Week Queen candidate for Theta Chi Fraternity in September.

She serves as a volunteer in the pediatrics ward in the Mary Fletcher Unit, Medical Center Hospital of Vermont, in Burlington.

A resident of Orange, Conn., Jane tutors for the university Volunteer Center, and, as a Sophomore Aide, tutors at Christ the King School.

As a result of these activities, Jane says, she is interested in teaching Grades 2 or 3 upon graduating.

Veteran satirical comedian Mort Sahl will be featured Friday evening during the Festival 71 film and slide show competition. Also to be featured is Paul Winer, an area pianist.

The Judges Are Chosen

Five persons of varied backgrounds will serve as judges of Friday evening's film and slide show competition for Festival 71.

The judges are Betsy Thrasher, a professional photographer from Burlington; Lyn Jarvis of Vermont Educational Television; Walter Hard Jr., editor of Vermont Life Magazine; David Edsall of the University of Vermont College of Medicine; and John Doher, who heads the County School of Photography in the town of Norwich.

There are also three judges for the snow sculpture competition.

They are Remo Pizzagalli, a local builder; Edwin M. Owe of the Art Department; and Robert Lobel of Radio Station WJOY, a former UVM director of student activities.

The films and slide shows will be judged following the Friday evening presentations, and prizes will be awarded that night. Snow sculptures will be judged between 10:30 a.m. and noon on Friday. Trophies will be awarded Friday night.

One film judge, photographer Chet Callahan of Essex Junction, has decided not to participate.

Information: UVM Ski Day

University of Vermont students will be able to use the facilities at Madonna Ski Area in Jeffersonville at a reduced rate Friday, as part of the Festival 71 Snowcup.

The price for a day ticket, upon presentation of a UVM identification card, will be $3.50.

Alumni can also take advantage of the discount. The fee will be $5.50 for alumni if they have a special Festival ticket, which can be obtained in the winter weekend office.

The Madonna ski day program was instituted during winter weekend 1970 as a seasonal activity to students' advantage.

Pamela Gilman, a sophomore from Ridgewood, N.J., is Delta Delta Delta's candidate for queen of Festival 71.

A sophomore majoring in home economics, Pam is a member of Sophomore Aides honorary, the sophomore representative to the Interference Association Judicial Board, and also tutors disadvantaged area children.

She is also an acting "Little Sister of Minerva."

Pam was president of her pledge class, and currently is the house social chairman.

Norman McLure is Alpha Gamma Rho's candidate for king of Festival 71.

A senior from Ryegate, Norm is a French major and carries a Dean's List average. During the academic year 1969-1970, he spent time in Nice and Paris, France, under the Vermont Overseas Study Program.

Norm has been active in the Fraternity, holding the offices of secretary and alumni secretary. He is fluent in French and plans to teach after graduating.

Louis F. Tomasi, a senior from Bennington, is Phi Delta Theta's representative in the Festival 71 king campaign.

Lou enrolled in the university in the fall of 1968 as a sophomore, and has been in the fraternity since January of 1969.

He is a physical education major and a zoology minor, and serves as a student athletic trainer, ski instructor, and was a student manager in Simpson dining hall.

After graduating, Lou hopes to study in physical therapy at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

The future of winter weekend royalty campaigns depends greatly on the response to this one.

Although publicity possibilities were limited because of the day scheduled for Pope Nite and the short ski preparation time, much information on the candidates has been disseminated.

Allman

(continued from page six)

poorly asked Duane to join Derek and the Dominoes. Recently Duane did his apprenticeship in the studio where he earned admiration for his work on Aretha Franklin's records. Guitarist Allman is complemented by Gregg Allman's intense black-derived voice and solid backing. Together they explore the subtleties of the blues and take their audience off into a world meaningful jamming.

"Listen to the music playing in your head" bearing the album of the music and film festival's entertainment, I would really feel what the Beatles meant by this line from "Lady Madonna." It relates to Paul Simon's escaping to "Home, where my music's playing" and is not far removed from Chuck Berry's era of "I Need a Shot of Rhythm and Blues" from "Roll Over Beethoven." Music is a constant companion and (my friend, always there to revitalize. For me, the rock opera, "Tommy" by The Who was always more effective than caffeine. The winter weekend's Six Bands should have about the Bill Neilson, Sigma Phi Epsilon's king candidate, hails from Westport, Conn. Affectionately known as "Afro," he has been a Sig Ep regular since 1967.

Bill finishes his college career this semester. He expects to graduate as a psychology major.

His special interests are sailing and gourmet cooking.

A 30-minute documentary on Festival 71 will be presented on Vermont Educational Television at 9 p.m. Monday. Royalty, snow sculptures, and the winning 16-millimeter film entry will be the highlights.

Kappa Alpha Theta's queen candidate is Donna Kimer, a senior from Stockbridge, Mass.

A Spanish major, Donna spent her junior year in Spain at the University of Madrid. Upon graduation she hopes to raise sheep on the plateau region of La Mancha, or work as a translator for an international organization.

Active in both school and home activities, Donna has tutored, instructed in horsemanship, and served as second vice president of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Jane Davis, representing the Wilkes-Davis-Wing residence hall complex as queen candidate, is a sophomore majoring in education.

Lynda Darling, Alpha Chi Omega's candidate for Festival 71 queen, is a documentary photographer and a former director of student activities.

by Harvey Bond

The Entertainment: How it Shapes up

Geils Band

You see, there's this place called Boston in Eastern Massachusetts, the capital of the Commonwealth. Boston is a proud city, often called by others, because she has everything a woman could ask for: an unimpaired cultural and educational life, a comedy rhythm and Bobby Orr. But even Boston has her frailties, and to the interested devotees of rock music, one frailty has always been the absence of a decent "Boston Sound," revolving around a super band or two, as the "San Francisco Sound" was catalyzed by the Jefferson Airplane and the Grateful Dead. To exaggerate for a moment, the "Boston Sound" never really transpired. The 1965 Berklee School of Music who asked the question, "Are you a boy, or are you a girl?" as his Brockton hairdressing his shoulders. But all things must pass—passed, you passed, Mouthy passed and after many miscarriages, so did Boston's inferiority, for in 1971, she gave birth to a healthy, booming "Boston Sound" called the J. Geils Band. The J. Geils Band is one of the finest recently released albums. It is a collection of spirited hard rock and blues which can, at times, conjure up images of Jerry Lee Lewis rocking at the piano or the "pre-acid" Animals, and still be one hundred percent J. Geils. From a strong background of rhythm and blues, the Geils Band has evolved their own distinctive style, whose energy and rock consciousness is akin to the early Rolling Stones.

Guitarist J. Geils, lead singer Peter Wolf, and harpist Magic Dick are the album's standouts. You might be a bit taken back by the band's physical appearance which garners from early Ratzo Rizzo to late Zappa, but their sound won't let you back off very far.

Calling the band the J. Geils Blues Band is like calling Steve Miller Blues Band, as used to be the case. Their versatility defies such labeling, and I think you will find in the J. Geils Band, a polished, first-rate, very funky band on their way to establishing a niche for themselves in the world of rock.

Taj Mahal

The Geils Band will appear on Thursday night, February 18th at Patrick Gymnasium along with Taj Mahal, Redeye, and The James Gang. There is little to say about Taj Mahal, the modern bluesman, that hasn't been already said. I could tell you (and I think I will) that his mother came from South Carolina and was into making gevilts fish for Taj, who was born Henry Louis, Clark, Frederick, Williams. But all that has to be said is that Taj masterfully surveys the down-to-the-body feeling of blues and that he never has an extra, just companion.

Redeye

Redeye is a talented grove whose forte is vocal harmony. Their members were Crosby, Sullivan, Nash and Young, but as heard on their latest efforts, Redeye has transcended imitation.

James Gang

This same phenomenon can be observed with the James Gang whose early days were often spent giving free concerts around Cleveland in an electronic Hendrix-Cream vein, but who have now a more sophisticated approach centering around the arrangements, improvisation, and virtuosity of lead guitarist Joe Walsh. After touring with the group on his last American visit, Peter Dinklage of The Who was quoted as saying that the James Gang is destined to become one of the major names in the American Rock Scene.

The James Gang is a super loud, hi-energy trio, whose medium is guitar, bass, drums and secondary flute, keyboard and vibes. On their successful first album, "Yer Album," one has only respect for the group's refusal to be awed by songs that were undeniably the last word as originally performed for example, Joe Walsh's interpretation of "Bluebird" by Stephen Stills convincingly revolves around the psychedelization of Stills' guitar riffs while Stills' original was lighter and more lyrical. The James Gang has a past of tremendous audience reaction. The J. Geils Band has a past of tremendous audience reaction. I think that very few people will leave their concert seats Thursday night until the five hour marathon has totally destroyed everyone.

Chambers Bros.

The confrontation of mind and amplifier continues at 100, February 20th when two "same" bands, The Allman Brothers and the Chambers Brothers, will be performing along with an excellent local hard rock group, Dark Horse. The Chambers Brothers whose 1967 single "Time Has Come Today" initiated their quick rise to fame, are an explosive gospel-influenced rock band whose in-person performances have always received critical superlatives.

Allman Bros.

The Allman Brothers Band, riding high on two seasons of album, are a premier white blues group in a period of proliferating white blues groups. Many have called lead guitarist Duane Allman one of the best in the field, including Eric Clapton who says (see ALLMAN p.5)

Toward a Spirited Weekend

The University of Vermont could be the only school in the country with a winter weekend complex. And the most apparent reason for this problem is that UVM does not build its carnival around intercollegiate athletics.

Although past winter carnivals have been well attended, and the upcoming one is expected to sell out, nothing brings the campus together in unity quite like the competition of sports.

The traditional northeastern winter carnival revolves around the ski team. Dartmouth, Middlebury, St. Lawrence, and Williams are well-known for their mid-winter events.

But these are some distinctions between these schools and UVM which should be pointed out:

—Vermont is a state university, where about 60 per cent of the undergraduate body grew up in a state in which skiing is an economic backbone. The others are private institutions where many students enroll because of opportunities to ski.

—There is no adequate skiing facility close enough to the UVM campus to be accessible to the majority of undergraduates.

Nevertheless, the emotions and loyalties made manifest by intercollegiate athletics are most appropriate for a winter carnival anywhere.

Hockey, the school's biggest winter drawing card, naturally comes to mind first. But a four-team, state series basketball tournament would also arouse the necessary spirit.

Scheduling is done a couple of years in advance. In 1970, it was fortunate that a hockey game with the U.S. Military Academy was slated for late Saturday afternoon.

This year, a basketball game was scheduled. Unfortunately, the time was in conflict with the second festival concert.

One of the areas that will definitely be seriously investigated by the Festival Committee immediately after the carnival is intercollegiate athletic competition.

The need and desire for unified campus spirit is great enough to warrant some positive steps.

The most logical arrangement would be a "state series" tournament. In hockey, this would necessitate an invitation to Dartmouth College, which in the past has been reluctant to participate in tournament play here.

If either a basketball or hockey tournament was established, it would have all the makings of a traditional event, of the same nature as holiday tournaments held in other parts of the east.

Meanwhile, sports fanatics, consider this weekend an all-star break.

The Allman Brothers Band

Redeye

Festival Advisors

Four members of the University of Vermont faculty and staff have assisted the Festival 71 committee during the year as advisors. Joseph A. Izzo, associate dean of the college of technology, has worked closely with winter weekend committees for several years.

During this time he has consistently maintained an "open line" with the festival directors, despite his duties as an associate dean and a mathematics teacher.

Financial advisor to the Festival Committee is Norman A. Blair, budget officer for the university.

Blair works closely with all the directors, and approves all proposed expenditures.

The two newest additions to the winter weekend advisory crew are Frank Mancel of the Department of English and Robert Chambers of the Public Relations Office.

Mancel has been on the Vermont campus for several years. He is best known for his courses and studies in cinematography, and has written several books on that topic.

He is director of the La Mancha project for improved writing techniques in Vermont high schools.

Bob Chambers has been a Public Relations office writer-editor since 1966. Before that, he did newspaper and radio work in the Burlington area for about five years.

Besides serving as last fall's Homecoming adviser, Chamber's Public Relations duties include publicity for Lane Series, the Fleming Museum, Vermont Educational Television, and the College of Arts & Sciences and Education.

Dr. Izzo is general advisor to the committee, and also can serve as a liaison with the faculty and administration.

Whenever he is asked why he is so attached to the winter weekend committee, he answers that he enjoys the experience of working with students while they develop as people.

Ticket Sales

And Locations

Tickets for all Festival 71 events are still available at the Festival office in Billings Center, the University Store, and at several downtown locations.

The tickets for the first festival concert are $4. For the second concert, the tickets are $3.50 each. And for the film and slide competition, and comedian Mort Sahl, tickets are $2.50 apiece.

The first concert will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, the film productions and Sahl at 7:30 p.m. Friday, and the second concert at 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Fiji Sponsors Broom Ball Play

The finals in Phi Gamma Delta's broom ball hockey tournament will take place at about 1 p.m. Sunday at the fraternity house, 168 S. Willard St.

Following the matches, trophies will be presented to the winning and runner-up teams.

A $5 entry fee will be charged each entering team to cover the cost of brooms, officiating, and trophies.

Also to be awarded on Sunday afternoon is the President's Cup. It will be presented to the living unit which, in the eyes of the Festival Committee, has demonstrated the strongest and most consistent spirit of winter weekend.

Among the decisive elements in the competition for the President's Cup are participation, sincerity, and enthusiasm.

Fiji announced its broom ball tourney a few weeks ago. The Festival Committee decided that this informal type of competition would be an appropriate way to end the festivities, and thus added the awards.

Other trophies will be presented Friday night.

Posters Are Available

Festival 71 black light posters are available at the winter weekend office, and will be sold throughout the weekend office, for 50 cents each.

The nine-color poster, which revolves around the head of a Catamount, are completely pictorial.

Album Review

Creede

by Doug Collette

AMERICAN BEAUTY

Grateful Dead

PENDULUM

Creedence Clearwater Revival

Three new albums by Creede, Charlatans, Revival, and the Grateful Dead are both steps in new directions. For the Dead, AMERICAN BEAUTY is the second excursion into a frontier opened by their previous release, WORKINGMAN'S DEAD, while PENDULUM is Creedence Clearwater's first really extensive venture into new areas.

As Jerry Garcia has said, AMERICAN BEAUTY is "an extension of what we got into with WORKINGMAN'S DEAD." The style has matured and the band has more confidence not only in their new music, but also in the way they sing and play it. With the rough edges now sanded away, both lead vocals and harmonies are smoother; listen to the Dead sing as sweet and pure as "Box of Rain," "Candyman," or "Ain't My Life" (which, incidentally, has some of the De different Dead WOR Travel I Can MOS as to dence DUL use o and se the otl take o sualre

FRATERNITY RUSH FIG

Official fraternity rush figures were released this week by Fraternity Forum President James Millett. And, although not as impressive as last year's total, this year's figures indicate that the Greek system at UVM is much better off than some people have thought.

The school's 17 fraternities took about 180 men in this year's rush as compared to 205 last year.

However, Millett reported Saturday most houses did better in rush than they had anticipated before the semester break. He also said all of UVM's fraternities are enthusiastic about rush for the remainder of the year, now that they have men living in the residence halls day in and day out.

The local fraternity Delta Psi topped all houses this year with a total of 30 pledges. Following Delta Psi, in order of decreasing numbers (which isn't necessarily indicative of the success or failure of rush, depending upon the numerical size of each house), were:

Alpha Epsilon Pi, 20; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 19; Phi Delta Theta, 16; Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Nu, 14; Phi Gamma Delta and Theta Chi, nine; Tau Epsilon Phi, eight; Sigma Phi Kappa Sigma, and Aeon, seven; Alpha Gamma Rho, five; Lambda Iota, Phi Mu Delta, and Alpha Tau Omega, three. The local Zeta Beta Tau chapter, without a house this year, did not rush.

"We were really concerned about the trouble we were having with rush last semester," said Millett Saturday. "But almost every house in the system feels better now that the figures are in."

Millett said he and other fraternity leaders are more confident than ever that the Greek system can still attract men who are looking for "living experiences" and "learning experiences" that can't be found in the university's residence

THIS FESTIVAL 71 INSERT IS THE COURTESY OF THE FOLLOWING BURLINGTON AREA MERCHANTS

the CACEMASTER VINEYARD
Pierce RESTAURANT

Tower Restaurant
'a great place for a pizza'
williston rd.

THE SUGAR HOUSE
'the home of UVM hockey'
152 st. paul st.

THE LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER
40 CHURCH ST. 863-5270

WICK Lumber Co. Inc.
"WHERE YOUR HOME BEGINS"
ROUTE 7
SHELBURNE, VT.

A. Brown Auto & Home Stores
660 PINE ST. BURLINGTON

The Lure DRIVE-IN
1200 williston rd.

City Drug Stores Inc.
Shelburne Plaza 301 Williston Rd.
Shelburne Hill

williston rd. so. burlington
US302 berlin

PIZZAGALLI construction co.
joy drive so. burlington

HOWARD JOHNSON'S
Our Famous Restaurants To Serve You
Adjoining Motor Lodge
Route 2-Williston Rd.
Junction of Interstate 89
288 Shelburne Rd.
Route 9
South of Burlington

SHEPARD HAMELLE
FOR DISTINCTIVE SUITS
IN SPORTWEAR
SUITS TOPCOATS
14 CHURCH ST. BURLINGTON 862-0142

the Sheraton Motor Inn & Restaurant
876 williston rd 862-6576

AVIS
1314 williston rd. 8640411

T.A. HAIGH LUMBER CO. Inc.
315 PINE ST. BURLINGTON

LANE SERIES EXTRA

THE NITTY GRITTY DIRT BAND

JOHN MCEUEN

JIMMIE FADDEN

JIM HOOTEN

LES THOMPSON

JEFF HANNA

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, one of the fastest rising groups today, will appear with comedy as Bill Cosby at the Lane Series extra on Sunday, Feb. 28.

There will be two performances of the concert to be held in Memorial Auditorium: 5:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for the two-hour presentation, $3.25 and $4.25 for reserved seats, and $1.75 for rush bleachers, are now on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Water-

Marilyn Posner, student chairman of the Lane Committee, said that the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band would open each show, playing for about 20 or 30 minutes. The remainder of the concert, without intermissions, would be taken over by Bill Cosby.

Labeled by one critic as the "finest rustic-rock unit in the country," the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band was formed in 1966 in a guitar shop.

Spontaneously, it was McCabe's Guitar Shop in Long

Beach, California. Five young musicians, who used the shop as a hangout, decided to organize a group. After sufficient rehearsal, they entered a talent contest in a Long Beach coffee house and won. First prize was a week's work and all the pizza they could eat.

Thus was formed the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band—so-called because they did not want to call themselves a "band," which is what they really are.

A live band is an authentic old American backwoods musical art form, which means that guitars and mandolins provide the melody, with the rhythm supplied by some one playing a wash board. Each member of the band plays from three to five instruments.

The membership today includes John McEuen, Jeff Hanna, Jimmie Fadden, Les Thompson and Jim Hooten. So far the group has appeared in two movies, including "Pain Your Wagon," one of the most expensive musical productions of all time.

The group, specializing in music and both visual and vocal comedy, scored major triumphs with "Uncle Charlie and His Dog Toddy," an album on the Liberty label, and with the single "Mr. Bojangles." All told, they have five albums to their credit.

The group occupies a vast range in the musical spectrum, moving easily through bluegrass, rock, Cajon, country and rock and roll.

cynic verse

Tough me
by Jay Blumsohn off
My heart shared a bed for a year and never touched
Your thighs have always been open to me, but never your soul
And it is you who calls yourself my lover
I want to feel more than your body, I need your heart and mind
I am reaching for you, please, reach for me
So we may touch

MATINEES WED., SAT., SUN. AT 2 PM.
EVERY EVENING AT 7 & 9 PM.

SPICEY

PETER SELLERS
GOLDIE HAWN

COLOR "There's a Girl in My Soup"

STATE

STRONG

Shows at 2-7 & 9 p.m.

THE NEWCOMERS

faced every challenge to claim a dream!

WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS presents
THE WILD COUNTRY

COMING! MASH.

WHY?

WHY DO FRYE BOOTS COST
MORE THAN BOOTS OF
SIMILAR DESIGN?

- ALL TOP GRADE COWHIDE
- FINISHED WITH CANALIN
- PRE CRIMPED VAMP
- OIL TREATED SOLE
- HEEL OF P.V.C. AND NEOLITE
- RIBBED SPRING STEEL ARCH
- SOLID BRASS HARDWARE
- IMPREGNATED WITH LANOLIN UNDER HEAT AND PRESSURE
- EASILY WEATHER PROOFED
- HAND CRAFTED THROUGHOUT
- QUALITY BOOTMAKERS FOR 107 YEARS

FRYE BOOT
FOR MEN AND WOMEN
FROM $32.50

SUNDANCE

FOR YOUR PLEASURE

YE OLDE CHEESE SHOPPE IS NOW OPEN

IMPORTED CHEESES AND FOOD
155 MAIN STREET

Album Review:

Creedence Clearwater Embarks In A New Direction

by Doug Collette

AMERICAN BEAUTY
Grateful Dead
PENDULUM
Creedence Clearwater Revival

These two latest releases by Creedence Clearwater Revival and the Grateful Dead are both steps in new directions. For the Dead, AMERICAN BEAUTY is the second excursion into a frontier opened by their previous release, "WORKINGMAN'S DEAD," while PENDULUM is Creedence Clearwater's first really extensive venture into new areas.

As Jerry Garcia has said, AMERICAN BEAUTY is "an extension of what we got into with 'WORKINGMAN'S DEAD.'" The style has matured and the band has more confidence not only in their new music, but also in the way they sing and play it. With the rough edges now sanded away, both lead vocals and harmonies are smoother; listen to the Dead sing so sweet and just on "Box of Rain," "Candyman," or "Attica of My Life" (which, incidentally, has some of the most evocative imagery I've heard in any song and/or poetry in quite a while). Soft, subtle musical accompaniment, coupled with this singing makes AMERICAN BEAUTY even more melodic than its predecessor.

"Till the Morning Comes" rocks delightfully and gently. "Truckin'" chugs along cheerfully as it tells tales of a rock 'n' roll band on the road. Bob Weir's "Sugar Magnolia" is a bouncing, good-to-be-alive love song. What it all adds up to is the most soothing record since CROSBY, STILLS AND NASH.

Creedence Clearwater, like the Dead, is into some new and different things, but while the Dead plunged in feet first with "WORKINGMAN'S DEAD," "Travelin' Band" and "Long As I Can See the Light," on COSMO'S FACTORY gave a hint as to the musical changes Creedence was going through. PENDULUM features extensive use of electric piano, organ and sax by John Fogerty as the other members of the band take on more important musical roles.

A pounding rhythm, a little Richard, snappy sax and exultant shouts at the beginning of each chorus make "Molina" a little rock 'n' roll gem. Fogerty's organ, while not so elegant as, say, Steve Winwood's, moves "Hideaway" to a pretty fade-out.

But there's still some of that honest-to-goodness rock 'n' roll that Creedence Clearwater does so well. Besides "Hey Tonight," there's "Pagan Baby."

And that's a blockbuster: Fogerty grows the words in fine form, at the same time throwing off his crisp, clean licks as Tom, Stu, and Doug really cook behind him.

After COSMO'S FACTORY, I had the feeling that Creedence

Clearwater Revival needed to try something new. Evidently they felt that way too and they weren't afraid to try that something. If they improve as the Grateful Dead have, we can count on a whole lot of good music in the future.

STUDENT TRAVEL, TRIPS, CHARTERS EUROPE, ORIENT, AROUND THE WORLD write
S.T.O.P. 2150C Shattuck
Berkeley, Calif. 94704

OR SEE TRAVEL AGENT

BOUTILIER'S

VERMONT'S LARGEST
ART SUPPLY CENTER

Great Variety of Cardboards

112 CHURCH STREET

THE ART ROOM

102 EAST ALLEN STREET
WINOOSKI—655-1263
3AM-6PM Mon.-Fri.
9AM-5PM Sat.

LARGEST ART SUPPLIER IN VT. Student Disc. 14%

compressed charcoal—11¢ headed rubber erasers—20¢ charcoal pencils—25¢ oils—55¢-1.85
unprimed canvas—Reg. $1.35 Now $1.16/yd.
inca char. pads—Reg. $2.60 Now $2.30 pilot pads 14 x 17—Reg. $1.15 Now 99¢ beverly sketch book 18 x 24 Now $1.60 strathmore drawing pads 18 x 24 Now $2.50 strathmore water color blocks Now $9.98 froutex of jars 15% off.
newsprint paper 18 x 24—1¢ drawing paper 18 x 24—3¢ rice paper—24¢-48¢ water colors—38¢ & up pelican ink—60¢

FRATERNITY RUSH FIGURES HOPEFUL

Official fraternity rush figures were released this week by Fraternity Forum President James Millett. And, although not as impressive as last year's total, this year's figures indicate that the Greek system at UVM is much better off than some people have thought.

The school's 17 fraternities took about 180 men in this year's rush as compared to 205 last year.

However, Millett reported Saturday most houses did better in rush than they had anticipated before the semester break. He also said all of UVM's fraternities are enthusiastic about rush for the remainder of the year, now that they have men living in the residence halls day in and day out.

The local fraternity Delta Psi topped all houses this year with a total of 30 pledges. Following Delta Psi in order of decreasing numbers (which isn't necessarily indicative of the success or failure of rush, depending upon the numerical size of each house) were:

Alpha Epsilon Pi, 20; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 19; Phi Delta Theta, 16; Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Nu, 14; Phi Gamma Delta and Theta Chi, nine; Tau Epsilon Phi, eight; Sigma Phi Epsilon, seven; Alpha Gamma Rho, five; Lambda Iota, Phi Mu Delta, and Alpha Tau Omega, three. The local Zeta Beta Tau chapter, without a house this year, did not rush.

"We were really concerned about the trouble we were having with rush last summer," said Millett Saturday. "But almost every house in the system feels better now than the figures are."

Millett said he and other fraternity leaders are more confident than ever that the Greek system can still attract men who are looking for "living opportunities" and "learning experiences" that can't be found in the university's residence halls.

"With the formation of the Fraternity Forum and the increasing strength of the Fraternity Managers' Association (FMA), we're very optimistic about the future," said Millett.

The Fraternity Forum is composed of representatives of all of the UVM fraternities and will take the place of the Interfraternity Council (IFC). The Fraternity Forum will be a "problem-solving" and "information-gathering" organization, according to Millett.

The FMA is now handling the financial matters of 15 of the campus's 17 fraternities, according to Millett. Fraternity Manager Robert Fisk recently reported that all of the member houses in the "good" financial condition.

Big Ben pizza pub

ANNOUNCES
FREE DELIVERY!

207 COLCHESTER AVE.
(COR. EAST AVE.)
BURLINGTON, VT

Across from Trinity
A Stone throw from UVM

ALL Big Ben pizzas
ARE 11" - 8 slices

9:30 AM to 1:00 AM
Fri. & Sat. Until 2 AM

PROUDLY PRESENTS
THE FINEST PIZZA ANYWHERE

phone ahead
864-0711

SUBS
BURGERS
SPAGHETTI
QUANTITY DISCOUNTS
FOR CLUBS, PARTIES, & ORGANIZATIONS

GET THE BEST FOR LESS!

Posters Are Available

Festival 71 black light posters are available at the winter weekend office, and will be sold throughout the weekend office, for 50 cents each.

The nine-color poster, which revolves around the head of a catamount, are completely new.

SE

at paul st.

ne Stores

GTON

b. burlington

rlin

862-0142

ER CO. Inc.

STON

IN SHOPPING • OUR OWN SILVER CREATIONS • HAND CRAFTED JEWELRY • POSTERS • UNUSUAL CANDLES • WORLD WIDE IMPORTS • ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW AND DIFFERENT

Inside BASKETBALL

by Mike Brown

Traveling back from Middlebury just after matching up another victory by a score of 76-69, it occurred to me that after playing nineteen games this season, twelve of which have been on the road, our team is definitely a home court club. We have proved victorious in only three of the twelve away contests, but then again we have racked up five consecutive victories out of seven in home territory. These five wins have come after two heartbreaking losses to UMass in overtime and the University of Maine, both during Christmas recess.

Any team can be tough in their own backyard, and the reasons why are obvious. Familiarity with the court, boundaries and baskets all helps in its own way, but by far the greatest advantage going is the presence of the home fans.

How come this magic formula works for us? The crowds at our home games have been, to put it as nicely as possible, "disgusting." The average attendance for these contests has been somewhere in the vicinity of 200 people. This is quite a different picture from what we've seen at the other schools on our schedule. At UConn, the attendance was close to 4,700 and the gym in Mass., Maine and Rhode Island were also packed. There was even a brass band and a few isolated, drunken hecklers to complete the scene.

The crowds, the bands and the hecklers aren't necessary to play good ball, but they sure do help. It psychs up the home club and just as importantly, it psychs out the opposition. They help get that all important momentum going and keep it on your side. The way I see it, a good home crowd, with the confidence it instills in the players, is got to be worth at least an extra ten points. If we had gotten those, both UMass and UMaine would have joined the ranks of the undefeated in our home court.

To get to the point, St. Mike's had their supporters in Memorial Auditorium last month, and there's little doubt that they'll do it again next Monday night when we face them again in Patrick Gym. We'd like a little UVM support this time. With the points which come from the crowd, you can rest assured that we'll do all that's necessary to send St. Mike's back to Winooski on the losing end of the stick.

SOLOMON'S MARKET

1160 williston road

PIZZAS
GRINDERS
BARBECUE CHICKENS

Open 7 days a week
for all your university needs.

CHILLED WINES & COLD BEER
at great prices!

Phone 864-9673

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES

140 CHURCH ST.
ACROSS FROM CITY HALL
OPEN UNTIL 1 AM

"QUALITY FIRST AT PONCHO'S"

SUNDBERGS...
Vermont's Most Complete
SMOKE SHOP... has for your selection the
greatest names in
PIPES by Black, Corona, G.D., Rasmussen, and others from $2.95 to $5.50
Imported and Domestic
TOBACCOS
Cigarettes, Pipes, and more
BRING THIS AD and RECEIVE 15% Discount on any Pipe
SUNDBERG'S
151 Main Street (Next to Flynn Theatre) Burlington, Vt.

UVM HOLDS OFF AGAINST LAST MINUTE HEROICS

by Dave Clark

Another University of Vermont team played on Monday night but no one is being charged with non-support as this was an away game at Middlebury. The Cats played a State Series game against Middlebury at the Panthers' home court and fought off last minute heroics by the Middlebury team to win 74-68.

Vermont who trailed at the half by three held a ten point lead for the most of the second half until the end when the Panthers started to do things.

The Cats who have played a good defensive game all year used a fast court press for most of the game. This press seemed to have proved itself very effective in the past and it was again so. The Panthers committed 19 turnovers for the game.

The leading scorer for the Cats was Rich Treia with 20 points. Treia has scored well all year and carries a ten point average for the campaign. Treia who is better known for his rebounding talents played one of his best games to date.

The win Monday night comes on the heels of a heart-breaking loss to rival URM on Saturday night 77-76. A team is bound to be down after a defeat as this but the Cats showed spirit in beating The Panthers from Middlebury.

Vermont's record stands at 9-11 with the state series at 3-1. With one game remaining on the state schedule against St. Michael's, the Cats record in the conference is now 1-6 (the win for last night's game against Connecticut was not available at press time).

Ray Ortiz was again a big part in the Cats scoring with ten points. Ortiz leads the Cats with a season's average of 15 points per game. Jim Ducey was second in the scoring for Vermont with 16 points. Ducey, who is the leading foul shooter in New England with a 77.7% proved why as he scored 8 of his 16 points from the charity stripe.

Mark Miller, the third leading scorer for Vermont, hit for 25 points against New Hampshire in what has been termed his "finest performance of the year." Miller leads UVM in the rebounding department with ten grabs per game.

Vermont stole the ball several times in the second half for key baskets during Middlebury's frantic press.

The next home game for Vermont is Feb. 22 against St. Mike's with the final game of the season against Rhode Island on March 1.

A shortage of a tiny single-celled marine plant called phytoplankton led to the extinction of one-fifth of all animals on earth, including some of the dinosaurs, in the late Paleozoic and early Mesozoic eras. We may be heading for another shortage of phytoplankton, says Dr. Helen Tappan Loeblich, a UCLA geologist, in the March SCIENCE DIGEST.

If you graft a piece of flesh from a young man's abdomen to his arm, he may develop a marked protuberance of the arm at the same time he develops a pot belly in later life. The protuberance, in both cases, is produced by increasing deposits of fat in particular kinds of fat cells, according to the March SCIENCE DIGEST. The reason for the selective deposition is still poorly understood.

BLOW YOURSELF UP

Send any black and white or color photo, 4x6 inch, to: BLOW-UP, P.O. Box 500, NY 10010 NY. 2 FT x 3 FT $3.50, 1 1/2 FT x 2 FT $2.50, 3 FT x 4 FT $7.50. Your original returned unopened and the fee is refunded by BLOW-UP. Don't forget to send your photo to BLOW-UP.

THE RED DOG

PRESENTS

GENTLEHOOD

FEB. 22-FEB. 27
OPEN 8 PM TO 2 AM
HAPPY HOURS 8 PM & 10 PM
Reduced prices on all drinks
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
SIX NIGHTS A WEEK
LOCATED AT
165 CHURCH ST.

GEORGE'S RESTAURANT

The Best in Pizza Pies

Served With Your Favorite Beverage
TAKE OUT SERVICE
147 NO. WINOOSKI AVENUE
862-7449

ARMY-NAVY OLDIES BUT GOODIES

Relive those thrilling days of yesteryear in authentic WWI and WWII army/navy duds from the Mayfair. It's a mixed bag, with capes and navy battle jackets from England; middie blouses from the U.S. Navy, and authentic all-steel Canadian Doughboy helmets.

Army/Navy surplus stuff. There's enough here to form your own regiment.

U.S. Navy dress middie woolen blouses — Used (may have rank patches, numbers, ship name, etc.) $3.00 each 2 for $5.00

V-neck wool British jumpers (blouses) — New $6.00 each 2 for $10.00

English nurses' grey wool capes New? Used? Who can tell? $10.00 each British Navy battle jackets — New $6.00 each 2 for $10.00

WWI style Canadian Doughboy helmets $3.00 each 2 for $5.00

Just two sizes - those that fit and those that don't!

MAYFAIR
Church St. - Burlington

FESTIVAL '71 FILM SAVINGS

POLAROID
#108 COLOR
FILM

$3.88 per roll
Limit 2 per customer

KODAK INSTAMATIC
CX-126-12 COLOR FILM or SYLVANIA Blue Dot FLASH CUBES

97¢ each
YOUR CHOICE
Limit 2 per customer

It's the real thing. Coke.
Real life calls for real taste.
For the taste of your life — Coca-Cola
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company Inc. ©1969-COLA BOTTLERS OF VERMONT

LOOKING FOR JEANS?

NEVERMORE

8 No. Winooski Ave.

HI & LO RISE CORDS
HI & LO RISE DENIMS
AND OVERALLS

CORDUROY JUMPSUITS
WESTERN SHIRTS
WASHABLE PULLOVERS

HOURS 10:30-5:30 MON-SAT.
864-5294

These upper-classmen who have been around long enough to have seen the late Kate Walk may have been a little spoiled. In these days, not only was a campus wide physical competition a part of the Winter Weekend, but it was the high point of it. Now as we approach the second year of its absence, it is indeed hard not to miss some sort of competition on the athletic level.

I think perhaps that the broom ball tournament being promoted by Phi Gamma Delta is a step in the right direction. Perhaps this too can grow into a tradition in its own right. Nevertheless, to me it seems a little inadequate.

It is hard to put the blame on anyone, if any is to be put at all. This is by no means a call for the reinstatement of Kate Walk or anything similar to it. The Winter Weekend Committee did try, and try hard to find a suitable substitute, and the idea of films to build a weekend around is a good idea. But is it enough?

Perhaps this coming weekend will answer that question. The lack of such athletic competition may or may not be felt. If not, then indeed the transition has been successful.

What can you say when you talk of a team which goes undefeated in Yankee Conference play and then goes up against its toughest competitor and then loses it in the final event. Then, when you hear that the only other loss they have suffered also was due to the same, final event, this time with only one point as the margin of victory, a note of frustration is bound to creep into the conversation.

Probably more frustrating than it would appear for the team members, for this team has its home base at UVM but a lot of people really don't pay much attention.

I am, of course, speaking of the swim team, and the story is unfortunately true. Leggett's squad has lost those two mentioned contests in the last event of competition, the 400 yard freestyle. The victors have been McGill and last Saturday the University of Connecticut, the toughest competition the team will have to face.

This is not meant to imply that the Aquacats, have suffered such bad luck throughout the entire season. They have posted to date an enviable record of 6-2, one of the victories coming from pulling the same "freestyle trick" on Colby.

The Catamounts, captained by John Stephens, broke off a four meet win streak with last Saturday's defeat. The Catamounts have their individual stars, but it is a team effort that counts in the end and that's the way they play it. Donny Macomber, an olympic diving hopeful, racked up his 45th consecutive win on the one meter board, and John Radimer continued to pace the team with another victory in the 200 yard freestyle.

AquaCats Suffer First YanCon Loss

If only they could eliminate the 400 yard relay from the meet. . . This had to be on the minds of the UVM fans leaving Forbush Pool last Saturday after the Catamount swimmers lost a 60-57 heartbreaker to their archrival, the University of Connecticut. The UConn Huskies, defending Yankee Conference champs, used sophomore sensation Tom Welch and team balance to hand the Catamounts their first YanCon loss of the year.

This was Vermont's second defeat of the year, both suffered by losses in the last event. The first was a 57-56 loss to McGill University of Montreal two weeks ago.

Victory has been decided between these two teams in the last event two times previously within the last five years. The Huskies won last year's meet in the final event while the Catamounts took home the honors by a similar performance in 1965.

The AquaCats set up the biggest lead of the afternoon by taking the first event, Vermont adding seven points with a relay win. At no other time during the entire contest did the lead go over five points for the home club.

UVM ran out a 23-20 lead after five events as John Radimer notched up a victory in the 200 yard freestyle and Bruce Wilford and John Gilbert took second place honors in the 50 yard freestyle and the 200 yard individual medley.

Donny Macomber surprisingly missed his bid in the three meter diving competition, being overtaken by Don Muzt.

Muzt, a former All-American from Westfield, High, N.J., posted enough points to set a new pool record. Macomber, however, proved the best in the one meter competition, handing Muzt second place.

The next meet for the swim team is Feb. 24 when they host Plattsburgh. The next Yankee Conference meeting will take place on March 6.

Hammes (8) and Huddle (25) swap in on power play as Cooke's shot from the blue line finds the basket.

UVM Overrun; Bates Posts Easy Win

Competing in adverse facilities at Bates College in Lewiston, Maine, the University of Vermont Track Team fell to a strong Bates team with a score of 77-26 for one of the Cats' most bitter defeats in dual meet competition. The Catamounts were only able to salvage three first out of twelve events.

Vermont's first place points were made by freshmen Mike Bilza and Bruce Lawrence and senior Phil Elwert.

Bruce Lawrence cleared the bar at 12 feet six inches to win the pole vault event. Lawrence was followed very closely by freshman Henry Forgue who also made 12½ feet.

Bilza put in one of his finest performances to gain first place in the shot put with a toss of 46 feet 4½ inches.

Despite the square, dirt track, Co-Captain Phil Elwert put in one of his best races ever in the 1,000 yard run with a time of 2:21.

While Bates solidified the point gap with sweeps in the 300 pound weight high jump and the one mile run, the remainder of Vermont's scoring efforts of the afternoon were made by a second by Dave Bird in the 45-yard high hurdles and third by Steve Coon and Ole Anderson in the 50 yard dash and the 1,000 respectively.

Co-Captain Jerry Learned placed third in the two-mile run while Frank O'Brien and Charlie Stoecker took thirds in the 600 and the 1,000.

The Catamounts will travel to the University of Connecticut in Storrs, Conn. for the Yankee Conference Championships on Saturday (Feb. 20).

THE SUMMARY:
43 yd dash—1. Buckley (B) 2. Smith (B) 3. Coon (V) 15.2.
600 yd dash—1. MacIntyre (B) 2. Wicks (B) 3. O'Brien (V) 1:15.9
1,000 yd run—1. Elwert (V) 2. Grube (B) 3. Anderson (V) 2:21.6

One mile—1. Emerson (B) 2. Grube (B) 3. Bradford (B) 4:26.6.
Two mile—1. Miner (B) 2. Lucas (B) 3. Learned (V) 9:48.6.
45 yd high hurdles—1. Young (B) 2. Bird (V) 3. Whitaker (B) 16.0.
Long jump—1. Williams (B) 2. Sheldon (B) 3. Stoecker (V) 10:10.4.
High jump—1. Young (B) 2. Sheldon (B) 11:6-0.
Pole vault—1. Lawrence (V) 2. Forgue (V) 3. Canfield (B) 11:2-0.
35 lb weight—1. L. Wood (B) 2. G. Wood (B) 3. Wilcox (B) 5:1-4.
Shot 1. Bilza (V) 2. L. Wood (B) 3. G. Wood (B) 14:6-4.
Shot 2. Bilza (V) 3. Bates 2. Vermont 5:39.4.

THE INSIDER

We stepped onto the ice with an atmosphere of tension dating back to playoff time, with our relentless fans pecked in every nook and cranny. As we warmed up, "Moon" strode around with heavy concentration. I got the feeling he was thinking about just how each one of the UMass players had shot on him in the past, and what part of the cage they shot at. Moon is always carrying these thoughts in the back of his mind. Thoughts paraded through our heads on how everyone was counting on us, and how we had to play well. Each player concentrating on some small aspect of his game which had bothered him in the past. The warm-up before the face-off proved to be the last psyche factor, with Moon kicking out shot after shot on the rapid fire drills. I had the feeling the fans were as psyched as we were. (Rumor has it that our risk is a zoo, but don't believe it.) Anyway, as all four thousand of us lined up for the face-off, we knew that it was going to be a battle to the end.

After spotting them two goals, which were due to good forechecking and head-up play on their part, we were a little scared, yet all the more determined to climb back. Those UMass goals tightened up our defense, and made us more conscious of their wings which they hung out in center ice. As often happens, we were so intrigued with keeping the puck in their zone, that when they broke loose, our forwards were caught up ice. However, we did adjust to their style of play and then began to roll.

There is a problem in citing good players in the game, because every player contributed to the win, some more so than others, but not as widespread a gap as one might think. As the "We're Number One" chant spread, the emotion reached a peak. This was the first sign of play-off time, and it makes us realize that the remainder of our games are crucial.

As we gloated and buzzed in the post game locker room, the excitement could easily be felt. Each player was relishing some minor incident or a great play that made the game. We felt proud of this win and, all the more determined to hang on to first place. There was talk of Simmons garbage goal, Hunt's accuracy on an open net, McDonald's goal, Cooke's K. O. check, Wright's determination, Moon's saves, Crane's passes, Yeates' uncanny instinct, Minarsky's stick handling. . . the list goes on.

Cats Return From Two Under To Humble Red

by DAVE KOPACE

(Editor's note: The Panther game was not available at press time.)

Pat Keenan may have been growing up to do but he just will deny that the ability is there. Keenan almost singlehandedly defeated the Catamounts at packed Guttersen Field House Monday—a loss that would have dropped the Cats out of first place. Nevertheless, Vermont stood for their early season loss at Amherst by bouncing back from a 2-0 deficit to win 5-3 over a strong Rodman squad.

The Cats have a tough time getting started but when they do, they are not to be stopped. This game was no exception. Keenan hit twice, the second a breakaway on Dave Reese, within the first six minutes of play and the standing room only crowd was hushed. With about eight minutes left in the period, the ice Cats became untracked. Their skating no longer got them caught up ice and their passes were crisp. Cooke slap shot from the point at 11:35 and a Patty Wright rebound off his own attempt in front of the UMass goal tied it up at 18:37.

With the score still tied 2-2 going into the final period, Vermont hit for two quick goals to take a 4-2 lead. Sam Simmons took a George Minarsky pass on the boards behind Pat Flaherty and skated around the net. His shot deflected off Mass defenseman Brian Sullivan and skidded past the surprised goalie.

The fourth and game winning score came from the fast improving third line of Ron McDonald, Rick Burns and Bob Wilkinson. Burns outkicked a UMass player to the puck, skated behind the net and fed McDonald in front of the goal. The sophomore center, put it in before Flaherty could react.

It looked like the crowd could relax to an easy win but this was not the case. Starting at 7:22 into the period Vermont picked up four tripping penalties. This put the pressure on Dave Reese and his penalty killers but they were up to the task. Although 16 shots were fired upon Reese only one got through. At 14:37 Tom Coon received his penalty and the Cats were two men down. Twelve seconds later Keenan got his hat trick and the score narrowed to 4-3. Keenan, who leads Division II scores with 22 goals and 18 assists, made one final drive on Reese with only 2:07 on the clock. The UMass star drove in on the right side on a second breakaway. Reese played to the same side as last time and stopped this shot as he crossed the blue line which slid into the unguarded net.

KING

Jim Coon, Cat coach, was hoarse after the game. All he could say was "Aren't they something. They just don't know what the word quit means." Still the greatest praise went to Ted Yeates. "Ted played the best game I have ever seen a Vermont player play since I took over as coach."

Pat Keenan was credited by the Cats for his knock forough. They also knew that he needs some maturity to overcome his "bush" actions which gained him a ten minute misconduct penalty for his berating of the refs for mistakes on the ice. The penalty proved costly because the Cats completely dominated play during his time off the ice. He also drew hoos from the crowd when he screamed at a teammate for failing to pass the puck. This kind of action is not necessary at the collegiate level.

The last goal was scored by Fred Hunt on an open net. Entering the last minute UMass pulled Flaherty and lost. Hunt received a Wright pass and fired Celebration moments after tying it up (R. Forbushfield.)

Every Friday Afternoon!
HAPPY HOURS
4-6

AT THE

blue tooth

Drinks Reduced—No Cover

Live Band "THE UNION JACKS"

Food from opening to closing.

Wed.—Sunday

SILVER JEWELRY
AND INDIA PRINTS

OPEN 9:30-5:30
MON.-SAT.

197 COLLEGE ST.

THE FLEET IS IN!

BOB'S SUB SHOPS

SUNSHINE MOUNTAIN LTD.

9 Mechanics Lane

Things to get on, see, pick up, get things to, look at, give away, or take.

CYNIC Interview New Trustee

Editor's Note: Last week the State Legislature chose three of its members to fill the vacancies on the UVM Board of Trustees. They are: Sen. Robert E. Boardman, Sen. Madeline Harwood and Rep. Cary H. Howlett. Along with Luther Hackett, the new alumni trustee, they attended the Trustee's meeting held on February 20.

By way of introducing them to the student body, we present their reactions to a number of questions and their opinions regarding UVM and its students. Sen. Robert Boardman.

Q. What do you think is wrong with this University?
A. Actually I have no preconceived notions as to what might or might not be wrong with the University. I'd rather be positive. I think it's a great institution and hope that I'll learn something and hopefully I'll be able to contribute something.

Q. What do you think about the student at this University?
A. Well I have a great regard for the students here. My niece happens to go here and my whole family has gone to the University at one time or another. And a group of these young students spent Christmas vacation down at the Brandon Training School. That in itself is phenomenal. I think all of the youth not just at the University but at all the colleges are far more concerned with the disadvantaged than perhaps I was. They're to be congratulated.

Q. Now that you're on the Board, how do you think you can help the University?
A. Well I'm not sure I can help the University at all. I view my role as representing just only the Legislature but because of the Legislature I'm really representing the people of the State of Vermont. My whole attitude will have to be directed toward what is best for the people of the State of Vermont. As opposed perhaps to an alumnus. They're looking primarily at how they can help their old alma mater. My attitude would be a little different.

Q. What do you think the interests of the people of the State of Vermont are in regard to the University?
A. I think the interests of the people of the State of Vermont are in regard to the University.

Student Association To Retain Class

Last week's (Feb. 17) Senate meeting saw the end of a long debate about Class Councils. The Councils have been under severe criticism by various members of the S.A. Senate and student body because it was felt the councils served no real purpose. After many hours of discussion in committee and on the Senate Floor, the Senate voted to keep the Class Councils.

The football Grants-in-Aid Committee presented its second report of this year to the Senate. Once again, however, all members of the committee had not been properly informed of the report and its conclusions, so the report was sent back into committee.

The Senate also passed the recommendations of the Faculty Equal Opportunity Committee, with two amendments to the wording. The

the ski shop

A complete Sportswear Shop

OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 9 PM
EXCEPT SATURDAY

50 Pearl St. 388 Shelburne Rd.
Essex Jct. Burlington
879-0737 862-5488

VISIT OUR FAMOUS
BARGAIN BASEMENT

AMERICAN

SKI-TAXI

SERVICE

All Fares Per Person
round trip, in groups of 5

Rutten Valley	5.00
Madison Mtn.	6.00
Skyline Run	7.00
Mad River & Glen Ellen Area	7.50
Sugar Bush	7.50
Stowe Area	7.50
Madbury Snow Bowl	8.00

To all ski areas
within 50 miles
of Burlington.

Pick up at any school or any other designated area.

Leave Fri. return
Sunday or any other
time.

For Reservations CALL:
American Ski-Taxi—Tel. 802-864-0439 37 Crowley St., Burlington

m Two le Red

day about as he seemed to the line which did not go the recorded on.

KINGS

Jim Cross, Cal coach, was tired after the game. All he could say was "Aren't they tired? They just don't know how the wind can mean."
Told the greatest prize went to Ted Yeates. "Ted played the best game I have ever seen. A Vermont player play since I took over as coach."

Pay Korman was credited by the fans for his knock for graph-they also knew that he made himself. In addition, he gained a two minute misconduct penalty for his bawling of the fans for mistakes on the ice.
The penalty proved costly because the Cats completely dominated play during his time off the ice. He also drew blows from the crowd when he attempted to a teammate for failing to pass the puck. This kind of action is not necessary at the collegiate level.

SILVER JEWELRY
AND INDIA PRINTS

OPEN 9:30-5:30
MON.-SAT.

197 COLLEGE ST.

UB SHOPS

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

WINTER
CLOTHING
SHOES
ACCESSORIES

VERMONT CYNIC

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 4

FEBRUARY 25, 1971

Two trustees discussing a well-known student

Trustees Establish Environmental Program

The University of Vermont will begin to develop and manage a University-wide Environmental Program. The formation of the program was announced by President Edward Andrews at the Board of Trustees meeting on Feb. 20.

The new program will encompass the entire University and will center on "understanding and changing man's harmful social and economic behavior. It will seek to bring about fundamental change in the values and forces underlying man's attitudes and motivations."

Andrews named Leonard V. Wilson as Acting Program Director. Wilson will report to the Vice President of Academic Affairs, Alfred Rollins.

The report suggests an academic program that should evolve in three phases: Undergraduate courses taking a "broad look at specific areas of environmental concern," development of more specific courses for advance students and a graduate level of study. The announcement also recommended that various action projects be undertaken by students and calls for the creation of a special University professorship in environmental problems.

The trustees also announced that there will be a student opinion poll questioning whether or not the present student Activity Fee will be continued. When students register this spring they will be given a ballot with five options regarding the fee.

Trustee Kenneth N. Scott of Groton Point, Mich., a General Motors vice president, urged that the ballot be presented to the students and returned to the trustees as soon as possible.

President Andrews also reported that the controversial Faculty Handbook is now being reviewed by two committees within the University.

President Andrews also reported that the controversial Faculty Handbook is now being reviewed by two committees within the University.

Edward Enrich, chairman of the board, welcomed the change which he stated would "clarify a lot of questions in the minds of legislators."

One committee chaired by Robert Fordham will examine all hiring and firing practices at the University as they are now described in the Handbook, the other under Wayne Patterson will review matters of promotion and tenure policy of the University.

Chairman Enrich called the review "timely" and said he thought the review would "produce some fine results."

Administration policies on hiring came to a head this fall when former Trustee John Beckley objected to the employment of Michael Parenti. The University is presently coming under fire, in regard to the tenure policy, from a group angered over the dismissal of James Wolfe, a former zoology professor at UVM. The Buildings and Grounds Committee of the Board reported that construction on the new Cook Science Building was proceeding ahead of schedule, but that work on the new dormitory, between the MAT complex and the gymnasium, has lagged behind schedule.

The Development Committee reported that it is investigating the possibility of the construction of a new road which would hopefully alleviate some of the traffic problems now facing the University.

The newly proposed road would connect South Prospect and Spear Streets but would not interfere with any University buildings already constructed.

The Educational Policy Committee discussed the loyalty with controversy now being handled in Federal Courts. President Andrews said that no action would be taken against the twelve faculty members who have refused to sign the oath until the Court handed down its ruling. He also said that all newly hired employees are being asked to sign the oath.

Vice President Rollins stated that a total of twenty faculty members (including the twelve) have failed to sign the oath, but reaffirmed President Andrews' statement that no action was being taken against them.

The Finance and Budget Committee announced that tuition to the summer session is being raised from $25 to $30 per credit hour for in-state students and from $30 to $41 per credit hour for out-of-state students. This is a result of the $2.3 million budget cuts recommended by Gov. Deane Davis.

In concluding the meeting, which also marked the conclusion of his term of trustee, Chairman Enrich stated that "we have a great institution."

He said that he had a "choking feeling" as he faced the board for the last time. Enrich also stated that like others he had a feeling in his heart for the University and said he realized that because of differences of philosophy it may be difficult to understand but he stated "this is a part of life."

CYNIC Interview:

New Trustees Voice Their Opinions On UVM

Editor's Note: Last week the State Legislature chose three of its members to fill the vacancies on the UVM Board of Trustees. They are: Sen. Robert E. Boardman, Sen. Madeline Harwood and Rep. Cary H. Howlett. Along with Luther Hackett, the new chairman-trustee, they attended the Trustees' meeting held on February 20.

By way of introducing them to the student body, we present their reactions to a number of questions and their opinions regarding UVM and its students.

Sen. Robert Boardman

Q. What do you think is wrong with this University?

A. Actually I have no pre-conceived notions as to what might or might not be wrong with the University. I'd rather be positive. I think it's a great institution and hope that I'll learn something and hopefully I'll be able to contribute something.

Q. What do you think about the student at this University?

A. Well I have a great regard for the students here. My niece happens to go here and my whole family has gone to the University at one time or another. And a group of these young students, spent a Christmas vacation down at the Brandon Training School. That in itself is phenomenal. I think all of the youth not just at the University but at all the colleges are far more concerned with the disadvantaged than perhaps I was. They're to be congratulated.

Q. Now that you're on the Board, how do you think you can help the University?

A. Well I'm not sure I can help the University at all. I view my role as representing not only the Legislature but because of the Legislature I'm really representing the people of the State of Vermont. My whole attitude will have to be directed toward what is best for the people of the State of Vermont. As opposed perhaps to an alumnus. They're looking primarily at how they can help their old alma mater. My attitude would be a little different.

Q. What do you think the interests of the people of the State of Vermont are in regard to the University?

A. I wouldn't have any idea. I'm not familiar with the problems of the institution. I am a citizen of the state and I have been interested in the University for a long while but as far as making any comments about problems in the University I haven't any idea what they are. I'll find them out in due time I imagine.

A. Well I think the people in the State of Vermont are very proud of the University. I think right now we're in an unusual predicament. We're in high unemployment, we're in a very inflationary period and we're in a very tight, tight budget problem. I just think they want to make sure or be assured that their money is being well spent.

Q. Do you have any prejudices?

A. I come here with no pre-conceived ideas, no notions, and hopefully I don't have any prejudices. If I do I'd be ashamed of myself.

Q. The CYNIC had already spoken with Sen. Harwood (See the issue of February 11). But we did ask her a few questions concerning her role as Trustee.

Q. Do you think a woman's viewpoint on the Board will have a noticeable effect?

A. I doubt it very much.

Q. Do you have any statement you would like to make now that you are on the Board?

A. I think it's going to be a very exciting and rewarding experience. And I hope I'll be able to contribute.

Q. Do you have any specific issues?

A. No. I was very interested in some of their discussion today. I just feel that if there is going to have to be any cuts made anywhere, that we certainly want to continue our educational department and our health department because I think that this is where the real impact is going to be felt in the future. If there are any cuts being made I would like to see them be made where someone would possibly be able to pick them up in a post-graduate course or perhaps in another school within the state.

Rep. Cary H. Howlett

Q. What do you think is wrong with the University?

A. I wouldn't have any idea. I'm not familiar with the problems of the institution. I am a citizen of the state and I have been interested in the University for a long while but as far as making any comments about problems in the University I haven't any idea what they are. I'll find them out in due time I imagine.

Q. How do you feel you can help UVM?

A. That's what you call a leading question. I wouldn't have any idea. I'll do my share, whatever is assigned to me, and keep an interest in all of it.

Q. Do you have an opinion regarding the student body of the University?

A. I have no opinion at all. I know a few members of it, that's all. Those that I have I've enjoyed tremendously.

Q. How prejudiced are you?

A. Everyone has prejudices one form or another. As far as prejudices are concerned I don't believe I would be considered prejudiced because I don't know enough about them (students and faculty) to form a viable opinion. I read the papers, but I learned long ago that what you read in the papers is someone else's opinion.

Luther Hackett

Q. What do you think is wrong with the University?

A. Well I think there are a lot of things that are right with the University. Basically a fine student body and an excellent faculty. I think we have a long tradition of doing things right. There are always problems. Right now I think the problems in essence are a result of the attempts to blow up some extreme viewpoints, particularly I would consider them exceedingly radical viewpoints, all out of proportion. And I don't think that's healthy not only for the community but it's not healthy for the academy. In a sense that takes away from the ability to learn and to study which is the basic purpose of the University.

Q. What do you think you can do to change the University?

A. Well my ties to the University are pretty strong. I graduated from here just a few years ago and have been involved with alumni activities since then and have been close to the campus both personally and emotionally. I don't know as a brand new trustee what can be done.

(continued on page three)

L to R-Luther Hackett, Rep. Cary Howlett, Sen. Madeline Harwood, Sen. Robert Boardman

Students Form Environmental Exchange

A project called the Environmental Exchange is being formed at UVM. The purpose of the Exchange is to provide information concerning pollution to any interested person.

According to a spokesman, the objectives of the Environmental Exchange are threefold. "Firstly, we intend to educate the people of the Burlington area in regard to the pollution problem now confronting them. This will be accomplished through literature, advertising in the local media, and other means (i.e., seminars, films, etc.)."

Secondly, we hope that through this increasingly growing number of environmentally-conscious people we will be able to make the pollution-fighting groups and agencies in our area (both public and private) stronger and better equipped to carry out their activities."

"Thirdly, we hope through an effort to bring about the eradication of the pollution problem in the United States."

"When a person enters the Environmental Exchange, we will make available to him information regarding the type of pollution he is most concerned with. This information will include not only the names of groups and agencies to whom he can volunteer his services, but also information regarding the specifics of the problem (i.e., the size of it, the causes of it and possible cures for it)."

When asked about the need for such a project the spokesman stated, "The need for such a project is 'blatantly obvious' for the condition of our environment is deplorable. We have ravaged its natural resources and have made no attempt to replenish them. We have poisoned our air and made our water foul. In short, we have raped our lands, our air, and our waters."

"Many Americans are deeply concerned about the state of our

(continued on page three)

Vermont Youth Languishes In East German Prison

by Jeff Yacker

Mark Huesey, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hans Huesey of Jericho, Vermont, is still languishing in an East German prison, with little hope for immediate release. Dr. Huesey, who is Professor of Psychiatry at the UVM Medical School, last heard from his son on November 18.

Huesey was convicted by an East German court this past autumn of making statements offensive to the Communist regime. He has been imprisoned since January, 1970, when he was arrested by East Berlin police. At the time he was doing research in West and East Berlin for a paper on the playwright Berthold Brecht. Dr. Huesey said that although his son was fairly well known among students in both sectors of the divided city, he was acutely aware of political realities, e.g., the intolerance of the East German government for dissenters.

Dr. Huesey added that he seriously doubts that Mark made public his political beliefs. The East German content that he made statements to the effect, that if Soviet troops would pull out of East Germany, the Ulbricht regime there would topple. There is a strong suspicion in some quarters that the East German secret police planted an agent among Huesey's circle of friends.

(continued on page six)

Participation In Festival '71 Was Greater Than Anticipated

According to all the members of the committee, the weekend was a success. Although financial details are not yet available, directors said Sunday participation was greater than anticipated, and all scheduled events went over well.

An estimated crowd of 2,500 attended the Friday evening film and slide show competitions, which went off smoothly. Also appreciated were two long monologues by comic satirist Mort Sahl and the jazz piano of Paul Winer.

The Office of Volunteer Programs won first place in the film contest with, "Do Nothing with Somebody." It was followed in the judging by "Walter," produced by the Department of Speech and Drama.

Slide show winners were first, intervarsity Christian Fellowship; second, Davis Hall; and third, Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. Nine were entered in all.

Sigma Phi Epsilon won the snow sculpture competition, just nosing out the entry by Alpha Gamma Rho. Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity placed third.

Bill Neilson reigned as king of the Festival, and the queen was Lynda Darling of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority. Neilson represented Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Good-sized crowds attended both Festival concerts. The Saturday afternoon audience, however, was composed of a much greater percentage of UVM students than the Thursday night presentation, observers thought.

Also, considered highly successful, for the second straight year, was the UVM discount day at Madonna Ski Area.

Authorities said they were fairly pleased with events at the two concerts. One campus security officer commented that the crowds were much tamer and happier than that at the fall concert featuring Traffic, at which several incidents occurred.

Problems with counterfeit tickets were encountered Thursday night, and more than 50 were confiscated by the committee. Hassles caused by illegal entries—mostly by unfamiliar persons—also plagued the Thursday concert.

These difficulties did not arise on Saturday. On both days, security personnel admitted customers one at a time, to check the validity of tickets and to hold bottles and other materials that could damage the floor at Roy L. Patrick Gymnasium. The operation was smooth and painless.

The committee hopes soon to initiate some kind of campus-wide opinion poll to attempt to obtain feedback on events that could be added to the winter weekend agenda.

Improvements to be investigated regarding the film competition include categorization and steps that could be taken toward brevity.

Problems in snow sculpture construction, and the merits of a royalty campaign, will continue to be thoroughly looked into.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, with a strong display of enthusiasm, cooperation, and participation, took home the President's Cup Saturday night, to close out the 1971 edition of winter weekend at the University of Vermont, Festival '71.

The President's Cup, emblematic of unity and spirit during the carnival, was won also by Sig Ep in 1970.

The only other group in the running for the trophy was Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity, which finished a close second in the opinion of the Festival Committee.

Taj entertains the audience.

Paul Winer, the one man band.

The Junior Gang—one of the weekend's highlights.

Sorority Rush Ends, 62 Bids Extended

On Wednesday, February 18, sorority formal rush was completed. Bids to membership were extended to a total of 62 women in six houses.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA—Beth Constantinides, Christine Hanson, Kristin Hurling, Ruth Ann Loveland, Donna Marcy, Ruth Mann, Barbara Ann Nantow, Donna L. Saylor, Debbie Talpa, Darlene Trombley, Valerie L. Terrie, Linda Anne Welsky.

ALPHA DELTA PI—Susan Abel, Deborah Blanch, Judy Butler, Dawn Carlson, Anne Louise Gussard, Patricia Harnett, Elaine Grace Stone, Judy Lynn Strong, Jill Marie Tolson, Elizabeth L. Turvey.

DELTA DELTA DELTA—Susan Amadon, Marilyn Berthman, Catherine Copp, Janet Gandolfo, Holly Elizabeth Hanson, Michele D. LaPointe.

Barbara J. Martin, Emily M. Schaefer, Tina Schwen, Gail Ann Semadeni, Kathleen Jean Welch.

GAMMA PHI BETA—Muri Coyette, Virginia Gaye Homan, Carrie Lederberg, Edgna Logan, Garrett Ann Lundrigan, Barbara Jo Massey, Sharon Reed.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA—Peggy Ann Becker, Leslie Becker, Mary Jean Collins, Anne Craig, Lisa Edwards, Harriet Gluck, Hane Mekkehen, Deborah Jo North, Kathy O'Keefe, Sara Pomeroy, Katherine Robinson, Nancy Shelden.

PI BETA PHI—Claire R. Couture, Marcia Fields, Diane Lefevre, Isabella H. Martin, Mary Jean Massa, Cheryl Dell Miner, Nancy J. Sturtevant, Carrie R. Towne.

IRS Threatens Action Against Campus Papers

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—As campus newspapers increasingly focus on political topics, college administrators' growing concern is becoming a reality.

Not just because what the press says may be embarrassing, but because there seems to be a danger that if a student paper makes an editorial endorsement of a political candidate, the college might get in trouble with the Internal Revenue Service.

It's unclear so far, however, how real this danger is. The concern arises from language in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, which says that included in tax-exempt status are "Corporations organized exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary or educational purposes." No substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and which does not participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office.

In the case of state-supported student newspapers endorsing candidates, the college's tax position will probably not be affected. State colleges are not covered by section 501(c)(3), quoted above, but by section 115(a) of the Code, which states: "Gross income (i.e., taxable income) does not include income derived from any public utility or the exercise of any essential governmental function and accruing to a State." More simply, state-run enterprises such as colleges are exempt from federal taxes.

If a newspaper which operates as an integral part of a state institution were to make a political endorsement, it seems there is little the IRS could do. There is a lot the state legislature could do, however. That would seem to be a much more real source of concern to college administrators and student editors.

Student newspapers in privately supported colleges and universities could conceivably affect the institution's tax-exempt status.

Student newspapers financially and editorially independent of the college—for example, if the editors operate under a separate self-supporting corporation—are also not eligible for tax exempt status if they endorse political candidates.

Such is the case of the Columbia DAILY SPECTATOR, which has been independent of Columbia University for several years. It received tax-exempt status in 1966, and later made several editorial endorsements. IRS regional investigators during their regular audit last year said there had been violations of the IRS Code, and moved to take away the paper's exemption.

The paper is fighting back. Its lawyer will argue that provisions of the code should not be applied to campus papers, which serve a primarily educational function.

Those familiar with tax law also note that the parenthetical ban on "publishing or distributing of statements" by tax-exempt organizations was inserted on the floor of the Senate in 1954 by then Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson. He never explained the intent of his amendment for the record, but it is generally accepted in Washington that he

Attorney Tolliver Speaks On Civil Rights Issues

On March 4, 1971, EWAR (Education of Whites about Racialism) and the Student Association Speakers Bureau will present Stanley Tolliver, well-known Black attorney and civil rights activist. Mr. Tolliver will appear at Ira Allen Chapel at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free and open to the public.

Among some of Tolliver's more quotable remarks are: "There is nothing wrong with black nationalism. Other nationalities such as the Irish, who observe St. Patrick's Day show national pride. It is a matter of people sticking together and retaining culture and customs of their native land."

Cleveland-born Mr. Tolliver was attorney for Martin Luther King and is now attorney for CORE (Congress of Racial Equality). He is an active member of NAACP, and the Cleveland Citizen's Committee Against Dual Law Enforcement. "I don't want a police state. I'm not concerned about black and white. I'm only concerned about the color of justice."

Mr. Tolliver also defended Fred (Ahmed) Evans who was accused of shooting three policemen during the 1968 Cleveland shootouts. Mr. Tolliver is a member of the firm of Tolliver, Nimrod, & Griggs who make their offices in the center of Cleveland's black community.

How I know what the Bible means by the term "A little child shall lead us" for it is the young people leading us and not the congress.

The white male in America who is most vociferous in denouncing integration with blacks by day is the most democratic sexually with the black woman at night.

The speech will end with a question-and-answer period. Any questions may be answered by calling Ext. 2053.

Opera & Mimic Films Shown

Friday at Four at the Arena Theatre this week (Friday, February 26) will present two films. The first is a selection of scenes from the Peking Opera. This color film will show exotic parts of China's national theatre, a theatre not readily available to Americans because of political differences with the regime in power. Also the Opera is being presented in a nationalistic propaganda organ and the beautiful old stories are being dropped from the repertoire.

The second film will be of master classes held by the great French mimist, Etienne Decroux, teacher of Marcel Marceau. M. Decroux and some of his students will also demonstrate mime "bits."

The films will be shown at 4:00 p.m. in the Arena Theatre. The program is open to all and is free. Coffee will be served after the program (and before if you are so inclined and it is ready). The program lasts 48 minutes.

Drug Use

Education Colloquium—Dr. Ronald Steffenhagen will speak on "High School Drug Use" Tuesday, March 2, at 3:00 in room 409 Waterman. The discussion is open to all interested persons.

Calendar/Announcements

Thursday, Feb. 25

Annuals Francine presents "South African" featuring film, readings, music and poetry from French-speaking Africa; participants from UVM, St. Michael's and Middlebury, 8 p.m., Maison Francaise (Slide Hall), Redstone Campus.

Varsity Skiing Feb. 25-27, Middlebury Carnival, E.I.S.A. Championship.

Friday, Feb. 26

Freshman Hockey vs. Norwich, 2 p.m., Gutterson Field House. Lecture-demonstration and master class by The Don Radlich Dance Company, presented by the Lane Series. Pro: come prepared to dance or to learn about dance, 4 p.m., Southwick Ballroom, Redstone Campus.

Varsity Hockey vs. Northeastern, 7:30 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Student Association regular film series, "Little Caesar," 8 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Science Building.

Varsity Skiing at Middlebury Carnival, E.I.S.A. Championship.

Folk dancing, 8 p.m., Southwick Ballroom.

University Orchestra concert, Mozart Symphonies No. 25 and 40, a Vivaldi Concerto for Two Violins, and William Grant Still's "Wood Notes Suite," conducted by Dr. Frank Lalor, 8:30 p.m., Ira Allen Chapel.

Saturday, Feb. 27

Varsity Track, New England, at Storrs, Connecticut, 12 noon.

Varsity Swimming at New Hampshire, 2 p.m.

Varsity Hockey vs. Bowdoin, 3 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Freshman Hockey vs. Stoneham H.S., 7 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Basketball at Northeastern, 8:15 p.m.

Lane Chamber Arts Series concert, The Don Radlich Dance Company, 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium; tickets $2.50 at the Lane Office and at Bailey's.

Varsity Skiing at Middlebury Carnival, E.I.S.A. Championship.

Sunday, Feb. 28

A Lane Extra—Bill Cosby and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, shows at 5 and 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium; tickets available from the Lane Office at $3.75, $4.25 and $5.25.

ALSO OF INTEREST: Feb. 23: Annual meeting of Chittenden County College Employees Credit Union, 8 p.m., Memorial Lounge, Waterman Building. Feb. 25: International Ice Review, European Folk Spectacular on Ice, 8 p.m., Memorial Auditorium, benefit Medical Center Hospital Auxiliary. Tickets $2.50, $3.75, $4.75; phone 862-1364; mail, Int. Ice Review, Shelburne Post Office.

WATCH FOR: March 2: S.A. Film. March 3: Physics Colloquium. March 4: Lane Red Concert-Memorial Orchestra. March 5: Lane White Concert—Tom Rush. March 6: Lane Film. March 7: Lane Red Concert-Canadian Opera Company.

THE DEADLINE for the Calendar of events from March 1 through 7 will be Wednesday, Feb. 24 at 10 a.m.

Monday, March 1

Current exhibits at Fleming Museum are, through March 4, "Recent Acquisitions," and through March 14: "Weird and Tragic Shores," photographs by Chauncey Loomis.

Currently on display in the main foyer of Marsh Life Sciences Building are living Mexican axolotls (Shredon mexicanum).

Tuesday, March 2

Student Association film, "Room Service," 8 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Science Building.

Varsity Hockey at West Point, 7 p.m.

Wednesday, March 3

Physics colloquium, Prof. A.D. Crowell comments on "The Apparent Motion of the Earth Viewed from the Moon," by James Dean, University of Vermont, 1815, 3:30 p.m., 104 Williams Science Hall; coffee at 3.

Revolutionary Film Schedule

A program of films will be presented this Friday, February 26 at 8:00 PM in Votey Auditorium. Two new films from Newarcel are included in the program.

Felix is a new animated cartoon about an anti-establishment cat who organizes cats and mice against the power structure.

Make Out, which was originally scheduled for two weeks ago but did not arrive in time to be shown, will be shown this Friday. It is a film of a couple making out; the soundtrack reveals what is going on in the girl's head.

Army records the Army's attempts to "create unthinking, dehumanized units of men by cutting off all forms of dissent. The film then shows what interests the Army serves: to maintain markets overseas and to suppress internal struggles at home.

Time of the Lotus is a film compiled from NLF, Japanese and US footage, which was awarded prizes at film festivals in Leipzig, Mannheim and Florence. The film is a personal document which exposes the glaring contradiction of the US war; the horrible reality of Vietnam is on the screen while the US excuses for reason and patriotism are in the ear.

Scholarships

Delta Delta Delta sorority is offering two $550 scholarships to any full time women students. Academic record, contribution to campus life, and financial need will be considered. Applications are available at the Financial Aid office or the Tri-Delta house at 143 South Willard. Deadline is March 1, 1971.

VA Expenditures

The Veterans Administration announced on Feb. 17 that expenditures for Veterans for fiscal 1970 totaled $22,080,409, of which $3,440,952 was for Chittenden County.

M. Dawson Tyson, M.D., director of the White River Junction VA Center, said that the bulk of the money was $12,332,901 for disability compensation and pension payments for Vermont veterans $2,679,446 for Chittenden County veterans.

Other VA expenditures in Chittenden County for fiscal 1970, Dr. Tyson said, were for GI Bill and other VA education programs, $371,506, and insurance and indemnities, $390,000.

In announcing these figures, Dr. Tyson invited Chittenden County veterans to contact the VA Center in White River Junction for information on any program, including the GI Bill, or contact your local service organization representative.

The Boys In The Band

On March 5, 1971, the Student Association Film Series will present the Movie version of Mark Crowley's THE BOYS IN THE BAND. The film was made in 1969 in New York City with the same cast of actors that were in the premiere performance.

The movie will be shown at 7:30 in Life Science Hall. Inasmuch as this is a special showing and because of contractual agreements there will be a charge of $1.50 per admission. If there is a need, there will be a second showing of the film at 9:30 p.m. Tickets will go on sale at the Student Association office on March 1st.

Pegton's yardstick

ON

115 St. Paul St. The Park

"Fine Fabrics for the Home Sewer"

WHOSE FAULT IS PREGNANCY?

It takes two to tango. Men must share the responsibility for preventing unwanted pregnancy. After all, it's your future (and the future of someone close to you) that's at stake. We've made it easy for you to do your part. Now you can get condoms—nationally known and imported European brands—by mail from a new non-profit family planning agency. No questions asked. So get with it. Write today for full details without obligation or Send $4 for package of mixed samples (1 each of five condom brands, including both British imports).

This program is endorsed by the Community and Family Study Center of the University of Chicago.

POPULATION SERVICES, INC.
195 N. Columbia St., Dept. 461
Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514
Gentlemen: Please send me full details without obligation.
Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

KENT STATE

The campus CAMPUS call in the Gbard? score: 4 students dead, 11 wounded. UNDER Here is what truly happened—and Now Pulitzer Prize winner James Michener reconstructs, hour by hour, the events that led to the bloody climax. He answers such questions as: Were outside agitators involved in the riot? Was it necessary to

READER'S DIGEST

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

Eugene H. Manfredi, UVM '69, Campus Representative
184 So. Winslow Ave., Burlington, Vt. 05401-19

National Life of Vermont

NEIBURG'S

41 Federal St., St. Albans
SELLING OUT

Maxi Coats $15.00
Cotton pants 3 prs. $10.00
(Work or casuals)
Mod Suits, double breasted $30.00
Dress Pants 2 prs. $10.00
Western Bguses 3 for $5.00
Windbreakers $3.00
Sport Coats $6.00
Pack of suits $15.00
Many more items drastically reduced, like 2 fur coats, etc.
Don't delay!
March is the final month.

It's the real thing. Coke.

Real life calls for real taste
For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by COCA-COLA BOTTLERS OF VERMONT

the

© 1970 College Press Service
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner
at 00077

QUESTION: My girl friend recently was due to extra heavy menstrual periods. I thought she should see a gynecologist examination and possibly receive birth control pills to regulate her flow.

ANSWER: The problem of my girlfriend and I. The only gynecologist her mother will let her see is afraid the doctor will tell her that she has had intercourse and he will not be able to tell.

ANSWER: You ask a question of some cases it can be stated unequivocally: sexual intercourse based on physical women, however, the anatomy is such that the lack of a tight or co-membrane partially blocking the opening other than penises can be responsible heavy petting being among them. Frequent of years as well as childbirth will that are usually unmistakable.

Aside from the issue of the physical of would be remis in not asking to intercourse and if she has any difficulties to the intervening maneuver on the part to get your girlfriend to see a gynecologist you suggest, she may be interested in daughter's sexual activities. The physician should be to his patient. Situations such point to the wisdom of a person having one operated by their parents. One

I just don't understand Trustees...

(continued from page one)

Q. What is your opinion of the student body here.

A. I know a lot of students at the University and I think that by in large the student body at the University is just as good as it was fifteen years ago when I was a student. I thought it was awfully good then. I think it's unfortunate that frequently those who seem to speak out speak out with a radical approach which doesn't in my judgement represent the student body, but in the public environment. An increasing number of them wish to help alleviate the problem and prevent its further continuance. Many of these concerned people do not know where to go to find information regarding pollution-fighting groups. The Environmental Exchange will fulfill that service. It will contribute great numbers of environmentally aware citizens to groups and agencies waging the battle against pollution—citizens who most probably would not otherwise have joined such a group.

Exchange...

(continued from page one)

"The problem of pollution does not exist solely in a community, a state or a nation, therefore the expansion of the Environmental Exchange is not only feasible, but extremely necessary."

"Since the Environmental Exchange will deal with all forms of pollution-fighting activities and will not merely concentrate on one or two, it is closely related to all groups opposing pollution. Therefore, its universality is obvious as is its need."

The spokesman stressed the fact that every person can contribute to the fight against pollution. He asked all interested people to contact either Dr. Richard R. Warner at the Government Research Center or Charlie French at Ext. 3907.

EDITORIAL

Naive Idealism And The NSA

"The recent 'People's Peace Treaty,' which was signed by the National Student Association with the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the National Liberation Front, surely represents the utmost in misguided idealism and utter hypocrisy on the part of the NSA. The peaceful intent of the treaty was unquestionably sincere, and even noble. But recent history shows that when the students of this country had a clear-cut opportunity to effect a significant change in its leadership, e.g., the 1970 Congressional elections, by and large they sat on their respective dorms. Vermont was hardly an exception.

For the NSA at this point to assemble and announce the status of a political entity only illustrates and publicizes the ego-tripping attitudes of its leaders. Any politically aware person who can distinguish the possible from the desirable can see that the treaty accomplishes virtually nothing, except to advertise a rather naive, blind idealism to a nation, students included, which seems to be doing of unrelenting rhetoric from all corners. Perhaps recent editorials in certain Vermont newspapers harped excessively on the issue, but indeed, campus leaders in the future should re-orient themselves to their constituencies before they proceed to embark on glorious missions to the land of political fantasy.

J.B.Y.

Festival '71: A Success?

Festival '71 has accomplished its goal. Now you are probably thinking to yourself: Who is he kidding? Take a moment to consider what the goal of the festival committee was in the first place. The committee never intended to create the euphoric atmosphere that some expected. The committee, on the other hand, sought to create a closer relationship between living units, by promoting a group effort within these living units. The many films and multi-image slide shows submitted by various groups and dormitories is evidence of the committee's success.

Certainly there are many areas that can be improved. The selection of entertainment, the number of films that should actually be presented during the Festival, the criteria for judging, the future of Pops Nite etc. should all be reviewed. Some people feel that slides of other photographers' photographs are a form of plagiarism. There is reason to believe that these suggestions and any others will be taken seriously by the committee, and, where possible, corrected for Festival '72. One of the biggest complaints last year concerned the technical inefficiencies of the presentations. This year's decrease in wasted time between presentations was certainly laudable.

The decisions concerning Festival '72 should be made as soon as possible, perhaps with the aid of an opinion poll. Many problems will be solved merely by finalizing plans well in advance (which this year's committee failed to do). A decrease in the snow scenes and an increase in the spring, summer, and fall scenes will be the obvious results, while an increase in dormitory unity will be the less obvious, but more important result.

R.R.

The Sisco Kid :

Reflections On The U.S. Army

by d. william slone

Last Wednesday night I received a call from one of my old sergeants whom I met while in Southern Asia. He had just arrived in Seattle and was on his way to Washington. He said he would like to see me for a couple of hours at least, so we made arrangements for him to fly in on his way to the Capitol. Well, I was delighted, as Sgt. Carver was one of the greatest combat troops to ever serve in the Theater.

Thursday morning I was at the Burlington International Airport waiting for the Sarge's flight to arrive. As he came through the gate we clasped hands and said the old familiar hellos in Vietnamese and Thai. All the way to the bus we joked about the addition of a second ranker on his shore. The Sarge really is a great guy.

As we sat in the back corner of the cab, the Sarge got a Falmouth and I sipped coffee, we exchanged all the old war stories. The Sarge was fighting in his chair, and I could tell he was anxious to tell me something. Anyone can read the Sarge's mind like an open book. Maybe that is one of the reasons that makes him such a better guy.

He started telling me why he was in the Pentagon. He was on his way to the Pentagon to brief the Department's Operations Staff on the progress of his latest assignment. The order for the assignment came straight down from the President, and he couldn't stop saying how cool this President was compared to the one we had originally grooved under. He kept emphasizing how the President had assigned him to gather all the youth stationed in Nam with a certain specialty and train them for a certain combat mission, and here this mission would finally give the youth, both in the war and in civilian life, something to identify with as combat soldiers. He had even heard the President was going to award him a medal as he had done the HALO boys that went into that POW camp. I knew it must have been something really great, because the Sarge isn't an easy man to fool.

He immediately asked me if my security clearance was still good, and I told him I was discharged, he said it didn't really matter as the President was going to announce to the public the nature of the mission during his latest the following Thursday concerning the troop withdrawal. The Sarge went over the table in whispering tones and went on with the story. The old Sarge is a really shy guy. He began with a short history of the Allied invasion into Laos and how he knew that I would probably realize the necessity and importance of the invasion. He asked if I had heard of the news correspondents' reports that some American GIs had been spotted in Laos on the Trail, and I assured him that I had been keeping up with the news of the invasion. The whispering grew softer, and I leaned over the table a bit further. The Sarge nodded his head and smiled at me. He said that those were his boys. As he said the words I changed back into my chair. The old Sarge really has the greatest talent and timing when it comes to subtly lowering the boom in conversations.

Then I asked him about the announcements made by Herb Kline, Ziegler, the State Department, and the boys at the Pentagon stating we had no ground troops or foot soldiers operating in Laos on the invasion. The Sarge motioned for me to come closer and looked over his shoulders to see the room. He only said one word. Silence. Remember what I said about really being able to lower the boom.

I gave the look of perplexity that crossed my face prompted him to explain a little more. A broad smile beamed on that old man's face as he told me how good his boys were with the new weapons that allowed the President to keep his word to the American public but still stick one up Mr. Charles. The Sarge assured me that his boys' hands were never touched. Laos was still anyone would have been able to tell just how proud the old veterans were of his new command. The Sarge was still chuckling as he told me his story, and I could hear him saying out the gate to head the President, and he said I should know what my father would say all these years when he would refer to the old Army.

Somniator Wednesday Evening-Marsh Lounge

by Jeff Vetter

"The song item on the agenda for tonight is S.A. Bill 973. The Student Association of the University of Vermont demands that the half-and-half cream now used in the Don with the coffee and tea be replaced by heavy cream. Is there any discussion? Senator Kluck."

"Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I introduced this bill, and I would just like to say that it is a bill that is a dairy farming state like Vermont, we only get this heavy half-and-half stuff, and we are paying good money to go home, for this, but the food service is really a bunch of bastards, as we all see they have worse business in everything, besides giving us terrible food, the height are stale a lot of times, and it is our duty to ensure that heavy cream is used."

"Ahem. Thank you, Sen. Senator Schluff."

"All I want to say is that heavy cream upsets my stomach."

"Yes, Sir, but have you talked with your constituency about this?"

"Pardon me, my what? Constituency, did you say? Yes, I am very conscious, heavy cream consistently upsets me."

"Senator Frapp."

"This entire issue is totally absurd! If this body can concern itself with nothing more important than the fat content of cream in the Don, and the digestive habits of certain unconscious senators, how are we to gain the respect of the student body?"

"Senator Marv."

"My colleague, Senator Frapp, raises a very valid point. But may I suggest that the motion be tabled indefinitely?"

(From the back) "Call it a question! I move that we call it a question!"

"Do I hear a second?"

"Second!"

"It has been moved that we call it a question. All there is fewer . . . opposed . . ."

"The motion has been defeated. Is there any more discussion?"

(Again from the back) "I request a division of the house!"

"Oh, Lord. Well . . . Allen House . . . Buckham . . . Chittenden . . . Converse . . . Davis . . . Marsh . . . Tupper . . . Wing . . . Wilks . . . Delta Psi . . . Kappa Sigma . . . Phi Delta Theta . . . Phi Sigma Delta . . . Theta Chi . . ."

Continued next September, when debate on the Bill will be over.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Angela Davis Defended

To the Editor:

Angela Davis has been accused of kidnapping Jonathan Jackson and the guns used in last year's shoot-out at the San Raphael courthouse. When she was captured in New York after a vicious nationwide manhunt, President Nixon publicly congratulated J. Edgar Hoover for bringing in such a dangerous "terrorist." Extrajudicial to California, her life now depends on the outcome of her trial.

The trial of Angela Davis can only be a mockery.

Why?

First, because she is a black woman, forced to present her case before a white male judge and a white, predominantly male, jury. Even if they are determined to give her a fair trial (which seems unlikely), they cannot escape the insidious effects of the male supremacist, white racist society of which they are a part.

Secondly, she is a revolutionary and a communist. As much as the leaders of this country talk about freedom of thought and expression, their real concern lies in order and preservation of the status quo.

(Continued on page five)

An Engineer's View Of Pollution

by Mike Drummond

Mention pollution at any time, in any group of people, and you will probably find that everyone seems to be a self-proclaimed expert in the field. This should strike most people as ridiculous. No one can claim to be an expert in such a broad field, and very few can claim expertise in a portion of this field. This writer will not claim any expertise in the area of pollution, but would like to present some views acquired as an engineering student.

There are two major questions relating to pollution on nearly everyone's mind: Who is responsible? And, what can be done about it? The first is the one that has a very pat answer; technology and industry are responsible. Like all pat answers, however, this one is not complete. The average citizen must also assume some responsibility for the problem. A few points in point may clarify this situation.

Two of the major forms of water pollution are those of phosphates and methyl mercury. Where do these two demons come from? Phosphates, which cause a serious decrease in the oxygen content of the water, come mainly from detergents. Every time you wash your clothes, more of this deadly poison finds its way into our water. Methyl mercury, which causes disorders of the nervous system, is perhaps the most deadly form of water pollution. Dumping mercury into waterways alone does not cause methyl mercury pollution. Micro-organisms, which can accomplish the chemical reaction needed to change mercury into the compound methyl mercury, cannot occur for the quantity now found in our water. The major catalyst, as some scientists now see it, is good old American sewage. Thus it is a combination of industry and the citizen which is producing these toxic additives to our water.

Air pollution is another example of the average citizen and industry acting in tandem to commit suicide. Automobile exhaust is considered a major portion of our air pollution. Until a substitute for the internal combustion engine, or an improved version of it, can be found, small cars which can use low leaded gasoline provide an insurmountable step in the solution of this form of pollution. Big cars, with big engines, cannot use low leaded gasoline efficiently without a number of power and efficiency. However, big cars can come to be the order of the day. Regular tune-ups and maintenance of the exhaust system will help, but people never seem to find the money to cover the expense.

Putting the back in America's number one sport, and pollution seems to have provided just another playing field. Moreover, if we are ready to call the game, we can begin to seriously seek solutions to the problem of pollution. These solutions must come from industry, but they also must come from citizens.

What are the solutions? I can assure that I cannot hope to give a complete answer without going beyond the limits of my knowledge. But I do feel that some practical solutions are within my grasp. For instance, buy only non-phosphate detergents, and urge everyone you know to do so. Spend the extra money to keep your car tuned and in good working order. Use public transportation, bicycle, and, yes, walk whenever possible. Organize citizens groups to demand adequate sewage and trash disposal in your communities. Be willing to pay for them.

These things may be inconvenient, expensive, and time consuming, but the alternatives are worse. The choices are simple. We must be uncompromising or struggle on our own. Pollution will not go away if we just stand and sip at the "destructive technology" or if public officials spend well-intended, but meaningless, promises. In everyone's mind, and everyone must be willing to fight to close it up, not just on Clean-Up Day, but every day.

This week is National Engineer Week. As an engineer, this writer hopes that this week will mark the start of a new era in engineering, wherein a social and ecological emphasis will replace an amoral stance previously given to these areas.

Editor's Note: Last week, in an editorial entitled "A White Middle-Class Charter" we urged students to fill out and return a coupon in that issue. Unfortunately we neglected to print the coupon in that issue.

Now we hope to rectify our error. We again urge students to show their support of social equality by filling out and returning the coupon found below.

Dear President Anderson:

I (you) request that funds be allocated to ensure that at least one percent of the student population fill out and return a coupon in that issue. Unfortunately we neglected to print the coupon in that issue.

Signed _____

(Bring or send to Equal Opportunities Commission, 28 Water-

Letters...

(continues from page four)

Angela Davis threatens the established order because she is a dynamic, articulate young woman speaking out against the wrongs of society. She refuses to be silenced, even in prison. She stands alone, proud and defiant. Her struggle has become one with her life.

Dennis Brier

Film Festival

To the Editor:

We would like to express our congratulations to Rob Aron on the smoothness and efficiency that characterized this year's Film Festival, and thank him for his assistance and encouragement.

N. Gardner
G. Gravel
P. James
(STAT-VARITY CHRISTIAN Fellowship)

Temure Syst
Not Academ

by John Perry

"Shaggy hippies are not nature children, conscious Admitters trying to naturalize. Hippies are Postmodernists. Those who show the damn documents are Postmodernists. Organization is strongly Postmodern. These rules and curriculum mean to deny before the coming of the post-modern and any to post-modern upon social change, but they are also to deny the very reality of the Postmodern."

The support of the black revolt is dropped by God grant that we can do better than students of Color-Brother, that the reason is that it is the best way of life at present, is a political revolutionary or a man instead of faith, but it is hard-core self-consciousness and we are not finished. When authority powers in the reverse of the repressed."

Paul Goodman, New Information: Conservative, p. 62.

This is the first in a series about education rather quickly from the old recommendations on the completely new education, even at UVM, can still be saved.

Section 314 of the Faculty Handbook is inadequate provision for student tenure is allowable only: (1) when the United Faculty emergency, or (2) "when it has been found that the student is a member of the Faculty."

The facts of the matter, however, are the noble intentions of the Faculty Handbook. "Tenure" looks good on paper, it fits our applied to an ongoing system. Considered in the abstract, and that is considered, it makes a nice past exam for the public overviews. That covers a years, which, it may be contended, does damage that cannot be done during the rest of the tenure.

Considered instead as a rule in a dynamic, present single factor working against an explanation of that occupying generalization difficult to follow. The precondition for a faculty members is a successful completion period that "does not exceed six years," (12) provided by another "provision" for undergraduate years and three to five graduate "provisionary" period of at least 10, of limits.

Jerry Farber (THE STUDENT AS NICK) excellent job of describing the effects of it that it would be downright expensive to a University State and ask them to spend $2.95, and other officials.

During these dark years, the great occupational security is "making waves." The publication of one major journal or choice. Teaching competence is irrelevant (to evaluate it) and teaching style need not. One must be willing to field student complaints to the department chairmen) with time visibly talking with undergraduates (the feelings of the rest of our department).

The validity of the above description is by noting the exceptions. Michael Parenti's of being viable (making waves). This is a morally superior, he is just relying on credentials to carry him through the storm.

In general terms, systems stability those stable if its variables tend to remain within a range that the real function of the down industrialism the young instructor is a academic. From Krashinsky's common sense means (How do you achieve our vision postmodernism/controversy) applying to a further safeguard against deviant views, instructor is not permitted to vote at faculty his first crucial year of indoctrination (132)

Views From A Silver

by Carol Schmitt Brown

You know? It's amazing to sit up here on a mountain and in the Laplanders.

My contemplation in the Laplanders' formidable problem: not enough population the expense of land (implication needs of).

You young people want to know all the Sams of you go so far as to say "We're out!"

I see the more we've made bringing us inclined to agree with that premise.

A few professors up here for impractical contemplation should be the student of Philosophy or Politics, so I've them simultaneously. But I do feel one of the Glory. I couldn't write my opinions here.

This all brings me back to the first legislature has. If they cut funds from the schools they face a "damned if you do" reaction from the voter (incidentally, if you make it palatable. Who will compromise who have "slipped off the pedestal"?)

When you think the budget of the U.S. is palatable. Who will compromise who have "slipped off the pedestal"?)

VOLUME

LXXXIX

VERMONT CYNIC

NUMBER 4

RALPH BOBBINS
Editor-in-Chief
SARAH SCHUYLER
Assistant Editor
JILL DAVIDSON
Managing Editor
CHARLIE FRENCH
News Editor
JEFF YACKER
Features Editor
KEN WHITTAKER
Sports Editor
TERRY DEMAS
Reviews Editor
GARY CARO
Advertising Manager
BRUCE WAGGONER
Art. Advertising Manager
GEOFF PERSON
Photography Editor
BARRY WILSON
Circulation Manager
GARY H. BAUDER
WALLY JOHNSON
Student Advisor

Sports Staff: Bonnie Bonady, Mark Torsen, John Stowell, Mike Rosenberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Ghaney, Tim Blackford, Sandy Magid, Mike Brown, Bill Koda, Robert Provencio, Dave Kopacz.

News Staff: Andrea Erikson, Ben Selkerson, Louisa Stinson, Gene Purpus, Kip Arnold, Mike Fish, Alice Carter, Jill Stiven, Cedric Jackson, K. Duxter Berry.

Feature Staff: Maureen Smith, Brooks McCabe, James Abrams, Doug Collette, Gary Hudson, Bruce Alper, Laurel Ostroff, Mike Drummond, Kim Willey.

Production Staff: Nancy Cieschke, Judy Parker, Linda Del Vigne.

Advertising Staff: Steve Kass.

Photography: Greg Patterson, Student Photo Service.

Printed and Bound by the Vermont Cynic Press, 100 North Main Street, Burlington, Vermont 05401. Telephone 435-0911. Distribution for members is also made prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1953. Subscription rate $10.00 per year, single copy five cents. Second Class Postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

Opinions expressed in editorials, columns or elsewhere in the CYNIC do not reflect the official position of the University of Vermont. Opinions expressed by contributors do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University of Vermont.

Published weekly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont.

Red Lane Ser

One of the supreme artists of our generation appears in the Lane Series on Thursday, March 4 at 8:30 p.m., when virtuoso Yehudi Menuhin conducts his celebrated Menubus Festival Orchestra. Menuhin will also be soloist in two of the compositions to be performed.

The concert, which will be held in Memorial Auditorium, is in the Red Series. Tickets, priced at $3.75, $4.50, $5.25 and $6, are available at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Young Americans For Freedom: Campus Conservatives Hold Wide Variety Of Views Concerning Current Issues

by Laurel O'Connell

For all the quiet young conservatives at UVM who feel that the authorities of the universities and the federal government are not handling the left movement on campus as well as in Congress, there is an organization to which they can direct their support. YAF, as it may turn out to be, The Young Americans For Freedom (YAF) is the organization, inspired by such conservatives as William F. Buckley, a champion for law and order and for the United States Constitution, which YAF feels is the "best arangement yet devised for empowering government to fulfill its proper role, while restraining it from the concentration and abuse of power."

YAF was formed nationally in 1960 in Sharon, Conn., where "The Sharon Statement" was written and adopted. This official declaration of the organization outlines the principles and beliefs of the young conservatives attending that conference regarding the role of the U.S. government in international and domestic affairs. Emphasized in this document are the limitations of the power of the American government over the "individual's use of his God-given free will" and over the free market economy run by the laws of supply and demand, which, according to YAF, is the single economic system compatible with the requirements of personal freedom and constitutional government.

The members of YAF, by virtue of the Sharon Statement, absolutely refuse the principles of any socialist type of economic system in which the wealth is distributed among all the members of the system, or any governmental intervention at all. They feel that interference of this type would "reduce the moral and physical strength of the nation" by destroying the "moral autonomy" of each citizen. So, the freedom of the individual is valued most highly by this conservative group which feels that the liberal groups tend to deny the rights of the individual and surrender them to group power to further the group ends.

The Sharon Statement states exactly "that the purpose of the government are to protect these freedoms (individual liberty and political freedom especially) through the preservation of internal order, the provision of national defense, and the administration of justice. To preserve internal order, YAF chapters were formed in many places to maintain the forms of the left. The closest chapter to us at UVM is the Dartmouth University chapter, which grew immediately out of the anti-strike group there last May known as Strike Back. Their major concern was that the strikers who wished to cancel classes at the school were a leftist minority, attempting to impose their will and belief on the majority who did not want to close down the school. Another reason for the action of the new YAF organization there was that YAF did not feel that the University had the right to show a political bias because the University should be the place where both sides can be presented without the school having to be actively involved on either side.

National defense is still valued very highly by these conservatives. YAF feels that Communism is absolutely the greatest threat to our personal liberties and that "the United States cannot afford to surrender, either through weakness or through the neglect of its responsibilities, to the U.S. in the role as universal policeman to keep the world safe for democracy. During an interview with a YAF leader at Dartmouth, it was evident that he felt that we had to fight the Communists everywhere because they would eventually try and take over the U.S. and begin censoring our media and restricting all of our personal freedoms. It seems permissible, however, for us to plague a land with war and destruction for more than a decade so that these people may someday choose a democratic government just like ours. YAF members seem to feel that we are truly fighting for democracy in Indochina, for example, but are ignoring the fact that by fighting there we are interfering with the God-given individual rights of those inhabitants. To further combat the Communists, YAF members oppose East-West trade. YAF has lobbied successfully to keep some very large American industries from establishing companies in Communist nations, and thus, feeding our own enemy.

YAF membership has been consistently increasing since its birth in 1960. Whether this reflects the rise in super-patriotic "democracy-right-or-wrong" people, the more vocal element of the silent majority people who feel that an organized constitutional government is the only means with which to work, or simply the anti-intellectual as well as any others who are fed up with the leftist movement, we can never be absolutely certain. However, the writer feels that the YAF membership probably includes all of these political types.

Huessey

(continued from page one)

Although he was arrested in January of last year, Huessey was not allowed to write home until April. In July, he finally was allowed to see the attorney that the East Germans had appointed to defend him. In the East German judicial system, the prosecuting attorney is the case-control aspect. Dr. Huessey, however, traveled to Berlin this past fall and was allowed to see his son, but for a very short period of time during which Mark was not allowed by a prison guard to discuss his case. Dr. Huessey has also been in contact with his son's attorney, who has suggested an appeal for clemency to Walter Ulbricht, in order to reverse the three-year sentence meted out by the court. Dr. Huessey added that he believes the lawyer to be a sincere man.

What of the repercussions of the case on U.S.-Soviet-German diplomacy? Dr. Huessey has been in contact with the State Department in Washington. At first he thought that an exchange might have been arranged for the Russian spy Ivanov, who was convicted here several years ago. But Ivanov was recently released, while Mark Huessey was not. The United States has taken action by severely curtailing the number of visas issued to East Germans who wish to visit the U.S.

One of the curious aspects of the case is that the East German people have heard absolutely nothing about it. This has led to speculation that the Communists may attempt to inject the issue into the currently delicate four-power talks on Berlin. This involves the mass complexity which surrounds relations between the United States, the Soviet Union, and the two Germans. Dr. Huessey believes that if the case gets more than a shred of publicity in West Germany, then his son has no hope for release in the near future.

The only group in the United States which has made a concerted effort on Huessey's behalf is the conservative-oriented YAF, or Young Americans for Freedom. Dr. Huessey, gave the CYNIC the names of two persons residing in Sweden whom concerned Americans should write to:

Bertil Hageman
Tingshus
Hedemora
Sweden
and
Dr. Berger Hagard
P.O. 16-042
Stockholm
Sweden

These two people are reputed to have some influence with high officials in East Germany.

Results Of ZPG Poll

by Jay Wilkey

Last semester, near the end of October, I learned of a meeting for all members of the university concerned with overpopulation. I had been waiting for an opportunity to become involved with this movement since last spring when I was inspired by a speech by Dr. Paul Erlich, the president and founder of ZPG (Zero Population Growth). Only a small number of people showed up for that first meeting, but after a few weeks we became well organized and the people who now remain active in the group are dedicated. So that the U.V.M. ZPG chapter has now established itself fairly securely. The principles of our group are the same as those of the national organization. Basically, we are striving to level off the rate of world population growth and eventually to attain a zero population growth rate. We wish to put a stop to the human deluge which is rapidly outrunning our means of production. The main area of concern for the U.V.M. chapter is educating the members of the university of the serious threat that the "population bomb" poses for all of us.

In order to discover how aware U.V.M.'s population was of ZPG's movement, and in order to find out the nature of the group's membership, we conducted a questionnaire.

Of the 423 students questioned, 80% knew what ZPG stands for. Only 6% pervertedly maintained they didn't feel the goals of ZPG were important for their own futures.

Approximately 75% of the questionnaires knew there is a chapter of ZPG on campus, as well as one in Burlington. However, very few of those knew where information about ZPG may be obtained or where the offices are. (To ameliorate this log to educate, the group prepared a questionnaire.

Results:	No. 1	No. 2	No. 3
Yes	347	393	385
No	124	24	166
Unknown	4	4	4
Total	431	421	431

No. 4	No. 5
0	5
1	7
2	215
3	89
More	83
Unknown	17
Total	417

(from 4 to 12 children)

egale verse

by Jay Blumenkoff

Emptiness

I hate facing morning alone
Since you left my bed is as empty as my life
Each night I would hold you in my arms until we drifted to sleep
Each morning you would awaken me with a kiss and make my day with a smile
Now, I just hold my tears back as I pray for sleep to come
I dream of you all the night and when I awaken, there is no kiss, no
smile,
just emptiness

Weekend in March Planned By IRA

On March 5th and 6th IRA is sponsoring the Second Annual White Out Weekend. The weekend was planned to get residents together and involved as part of their dorm in the competitive events of the weekend.

Friday, March 5th is WOW's skit night. At 8 p.m. in the Patrick Gym skits twelve to fifteen minutes in length will be presented by complex and dormitory groups. Refreshments will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights from 10:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Immediately after the skits there will be ice skating, a bonfire, and refreshments in front of Buckham Hall.

All Saturday's events will take place at Bolton Valley. There will be day and night skiing at reduced rates. Day tickets are $5 and will cover all afternoon activities. This includes ski races, snow shoe races, powder puff snowman building contests, and a tug or war on ice. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the events.

Saturday evening there will be a reduced rate night skiing from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. for $3. A buffet dinner from 5-7 p.m.

and a dance from 8-12 p.m. at the Bolton Valley Ski Lodge. Transportation to and from Bolton will be available. The all-day ticket is $5 and a $3.50 ticket covers the skis, buffet, and dance. Tickets are on sale at the Bookstore. The night skiing ticket will be sold at Bolton and separate tickets for the skis will be sold at the gym Friday night.

The emphasis this weekend is on singles. So don't feel you have to pass it up if you don't have a date. Come with a group of friends or by yourself!

Former Dean Impressed With Medical College

A former dean of the University of Vermont College of Medicine visited that college for a day this week, talked with students, faculty and administrative leaders, then reported:

"I'm impressed. I'm impressed with the rate of change since I left, impressed even more with the ability of the College of Medicine to move with the times."

The speaker was Dr. Robert J. Slater, who served as dean from 1962 until Dec. 31, 1966 when he left to accept his present post, executive director of the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children in New York.

Under his leadership, the College of Medicine carried out the most ambitious building fund project in the University's history, the $8.7 million third and final phase of the college's postwar medical building program.

Dr. Slater noted the difference in problems at the college today and when he was here.

"We were doubling our faculty. The National Institutes of Health were increasing their spending and we were preparing programs for them. Since that time there has been a very change in the national attitude about the role of the basic sciences. I believe the attitude is incorrect, but it exists."

"You are now faced with the problem of strengthening programs in the face of lowered budgets."

Dr. William H. Luginbuhl, present dean said that despite a deep cut in the college's budget, plus fewer federal grants, the college is "still solvent."

This is in contrast to many of the nation's medical schools, facing life-or-death financial problems. He said credit for the soundness of the Vermont college is due in no small part to the good planning and work of deans and other leaders in the past 25 years.

The two men were among those who spoke at an evening seminar that concluded Dr. Slater's visit. Department chairmen attended.

Two other past deans who spoke were Dr. Edward C. Andrews Jr., now UVM president, and Dr. George A. Wolf Jr. Dr. Andrews followed Dr. Slater as dean, and Dr. Wolf preceded Dr. Slater. Dr. Wolf last year returned to the University as a professor of medicine.

While the three still involved in the work of the University tended to concentrate on current problems, Dr. Slater offered encouragement.

He suggested that "in the face of growing health needs, you take time to define objectives—objectives that will attract funds."

He said he didn't have the answers as to how to do this. "The way it was done when I was here is no longer the way to go."

He stressed the wrong position of the college. "This school is moving ahead," he emphasized. "It is very much in the front ranks of what a medical school should be."

Dancers Appeal Lane Chambers

Dance choreographer Don Redlich appears with his company of modern dancers in the second Lane Chamber Arts Series concert on Saturday, Feb. 27, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium.

Tickets, $2.50, may be secured at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

On Friday afternoon, Feb. 26, at 4:50 p.m., a lecture-demonstration and master class will be given by the Company in Southwick Ballroom, Redstone Campus. Free and open to the public, this event is available to all UVM students who wish to dance or learn about modern dance.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elina Mooney, Lulu Santangelo, Irene Feigenheimer and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Tristan, Isolde, Aida, Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days. The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, Thelma's Carnival, Plain and Fancy, and Helen Tamara's Frankie and Johnny.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre in Playhouse, New York City, in 1962. In this appearance he performed solo and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES

140 CHURCH ST.
ACROSS FROM CITY HALL
OPEN UNTIL 1 AM

"QUALITY FIRST AT PONCHO'S"

CHAMPLAIN LANES
905-2824
Antelope Ski Center
• Expert Skiing & Boating
• Complete Stock of Skiing Shoes
• Cocktail Lounge
• Snack Bar
• Murals
• Billiards
• Bowling

Visit The Warmest Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages
5 Minutes South Of Soons On Shelburne Rd.

SONY MODEL TA-3200F STEREO AMPLIFIER

500 WATTS

Manufacturer's Specifications:

IMP Power (Total): 320 watts, 8-ohm load; 500 watt, 4-ohm load. RMS Power per Channel: 110 watts, 8-ohm load; 130 watts, 4-ohm load. THD: Less than 0.1% at rated output; less than 0.06% at rated output; less than 0.03% at 1 watt. Frequency Response: 5 Hz to 200 kHz. S/N Ratio: 110 dB. 2-ohm IMP Power Bandwidth: 5 Hz to 36 kHz. B/N Ratio: 110 dB. Below full power output, short circuit input. Damping Factor: 170 at 8 ohms, 1 kHz. Input Sensitivity: 1.4 volts. Input Impedance: 75 k ohms. Dimensions: 16 3/4 in. w x 8 7/8 in. h x 12 3/4 in. d. Suggested retail price: $349.50 (optional walnut case extra).

LAFAYETTE RADIO ELECTRONICS
370 Shelburne Road Owned and operated by L.E.S. 658-4616

DOMINO PIZZA

DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO
discount	discount	discount	discount
coupon	coupon	coupon	coupon
25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA
Name _____	Name _____	Name _____	Name _____
Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____
GOOD FOR MARCH 16,17,18	GOOD FOR MARCH 16,17,18	GOOD FOR MARCH 19,20,21	GOOD FOR MARCH 23,24,25
DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO
discount	discount	discount	discount
coupon	coupon	coupon	coupon
25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA
Name _____	Name _____	Name _____	Name _____
Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____
GOOD FOR MARCH 23,24,25	GOOD FOR MARCH 26,27,28	GOOD FOR MARCH 30,31	GOOD FOR MARCH 30,31

FREE DOMINO'S PIZZA DELIVERY
10 N. Winokski Ave.
Burlington, VT 05401
628-3333

SUNDBERGS...
Vermont's Most Complete
SMOKE SHOP... has for your selection the
greatest names in PIPES
from $2.00 to $5.00
Imported and Domestic
TOBACCOS
BRING THIS AD
and RECEIVE 15% Discount on any Pipe

SUNDBERG'S
151 Main Street (Next to Flynn Theatre) Burlington, Vt.

THE FLEET IS IN!

BOB'S SUB SHOPS
199 COLLEGE ST.
BURLINGTON
863-8295

MAIN AT CANAL
WINOOSKI
862-9558

FREE DELIVERY
—COME & EAT YOUR HEART OUT—

LANE SERIES

Red Lane Series Presents The Menuhin Festival Orchestra

One of the supreme artists of our generation appears in the Lane Series on Thursday, March 4 at 8:30 p.m., when violinist Yehudi Menuhin conducts his celebrated Menuhin Festival Orchestra. Menuhin will also be soloist in two of the compositions to be performed.

The concert, which will be held in Memorial Auditorium, is in the Red Series. Tickets, priced at $1.75, $4.50, $5.25 and $6, are available at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

The program will begin with Bach's "Concerto in E Major," with Menuhin as soloist, to be followed by Haydn's "Symphony No. 83 in G minor" (known as "La Pucelle"). After the intermission, the orchestra will play Beethoven's "Two Romances," with Menuhin soloist, and conclude with "Variations on a Theme of Frank Bridge" by Benjamin Britten.

Since it was founded in 1958, the Menuhin Festival Orchestra has achieved a unique position in the musical life of England, and, during a limited visit in 1967, in North America.

Notably, the Orchestra has a large part in a new performing arts festival, established in 1969 by Menuhin and his colleague Ian Hunter, in and near Windsor Castle, London.

During the summer of 1967 Menuhin and his Orchestra performed six concerts with great success at Montreal's Expo '67. Immediately afterwards they offered six concerts in Philadelphia's Hall at New York's Lincoln Center, and then appeared in Washington and other key East Coast cities.

Since 1962, the artists have travelled extensively in Europe, playing at all the major festivals in Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Greece and Spain. The group's 1970-71 engagements include a visit to Australia and New Zealand after the American tour.

Perhaps the artists' outstanding achievement is the fact that they have established an entity which, despite certain unavoidable changes, has kept together the same key musicians since 1958.

Yehudi Menuhin is one of these men who have become legends in his own lifetime. Born in New York in 1916 of Russian parents, he started studying the violin at the age of five and made his debut at seven with the San Francisco Orchestra.

He has played in every country of the world, notably in a series of piano and violin recitals with his sister Hephzibah. Another sister, Yvonne, is a fine improviser of chamber music. And most recently Mr. Menuhin's 18-year-old son Jeremy has started giving piano recitals.

In World War II Menuhin added hundreds of concerts a year to his usual routine by playing, often two or three times a day, for men and women in the armed forces of all nations.

It would take a page of the CYNIC merely to list all the honors he has received from governments and the academic world. The French Legion of Honor, and, from General DeGaulle himself, the Croix de Lorraine, an honorary Knight Commander in the Order of the British Empire, conferred by Queen Elizabeth, Princess of the cities of Edinburgh and Bath—these are only a few of his awards.

Coming closer to Vermont, he is the honorary president of the Adirondack Music Festival, the group with which the Lane Series collaborated last summer in presenting its summer concert. The music director of the Adirondack Music Festival, Edna Mitchell, and also a member of the Cantata Chamber Ensemble, was a protégé and pupil of Menuhin's.

The Universities who have given him honorary degrees include Cambridge, Oxford, London, Liverpool, St. Andrews, Bath, and many others.

In addition to his knowledge of music, Menuhin is greatly interested in all the other arts, and also in politics, ethics, sociology, and science. He is indeed a rounded Renaissance man of the twentieth century.

A compassionate person, Yehudi Menuhin has identified himself with many humanitarian causes, to the extent that he has been called a citizen of the world.

Volunteers Sought To Aid Vermont Special Olympics For The Retarded

Vermont Special Olympics for the retarded is now in the planning stage for local athletic meets in April throughout Vermont. An on, planning is beginning for a State Swimming, Track and Field meet at the University of Vermont in early May.

Ralph Johnson said of Special Olympics for the Retarded: "In the Special Olympics, special young athletes compete for medals in running, throwing, jumping and swimming. But they are not out for world records. Their prize is growth and confidence that comes from a healthy body and the mastery of physical skills."

A national survey in 1967 revealed the following: The primary reason for the retardation in motor performance is the lack of opportunity for physical activity—45 percent of retarded children receive no physical education; 8 percent—0 to 30 minutes per week; 22 percent—30 to 60 minutes per week; and only 25 percent receive more than 60 minutes per week. A direct correlation between instructional time and level of motor proficiency was found.

Studies in Canada have shown that the physical performance of trainable retarded children (IQs 20 to 50) average four to six years behind normal. They have half the strength of normal children of the same age, fatigue 30 percent faster and carry 35 percent more fat.

Research has established that, given the opportunity, many retarded can attain performance levels in basic physical activity that equal or surpass that of normal children. Studies in England, Canada, and many parts of the United States have produced amazing changes in retarded children by providing them with a good, vigorous physical education program. The same children doubled their strength and endurance in the first six months. The average improvement in the performance of 481 children in an experimental study in Texas was 15 to 20 percent in only 30 weeks.

Sports require constant interaction of mind and body. The slower intellectual rate of development along with a lack of opportunity to engage in physical activity often finds the retarded in a state of physical retardation. The mental and physical demands of sport require constant coordination and adjustment to surroundings, including other players. Muscles are able to develop and strengthen according to natural and needed movements of the sport—bending, stretching, twisting, falling, leaping, dodging, etc.

Your help is being sought to bring sports to Vermont's retarded through the Special Olympics. There is need for help in planning and training of the retarded.

Four areas where your help is needed: 1.) Promotion and Public Relations Committee, 2.) Finance Committee, 3.) State Coordination and Planning Committee, 4.) State and Local Games and Training Committee.

Please clip and add send to:

Vermont Special Olympics, U.V.M.
Office of Volunteers, Burlington,
Vermont.
Name _____
Address _____

Phone _____
Committee I would work on _____

Palace
Thursday, Feb. 11
THE DEE DEES
with special guests
The Dees Dees
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
THE STAPLES GROUP
with special guests
The Staples Group
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Friday, Feb. 12
YOUNG BOYS
with special guests
The Young Boys
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Saturday, Feb. 13
COOPER SNOW
with special guests
The Cooper Snow
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Sunday, Feb. 14
THE ENGLISH ROCK GROUP
with special guests
The English Rock Group
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Monday, Feb. 15
THE COCKEYED MASTERPIECE
with special guests
The Cockeyed Masterpiece
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Tuesday, Feb. 16
SMALL FACES
with special guests
The Small Faces
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Wednesday, Feb. 17
THE GREASE BAND
with special guests
The Grease Band
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Thursday, Feb. 18
SAVORY BROWNS
with special guests
The Savory Browns
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Friday, Feb. 19
BYRDS
with special guests
The Byrds
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Saturday, Feb. 20
THE COCKEYED MASTERPIECE
with special guests
The Cockeyed Masterpiece
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Sunday, Feb. 21
THE ENGLISH ROCK GROUP
with special guests
The English Rock Group
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Monday, Feb. 22
SMALL FACES
with special guests
The Small Faces
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Tuesday, Feb. 23
THE GREASE BAND
with special guests
The Grease Band
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Wednesday, Feb. 24
SAVORY BROWNS
with special guests
The Savory Browns
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Thursday, Feb. 25
BYRDS
with special guests
The Byrds
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Friday, Feb. 26
THE COCKEYED MASTERPIECE
with special guests
The Cockeyed Masterpiece
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Saturday, Feb. 27
THE ENGLISH ROCK GROUP
with special guests
The English Rock Group
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Sunday, Feb. 28
SMALL FACES
with special guests
The Small Faces
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Monday, Feb. 29
THE GREASE BAND
with special guests
The Grease Band
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30
Tuesday, Feb. 30
SAVORY BROWNS
with special guests
The Savory Browns
Direct from Eng. that day
1st show at 7:30
2nd show at 9:30

Dancers Appear In Lane Chambers Concert

Dancer-choreographer Don Redlich appears with his company of modern dancers in the second Lane Chamber Arts Series concert on Saturday, Feb. 27, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium.

Tickets, $2.50, may be secured at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

On Friday afternoon, Feb. 26, at 4:00 p.m., a lecture-demonstration and master class will be given by the Company in Southwick Ballroom, Redstone Campus. Free and open to the public, this event is available to all UVM students who wish to dance or learn about modern dance.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Album Review:

John Lennon Plastic Ono Band

by Doug Collette

JOHN LENNON/PLASTIC ONO BAND: It was hard to guess what John Lennon's solo album would be like. Judging from his recent material like "Instant Karma," I had no notion that it would be much like the music he did with the Beatles, because it was obvious John wasn't the same person that was a Beatle. Still I wasn't prepared for what this album actually is. It's difficult to write about, to say the least.

The songs have only the sparsest of arrangements, the most basic of basic tracks; the melody line is sketched, usually by piano, and Ringo Starr keeps the beat, but as for any further musical elaboration, there is very little. I found myself listening to some of these songs, most notably "Mother" and "Isolation" and waiting for the musicians to really open up. Suddenly I realized the song was over and that they never did get moving. It's almost as if Lennon didn't want the music to divert attention from the lyrics and the message they contain.

Throughout the album, John seems more interested in conveying his feelings through his lyrics, at the expense of the music. That's truly a pity, for these are probably Lennon's finest compositions. The melodies are clearly Lennon's finest but their true potential never emerges because of the skeletal arrangements. Lyric-wise, the tunes are his most direct and unself-conscious, if occasionally they tend to be a bit too self-involved. I don't mean to say that every track is a failure: "Love" is a sleepy song with a child-like simplicity in the words and the early-Dylan-esque "Working Class Hero" doesn't pull any punches.

JOHN LENNON/PLASTIC ONO BAND is a strangely compelling album; it has great musical potential and it's open and honest. Perhaps I'm a bit thrown off because I'm not used to such openness. But it seems to me that John is more concerned with message rather than medium and THAT is the record's fatal drawback. As Greil Marcus, a frequent contributor to ROLLING STONE, wrote in an essay about Lennon's "Revolution" (to me a near ideal combination of music and philosophy): "... if it is great rock 'n' roll, the music dodges the message and comes out in front, especially if the message is clear and unmistakable. The idea must be virtually lost in the music before it is worth reaching for or so simple that the words and idea become music themselves." Maybe next time John will be less concerned with conveying his ideas to the world and be more concerned with his music. In that case, he has more than just a good chance to make great rock 'n' roll.

Theatrical Company Member Interviewed At Arena Theater

The University of Vermont's Arena Theater will be the scene for an interview of Grace Henry Hannah, one of the surviving members of the famous "Henry Family Travelling Company." Betty-Bandel, Professor of English at the University, will talk to Mrs. Hannah about the famous theatrical company which eventually settled in the Huntington area. These reminiscences will be the program for the regular meeting of the Chittenden County Historical Society on Sunday, February 28, at 3 p.m.

The Henry troupe of travelling players was active from the turn of the century through two decades of the 1900's. As a by-product of their playmaking activity, many stage drops were painted by the head of the Henry Family, and some of these still exist in the Huntington area. Members of the Society viewed these memorabilia at their "Camel's Hump" meeting last year in Huntington.

Musical, dancing, plays and playlets were all part of the repertoire of the Henry Family and many of their scripts were original presentations. Mrs. Hannah, now a senior citizen, is a choir director for a Vergennes church, the area from which the family moved to Huntington in 1906.

The Society welcomes the public to attend its regular meetings.

Dean Impressed Medical College

Dr. William H. Luginbuhl, present dean said that despite a deep cut in the college's budget, plus fewer federal grants, the college is "still solvent." This is in contrast to many of the nation's medical schools, facing life-or-death financial problems. He said credit for the soundness of the Vermont college is due in no small part to the good planning and work of deans and other leaders in the past 25 years.

The two men were among those who spoke at an evening seminar that concluded Dr. Slater's visit. Department chairmen attended.

Two other past deans who spoke were Dr. Edward C. Andrews Jr., now UVM president, and Dr. George A. Wolf Jr. Dr. Andrews followed Dr. Slater as dean, and Dr. Wolf preceded Dr. Slater. Dr. Wolf last year returned to the University as a professor of medicine.

While the three still involved in the work of the University, tended to concentrate on current problems, Dr. Slater offered encouragement.

He suggested that "in the face of growing health needs, you take time to define objectives—objectives that will attract funds."

He said he didn't like the answers as to how to do this. "The way it was done when I was here is no longer the way to go."

He stressed the strong position of the college. "This school is moving ahead," he emphasized. "It is very much in the front ranks of what a medical school should be."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her review, the well-known dance critic Frances Herridge of the N.Y. Post wrote that Redlich's "body is so well trained that it is always eloquent. And he never loses sight of the effect his

dances make on his audience. They achieve a communion."

Clive Barnes of the N.Y. Times has called Redlich "a remarkable dancer," whose "dance style is a delightfully deft... Defiance and sharpness of image are two characteristics of Mr. Redlich's work."

Redlich currently teaches at the Hanya Holm School of Dance, at Adelphi University, and at Sarah Lawrence College.

The next concert in the Lane Chamber Arts Series will be Russian artist Natasha Gutman, March 22.

Appearing with Don Redlich are Elaine Mooney, Lily Santangelo, Irene Feigenheim, and William Siegfried.

The dances on the program, all choreographed by Redlich, include "Jibe," "Air Antique," "Cahoots," "Implex," "Triton," "Isle," "Aida," "Hansel and Gretel," "Earthling," and "Slouching Towards Bethlehem."

Earlier this week, the Company is performing at Castleton State College for two days, and also at Middlebury College for two days.

The group is touring Vermont under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Coming from Winona, Minnesota, Don Redlich studied at Winona State College, Colorado College, and as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin.

His teachers in New York included Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, John Butler and Doris Humphrey—all distinguished modern dancers.

Redlich has made many appearances in Broadway and off-Broadway productions, including The Golden Apple, There's a Girl in My Soup, and Helen Tamara.

He gave his first concert composed entirely of his own works at the Henry St. Theatre Playhouse, New York City, in 1965. In this appearance he performed solos and also danced with Don Madole.

Of his second Henry St. Playhouse concert in 1966, Walter Terry of the N.Y. Tribune wrote that "it was highly theatrical, refreshingly eclectic, and superbly danced."

He made his Broadway dance concert debut with his own company in Feb., 1969, at the Billy Rose Theatre. In her

Cat-nip

by Neil McManis

There were many tragic aspects to the University of Vermont's heartbreaking loss Monday night to St. Michael's College at Patrick Gym.

A defeat at the hands of an arch-rival, after leading most of the way, is always disappointing to a basketball team.

But it is something to have someone with which to share the dejection.

On Monday night, there was little if any home court advantage for the Catamounts, as the hollerous court jeters from across the river packed the lower east bleachers.

Along the opposite side sat a collection of hard core Vermont basketball fans, little kids, alumni, adults, and a smattering of interested by unenthusiastic students.

The Catamounts led most of the way, but the Knights rosters didn't give up, and they celebrated as the invaders picked up momentum, tied the score, and went on to pull it out.

A flood of fans poured onto the floor at Patrick. They engulfed the victors, severed the nets, and enjoyed what must be one of the high points of a St. Michael's College career.

There was mostly an air of nonchalance on the Vermont side, although the true supporters—notably Jack Arace in his Catamount suit, and the green and gold cheerleaders—suffered along with the ballclub and should be praised along with the varsity.

The tragedy, then, is a simple one, boiling down to motivation, or a lack of it.

Vermont has never been a campus that revolves around basketball, but as recently as three years ago the St. Michael's contest drew a mob litching for a battle.

The situation now, of course, is frustratingly intolerable. Dedicated collegiate athletes are not receiving the support and thanks they deserve.

If a special "blue-ribbon" committee ever gets around to looking into the matter, it would begin with these prevailing rationales:

1. Students are charged for home games, so they invest their money in hockey, which has a better record than the hoop club.

2. Students simply will not support a team with a losing record.

3. Vermont students as a whole simply will not be motivated, and hockey crowds are enlarged by townspeople and alumni.

4. The media are responsible, since they have relegated basketball at UVM to a second place activity.

Maybe none of these theories are on target, but they all merit investigation.

The actors in Monday night's tragedy need encouragement. But if the curtain closes on an empty house after the final scene at Patrick, the least to blame will be the fine group of men on stage.

Fiji Broomball Successful

by Rick McVoy

Those who attended the Broomball Tournament sponsored by Fiji at 158 South Willard Street on Sunday afternoon saw a mixture of fun, sportsmanship, and above all, competition. The number of entries was not impressively high, and late forfeits made the numbers smaller. But for those who participated, the event was a success.

The first game lasted through two regulation periods and two overtime periods before Acacia beat Sigma Alpha Epsilon on a penalty shot. Tau Epsilon Phi forfeited to Alpha Tau Omega, and Delta Psi forfeited to Phi Delta Theta to advance both teams. In the Women's Division, Alpha Delta Pi forfeited to Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Alpha Theta forfeited to Tri-Delta. A quickly formed team of Fiji pinmates and dates, called the "Figgies," played the Tri-Deltas and won by a score of 1-0, to go on to face Pi Phi for the finals.

Next, Fiji faced Theta Chi and won, 2-0. Kappa Sigma forfeited to ATO, and ATO moved into the semi-finals against Fiji. Acacia beat Sigma Phi Epsilon 5-0 to put them into the semi-finals.

In the semi-final games Acacia beat Phi Delta on a penalty shot after two overtime periods. Fiji defeated ATO to move into the final against Acacia.

The women's final game was won by Pi Phi over the Figgies by a score of 3-0, and the trophy was theirs. Acacia was defeated by Fiji for the trophy in the men's division.

Sam Shannon and Bob Marks contributed to the success of the tournament by refereeing all the games. Gamma Phi Beta provided hot chocolate and donuts as refreshments; UVM security contributed their bullhorn for a day; and the UVM swim team lent their stop watches for the occasion.

The idea of having broomball leagues for the remainder of the year arose from the competition. An invitation is open for all interested; Greeks or independents, males or females, to form teams and enter. If interested, please contact Phi Gamma Delta, 158 South Willard Street, telephone 862-7532.

This year's tournament was a trial. There were many imperfections, and many improvements are needed. However, this competition will be back again next year, sponsored by Phi Gamma Delta (Fiji), and with more planning, it could be an important part of the Winter Weekend festivities.

Let's Hope This Will Be The Scene This Saturday Against Bowdoin

Final Six Minutes Sour Sweet Taste Of Revenge

by Dave Clark

All the elements were there for a great night of UVM basketball. The crowd was big, the rivalry was hot, the Cats were here to avenge their earlier loss but one element was drastically lacking, a Vermont win.

For the first 3/4 of the game the Cats appeared as if they could not lose but with 6:53 left and the score 68-61 in favor of Vermont, bad things began to happen.

The Purple Knights scored ten straight points in six minutes of the period as the Cats didn't score again until there was 53 seconds left in the game.

For the first 33 minutes of the game Vermont played good defense and had the Michaelmen scrambling for the ball, as they led by as much as 13 points. It is hard to explain in retrospect as to why the Cats blew a 13 point lead to lose 75-71.

To simply say that Vermont or any team just choked is unfair from any angle. Vermont's downfall was a combination of things. The Cats were trying to stall and they suddenly went cold. The tight man-to-man defense of St. Mike's made the Cats look bad as they had numerous turnovers.

Bob Tetreault did it all for the purple knights of St. Mike's. Tetreault was the leading scorer of the game for both teams with 29 points and led the knights in rebounds with 13.

Tom Clay got 25 points for the second game in a row as the Vermont captain has taken over leadership in the scoring department with 15.5 average through 21 games. Clay looked good as he scored on some pretty "baseline" shots. Ray Ortiz was second in scoring with 18 points.

Vermont was plagued with fouls throughout the game as they committed 26 fouls compared to 21 for St. Mike's. Vermont had 22 turnovers including 13 in the second, with many of those in the last few minutes of the game.

St. Mike's played a ball control offense as they operated from the top of key looking for picks around the circle. The Michaelmen handled the ball well in the second half as they hit the open man under the basket on too numerous occasions for the Cats.

It is poor taste and sour grapes to criticize the "refs" after one's team has lost but the two who "officiated" Monday night were atrocious. They made bad calls on both sides with some crucial ones in the last few minutes.

The crowd for this home game was large and quite loud but not as loud as St. Mike's as the Purple Knight fans roared with every move of their team. Vermont was enthusiastic and boisterous and I hope to see the same at the game against Rhode Island on March 1.

Head Start!

by Gerry Glassey

This coming Tuesday, March 2, the UVM Rugby Club will hold an organizational meeting for the coming Spring season. The meeting will be held in Marsh Lounge of Billings Center at 7 o'clock P.M.

This is the fourth season for the Catamount Rugby team. A full schedule is planned, including matches with Norwich, The Albany Law School, the Montreal Barbarians and others.

The club continues its policy on encouragement to the entire academic community to come out and play. We hope to field two full teams of fifteen men each. You need not have any prior Rugby experience since a month of conditioning and acquiring skills is planned before the first match.

If you are interested, but cannot make the meeting, call 655-2362 after six o'clock.

Cats Ready For Tough Weekend Home Stand

by Dave Kapanen

This weekend could make or break the Vermont Catamount Hockey Team. The last two home games of the season bring Northeastern and Bowdoin to Gutterson Field House for two fast skating contests before the usual capacity crowds.

Bowdoin will invade the UVM campus for a rare Saturday afternoon affair that features the two top teams in Division II. With the Cats loss to Middlebury last Wednesday, this game will provide the first place team in the upcoming tournament that is only a few short weeks away. Bowdoin brings much of their squad that lost to UVM in the finals last year. If last year is not enough, the quest for the first seeding and the important home rink advantage is enough to make Bowdoin come out flying.

The Cats will also be up for the Bowdoin battle and the hope is that they do not look past their Friday night contest to the big game the next day.

Before Saturday's encounter with Bowdoin, the Cats must face Northeastern. Northeastern recently lost a 5-4 game to Colby and do not look as strong as last year. Still, anytime a Division I team comes to Gutterson it is time to expect a good hard hitting contest. Hopefully Vermont will be ready.

The back to back games to be played by the Cats do not favor Bowdoin because the Bears face Middlebury the day before our game. That game will pit Larry Perlman the Panther frosh goalie against an onslaught of talented shooters but if he could stop up UVM, Perlman should hold them down to within reach. Saturday will see two tired but psyched teams.

ICINGS

The loss to Middlebury was a heartbreaker for Jim Cross and his men. The play of Perlman, starting only his second game in the Panther net, was sensational. During the last two minutes of play the Cats threw everything but the kitchen sink and Perlman, with the help of All-American defenseman Larry Dixon, stopped every shot.

The play of Dave Keeco could not be faulted against Middlebury. Two defensive tapes, out the Catamounts. Twice Panther posters were allowed to place themselves in front of Keeco and when they received the pass they had an open shot on Keeco and did them by him. This will be fatal if allowed to happen against Bowdoin.

THE INSIDER

As Bowdoin rejoiced Wednesday night, we could only hope that there was some blessing in disguise by losing to Middlebury. Perhaps now we would be more determined to win. Winning at Middlebury has always been a hang-up, and we followed in this tradition. Sometimes I wish there was no great rivalry between us so they would not get psyched up, but then maybe the win would not be as good either. After, it seemed as though we presented them with the Stanley Cup, we bid them farewell, encouraging them to do the same to Bowdoin as they did to us.

This Friday and Saturday will prove to be one of the most exciting weekends in college hockey. Hopefully, Bowdoin will have a big weekend, and we can regain that prestigious position. After a stopoff at Middlebury, the Polar Bears of Bowdoin will then meet us for the showdown Saturday afternoon. We will both have had games the night before so we will be evenly matched. This will be Bowdoin's big chance to get back at us, however, the importance of this game is realized on both sides, and I do not think the revenge factor will be as great an advantage to Bowdoin as one might expect.

Five out of the last six teams we have played have scored the first goal of the game against us. Hopefully we can redeem ourselves this weekend by starting off high, instead of having to come back. Northeastern cannot be overlooked since they are a difficult opponent having gone into overtime against UMass.

For the Seniors the Bowdoin game will be their last regular season home game. Maybe, just maybe, Moon will reveal his true identity when the Seniors are introduced. As sophomores our first regular season home game was against Salem State in which we blew a 3-1 lead in the third period and lost in overtime. We were all pretty nervous, and I remember as soon as I made a mistake, Moon made one, too, and we were all broken in to the frustrations of our careers fairly quickly. Hopefully, we can finish up our regular season home games with a win that we will always remember and look back to that first Salem State game with a feeling of accomplishment.

Every Friday Afternoon!
HAPPY HOURS

4-6

AT THE
blue tooth

Drinks Reduced—No Cover

Live Band 'OMEN'

Food from opening to closing.

Wed.—Sunday

COUNTRY MOUSE EMPORIUM

146 CHERRY ST.

PANTS BY UFO & COUNTRY MOUSE

SHIRTS BY HIMALAYA

PIPES, PAPERS, INCENSE

BLACKLITE

AND CUSTOM

POSTERS.

A Particular Place for Particular Skiers...

Exciting skiing for all skills. Complete variety in steepness and difficulty, from the Chase and Fall line, among New England's steepest to gentle Vixen. Ski the Mini-Area within our area! Headquarters of 9 leading Ski Clubs. Special Ski Week rates. Write: Folder, Information.

MAD RIVER GLEN
SKI AREA

Watkins, Vermont • Routes 100 and 17

VERMONT CYNIC

MARCH 4, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 5

Tensions were high during the UVM, Bowdoin game.

UVM Battles Norwich Tonight; Cats Look Towards ECAC Title

The UVM hockey team beat Bowdoin last Saturday, but must win one more game in order to maintain top position in Division II. This is the game to be played tonight against Norwich, on their ice.

Norwich faced UVM last year in the final game of 1970. That game saw UVM rebound to a third period 7-4 triumph. Earlier this year, the Catamounts waged a winning effort against Norwich at Gutterston with a final score of 7-5.

The 5-2 win over Bowdoin gave the Norwich game its great importance. It put UVM in first position in Division II. However, if the team loses to Norwich, and if Bowdoin wins its game with Merrimack this week, then Bowdoin will again be in the top position.

Three teams are presently in the Division II play-offs, definitely, Vermont, Bowdoin, and Massachusetts. The fourth spot is still up in the air. If Vermont finishes first in the Division, it will face the fourth place team, while Bowdoin and Massachusetts will face each other. The two winning teams will then face each other for the Division II title.

Vermont has a good chance of playing Bowdoin again. Saturday's game left its mark on Vermont. Fred Hunt, the team's leading scorer, will be unable to play hockey for the rest of the season, due to torn ligaments in his left knee. Both Ned Grant and Sam Simmons were cut in the face during the game, and Tim Bickford was badly bruised. These three should all be ready, however, to play against Norwich.

The Bowdoin game offered more than just a superior team just squeeze past a superior team last year. Due to having two men in the penalty box within the first 1:47 of play, Bowdoin for a short time had a two-man advantage on the ice. During this time the Vermont defense stopped all that Bowdoin sent against them. With both teams again at full strength, most of the action was in the Vermont zone until 10:19 of the first period, when Fred Hunt sustained his injury and was helped off the ice. The lone score of the initial period came on a penalty shot by Wright. Vermont was awarded the shot when Bowdoin defenseman Coleman King had fallen on the puck in the crease in front of the Bowdoin net.

Wright, a 5'7" native of Ottawa, Ontario, slowly skated in on Bowdoin's Tom Hutchinson. Wright faked right and when Hutchinson moved, Wright rolled left and shot the puck over Hutchinson's shoulder. Wright said after the game that it was the first penalty shot he had ever taken.

The teams played even until the last half of the second period when Vermont broke it open. Ned Grant, who was later injured, received a pass from Bob Hodde and released a slap shot that Hutchinson could not stop.

Thirty seconds later Brad Cooke intercepted a Bowdoin pass 20 feet in front of the goal. Cooke then released a low shot that just eluded Hutchinson's stick.

The Catamounts kept the puck in the Bowdoin end, and at 19:42 Rick Burns took a Yeates pass and while stepping down the right side, released a shot that somehow evaded the shell-shocked goalie.

(continued on page nine)

Tuition Increase Is Imminent At UVM

Unless the State Legislature provides UVM with a restoration, which is doubtful, students at the University will be faced with a tuition increase. This seemed all the more apparent on Thursday of last week when the House Appropriations Committee approved, by a 9-2 vote, Gov. Deane Davis' proposed budget of 9.2 million which calls for "level funding" of the University.

When asked about the probable increase, Vice President for Financial Affairs Melvin Dyson said, "Only the Board of Trustees can increase the tuition. They have been told, or it has been recommended to them, that we will have to increase tuition, both in-state and out-of-state, by two hundred dollars if we don't get a restoration and that if we get a restoration of $500,000, we'd be able to restrict the increase on in-state students to only one hundred dollars."

"By implication it is pretty certain that the President will be requesting authority to increase tuition two hundred dollars for out-of-staters, starting in the fall of next year, and at least one hundred dollars for in-staters and two hundred if no restoration is given."

"There will not be a room and board increase in the fall of '72. We're in the process of renegotiating our contract with SAGA which we renegotiate on a three year basis. The first year we won't increase room and board, that means the University will not quite break even. The second and third year will in effect absorb the loss factor for the first year."

Therefore we can restrict the room and board increases to about once every three years if it's necessary, because of inflation."

Dyson said that he knew of no movement in the House of Representatives that favored the granting of a restoration to UVM, but added, "Until the House has voted the bill and passed it on to the Senate, you can't say that the House had definitely refused President Andrews' request for a restoration. Whether I think it's probable, no I don't think it's probable."

Asked whether the administration was "surprised" by the apparent refusal of the restoration, Dyson replied, "I don't know how President Andrews felt. I haven't talked to him since the bill came out of committee. I think we were very hopeful that the Legislature would restore some funds and I think that after our hearing with the House Appropriations Committee and the Senate Appropriations Committee, we felt that the chances of our getting a restoration were a lot better than before we went, we just had that general feeling I had that feeling I think President Andrews shared it also."

Dyson then commented on the possibility that the program of "level funding" might be continued. And offered some suggestions as to what might be done to deal with this.

"I think there is going to be a combination of things done. We are starting now to closely re-examine all our expenses, all the programs at the University, and those programs that don't stand up to this scrutiny will probably be eliminated or severely cut back. If the tuition is going to continually increase it will be dependent upon financial aid systems and programs that will determine those who can attend college or not. Whether we get into a situation where only the wealthy can get into school, I don't think we'll get into that situation. I think that we'll have aid packages."

Characterizing the funding as "a shift in philosophy," Dyson stated, "This is the first time in my memory that a Governor has recommended level funding and then have the House also report out of committee at this level funding. That's the first time in my memory that that goes back to 1960."

"If the University is going to grow or develop new programs it will have to do so within the framework of a nine million dollar subsidy from the State. The philosophy is that tuition will have to play an even greater role in resources and if this is the case we will have to start pricing education a little closer to the cost factors."

"Those students that can afford to pay to come to the University will have to pay closer to the full cost of their education. Those students that can't afford it, hopefully will get financial aid."

"This kind of says 'raise the tuition and those that can afford to pay will pay and those that can't afford to pay will be able to go to the Vermont Student Assistance Corporation and get assistance so that they can go to school."

Dyson stated that this concept was plausible as long as it was not created in a vacuum. He warned that if all other private and public colleges followed different philosophies, UVM could be "pricing itself out of the market."

The Vice President noted that Vermont spends much less, on a dollar to dollar basis, on its University than do the other New England States.

He also remarked that one would presume that because of its high tuition, out-of-staters would be driven to seek other Universities than UVM. "But that's one of those things that just hasn't happened."

He said that there are aid programs operated by the Federal Government and other groups that are open to out-of-state students and also mentioned the grants-in-aid program as another means of allowing out-of-staters to attain financial help in meeting their educational costs.

"We would like to do more with reference to financial aid to out-of-staters but we haven't been able to get the resources yet, but I don't see in the immediate future our suffering for out-of-state applicants because of the tuition costs."

The Vice President also remarked that there is the possibility that the University might someday again become a private institution, but added that if we wished to continue operating with our present medical and agricultural facilities, some state funds would be required.

Fred Hunt, the Cats leading scorer was injured and will be out the rest of the season.

George Minarsky scores against Bowdoin.

Coronary Arteriography: Delicate Heart Surgery Performed At Medical Center

Coronary Artery By-Pass

Since as early as 1935 attempts have been made to improve blood supply to human hearts which have been impaired by arteriosclerosis, or "hardening of the arteries."

A 47-year old Burlingtonian and accountant at IBM, Mr. Joseph A. Provost, is grateful today that an apparently successful surgical treatment has been found for this disease.

Not only did he come from a family of many heart problems, but since 1958 Mr. Provost had himself suffered three heart attacks. After the second such attack in 1969, he was caused considerable anxiety by intermittent bouts with pain, fatigue and the always-present fear that "I might drop off tomorrow or next year."

In September of last year, he underwent coronary artery surgery at the Medical Center Hospital, a procedure now being performed with ready acceptance here and throughout the world. It is regarded very favorably because as was the case with Mr. Provost—it brings almost immediate relief from pain and seems to rehabilitate patients, even improving their heart function.

"Over The Hump"

Almost six months later, Mr. Provost feels he is "over the hump." "I don't feel tired anymore," he says. "I don't think I'm as excitable as I used to be. I feel I'm all right. I sure hope so!"

Coronary arteriosclerosis is a disease of the small blood vessels which branching off from the aorta nourish the heart muscle itself. The arteriosclerotic process results in gradual narrowing and eventual obstruction of these arteries. This deprives the heart muscle of the oxygen and nutrients it requires as fuel, and pain and heart failure result.

The patient is apt to develop a chronic, disabling symptom—angina pectoris—resistant to treatment by all available drugs. Because of this disabling pain he is unable to perform an active role in society. However, if the blood flow can be maintained, the heart becomes a salvageable muscle. Maintaining that blood flow is the purpose of coronary artery surgery.

Disease Is Major Killer

Because the disease is a major killer (the most frequent cause of death among middle-aged persons in this country) it is hoped that coronary artery surgery will improve longevity of such patients, and that surgical therapy will thus prove more effective than drug therapy.

This operation has very definitely proved effective in relieving angina pectoris. However, even though recent experiences suggest that these surgical patients are improving in that their hearts function better, and that heart failure is limited or much less severe, no statistical proof of these gains as yet exists, mainly because no control-group studies have been completed at this time.

Specifically, this particular surgical technique, known technically as "aorto-coronary by-pass" first involves removal of a vein from the body, generally a superficial vein from the leg. In much the same way as in a skin graft, this technique called coronary arteriography—was developed, one could determine which arteries were diseased, where the obstructions were and how severe they were. When this was known, he says, it was possible to design a surgical attack on the problem.

The internist in Mr. Provost's case, Dr. Carver Van Buren, had been caring for this patient since about 1961. He recalls that at one point, Mr. Provost considered traveling to Cleveland (where most coronary artery surgery originated) for his procedure. However, Dr. Van Buren suggested that he wait a bit longer, knowing that Dr. Coffin was soon coming to Burlington. When the new thoracic surgeon arrived, an appointment was made for Mr. Provost to see him and Dr. Richard Bouchard, the coronary specialist. On their recommendation, an angiogram was performed last June, and the surgery followed on September 3.

The surgeon performing this by-pass was Dr. Laurence H. Coffin who came here from Cleveland a year ago as chief of the thoracic and cardiac surgical service. Dr. Coffin says that Mr. Provost has done very well. Even though he did not require multiple by-pass grafts as do many patients, his disease was quite severe. In fact, beside the by-pass, it was also necessary to remove the calcified portion of the diseased coronary artery to permit free flow of blood through it once again. The lumen, or opening through it, had been pinched this vein is transferred into the chest and attached to the aorta as it arises from the heart just a short distance above the point from which the coronary artery normally arises (see accompanying diagram). This vein is then sutured into the

(continued on page two)

CYNIC Interview:

Warner Believes UVM Students Are Educationally Disadvantaged

Editor's Note: Mr. Richard Warner was elected chairman of the SENATE COMMITTEE ON EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES at its first meeting in September, 1970. The CYNIC asked Mr. Warner a few questions that were not covered in the committee's report. The report appears in its entirety on page 3 of this cynic.

Q: Various people have said that an increase in the number of Black students at UVM will be in competition with the educational needs of Vermonters who want to enroll at UVM. What is your reaction to these comments?

A: First of all, the University of Vermont is not only a Vermont institution. It is legally a state university, but in financial terms the state government is only a minority stockholder. It provides less than one quarter of UVM's budget. This means that calculations of racial balance at the University of Vermont should take into account factors other than the racial composition of the state of Vermont. They should take into account the racial composition of states such as New York, Massachusetts, and New Jersey because a large number of our out-of-state students come from those states. Further, since the Federal Government also provides substantial financial support to UVM, the racial percentages nationally should be taken into account. Therefore, it is quite misleading to say what some of our local media have said that we already have a higher percentage of blacks at UVM than in the state of Vermont. We must increase the percentage of black students here very substantially in order to meet our national and regional responsibilities.

Secondly, what really disturbs me about this question of out-of-state blacks versus white Vermonters is that it is a false choice—a choice that does not really have to be made. The state has been very stingy in its support of the University and the University has been very stingy in its support of disadvantaged students, regardless of their ethnic origin. It is strange that so many Vermont politicians have so suddenly become concerned about the University's obligation to their white constituents.

Finally, even if the enrollment of black students at UVM should happen to preclude the admission of a few white Vermont students it can still be argued that the gain in educational quality resulting from a substantial number of black students on this campus is more important than the number of Vermonters admitted to the University of Vermont. One of the reasons for the University's policy statement on "Multi-Racial Diversity" was concern about the quality of education that our white students receive. In our time, a hilly-white university cannot provide meaningful education for its white students. We need to have a substantial number of Black students on this campus as well as members of other ethnic and racial minorities in order to give our white students a proper education. Given the present level of minority group representation on this campus every graduate of UVM is, in my opinion, educationally disadvantaged. And if that is the case, it seems relatively unimportant to quibble over whether a few marginal Vermonters are going to be admitted here or not.

Q: I understand there were about 80 members of the entire 800 member faculty Senate present at the last meeting. A large majority at this meeting voted to approve the report of your committee. If all of the members were present, do you believe you would have received the same amount of support?

A: I think that a substantial majority would have favored it.

Q: President Andrews has already stated that the University cannot afford the $300,000.00 that you requested be set aside for this program. Do you feel this excuse is a scapegoat?

A: I think that whenever an organization believes that one of its programs is especially important and has a very high priority it will find the means to finance it. If the administration of this university gave the recruitment of minority group students the priority that is suggested by the policy statement on "multi-racial diversity," then we could find the money, even in this lean year.

Gene Person

Warner, chairman of the Senate Equal Opportunities Committee, explains the committee's report.

Chairman Of National High School Awards Named

A University of Vermont professor of English has been named state chairman for the national high school achievement awards program conducted annually by the National Council of Teachers of English.

Prof. Frank Manichel will coordinate the awards program among Vermont high schools and select judges for the competition, which selects winners in each state, the District of Columbia, and American schools overseas on the basis of their writing ability.

The winners and runners-up are recommended by the NCTE for scholarships and acceptance at the college or university of their choice. Past records show that over 80 percent of those who applied for financial aid received it, and over 90 percent were accepted by the college of their choice.

Each state's winners and runners-up are limited according to population. In Vermont, one in each category. The 1970 contest winner in Vermont was Edward P. Beckwith of South Burlington High School, and the runner-up was Susan T. White of Middlebury Union High School. Nationally, more than 7,300 students competed in the contest.

The state chairman for the 1970 Vermont contest was Prof. Edward F. Murphy of St. Michael's College.

Professor Manichel said he would select contest judges from among teachers of English in high schools and colleges, including department heads. He is the director of the La Mancha Project, an experimental program conducted through the UVM English department in cooperation with 11 Vermont high schools to explore new approaches to the teaching of English.

Nominating Committee Approved

In one of the last items of business in his term as Chairman of the Board, Trustee Edward R. Enoch of Waitsfield asked approval of nominating committees to name candidates for officers of the new Board which will sit April 17.

His nominations revealed the Board's composite structure, which is actually a combination of the Boards of Trustees of the University of Vermont and of the State Agricultural College.

The nominating committees, accepted by the Board, are for the composite Board of Trustees. Trustees Robert O'Brien, chairman, and Latham and George H. Sloan of Rutland; for the component State Agricultural College Board, Trustees Giuliano, chairman, and Elwyn E. Miller of Putney and Thomas H. Candon of Rutland, and for the University of Vermont Board, the oldest component of the three units, Trustees George Little of Burlington, chairman and Kenneth N. Scott of Grose Pointe, Mich. and Allen O. Eaton of Winchester, Mass.

Trustee Enoch said that after discussions with the student representative to the Board of Trustees, senior Edward F. Borden of Cherry Hill, N.J., it was agreed that student representatives should be involved in the nomination procedure, and the Trustees concurred.

The chairman of the department of technical nursing at the University of Vermont School of Nursing is the author of a book published recently by John Wiley and Sons, New York.

Miss Virginia O. Allen's volume is titled "Community College Nursing Education" and deals with associate degree nursing education. It is based on the first associate degree program in New England which began at Newton Junior College (Newton, Mass.) where Miss Allen was department chairman prior to coming to Vermont.

A nursing graduate of both Mount Sinai Medical Center (Long Branch, N.J.) and Seton Hall University, Miss Allen also holds the M.A. degree in administration and curriculum development from Teachers College, Columbia University. Miss Allen currently serves on a national review committee under the Division of Nursing, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is a member of the American Nurses' Association, the National League for Nursing and the New England Council of Higher Education for Nursing.

AN'T GET TOGETHER?
WE'LL WRITE IT,
DRAW IT, COMPOSE, PAINT, OR PHOTOGRAPH IT.
AND SUBMIT IT TO THE ART PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST.
ALL GENRES OF ROCK & ROLL
LITERATURE including but not limited to:
Folk, Blues, Mainstream, Avant-garde, Experimental, etc.
March 1, 4 PM BILLINGS WED. Bldg.

Dean Of Woman To Represent Public

U.S. Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson has asked University of Vermont Dean of Women Jackie M. Gribbons to serve as a representative of the public on the New England Regional Manpower Advisory Committee.

This Committee was established in the Department of Labor in September, 1965 pursuant to Sec. 205 of the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962 to advise the Secretary of Labor relative to the carrying out of his duties under the Act. At the request of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, the Committee also makes recommendations to him.

The New England Regional Manpower Advisory Committee

serves a region of the country consisting of the six New England States. It is an advisory body and has no responsibility for administrative or regulatory matters.

Miss Gribbons, who has been Dean of Women at the University since 1966, has accepted membership on the Committee. Her term will expire June 30, 1972.

Calendar/Announcements

Thursday, March 4
Varsity Skiing, NCAA Championship at Deadwood, S.D.
Varsity Hockey at Norwich, 7 p.m.
Lane Red Series Concert, Menhlin Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Memorial Auditorium; single admission tickets available—contact the Lane Office.

Friday, March 5
Varsity Skiing, NCAA Championship at Deadwood, S.D.
Electrical Engineering Seminar, Prof. R.D. Thornton, M.I.T.
Teaching Computers to Play the Game Called Design, 4:15 p.m., 320 Votey Building; coffee at 4 in Room 305.
Student Association special movie, "The Boys in the Band," 7:30 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building, $1.50.
Lane White Series Concert, Tom Rush, 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium.

Saturday, March 6
Varsity Skiing, NCAA Championship at Deadwood, S.D.
Varsity Skiing, St. Lawrence Carnival, Canton, N.Y.
Varsity Track at New Hampshire, 12 noon.
Varsity Swimming, Yankee Conference, 1 p.m., Forbush Pool.
Lane Film Society Series presents W.C. Field's "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, each preceded by a chapter of the Flash Gordon Serial, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Sunday, March 7
Varsity Skiing, St. Lawrence Carnival, Canton, N.Y.
Lane Red Series Concert, Canadian Opera Company, 8:30 p.m., Memorial Auditorium; single admission tickets available—contact the Lane Office.

WATCH FOR: Home Arts Group meeting. Last day for credit changes and withdrawal from Evening Division classes without academic penalty. March 8-10: Ethan Allen Rifles Blood Drawing. March 9: S.A. film, Crafts for the Home Group meets. March 10: Physics Colloquium. March 11: Lane White Series concert, Lorin Hollander. March 12: University Senate meeting, S.A. film, Folk dancing. March 13: Lane Series film, S.A. film.

THE DEADLINE for the Calendar covering events from March 8 through 14 will be Wednesday, March 3 at 10 a.m.

Monday, March 8
Last Day for credit changes and withdrawal from Evening Division Courses without academic penalty.

Ethan Allen Rifles Blood Drawing begins today, runs through March 10.

Tuesday, March 9
Student Association film, "Duck Soup," 8 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.
Ethan Allen Rifles Blood Drawing continues.

Open class in Environmental Quality, 101 Votey, 12:10-1:30 p.m., Guest speaker, Dr. Garth Voigt, Dean, The School of Forestry, Yale University.

Wednesday, March 10
Physics Colloquium, Prof. A.D. Crowell on "The Apparent Motion of the Earth Viewed from the Moon," written by Dr. James Dean (University of Vermont, 1815), 3:30 p.m., 104 Williams Science Hall; coffee at 3.
Ethan Allen Rifles Blood Drawing, final day.

Special Lecture

Special Lecture
Department of English
Walter Embler

Professor of Emeritus
Cooper Union Institute
"Figuratively Speaking"
Thursday, April 1, 1971
4:00 p.m. Marsh Lounge
Billings Center

Professor Embler, now a resident of Middlebury is the author of Metaphor and Meaning with a foreword by S. I. Hayakawa. His lecture will deal with "Literature as Metaphor." All are invited.

Orientation Leaders

Applications are now available for student leaders to work on this summer's Freshman Orientation. The sessions will be from June 16-28. Room and board plus a small financial bonus are provided for the leaders, who may come from any class. Applications may be picked up from any Resident Advisor, the S.A. desk in Billings, or either the Dean of Men's or Women's offices. They must be returned to the Dean of Women's Office by March 12.

White Out Weekend

UVMers will be in store for some winter madness this weekend when the Inter-Residence Association presents the second annual White Out Weekend. WOW was brought back this year due to an overly enthusiastic response by last year's participants.

On Friday, March 5th, WOW will be ushered in by the dormitories as they present amateur professional skits created by their talented selves. Response to the skits has been good so far and those who wish to see their colleagues as pseudo actors are invited to attend (and so are those who just want to have a good laugh and be entertained). Skits will begin at 8:00 p.m. at Patrick Gym and tickets will be sold at the door for 75 cents or can be bought at the Bookstore as part of the buffet and dance ticket.

Saturday's antics will revolve around all day skiing at Bolton Valley. For those who need transportation, buses will be leaving from Southwick Hall on Redstone Campus at 8:30 a.m., 11:00 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Ski enthusiasts will be able to ski the whole day for the low rate of $5.00 and all lifts will be operating.

Those who wish to prove their skiing skills can show themselves for their dormitories in the winter fun activities which

WATCH FOR A SYMPOSIUM
Professional Careers
For Women
Wednesday—March 17
Marsh Lounge—Billings
1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Auditions

Open auditions for "Who Will Walk With Me," a musical by E.Y. Harburg and Henry Myers, will be held on March 8, 9, and 10, at 7:00 p.m. in room B-6 of the Fleming Museum. Any interested persons should come prepared to sing a song.

Heart Surgery

(continued from page one)
coronary artery.
After the operation, Mr. Provost, along perfectly well because there are other veins there to carry the blood.

claims), in his own hospital room, on Saturday, September 5, and home the following Saturday.

As Dr. Van Buren says: "Everything seems to be progressing well. Mr. Provost has not been hospitalized since."

Summer Study Abroad

The Institute of International Education announces publication of the 22nd annual edition of Summer Study Abroad, its popular guide to summer programs overseas based on a survey of American and foreign institutions.

For the first time, the guide includes U.S. college sponsored programs abroad in addition to its listing of programs sponsored by foreign universities and private organizations. Almost 600 different academic offerings in countries around the world are cited. Each entry includes location, dates, course titles, and in many cases, tuition, living costs, and scholarship assistance available.

Although intended primarily for college-level students, the guide also includes some study abroad programs for younger students.

A brief bibliography at the back of the booklet lists publications providing additional information about summer courses in specific countries or regions, other types of summer opportunities such as international service projects and work camps, and educational tours sponsored by U.S. educational and travel organizations.

Summer Study Abroad 1971 is available from the Publications Division of the Institute of International Education, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York 10017, for $2.00 a single copy, 10-19 copies, at $1.75; 20-49 copies, at $1.65; 50 copies or more at $1.50. (Payment must accompany orders.)

Peace Corps Seeks Applications

Two Peace Corps representatives will be at the University of Vermont March 9, 10 & 11, in Billings Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. They urge all seniors to fill out an application now so that Peace Corps has the time to offer them a job and a country this spring, to begin training early this summer in April and May, too late to receive first consideration for the upcoming summer training. There is no commitment in applying. One is simply asking Peace Corps where and how he could be of assistance during the next two years. The applicant then makes his own decision to try Peace Corps or not. To many, Peace Corps is just another iron in the fire. There will be a highly controversial film "The Foreigners" (Peace Corps Volunteers) on Columbia shown on Wednesday, March 10 at 4 p.m. in Billings Conference Room A. The film was held by the state department because of the Anti-American sentiments expressed by the Colombians until the Peace Corps obtained its release. All are welcome to attend and make comments.

Steffenhagen, Leahy Collaborate On Drug Research Article

An article on the research into drug use among high school students in Chittenden County is included in a book, "Drug Dependence and Abuse Resource Book," recently published by the National District Attorneys Association.

Authors of the article are State's Attorney Patrick J. Leahy and Dr. Ronald A. Steffenhagen, associate professor of sociology at the University of Vermont.

In the book's introduction, the association states its position that "education is the only solution to the drug problem. Before we can educate, we must be educated." For that reason it gathered the writing of the nation's top authorities on the subject.

The article by Leahy, and Steffenhagen described the findings in January 1969 of 3,043 sophomores, juniors and seniors to find the drug use patterns at that age level.

They wrote that 7.1 per cent of the urban students and 5 per cent of the rural students admitted to smoking marijuana. In addition, 14.1 per cent of the urban and 14.3 per cent of the

IRA Executive Elections To Be Held

The term of the present President of Financial Affairs, officers of the Inter Residence is rapidly coming to a close. Consequently, the word is going out that all those interested in serving on the Executive Board next year of IRA should announce their candidacy soon. This can be done by signing up at the Student Association desk as soon as possible, for the election is on March 23.

The positions which will be open are 1) President, 1) Vice

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

We Want You To Join Our Church

As An Ordained Minister
And Have The Rank Of Doctor of Divinity

1. We are a non-denominational church. Our goal is to bring the Gospel of Jesus Christ to all people. We are currently seeking qualified individuals to join our staff. 2. We offer a competitive salary and benefits package. 3. We provide a challenging and rewarding environment. 4. We are located in a beautiful setting. 5. We are a growing church. 6. We are a diverse church. 7. We are a church that values its members. 8. We are a church that is committed to social justice. 9. We are a church that is committed to environmental stewardship. 10. We are a church that is committed to the well-being of our community.

4 Winds Gallery
FERRISBURGH, VERMONT
(Near Burlington and Lake Champlain)
Telephone 802 / 435-2101
MADEIRA C. BORDEN

In a beautiful setting, the Gallery has changing exhibitions and sales of original paintings, graphics, sculpture and fine crafts from many countries.

WINTER HOURS
Through April 15, 1971

WEDNESDAY, SATURDAY and SUNDAY
10:30-5:30 AND BY APPOINTMENT

April - December:

OPEN DAILY 10-6

THE GALLERY IS ONE MILE OFF ROUTE 7 - TURN EAST BETWEEN THE DAKIN AND SPADE FARM SHOPS, AND BEAR LEFT - 15 MILES SOUTH OF BURLINGTON - 8 MILES NORTH OF VERGENNES

Want To Work On The Cape Next Summer?

You can, if you know how to go about choosing a job, landing a job, and doing a job. Cape Cod employers need good Summer help, and thousands of college students need Summer jobs. We're not an employment agency, but our brochure, "HOW TO MAKE IT ON THE CAPE" provides the answers to all sorts of questions concerning Cape Cod Summer employment.

Act now, and you may be the early bird. Wait a month, and you may have to wait another year.

For our brochure, "HOW TO MAKE IT ON THE CAPE" send $1.00 to

CAPE COD CENTRAL
WELLFLEET, MASS. 02667

Faculty Se

Editor's Note: The Faculty Senate approved the SENATE COMMITTEE OPPORTUNITIES on February 11. Students and faculty have not seen this reprinted in its entirety.

Presented to the Senate Meeting of The Senate Equal Opportunities Committee September 1970. The following members appointed by the Senate Chairman on September 1970:

David Conrad
Jeremy Felt
Harry Lighthall
Brooks McCabe
Lawrence McCrory
Richard Warner, elected chairman at the first meeting, October 6.

At its second meeting, the Committee was perceived that it had no female members. Professor Margaret Whitley of the Economics was appointed to the Committee, on the recommendation of the Senate Policy Committee. The Equal Opportunity weekly Discussions have been held with Three black students:

Floie Wood, Linda Patterson
President Andrews
Vice President Rollins
Richard Gerard, Admission Professor Kenneth Saurman, who is developing a program for enrolling disadvantaged students in the University
Dean Robert Fordham
The University's Equal Employment Opportunity officer.

We have tried to act as well as advise. Connected certain themes and department chairs of selection committees, regular faculty members from minority group McCrory and Felt - have attempted to Washington D.C. and North Carolina, corresponded with predominantly black colleges information about potential black faculty.

On November 10, 1970, the Committee Andrews a memorandum (Attachment A) "reallocate funds from the current year recruitment of approximately 60 new program anticipated funds for fiscal year financial support as may be necessary for students. (This would be four times as much here now, but only a "token" one per cent of the total.) The Committee pledged that "just as soon as it is made, we will organize and enthusiastic tokenism fund drive among the University fellow Vermonters." If our proposals Administration, we would not need to present the Senate at this time. But they were Administration, the Committee has decided of the Senate with regard to the prior students.

University Policy

Basically, there are two approaches to education have taken to the problem of minority groups: (a) a "color-blind" conscious approach.

Letter To The

TO: The President

FROM: Senate Equal Opportunities

SUBJECT: University Financial Committee

Maintenance of Black Student. The purpose of this memorandum is to opinion as to the proper methods for a number of black students on this campus. In discussing this subject with you preliminaries. There is no need to review black enrollment should rise. No one committed to this goal than you.

When you and Vice President Rollins were impressed by your statements of racial equality and your willingness to positive and courageous action on this subject, we must work together. It is that we submit the following proposition:

1. Our immediate goal is to ensure that 1 percent of our student body (about 75) is a genuinely tokenized but it is, at least.

2. The high priority of this goal was approximately $300,000 from now. This amount will provide for full financial black students and the expenses piece (It is assumed that about 15 of the 75 little or no financial aid.)

3. Tokenism is not a "trick." Every "token" is a "visiting instructor" for our culture. Tokenism, an integral part of the education, is properly an institutionalized therefore, be financed entirely by institute.

4. One of the most important responsibility to go beyond tokenism far beyond percent black enrollment proportionate of our national population.

On the basis of the above proposition reallocate funds from the current year recruitment of approximately 60 new program anticipated funds for fiscal year financial support as may be necessary students. For our part, we pledge that commitment is made, we will promote a "beyond tokenism" fund community and our fellow Vermonters.

We look forward eagerly to the attack on the racism that infects our together, we must try to dispel. Rutland Herald journalist that Vermont and Mississippi is the prepared for some hard work in the decisions will be yours.

David Conrad
Jeremy Felt
Harry Lighthall
Brooks McCabe
Lawrence McCrory
Margaret Whitley
Richard Warner, Chairman

Faculty Senate Committee Interim Report On Equal Opportunities

Editor's Note: The Faculty Senate approved the interim report of the SENATE COMMITTEE ON EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES on February 11, 1971. Because many students and faculty have not seen this report, the CYNIC has reprinted it in its entirety.

Presented to the Senate Meeting of January 22, 1971

The Senate Equal Opportunities Committee was created in September 1970. The following members of the Committee were appointed by the Senate Chairman on September 25:

David Conrad
Jeremy Felt
Harry Lighthall
Brooks McCabe
Lawrence McCrory
Richard Warner, elected chairman at the first meeting, October 6.

At its second meeting, the Committee was seized with the sudden perception that it had no female membership. Accordingly, Professor Margaret Whitley of the Department of Home Economics was appointed to the Committee by the Senate Chairman, on the recommendation of our Committee and the Senate Policy Committee. The Equal Opportunities Committee has met weekly. Discussions have been held with:

Three black students —
Elaine Wood, Linda Patterson and Joyce Swan
President Andrews
Vice President Rollins
Richard Gerard, Admission Program Coordinator
Professor Kenneth Saurman, who is developing a program for enrolling disadvantaged students in the University
Dean Robert Fordham, the University's Equal Employment Opportunity officer.

We have tried to act as well as advise. Committee members have contacted certain Deans and Department Chairmen, as well as chairs of selection committees, regarding the recruitment of faculty members from minority groups. Two members — McCrory and Felt — have attempted to recruit black students in Washington D.C. and North Carolina, and the Committee has corresponded with predominantly black colleges in order to collect information about potential black faculty.

On November 10, 1970, the Committee transmitted to President Andrews a memorandum (Attachment A) recommending that he "reallocate funds from the current year budget to provide for recruitment of approximately 60 new black students, and reprogram anticipated funds for fiscal year 1972 to provide such financial support as may be necessary for a total of about 75 black students. (This would be four times as many black students as are here now, but only a "token" one per cent of the student body). The Committee pledged that "just as soon as this financial commitment is made, we will organize and enthusiastically promote a 'beyond tokenism' fund drive among the University community and our fellow Vermonters." If our proposals had been approved by the Senate at this time, but they were not. Rebuffed by the Administration, the Committee has decided to ascertain the sense of the Senate with regard to the priority of recruiting black students.

University Policy

Basically, there are two approaches that institutions of higher education have taken in the problem of discrimination against minority groups: (a) a "color-blind" approach; (b) a "color-conscious" approach.

The color-blind approach holds that entrance into high education should be based strictly upon "merit," without regard to race, color, religion, or nationality. The color-conscious approach holds that the color-blind approach is not a feasible means of achieving equal opportunity because of the cumulative effects of discrimination, that extraordinary efforts be made to compensate for past discrimination. The U.S. government has undertaken many compensatory programs, especially in the past five years or so. The color-conscious policy governing such programs was stated by President Johnson in a June 1965 address at Howard University:

"Freedom is not enough... You do not take a person who for years has been hobbled by chains and liberate him... It is not enough just to open the gate of opportunity. All our citizens must have the ability to walk through those gates..."

Most of us in the University community were brought up on the color-blind approach to equal opportunity. But many of us have been converted to "color-consciousness," and that is now the official policy of this University. In 1969 the Academic Council adopted, and the Trustees accepted, the following "Statement of Educational Policy Concerning Multi-Racial Diversity at the University of Vermont":

One of the most broadly supported policies of the University of Vermont is its commitment to maintain a diverse and widely recruited student population. Members of the University community subscribed many years ago to the central proposition that a university which serves its state and nation must draw its scholars, young and old, from different geographic environments and varied cultural backgrounds.

Diversity is essential for education as well as for service. Its catalogue has long stated this University's aim "to enhance the educational opportunities afforded Vermonters by the admission of students coming from many large and small communities outside Vermont's borders. This tradition provides a heterogeneity of background and experience for all students... and makes possible a breadth and depth of academic offerings which the University of Vermont otherwise might not be able to provide for Vermonters alone."

To maintain a reasonable and stimulating educational environment, the University must now supplement its efforts at geographic diversity with measures to attract a student population representative of the races of the state, the nation and the world. Learning goes on among students as well as between students and faculty. The learning will be limited, the educational environment inferior, if the students who teach each other are a homogeneous group, cast in a common racial mold, carved by the same social and cultural experiences. UVM students deserve the stimulation of colleagues who bring to them new points of view and unexpected questions. Alumni, moving freely in a national society must be prepared to understand and deal with an American culture of increasing racial diversity. This University and its students will soon be isolated and out of step with business, industry and other educational institutions if it does not reflect the fact that our nation is not composed of whites alone. It is the function of a university to prepare its students for life and leadership in their society. The University has an obligation to provide a multi-racial diversity in its population. Otherwise, its graduates — Vermonters as well as out-of-staters — will find themselves educationally disadvantaged.

It is not enough merely to welcome racial minorities to the university campus. UVM has, for many years, recognized the positive obligation of its administration "to provide facilities and to help create the conditions in which its faculty and students can pursue their educational responsibilities." In order to implement its expressed goals, the University must actively seek out such students and faculty and make them a part of the university community. Inasmuch as the largest such minority in the nation is the black population, priority must be given to the enrollment of qualified black students and the appointment of qualified black faculty.

Like any program, the policy of insuring a multi-racial diversity in the population of the University must be supported by the University corporation and community through the investment of time, effort and money.

We have quoted this statement in full because it justifies, as well as we could ourselves: (a) the goal of diversity in the University population and (b) the policy of according priority to the recruitment of black faculty and students.

A Solution To Funding Problem Of Equal Opportunity Program

Dr. Richard R. Warner
Government Research Center
475 Main Street
University of Vermont
Burlington, Vermont 05401

Dear Dick:

In the fall of 1969, Dr. Raül Hilberg made a proposal to the Equal Opportunity Committee to recruit 80 minority students. The committee accepted this and it was then forwarded to the Ad Hoc Trustee Committee on Equal Opportunity. This Ad Hoc Committee, chaired by Mr. Arthur Jones, made a report to the December 6, 1969, Trustees' meeting and among other recommendations, made the following statement:

It is doubtful that funds for 80 blacks on this campus could be raised in Vermont, for a sum in the order of magnitude of $300,000 yearly would be required. Should, however, a large number of any minority group develop on our campus, we have confidence in our administration, in our faculty, and in our students to maintain our standards of academic excellence and decent human relations.

In the fall of 1970, a similar proposal was made to Dr. Edward Andrews by the Faculty Senate Equal Opportunity Committee. This request was for 75 students and "an expenditure of approximately $300,000, from now through fiscal year 1972." The above illustrated proposal was rejected because the University could not afford it.

If I may, I would like to show you why the University can not afford not to fund the additional 75 minority students.

It costs approximately $3,800 per year for out-of-state students to attend the University. An exemplary break down would be as follows:

Tuition	$2,200.00
Room and Board	1,000.00
Comprehensive Fees	150.00
Books and Supplies	150.00
Spending Money	400.00
TOTAL	$3,800.00

Based on an assumption of 20 students per year with total need at current cost per year, the following estimates are presented:

FIRST YEAR — 20 STUDENTS
Per Student resources	Total Resources
Student summer earnings	$325.00 x20 $6,500.00

The Problem

The goal is still unmet. What is even worse, the policy of priority for recruitment of black faculty and students is not even being followed. Why? There must be two main barriers to the achievement of our objectives:

1. Financial austerity. Since November 10, when the Committee formally recommended to President Andrews that he reprogram funds to provide for a total of 75 black students, the financial picture seems to have become even more bleak.

2. Lack of a black community in the Burlington area. This problem is circular. It is very difficult to persuade black students to move to a location where there is no black community. There is not likely to be a genuine black community in Burlington until substantially more black faculty are hired at the University. But very few potential black faculty members would be interested in coming here with no more black students than we now have.

Formidable as these barriers may be, they could be surmounted if only the Administration of this University would make a systematic and sustained effort to surmount them. We are fortunate in having both a President and Vice President for Academic Affairs whose commitment to the goal of equal opportunity in higher education is unquestioned. If this were not the case, our Committee would have disbanded long ago. The necessary reallocation of resources cannot be made by faculty or students. It is inherently an administrative decision which only the Administration can make.

It is an unavoidable — and not necessarily unhappy — fact of life that administrators usually make important decisions only when pressured into it. Some pressure has recently been exerted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare with regard to the hiring of faculty and staff from disadvantaged groups. The Administration seems to be responding to this pressure. Active efforts are underway to recruit minority group members for administrative posts, and the President and Vice President have told our Committee that they will find the money to attract such persons to faculty positions that need to be filled this year. The Administration's response to our request regarding black students has been essentially negative. HEW is not pressing on the matter of students — at least not yet. Nor is hardly anyone else.

It may be argued that progress is being made, because the Administration proposed, and the Trustees approved at their December meeting, ten new Martin Luther King Scholarships, (which will probably result in a net gain of six black students next fall). But it is not progress to have 23 black students instead of 17. To think that it is merely strengthens the forces of institutional racism on this campus.

We are kidding ourselves if we think that we are doing this handful of black students any favors by bringing them to the snow-white University of Vermont. Rather than helping them, we are using them — using them to prevent the "black viewpoint" in our classes, using them as token symbols of integration and brotherhood, and using them to assuage our feeling of liberal guilt. At its present level of funding, the Martin Luther King Scholarship Program — no matter how noble its inspiration — is an insult to the memory of a great national leader and to the dignity of its people. It has brought to this campus a few talented young people who are gutsy enough to withstand our institutional racism. But it is essentially nothing more than a University-level, winter-time extension of the Fresh Air Fund.

The present program tends to have a harmful psychological effect on its beneficiaries. A black person 17 or 18 years old, beset by the same identity crises as any other person of that age, needs the warmth, love, and support that can be provided only by community. But in our University and the Burlington area there is no community to which he can fully relate. As a result, his personal development is seriously thwarted. We should not continue a program which hurts the people it was intended to help.

In its place, there should be a concerted effort to create the conditions for building a genuine black community in the Burlington area. Only through such a community can the University meet the educational and social responsibilities set forth in the policy statement above. Since the lack of a black community is a circular problem, it cannot be solved by attacking it a piece at a time. All dimensions of the problem must be attacked at once. There must be simultaneous:

1. a dramatic increase in the financial resources devoted to the recruitment and maintenance of black students
2. the same for black faculty and staff
3. an effort to being a dialogue between the University and present black residents of the Burlington area regarding other necessary means for creating a black community.

This will cost money, but if the University makes a genuine commitment to equal opportunity, budget priorities will be altered. In November 1970, the Committee recommended to President Andrews that the University should commit approximately $300,000.00 from now through fiscal year 1972. This amount will provide for full financial support of about 60 black students and the expenses necessary to bring them here. Subsequently, Vice President Rollins stated that such a commitment could not be made.

Committee member Brooks McCabe has conducted an analysis — based on official University data — of the financial aspects which indicates that by no means all of the necessary funding would have to come from general University funds. (Attachment B. McCabe's analysis assumes a program of full financial aid for 20 new black students each year, a program which the Committee considered and found inadequate. But his calculations can easily be converted to the larger program we have recommended.) Presently it costs an out-of-state resident approximately $3,800.00 per year to attend the University. If approximately 20 new black students were to be admitted each fall, we could probably expect to have in the neighborhood of 60 black students at the start of the 4th year. The total cost of such a program (based on $3800.00) would be $640,000.00. However, approximately two-thirds of this amount could come from sources such as N.D.E.A. loans, Educational Opportunity Grants, Work-Study Programs and Students' summer earnings. Thus, less than $225,000.00 would have to come from other sources. If in-state tuition figures are used, the amount from other sources would be less than $50,000.00 over the four year period.

So far as this Committee has been able to determine, the University has never even considered using existing programs to assist in recruiting minority students. Among the programs which might be used are Tuition-Exchange Programs with other New England State Universities, Tuition-Remission Programs for children of faculty members of other institutions, and Grant-In-Aid Programs. Annually the University receives unrestricted gifts from friends and alumni which could be used to help support minority students. Also, some new methods of financing equal opportunity programs have been supported by faculty members. Regardless of the sources of financing, we find it hard to believe that this University cannot spend even one per cent of its budget to ensure that one per cent of its student population will be black. How can we persuade the Administration of this University to "put its money where its mouth is"? On budget matters, the Senate cannot decide; it can only advise. The appropriate mechanism for Senate advice in this field is the newly-created Financial Policy Committee. The first task assigned to that committee should be to formulate a financial plan to provide for a black student population of at least 75 beginning this fall.

RECOMMENDATION

We recommend unanimously that the Senate instruct its Financial Policy Committee to:

1. Review immediately our Committee's cost estimates for a black student population of at least 75 beginning this fall
2. Establish a firm cost estimate for this program
3. Identify possible reductions in other University activities in an amount necessary to finance the program
4. Consider recommending to the President that the reductions actually be made — and the funds reprogrammed for the recruitment and maintenance of black students.

It is our hope, of course, that such a recommendation to the President will be rendered unnecessary by his own prompt decision to reprogram the necessary funds (subject to the Trustees' approval). If the Administration of this University does not take the measures necessary to increase the black population to about 75 students by next fall, it will, in our judgment be in clear violation of the policy on equal opportunity approved by the Academic Council and the Board of Trustees. It may also be vulnerable to legal action alleging violation of Federal civil rights laws and regulations.

As President Andrews reminded us in a memorandum to all faculty and staff last fall, "We have a larger moral responsibility not simply to affirm a policy of non-discrimination but also to take positive action to promote it." It is time to translate these words into dollars and cents.

TOTAL OUTSIDE RESOURCES
First Year	$455.00 x20 $9,100.00
Second Year	455.00 x35 15,925.00
Third Year	455.00 x50 22,750.00
Fourth Year	455.00 x60 27,300.00
TOTAL	$77,075.00

There are several variables which must be mentioned. In order for the tuition to be reduced to in-state figures, the Board of Trustees must take action. Without using resident tuition, the Board of Trustees is in no way involved. There is no guarantee the University will get the required Federal funding and if it does, the University must match the work study grants. UVM must obtain $223,575.00 or $77,075.00 depending on tuition used, from outside resources. This includes gifts and foundation grants. In short, the University must spend money to obtain the necessary funds.

To my knowledge, the University has at no time adequately studied additional means of financing black students with some of our existing programs. Tuition Exchange is a good example. Here students in the New England states can go other New England state universities and pay the in-state tuition for programs their University does not offer. Possibly UVM could recruit blacks from the Boston area using this approach.

Tuition remission allows students whose parents are faculty members to go to other schools with a reciprocal non-payment of tuition. Vermont has made no attempt to recruit minorities using this method.

In-state blacks and athletic scholarships are two other areas where we have been lacking in formal recruitment.

The Nursing Student Loan and Scholarship Programs of the Federal Government are examples of unused potential. Here the student can get up to $1,500.00 in both loans and scholarships of which the University has no responsibility to match.

Lastly, there are the unrestricted gifts of alumni that could be used for minority recruitment. The point is that money can be found. With the assistance of Federal funding, UVM would only have to be responsible for 30% of the expense. It is unfair of the University to argue that they can not afford it. The only argument they can present is that of priorities.

In closing, I hope that the above information has been of some importance and benefit.

Sincerely,
Brooks F. McCabe, Jr.

Announcements

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Ship at Deadwood, S.D.

Orchestra, 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available — contact

Auditions

Open auditions for "Who Will Walk With Me," a musical by E.Y. Harburg and Henry Myers, will be held on March 8, 9, and 10, at 7:00 p.m. in room B-6 of the Fleming Museum. Any interested persons should come prepared to sing a song.

Heart Surgery

(continued from page one)
coronary artery... After the operation, Mr. Pro along perfectly well because there are other veins there to carry the blood. clamped in his own hospital room on Saturday, September 5, and home the following Saturday.
As Dr. Van Buren says, "Everything seems to be progressing well. Mr. Provoost has not been hospitalized since."

Weekend

have been planned for different times during the day. At 1:30 p.m. those who are advanced (and even those brave novices) can ski for their dorms in a slalom race. Trophies will be awarded to the winners. At 3:00 p.m., a snow shoe race will be run and at the same time, dormitory women will show their creativity as they compete in a powder puff snowman building contest. Athletes better bring their spikes because at 7 p.m. dorms will compete in a tug of war on ice!
Following the days vigorous activities, a buffet dinner will be served from 5-7 p.m. in the ski lodge. Dancing (which will also be in the ski lodge) will begin at 8 p.m. Music will be supplied by "Good Grief," a hot new group entertaining the Burlington area. Tickets for the buffet and dance and skis (for those who buy tickets beforehand) will be $3.50.

Night skiing for those left with enough energy will be available for a fee of $3.00 and, for the occasion, lifts will be open an extra hour, from 6-10 p.m. instead of the customary 7-10 p.m.

White Out Weekend is a singles weekend though couples are most enthusiastically invited. Tickets will be sold at the Bookstore at a uniform price per ticket. No couples rate will be in effect.

Letter To The President

TO: The President
FROM: Senate Equal Opportunities Committee
SUBJECT: University Financial Commitment for Recruitment and Maintenance of Black Students

The purpose of this memorandum is to set forth our unanimous opinion as to the proper methods for substantially increasing the number of black students on this campus beginning September, 1971. In discussing this subject with you, we can happily skip the preliminaries. There is no need to review with you the reasons why black enrollment should rise. No one is more profoundly committed to this goal than you.

When you and Vice President Rollins met with us October 27, we were impressed by your statements of dedication to the cause of racial equality and your willingness to promote that cause by positive and courageous action on this campus. If such action is to succeed, we must work together. It is in this spirit of cooperation that we submit the following propositions:

1. Our immediate goal is to ensure that by September, 1971, one percent of our student body (about 75 students) will be black. This is admittedly tokenism but it is, at least, a start.
2. The high priority of this goal warrants expenditures of approximately $300,000 from now through fiscal year 1972. This amount will provide for full financial support of about 60 black students and the expenses necessary to bring them here. (It is assumed that about 15 of the 75 black students will require little or no financial aid.)
3. Tokenism is not a "trick." Every "token" black student is a "visiting instructor" for our culture-bound white majority. Tokenism, an integral part of the educational program of the University, is properly an institutional responsibility. It should, therefore, be financed entirely by institutional funds.
4. One of the most important responsibilities of the University is to go beyond tokenism — far beyond it, at least to an eleven percent black enrollment proportionate to the black percentage of our national population.

On the basis of the above propositions, we recommend that you reallocate funds from the current year budget to provide for recruitment of approximately 60 new black students, and reprogram anticipated funds for fiscal year 1972 to provide such financial support as may be necessary for a total of about 75 black students. For our part, we pledge that, just as soon as this financial commitment is made, we will organize and enthusiastically promote a "beyond tokenism" fund drive among the university community and our fellow Vermonters.

We look forward eagerly to these modest first steps in a joint attack on the racism that infects our campus and State. Working together, we must try to disprove the recent assessment by a Bethel Herald journalist that "the only difference between Vermont and Mississippi is the Mason-Dixon Line." We are prepared for some hard work in the months ahead. But the hard decisions will be yours.

David Conrad
Jeremy Felt
Harry Lighthall
Brooks McCabe
Lawrence McCrory
Margaret Whitley
Richard Warner, Chairman

The New Reformation

University Bureaucracy Seen As Unessential, Dispensable

by John Perry

Last week we proposed to redefine the concept of "Tenure" so that it once again defended Academic Freedom rather than Academic Incompetence. Quite predictably, we received several phone calls arguing that "Tenure should NOT be abolished," an argument with which we heartily agree. It is disheartening that the faculty sees only two absurd alternatives: (1) retain the present system or (2) abolish tenure entirely. Surely, as we argued last week, there are other possibilities.

Many of the University's problems have been laid upon the tripartite distinction within higher education of students-faculty-administration. It is no mere mythology that these three power groups are constantly at war. The problem could be greatly simplified by removing one of the three groups, then we would have a two-party problem, and that would be easier to solve.

Students, of course, cannot be eliminated, since they pay the bills. Faculty, likewise, must be retained because they teach, and not even the most radical advocate of the multiple use of the University proposes to do away with teaching, at least not in public. It follows, then, by syllogistic reasoning, that it is the administration which can and must be eliminated in order to solve the University's problems.

Some will immediately argue, of course, that even if it were desirable, it is impossible for organizations to rid themselves of superfluous bureaucratic hierarchies. But this argument has only one logical conclusion: if the University has only to look at organized religion for contrary evidence, The Episcopal Church in America has recently announced that it is abolishing 50% of its national executive positions this year. For primarily financial reasons, they are reducing their administration from 204 to 103 staff members by the end of 1971. It can be done.

Others will argue, from a seemingly stronger position, "Who will do their work?" if we eliminate administrators. To this question we reply, "What work?" with full seriousness. In a bureaucracy the size of UVM's, most of the work of any administrator consists in writing memoranda to other administrators. If we eliminate most administrators, we will ipso facto eliminate a majority of their work.

This essay will forego the luxury of illustrative examples, although many could be provided, for two reasons: First, to name names would be to focus attention unduly on particular jobs, whereas what is said here applies universally. And second, to name names would unduly embarrass some very fine human beings who are not themselves the problem, but unwitting victims of it.

Elimination of bureaucratic replication and inefficiency will reduce the amount of administrative "work" to a manageable size. And who will do it? The two groups remaining, of course, students and faculty.

Historically, administration was always done by the faculty, in rotation, in shared responsibility. According to eye-witnesses, this was true at UVM as recently as the early 1950's. Decisions were made by the faculty, on a volunteer basis. As the whole enterprise became more complex, two avenues were open, and for reasons evident the faculty chose the worst alternative; they hired administrators to do their work. Gradually they hired more and more specialists to carry out particular assignments and policies.

Then (and no one is quite sure when it happened) a structural shift occurred. The administrators began to actually make policy instead of merely executing faculty decisions. (At this point the tail began to wag the dog.) Then a milestone was passed when administrators passed policies enabling them to hire more administrators. (To keep the metaphor, the dog became a crocodile.)

It would be a mistake to pin the blame on individuals. This pattern of increasing centralization has occurred in federal government, organized religion, and American industry, as well as higher education. Ironically the radical right (state's rights) and the radical left (all-power-to-the-people) are united in their mutual opposition to over-centralization.

The solution to the problem of professionalized administration is simple. Administrators will be divided into two groups, those who make policy decisions and those who execute policy.

Those who make policy decisions would be faculty members first, and administrators second. All policy makers, from the President on down, would be required to teach at least one regular "course" each semester. Depending on the administrative job, they would be relieved of one or two teaching assignments per semester in order to administer.

Revolutionary Consequences Seen

The consequences of such a policy would be, if you will pardon the word, revolutionary. Since administrators would be required to have and maintain faculty rank in their academic department, all administrators would come under the protection and responsibility of the Tenure System! They would have to earn tenure the same as everyone else, and be approved by their academic peers. Since student evaluation of teaching would be a part of any revised tenure system, all administrators would also have the support and respect of the student body. Revolutionary!

For the skeptics, we offer examples where this policy has already worked. Vice-President Rollins, when he was Dean, offered a history course which, according to reliable reports, he actually enjoyed. Richard Does, head of Counseling and Testing, also holds a joint appointment in the Psychology Department where he teaches at least one course and supervises clinical experience of graduate students.

This radical policy (which is really arch-conservative and restorative) could be implemented at once. It is marvelously simple. All administrators must be teachers, too. Many administrators would in secret desire such a policy. Others would be furnished with slow recommendations to less enlightened schools. Those who wanted to re-tool could be given, say, a certain number of years to complete their Ph. D. in an academic subject. (Exceptions could be granted with the same frequency as now employed—one each decade.)

Students would have a role in the new system, too, by a simple extension of the existing work-study program. All non-decision administrative jobs would be made available to students on a part-time basis. The proportions, of course, would have to be adjusted; student clerks would work, like their bosses, two-thirds of the time and spend the other third in the classroom. With rising tuition costs, such proportions may be necessary in the future, anyway. This would also allow UVM to do away with the two free courses presently allowed each so-called full-time employee.

Since administration would ultimately revert to the faculty, the present failure of the work-study program would be eliminated. Students would not be able to ditch their work-study assignments at exam time without the faculty knowing about it. And since the faculty would be the administration, the two groups would no longer be working at cross purposes in making assignments.

It may be objected that faculty members do not want to administer, they want to teach. On closer inspection, however, this argument appears to be a simple self-fulfilling prophecy. Like ordinary

Gallup Poll On Students

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS) —

Almost seventy percent of today's college students agree that there is too little emphasis on family life in the United States today, according to a poll sponsored by NEWS-WEEK magazine.

The survey, conducted by the Gallup Organization, and in which 1,061 students on 61 campuses across the country were interviewed during Dec., also found nearly half saying the same thing about the individual's financial security. Sixty-one percent felt there should be more emphasis on strong national leaders.

While 31 percent of the students said their university was too impersonal, only 13 percent said it was too conservative. Comparatively few—16 percent—felt their college courses were not relevant.

When it came to science and technology, 42 percent said that those areas had received too much emphasis in the country today.

John F. Kennedy led (with 34 percent) the men most admired by today's college students. Second was Martin Luther King, 18 percent (although only one-tenth of the students polled were black); and Robert Kennedy was third with 17 percent. President Nixon finished a distant fourth, with nine percent.

A preponderant 63 percent selected Ernest Hemingway as their favorite author, followed by George Orwell (41 percent) and J. D. Salinger (34 percent). Sex novelist Jacqueline Susann was the favorite of nine percent.

Views From A Silver Roof

by Carol Sabatini Brown

I've recently seen for the first time, "The President's Analyst" on the NBC Saturday night movie. All this gal can say is how plausible indeed!

A thought: Possibly Colleges are not subject to the same accounting tenets as business, as some contend, but they should at least be near.

Getting back to the movie, one line I thought was a gem, "America is becoming more socialistic, Russia is becoming more capitalistic—soon they'll converge . . ." In that vein anyone read about Revenue Sharing? (From where I sit the villains get the loot.)

And, looks like we're getting a preview of the Presidential Campaign: President Nixon is arranging the economy so it should be a great agglomeration of creeping inflation (3) and full employment (4%)—of course some brilliant people say this isn't possible. The President is a great poker player and His bet is that things should jell his way between August and October '72 . . . so who needs more reassurance? The President's Welfare Reform and Revenue Sharing reek of "Southern Strategy"; Laore is securing a lot of jobs for Shitheads, so that campaign is well on its way.

On the Police Action (hereafter referred to as P-A in this column): Senators McGovern, McCluskey (R)-Cat and Muskie are still verbally anti-P-A, but that's passe isn't it? Seems like they're in the congressional and nation (Young Republicans) minority if one can believe the "Boob tube". Incidentally, I love the UN TV AD for "The Force of Reason".

I was so pleased to hear an esteemed representative of GBIC indicate that they were now interested in Ecology. Especially with the housing situation the way it is. With total unemployment racing past 7% (Free Press) I wish some one would confer with the unemployed concerning the change of direction of the one Job Development Agency in the area.

Mr. Vice President Agnew said he felt some "needed changes" (regarding his golfing). Sir, SO DO I and I HAVE NO REFERENCE TO YOUR GOLFING!

My sons (Chris 10 and George 7) went back to school this week—my deepest condolences to their teachers! IF any of you would like to see innovative teaching in action, may I suggest you drop by H. O. Wheeler school.

Well, my homework is done for today, so is my housework, TV (cable) is bugged up again so I guess I'll hit the hay, see you next week.

At the risk of imitating our local daily, I wish to congratulate the voters of Burlington on choosing civic dedication, experience, and honesty overall in the mayoralty. It's all yours now, Mayor Paquette.

Jesse James and Co.

167 Church St.
Burlington

We have captured the excitement of spring

With candles and lites and jewelry

and all kinds of unusual things

Things for spring.

Whitey, Wake Up!

by R.F.M.

Whitey, are you beginning to become concerned about the lack of minorities on this campus? Can you see how your education has suffered because of this deficiency? The University has several built-in blockades to obstruct minority representation, the most firmly entrenched being the Board of Trustees.

Whitey, is UVM controlled by the Vermont Legislature? What an outrageous question! But consider these facts. Nine members of the Board of Trustees are chosen by the State Legislature. Three are chosen by the Governor. Nine are chosen by Alumni Trustees. Therefore twelve of the twenty-two Trustees are appointed by the State Government, or 55%. Because the Trustees control UVM's budget, and a majority of them are State appointees, the State controls this University's budget. However, only 30% of UVM's funds come from the State. Do you see how State control is out of proportion?

This large number of legislators also poses another problem for the Board. Because these men are elected officials, they will be most sympathetic to their constituent interests, not the University's. If UVM considers funding minority interests, and the folks at home are opposed, where does the Trustees stand? Does he lobby for the University in Montpelier, or does he defend Montpelier at the Board meeting?

In addition to this conflict of interest what are the other handicaps of the Board of Trustees? The average Board member is 56 years old. He might be the Vice-President of General Motors, a Director of the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Corporation or of the Vermont Petroleum Association, or a member of the Elks Club. To become a Trustee a person must be a successful businessman or politician. No mention is made of the person's qualifications as an educator. Also, these criteria effectively screen out most young

(continued on page seven)

Pegton's yardstick
ON
115 St. Paul St. The Park
"Fine Fabrics for the Home Sewer"

THE NEW VICTORIAN INN

BUFFET
LUNCHEONS SERVED

MON.-FRI.
11:30-2:30

$1.49

Monique & John Ladue Innkeepers
1710 Shelburne Road
South Burlington, Vt.
864-0338

The Nursemaid State...

Does America Want It?

So those manly, womanly, beautiful people calling over TV-radio from open range and the banks of cool waters will no longer be permitted to seduce and corrupt us with the charms of Lady Nicotine. And if tobacco is in truth so dread a curse that it must be banished from TV-radio, by what logic can it still be flaunted in print? Surely cigarette ads should now be banned also from magazines, newspapers, billboards, and matchbooks? But ads are not the heart of the matter. What an outrage, what a crime against humanity, that there should be cigarettes! Let the factories be shut, plantations plowed under!

Snuffing out the filthy weed, can we overlook the beer and wine beckoning us from the hypnotic screen, or the tantalizing displays of booze that fill so many columns of the printed media? The statistical correlation between alcoholic ingestion and torpor of the liver, not to speak of the myriad physical and psychic ills of alcoholism, is more firmly established than that between smoking and the cancerous troubles of lungs, mouths and throats. Therefore, no more alcoholic drinks—at the very least, no more mention of them in public places!

How about butter, cheese, milk and eggs? Have we not been told by the wise men that all these and their similars are crowded with cholesterol which, seeped into our blood streams, fills our arteries enough to hold a tobacco allotment.

With a fatty coating that brings on stroke and heart attack? And while we are being guarded against all dangers, let them not forget the incredible plot—vaster by far than the cigarette conspiracy—that through all media subverts us into buying those deadly autos that exact a yearly toll in death and injury much higher than the cigarettes can be accused of. Is it not clear that every TV-station presenting auto commercials becomes thereby responsible for X number of deaths? What is GM other than a Murder, Inc.? Nor should we overlook those ads for skis and ski resorts; an invitation to leg fractures and back twittings. Verboten!

The Nursemaid State: Is this what American consumers, American citizens, really want? Are we such babies that we need a million bureaucratic nannies to wipe our noses and change our diapers? Or are we grownups who prefer to make up our own minds, who know that life is not a nursery, and that every choice carries with it risk as well as promise?

Still, it's fun to note that the government doesn't let its producer-subsidizing hand know what its consumer-eodding hand is doing. The Department of Agriculture continues shelling out its tens of millions of dollars to any farm operator lucky enough to hold a tobacco allotment.

Conscientious Objectors Queried On Grandmothers

MASTERING THE DRAFT

Copyright 1971 by John Striker and

Andrew Shapiro

Homocide and the C.O.

"If two Nazi Stormtroopers were killing your grandmother, would you resort to deadly force to repel them?" Every day across the country, applicants for the conscientious objector exemption are being asked this, or a similar, question.

Such a question would only be amusing were it not the source of some very real problems. In many cases, the local board members asking the question actually believe it is pivotal: if the young man is willing to kill the Stormtrooper, he cannot qualify for the exemption. Many young men also believe the question is significant since it is asked so often. These young men may decide not to apply for the C.O. exemption because they are willing to kill the Stormtrooper. Or they may quietly accept a I-A classification. Or they may be tempted to compromise their convictions and allow their grandmothers to die.

In fact, however, whether a young man would actually kill the Nazi or not has no legal bearing upon his qualifications for the conscientious objector classification. The courts have repeatedly and uniformly distinguished between a willingness to use force and a willingness to participate in war.

The Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, for example, recently decided that "The statute providing exemption for conscientious objectors does not speak of objection to force, but rather of conscientious objection to participation in war in any form." Agreement that force can be used to restrain wrongdoing, especially as the last alternative, has little bearing on an attitude toward war. We would not expect a full-fledged conscientious objector to stand by while a madman sprayed Times Square with machine gun bullets, or while an assassin took aim at the President.

In light of court decisions such as this one, why do local boards still continue to import Nazi Stormtroopers into the local board hearing? This reporter asked Draft Director Dr. Curtis Tarr. He responded: "Now, if I were a member of a local board, I would ask many questions that would not be asked here. I would ask want the real registrant to come out. It's just like when I'm teaching a class. I try to ask all kinds of provocative questions. You've read Plato. You know what Socrates did. You ask any question that you think will provoke the person to say what he really believes. So you ask all kinds of leading questions. You see, I don't make up my mind that he's not a conscientious objector just because he says, 'Sure, I'd defend my grandmother.' But I might begin to get some information by which I can begin to examine what that guy really thinks."

Using provocative questions to determine a registrant's sincerity is legitimate. Sincerity is one of the requirements for the C.O. exemption. The manner in which a registrant answers a question is a legitimate consideration in determining his sincerity. Local boards, therefore, often ask difficult questions which may force a registrant to reveal that he has not thought about war and killing very much.

For example, boards often ask C.O. applicants whether they are willing to pay taxes and thereby participate in the purchase of war machines which will eventually be used to kill people. Of course, the C.O. exemption is not restricted to tax resisters. However, registrants who have not thought about such questions often become confused and contradictory. Such responses provide a basis for denying the exemption since they reflect adversely upon the registrant's sincerity.

Therefore, any young man seeking the C.O. exemption should prepare himself for questions which may not relate directly to his qualifications for exemption. Though not directly relevant to his case, these questions are important in determining a registrant's sincerity.

The rules outlined above have resulted from a number of court cases over the past few years. Undoubtedly, some local board members are not aware of these cases. They still feel that a registrant who is willing to kill the Stormtrooper cannot qualify for exemption. If a board member used this reasoning in order to deny the C.O. exemption, he would be acting improperly. Any registrant who feels his board has acted improperly and who is ordered for induction should not delay in consulting an attorney. He will not only be helping himself, he will also help the young men who will confront his board in the future.

David L. Ingraham

and Loyalty

type of oath should they take that many hard workers just waiting for America. And for that matter, Every freshman, upon being required to take an oath that he will faithfully serve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, the State of Vermont, who have a duty to attend their studies and to be added to the Student body or shower regularly, and what is good for our country is good for our Loyalty Oath would be a good question?

bage

the cardboard assuring you. Leave a little leftover for the shake. Stab the secure ring. Leave a little in the won't need to draw the apple pie. Tear an end will slip a lonely little slice for the rats at the dump. A one-sided assuring assuring (After all, haven't 7 billion this system to date?) (continued on page seven) able at the Ariel Office in between 11 a.m. and 1 p To Date

our own conclusion on this form of democracy? This believe by action and by believe that other forms of other cultures? Apparently ing practice of economic into serious problems. Other Manifest Destiny," such as as of our internal forms of anas—are fighting back. If as imperialism, whether it is rectly the situation in some serious trouble. We have less to fear from the results of ation and China continue to hence, and the United States ever at expansion, peace can one nation of these three is power it already possesses. Absolute power may seem the writer, for one, feels that the nation One, the ability to world. Two, enough wealth, EN with a decent life. And to honestly strive for peace, peace. As long as we are not just have power and control, peace, but are not willing to peace is that this generation without the world power fetch

EDITOR

Alumnus
Praises
Cynic

To the Editor:
I've been getting at this episode for some time but at age 70 it's easy to put off things! I want you and all your staff to know that my wife, Mary, and I are tremendously impressed with the fine job you folks are doing. There was a time in the past when I could not have written this letter and be truthful! Keep up the good work!

Jack Johnson '14

cover it

NEVERMORE

8 No. Winslow Ave.
864-5294

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

A 1971 College Press Service
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823

QUESTION: The topic of a recent discussion in my Wilderness Survival class was how the astronauts urinated and defecated under zero gravity conditions while confined in a space suit, and what became of the wastes. After many humorous quips, including "Remember how funny they walked when they stepped out of the hatch on those early flights?" no one really knew. Could you enlighten us?

ANSWER: Under zero gravity, a person can still urinate and defecate as these functions are dependent upon muscles to develop the pressure to expel what needs to be eliminated. Thus, it is a matter of what to do with the stuff.

Urine is collected through a device known as condom drainage. This is a condom with a hose at the end which goes to a plastic bag strapped in a bag. Usually it can be emptied without trouble, although I've heard rumors that some dispersed urine floating around in the space vehicle accounted for fogged windows on one trip.

To master the matter of feces, the astronauts are on a low residue diet and have very modest amounts of stool production over the relatively few days they are in space. They wear diapers to receive the feces produced.

Yes, they complain about the whole thing.

QUESTION: I have noticed that at times one of my eyes is dilated more than the other. I am curious as to the cause and remedy. My eyeglasses are perfect. I have high blood pressure, but take no medication.

ANSWER: Most cases of unequal pupils have no particular cause and are variations of normal. Unequal pupils can also occur when there is an irritation in one eye. Escalating to an extremely dangerous cause of a dilated pupil is the possibility of a bulging of an artery (aneurysm) located in a position where it presses against nerves controlling the size of pupil. With a history of high blood pressure, I would urge you to check immediately with a physician to make sure that this condition is not out of control.

QUESTION: We are told that we shouldn't let raw meat which has been frozen, thaw and then be refrozen again. Is this true? If it is true, then why? I also have been told that if meat is cooked you can let it thaw and be refrozen. Is this true? P.S. I have a thawed refrozen steak I'm dying to get at, if you could let me know soon...

ANSWER: Assuming that no bacterial contamination of the food has taken place, there is no harm in eating foods that have been thawed and refrozen. However, it is possible that the taste will suffer. The explanation of this was provided to me by a very helpful food science professor.

When foods are frozen commercially, they are frozen very rapidly at very low temperatures resulting in minimal ice crystal formation. Each time the food is thawed and refrozen, especially in the home freezer where the process takes a long time, moisture tends to leave the cells and form ice crystals within the structure of the meat. This results in a gradual dehydration of the meat and the meat is no longer as tender. Thus, your refrozen steak might not be quite as good as it would have been had you cooked it the first time around, but the diminution in flavor is probably small at this point.

With cooked food dehydration can also occur, but may be lessened since the food is often packed in gravy or broth.

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

LIVE
OR DIE
YOU CANNOT LOSE

Bruce F. McCabe, Campus Representative
184 So. Winoski Ave., Burlington, VT. 05403-6073

National Life
of Vermont

Tricky Knicks

Lace up your knee high boots and step out looking knifty in close-fitting knickerbockers from the Mayfair. These in blue herringbone cotton, sizes 5-13, $12. Lots more, too at $12-$13.

MAYFAIR

Church Street - Burlington
Open till 9 Friday evenings

WHY?

WHY DO FRYE BOOTS COST
MORE THAN BOOTS OF
SIMILAR DESIGN?

- ALL-LEATHER COWHIDE
- FULLY LINED WITH CALFSKIN
- PRE-CRIMPED VAMP
- OIL-TREATED SOLE
- HEEL OF P.V.C. AND NEOLITE
- RIBBED SPRING-STEEL ARCH
- COPPER BRASS HARDWARE
- IMPREGNATED WITH LANOLIN
- UNDER-HEAT AND PRESSURE
- EASILY WEATHER PROOFED
- HAND CRAFTED THROUGHOUT
- QUALITY BOOTMAKERS FOR 107 YEARS

FRYE BOOT
FOR MEN AND WOMEN
Now From $29.50

SUNDANCE

ENTERTAINMENT

Bill Cosby And Nitty Gritty Dirt Band Excellent

by Jeff Vacker

After an absence of two years, Bill Cosby returned to Burlington this past Sunday evening. Appearing with him was the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band from Long Beach, California.

Together, they constituted one of the finest displays of entertainment this year.

Appearing first, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band did a variety of tunes, including "Mr. Bojangles" and "Euphoria."

Cosby and Nitty Gritty Join To Open The Show

which were exceptional. Several Cajun songs from Louisiana added to the diversity of their presentations, and the fact that the individual performers switched instruments frequently, added to the audience enjoyment. Clearly, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band was well received by the mixture of UVM people and local residents. They reached their high point in their closing numbers, which were done in an extremely humorous take-off of the mid-1950's style of rock-and-roll singers.

If the audience was in a good mood when Bill Cosby came on stage, they must have been euphoric when he left. In the absolute monologue of sarcasm, innocence, and down-to-earth common sense which is distinctively his, Cosby had his audience practically rolling in the aisles. Although many of his anecdotes, such as those concerning local air service, were clearly in a light-hearted vein, he later went into such subjects as parental responsibility toward children, which bore a striking resemblance to the lectures of Mark Twain.

Nitty Gritty Band Entertain

The Lane Series Committee should be commended for the show. The performers started on time, technical difficulties were virtually nil, but above all, the show appealed equally to all who attended.

Bill Cosby's Comedy Has A Serious Side

PRO SHOP

SPAULDING CONVERSE CCM
PADDLEBALL RACKETS AND BALLS
SQUASH RACKETS AND BALLS
HANDBALLS

28 MAIN ST.
WINOOSKI, VERMONT
655-2621

GET IT TOGETHER AT
THE FIRST STEP

152 CHURCH ST. UNDER HANNIBALS

FRED NYES AUTO SERVICE
460 RIVERSIDE AVENUE
BURLINGTON, VERMONT
864-9538
GENERAL AUTO REPAIR
QUALITY USED CARS
GOODYEAR TIRE SERVICE

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES

140 CHURCH ST.
ACROSS FROM CITY HALL
OPEN UNTIL 1 AM

"QUALITY FIRST AT PONCHO'S"

house of fashion eyewear

27 College Street

Lane Series:

Lorin Hollander

The artist is 26-year-old Lorin Hollander, who will be seen and heard at Memorial Auditorium on Thursday, March 11, 8:30 p.m. All tickets are sold. The final White concert is "Hair," scheduled for April 12.

Hollander's program consists of "Two Sonatas" by Domenico Scarlatti, "Sonata in B-flat" by Franz Schubert, and, following intermission, "Piano Variations" (1930) by Aaron Copland, and a fourth composition to be announced. This last number may well be a work by Hollander himself, for he is also a composer and conductor as well as a performing artist.

Marilyn Paulsen, student chairman of the Lane Committee, said that "Hollander was chosen for the popular White Series because, musically and personally, he has tremendous rapport with students."

At 26 years old, Hollander wants to change the atmosphere of the concert hall. "At a rock concert, the atmosphere is love. The rock groups talk their language. But at a classical concert, all they see is a guy in white tie and tails coming out very uptight on a platform. That's a plastic mannequin society's little machine up there. If live concerts are going to survive, the artists themselves are going to have to change."

Hollander's chief concern these days is to get the hip audience out of the rock palaces and into the concert halls — at least long enough to hear him play.

At a recent Brown University concert he walked on stage in a turtleneck, boots and light slacks, and then "rapped a bit" with the students. "We had a give and take, a sway over the footlights," he recalls.

In 1969 Hollander gave the first classical concert at the Filmmore East, New York City's rock theater, where he introduced the Baldwin Electronic Concert Grand. The success of this concert surpassed all expectations, and a live recording of the event has been released by Angel Records.

At 26, Lorin Hollander has been acclaimed as one of the most exciting and poetic pianists now appearing before the public. He is a veteran of well over 600 concerts, including appearances with the New York Philharmonic, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Seattle Symphonies. He has

On The Brighter Side

(BEM)

There's a bright side to American involvement in Vietnam, rarely heard in this country but expressed now by a University of Vermont professor who has just returned from there.

Dr. Jerry L. McIntosh, associate professor of plant and soil science, noted that this year the Vietnamese will once more produce enough rice to meet their own needs, something they haven't done since 1964.

Even better, next year the nation will begin to resume its traditional position as a rice exporter. And, with new approaches to old agricultural problems, the Vietnamese may grow more diversified crops, thus improving their own diet as well as their nation's export position.

Two factors have been responsible for this progress:

1. Development of "miracle rice" by the International Rice Research Institute. This institute, supported in large part by Rockefeller and Ford Foundation money, has developed the new varieties of rice that yield twice to three times as much as the old varieties — and in a much shorter growing season.

2. Widespread introduction of this rice into Vietnam by both Vietnamese and American agriculturists. The Americans are part of the force of some 2,000 persons with the U.S. Agency for International Development, scattered across the provinces and working in an advisory role, much as Extension Service personnel work in Vermont.

Dr. McIntosh said the next move to produce more food may be by multiple-cropping. The Vietnamese traditionally plant a crop of rice, the nation's staff of life, about June 1; grow it during the rainy season, and harvest it about six months later. The ground is not used extensively the remainder of the year.

A typical multiple cropping project might call for raising a crop of the new miracle rice in about 102 days, then raising a crop of sweet potatoes, followed by soy beans, then sweet corn, then soy beans, all before the time for planting the next crop of rice. It wouldn't take much supplemental irrigation to permit this type of practice in the delta area of Vietnam.

Dr. McIntosh was asked to go to Vietnam for a month to work on programs such as this, as well as to advise on soil

Orpheus

Making its debut in two years of the Canadian based in Toronto, Jacques Offenberg's "Orpheus Underworld" on Sunday, March 7, at the Memorial Auditorium. Tickets for $5.25, and $6.50, at the La Waterman, and Reservations telephoning 644-1111. The production of an orchestra, an extra group Council on the scenery and costumes which will be as the "Hair" century. It is a broadside of establishment acrobatics and debunks the general, all music. Offenberg

S.A. FILM

MA

AMOUR TIRE & BATTERY, INC.
106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 867-9643, 867-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT 05401

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING
(All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING
(Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

CHAMPLAIN LANES

Hours 10 A.M. To 1 A.M.

Automatic Pin Setters

• Expert Ball Fitting & Drilling

• Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes

• Cocktail Lounge

• Snack Bar

• Hurmery

• Billiards

• Dinning

AIR-CONDITIONED 16 Lanes

Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages
5 Minutes South Of Sears On Highway 94.

Lane Series:

Lorin Hollander On March 11

The artist is 26-year-old Lorin Hollander, who will be seen at the Memorial Auditorium on Thursday, March 11, 8:30 p.m. All tickets are sold. The final White Series concert is "Hair," scheduled for April 12.

Hollander's program consists of "Two Sonatas" by Domenico Scarlatti, "Sonata in B-flat" by Franz Schubert, and, following intermission, "Piano Variations" (1930) by Aaron Copland, and a fourth composition to be announced. This last number may well be a work by Hollander himself, for he is also a composer and conductor as well as a performing artist.

Marilyn Paulsen, student chairman of the Lane Committee, said that "Hollander was chosen for the popular White Series because, musically and personally, he has tremendous rapport with students."

At 26 years old, Hollander wants to change the atmosphere of the concert hall. "At a rock concert, the atmosphere is love. The rock groups talk their language. But at a classical concert, all they see is a guy in white tie and tails coming out very uptight on a platform. That's a plastic mannequin—society's little machine up there. If live concerts are going to survive, the artists themselves are going to have to change."

Hollander's chief concern these days is to get the hip audience out of the rock palaces and into the concert halls—at least long enough to hear him play.

At a recent Brown University concert he walked on stage in a turtleneck, boots and tight slacks, and then "dressed a bit" with the students. "We had a give and take, a way over the footlights," he recalls. In 1969 Hollander gave the first classical concert at the Fillmore East, New York City's rock theatre, where he introduced the Baldwin Electric Concert Grand. The success of this concert surpassed all expectations, and a live recording of the event has been released by Angel Records.

At 26, Lorin Hollander has been acclaimed as one of the most exciting and poetic pianists now appearing before the public. He is a veteran of well over 600 concerts, including appearances with the New York Philharmonic, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Seattle Symphonies. He has performed at the Mozart-Haydn Festival at Philharmonic Hall in New York, and for the International Bach Society. A summer festival favorite, he has appeared at the Hollywood Bowl, Lewisohn Stadium, Philharmonic Hall, Promenade, Tanglewood, Grant Park, Washington's Meridian Post, Blossom, Ambler, and Ravinia.

Four seasons ago marked the beginning of his European career, when he was the only soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony and Max Rudolf during their two and one-half month world tour, under the aegis of the U.S. State Department. He played at the Athens Festival, in Beirut, Israel, Yugoslavia, India, Singapore, Hong Kong, Istanbul, the Philippines and Japan. He has once made his debut in Paris with ORTF and in Amsterdam with the famed Concertgebouw Orchestra, where he was unanimously praised for his "unbelievable brilliance" and "his great insight and poetry."

He is actively involved in experimental educational programs in the public school system and gives much time and effort to the education—musical and otherwise—of our nation's youth, based on his belief that re-opening lines of communication with young people is crucial to the future of the arts. Last season, one such session appeared on a NET-TV Special, "Up Against the Wall," taped in a North Philadelphia school.

Mr. Hollander also conducts college seminars, covering areas often far removed from the study of music—exploring man's capacity for sensitivity and awareness. Such seminars were held last year at the University of California campuses at Los Angeles, San Diego, Riverside and Davis.

Although these educational efforts now comprise a goodly portion of his involvement, Lorin Hollander maintains a regular concert schedule here and abroad which includes appearances with orchestras, in recital and chamber recital.

Mr. Hollander began studying the piano when he was four. From the age of eight until he was twenty, his only teacher was the late Edward Steuermann. Recently he has worked with Leon Fleisher, Max Rudolf and Olga Stoumouli.

Mr. Hollander also enjoys composing and conducting.

On The Brighter Side Of A Grim War

(BEM)

There's a bright side to American involvement in Vietnam, rarely heard in this country but expressed now by a University of Vermont professor who has just returned from there.

Dr. Jerry L. McIntosh, associate professor of plant and soil science, noted that this year the Vietnamese will once more produce enough rice to meet their own needs, something they haven't done since 1964.

Even better, next year the nation will begin to resume its traditional position as a rice exporter. And, with new approaches to old agricultural problems, the Vietnamese may grow more diversified crops, thus improving their own diet as well as their nation's export position.

Two factors have been responsible for this progress:

1. Development of "miracle rice" by the International Rice Research Institute. This institute, supported in large part by Rockefeller and Ford Foundation money, has developed the new varieties of rice that yield twice to three times as much as the old varieties—and in a much shorter growing season.

2. Widespread introduction of this rice into Vietnam by both Vietnamese and American agriculturists. The Americans are part of the force of some 2,000 persons with the U.S. Agency for International Development, scattered across the provinces and working in an advisory role, much as Extension Service personnel work in Vermont.

Dr. McIntosh said the next move to produce more food may be by multiple cropping. The Vietnamese traditionally plant a crop of rice, the nation's staff of life, about June 1, grow it during the rainy season, and harvest it about six months later. The ground is not used extensively the remainder of the year.

A typical multiple cropping project might call for raising a crop of the new miracle rice in about 102 days, then raising a crop of sweet potatoes, followed by soy beans, then sweet corn, they say, beans, all before the time for planting the next crop of rice. It wouldn't take much supplemental irrigation to permit this type of practice in the delta area of Vietnam.

Dr. McIntosh was asked to go to Vietnam for a month to work on programs such as this, as well as to advise on soil problems. He will complete his work in this country by submitting a report which will include advice on Vietnam's efforts to re-establish a center for agricultural research.

He was in Vietnam as a consultant for the Federal Extension Service, and was selected because in 1969, during a sabbatical leave from the University, he worked in the Philippines for the International Rice Research Institute, and thus had gained a depth of knowledge about problems associated with increasing the food production of southeast Asia.

Before reaching Vietnam he was well aware rice production had dropped. The war had driven many farmers from their lands into the city. The flow of fertilizer and pesticides had been interrupted as had the orderly movement of rice to the markets. Both trained technicians and young farm workers had been called into the army.

"But I was unprepared for the recent progress," he continued. "More land is in production. It's a common sight to see modern $8,000 tractors working the land—tractors paid for by their owners. I saw no evidence of people going hungry. There is enough food for all."

Some of Dr. McIntosh's other reactions: On U.S. troops there: "I felt widespread agreement that if American forces aren't needed to fight there, the nation would be better off if they were sent home."

On travel: "I visited most areas of the country, and spent much time in the delta area south of Saigon. I was apprehensive for a few days, then was careful but didn't worry constantly about being ambushed. Of course you're still careful not to be out after about 4 p.m."

On the state of the nation: "Things are looking up. They've come a long way in recent years. People are building brick homes—a sign they expect to live peacefully for years. They paint Vietnamese flags on their homes, despite the continued presence of the Viet Cong."

'Orpheus In The Underworld'

Making its second appearance in two years on the Lane Series, the Canadian Opera Company, based in Toronto, will perform Jacques Offenbach's comic opera, "Orpheus in the Underworld," in a Red Concert on Sunday, March 7, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium.

Tickets for the concert, $3.75, $5.25, and $8, may be obtained at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and also at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

The production will include an orchestra, made possible by an extra grant from the Canada Council on the Arts, and sets, scenery and costumes.

"Orpheus in the Underworld," which will be sung in English, has been described by one critic as the "Hair" of the nineteenth century. It is a musical broadside aimed at the square establishment, with its aesthetic and aesthetic poses. It debunks conventional attitudes towards sex and romanticism in general, all delightfully set to music.

Offenbach's opera is staged by the Canadian Opera Company's general manager, Dr. Herman Geiger-Toril, and the orchestra conducted by John Fenwick. The new English adaptation is by Robert Fulford and James Knight.

In the leading roles will be either Sheila Piercy or Dodi Protero as Eurydice, Phil Stark as Orpheus, Peter Milne or Don McManus as Jupiter, and Jan Rubes as Pluto.

In brief, the story of "Orpheus in the Underworld" concerns the estrangement of two unhappy married persons, Eurydice and Orpheus. Orpheus, a prominent violinist and teacher, is overly devoted to his music and one of his students; Eurydice is consoling herself with a shepherd (Pluto, god of the underworld, in disguise). In the end, Orpheus succumbs to the advances of Jupiter, but at the end she repudiates both Pluto and Jupiter. She will give herself to her guardian, Bacchus, and become his devoted and faithful Bacchante.

Garbage...

(continued from page five)

"The speed we eat at is really a strange facet of American psychology. The waste that we produce while eating is really a sad fact of American psychology. But more distressing is the great advantage capitalist entrepreneurs take of this trait. Quick service restaurants flourish as neon cyresses along our roads, mini-marts and instant gas stations spring up throughout. The saddest part of it all is that American youth avidly supports such establishments."

I actually did patronize the local McDonald's last Sunday. Aghast at the amount of paper that I myself required, I brought it to the manager and asked him if all that waste was really necessary. He insisted that national legislation demanded a minimum amount of paper with each serving for sanitary reasons; meanwhile his nose got red and his pot belly began to shake. Try a similar thing sometime—it's fun & it might lead to something, if only a consciousness of the tremendous waste you, as an individual consumer, entail.

Whitely, Wake Up!

(continued from page five)

people, women, minorities including French Canadians, and those not of a high income status. The Trustees control the funds and the lack of funds is the reason that there is no minority recruitment program. Can UVM every look forward to a racially balanced population when its all-powerful Trustees come from strictly white organizations and clubs?

Whitely, I am not alone in questioning the place of businessmen and politicians on a University Board of Trustees. In 1918 Thorstein Veblen, a noted economist, voiced the same doubts: "So far as regards its pecuniary affairs and their due administration, the typical modern university is in a position, without loss or detriment, to dispense with the services of any board of trustees, regents, curators or whatnot. Except for the insuperable difficulty of getting a hearing for such a proposal, it should be no difficult matter to show that those governing boards of universities commonly are quite useless to the university for any businesslike purpose. Indeed, except for a stubborn prejudice on the contrary, the fact should readily be seen that the boards are on no material use in any connection; their sole effectual function being to interfere with the academic management in matters that are not of the nature of business, and that lie outside their competence and outside the range of their habitual interest."

Do the Board members try to interfere in academic affairs? They were outspoken on the Parent-son. They took sides on the ROTC controversy. La Veblen's proposal for an upheaval of such Boards preposterous? Two candidates reviewed by the recent Presidential Selection Committee saw the need for a drastic revision of UVM's Trustees. The final selection of a new President, however, rested with that very Board.

Whitely, don't criticize individual Trustees. Attack them for their collective representation of Montpelier at the Board meetings. Question their diversity as a social group and their qualifications to make academic decisions. Whitely, wake up!

W.C. Fields, "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man"

W.C. Fields Comedy Is Next Lane Film Series

The inimitable W.C. Fields in the comedy "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man" is the next Lane Film Series presentation.

It will be offered on Saturday, March 6, at two showings, 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorium. Tickets, $1.00 each, may be obtained in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Lane Office, 656-3418.

Preceding each showing, two more chapters of the Flash Gordon serial will be unraveled.

Besides W.C. Fields, the cast of "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man" includes Edgar Bergen with Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, Constance Moore, John Arledge, Grady Sutton, Mary Forbes, and Eddie Anderson.

The film, which runs for 74 minutes, is directed by George Marshall from an original story by Charles Boyle.

As Larson's Whiplash marks a new freedom in filmmaking under the aegis of Universal, Fields uses a circus backdrop to range all over the lot in many roles: as a sidewalk barber ("presenting the world's smallest giant and the tallest midget"); as Buffo Bella ("the bearded lady sharp shooter, riding the largest Shetland pony in the world"); and as a ventriloquist threat to Edgar Bergen.

The Charlie-McCarthy-Mortimer Snerd humor is a nostalgic foil to Fields' asides and snatches of song ("two girls at 21 are better than one at 42").

Fields clears the arena for a solo finale which includes an epic ping pong contest ranging

Lane Series White Concert Presents Folk And Pop Singer Tom Rush

Tom Rush, folk and pop singer, will appear on the Lane Series on Friday, March 5, 8:30 p.m., at Memorial Auditorium, in a White Concert. The show is sold out.

Rush has been booked to replace the cancelled Joni Mitchell, who was first announced for late fall and then in early spring.

The next concert on the White Series will be pianist Lorin Hollander, March 11.

Although only in his mid-twenties, Tom Rush has been a major name in contemporary music for nearly a decade. In the early 60's he was one of the inner circle of tremendously popular young, predominantly white, folksingers who congregated in the Boston area and were responsible for the folk revival which later took on an international vogue and is still a strong current in pop music today.

As long ago as 1963, Robert Shelton, writing in the N.Y. Times, hailed Rush as "one of the most important of the new folk singers and white blues interpreters."

At the same period, another writer, Paul Nelson, reported that Rush is "that artist none of us thought possible: a singer-guitarist who ranges through the whole of American folk song—high and low, deep and wide, with complete confidence, competence and taste."

Times have changed dramatically since the early 60's, when these praises were upon the (then) Harvard undergraduate, and these changes are reflected in the work of any artist who is attuned to the times.

Rush is very much attuned, as his Columbia album titled "Tom Rush" attests. Featured in the album are a number of contemporary love songs—songs of the mental traveler, the rambler, the lover. Each is given Tom's unique, often gentle, interpretation: an interpretation that is supported by magnificent musicianship and technical virtuosity.

Tom Rush, like many singers, is now writing a large number of the songs he sings. In an album released in December of last year, "Wrong End of the Rainbow," two compositions stand out: "Wrong End of the Rainbow" and the religious "Starlight."

But on this same album he has lost none of his skill to read a personal message into the songs of others, as witnessed by his rendering of James

Tom Rush

Taylor's "Riding on a Railroad" and "Sweet Baby James" and Jesse Winchester's "Dixie."

In another album released in December, "Classic Rush" (Elektra) are found the best of Tom Rush, including "On the Road Again," "Urge for Going," "No Regrets/Rockport Sunday," and "Shadow Dream Song."

In his recent concert at Carnegie Hall, New York City, he was acclaimed for his rendering of "Child's Song," "Merrimack County," "Who Do You Love," "Come to See Me Yesterday in the Merry Month Of," and "Jazzman."

The Cashbox critic described his performance at Carnegie Hall as "a memorable concert by a performer of real stature."

In the next-to-last White Lane concert, a mod-dressed pianist will attempt to communicate the classics to hip UVM students.

Album Review:

All Things Must Pass

by Doug Collette

ALL THINGS MUST PASS! George Harrison: Since the Beatles stopped touring in 1966 to pursue their individual interests, most of the attention has been focused on the groups main songwriters: Lennon and McCartney and on Ringo who started a career in motion pictures. No one heard or saw or heard much of George Harrison. More recently, in All the Years over John and Yoko, Paul officially quitting the group, and with Ringo now singing country and western as well as acting, Harrison was still the invisible man.

All Things Must Pass should change that. On this album, a product of much time, care and thoroughness from the recording to the packaging, George shows himself to be a musician and composer to be reckoned with. The grand scale of the overall effort is often matched by the musical production on a great many of the tracks, but Phil Spector, George's co-producer, manages to control himself so that the resulting "big sound" provides appropriate accompaniment instead of becoming the kind of orchestral albatross that often kills a song. I've always been partial to George's voice, so that plus an abundance of fine bottleneck guitar are welcome additions.

The two studio records contain a magnificent collection of songs, many of which are similar to the tunes that George's friend Eric Clapton is now writing. Yet even to a greater degree than Clapton's songs, Harrison's work is far removed from the routine pop fare. Dylan's influence is hard to pin down, but it's definitely there, besides in the Harrison-

Dylan authored "I'd Have You Anytime," a slow-flowing love song, and "If Not For You," which George takes at a more leisurely pace than Bob. Harrison's lyrics, whether whimsical or serious, are always honest and deeply felt so that in something like "I Dig Love" or "Isn't It A Pity," he can say what he wants to say forcefully, without taking himself too seriously. A mistake John Lennon made on his album.

Religion is so much a part of George's life, it would be foolish not to expect it to be the subject of much of his music. But though George is a holy man, he's still a rocker as "My Sweet Lord" and "Awaiting On You All" will attest. "All Things Must Pass" is a splendid musical creation and it holds the essence of this entire album.

The bonus LP "Apple Jam" is a disappointment despite a star-studded lineup. The musicians seem to just wander around and nothing ever gets going. There's a flicker of promise as the second side starts out in a Chuck Berry mode, but that dies out too. It's a good thing they didn't charge extra for this record.

All Things Must Pass is the first original solo product of any individual Beatles to have that intangible spiritual quality that made Beatle music special. But notwithstanding that fact, it is easily better than either Lennon's or McCartney's LP's and, more than that, it's one of the best rock albums of the last few years.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

PREMIERE NOW—NOW PLAYING
MATINEES—SAT & SUN 2 PM—EVENINGS 7 & 9

William Shakespeare's
JULIUS CAESAR
Charlton Heston
JASON ROBARDS ROBERT VAUGHN
RICHARD CHAMBERLIN TECHNICAL
STATE
ADULTS 2.00
SPECIAL GROUP SALES
CALL 852-0017

HELD OVER

STRONG

Shows at 7 & 9 p.m.

"A COCKEYED MASTERPIECE—SEE IT TWICE."
JOSEPH MORGENSTERN
NEWSWEEK

20th Century Fox presents
MASH
An Ingo Preminger Production
PARAVISION Color by DE LUXE

RATHSKELLER RESTAURANT

Fine Dining in a Unique Atmosphere

ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
NOW OPEN ON SUNDAY

ON ST. PAUL STREET IN ALLEY
BETWEEN PEGTONS AND THE HOBBY SHOP

S.A. FILM SERIES

PRESENTS.....

THE BOYS IN THE BAND

MARCH 5 1971 at 7:30PM. Tickets—$1.50 at S.A. Desk or at the door....

at Life Science Hall

To Bertha And Friends: Be A Piece Of Peace

The Cadets are not satisfied hockey cheers that we of Gutter

Education

With Planned Parenthood and the Office of Volunteer Programs in UVM Week for Women's Health, in your particular dorm or Greek house? PLAY IT SAFE!!!

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

INDIFFERENT?

Number one!

It's a phrase which one never seems to get tired of, for no matter how many times you say it, it can never be over-worked. Especially when a team like Bowdoin goes home the loser. As a matter of fact, the more you say it, the better it sounds. Perhaps victory doesn't spoil you, but only increases the desire to taste it again, and once again UVM is on top, hopefully to stay.

It might be said that a fine started burning last year with the sweet taste of a Division II championship. The fine kept burning through the Harvard upset and the big one against the Redmen, and even was not dampened by the heartbreakers against Connecticut and Middlebury. As the end of the fine was slowly reached, the spark grew with every passing minute and mile which the team from Maine ate up on their journey west. It burned, it shortened, and time finally ran out. The bomb exploded, and exploded long and loud last Saturday afternoon, leaving the echoes still resounding throughout the Division II kingdom.

Under the eyes of an over-packed house, along with four radio stations and two chickens, the University of Vermont outgated the "one to beat" in Division II, Bowdoin College. The final score of 5-2 only served to make it so much nicer.

This is not the end by any means. The Catamounts still have one more contest in the Division which they must take in order to hold onto first place going into the play-off. UVM meets Norwich tonight Thursday, in an away contest. A loss means that Bowdoin takes over first place and the Catamounts fall down into the number two spot.

Just like last year, the Cats will have to take in the ECAC Division II play-off, and once again it will probably come down to the wire with Bowdoin and the Catamounts locking horns.

However, one thing is going to be a lot different from last year, and that is a magic substance known as "home ice." The first place team gets this advantage, so the Norwich game is the deciding factor. A victory here spells the difference between six hour rides to Maine and a ten minute walk over to the Gym.

As was stated, Bowdoin now stands number two in the Division, with the University of Massachusetts running a close third. Position number four, and the final contender in the play-off is at this time pretty much up in the air.

Vermont triumphed in the first clash with Norwich this year by a 7-5 score, and should be able to come home the victors again. If so, no one can touch us for a while as we enjoy the position of being king of the Division II hill. It's always great, no matter how many times you do it.

AquaCats Will Host YanCon Swim Finale

This Saturday, March 6, the University of Vermont Swim Team will play host to all the other Yankee Conference Swimming clubs. This meet will be held, as usual, in the Forbush pool and is slated to start at 1 p.m. The other teams from the Conference who will be in attendance are the Universities of Connecticut, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

The AquaCats ended their regular season with a fine 8-2 record after having defeated both the UNH Wildcats and the Cardinals of Pittsburgh.

It was indeed a nostalgic during the UNH contest, for it was the last regular season dual meet for those seniors on the squad. Co-captains John Stephens and John Radimer were two of the competitors who were so affected, but indeed both went out with a very loud bang. Radimer speeded to a 5:13.8 record in the 500 yard freestyle which places him second for the event in the NECCA. John Stephens also made record time in his event, the 1000 yard freestyle, allowing the clock to tick by 11:14.2 before finishing ahead of the pack.

UVM SPORTS
URI Rams Overtake Vermont
In Last Contest Of Season

by Dave Clark
The University of Vermont Catamounts ended their season on a less than glamorous note as they were crushed by the URI Rams on Monday night 95-60.

The Cats were run over as the speedy Rhode Island team used fast breaks throughout the entire game. Vermont was caught on defense many times as the Rams had many easy layups.

This was the final game for an outstanding UVM player, Vermont Captain Tom Clay will graduate this year after three years of tremendous varsity ball. Tom was the leading scorer for the Cats this season but more than that he was the best of team men. Tom hustled every minute he was in the game and his absence will not only be felt on the court but for the helluva nice guy that he is.

The game was played before another standing room crowd. Vermont fans at basketball games have been as few as free hockey tickets as the total for the last two games soared to 277 excluding players, cheerleaders and dogs.

The big factor in the loss to the URI Rams was the hot shooting of the Rams in combination with a cold night from the floor for the Cats. Rhode Island canned 42 of 69 from the floor for 60.9% compared to 24 of 64 for 37.5% for Vermont. Vermont also had a cold night from the foul line hitting only 12 of 23 for 52.2%.

This is rare for the Cats as they are usually a fine shooting team from the charity stripe. The leading scorer for the Rams of Rhode Island was Nate Adger who hit for 27 points including 17 in the second half. UVM's high man for the night was Rich Trella with 20 in one of his best performances of the season.

UVM coach Art Locke substituted freely as the cause was lost as many of the Vermont bench sitters saw action in the closing minutes of the game. Sophomore George Peredy again proved that he is a Vermont hope for the future as he scored four points in limited action. Peredy has not only shown the ability to score but he has uncanny knack for blocking shots.

This was the last regular season game for the Cats this year as the finished out the year

NBA Notes
Dave DeBusschere scored the 10,000th point of his NBA career February 16 at Los Angeles. DeBusschere, the 30-year-old New York Knicks forward, is in his ninth NBA season.

Willis Reed and Dick Barnett of New York and Luke Jackson of Philadelphia were selected last week among the 10 members of the all-time National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics basketball team.

The team was selected from the 6,400 players who participated in the NAIA tournament in Kansas City between 1952 and 1971. Reed played his college basketball at Grambling, Barnett at Tennessee A&I, and Jackson at Pan American College.

with a disappointing 9-15 record sloppy play as the Cats had 24 and 1-9 record in the Yankee conference. URI has a 9-16 rebounding stats for the game record with a strong 7-2 record having the edge with 36 as in the conference.

Both teams were plagued by compared to 32 for Vermont.

THE INSIDER

With five minutes to go before we met for our pre-game talk and entrance on to the ice, a voice rang out of the hallway: "Coach, there's someone here to see you." Immediately we heard a yell and it did not stop until we all were yelling and crowded around Jeff MacLaughlin. He could not have picked a more opportune time to enter. After hitching from Arizona, the carpetbagger walked in with suitcase in hand, blessing us with that same spirit that had carried us through last year. It was as emotional a pre-game scene as the Division II finals, and the stage could not have been more perfectly set.

This supernatural blessing proved to be what we needed as we immediately found ourselves down two men, against one of the strongest power plays in the league. The two minutes felt like 10, as we were diving in front of shots, praying we could somehow deflect them to a teammate's stick, and take a deep breath as the crowd would roar, and the puck would glide so beautifully down to the other end of the rink.

There was one play in this very beginning of the game that may have been minor to many observers, but to a defenseman standing at the side of the crease it was the turning point of the game. Bowdoin's power play time was running out. They were pressing for that big first goal. The puck was all around our net. Moon kicked out. The rebound came somehow to the other side of the net, right onto a Bowdoin stick. I was the closest defenseman—about two or three feet away—but I had already begun to feel the deflection of the coming goal. As the Bowdoinian went to bang it home, he did not notice the vacuum cleaner that was stretched out on the ice. Before he knew it, the puck had been sucked into Moon's glove, and pulled away for the whistle. All this he had to do was look where Moon's glove was and lift it over, but Moon proved this to be a more difficult task.

This play and Patty Wright's penalty shot swung the momentum our way. With Freddy Hunt put out for the year, Neddy Grant reminded people of how he used to play left wing. Bowdoin forechecked us well and we had some trouble getting out of our zone, but when we did our forwards came through. Again there were no one or two people who won the game, but there were one or two plays that everyone made to contribute to the win.

UVM Enters Six In New England Indoor Track Meet

by John Stowell
The University of Vermont track team enters in the 3rd Annual New England Intercollegiate Indoor Meet held last Saturday at U. Conn. put in some good performances time-wise but most of their performances were not strong enough to add team points.

Tom Titus, a freshman long jumper who placed third in the Yankee Conference Meet, took a fourth place in the long jump at the New England Meet. Titus grabbed the fourth place position by leaping an impressive 22 feet 10 1/2 inches in the finals of that event. The only team scorer for Vermont in the meet, Titus was awarded a gold medal for his efforts.

Senior Phil Elwert, who ran the 1,000 yard run with a time of 2:18, stayed with the pack for most of the race before bowing out in the final lap. This ranked as one of Elwert's best times for the 1,000.

Sophomore Frank O'Brien, who has consistently been improving, ran a good race in the 600. Placing second in his heat, O'Brien ran with a time of 1:17, his best time ever.

Freshman Bruce Lawrence, who has cleared the pole vault bar at 13 feet 6 inches during practice, failed on all three attempts to clear 13-6 at the meet.

Steve Coon and Dave Bird, who ran good semi-final races in the 60 yard dash and the 60 yard high hurdles respectively, were not able to post qualifying times for the finals.

The Catamounts will travel to Durham, New Hampshire on Saturday for a dual meet with the New Hampshire Wildcats. (Note: Complete results of the meet were not available at press time.)

BOB WOLF IN THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL, quoting guard Jon McGlocklin of the Milwaukee Bucks, who is having his lowest year in scoring average (currently 15.1 a game) in three seasons with the Bucks: "I'm trying to make myself a complete player," said McGlocklin, who has been more proficient than ever as a defensive player, ball handler and passer. "I'm sure this has been my best season as far as all-around play is concerned."

Bickford (16), Cooke (5) and Reece (1) combine to defend against a strong Bowdoin attack (Credit Robert Frowenfeld)

UVM Battles Norwich

(continued from page one)

Ross McDonald added the final score when he put in a Yeates pass with six seconds to go in the contest. It was Yeates' third assist of the game.

ICINGS
When the shout of "chicken" rang through Gutterson Field House it was true. No, the players were not called chickens, because two real live chickens had been tossed onto the ice. It was not until two Bowdoin players came over and threw them back that play was continued.

Throughout the game a voice rang out saying one word "Steady." Those on the team automatically recognized the voice as a certain Mr. Reece, whose son just happens to play goal for Vermont.

The picture of satisfaction was coach Jim Cross who just walked through the dressing room repeating, "You very great." "Everyone did their part. I'm really proud of you."

Patty Wright was asked what he thought of just before he went in for the score on the penalty shot. Wright answered, "My mind was blank."

Baseball Team Looking Towards Southern Trip

by Pete Nisburg

Q. When there is three feet of snow on the ground, how does one become enthused about the game of baseball?

A. One works out in the Gardener Cage for a month and prays for a successful southern trip.

The 15 man Catamount squad has been working out in the Gardener Cage and Coach Holmquist believes the team is ready for the week long last year and the attack should be at least as potent this year. Holmquist believes the team is ready for the week long last year and the attack should be at least as potent this year. Holmquist believes the team is ready for the week long last year and the attack should be at least as potent this year.

Holmquist sees the trip south the Cat's greatest problem. But as an early indication of the with the switch by Minarky to strength and weaknesses of the second base, Coach Holmquist team. During the week of March believes the infield should be a 29-April 6, the Cats play ten lot staidier. The catching chores games against such top baseball will be split between Mark schools as Northwestern, North MacDonald and Scott Vaughn Louisiana and Towson State adequate defensively. So IF The hectic week begins with a UVM can stretch the somewhat morning afternoon thin pitching and IF the Cats doubleheader against can remain strong up the middle Northwestern and Murray State defensively, the offense should at Murray State. Because of the be able to generate enough runs still caliber of competition for the team to win more games Coach Holmquist feels that if than it loses.

The team returns with a 5-5 record, the trip will have been a success. The home opener is April 17 against U. Mass.

The season outlook including Look for frosh Pete Ross, Cat chances for a Yankee Gyt Bartlett and Dave Stetson Conference Crown are to chalk up a lot of innings. somewhat improved this season. Capt. Phil Natowich will be Coach Holmquist sees the holding down the grass in left moral as being much better this field while pursuing his dream of year. The boys know there is a three year, no cut grant in aid good chance of putting things of $450,000.

together and coming up with a good season." The traditional Conference powers U. Mass. and U. Conn. will be hard pressed by Maine, Rhode Island, and Vermont for the crown.

Although it may be a worn out phrase, the Cats must indeed "put it all together." Offensively in the team will be one of the strongest in the Conference. The Holmquist believes the team is Cats averaged 6 runs per game ready for the week long last year and the attack should be at least as potent this year. Holmquist believes the team is ready for the week long last year and the attack should be at least as potent this year.

have been stressing conditioning Proven hitters Rico Minarsky and fundamentals. Drills and "the Robinson Boys" duplicate probable game combined with new sticks Pete situations add special emphasis Ross and Scott Vaughn will be placed on base-running which provide a strong scoring punch. Holmquist sees as a vital cog in Pitching is again a question: his high gear offense. Because of mark for the Cats. Dave Ertz, the small squad and the fact that George Smith, James Endres Freshman are eligible to play and Gayt Bartlett will provide a variety ball this year, there will strong nucleus, but then the staff be no freshman or J.V. runs into depth problems. With program. The Cats play in the increased load of Yankee expanded 32 game schedule and Conference games UVM will be the Frosh eligibility rule will play a 32 game schedule, case somewhat—the depth while a look at the roster shows problems caused by the small a somewhat inexperienced eight man staff. Defense still remains squad.

Holmquist sees the trip south the Cat's greatest problem. But as an early indication of the with the switch by Minarky to strength and weaknesses of the second base, Coach Holmquist team. During the week of March believes the infield should be a 29-April 6, the Cats play ten lot staidier. The catching chores games against such top baseball will be split between Mark schools as Northwestern, North MacDonald and Scott Vaughn Louisiana and Towson State adequate defensively. So IF The hectic week begins with a UVM can stretch the somewhat morning afternoon thin pitching and IF the Cats doubleheader against can remain strong up the middle Northwestern and Murray State defensively, the offense should at Murray State. Because of the be able to generate enough runs still caliber of competition for the team to win more games Coach Holmquist feels that if than it loses.

The team returns with a 5-5 record, the trip will have been a success. The home opener is April 17 against U. Mass.

The season outlook including Look for frosh Pete Ross, Cat chances for a Yankee Gyt Bartlett and Dave Stetson Conference Crown are to chalk up a lot of innings. somewhat improved this season. Capt. Phil Natowich will be Coach Holmquist sees the holding down the grass in left moral as being much better this field while pursuing his dream of year. The boys know there is a three year, no cut grant in aid good chance of putting things of $450,000.

Catch a sparkle from the morning sun. Hold the magic of a sudden breeze. Keep those moments alive. They're yours for a lifetime with a diamond engagement ring from Orange Blossom.

E.J. PRESTON & SON
111 UNION CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON
Phone: 658-1111 - 1111 - 1111
Open Monday 10:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Closed Sundays

SONY MODEL TA-3200F STEREO AMPLIFIER
500 WATTS

Manufacturer's Specifications:

HF Power (Total): 320 watts, 8-ohm load; 600 watt, 4-ohm load. RMS Power per Channel: 110 watts, 8-ohm load; 130 watts, 4-ohm load. T.D.E.: Less than 0.1% at rated output; less than 0.05% at rated output; less than 0.03% at 1 watt. Frequency Response: 5 Hz to 200 kHz. ±0.2 dB. HF Power Bandwidth: 5 Hz to 35 kHz. S/N Ratio: 110 dB below full power output, short circuited input. Damping Factor: 170 at 8 ohms, 1 kHz. Input Sensitivity: 1.4 volts. Input Impedance: 75 k ohms. Dimensions: 15 2/4 in. w x 5 7/8 in. h x 12 3/4 in. d. Suggested retail price: $349.50 (optional walnut case extra).

LAFAYETTE ELECTRONICS
370 Shelburne Road Owned and operated by I.E.S. 658-4616

by NICK ROSENBERG

Writing a column about sports at the University of Vermont for more than three years is like driving a Benway's cab for the same time span: sooner or later, one's directions overlap.

This is a situation that should be avoided as much as possible. But there's one subject that must be repeated for emphasis: the nature of a hockey game at Norwich University.

James Reston of The New York Times likes to compare politics with sports, but shuns mixing them. However, he's never been identified as one of the fans at a Norwich home hockey game.

For not since Joshua has there been such a concentrated effort to triumph through the use of noise.

The Corps of Cadets will pack the north side of the arena when the Catamounts come to call Thursday evening. But paying a social visit at the nation's oldest military academy at this time would be a little like sending Curtis LeMay a hammer and a sickle for his anniversary.

The Cadets are not satisfied with tame collegiate hockey cheers that we of Gutterson are accustomed to.

They hurl abuse. They pound the zamboni machine. They gesticulate in a manner that would appeal to the prurient interests of some segments of the society.

And they sing. For some reason, known only within the confines of the town of Northfield, they sing a silly little ditty popularized among the lunatic asylums of Belyorussia, and made famous in this country by a singing group known as "Steam."

The Cadets' chant, for anyone who cares to join in, isn't musically intriguing, but a simple melody: "Na-na-na-na; Na-na-na-na; Hey beyeyey, Good-bye."

Imagine close to a thousand uniformed soldiers of the United States of America, brandishing bottles, spewing epithets, threatening and jumping, and singing this nonsense, and you may come up with a new angle on why we are having such a hard time of it in Indochina.

But this description doesn't do justice to the actual event. It has to be experienced.

And the satisfaction of emerging victorious from this free fire zone is, of course, also beyond words. (This is a good way to get out of writing all night.)

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

CYNIC Photography Contest

Contest Rules

The CYNIC announces a photography contest. The rules are as follows:

1. The contest is open to all students of the University of Vermont who are amateurs. (Amateurs will be considered those people who do not support themselves by taking pictures.)
2. Each picture will fall in one of two categories: faces or landscapes.
3. All photographs will be black and white and will be approximately 8 x 10 inches. There is no limit to the number of photographs that each photographer may submit.
4. The picture submitted must be previously unpublished and it will be understood that the photographs submitted will be the property of the VERMONT CYNIC, which will have the consent of the photographer to publish them in the newspaper.
5. The VERMONT CYNIC has the right to request the photographer to submit a subject release form signed by those people who may appear in the photograph.
6. The pictures may have been taken at any time, past or present.
7. Photographs will be judged on print quality and composition by a board of judges.
8. The board of judges will consist of Tito, of the University Photo Service, Nancy Craigmile, a UVM sophomore, and Gene Peroni, photography editor of the CYNIC. These people will be ineligible to enter the contest.
9. All photographs should be placed in the appropriate box in the CYNIC office. If no one is there, entries may be slipped underneath the door in a protective envelope.
10. The photographer's name should be lightly printed in pencil on the back of each photograph he submits, along with a title, if any.
11. Deadline for entries will be April 15, 1971.
12. One winner will be chosen from each category and the winners will be announced in the May 6 issue of the CYNIC.
13. The winner in each category will receive $25. All questions should be referred directly to Gene Peroni, in care of the CYNIC office.

Photos By ARIEL

The 2nd Annual WHITE OUT WEEKEND

Sponsored by

IRA

March 5th & 6th

Friday Evening:

Skits at the Gym

Saturday:

All Day Skiing at Bolton Valley
Snow Shoe Races
Tug of War On Ice
Slalom Race
Powderpuff Snowman Building Contest
Trophies for the winners!

Saturday Nite:

Dance - Music by "Good Grief"
Buffet Supper

Tickets are on sale at the UVM Bookstore:

Skiing at Bolton Valley

Dance, Buffet, Skits, and bus for those who need it.

There will also be a special reduced rate for nite skiing. Nite skiing tickets can be picked up at Bolton.

$5.00

$5.00

$3.00

SA Creates

Two weeks ago the Student Association Senate passed a law that made the SA Concert Bureau (affectionately known as Fred) a full-time position. The new law puts into the hands of the members of the Concert Bureau the power to produce all student funded concerts, especially those that occur in the Patrick Gymnasium.

The feeling that a new organization was needed has been growing for the past few years in the Senate. Last Semester the matter of concerts and major events was put into the hands of a committee.

The major points of the new law are: The Concert Bureau will have the sole responsibility for presenting all student funded concerts on campus. The Bureau will consist of seven students elected by the SA Senate who have been nominated by a committee composed of representatives from IRA, The Fraternity Forum, the Panhellenic Council, and the SA Senate. Each of these students will be responsible for one aspect of presenting concerts. The Senate will vote upon these people on March 10.

The major impetus for the Concert Bureau has been the almost unbroken string of concert offerings that have failed at the box office. Last year not only did Winter Weekend lose money, but so did the upcoming Greek Week concert (Ray Charles), and the WRUV-AM concert (Grass Roots). Since the amount of money involved in presenting concerts is as much as fifty thousand dollars a year, it was felt that a specially trained group was necessary to make these events a success, and that a central, continuing effort from a small, workable group would help to make the presentations of concerts more efficient and professional.

The law charges the group to maintain a program whereby new students are continually being trained for positions. This way there will be a continual line of workers. The Bureau is also required to produce a set amount of concerts per year.

The following is a copy of the law as passed by the SA Senate:

1. There will be a Committee for presenting concerts to be known as the S.A. Concert Bureau (nicknamed Fred) whose responsibility will be to sponsor and produce all concerts (whether presented by students on the campus of the University of Vermont (UVM), especially any concerts to be scheduled in the Patrick Gymnasium.

The word "concert" is defined as a musical activity employing one or more groups (or groups) that has/have an audience in concert attendance - whether or not do

VERMONT CYNIC

VOLUME LXXXIX

MARCH 12, 1971

NUMBER 6

Catamounts Return To Bowdoin Saturday To Defend ECAC Crown

by Dave Kopacz

In a repeat of last year's match, the Cats of UVM will journey up to Brunswick Maine to face the Bowdoin Bears for the ECAC Division II championship. A 2-1 cliffhanger catapulted Vermont past Massachusetts, Wednesday, to tomorrow's finale.

Bowdoin, coming off a convincing 8-2 victory over Norwich, appears to be prepared for the deciding contest. The Brunswick sextet lost only two division games during the season and, like the Catamounts, are undefeated on home ice against Division II foes.

The last Bowdoin loss was taken by the Cats who swept past the Bears 5-2 two weeks ago. That game featured hard hitting and tight defense until Vermont broke it open midway through the second period. It was in that game that Vermont's leading scorer, Fred Hunt, was lost for the season.

The Cats took advantage of several Bowdoin miscues including poor passing and a catastrophic penalty to Bowdoin defenseman Coleman King. King's penalty allowed Vermont's Patty Wright to break the scoring ice with a penalty shot goal.

Saturday Preview

Saturday's contest could easily develop into a battle of goals. Vermont's David Reece, superb in the Massachusetts game, will be opposed by either Tom Hutchinson or John Talbot in the nets. Since Hutchinson has already proved to be an easy mark for the Catamounts, Talbot will probably start at goal.

The Cats will probably be playing the same type of game as against UMass. This features a tough defense which shifts into offensive gear at the slightest opportunity. This places a big responsibility on the defensemen.

If the Massachusetts game is any basis for judgement, the Cats are ready. Tim Bickford played his best game of the year making ten blocked shots including one with his helmet. Ted Yeates was his typical All-American self while Bill Dunnington scored the first goal.

The Cats will have to put more than two goals on the Bowdoin board. Bowdoin has been averaging more than five goals all season and are known for their fast skating lines. In many ways they are similar to last year's squad.

The Cats will be aiming for a replay of last year's score which found the Cats on top of a 4-1 tally when the buzzer ended the game. That game featured George "Rico" Minarsky and Jimmy Yeates, the brother of Teddy. Of course Reece was exceptional in goal, just as he was against the Mass Redmen.

Pat Flaherty.

At 9:46 of the second period Ned Grant again took a Wright pass and Grant fired his slam over Flaherty's right shoulder. Bob Hodde received assists on both goals.

Massachusetts came back to score when junior wing Mike Waldron beat Reece in front of the goal with 10:35 left to play. Then the fun began.

It seemed like a miracle but the Cats just kept the Redmen from Reece. Although the action stayed in the Cat's zone, stars like Bickford and Yeates blocked shot after shot. The men from Mass pulled Flaherty with one minute and a half left to play. When Sam Simmons entered the penalty box, Massachusetts put an offensive display that only a Reece could halt and he did.

The Cats head up to Bowdoin with Wright leading the team in scoring. The classy sophomore has 19 goals and 22 assists for 41 points. He is followed by Minarsky and the injured Hunt both with 37 points.

ICINGS

Jim Cross was jubilant in the locker room Wednesday and for a good reason. The Cats played just the type of game that they had to.

Cross, when asked to pick the three stars of the game, named Reece, Bickford and Wright.

The Cats began in their typical slow style with the Redmen controlling the action for the first eight minutes of the initial period. Then the Cats started to move, but said, "What more could you ask for than seeing up two did not hit the light until the 16:12 mark. Patty Wright goals in limited playing time and playing with a 103 Dunnington about 25 feet out in front of the goal. Dunnington released a slap shot that eluded the goalie, and amazed the fans with great save after great save.

The Mass Game

Massachusetts found a team that, as coach Jim Cross and put it, was "clutch". That is the only way to explain the

The Cats began in their typical slow style with the Redmen controlling the action for the first eight minutes of the initial period. Then the Cats started to move, but said, "What more could you ask for than seeing up two did not hit the light until the 16:12 mark. Patty Wright goals in limited playing time and playing with a 103 Dunnington about 25 feet out in front of the goal. Dunnington released a slap shot that eluded the goalie, and amazed the fans with great save after great save.

Openings Available- Student Reps To Board

The influence of student opinion has been brought to bear to increase the influence which ever-increasing force and frequency in the past year. In the instances of the Beckley resignation, the Parent contract question, and the revision of the Board's Rules of Procedure, student influence on the decision-making process was significant. The opinions of students have communicated to the Trustees by the student representatives to the Board.

Applications are now available at the Student Association office for eight positions as Student Representatives to the Board of Trustees for the 1971-1972 academic year. All undergraduate and graduate students who are interested in working with the Board are urged to apply. In the interest of bringing diverging student opinions to the Board, those who have disagreed with stands the Student Representatives have taken in the past are welcomed. The only qualifications are membership in the student body and a desire to increase the influence which students have on the internal University decision-making processes.

The terms of the new Student Representatives will begin with attendance at the April Board meeting as assistants to the present representatives. The new students will then attend the June, August, October, December, February, and April meetings of the Board. Each Student Representative is a delegate to one of the Board's committees. These committees and the present representatives are: Finance and Budget, Bud Shriver; Investment, Alan Bugbee; Educational Policy, Andy Gassman; University Development, Adrienne Rosen; Student Activities, Mark Davis; Buildings and Grounds, Ken Whittaker; Educational Television, Bob Bates. The Chairman of the Student Representatives serves on the Executive Committee and the University Governance Committee. The present Chairman is Edward Borden.

Specific questions may be directed to any of these people. All eight positions are open for the coming year. Those students who are presently representatives and who wish to retain their positions are asked to reapply.

During the past year, the realm of student participation in the functions of the Board has broadened. For the first time, students were represented in the Board's officer-selection process. Two students, the President of the Student Association and the Chairman of the Student Representatives were granted the right to speak at will on any issue before the Board in the public Board meeting. Prior to this change in the Board's Rules of Procedure, only Trustees could speak at the meetings of the full Board.

Applications may be picked up at the Student Association office in Billings and should be returned there by April 1.

Speakers Bureau:

Michael MacOwen Is First Of Three Speakers

The Student Association Speakers Bureau will be offering three more major speakers this semester. Tomorrow evening in the Fleming Museum Michael MacOwen will speak on theatre in England and Canada. Mr. MacOwen has been director of LAMDA, The London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art, England's finest professional theatre school.

Mr. MacOwen has a distinguished history of directing and teaching in theatre. Among various British actors are included John Gielgud, Peggy Ashcroft, and Laurence Olivier. At present Mr. MacOwen is a visiting lecturer at Canada's National Theatre School in Montreal. Admission is free. The speech begins at 8:00 pm in the Marble Court.

On March 17 at 8:00 pm in Ira Allen Chapel, the American poet Anne Sexton will speak about her own work. She will also read from some of her works.

Mrs. Sexton has been widely published in such periodicals as The New Yorker, Harper's, The Hudson Review, Yale Review, National Saturday Review.

Sewanee Review, and Encounter. Some of her collections are entitled To Bedlam and Part

Way Back (1960), All My Pretty Ones (1962), Live Or Die (1966). In 1965 she was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in London.

Julian Bond, Black legislator from Georgia will speak on March 28 in Patrick Gymnasium. Mr. Bond is a founder of SNCC (Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee). In 1965 Mr. Bond was elected to the Georgia House of Representatives but because of his position on the war in Vietnam he was denied his seat. Bond then won election to fill his own vacancy but was denied again by the same committee of the Georgia House. In 1966 the Supreme Court ruled unanimously that Mr. Bond had fairly won his seat and had a right to it.

Bond is also something of a poet and has been published in Negro Digest, Motive, Ramparts, American Negro Poetry, and Beyond The Blues.

The speech will begin at 8:00 pm and will have an admission fee of $1.50.

Other speakers are scheduled and will be brought to the student body's attention as soon as possible. For information please call Ext. 2053.

Julian Bond, a legislator from Georgia, will speak on March 28

SA Creates Concert Bureau

Two weeks ago the Student Association Senate passed a law that made the SA Concert Bureau (affectionately known as the new law puts the hands of the members of the Concert Bureau the power to produce all student funded concerts, especially those that occur in the Patrick Gymnasium.

The feeling that a new organization was needed has been growing for the past few years in the Senate. Last Semester the matter of concerts and major events was put into the hands of a committee.

The major points of the new law are: The Concert Bureau will have the sole responsibility for presenting all student funded concerts on campus. The Bureau will consist of seven students elected by the SA Senate who have been nominated by a committee composed of representatives from IRA, The Fraternity Forum, the Panhellenic Council, and the SA Senate. Each of these students will be responsible for one aspect of presenting concerts. The Senate will vote upon these people on March 10.

The major impetus for the Concert Bureau has been the almost unbroken string of concert offerings that have failed at the box office. Last year not only did Winter Weekend lose money, but so did Homecoming, the Greek Week concert (Ray Charles), and the WRUV-AM concert (Grass Roots). Since the amount of money involved in presenting concerts is as much as fifty thousand dollars a year, it was felt that a specially trained group was necessary to make these events a success, and that a central, continuing effort from a small, workable group would help to make the presentations of concerts more efficient and professional.

The law charges the group to maintain a program whereby new students are continually being trained for positions. This way there will be a continual line of workers. The Bureau is also required to produce a stated amount of concerts per year.

The following is a copy of the law as passed by the SA Senate.

1. There will be a Committee for presenting concerts to be known as SA Concert Bureau (nicknamed "Fred") whose responsibility will be to sponsor and produce all concerts presented by students on the campus of the University of Vermont (UVM), especially any concerts to be scheduled in the Patrick Gymnasium.

The word "concert" is defined as a musical activity employing musician(s), or group(s) that has live audience in attendance - whether or not admission is charged or the general public is admitted.

By the phrase "sponsor and produce" it is understood that the Concert Bureau is solely responsible to the Student Association Senate (Senate), the UVM Administration, and the Student Body for the initiation, scheduling, producing, and financing of all concerts that occur on the UVM campus and that it must produce a stated amount of concerts per semester.

2. The Concert Bureau will have seven members whose job descriptions follow:

a. Chairman, who will coordinate all activities of other members of the Concert Bureau. He will chair all meetings of the Concert Bureau and will represent the Concert Bureau to the Senate.

b. Treasurer, who will handle all financial transactions of the Concert Bureau. Further, he will prepare all budgets for the Concert Bureau and these will be subject to acceptance by the remainder of the members of the Concert Bureau. He will be responsible to the Student Association Treasurer.

c. Producer, who will manage the actual concert by acting as House Manager, supervising security, and arranging the general sale of tickets prior to the actual concert.

d. Publicity, who will promote the concert and is responsible for obtaining the audience.

e. Technician, who will be familiar with lighting and sound systems. Should it be necessary he will be responsible for the acquisition of such items.

f. Secretary, who will be responsible for keeping minutes and all records of the Concert Bureau.

g. Liaison, who will work with student groups for whom the Concert Bureau produces a concert. He will also be responsible for maintaining contacts with agencies, etc. and knowing what entertainment is being offered.

Other duties will be assigned by the committee as the need arises. This may be done in two ways: (1) by making the added responsibility a permanent part of the job description, or (2) by making it a temporary responsibility for a stated period of time.

The Concert Bureau must act as educator and enlist assistants (who can not vote) from enlisted students, who after serving an apprenticeship, may be considered for any vacant position in the Concert Bureau.

Whether or not an individual member of the Concert Bureau elects to actively manage his responsibilities for a specific concert or allows an assistant to do so, he, the member, is solely responsible to the Concert Bureau for the competent performance of those duties.

3. The Concert Bureau may elect to conduct its business by Robert's Rules of Order or by whatever other proper means it chooses. A simple majority rules in all votes.

4. Potential members of the Concert Bureau will be nominated by a committee composed of the Treasurer of the Student Association, two Senators for the Student Association, one representative from IRA, and one combined representative from both Fraternity Forum and the Panhellenic Council.

No member of the nominating committee may be allowed to serve on the Concert Bureau. A simple majority in the Senate, which shall elect the seven members, is election to the Concert Bureau. Tenure for a member is to be for the remainder of the member's academic career at UVM or until it is found necessary to resign. The Senate may remove a member by a two-thirds vote for non-performance of duties. Qualifications to be a member of the Concert Bureau:

(continued on page five)

The Cats continued their relentless drive with another goal.

Dave Reece making one of thirty-three saves.

College Of Arts And Sciences Raises Graduation Requirement

by Charlie French

The College of Arts and Sciences has raised its grade point average required for graduation from 1.7 to 2.0. At the same time, the college also voted to raise its criterion for trial and dismissal to conform with the increase in the required graduating average.

The changes, adopted at the March 10 meeting of the college will not affect students now enrolled at the University. They will, however, apply to those freshmen attending UVM next fall.

The proposal to raise the graduating average and the conditions for trial and dismissal created a considerable amount of discussion most of which favored the recommendations.

Many reasons were given for making the changes, among them: The fact that UVM is the only state University that permits students to graduate with less than a 2.0 cumulative grade point average. It was also mentioned that the present trial and dismissal criterion enable a student to enter the University until his senior year with a cumulative average lower than that required for graduation. The newly adopted standards take into account the unique experience that is the freshman year at college but require a student to achieve an average equal to that required for graduation for the rest of his time at UVM if he wishes to avoid being placed on trial or subjected to dismissal.

This means that a new student will have to attain, after his freshman year, an average of at least 2.0 in order to remain a student in good standing.

During the discussion, the question of grading was brought up for consideration. It was suggested that grades are becoming inflated and that a review of present grading practices might be in order. Dean Wertheimer suggested that the war being waged throughout Southeast Asia might be, in part, responsible for the rise in grades. He noted that many instructors are wary of "Thinking out student test they should jeopardize their military status."

In other business, the meeting heard the report of the newly created Admissions Committee, made up of representatives from the faculty and the student body, which had been reviewing applications to the College of Arts and Sciences. Dean Wertheimer, chairman of the committee, said that the college will offer admission to 560 in-state students which should create approximately 420 acceptances. 600 offers will be made to out-of-state applicants which will be accepted by approximately 250 out-of-state students. This will result in a percentage breakdown of 63% in-state and 37% out-of-state students.

Wertheimer also stated that in the past the college was required to admit two or three times as many out-of-state men as women. This year however, more women than men are to be admitted.

Practically all of the out-of-state students accepted this year rank in the top tenth percentile of their high school classes.

Wertheimer discussed the acceptance of student of other than academic reasons such as athletic prowess, being the son or daughter of an alumnus or being the son or daughter of a "potential benefactor."

The athletic department has done "one hell of a job," said Wertheimer "especially the basketball team." He remarked that most of the applicants favored by the athletic department would have been accepted solely for academic reasons. Presently, "we are... negotiating with the athletic department."

Wertheimer was asked if the greater number of females will have an effect on the various departments of the college. He replied it would and that the department of French, Sociology and Psychology will show increases while the Economics, Business Administration and Political Science departments will show decreases in their enrollments.

The meeting also heard the reports of the Nominating Committee, the Committee on Student Voting Rights and the Curriculum Committee. The meeting adjourned over the discussion of whether or not students serving on committees of the college should be allowed to vote.

This issue will be discussed further at the April meeting of the College of Arts and Sciences.

after a long involvement with each other, have known each other for a short time.

An orgasm is a complex neurophysiological component as well as wider manifestations. It is not located solely in any other anatomical part, male or female. If anything, producing orgasms may enhance the possibility of having orgasms there are other things hanging you probably could both benefit from some sex and sexual technique.

Making your husband think that you are not may make him happy, while it's not the same thing as being able to inexpensive paperbacks you may both "Expression in Marriage" by Donald W. by Bantam and "Analysis of Human Sex" and Brecher, a Signet paperback.

QUESTION: I have heard that aspirin is true that the acid in it eats away at the ANSWER: Believe it or not, yes. In stomach, aspirin is a potent irritant. Granules that remain in contact with bleeding. Obviously, the harsh effect on most people as aspirin is consumed are more vulnerable to the irritant unable to take aspirin due to its because of allergies, should receive it from a physician.

The best way of reducing the discomfort is to take it with food or plenty of fluids. It does not lodge in the stomach. Stuffer arising as the nonbuffered kind of a generic coated varieties (they have a the intestine rather than in the stomach they are excreted in the same shape have also been reported cases of constriction of the small intestine. Incidentally, by aspirin is usually due to the difficulty. It is often a sign of using too

Panhellenic Council Strives For Growth

Installation of the new officers in the Panhellenic Council took place Tuesday evening March 2 at Tri-Delta Sorority. All old and new officers were present, along with representatives from each sorority. Dean of Women, Jackie Gibbons was also present during the ceremonies.

Polly Herlihy, former president of Panshel, conducted the ceremony. Polly altered the old installation ceremony which had stressed only the responsibilities of each officer in the Panshel Council. She challenged every member of Panshel and every sorority woman to meet the commitment of keeping sororities alive and growing. She stated "The time for change is now, and herein lies your challenge."

As the governing body of all sororities, Polly told the girls that Panshel "should be the central organization for setting the pace and establishing the guidelines of meaningful programming for our sororities."

She reminded the girls that "an organization can only remain viable and effective with the active support of each of its members."

Polly then addressed each officer individually. She challenged every one of them to meet their commitment and fulfill their duties to make Panshel a strong organization.

Polly closed her remarks by stating "The Challenge is there."

Let's commit ourselves to its resolution."

The newly installed officers into the Panshel Council were: President — Marcia Brown; First Vice-President — Deb Meece; Second Vice-President — Luayne Smith; Secretary — Terry Brown; Treasurer — Marge Pacer; Coordinator of Public Affairs — Louise LaPina.

Newly Installed Panshel Council

National Music Conference Attended By UVM Music Department

Four members of the UVM Music Department participated in the recent meeting of the Eastern Division of the Music Educators National Conference in Atlantic City. Dr. Herbert Schuller, Associate Professor, became President-elect of this 13,000 member division of an organization of over 70,000 members, to serve as president during the 1973-75 biennium. He also participated in two workshops in research and public relations, presented a research paper entitled "A Study of the Curricula of Summer Music Programs for High School Students as Presented on College Campuses or Camp Settings", and presided at the concert of the Burlington High School Concert Band.

Dr. James Chapman, Associate Professor, conducted the University Choral Union in a concert before an audience of over 2,000 and presented a workshop in contemporary choral music performing works by five composers, present to answer questions and receive comments from the audience.

Dr. Robert Wigness, Assistant Professor, participated in Workshops in research and public relations.

Dr. Frank Lidlal, Professor and music department chairman, served on the meeting planning committee, delivered a paper on "Music in Life Enrichment and Adult Education", and presided at the workshop featuring the Choral Union.

Contraceptives Requested

Wednesday night the SA Senate passed a motion requesting that the Bookstore sell contraceptive foam and condoms.

The Senate also passed the following motions: S-120—to recognize the Baha'i Society; S-123—to establish a committee to investigate the defense of the SA fee; S-124—to clarify the membership of the SA Student Court; and S-121 with the amendment S-122—to have mandatory service on two University-wide or SA committees by all Senators. The purpose of the motion is to increase participation of the Senators on committees and thereby increase their knowledge of campus affairs.

WRUV Word Of The Day

You're calling a friend at one of the dorms, the phone rings and the voice at the other end answers "Garbage." Hello, and you're wondering what's going on. Well it's WRUV's new word of the day game. Each day WRUV, your campus radio station, has a different word for the day. If you answer the phone with the word for the day (which happened to be garbage on the day you called) instead of hello you win two free albums of your choice from Bailey's Music Rooms.

There have already been several winners. If you see Sharon Hallett, Chris Brown, Kathy McIntyre, Bruce Lawrence, or Judy Fardelmann ask them which albums they picked out at Bailey's. And if you would like a couple of free albums listen to WRUV, 580 on your dial and when the phone rings answer with the word of the day instead of hello.

IRA Executive Elections To Be Held

The term of the present officers of the Inter Residence Association has proven itself to be a successful organization. Setbacks have of course been suffered due to growing pains and also due to the working out of a suitable definition of the goals of the organization. However, several committees are now working on improvement of the existing facilities. Also, cultural programs, such as the "Last Lecture Series" and the upcoming "White Out Weekend" has proven the necessity and benefits of the organization.

The Inter Residence Association has proven itself to be a successful organization. Setbacks have of course been suffered due to growing pains and also due to the working out of a suitable definition of the goals of the organization. However, several committees are now working on improvement of the existing facilities. Also, cultural programs, such as the "Last Lecture Series" and the upcoming "White Out Weekend" has proven the necessity and benefits of the organization.

the position of Judicial Chairman will have to be filled.

Due to constitutional revisions, these positions will constitute a new arrangement of the Executive Board. The former board consisted of the President, two Vice Presidents, two Treasurers and a Secretary and a Judicial Board Chairman. It is hoped that this new board will allow for smoother operation of the affairs of IRA.

The Inter Residence Association is a relatively new organization, being only one year old. It was created and continues to work for the benefit of those students living in the residence halls.

In Inter Residence Association has proven itself to be a successful organization. Setbacks have of course been suffered due to growing pains and also due to the working out of a suitable definition of the goals of the organization. However, several committees are now working on improvement of the existing facilities. Also, cultural programs, such as the "Last Lecture Series" and the upcoming "White Out Weekend" has proven the necessity and benefits of the organization.

Due to constitutional revisions, these positions will constitute a new arrangement of the Executive Board. The former board consisted of the President, two Vice Presidents, two Treasurers and a Secretary and a Judicial Board Chairman. It is hoped that this new board will allow for smoother operation of the affairs of IRA.

The Inter Residence Association is a relatively new organization, being only one year old. It was created and continues to work for the benefit of those students living in the residence halls.

The Inter Residence Association has proven itself to be a successful organization. Setbacks have of course been suffered due to growing pains and also due to the working out of a suitable definition of the goals of the organization. However, several committees are now working on improvement of the existing facilities. Also, cultural programs, such as the "Last Lecture Series" and the upcoming "White Out Weekend" has proven the necessity and benefits of the organization.

Candidates Forum

Come and listen to the candidates for DEAN, STUDENT ASSOCIATION officers as they present their ideas. They will be speaking in North Lounge of Billings at 6:30 Friday March 12th not the 11th. There will be a question and answer period after all candidates have spoken.

Radical Union

The Radical Union will hold another meeting Sunday night, March 14th at 7:30 P.M. in the Marsh Lounge of the Billings Student Center.

Council Election

The election of the Freshmen Class Council will take place March 30th. Any interested freshmen, having a 1.7 cum or better and being a student in good standing, should sign up at the SA desk by March 25th. The election will be held 9-4 in Billings and 5-6 in the dining halls. I.D.'s are required.

Rummage Sale

Patterson 2 is holding a Rummage Sale this Thursday, March 11, from 12 noon till 10 p.m. — Clothes, books, stereo, records, and all sorts of odds and ends will be up for grabs. Cheap!

Education Tests

To All Teacher Education Candidates in: Art Education, Elementary Education, Home Economics Education, Music Education, Physical Education, Secondary Education, Vocational-Technical Education. Any University of Vermont student who wishes to be accepted into a program in one of the above teaching fields must pass two written communication tests. One is a writing sample which tests use and range of vocabulary, logical expression of ideas, paragraph organization, sentence structure and spelling. The other is a General Examination in English vocabulary, grammar, and language usage.

The tests will be given in Voice 101 on the dates listed below. The general examination will be from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. and the writing test from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Please sign up at the office, Room 311 Waterman, immediately for the evening you prefer.

Tuesday, March 23
Tuesday, March 30
Thursday, April 1

Careers For Women

On March 17, at 1:30 p.m. there will be a panel discussion of some of the career opportunities available for women. Mr. Douglas Hinnu, Director of the UVM Placement Center, will moderate and introduce the panel members. Each member will give a brief discussion of her field, opportunities for advancement, personal reflections, and projections of future types of careers.

Some of the areas which will be represented are: public school teaching, guidance, counseling, life insurance, counseling, social welfare, library work, college teaching, student personnel work in higher education.

There will be an open question and answer period after the panel members discuss their respective fields. Students and faculty are invited.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

Column No. 2, March 1971

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI. 48823

QUESTION: We have been married for seven months. My husband is always ready to have intercourse. I enjoy it but do not want it as often as he. I have never had an orgasm while we are having intercourse. Sometimes I have a clitoral orgasm when I am on top of him, but he does not help me.

I make my husband think that I do have orgasm because it makes him happy. Ever since I was a little girl, I have produced clitoral orgasms myself. Could this prevent me from having orgasms during intercourse?

ANSWER: Supposedly, one of the distinguishing characteristics of human beings is that they profit from the experiences of other people. While knowledge may be advanced in some scientific fields in this manner, when it comes to marriage, many couples are faced with a do-it-yourself project with no instructions and with little benefit from the experience of millions who have done it themselves before.

Many happily married people could tell you (if they were willing to be candid) that adjustments in sexual activity are rather common throughout marriage, but especially during the first year or two. Sexual intercourse often occurs with a much greater frequency during the first year of marriage than it does subsequently. It is quite common for the man to be more readily aroused sexually and to desire intercourse more often than his wife. Many women experience an increased desire for sexual activity as marriage progresses. The inability to understand each other's needs early in marriage can result in the man's sexual interest flagging at the time his wife's interest is increasing.

Interpersonal understanding, nonsexual as well as sexual, takes place over a period of years. Therefore, it is not surprising that difficulties in adjustment are experienced by couples who marry after a long involvement with each other as well as by couples who have known each other for a short time.

An orgasm is a complex neurologic occurrence with an emotional component as well as widespread sensory and motor manifestations. It is not located solely in the clitoris or vagina or any other anatomic part, male or female. It is a sexual happening. If anything, producing orgasms yourself (masturbation) should enhance the possibility of having orgasm during intercourse unless there are other things hanging you up. You and your husband probably could both benefit from some further information about sex and sexual technique.

Making your husband think that you are having an orgasm when you are not may make him happy, which may make you happy, but it's not the same thing as being able to be open with other. Two inexpensive paperbacks you may both enjoy looking at are "Sexual Expression in Marriage" by Donald W. Hastings, M.D. published by Bantam and "Analysis of Human Sexual Response" by Brecher and Brecher, a Signet paperback.

QUESTION: I have heard that aspirin is harmful to the stomach. Is it true that the acid in it eats away at the stomach wall?

ANSWER: Believe it or not, yes. In the acid environment of the stomach, aspirin is a potent irritant to the lining of the stomach. Granules that remain in contact with the stomach wall can cause bleeding. Obviously, the harsh effects of aspirin are minimal for most people as aspirin is consumed often. However, some people are more vulnerable to the irritant effects than others. People unable to take aspirin due to its inflammatory properties, or because of allergies, should receive alternative pain killing medicine from a physician.

The best way of reducing the distressful effects of aspirin is to take it with food or plenty of fluids so that it dissolves quickly and does not lodge in the stomach. Buffered aspirin is probably just as irritating as the non-buffered kind and much more expensive. The enteric coated varieties (they have a hard coating so they dissolve in the intestine rather than in the stomach) are to be avoided. Often they are excreted in the same shape that they were ingested. There have also been reported cases of coated aspirin causing perforation of the small intestine. Incidentally, the nausea and vomiting caused by aspirin is usually due to the direct effect of the aspirin on the brain. It is often a sign of using too much.

QUESTIONS: I have heard that many women doctors take birth control pills continuously without intervening periods and that the only reason for having periods when on the pill is a psychological one.

If I go for two months without a period I feel a little tired and draggy. Is this psychosomatic? I don't want to be doing anything foolish but would very much like to avoid periods.

ANSWER: Hmm, now that you mention it I've never asked any of my women colleagues what they do about contraception. On the other hand, I do know that some women who have suffered with unusually heavy menstrual flow have been placed on contraceptives continuously for many months.

The reason for inducing a period while on the pill is primarily psychological, but I don't know if people have investigated the long-term effect of continual use of the pill. The normal menstrual period occurs after a buildup of the lining of the uterus. What occurs with the pill is a mild withdrawal bleeding because of the change in hormone level when the pill is stopped.

Going for two months without a period shouldn't effect the way you feel under usual circumstances. Your problem may be more complex and consultation with your gynecologist would be wise before you decide to take the pill in a way other than he has prescribed.

OVP

OVP Help Wanted

Burlington Area Tenants Union
Volunteers are needed to help organize tenants around issues concerning tenants rights, minimum housing code enforcement, housing shortages, etc. DE campus students who are themselves tenants should be especially concerned.

Without Rights Organization

Volunteers are needed to help raise funds to support an emergency service center for poverty people in the Burlington area. This organization helps provide emergency food, transportation and communication services, for other people like themselves. But they need some dollars to help continue this service.

Adams School

Needs ski instructors for Friday afternoon program at the Cochrans in Richmond from 2-5 p.m. Transportation is provided.

Bennett C. Douglas School

A person is needed to work in the workshop in the mornings helping with supervision and activities. The children are trainable mentally handicapped and this program would give them the opportunity to use hand tools and construct simple projects.

Richmond Head Start

Day Care Center
Volunteers are needed to assist in program of the day care center.

OVP Staff

Students who are interested in helping get others involved by working with us in the office are encouraged to come join us.

OVP Steering Committee

The Ovp Steering Committee meets on Sunday nights at 6:00 p.m. in Marsh Lounge in Billings. The meetings are open to all. Students interested in social action are encouraged to attend.

IMPORTANT

Students — please buy your books by April 5th. On that date we will begin preparing for the summer & fall semesters.

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS

PAPERS 15¢

GORDIAN CHAMBER PIPES $3.50

ALL YOUR SMOKING NEEDS AT THE FIRST STEP.

152 CHURCH ST. UNDER HANNIBULS

Tennessee Woman's Saga Of Degradation

After seven years of marriage, Sherri Myers, a poor, white Tennessee woman, left her husband in February 1970. He used for divorce and custody of their child Miriam, claiming Sherri was an unfit mother and wife.

As grounds for a divorce he cited Sherri's women's liberation activities, claimed she hated all men, and named the "comorbid" around town with men of the Negro race. Moreover, he argued that Sherri denied him his sexual rights and didn't want to execute other wifely duties.

Sherri filed a counter divorce suit called a cross bill. She demanded divorce, child custody, and alimony for unpaid back wages as a domestic drudge. Her husband's attorney immediately entered a motion asking the court to strike out her petition as irrelevant. A date for the hearing has not yet been set.

The following is a summary of the cross bill. Paragraphs in quotation marks are excerpted from the original bill.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (LNS/CPS)—She was born June 16, 1942, the illegitimate child of Pearl Weaver. From her own experiences she learned that when a bastard child is born, both the mother's and the child's lots are clearly defined. They are outcasts and are punished socially and economically—deprived of basic rights.

"Her mother was forced into unskilled, low-paying, non-unionized work, washing glassware for the U.S. Public Health Service for fifteen years, and for fifteen years her income was inadequate to feed, clothe and shelter a family of three. Therefore, she also worked as a waitress at night. Half of this income was spent on day care for the two youngest children."

"Sherri Myers' earliest childhood memories were of moving from one old, cold, tin-roofed, spintery floored shack to another, of going to school hungry with cardboard soles in her shoes to keep the ground from soaking through; of searching for empty soft drink bottles to sell to get money to buy a quart of milk or loaf of bread; of breaking out in boils from lack of nutrition and iron deficiency; of living two and three days at a time in bitter cold weather buried under all the available blankets because the gas company had turned the heat off in the dead of winter when there was no money to pay the utility bill; of being constantly harassed and assaulted by men who considered her mother and her easy prey; of hearing school mates frequently call her mother a whore because they had learned from their parents that she was not married; of being constantly subjected to police harassment simply because they were "poor white trash"; of being publicly berated, before grade school classmates by teachers who paraded her before the class asking her aloud why she did not know her father's name."

"Sherri's mother was finally able to send her to private school in Valdosta, Ga., from funds furnished by two church organizations.

"At that school, for the first time in her life, Sherri got to know upper middle-class people. They liked her because they felt that she had upper-middle class potential. They told her that she was an exceptional female and an exceptional "poor white"—for she had intelligence, ambition and "style." They added that with the right kind of education she could succeed and be accepted in middle class society.

"The stigma she was a victim of this myth. When she graduated from high school she had accepted without question their values. She eagerly accepted the opportunity to go to David Lipscomb College in Nashville, which is a Church of Christ College."

"She was later expelled from David Lipscomb for committing the "unladylike" act of smoking a cigar in her dorm room. In the fall of 1961 she enrolled at George Peabody College for Teachers.

"In order to stay at Peabody she had to get a job. The church had cut off much of her scholarship after her expulsion from Lipscomb. After several unsuccessful attempts at landing a job, she finally managed to find work as a model. One of these modeling assignments took her to the Harris School of Art and it was there that she met the complainant (her husband), John Myers, who was then the school's student instructor.

"Within a matter of months an intimate relationship developed and to her horror, in July of 1962, Sherri discovered she was pregnant. Childhood experiences had taught her the social and economic penalties imposed on women snared in this situation and she soon began to experience a sense of self-revulsion."

First she tried to get an abortion, but she couldn't raise the $250 charged by a local doctor. She then tried to abort herself, but succeeded in making herself nearly fatally ill. Sherri had to resign herself to giving birth to the child.

"For the first five months of her pregnancy she attended classes at Peabody, worked at Sear's, and as a cocktail waitress in a nightclub."

But she couldn't keep up the pace. Her health was deteriorating and her grades were plunging. She was fired from Sear's when they learned she was pregnant and unmarried. So five months pregnant and broke, Sherri moved in with her mother who was then waitressing.

As a last resort she agreed to marry John Myers in Dec. 1963. She did the housekeeping, cooking, and cleaning; bathed, fed, changed, and loved the baby. Her husband refused to share the chores of child care.

complaining, that he felt someone when asked to change diapers.

When Miriam was three months old Sherri went back to school and her mother moved in and took over the child care and housekeeping responsibilities. John Myers never paid her for this work; he only gave her room and board. After graduating from Peabody, Sherri returned to full-time housework and childrearing. John refused to pay her for the work, and forced her to request money from him and to account in detail how she spent it. Throughout the seven years of their marriage, he showed no interest in Miriam. He only supported her financially. All affection was given to her by her mother and grandmother.

In his suit, John Myers claims that "the defendant denied the complainant his sexual rights as a husband. Fearing pregnancy, the defendant nevertheless refused to use birth control devices and frustrated and tormented the complainant by throwing him off before he could receive any sexual gratification whatsoever."

In fact, Sherri spent three years on the pill and stopped taking it only after it wrecked her menstrual cycle and she became aware of its dangerous side effects. Moreover, after that she tried six times for a successful insertion of the IUD, but suffered severe cramps and infection. Throughout all this, John expected his "sexual rights" and refused to use contraceptives himself. Nor did he show concern for Sherri's sexual gratification.

On innumerable occasions, she urged him to work with her to solve their problems. Such attempts always resulted in physical violence and name-calling on his part. Before the left him Sherri made one last effort to make him aware of the unequal division of labor in their home. She stopped washing dishes. For two weeks, dishes piled up in the kitchen sink. He demanded they eat in restaurants, and when that became too expensive said that he would never wash dishes. He bought a new dishwashing machine. Sherri was supposed to be happy about her promotion from dishwasher to dishwasher.

After Sherri left her husband she saw Miriam every day and nearly every weekend until he

View From A Silver Roof

by Carol Sabatini Brown

"When will we ever learn? when will we gain the wisdom to love our brothers and sisters? Whether it be the Russian Jewish, The 'Broods' and 'Hell's Angels' in Cleveland, The Blacks of the South, The South American in California, The Students in Turkey, Israel and Egypt, North and South Vietnam. . . . Dear God, The Irish too. . . . When, dear God, will we ever have the wisdom to live in peace and brotherly understanding? I pray soon for the simple sake of humanity. I am so tired of bigotry by virtue of one's pigmentation or birth. I am so tired of those who discount wisdom simply because it emanates from long hair. I am so tired of doubt, contempt, despair and I am so helpless. . . . alone. The Views have been rather sad this week; I do not know what I can do against the tide of hate, but something I must do. . . . if just to extend a hand to a stranger. . . . isn't that where human love starts? On your own. Taking the first step toward understanding? Friend, can you tell me? . . . would you take the time?"

Concert Bureau...

Interest, provable by experience in working on entertainment. At least second semester freshman standing.

5. Relation to Senate: The Concert Bureau is a Ad Hoc Committee of the Senate. The Senate funds the Concert Bureau. The Concert Bureau may at no time obtain financial support from any other organization without the express permission of the Senate. The Senate may expect reports from the Chairman of the Concert Bureau at the Senate's pleasure.

6. The Senate will, via the normal S.A. Finance Committee Budget Hearings, fund the Concert Bureau's operating expenses and provide

7. The Concert Bureau will have one advisor, hopefully the Director of Student Activities. He will oversee the operations of the Concert Bureau and will co-sign all purchase orders for the Concert Bureau.

8. The performance and the records of the Concert Bureau will be reviewed by the Senate one year after the creation of the Concert Bureau.

9. Upon adoption of this proposal by the Student Association Senate, S.A. Concert Bureau becomes effective April 1, 1971, with choosing of members of the Concert Bureau to be held before that date.

by Jay Blumenthuff

One Road

Waves of sunlight carve endless patterns in the sands of time As arms of the universal truth reach toward the horizon

For guidance, for understanding, for the light that keeps two roads as one Two; looking at and into two, Caring, wondering, and hoping the single road leads on, in endless patterns of unity.

kind sage advice and wise counsel."

"Yes, as I always say, the problem is right, and the sea is bright. Bill, Donald has a Bill, too, and on our journey we must all leave the duck Bill as our own." But Bill ducked his nose.

"Thanks, Captain Nemo, I'll send you the bill," said Donald, kicking Buffalo Bill in the stomach and middle back. Just then, there was a great shaking in the timbers oh, the deck was rolling, the whole ship trembled. Nemo and Donald grabbed for the rail and Buffalo Bill refused to yield his berth beneath the creaked feet of kicking Donald. Suddenly there was calm, not a preacher was curing, not even a spouse moved or dared to whisper in the when quite a voice cut the silence, "Who spoke of Bill?"

Captain Nemo shook when he recognized the wall. It's Moby Dick, the great White Whale, he thought. "Who goes there? I, Captain Nemo of The Good Ship Lollipop, sea wise sage, ask an answer."

"Listen Captain Nemo, sea wise sage, you got Parsley, you got Rosemary, but I got thyme. It was BarKnuckle Bill the Mailer. Captain Nemo slowly turned his head toward the new comer and said with sea wisdom, "What time?"

Dead silence. Absolute quiet. Alack of any sound. Then, "Captain Nemo, it's Howdy Doody Time, its Mickey

"Which Bill?"

"Not witch Bill, the other one"

Captain Nemo knew what a bright idea could do to solve the problem. "Bill, your Bill, and my Bill, and the bill and the bill. Now you all go down to The Billy Goat Club and have a swell time and I'll get the bill, Bill". The crew all stood up, Donald slipped the Captain a bill, and the crew arm in arm, walked off into the distant doorway and disappeared down the same

Captain Nemo turned back to see the bright ocean and thought with the smile of a sage, of a sea wise sailor, "A good ship can loll, Pop".

David L. Ingraham

Weimaraner Puppies AKC Call Candy Carroll 864-5051

DOMINOS PIZZA 10 N. WINDOOSKI BURLINGTON, VT. 658-3333

Effects Of FCC Edict Doubtful

(continued from page 4)

Whole World's Watching"). The action taken by the FCC will, if enforced strictly, effectively strangle the spread of this music, as well as greatly pinch the strained nerves of television networks. It may be that the Commission recognized that the law will be practically impossible to enforce, and, thus will appease the drug antagonists, while doing nothing to the drug users. Assuming the worst, that the drug is enforceable, Nicholas Johnson struck the lone dissenting vote, claiming that the decision is "an unconstitutional action by a Federal agency aimed clearly at controlling the content of speech."

The decision appears to be unenforceable, at least to the detriment of the drug culture. While lyrics may be forced to be more clever, it is doubtful that a censor could adequately examine a freaked out song unless he too were freaked out.

Perhaps Rock groups, now softening their tones into the new music which draws heavily from country and western, will indeed change their subjects away from drugs towards, perhaps, love. More likely though, the hard rock contingent will couch their lyrics in lurid words and sly innuendos that will slip past the censor. On the other hand, the decision, as dissenter Nicholas Johnson suggests, could be applied to alcoholic beverages.

Such an application would remove yet another source of revenue from the ailing networks, which, acting in desperation, are cancelling network veteran shows to appeal to the youth market and make up the revenues lost with the cut in maximum network prime-time hours and the removal of cigarettes from the air.

Assuming that the decision can be implemented, it would have a definite impact on much of the country. Truly underground radio stations might develop. At any rate, the government would continue its doomed attack upon drugs by endangering its own credibility.

Undoubtedly the attack would continue with a bombardment of hip messages, through advertising and even, perhaps, rock music, which would describe drug use as totally bad.

Unless the government changed significantly its campaign that is now being pushed, and started singing the tune that, yes, drugs are a great rush, he learns to drugs can be really cool, it would pursue its course now being followed which is increasingly raising doubts about its credibility. If a drug user knows that drugs do not hurt him, or knows that drugs are a great rush, he learns to disregard all the bull that the government feeds him, because the government has failed to Civil Libertarians will worry about the rung of the precedent ladder upon which this decision will fall. They fear it will serve as a basis for more forthright censorship. They fear it predicts—the first step—towards thought-control, censorship of the media.

include the tremendous physical enjoyments which he feels. This distrust in the government's good judgment reflects into other issues including the Indo-China conflict. Thus, when Richard Nixon states that no ground troops will be used in Laos, some 47% of the adults polled simply did not believe him.

The record industries, owned on a large part by the television networks, face a time of crisis. They obviously will be required to produce only their records which they can promote, so head music will be a touchy area. How will the customers react to decision? Can head music still exist without explicit allusions to drugs? Will anybody notice the difference, or will the shock waves be tumultuous?

In all probability, the decision will have no measurable effect. Few songs now are so explicit that they would be subject to such a ban, and many borderline songs could drive the principle into oblivion. Would "Lucy In The Sky With Diamonds" be banned or would radio stations argue in agreement with its author, who claims it is a story about a drawing his daughter brought home from school? Simply because the effect under the principle will be difficult to obtain should have no bearing on whether the principle is held to be valid. On principle alone, the ruling of the FCC should be overturned. The Federal government would be much better off if it concerned itself with the many omissions from our diet in the mass media. We, in turn, would be much better off if we could truly gather a full communications meal, sampling the main course of education, the desert of today's TV fare, and the wine of music.

COME TO THE KAMA SUTRA STATE

...the motion picture... SHOWS MORE THAN YOU ALWAYS WANTED TO SEE ABOUT SEX!

STRONG NOMINATED FOR 4 ACADEMY AWARDS

Shows at 7 & 9 p.m.

DOMINOS PIZZA 10 N. WINDOOSKI BURLINGTON, VT. 658-3333

RATHSKELLER RESTAURANT

Fine Dining in a Unique Atmosphere

ENTERTAINMENT FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NOW OPEN ON SUNDAY FROM 11 TO 9

ON ST. PAUL STREET IN ALLEY BETWEEN PEGTONS AND THE HOBBY SHOP

Whitey, Wake Up!

Program For Disadvantaged Blocked By Administration

by B.F.M.

Whitey, have you ever heard of PROVE? Most likely not. PROVE, or the Program Reinforcing Opportunities in Vermont for Education, is a workable plan to help more Vermonters obtain a college education. Sounds like a good idea? The Administration replied it. Let's have a closer look.

The philosophy behind PROVE reasons that the promise of equality can be fulfilled only by education. An educationally disadvantaged person starts behind and stays behind. PROVE purports to identify and recruit those low-income Vermont students who have the potential to succeed in college. By providing a special program for these students, the University would then ease them into the academic mainstream. The first program would be comprised of two courses offered during the summer prior to entry, a Communications Skills Course and a Study Skills Course. During the first semester, the students would take a special Math Course, a Contemporary American Society Course, and one regular course. If the student then felt competent he might add an additional regular course second semester. This assimilation would continue until the student has assumed a regular course load.

The Administration argues that it would thereby be admitting unqualified persons in place of qualified people. Sherri's philosophy: An academically qualified person can get education at any institution of higher learning, and there are many in Vermont. If this State University will not extend a helping hand to its own disadvantaged, who will it be admitting unqualified students, but rather fully capable people whose skills need only to be sharpened.

The University refuses to initiate a program for the recruitment of any minorities. Black recruitment is continually stalled by the argument that Vermont has its own underprivileged. Why, then, does it refuse to help even them? When will UVM turn its rhetoric of equality into action? How long will it continue to educate only the elite?

How could low-income students afford a four or five year college proposition? Again, the University would not be asked to assume the burden of fifty to a hundred students. Funds from Vermont Student Assistance, a National Defense Student Loan, an Educational Opportunity Grant, and ten hours weekly under the Work Study Program would cover all tuition, room and board, and will be devoted to the most public facet of the police.

Philosophy

The evidence of twenty years, however, is uniform and the time has come to act.

In simple, close the Penthouse staff serving like, with its cottage front salads, to the unusual side of movement cafeteria. Students can and tickets, faculty and staff could easily as they do upstairs. (The now where it is being spent, you by two major objections to this. SAGA has invested in lots of steel equipment to modernize the long line. Second, sometimes people envy. Fortunately, both of these meet in a complementary solution. Rooms open, but open it to all University Community. Students, sometimes want privacy, too. (In students are remarkably like faculty the Penthouse could be scaled for the privilege of privacy. (SAGA fall, anyway, only to discover that a dropped off. So they reluctantly instead of opening the doors to a implementation, the plan to allow faculty to eat together would, face distance. Like their white Southern time table with students three their time for us to take into account their all, no one likes to have the privilege has become, if you will pardon the egg, something of a way of life.

analogies are so profuse that rather and horse, this column will offer a all pay One Dollar for each analogy hold true. Address your argument, a Nigger Contest, c/o CYNIC Office,

UVM. In case of tie, earliest a Decision of the judges is final, and some the property of this column.

at midnight, March 19th, 1971.

by Brickman

THAT'S AS LONG AS ANY AMERICAN SHOULD SPEND THERE—

3-24 BRICKMAN

Lolly Frown

returning soldier with battle-scarred lighter.

"Captain Nemo, Annie sent us to you. Can you tell Bill here about the way it is around here?" Nemo turned to face the two already with sea wisdom on his tongue. "Bill, if Donald would duck, your wing would hit BarKnuckle Bill the Mailer, and who would direct Post Office?"

"Captain Nemo, Sir, that's not the right problem. It's about the other problem we want your

(continued on page five)

Hamper Items

Renaissance project in Westport, are "ethical" problems. Is Justice the world, possibly through intent at the latter is true. Despite the fact script court officials, the reference is. Some examples of this class of might prove informative.

provides a good example of the tents to be fair and impartial. I do not middle-class whites can judge a black lance Miss Davis is a self-proclaimed action of people in this country toward

Miss Davis a fair trial anywhere in led to a jury of peers, but does a group ts, mostly men, mostly over forty and and against Communists as to believe of anything, constitute a jury of peers examine our process of jury trial and it.

strated by the Manson trial, a pre-trial

many other trials, was decided before

This is a serious problem and has to be their cannot be allowed to extend so far trial.

the ethical problems is the problem of Constitution provides that the trial shall the alleged crime has taken place, it does uld be held in the same city or county in of students accused of violent acts during for example, or in the case of blacks similar acts during a riot, the locale in place becomes very important. In the each civil disturbance, especially in the feelings are running high. Any college a revolutionary or any black from the

for the wrath of the citizenry. In such al should automatically be changed.

re-examine, but they represent what is

These problems occur all the time. And at they don't exist. The time has come to can and seek out imaginative and novel on-trial publicity and other facets of the and revision. Otherwise justice in this together.

You Are Invited To A Real Old Film Classic

D.W. Griffith's 1915 classic, Way Down East, authentically filmed in mid-winter Vermont, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday, March 12, and Saturday, March 13, 1971, in the Votey Auditorium at the University of Vermont.

The silent film (musical score added in the 1930's for release) ranks among the finest of the old classics. The Burlington Branch of the American Association of University Women is sponsoring the film to raise money for three worthy beneficiaries: the national American Association of University Women Fellowship Program, the Greater Burlington Volunteers on a One-to-One Basis, and the Martin Luther King Book Fund at the University of Vermont.

Way Down East is surprisingly fresh, much of the effectiveness due to Griffith's direction and a flawlessly moving performance by Lillian Gish that is remarkable for its range. On the Merve Griffith television show recently, Miss Gish remarked that this old film was her favorite. Perhaps a great deal of the vitality of the climax is due to its authenticity: the exterior scenes were photographed outdoors in mid-winter in Vermont, Connecticut, and New York. It was real ice, a real blizzard, and the actors were actually cold and miserable.

The camera work by Bitzer and Sartow is exceptional, both in beauty of scenery and in perceptiveness.

Other actors are: Richard Barthelmess, Lowell Sherman, Burr McIntosh, George Neville, Creighton Hale.

Advance students tickets are $1.00; all tickets at the door are $1.50. For tickets and information, please call Mrs. Robert S. Deane, 863-2293.

D. W. Griffith's 1920 classic, Way Down East, authentically filmed in mid-winter Vermont, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday, March 12, and Saturday, March 13, 1971, in the Votey Auditorium at the University of Vermont.

The silent film (musical score added in the 1930's for re-release) ranks among the finest of the old classics. The Burlington Branch of the American Association of University Women is sponsoring the film to raise money for three worthy beneficiaries: the Martin Luther King Book Fund at the University of Vermont (a fund that AAUW established in 1968); the national American Association of University Women Fellowship Program for outstanding women scholars; and the Greater Burlington Volunteers on a One-to-One Basis.

Way Down East is surprisingly fresh, much of the effectiveness due to Griffith's direction and a flawlessly moving performance by Lillian Gish that is remarkable for its range. On the Merve Griffith television show recently, Miss Gish remarked that this old film was her favorite. Perhaps a great deal of the vitality of the climax is due to its authenticity: the exterior scenes were photographed outdoors in mid-winter in Vermont, Connecticut, and New York. It was real ice, a real blizzard, and the actors were actually cold and miserable.

The camera work by Bitzer and Sartow is exceptional, both in beauty of scenery and in perceptiveness. Griffith, the greatest single creative force in the development of film as an art form, paid $175,000 for the rights to this story—more than the total cost of The Birth of a Nation. It was an old stage drama, already "outdated" in 1920, but Griffith knew what he was doing and Way Down East became one of the most commercially successful of all his films.

Griffith's advances in filmmaking were symmetrical in Birth of a Nation in 1915, a landmark in the art. His later films include: Intolerance (1916), Reveries of the World (1918), Broken Blossoms (1919), Way Down East (1920), Orphans of the Storm (1922), America (1924), and Abraham Lincoln (1930).

The other actors are: Richard Barthelmess, Lowell Sherman, Burr McIntosh, George Neville, Creighton Hale.

The story is that of Anna, a poor but honest country girl who is tricked into a fake marriage by a city playboy, and begins to neglect her, and when she announces that a baby is on the way, he reveals the circumstances of the "marriage" and deserts her. Do you want to know more? The American Association of University Women cordially invites you to attend the film benefit for three worthy causes.

All tickets are $1.50 at the door of Votey Auditorium. Advance tickets are $1.00 for students, $1.50 for adults. Sponsoring tickets are available for $5.00 for two adult tickets.

For information or for tickets, please contact Mrs. Robert S. Deane, telephone number 863-2293.

The film benefit committee is composed of: Mrs. Neil G. Smith, Chairman, Mrs. John E. Baker, Mrs. Robert S. Deane, Mrs. S. Alexander Rippe, Mrs. Arthur S. Rutter, Mrs. Ferdinand J. M. Siegel, and Mrs. Elbert B. Whorton. Others working on the benefit are: Mrs. James H. Daughton, Mrs. Donald MacDonald, and Mrs. Sheldon Rieley.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

ENTERTAINMENT

Lane Series — Blue

Mazowsze Folk Dancers On March 16

Mazowsze, Poland's premier song and dance folk company, will appear as a Blue Lane Series concert on Tuesday, March 16, at 8:30 in Memorial Auditorium.

Brought to this country for the third time by impresario Sol Hurok, the company includes 100 singers, dancers and folk musicians, who will be augmented by a full orchestra in the pit. The company travels with over 2000 authentic folk costumes from all regions of Poland.

Jadwiga Mierzejewska — Kuligowska And Bogdan Jedrejka in "Krakowian".

Tickets, $6, $3.25, and $3.75, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, or at the door on the night of the concert.

Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418. The internationally famous Mazowsze has been compared with the Moscovy Dance Co. of Russia and the Ballet Folklorico of Mexico (a former Lane presentation) in that each company takes the most colorful folk material of its country and presents it in a theatrically effective performance without losing any of the authenticity of the material itself.

Poland, like Russia and Mexico, is a particularly rich source of folk material. Mazowsze, pronounced "Mah-zoff-shuh," is the work of the late Tadeusz Sygietynski, a dedicated Polish musician, and his wife, Mira Ziminska, the present head of the troupe.

The program includes mazurkas, polkas, the polonaise and the krakowian, in addition to various folk legends and plays set to music.

Writing in the N.Y. Daily News, critic John Chapman said that "all the musicals of Broadway put together could not offer the joyous zest, the dancing skill, the happy humor and delightful music which come to us all in one package."

And Walter Terry of the Saturday Review urged his readers to "go see Mazowsze, and when you leave, you will discover that you have forgotten to frown."

The company's name is the name of the central province of Poland—Mazowsze. This is the region in which the capital city of Warsaw is situated. It is this area which is the home of the Mazurka.

Most of the members of the company were born in Mazowsze. The tunes played in Tuesday night's performance were the core of the first performance staged by them. As the years went by, more and more songs and dances from other parts of Poland were incorporated into the Mazowsze repertoire.

The Mazowsze owes its popularity to the beauty of Polish folk music, the unusual rhythm of Polish dance, the wit of the unknown authors of the lyrics, and the colorful pattern of the costumes.

It is estimated that more than 3,000,000 persons in Poland have seen the Mazowsze on its many tours of that country. The troupe has also scored great successes in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, Yugoslavia, Japan, China, Berlin and the Soviet Union. Its current tour of North America is its third, returning in response to the enthusiasm generated on its two previous visits.

The final Lane Blue concert will be the musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," scheduled in place of the cancelled Nana Mouskouri, for April 24.

Lane Film Society Concludes It's Present Series

W. C. Fields in the film "Never Give a Sucker an Even Break" will be the final Lane Film Society presentation of the current "American Comedies of the Thirties" series.

It will be offered on Saturday, March 13, at two showings, 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., in Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Tickets, $1.00 each, may be purchased at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Also shown with the W. C. Fields film will be "The Flash Gordon serial."

"Never Give a Sucker an Even Break" (1941) is W. C. Fields' last great personal film. According to one critic, it makes "Hellzapoppin" look as rational as a geometry syllogism.

Fields as himself endures the antisepic, pretence of Gloria Jean (playing herself), while as the screenwriter, Otis Cribbleobis, he plots for himself a number of starring vignettes, including one in a hamburger joint, another on top of a mountain sanctuary, and a third in a soda fountain.

In the one aside that Fields permits himself in twenty years of film-making, he explains direct to the audience that the censors excised a saloon locale. The rousing cheer at the end is not only Fields' farewell to starring roles but a farewell to slapstick comedy.

Never Give a Sucker an Even Break with W. C. Fields.

Another Lane Film Society series will begin on March 26 with "The Miracle Worker." Five other films will be on the series, all to be offered on Friday evenings at Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Kennedy Center Sponsors Jazz Festival At University Of Illinois

CHICAGO, March 2 — The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has launched an American College Jazz Festival with funding in the amount of $100,000 to be provided by American Airlines and American Express.

The announcement was made today at a Press Reception in Chicago, Illinois, by George London, Artistic Administrator of the Kennedy Center, the nation's memorial to the late President now under construction in Washington, D.C.

Details revealed by London are as follows: The Kennedy Center will present the American College Jazz Festival with the cooperation of the American Federation of Musicians, the National Association of Jazz Educators, DOWN BEAT magazine, American Airlines and American Express. Colleges and universities nationwide have been invited to participate and there will be seven Regionals, with NAJBE providing the adjudication, to be followed by the Finals.

With the Kennedy Center not scheduled to open until the Fall, the Kennedy Center at the University of Illinois has generously made available its excellent facilities for the Finals. May 14-16. Approximately 20 big bands, combos and vocalists from the Regionals will be invited to participate in the five performances and all travel, food and lodging for the estimated 250 participants will be underwritten by the Festival. In addition, the A. F. of M. has provided a grant in the amount of $2,500 for big-name jazz talent, to be announced, to perform with the student groups at the Finals and to take part also in clinics in brass, woodwind, — composition, harmony and arranging, which will be presented during off-hours of the three-day event and will be open to the public.

The funding provided by American Airlines and American Express was thought by London to be "the largest ever provided at the campus level for a jazz activity." He pointed out that the two firms, together with American Oil, are also sponsoring the Kennedy Center's American College Theatre Festival. "The total support for these two Festivals on nearly 400 campuses by these corporations amounts to over $300,000," London said, "and constitutes the largest and most comprehensive involvement in the performing arts ever undertaken on the college campuses of our nation by American business."

"This funding has enabled us to achieve an important breakthrough in the performing arts," he continued, "and focuses special attention upon the exciting possibilities which exist when the strengths of American business, art and education are mobilized for a common purpose."

London explained that reasons for the announcement being made in Chicago instead of in Washington, D.C. were three-fold: To focus attention upon the Finals this May in Urbana; to return to the birthplace of big band jazz of two generations ago; and, finally, "to dramatize the national purposes for which the Kennedy Center has been constructed. It is much more than a building and showcase in our nation's capital," he said. "It is a symbol around which the vast resources and abilities of all the people of the U.S. can and must be mobilized for a new era in the cultural life of our nation. The combination of financial and organizational strength brought together to make the American College Jazz Festival a reality is a major step in that direction," he concluded.

The schedule and locations for the Regionals and Finals of the 1971 American College Jazz Festival was announced as follows:

March 13 — Southwest College Jazz Festival, University of Texas (Austin)

March 27-28 — Midwest College Jazz Festival, Elmhurst College (Chicago, Illinois)

April 2-3 — Southern College Jazz Festival, Spring Hill College (Mobile, Alabama)

April 3 — Pacific Coast College Jazz Festival, San Fernando Valley College (Northridge, Los Angeles, California)

April 16-18 — New England College Jazz Festival, Quinnipiac College (Hamden, New Haven, Connecticut)

April 23-24 — Inter-Mountain College Jazz Festival, University of Utah (Salt Lake City)

May 8 — Northwest College Jazz Festival, Olympic College (Bremerton, Seattle, Washington)

May 14-16 — Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts University of Illinois (Urbana)

Fleming Museum: Lozowick On D

Dynamo 1929-30

The exhibition opening at the Fleming Museum Monday, the first of March 15 continuing until April 18 is devoted to the work of the American painter and printmaker, Louis Lozowick.

Concentrating on the work of the twenties and thirties, five Lozowick's concerns center on the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

artist, Louis Lozowick, offering a selection of his work, involves the issues of the machine selection aesthetic and those social issues raised in the thirties in America and Europe. While Lozowick of the has been acknowledged as one of the pioneers of the cubist for inspired Precisionist Movement in American Art and as master inform

It's the real thing. Coke.

Real life calls for real taste.
For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola.

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by COCA-COLA BOTTLERS OF BURLINGTON

SONY MODEL TA-3200F STEREO AMPLIFIER

500 WATTS

Manufacturer's Specifications:

HF Power (Total): 320 watts, 8-ohm load; 500 watt, 4-ohm load. RMS Power per Channel: 110 watts, 8-ohm load; 130 watts, 4-ohm load. THD: Less than 0.1% at rated output; less than 0.05% at rated output; less than 0.03% at 1 watt. Frequency Response: 5 Hz to 200 kHz, +0, -2 dB. HF Power Bandwidth: 5 Hz to 35 kHz. S/N Ratio: 110 dB below full power output, short circuited input. Damping Factor: 170 at 8 ohms, 1 kHz. Input Sensitivity: 1.4 volts. Input Impedance: 75 k ohms. Dimensions: 15 3/4 in. w x 8 7/8 in. h x 12 3/4 in. d. Suggested retail price: $349.50 (optional walnut case extra).

LAFAYETTE RADIO ELECTRONICS

378 Shelburne Road — Owned and operated by I.E.S. 658-4616

SPAULDING CONVERSE CCM

PADDLEBALL RACKETS AND BALLS

SQUASH RACKETS AND BALLS

HANDBALLS

28 MAIN ST.
WINDOSKI, VERMONT
655-2621

MADE IN THE UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES SINCE 1900

Fleming Museum: Lozowick On Display

Dynamo 1925-27

The exhibition opening at the Fleming Museum on Wednesday, March 15 continuing until April 15, is devoted to the work of the artist Louis Lozowick. The Fleming Museum is an American painter and graphic artist. Louis Lozowick, offering a dozen program in concentrating on the work of connection with this exhibition. The twenties and thirties. Five students have been Lozowick's concerns center on involved in the research, the issues of the machine selection and preparation of the aesthetic and those social issues show. Regularly scheduled gallery talks given by members of the Fleming Museum will be available throughout the week of the exhibition for interested groups and individuals. For more information call 656-2090.

Tear Gas 1935

ARIEL Presents Year In New Perspective; Stimulates Thought

by James F. Howe

Yearbooks have the potential advantage over newspapers that they can take a long view of things. Unfortunately, most yearbooks fail to use this potential, and content themselves with recording as many events as possible; they become memory-jogging mechanisms for aging graduates who have forgotten what the campus really looked like.

The 1971 Ariei, though, is a new animal. It prizes its advantage and, by soliciting student, faculty, and administration views on the key issues of 1970, presents the year in philosophical perspective as newspapers seldom have time or wisdom to do. Thus Ariei is not old before its time, waiting even as it comes off the press for the time thirty years hence when it will be most useful. Instead, it selects the key issues of the year (drugs, the threat to intercollegiate athletics, Professor Parenti, and several perennial ones like housing, student activities), and encourages us to think about them now.

Ariei has attempted to represent a cross-section of the full university community. This aim comes across particularly in the "Activities" section. Here, there is no attempt to be exhaustive in covering campus goings-on. Rather, several students representing different kinds of interests defend or explain their individual activities.

Of course, the coverage is incomplete. Some of the writing is superb and some banal, as is inevitable with such a large number and diversity of

Red Lane Series Presents Minnesota Orchestra

Making its second appearance on the Lane Series, the Minnesota Orchestra will perform a Red concert on Wednesday, March 17, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium. (This is a change in date from March 21.)

Conducting will be Stanislaw Skrowaczewski, the 100-member orchestra's music director, who in ten years with the ensemble has affixed his own unique stamp on its sound.

Tickets, $6, $5.25, and $4.50, are available at the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and also at the door on the night of the concert. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Wednesday night's program includes "Parita for Orchestra" by Walton, "Symphony in Three Movements" by Stravinsky, and, after the intermission, the "Symphony No. 6 in D Major, Opus 60" by Dvorak.

Founded in 1903 as the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Minnesota (so named since 1968) has developed over its long history into one of the top major orchestras of the U.S. It is one of the most widely traveled symphonic organizations in the U.S., playing annually to some 420,000 patrons at 150 concerts on tour and during its regular season in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

"Among the noted conductors whose genius has brought the orchestra to its eminent position are Eugene Ormandy, music director from 1931-39; Dimitri Mitropoulos, 1937-1949; and Antal Dorati, 1949-1960."

Skrowaczewski is a former music director of the National Philharmonic of Warsaw, Poland, who, in addition to his work with the Minnesota Orchestra, appears regularly with leading ensembles in Europe and with such major U.S. musical organizations as the Cleveland and Philadelphia Orchestras and the New York Philharmonic.

Maestro Skrowaczewski made his debut at Salzburg Festival in 1968, with the Vienna Philharmonic, and his debut as a Metropolitan Opera conductor in 1970 at Lincoln Center.

Writing in the New York Times last October, critic Donald Henahan said that "The Minnesota Orchestra is today arguably among the nation's top six or seven orchestras in quality, and probably the most important regional orchestra anywhere."

The Red concert by the Minnesota Orchestra, with violinist Yehudi Menuhin as conductor and soloist, which was cancelled on March 4 because of the blizzard, may be rescheduled later this month.

Maestro Skrowaczewski of the Minnesota Orchestra

Album Review:

by Doug Collette

CHICAGO!!! Chicago is an exceptional band in that no aspect of their music or musicianship compares unfavorably with any other aspect. They are strong in all departments, and these individual strengths combine in a tight, unified whole that produces extremely satisfying music as on this album.

The band's nucleus of guitar, bass, keyboard and drums gives their music the solid kick of rock; "I Don't Want Your Money," the hardest thing they've ever done, is ample proof. Chicago's strong, clear horn section supplies the music with much of its power. Lending variety to the range of their songs, as well as within a single tune, are three distinct lead vocalists who are backed by equally fine harmonies (although on this album, in a few instances, "Flight 602" being one, the harmony too closely approaches the sweetness of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young). Guitarist Terry Kath, keyboard man Robert Lamm and trombonist James Pankow are the group's major composers and with this album, bassist Pete Cetera joins their ranks, contributing two of the album's standouts "Lowdown" and "What Else Can I Say." All four are able to write lyrics that contain both the qualities of poetry and the naturalness of conversation. Furthermore, they're able to communicate not only through the marriage of words and music, but also through the instrumental alone.

Chicago III Features Outstanding Quality

A band that can produce three double albums with little or no filler has achieved something remarkable. As such a band, Chicago is justified in doing more extended pieces of music. Lamm's "Travel Suite" and Kath's "An Hour In The Shower" demonstrate the group's ability to create music that sustains itself well. The same is true of Pankow's "Elegy"; after a bad start (an emotionless, schoolboy-like recitation of "When All The Laughter Dies In Sorrow"), Chicago makes a statement through their music. Some would call it pretentious, but before anything else, it's first-class music.

What Cosmo's Factory is to Creedence Clearwater, III is to Chicago: their best album because it features all the band's outstanding qualities. In all I've said about Chicago, I'm not talking in the context of 'jazz-rock' or 'big-band rock' or any such imaginary genre. Is Chicago III 'jazz-rock'? — maybe. Damn fine rock 'n' roll! — definitely!

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

THE DYER MOCCASIN

RUGGED, HAND STITCHED, HAND-STAINED, CHROME ELK LEATHER FOR MEN & WOMEN

From $11.00
AT
SUNDANCE

18 No. Windoski Ave. Burlington

COMING SOON: CUSTOM SANDALS BY SUNDANCE

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.

106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING
(All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING
(Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

Jesse James and Co.

167 Church St.
Burlington, Vt.

This is our business. A combination of many things. New things and old things — things we are here because we enjoy being here. We are here because we have the things you want. These things — hand-made — or from the finest manufacturers. We work through our door anytime. Never feel obligated to buy. You are always welcome here. We are. Truly, Jesse and Company.

egale veree

College Cafeteria Psychological Blues Bar

The Great Poetical Poem

by David Newcombe

Part I — Chapter I — The Adventures of John Paul Jones

Got a cigarette?

Yeah.

Wouldn't pass them over here?

No.

So he listened to sighs of false delight.

Stared at a fat girl's ugly legs.

Boy are you horny John Paul Jones.

Ah me, the price you pay for going to war.

Did you see that girl?

No.

Boy you should have.

Yeah.

Reflections in sunglasses

And the show falls lightly across a picture window.

Got to get out John Paul Jones

maybe France.

The Green death.

Only the Shell of his ego remains all of the liquid inside it was drained

And spilled on the ground.

And spilled on the ground.

cover it

NEVERMORE

8 No. Windoski Ave.

864-5294

esent Series

The director is Edward F. Cline, with the scenario based on a story by Otto Cribblecobbs (Fields). Besides Fields and Gloria Jean, the cast includes Freddie Fonghorn, Leon Errol, and Margaret Dumont. Running time is 83 minutes.

Writing in The Art of W. C. Fields, W. K. Everson says that "Fields never needed wild slapstick chases to conclude his films, but the chase at the end of Never Give a Sucker an Even Break is a masterpiece of its kind, quite the finest such chase ever created in the sound cinema."

sponsors Jazz ty Of Illinois

national purposes for which the Kennedy Center has been constructed. It is much more than a building and showcase in our nation's capital," he said. "It is a symbol around which the vast resources and abilities of all the people of the U.S. can — and must — be mobilized for a new era in the cultural life of our nation. The combination of financial and organizational strength brought together to make the American College Jazz Festival a reality is a major step in that direction," he concluded.

The schedule and locations for the Regionals and Finals of the 1971 American College Jazz Festival was announced as follows:

March 13 — Southwest College Jazz Festival, University of Texas (Austin)
March 27-28 — Midwest College Jazz Festival, Elmhurst College (Chicago, Illinois)
April 2-3 — Southern College Jazz Festival, Spring Hill College (Mobile, Alabama)
April 3 — Pacific Coast College Jazz Festival, San Fernando Valley College (Northridge, Los Angeles, California)
April 16-18 — New England College Jazz Festival, Quinnipiac College (Hamden, New Haven, Connecticut)
April 23-24 — Inter-Mountain College Jazz Festival, University of Utah (Salt Lake City)
May 6 — Northwest College Jazz Festival, Olympic College (Bremerton, Seattle, Washington)
May 14-16 — Krasner Center for the Performing Arts, University of Illinois (Urbana)

IDER
 ing UMass will be one be faced this year, but I do it again.
 maintained since the loss be seen at the end of the held up that one Number One. We are
 Number One!"

ying in Maine that gives probably that great post-will be a challenge we'll join our supremacy. After
 'ress was heard-saying, it the hard way again."
 will be the hard way.
 everyone that we were not orwich. Moon was never sparked from there.
 noteworthy aspects of the on, Pat Keenan, was held strich against us in the last could be a threat. We kept put up to a sick Patty to a sleeper (Neddy "The some.

again facing the Polar to this hill, with teams ngered our way on, team
 Now it is Bowdoin and us.
 on 11, here we are.
 be our last game, definitely before, Bowdoin has fast-will just have to outbustle making up for skills with tion, till that big Mother ball.

Finish Second anCon Meet differences in scores proved to be 120-110.

 In this ten event meet, new records were established in every event. The Huskies of Connecticut managed to beat down the top honors in seven out of the ten events, the remainder of the victories going to the University of Vermont.
 The University of New Hampshire topped third place for the day with a final score of 78, and the University of Massachusetts took it heavy for the meeting, finishing in fourth and last place, 38 points behind their nearest competitor.

Afternoon!
HOURS
 -6

tooth
 -No Cover

ood from opening to closing.
WILDWEEDS"
 -Sunday

shop

Sportswear Shop
 Y NIGHT UNTIL 9PM
 PT SATURDAY

JEANS $8 + $12

388 Shelburne Rd
 Burlington
 862-5488

OUR FAMOUS IN BASEMENT

UVM Yields ECAC Title To Bowdoin

by Mike Rosenberg
 Thirty weeks from now, maintenance crews at Gutterston Rink will start the compressors and produce the 8,500 square feet of ice that help thousands of students and residents tolerate the long Vermont winter.

Throughout the community, there are people who began counting the days on Sunday—a few hours after the 1970-71 collegiate hockey season ended on a disappointing note for the University of Vermont.

In what can only be summarized as a classic hockey game, the Bowdoin College Catamounts, 5-4, with a sudden death score at 4:29 of the first 10-minute overtime period.

Vermont fought back twice from two-goal deficits during the encounter. But almost as impressive as this kind of hustle was the spirit in which the game was played: no penalties on either side were called during the third period or the overtime.

Seven Vermont skaters ended their collegiate hockey careers when they accepted their runner-up Eastern College Athletic Conference trophies after the Saturday clash. They are:

—Timmy Bickford (Number 16) of Buffalo, N.Y., a starting defenseman for three years. During 1970-71 he teamed with Cooke, Most Vermont hockey fans characterize Bickford as the greatest Catamount skater.

—Tom Crane (21), also of Buffalo, a starting wing for three years. Slender and vulnerable, Crane's statistics are proof that a hustling hockey philosophy can work.

—Owen Jenkins (17) of Troy, N.Y., defenseman. Injured at the start of the year, Jenkins saw less action than many persons anticipated. At the end of the campaign, however, he was outstanding in crucial games.

—George Minarsky (9) of Willowdale, Ont., a senior wing and a three-year starter. Minarsky quietly broke the all-time career scoring mark for Vermont hockey players this year. In three years of college hockey, he scored 117 goals and assists.

—Peter Pitman (23), of Port Washington, N.Y., a backup goalie for three seasons. Pitman was one of those athletes who sacrificed ice time for the team's practice needs and the satisfaction of sharing the fruits of hockey with companions.

—Dave Reese (1) of Troy, three-year starting Vermont goalie. Reese established just about every school netminding record during his flamboyant and highly successful career.

—Bob Wilkinson (19) of Rehoboth, Mass., starting wing. Wilkinson was one-third of the Cat's efficient third line this season, after waiting two years for the chance to play regularly.

For statistics nuts, the 1970-71 campaign was golden. Besides Minarsky's record, other new peaks included most wins on a season (17), most Division I wins (three), most shorthanded goals, most goals by a defenseman in a season, and others.

Perhaps the three most memorable occasions leading up to the Bowdoin climax were:

—The Jan. 12 upset over Harvard University, which last weekend proved itself to be the top eastern collegiate hockey team.

—The 5-2 Bowdoin regular season win over Bowdoin at Gutterston Rink on Feb. 25.

—The Jan. 12 3-2 upset over Massachusetts on March 10. There were disappointments, too: the inability to defeat a rugged and potent New Hampshire team, a frustrating loss at Middlebury, and an early season loss to Massachusetts in overtime.

Vermont, with a 17-8 record and inches away from the top spot in Division I, undeniably had another great season. Looking back, one feels rewarded. Upon the horizon, greater accomplishments seem inevitable.

CYNIC Interview:

Governor Deane C. Davis Speaks On UVM

Editor's Note: Whenever a major decision regarding the University is made, the Governor of Vermont, Deane C. Davis, is usually involved in the decision making process.

In view of recent events, the CYNIC questioned the Governor about his feelings towards UVM.

"I can tell you that I have a very sentimental spot in my heart for the University of Vermont. My father was a country lawyer and he was the first Davis that ever went to college. He graduated from the University of Vermont. He also taught during the terms in order to get money enough to go on for the next term.

"I think the University of Vermont has a very proud history. There isn't any question but what back in the days when agriculture was the principle employment in the State of Vermont that the agricultural college built up a tremendous for the industry all of which helped the farmers themselves in their standards of living. Now that agriculture had become less as far as people are concerned, hasn't become less as far as the economy, but it has become less as far as either acres or people.

"I think it's known the widest as far as the medical school. The medical school has a really top notch standing but so does its engineering and so does its liberal arts and several of its other schools.

"University of Vermont, I think everybody should realize, is not truly a state University. Its probably the only school in the country that has exactly the corporate setup that it has which is a compromise between being a full state University and a private

Candidates For S.A. Present Their Views; Beaudoin Stresses Communication Need

Last Friday the candidates for the offices of the Student Association addressed a small gathering in the North Lounge of Billings Center. The meeting was marked by that element which several of the SA candidates feel to be a major problem on the UVM campus, that of apathy; besides the small attendance, the meeting was also dampened by the unexplained absence of three of the candidates for the SA offices.

Gene Beaudoin, the uncontested candidate for the presidency, believes that "the SA, as the voice of the student body, must bring about an awareness on the campus." As evidenced by the student participation at that particular meeting, Beaudoin noted that there is a large degree of apathy with respect to student government elections at UVM. Beaudoin asserted that it will be the objective of the SA to overcome student apathy with awareness through education; the "black box theory" of college life must be counteracted.

According to Beaudoin, the main areas in which the SA should be involved are communication and education. Within the latter two areas are those of racism (presenting the views of all minority groups as well as those of the majority), war and the military, and social injustices. Next year the improvement in communications will depend much on improved communications between the SA senators and their constituents. Moreover, the role of the SA will be to deal with the administration and with the community.

In the open discussion which followed Beaudoin's speech, he was questioned as to the role that the SA should take if political activities occur again this spring. "We cannot call for people to be civility doubters. The SA can present all the facts and not merely present one side of a situation," Beaudoin anticipates that the SA will not organize any activities such as peace marches this spring but that it will probably make a consensus statement expressing the attitudes of the student body on certain issues. Beaudoin maintained that activities such as peace marches can be beneficial and that they are an encouraging indication of "awareness" on the campus.

Another area in which Beaudoin was questioned concerned the future of the SA if the SA fee is abolished. Beaudoin feels that the SA will be able to function for a short time next year on the treasury funds remaining from this academic year. If the SA is fully abolished, many facets of simple life, such as concerts and guest speakers, will be lost. Beaudoin was further questioned as to the establishment of an abortion loan fund. He replied that the SA must first check into the legal aspects on the campus and of the state. "When the legal machinery is finally set up, the establishment of an abortion loan fund is a very real possibility."

Carroll Hiras, who is running for Vice President of Internal Affairs, is greatly concerned about the University's attitude toward education and the steps which the University must inevitably take to improve education on this campus. In particular, the spoke of UVM's tenure system. "Our tenure system does not seem able to alleviate the problems of teaching mediocrity. The University must change its policy of publish or perish to teach or travel." Phil Spinnelli, Miss Hirsch's opponent for the office of Vice President of Internal Affairs, was not present at the meeting.

The candidates for Vice President of External Affairs are Mike Walsh and Amy Demarest, the latter of whom also was not present at the meeting. According to Walsh, he is running for the office because he "enjoys government and wants to do something for the University."

Tim Hilliard, who is the Vice President of Student Activities this semester, is re-running for that office. Hilliard desires the position because it places one on the Executive Board and, by being placed on the Executive Board, he feels that one is in the best position to represent the views of the students in the SA.

Sid Rapp, the uncontested candidate for the office of secretary, aspires to open the lines of communication between the students and the student government. "I'm running because there is a definite failure to communicate," Rapp will try to achieve a better communication through such means as a weekly article in the CYNIC or through the possible distribution of abbreviated minutes to every student.

The following are running for S.A. offices:

- 1) Gene Beaudoin — President
- 2) Carroll Hiras — Vice-President of Internal Affairs
- 3) Philip J. Spinnelli — Vice-President of Internal Affairs
- 4) Amy Demarest — Vice-President of External Affairs
- 5) Robert J. Miller — Vice-President of External Affairs
- 6) Michael S. Walsh — Vice-President of External Affairs
- 7) David Meyer — Vice-President for Financial Affairs
- 8) Tim Hilliard III — Vice-President for Student Activities
- 9) Dale Edminister — Vice-President for Student Activities
- 10) Sid Rapp — Secretary

Vermont's Pollution Discussed At Seminar

by Charlie French

Governor Deane C. Davis, Robert B. Williams, Secretary of the Vermont Agency of Environmental Conservation, Dr. James Lodge of the National Center for Atmospheric Research, and others spoke at a public conference sponsored by the western Vermont section of the American Chemical Society on Saturday, March 13.

In his opening remarks, the Governor spoke of the interest of many Vermonters in the pollution problem. He noted that "this preoccupation is not merely a fad."

The Governor discussed the development of regulations established in Vermont. He called the development problem "our first priority in Vermont."

Regarding water pollution, Davis asked people to regard it as "problem of balance. We must not work so fast that we ruin our natural resources."

The program to clean up Vermont's water will cost 100 million dollars and is expected to last ten years, Davis told the audience, which was made up of people of all ages.

Speaking after Davis, Secretary Robert Williams discussed the role of technology in "our society." While recognizing our dependence on technology, Williams warned that the achievements of technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space technology have "obscured" in the popular mind some of the limitations of technology and have led to what may be a false reliance on technology to solve all our problems.

Williams also questioned whether or not technology takes into account the real needs of society or if, perhaps, society is forced to reorder its priorities to conform to those of technology. Williams mentioned the space

Early man did not keep records. The ancient Romans were the first people to keep records on pollution. In fact Pliny the Elder, who died while investigating an eruption of Vesuvius, was the first casualty of air pollution.

In the 13th century the next records appear. England in 1273 passed a law which banned the burning of sea coal in London. A person breaking this law could be beheaded. Lodge suggested that we should try this technique out on several manufacturers.

"It has only been within the last ten or fifteen years that there has been any real attempt, on a large scale, to combat pollution."

"It is so very easy to fool ourselves," said Lodge. He gave as an example a neighbor of his who had a backyard incinerator and used it only when the wind was blowing towards Lodge's home. "It gave me little assurance to know that a careful study has shown that incinerator effluent was only 5% of the air pollution problem in Boulder."

"We can talk about our GNP, yet the most vivid measure of our standard of living is our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Lodge remarked that most kings and emperors did not have such a large personal retinue. He stated that we must make sure that we do not abuse our energy consumption. For each man, woman and child in the United States we have energy on tap equivalent to 500 slaves."

Calendar/Announcements

ENROLLMENT FALL SEMESTER 1971

DEGREE students who are new in attendance will enroll for Fall Semester according to the schedule below:
Graduate College Students — March 22-April 16, (Graduate Office)
Fall Seniors — March 22-26
Fall Juniors — March 29-April 2
Fall Sophomores — April 12-16
No enrollments will be accepted after April 16, 1971.
Enrollment material may be picked up at the Registrar's Office, 360 Waterman beginning Thursday, March 18.

Paper Recycling

Conserve with Vermont recycling its waste paper for recycling this week. This program is in cooperation with the total waste recycling program which has been implemented in Mason and Coolidge. Due to a lack of storage space and a shortage of help, glass, cans, and organic wastes are not being handled in Coolidge.

Vacation Hours

Bailey Library Hours during Spring Vacation will be as follows:
April 3 (Sat) — 8:00 a.m. — 5:00 p.m.
April 4 (Sun) — 12 Noon — 5:00 p.m.
April 5-9 (Mon-Fri) — 8:00 a.m. — 5:00 p.m.
April 10 (Sat) — Regular Hours
April 11 (Sun) — Regular Hours
ALL NIGHT STUDY ROOM:
April 14 — Regular Hours
April 15 — Closed for Cleaning
April 17 — Regular Hours

R.O.T.C. Ball

The R.O.T.C. Department of the University of Vermont will be holding their 103rd annual Military Ball Friday, March 19. The Ramada Inn will host the affair, featuring music by the "Cyndrone," a well known contemporary and popular music ensemble.

Hearing On Proposed Abortion Bill

In the upcoming month, the proposed Foley Bill will be introduced before the house of representatives. It is a New York style bill with a clause which states that women who are pregnant can obtain an abortion in Vermont over the first 20 weeks of pregnancy. As it now stands, Vermont law states that an abortion shall be performed except when the mother's physical health is endangered. That does not include mental damage, not even for victims of rape.

Thursday March 18 there will be a public hearing on the proposed Bill and all concerned people are urged to come, even if you have nothing to say, people are needed just for a head count. The hearing is 7:30 P.M. on the second floor of the House of Chambers, Capitol Building in Montpelier. If you need a ride, call the Zero Population Growth Office 663-6120.

Deadline Extended

This memorandum was prepared to inform you of an extension of the deadline for application to the Vermont

Seminar Sessions Seminar Abroad course offering which is entitled Ed. 292 A and D. Issues in Contemporary Education. The deadline for application has been changed from March 1, 1971 to April 15, 1971. A brochure describing our program accompanies this memorandum. It is our hope that you could give this change of deadline and our program some publicity. There has also been some reduction in the cost of our programs. Our Seminar Abroad Education in England program has been reduced in cost by $100.00 so that total cost to in-state students is $585.00 and to out-of-state students it is $651.00. Our Seminar Abroad Education and Culture in Emerging Africa has been reduced by $150.00 so that the cost to an in-state student is $900.00 and to an out-of-state student it is $966.00.

Junior Portrait Appointments

The Ariel Staff has chosen MacLean Studio of Concord, N.H. as Yearbook photographers for the 1972 Ariel Sign-up. For portrait appointments for your 1972 Ariel will be made on a first-come, first-served basis March 16, 17, 18 at Lower Billings Conference Room B.

This year, in order to allow each senior to be photographed, we have reduced the fee to $2.00. For this nominal fee, you receive 42 different poses from which you may select your senior portraits.

After interviewing many different studios, we feel that MacLean Studio offers you the best quality available at reasonable prices.

All student pictures appearing in the Yearbook, must be taken by MacLean Studio.

Students Association Organizations Re: Budget Hearings

Budget hearings for the next fiscal year shall begin March 29 and will end April 16, 1971. During this time, each SA recognized organization may petition the Student Association for funds.

The procedure for signing up is to request an application form at the SA desk and sign up for a time. Return the application in duplicate to the SA desk by March 24. The Finance Committee will then meet with your treasurer and president at the appointed time.

As most of you know, the Student Activities Fee will be put to a referendum in the next few weeks. We need your active support in retaining the activities fee if organizations on this campus are to be funded and are to be active. Please go out and actively support the Activities Fee. We need your help if this campus is going to be active.

Sincerely,
Jeff Bernstein
Vice-President
Student Association

Our Drive-in Windows Make Banking Easy at

Chittenden TRUST COMPANY

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

UNIVERSITY OFFICE WILLISTON ROAD

IMPORTANT

Students — please buy your books by April 5th. On that date we will begin preparing for the summer & fall semesters.

UNIVERSITY STORE

ON THE CAMPUS

THE GALLERY IS ONE MILE OFF ROUTE 7 - TURN EAST BETWEEN THE DAKIN AND SPADE FARM SHOPS, AND BEAR LEFT - 15 MILES SOUTH OF BURLINGTON - 5 MILES NORTH OF VERGENNES

WINTER HOURS Through April 15, 1971 WEDNESDAY, SATURDAY and SUNDAY 10:30 - 5:30 AND BY APPOINTMENT

April - December: OPEN DAILY 10 - 6

In a beautiful setting, the Gallery has changing exhibitions and sales of original paintings, graphics, sculpture and fine crafts from many countries.

4 Winds Gallery

FERRISBURGH, VERMONT (Near Burlington and Lake Champlain) Telephone: 802 / 435-2101

MADELINE C. BORDEN

Chalice

Parthenon

Lyric

Catch a sparkle from the morning sun. Hold the magic of a sudden breeze. Keep those moments alive. They're yours for a lifetime with a diamond engagement ring from L.F. FINE JEWELRY

L.F. FINE JEWELRY

THE GALLERY IS ONE MILE OFF ROUTE 7 - TURN EAST BETWEEN THE DAKIN AND SPADE FARM SHOPS, AND BEAR LEFT - 15 MILES SOUTH OF BURLINGTON - 5 MILES NORTH OF VERGENNES

Thursday, March 18
"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre; tickets free with UVM I.D., $1.50 without. Box Office, Ext. 2094.

Philosophy and Religion Paces Committee presents Mr. Allen Black, National Program Director, Fellowship of Reconciliation, "The Paris Peace Talks and The Peoples Peace Treaty Movement," 7:30 p.m., Lower Lounge, Waterman Building.

Catalina Club synchronized swim show, "Whale of a Tale," 8 p.m., Forbush Pool.
Friday, March 19
"Friday at Four," open house at Arena Theatre, 4 p.m.

Student Association film, "The Informer," 8 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.
"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18

Catalina Club, "Whale of a Tale," 8 p.m., Forbush Pool.
Saturday, March 20
19th Annual High School Day, Vermont High School Juniors visit campus.

Student Association films, Godard's "Le Gai Savoir" and "Tantra," 7 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building; tickets $1.25 at the door or at S.A. desk one week prior to showing.

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18.
Sunday, March 21
University Choir and Orchestra joint concert, Felix Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer" and Mozart's "Requiem," 4 p.m., Ira Allen Chapel.

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18.
Lane Red Series concert originally set for March 21 has been changed to March 17.

Campus Wide
Sugar on Snow Party
Sugar on Snow
Pickles
Donuts
Hot Chocolate
Thursday night March 25th
9:00-10:30 p.m.

Place — Outside on the Simpson-Wright Quad
Sponsored by the Sonhomore Class Council

Boston Ballet Company

A spectacular dance series will open at the Wright Memorial Theatre, Middlebury College on March 30th with the Boston Ballet Company and featured artists — Edna Toth, Anamarie Sarazin, and Robert Steele, principle dancers of the Boston company, and guest — Edward Villella of the New York City Ballet.

The program will include "Swan Lake," Act II, starring Edna Toth and Edward Villella; a Rock Ballet, "Garnet Garden," featuring Anamarie Sarazin and Robert Steele — music composed by Michael Kamen with the New York Rock Ensemble, and choreography by Louis Falco; "Le Corsair Pas De Deux with Toth and Villella and "Graduation Ball" with the Boston Ballet, it's soloists and corps de ballet.

The Boston Ballet Company, under the artistic direction of E. Virginia Williams, is gathering laurels during its current 1971 season at the Savoy Theatre. Clive Barnes of the New York Times has said, "The Company dances with a blithe zest... they are, and I use the word advisedly, tremendous!"

Edna Toth, 18 year old Boston ballerina won an ovation at her recent Boston debut in "Giselle."

Edward Villella, America's greatest male dancer, needs no introduction to ballet audiences both in America and abroad.

Tickets are limited and on sale daily between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Wright Memorial Theatre box office. For information call (802) 368-2663.

SA Elections

Elections for next year's SA officers will be held March 23rd and 24th. They will be conducted in the dining hall from 5:00-6:30 and in Billings from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Boulder Society

Boulder Society, the senior men's honorary group at the University of Vermont, is now accepting letters of nomination from qualified juniors for membership.

Members of the Class of 1972 should list their student activities, interests, and their grade point average — which must surpass the all-men's average — and submit this application to the Student Activities desk, where it will be placed in the Boulder file.

Nominations should be submitted as soon as possible. The deadline is March 25.

More New Areas Of Need!!!

Agency: Burlington Area Tenants' Union

Project: Organizing community tenants around issues concerning tenants rights, minimum housing code enforcement, housing shortage. This will include office work as well as field work.

Agency: Welfare Rights Organization

Project: Students are needed in locating the aged in the community and informing them of their Social Security rights, medicare eligibility, and about Food Stamps. At the same time students could observe the housing situations and feedback any substandard housing to the Burlington Area Tenants' Union.

Agency: Welfare Rights, Inc.

Project: Students are needed right away to help push a campaign for more extensive Medicaid Legislation.

Agency: Riverside Apts. Project

Project: Students are needed to work in outdoor recreational project with children 9-14 years old who live in the apts. It is a low income area and the children need more social contact.

Agency: Bennett C. Douglas School

Project: People are needed to work in our wood shop helping the classroom teacher to supervise 5-12 children "sawing and planing". These children are in the training mentally retarded program and have a desire to learn how to construct simple projects.

Agency: Adams School

Project: SKATING RINK The school is presently offering instruction in skating to their students but they need more instructors. The children are in the 4, 5, and 6 grades and the majority can ski well already.

Project: The school also needs Arts and Crafts instructors and assistants.

Agency: Big Brothers' Project: Three Big Sisters are desperately needed for girls 10, 11, and 13. One of the girls is handicapped, all the girls need help.

Older Projects still need help!!!

Agency: Thayer School

Project: Tutors are needed to work with kids one evening a week on a one to one basis. Their kids need more than academic help and it is hoped that contact with older students will be of value.

Agency: The Place

Project: Helping people who have become involved with drugs as well as educating those who have not. The drug is a two way street; it needs your help.

Agency: FIRMAMENT

Project: We need students to work on the production of a newspaper to be published which will deal with the issue of survival in this community. There will be more than one issue of the FIRMAMENT so if you like you can continue.

Agency: OUP

Project: The office can't work by itself. People are needed to interview, contact and talk with volunteers, especially since many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

OVP Treasurer:

Qualifications

Must be at OVP on regular basis — to be available for financial transactions and record keeping. Should have some budgeting experience and financial "know-how." This person should be interested and active in the various phases of OVP, and attend Steering Committee meetings. This is important because the treasurer must be aware of policies, decisions, and consensus in order to approve the expenditure of funds. It is not possible to hold a meeting or vote on the everyday expenditures, so the treasurer must be aware of the sentiments of the OVP staff.

The treasurer should keep a running balance of the OVP account. This knowledge is necessary when Steering Committee considers any major allocations.

The treasurer should work in concert with fund-raising and transportation, but not be primarily responsible for either of these.

The treasurer must be aware of the Student Association financial policies (copies are obtained at the SA desk), so that he or she will know what expenditures are and are not permissible. This information is essential for Steering Committee decisions.

Editor's Note: Less than 2 years ago, the was confronted by the problem of lacking a clear focus. The following is the S.A.'s just

Student Activities Fee Increase

The budget which the S.A. treasurer controls is derived from the activities ($17.50/year) which the students pay. Many people are unaware of the organization which are funded by S.A., but they do amount to approximately 37.

The added pressure on the S.A. budget late is necessitating an increase of $4.00. It is the intention of S.A. that not only they aid in the development of the ex groups but also special projects or programs which students feel would benefit the campus.

Presently, S.A. staff includes:

Editor's Note

The S.A. Activities Fee is used to help student organizations in 1970-71, which organization received S.A. recognition, but we have not included the actual amounts.

1) The amounts are subject to change and 2) The specific allocations are not being of

Accountant's Fee

Billings Center Information Desk

Executive Board Honorarium

Movies

S.A. Secretary

Supplies and Services

President's Discretionary Account

Alpha Zeta

American Chemical Society

American Society of Civil Engineers

American Society of Mechanical Engineers

L'Amicale Francaise

Ariel

Bertha Terrill Home Economic Club

Billings Governing Board

Billings Center Replacement Fund

Boulder Society

Chi Epsilon Beta

Class Council '71

Class Council '72

Class Council '73

Committee on Environmental Action

Course Critique Committee

Cynic

Delta Sigma Phi — Tau Kappa Alpha

Departure (now called The Friendly Folk)

Drift Counseling Service

Education of Whites Against Racism

Ethan Allen Rifles

Film Club

German Club

Gold Key

Goodrich Classical Club

Gymnastic Club

Homecoming '70

Horse Club

International Club

Institute of Electronic & Electrical Engineering

John Dewey Philosophy Club

Kappa Delta Pi

Mortar Board

National Society of Perishing Rifles

Nursing Students Council

Omicron Nu

Pep Club

Pre-Medical Society

Psychology Club

Radical Union

Relevant Education's Value

Scope

Sigma Delta Psi

Society for Advancement of Management

Staff and Sander

Student National Education Association

Student Photo Service

Tau Beta Pi

University Players

UVM Band

UVM Forestry Club

UVM Outing Club

UVM Tutoring Club

Varsity Club

Vermont Jr. Dental Hygienists Association

Volunteer Services

WRUV-AM

Warren Austin Model U.N. Club

Women's Recreation Association

Young Democrats

Calendar/Announcements

ENROLLMENT FALL SEMESTER 1971

DEGREE students who are now in attendance will enroll for Fall Semester according to the schedule below.

Graduate College Students — March 22-April 16 (Graduate Office)

Fall Session — March 22-26

Fall Session — March 29-April 2

Fall Session — April 12-16

No enrollments will be accepted after April 16, 1971.

Enrollment material may be picked up at the Registrar's Office, 360 Waterman beginning Thursday, March 18.

Paper Recycling

Conserve will start collecting in waste paper for recycling this week. This program is in cooperation with the total waste recycling program which has been implemented in Mason and Coolidge. Due to a lack of storage space and a shortage of help, glass, cans, and organic wastes are not being handled in Coolidge.

Should anyone be interested in helping clean up the trash, contact either David Alexander (656-3041; 301 Coolidge) or E.O. Osgood (656-2288; 237 Converse).

Vacation Hours

Bailey Library Hours during Spring Vacation will be as follows:

April 3 (Sat) — 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

April 4 (Sun) — 12 Noon - 5:00 p.m.

April 5-9 (Mon-Fri) — 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

April 10 (Sat) — Regular Hours

April 11 (Sun) — Regular Hours

ALL NIGHT STUDY ROOM:

April 3-4 — Regular Hours

April 5-6 — Closed for Cleaning

April 7 — Regular Hours

R.O.T.C. Ball

The R.O.T.C. Department of the University of Vermont will be holding their 103rd annual Military Ball, Friday, March 19. The Ramada Inn will host the affair, featuring music by the "Cyndrome," a well known contemporary and popular music ensemble.

Nation-wide Poster Contest

The start of a nation-wide poster contest, which has for its theme the decade of service overseas by more than 50,000 Peace Corps Volunteers, has been announced by Neil Armstrong, Chairman of the Peace Corps' National Advisory Council.

According to Armstrong, the contest is open to all Americans. Professional artists and designers, as well as the general public, are invited to participate.

"This is an opportunity for interested citizens to express themselves on the work of the Peace Corps, and, in a way, to participate in that work," declared the first man to walk on the moon.

The winning poster will receive a cash award of $1,000. There will also be nine

Sugar On Snow

The campus is invited to a Sugar on Snow party on Thursday, March 25th, from 9:00 to 10:30 p.m., in front of the Wright-W.D.W.-Simpson quadrangle. The party is the courtesy of SAGA food service.

Hearing On Proposed Abortion Bill

In the upcoming months, the proposed Foley Bill will be introduced before the House of Representatives. It is a New York style bill with a clause which states that women who are pregnant can obtain an abortion in Vermont over the first 20 weeks of pregnancy. As it now stands, Vermont law states that no abortion shall be performed except when the mother's physical health is endangered. That does not include mental damage, not even for victims of rape.

Thursday March 18 there will be a public hearing on the proposed bill and all concerned people are urged to come, even if you have nothing to say, people are needed just for a head count. The hearing is 7:30 P.M. on the second floor of the House of Chambers, Capitol Building in Montpelier. If you need a ride, call the Zero Population Growth Office 863-6120.

Junior Portrait Appointments

The Ariel Staff has chosen MacLean Studio of Concord, N.H., as Yearbook photographers for the 1972 Ariel. Sign-ups for portrait appointments for your 1972 Ariel will be made on a first-come, first-served basis March 16, 17, 18 at Lower Billings. You may also call the Ariel Office (556-2056) between 11:00 and 1:00 to reserve your appointment.

Budget Hearing

To Student Association Organizations

Re-Budget Hearings

Budget hearings for the next fiscal year shall begin March 29 and will end April 16, 1971. During this time, each SA recognized organization may petition the Student Association for funds.

The procedure for signing up is to request an application form at the SA desk and sign up for a time. Return the application in duplicate to the SA desk by March 24. The Finance Committee will then meet with your treasurer and president at the appointed time.

As most of you know, the Student Activities Fee will be put to a referendum in the next few weeks. We need your active support in retaining the activities fee if organizations on this campus are to be funded and are to be active. Please go out and actively support the Activities Fee. We need your help if this campus is going to be active.

Sincerely,
Jeff Bernstein
Vice-President
Student Association

Deadline Extended

This memorandum was prepared to inform you of an extension of the deadline for application to The Vermont

Summer Sessions Seminar. A course offering which is entitled Ed. 292 A and D, Issues in Contemporary Education. The deadline for application has been changed from March 1, 1971 to April 15, 1971. A brochure describing our program accompanies this memorandum. It is our hope that you could give this change of deadline and our program some publicity. There has also been some reduction in the cost of our programs. Our Seminar

Abroad-Education in England program has been reduced in cost by $100.00 so that total cost to in-state students is $585.00 and to out-of-state students it is $651.00. Our Seminar Abroad-

Educational and Cultural in Emerging Africa has been reduced by $150.00 so that the cost to an in-state student is $900.00 and to an out-of-state student it is $966.00.

Thursday, March 18

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre; tickets free with UVM I.D., $1.50 without. Box Office, Ext. 2094.

Philosophy and Religion Pines Commission presents Mr. Allen Brick, National Program Director, Fellowship of Reconciliation, "The Paris Peace Talks and The Peoples Peace Treaty Movement," 7:30 p.m., Lower Lounge, Waterman Building.

Catalina Club synchronized swim show, "Whale of a Tale," 8 p.m., Forbush Pool.

Friday, March 19

"Friday at Four," open house at Arena Theatre, 4 p.m.

Student Association film, "The Informer," 8 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18.

Catalina Club, "Whale of a Tale," 8 p.m., Forbush Pool.

Saturday, March 20

19th Annual High School Day, Vermont High School Junior visit campus.

Student Association films, Godard's "Le Gai Savoir" and "Tantra," 7 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building; tickets $1.25 at the door or at S.A. desk one week prior to showing.

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18.

Sunday, March 21

University Choir and Orchestra joint concert. Felix Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer," and Mozart's "Requiem," 4 p.m., Ira Allen Chapel.

"The Tempest," 7:30 p.m., Arena Theatre, details under March 18.

Lane Red Series concert originally set for March 21 has been changed to March 17.

Campus Wide

Sugar on Snow Party

Sugar on Snow

Pickles

Hot Chocolate

Thursday night March 25th

9:00-10:30 p.m.

Place—Outside on the Simpson-Wright Quad

Sponsored by the Sophomore Class Council

Boston Ballet Company

A spectacular dance series will open at the Wright Memorial Theatre, Middlebury College on March 30th with the Boston Ballet Company and featured artists — Edna Toth, Agamie Sarazin, and Robert Steele, principle dancers of the Boston company, and guest — Edward Villalla of the New York City Ballet.

The program will include "Swan Lake," Act II, starring Edna Toth and Edward Villalla; a Rock Ballet, "Garden of Eden," featuring Agamie Sarazin and Robert Steele — music composed by Michael Kamen with the New York Rock Ensemble, and choreography by Louis Falco; "Le Corsaire Pas De Deux with Toth and Villalla and "Graduation Ball" with the Boston Ballet, it's soloists and corps de ballet.

The Boston Ballet Company, under the artistic direction of E. Virginia Williams, is gathering laurels during its current 1971 season at the Savoy Theatre. Clive Barnes of the New York Times has said, "The Company dances with a blithe zest... they are, and I use the word advisedly, tremendous!"

Edna Toth, 18 year old Boston ballerina won an ovation at her recent Boston debut in "Giselle."

Edward Villalla, America's greatest male dancer made his introduction to ballet audiences both in America and abroad.

Tickets are limited and on sale daily between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Wright Memorial Theatre box office. For information call (802) 388-2663.

Niggerhead Pond

Friday at 100, Ira Allen Chapel.

The university continues to block enrollment of back students, despite administrative "approval" of the token 1% plan.

The name of Niggerhead Pond is still being printed on Vermont's official road maps.

A coalition of concerned people and organizations has been formed to combat racism in Vermont. It includes CAN—a Goddard-based committee to abolish Niggerhead Mountain, Brook and Pond.

EOC—The UVM Faculty Senate. Equal Opportunity Committee.

EWAR—a UVM student organization to educate whites about racism.

Third World Organizations at UVM and Goddard.

Racism is your concern.

SA Elections

Elections for next year's SA officers will be held March 23rd and 24th. They will be conducted in the dining hall from 5:00-6:30 and in Billings from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Boulder Society

Boulder Society, the senior men's honorary group at the University of Vermont, is now accepting letters of nomination from qualified juniors for membership.

Members of the Class of 1972 should list their student activities, interests, and their grade point average—which must surpass the all-men's average—and submit this application to the Student Activities desk, where it will be placed in the Boulder file.

Nominations should be submitted as soon as possible. The deadline is March 25.

OVP

More New Areas Of Need!!!

Agency: Burlington Area Tenants Union

Project: Organizing community tenants around issues concerning tenants' rights, minimum housing code enforcement, housing shortage. This will include office work as well as field work.

Agency: Welfare Rights

Project: Students are needed in locating the aged in the community and informing them of their Social Security rights, Medicare eligibility, and about Food Stamps. At the same time students could observe the housing situation and feedback any substandard housing to the Burlington Area Tenants Union.

Agency: Welfare Rights

Project: Students are needed right away to help push a campaign for more extensive Medicaid legislation.

Agency: Riverside Apts. Project

Project: Students are needed to work in outdoor recreational project with children 9-14 years old who live in the apts. It is a low income area and the children need more social contact.

Agency: Bennett C. Douglas School

Project: People are needed to work in summer camp helping the classroom teacher to supervise 5-12 children "having and providing." These children are in the training facility for severely retarded and have a desire to learn how to construct simple projects.

Agency: Adams School

Project: SKIING!!!! The school is presently offering instruction in skiing to their students but need more instructors. The children are in the 4, 5, and 6 grades and the majority can ski well already.

The school also needs Arts and Crafts instructors and assistants.

Agency: Big Brothers

Project: Three Big Sisters are desperately needed for girls 10, 11, and 13. One of the girls is handicapped; all the girls need help. Older Projects still need help!!!

Agency: Thayer School

Project: Tutors are needed to work with kids one evening a week on a one to one basis. These kids need more than academic help and it is hoped that contact with older students will be of value.

Agency: The Plan

Project: Helping people who have become involved with drugs as well as educating those who have not. The drug is a two way street; it needs your help.

Agency: FIRMAMENT

Project: We need students to work on the production of a newspaper to be published which will deal with the issue of survival in this community. There will be more than one issue of the FIRMAMENT so if you like you can continue.

Agency: OUP

Project: The office can't work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel, and talk with volunteers, especially since many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

OVP Treasurer:

Qualifications

Must be an OVP on regular basis to be available for financial transactions and record keeping. Should have some budgeting experience and financial knowledge. This person should be interested and active in the various phases of OVP, and attend Steering Committee meetings. This is important because the treasurer must be aware of policies, decisions, and consensus in order to approve the expenditure of funds. It is not possible to hold a meeting or vote on the everyday expenditures, so the treasurer must be aware of the sentiments of the OVP staff.

The treasurer should keep a running balance of the OVP account. This knowledge is necessary when Steering Committee considers any major allocations.

The treasurer should work in concert with fund-raising and transportation, but not be primarily responsible for either of these.

The treasurer must be aware of the Student Association financial policies (copies are obtained at the SA desk), so that he or she will know what expenditures are and are not permissible. This information is essential for Steering Committee decisions.

All students to have $540.00 per semester for the University.

Editor's Note: Less than 3 years ago, the was confronted by the problem of lacking client funds. The following is the S.A.'s first

Student Activities Fee Increase

The budget which the S.A. treats controls is derived from the activities ($17.50/year) which the students pay. No people are unaware of the organization which are funded by S.A., but they do amount to approximately 37.

The added pressure on the S.A. budget late is necessitating an increase of $4.00. It is the intention of S.A. that not only do they aid in the development of the ex groups but also special projects or programs which students feel would benefit the campus.

Editor's Note

The S.A. Activities Fee is used to help student organizations in 1970-71 which organization received S.A. recognition, but we have not included the actual amounts. 1) The amounts are subject to change and 2) The specific allocations are not being given.

Accountant's Fee

Billings Center Information Desk

Executive Board Honorarium

Movies

S. A. Secretary

Supplies and Services

President's Discretionary Account

Alpha Zeta

American Chemical Society

American Society of Civil Engineers

American Society of Mechanical Engineers

L'Amicale Francaise

Ariel

Bertha Terrell Home Economic Club

Billings Governing Board

Billings Center Replacement Fund

Boulder Society

Chi Epsilon Beta

Class Council '71

Class Council '72

Class Council '73

Committee on Environmental Action

Course Critique Committee

Cynic

Deka Sigma Phi — Tau Kappa Alpha

Deputy (now called The Friendly Folk)

Draft Counseling Service

Education of Whites Against Racism

Ethan Allen Rifles

Film Club

German Club

Gold Key

Goodrich Classical Club

Gymnastic Club

Homecoming '70

Horse Club

International Club

Institute of Electronic & Electrical Engin

John Dewey Philosophy Club

Kappa Delta Pi

Mortar Board

National Society of Pershing Rifles

Nursing Students Council

Omicron Nu

Pep Club

Pre-Medical Society

Psychology Club

Radical Union

Relevant Education's Value

Scope

Sigma Delta Psi

Society for Advancement of Management

Staff and Sander

Student National Education Association

Student Photo Service

Tan Beta Psi

University Players

UVM Band

UVM Forestry Club

UVM Outing Club

UVM Tutoring Club

Varsity Club

Vermont Jr. Dental Hygienists Associa

Volunteer Services

WRUV-AM

Warren Austin Model U.N. Club

Women's Recognition Association

Young Democrats

OVP Treasurer: Qualifications

Must be at O.V.P. on April 1st. Must be available for financial transactions and record keeping. Should have some budgeting experience and financial know-how. This person should be involved and active in the various phases of O.V.P. and attend Steering Committee meetings. This is important because the treasurer must be aware of policies, decisions, and consensus in order to approve the expenditure of funds. It is not possible to hold a meeting or vote on the everyday expenditures, so the treasurer must be aware of the sentiments of the O.V.P. staff.

The treasurer should keep a running balance of the O.V.P. account. This knowledge is necessary when Steering Committee considers any major allocations.

The treasurer should work in concert with fund-raising and transportation, but not be primarily responsible for either of these.

The treasurer must be aware of the Student Association financial policies (copies are obtained at the S.A. desk), so that he or she will know what expenditures are and are not permissible. This information is essential for Steering Committee decisions.

Company

open at the Wright Memorial Arch 30th with the Boston Ballet. Edna Toth, Anamaria Sarazin, and of the Boston company, and York City Ballet.

"Lake," Act II, starring Edna Toth, "Garnet Garden," "Short Stacks" — music composed by York Toth Ensemble, and "Corair Pas De Deux with Toth" with the Boston Ballet, it's under the artistic direction of E. Toth during its current 1971 tour. The New York Times has a blither rant... they are, and bolter won an ovation at her main debut, made her in America and abroad, daily between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. box office. For information

SA Elections

Elections for next year's SA officers will be held March 23rd and 24th. They will be conducted in the dining hall from 5:00-6:30 and in Billings from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Boulder Society

Boulder Society, the senior men's honorary group at the University of Vermont, is now accepting letters of nomination from qualified juniors for membership.

Members of the Class of 1972 should list their student activities, interests, and their grade point average — which must surpass the all-men's average — and submit this application to the Student Activities desk, where it will be placed in the Boulder file.

Nominations should be submitted as soon as possible. The deadline is March 25.

VP

school is presently offering instruction in skiing to their students, but they need more instructors. The children are in the 4, 5, and 6 grades and the majority can ski well already.

Project: The school also needs Arts and Crafts materials and equipment.

Agency Big Brothers: Project: Three Big Brothers are desperately needed for girls 10, 11, and 13. One of the girls is handicapped; all the girls need help. Older Projects still need help!!!

Agency Tutoring School: Project: Tutors are needed to work with kids one evening a week on a one-to-one basis. These kids need more than academic help and it is hoped that contact with older students will be of value.

Agency The Place: Project: Helping people who have become involved with drugs as well as educating those who have not. The drug is a real way ahead; it needs your help.

Agency FIRMAMENT: Project: We need students to work on the production of a newspaper to be published weekly with news of the use of survival in this community.

There will be more than one issue of the FIRMAMENT so if you like you can contribute.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

Agency OUP: Project: The office staff work by itself. People are needed to interview, counsel and talk with volunteers, especially those many of our people will be graduating. Help so we can better serve you is all we ask.

A Break-down Of Student Fees

Editor's Note: The CYNIC feels that students should be aware of the allocation of a student's total charges. These bills are merely samples; each student's bill may vary according to his situation. The CYNIC has added the percentage break-down of each charge.

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT Burlington, Vermont

STATEMENT

Make checks payable to:
"University of Vermont"
Office of the Student Financial Services
Burlington, Vermont 05405

An in-state sample

DESCRIPTION	CHARGES	CREDITS	BALANCE
	BROUGHT FORWARD	% of Total Amount
Tuition	375.00	40.0%
Library Bond Fee	15.00	1.6%
Athletic Bond Fee	15.00	1.6%
Health Service Fee	20.00	2.1%
Student Activity Fee	10.75	1.1%
Room	230.00	24.5%
Board	270.00	28.8%
Inter-Residence Assoc. Fee	3.00	.3%
		100.0%	938.75
Amount Due

An out-of-state sample

DESCRIPTION	CHARGES	CREDITS	BALANCE
	BROUGHT FORWARD	% of Total Amount
Tuition	1100.00	66.2%
Library Bond Fee	15.00	.9%
Athletic Bond Fee	15.00	.9%
Health Service Fee	20.00	1.2%
Student Activity Fee	10.75	.6%
Room	230.00	13.8%
Board	270.00	16.2%
Inter-Residence Assoc. Fee	3.00	.2%
		100.0%	1663.75
Amount Due

LIBRARY BOND FEE

A library fee of $30.00 per year is charged to all full-time students except those registered in the College of Medicine. Students enrolled in less than twelve hours but more than three hours will be charged a fee of $15.00 per year. Students enrolled in three hours or less are not subject to the library fee. This fee is assessed to retire the bond issue under which the library was built and equipped.

ATHLETIC BOND FEE

An athletic bond fee of $30.00 per year is charged to all full-time students. Students have the privilege of using the facilities in the gymnasium at scheduled times. This fee is assessed to retire the bond issue which helped make possible construction of the gymnasium complex.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE FEE

A fee of $20.00 each semester is charged to all (full-time) students at the University of Vermont. This permits each student to obtain out-patient care at the Wasson Infirmary and up to five days free in-patient care with all medical services and most prescription medicine covered.

STUDENT ACTIVITY FEE

Full-time students enrolled in the Colleges of Arts and Sciences, of Technology, of Agriculture and Home Economics, and of Education, and undergraduate students in the Division of Health Sciences are charged a fee of $10.75 per semester. This fee is assessed and allocated by Student Association toward the support of student organizations and student activities. First-year medical students who enter the College of Medicine after three years in the College of Arts and Sciences are charged this same fee. Graduate students, part-time students, and students in the College of Medicine may, by paying this fee, become entitled to the benefits listed above.

ROOM CHARGE

Rooms in college residence halls are rented for the academic year and the prices are uniform in all residence halls. For each occupant of a room in a residence hall $460.00 per year is charged. The charge for a single room, when available, is $510.00.

BOARD

All students who live in a University residence hall are required to have meal contracts for twenty meals per week at a cost of $540.00 per year. Students with meal contracts will be assigned by the University to appropriate residential dining halls.

IRA FEE

A $6.00 ($3.00 per semester) fee is charged each dormitory resident to be used for the Residence Hall's activities programs, and financial support of the Inter-Residence Association.

Editor's Note: Less than 2 years ago, the S.A. was confronted by the problem of lacking sufficient funds. The following is the S.A.'s justification of a fee increase. In the subsequent opinion poll, the students voted overwhelmingly in favor of the increase.

Student Activities Fee Increase

The budget which the S.A. treasurer controls is derived from the activities fee ($17.50/year) which the students pay. Many people are unaware of the organizations which are funded by S.A., but they do amount to approximately 37.

The added pressure on the S.A. budget of late is necessitating an increase of $4.00/year. It is the intention of S.A. that not only should they aid in the development of the existing groups but also special projects or programs which students feel would benefit the whole campus.

increasing financial requests that are brought to it for consideration. In many cases, lack of sufficient funds is the reason for existing student organizations and potential organizations being unable to participate more actively on the UVM campus. At present, special projects which individual students would like to see S.A. sponsor, are out of the question because the working budget which S.A. has, is too restricting. What we need is a larger budget so that the Student Association can meet the desires of individual students and organizations, so that they, and the University as a result, may Presumably, S.A. will request more money.

Editor's Note

The S.A. Activities Fee is used to help finance student organizations. Following is the list of student organizations in 1970-71 which were eligible for funding. An asterisk (*) signifies that the organization received S.A. recognition, but did not receive S.A. funds.

We have not included the actual amounts allocated for two reasons:

1) The amounts are subject to change and therefore may be misleading.

2) The specific allocations are not being questioned.

Accountant's Fee

Billings Center Information Desk

Executive Board Honorarium

Movies

S.A. Secretary

Supplies and Services

President's Discretionary Account

Alpha Zeta*

American Chemical Society*

American Society of Civil Engineers

American Society of Mechanical Engineers*

L'Amicale Francaise

Ariel

Bertha Terpil Home Economic Club*

Billings Governing Board

Billings Center Replacement Fund

Boulder Society*

Chi Epsilon Beta*

Class Council '71*

Class Council '72*

Class Council '73*

Committee on Environmental Action

Course Critique Committee

Cynic

Delta Sigma Phi — Tau Kappa Alpha*

Departure (now called The Friendly Folk)

Draft Counseling Service

Education of Whites Against Racism

Ethan Allen Rifles

Film Club

German Club

Gold Key*

Goodrich Classical Club

Gymnastic Club*

Homecoming '70

Homecoming '71

Homecoming '72

Homecoming '73

Institute of Electronic & Electrical Engineers*

John Dewey Philosophy Club*

Kappa Delta Pi*

Mortar Board

National Society of Pershing Rifles

Nursing Students Council*

Omicron Nu*

Pep Club*

Pre-Medical Society

Psychology Club*

Radical Union*

Relevance Education's Value

Scope

Sigma Delta Psi*

Society for Advancement of Management*

Staff and Sander

Student National Education Association

Student Photo Service

Tau Beta Pi

University Players

UVM Band

UVM Forestry Club*

UVM Outing Club

UVM Tutoring Club

Varsity Club*

Vermont Jr. Dental Hygienists Association*

Volunteer Services

WRUV-AM

Warren Austin Model U.N. Club

Women's Recreation Association*

Young Democrats*

Audit Expense

Student Desk Clerks

For the 6 elected members of the Executive Committee

Entertainment Movies

Administrative Assistance

Office Expenses

Entertainment of Official S.A. guests, Travel, Etc.

Agriculture Honorary

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

Academic Interest Organization

ETV "After The Whale"

The things that people do to their environment and to each other — at sea, in Greece, and in the future — are probed in evening programs on Vermont Educational Television March 22-26.

"After the Whale" is a study of the largest mammal, fallen prey in recent years to man's depredation and now verging toward extinction, to be seen Monday (March 22) at 6 p.m. on "The World We Live In," and repeated Friday (March 26) at 6:30 p.m.

Greece, the home of Western democracy now shackled by a military dictatorship, tests the limits of United States' willingness to involve itself in the affairs of other nations. The Advocates debate the question "Should the U.S. discontinue military aid to Greece?" Tuesday (March 23) at 9 p.m.

"The Great American Dream Machine" continues to grind out its illusions Wednesday (March 24) at 8:30 p.m. with vignettes, features, reports, and commentary on life in the U.S.

VISTA needs... —Business Majors —Humanities Majors —Architects and City Planners —Lawyers —Health Specialists —Education Majors —Y O U !

Volunteers In

Beginning March 22 UVM students will be asked to exercise their opinions on the mandatory nature of the Student Association Fee. For those who have expressed dissatisfaction with the Student Association one way or another, will have an opportunity to express their feelings concerning the fee.

Most notably, the emphasis and objection to the fee is the political activities of the Student Association. The Student Association, through various organizations which it supports, uses SA funds for political purposes. The SA is financing activities with which they have no business engaging in. The University of Vermont is not a political podium for those who feel bent on substituting political activism for educational purposes. The student may exercise his right of political advocacy. But he should step outside the University to do so. The breakdown is in the Student Association's inability to differentiate between its designed function and its political behavior. The SA has become an implement for those who feel compelled to act as the saviour for all the political, economic, and social ills that trouble this country. This compulsion on the part of the SA to act and speak irrationally has, at times, bordered insanity.

There may be other areas of the Student Association with which you are dissatisfied other than the political spectrum. Some have expressed concern about the SA fee supporting the Pershing Rifles. For others, the real purpose of SCOPE or the validity and function of the Radical Student Union (railroaded into existence last fall by the SA Senate, the RSU's legal leg and purpose still remains dubious).

In essence, you as a student are financing activities on this campus which may be diametrically opposed to what you believe. Your $21.50 SA Fee is assessed by the Board of Trustees and allocated by the SA for purposes which the SA sees fit. In other words, the SA is on the dole. Understandably, they are screaming bloody murder. I suppose I would too if I saw my gravy train in danger of coming to an abrupt halt.

We'll be hearing about all the good things that the SA does for the University. Advocates of the Student Association will garble the issue with such from running organizations as the Oxing Club, UVM Band, Bertha Terrill Home, Economics Club or OVP. These activities are not being contested. But the SA will be quick to point out that without the SA they will become defunct. This is simply not so. Has the SA ever heard of club and organization membership through dues paying members? Organizations which are based on this premise would be warranted and would stand on their own merits. The SA's cry that all student life would shrivel up without them is fallacious. What the SA is really worried about has nothing to do with merits or demerits of organizations on campus. What they are worried about is the invasion of their political sanctuary. That it has been disrupted and is in danger of losing its purse string is what really bothers the SA.

The Student Activity Fee Questionnaire gives the student enough lateral movement to make the selection which best suits the student's interests. Perspective and meaning have been drowned in the SA's bleeding verbiage. The minority that controls the Student Association has confused its priorities. The students concern comes first, not the SA's political monkeys.

However painful it might be to some, the University is not a political beehive, but rather an institution of higher learning. And if it is to survive, a separation of politics and education is required. However sanctimonious the SA may appear, it cannot justify its political involvements. If the SA feels that politics is a vital part of their education, then they should empty their pockets and not mine.

Stetson Blake

Editor's Note: The CYNIC has made an exception to its usual deadline policy, in order that the preceding guest editorial could be included. There will be a rebuttal next week; Letters to the editor are most welcome.

Editorial

The "Student Activity Fee Questionnaire" will accomplish much more than merely obtaining student opinion on the activity fee. The Student Association is forced to undertake an education campaign, something which is long overdue.

We must ask ourselves: Who will lose if the Activity Fee is abolished, as is wanted by what appears to be, despite the Vermont Sunday News, a few students? The answer is simple. All of us—will. SA movies, speakers, concerts, CYNIC, ARIEL, as well as smaller organizations such as L'Amicale Française, and the long list continues, will be lost.

Why not charge for each activity or event? Idealistically it sounds great, but realistically it is absurd. The fact is that students are charged wherever it is feasible, as is the case with ARIEL, concerts, certain films and speakers, etc. Remember, it is the SA fee that keeps these charges to a minimum. It is also true that you can not charge for admission to a movie or hear speakers if you don't have the funds to obtain them in the first place. Other organizations are simply not chargeable. The Committee on Environmental Action needs funds to operate. What goals could this committee achieve if they had to spend their time raising operating funds? Imagine the absurdity of OVP charging those who want to serve as big brothers, big sisters, tutors, etc. Without SA financial support, such organizations will simply cease to exist or at least have to limit their activities to a meaningless level.

If one examines the amount of this fee and what it provides, one can only argue for the retention of the fee, rather than its elimination. For $10.75 - per semester, which amounts to about 1% of the student's total bill, we receive the educational, cultural and social events that the University will not provide. If you had to pay for all of these events on an individual basis, how much would they cost?

What if it is not the money these few students oppose, what are they against? It must be the Student Association itself. Every student at UVM has a senator representing him. This senator is elected by you to convey your ideas to the student association. Perhaps your senator has failed in his obligation to you. The elimination of the Student Association is not the answer, however. There are procedures that enable such senators to be replaced. A person with strong convictions will take the necessary action.

Who Will Lose?

In the final analysis, opponents to the fee object to the positions taken by the Student Association. Remember, these positions represent the feelings of the majority of students. Are these few students objecting to the SA's position on tenure, final examinations, or curriculum revisions? Yes, the SA has taken positions on Kent State, racism, Vietnam, and the case of Mr. Parenti. Why shouldn't we. After all, we are all rational, human, and beings. We have the right and obligation to do so. Think about it when you indicate your preference on the "opinion poll."

We feel the ability of the Student Association to effect change and to satisfy the students needs is derived from its compulsory membership and activity fee. The students should not stop here, however. Take advantage of this questionnaire. After indicating support for the compulsory membership and fee, state your opinions on other fees, some of which are compulsory and some of which aren't. Now is the time to question these as well. Unless the Trustees completely disregard the poll, the Trustees will be forced to take issue where they have failed to in the past.

R. R.

VOLUME 1 NUMBER 1 VERMONT CYNIC

[illegible]

d.l. ingraham

what the s.a. activities fee is all about...

MARCH 18, 1971

The New Reformat Generation Ga

by John Perry

At 7:30 p.m. tonight the Legislature will meet for the controversial Abortion Bill.

Last week a well-meaning Senator declared, "Senate, that the forthcoming sale of condoms is totally foreign to everything I've ever thought."

In an editorial comment, the Free Press "promiscuous students" would be better off with out it.

In this rather heated area the generation something of a Grand Canyon. The aesthetics depending on whether the sun is shining in your behind your back; to some it is dark and forbidding, natural beauty and vibrant color. It is the same but it looks different, depending on where you stand.

All observers would be enlightened by the fact played a big role in this platonic allegory of the have become gnostic "secrets" which are shared initiates and withheld from the peasants who w "understand" them.

The facts are that it is difficult to know what "promiscuous" means in a situation in which people are apparently "promiscuous." A recent survey found that 82% of the Males and 70% of the females had pre-marital sexual intercourse. At the same time, 80% of the students use birth control pills regularly. And, 40% of the campus (actually about 55%, or close to 40% of the campus) are "believers in sex but not in marriage."

A person's position in the generation chasm statistic he cites as the "real" problem. So breakdown in "morals" and demand that believing in sex. Inasmuch as this has been position all along, the future of that approach evident.

Others will be concerned about the 3,800 have sexual relations without benefit of marriage. This represents a different moral "breakdown" with and psychological implications. Since the prescription contraceptives at the Planned Parenthood are available for at least a month, some alternative source is available. It would appear that the S.A. motion nor "the product of a sick mind," but judgement on the part on an enlightened student.

When the polemics have subsided and conclusions are available to those who need it, there will still be a debate in those calmer days ahead.

The Changing Gr

Pledge Progr

by Jack Arute

This column has been initiated in hopes of educating people to what truly makes a fraternity. People are encouraged to submit questions, and they will be answered if at all possible. By combining a question and answer format with reports on fraternity activities, and periodic essays on various aspects of fraternalism, it is hoped that a more realistic attitude can be developed towards this mysterious entity known as the Greek System.

One of the major complexities about fraternities is their attitude towards pledges. If, at UVM and across the country, most fraternities have reconstructed their pledge programs so that they meet the demands of a modern brotherhood. Pledges are no longer subjected to hazing practices such as "padding," swimming frozen rivers, or various other archaic practices.

The College Fraternities' Association, which counts most national fraternities as members, recently adopted a

Camelot, 19
The C

by Ronald F. Dockal
Ask a New Yorker, and he will tell you is a sense of desperation in the land. Into a "lay American" (i. e. a "non-New Yo "barbarian"), this means that there is sense of desperation in New York and part of it labeled Manhattan.

In days of yore, progress was out-mo-produced. PT-109 liberals were everywhere elected, and people used to smile right in the middle of 5th Avenue. The days when folks were sure of themselves was: not as much questioned as am vigor! Descartes was a founding father Frontier. (e. g. Cognito Ergo Sum!) Times: therefore, I am.) God didn't green apples; but if He did, B. Altman's better.

better.

However, evil things have happened. The New Frontier lay waste to our unfulfilled expectations. In South America especially in pro-Western Chile, the Progress and its revolutionary rhetoric came downer for U.S. interests abroad. Millions of Soviets of the old school, come from consolidate political gains at home and psychological gains abroad. (We are Disneyland, but they have the Mediterra-

Back at the White House, President continued in the Kennedy tradition Bay of Pigs was called Vietnam! The not really exist, thought the Secretaries and "incremental escalation" was more subtle in fashion than the anti-dotes of victory over an enemy.

The economies of Progress appear to be for America's material well-being, but the chapter led to Washington resulted in a branch of government, Peter Drucker, a liberal from N.Y.U., told a T.V.A. is what happens when a key is taken seriously, and that it runs more efficiently if run by the private sector. In the Age of Discontent, he said to Modern government has become there is no government today that is its bureaucracy and its various Government agencies are a

The Arena Theatre

The University of Vermont department of speech and drama is pleased to present an all student production of The Tempest. By William Shakespeare. Steven A. Vandegriff, a senior theatre major from Randolph, Vermont is directing the play, which is one of Shakespeare's most popular comedies.

In the play, Prospero, the right Duke of Milan, is found to be on an island which has been his home for the past twelve years. In the opening scene, he enchants the very people who usurped his title and sent him and his baby daughter Miranda into this exile, by raising a tempest which shipwrecks them on his island. By means of his spirit, Ariel, he sees that none are harmed, and that they are carefully landed about the island in three different groups. There is the court party proper, which consists of Alonso, the King of Naples; Gonzalo, an old councillor; Antonio, brother to Prospero and usurping Duke of Milan; Sebastian, brother to Alonso; and Adrian, a lord. Ferdinand is left secluded on the island, and Stephano and Trinculo, quickly find each other and join with Caliban, a monster of the isle, in a plot to overthrow Prospero. Throughout the play several different plots develop. Antonio and Sebastian decide to kill Alonso and become Monarchs of Naples; Stephano and Trinculo with Caliban attempt to do away with Prospero, but find their bottles more enticing.

Lane Series - Yehudi Menuhin

Yehudi Menuhin, one of the major violinists of the century, will give a recital on Thursday, 18, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium in the cancelled Menuhin Festival-Orchestra Series Recital. Red Series subscription tickets will be on sale. Single concert tickets, $6, $5, and $3.75, are on sale in the Lane of Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Yehudi Menuhin, Violinist

As of this date the program was not announced. Yehudi Menuhin is one of those rare has become a legend in his own lifetime. New York in 1916 of Russian parents.

Pipes to...
Papers 152
CHURCH 8

Starts March 18th

BOOKSALE

A Distinctive Assortment and a Modest Price!

445. Art Treasures of the National Gallery, London. Text by Sir Hamdy, Director of the National Gallery. 100 large reproductions in full color. A treasure chest of English, Italian, Dutch, Flemish, German and Spanish art from one of the most splendid collections in the entire world. 11 1/2 x 13. Orig. Pub. at $25.00. New, complete ed. Only $10.95.
1408. The World of Carver & Ives. By Roy King & Burke Davis. 57 original prints reproduced in 6-color deep-etch offset to retain their unique beauty. The most luxurious volume ever produced of these remarkable lithographs, some of which can rarely be seen except in a few private collections and museums. With descriptions of the vanished times they represent an essay on "Collecting & Buying Prints," and a selected list of 250 prints and their values. Large format, 19 x 14 1/2. Pub. at $30.00. Only $14.95.
9432. Cars, Cars, Cars. By S. C. H. Davis. 220 photos in black & white plus 24 pages in full color and 12 line drawings. A pictorial history of motor cars from the pioneers of the industry to present day models. 8 1/2 x 11. Import Special $2.98.
- K86. Magic in Herbs. By L. de Sounin. With 15 Photos. A combination herb cook book and gardening guide with step-by-step instruction for the culture and use of herbs. Orig. Pub. at $3.95. Only $1.69.
2962. The Annotated Alice: Alice's Adventures in Wonderland & Through the Looking Glass. By Lewis Carroll. Illus. by John Tenniel. With Intro. & Notes by Martin Gardner. The complete text and original illus. in the only fully annotated edition. Notes are concurrent with the text on all the jokes, games, parodies, puzzles, etc. with which Carroll filled his Orig. Pub. at $10.00. New, complete ed. Only $3.95.
2963. Pictorial Encyclopedia of the Animal Kingdom. By V. J. Stankov. Over 1,000 remarkable photos from all over the world. 16 plates in full color. A large 614 page volume full of fascinating pictures and amazing facts tracing animal life from one-celled creatures to the familiar insects, reptiles, birds and domestic and wild animals. Pub. at $6.50. Only $4.95.
3898. The Yoga System of Health and Relief from Tension. By Yogi Bishuddha. Illus. with 20 photos. The yogi principles of physical exercise, mental and physical disciplines, breathing and food is presented here in brief and simple form. Pub. at $2.95. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
- Twentieth Century Masters*. Each volume illustrated with 40 pages of high-quality color plates plus 30 or more monochrome reproductions produced. Examines the work of some of the greatest painters, sculptors and architects of our time with highly informative text. $7.95 Value. Each Only $3.95.
1980. Gaudi.
1982. Keno Tange.
1990. Le Corbusier.
1995. Miro.
2000. Picasso.
2164. An Editor's Treasury. Ed. by H. R. Mayer. Tremendous anthology—over 2200 pages of prose, poetry, drama and literary criticism. Hundreds of authors include Plautus, Joyce, A. A. Milne, Ibsen, Bertrand Russell, Hammett, O'Neil, Nash, etc. Indexed by Author, Title, & Source. 2 handsomely bound matching volumes. Bound. Pub. at $24.95. Only $4.95.
1410. Creative Embroidery. By J. Nicholson. 147 illus. All basic and fancy stitches clearly described and illus. Shows how to combine traditional methods with new materials to produce lovely items for today's living. Orig. Pub. at $2.50. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
1402. Servants of Chinese Cooking. By T. & H. Lin. With an Essay "The Art of Cooking and Dining in Chinese" by Lin Yutang. How to bring forth the best in meats, vegetables, fish, other foods using only incomparable Chinese techniques, plus hundreds of mouth-watering recipes. Orig. Pub. at $4.95. New, complete ed. Only $4.95.
1417. Decorative: A Little World in Decoration. By D. Harrower. With 16 color plates and 72 black & white illus. The history and techniques of decorating with paper, colors, with projects for fun and profit. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Orig. Pub. at $10.95. New, complete ed. Only $4.95.
671. World of Horses. By J. Campbell. Over 170 Photos. 35 in Full Color. Spectacular round-up of horses from all over the world, the excitement of the racetrack, the pleasures of riding, anecdotes, factual information, much, much more. 11 x 8 1/2. Only $3.95.
2240. Railways. By H. Loxton. Over 300 illus., 32 pages in Full Color. Lively history covering all aspects of the world's railways: stations, rolling stock, signals, the great transcontinental lines, subways, steam, diesel, electric and gas turbine locomotives, etc. Orig. Pub. at $7.00. Only $2.98.
2006. The World of Antiques. By P. S. Fly. Intro. by Ralph & Terry Kovel. Over 140 illus., 26 are in color. A beautiful guide to collecting furniture, glass, china, clocks, silver, prints etc. of American, English and European origin. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. $9.95 Value. Only $3.95.
9984. Tarot Revealed: A Modern Guide to Reading The Tarot Cards. By Eden Gray. The 78 cards are authentically illustrated in this easy-to-use explanation of the mystic symbolism on these ancient fortune telling cards. 9 1/2 x 6 1/2. Orig. Pub. at $3.95. Only $1.98.
1167. Old American Houses: 1700-1850: How to Restore, Remodel and Reproduce Them. By Henry L. Williams & Ottalie K. Williams. Illus. with over 200 photos & drawings. Exterior and interior details including: furnishings, fireplaces, shutters, latches, knobs, etc. Orig. Pub. at $6.95. New, complete ed. Only $2.98.
1955. The Flowering of Art Nouveau. By M. Rheims. Definitive book with 615 illus. in color and monochrome explores international style that swept the entire world like a flash fire and changed the appearance of almost everything from skyscrapers to intimate jewelry. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Pub. at $22.50. Only $12.95.
687. Water and Marsh Birds of the World. By O. L. Austin, Jr. Over 200 species illustrated in Full Color by A. Singer. Magnificent, fascinating pictures and text on gulls, cranes, flamingos, herons, ibises, storks and many more. Softbound. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
1096. Dictionary of American Proverbs. Preface by Mark Van Doren. Hundreds of sayings listed alphabetically by subject reflecting the melting pot of American culture, its philosophy and folklore. Pub. at $6.00. Only $1.98.
761. Encyclopedia of Astrology. By Nicholas DeVore. An A to Z listing of the knowledge of astrology with much of astronomy from the ancient authorities to the latest scientific discoveries. Orig. pub. at $10.00. New, complete ed. Only $1.98.
197. The Frederick Remington Illustrated Edition of The Song of Hiawatha. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. A facsimile edition of the complete classic poem which weaves together the beautiful Indian traditions. Rare edition enhanced with 367 Remington pen and ink drawings, faithful reproductions of the artist's objects in art among the various tribes make this collection of drawings a veritable museum of Indian artifacts and curiosities. Only $2.98.
1928. Elusive Bender Recipes. By M. Stegner. 519 recipes for every meal, everyday—soups, salads, breads, beverages, preserves, desserts of all kinds as well as main dishes. Orig. Pub. at $3.00. New, complete ed. Only $1.69.
6366. Webster's Dictionary of Synonyms, Antonyms and Homonyms. 12,000 Synonyms, 10,000 Antonyms & 2,000 Homonyms of all important words arranged in dictionary form. Indexed. Only $1.00.
1359. "Mother Goose" Nursery Rhymes. Arranged by L. North. Illus. by C. Sanders. Over 175 Full Color plates. Special selection of traditional favorites beautifully illustrated. Ages 2-5. Only $1.00.
1365. Great Museums: Art Treasures in the West. By W. Davenport & the Sunset Editors. 250 Reproductions in Rich Full Color. Magnificent presentation of the outstanding world art treasures, paintings and sculptures on display in Western Museums including works by Rembrandt, Renoir, Matisse, Klee, Wyeth, Kandinsky, Shahn, etc. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Pub. at $12.50. Only $5.95.
3470. Care and Repair of Antiques. By Thomas H. Orms. 40 illus. with 40 photos. How to keep old furniture in good condition, restore broken and neglected pieces, repair and enhance the luster in silver, Old Sheffield, pewter, brass, copper, china, glass, pottery, old paintings and other articles. How to detect fakes and reconstructed pieces. Orig. Pub. at $3.00. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
1331. The Moderns. By G. Dehl. 126 Full Color plates & 34 drawings in two tones. Extraordinarily beautiful, comprehensive survey of modern painting from its origins in the late nineteenth century to the present era, sumptuously printed in Italy. 9 1/2 x 13. Orig. Pub. at $12.50. Only $7.95.
9651. Old-time Pickling and Spicing Recipes. By F. Brobeck. Illus. 110 small-quantity recipes for watermelon pickle, tomato garlic catsup, apple butter, spiced pear chips, salad dressings, piccalilli and other favorite relishes, sauces, spreads, etc. Orig. Pub. at $2.50. Only $1.00.
743. American Folk Art. By Peter C. Walch. Published by The Smithsonian Institution. 63 illus. in color and black & white. A beautiful presentation from the Eleanor and Mabel Van Alstyne Collection. Cigar store Indians and carousel figures, vestment, signs, paintings, etc. 9 x 9, softbound. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
1094. Penning and Drawing. By A. Daniels. With 57 illus. Complete art course for students and beginners. Orig. Pub. at $2.50. New, complete ed. Only $1.49.
- K109. Elmer, Queen, Q.E.D.: Queen's Experiments in Detection. 15 Chilling, witty tales in which Queen challenges reader clue by clue to exercise his deductive powers. Pub. at $5.50. Only $1.49.
1958. Pablo Picasso. By W. Boeck & J. Sabartes. Over 600 illus. 40 hand-tipped plates in Full Color. Produced in collaboration with the artist himself, this is the definitive presentation of all his styles and periods, the myriad of his works in great detail with a notable feature in which hundreds of his works are illustrated in a classified catalog. 524 pages, 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Pub. at $25.00. Only $14.95.
- K60. Colonial Interiors: Colonial & Early Federal. By Leigh French, Jr. With 125 Photos & measured drawings. Beautiful and heretofore rare photos of interiors, stairs, fireplaces, doors, windows and cupboards, many with furnishings from mid-17th to early 19th centuries. 9 1/2 x 12. Orig. Pub. at $50.00. New, complete ed. Only $3.95.
584. The World We Live In. By the Editors of Life & L. Barnett. 150 superb illus. in Full Color—photos, paintings & maps. Fascinating account of our world—how it was formed: mountains, oceans & deserts; development of living things: animals, birds, plants, etc. Only $1.00.
876. The Highlander's Cookbook. Recipes from Scotland. By Sheila MacNiven Cameron. The traditional, intriguing recipes from soups to puddings and baked goods including Tartan Broc, Cullen Skink, Fimkedella, Howtowidie, and others. Orig. Pub. at $4.95. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
- K362. Larousse Encyclopedia of Animal Life. More than 1000 photos including 100 in Full Color. The world's leading wildlife photographers. Large (8 1/2 x 11 1/2) handsome, comprehensive survey of the whole of the animal world—from the smallest single-celled creatures to the largest mammals throughout the world. Pub. at $25.00. Only $10.95.
1298. The American Indian Wars. By J. Tebbel & E. J. Henson. Illus. with 60 pictures. The conquest of America by the white man revealed in all its drama, cruelty, and heroism from the Portuguese landings in 1500 to the Battle of Wounded Knee. Orig. Pub. at $4.95. New, complete ed. Only $2.98.
8024. Stamp Collector's Encyclopedia. Revised, 6th Ed. By R. J. Sutton. 3,000 entries in alphabetical arrangement explains all stamp collecting, postage, philately, gossamer, translations of phrases, glossary and other philatelic knowledge. Hundreds of illustrations. Orig. Pub. at $10.00. Only $1.98.
- K214. Tricks and Games For Children. By R. Ehrtrick. With 116 illus. Dozens of tricks and games to liven up any party from kindergarten to teenager. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
5446. A Natural History of American Birds. By Edw. Howe Forbush & John Richard May. Illus. in color by Louis Agassiz Fuertes, Allen Brooks & Roger Tory Peterson. A magnificent volume illustrated with the best set of color plates in existence—over 500 species of Eastern and Central North America from Florida to Hudson Bay, all portrayed in full color. A mammoth 8 x 11 1/2 volume, over 600 pages of life histories, complete, accurate descriptions of the birds and their habits with an index of scientific and common names. Orig. Pub. at $12.50. New, complete ed. Only $6.95.
9900. The Art of Drying Plants and Flowers. By Mabel Squires. 40 Photos. Guide to what plants will dry well, where to find them, color wheel, arrangements, drying flowers, foliage, nuts, seed pods and cones. Orig. Pub. at $4.50. New Edition, Only $1.49.
9247. The World of Cats. By John Montgomery. 225 superb photos of cats and kittens, 44 in brilliant color. All breeds of cats are presented in wonderful text, anecdotes and delightful pictures for all who admire feline beauty and are fascinated by their mystery. With advice on how to raise a healthy cat. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. $9.95 value. Only $3.95.
6784. Immortals of the Screen. Ed. by Ray Stuart. Over 600 memorable photographs. A big album of movie stars with brief biographies of Hollywood's most glamorous stars: Gable, Leslie Howard, Harlow, Gable, Fields, Huxley, Barrymore, Valentino, Bogart, Beery, and many more. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Orig. Pub. at $7.50. New, complete ed. Only $2.98.
9523. The Collector's Book of the Locomotive. By E. P. Alexander. Over 150 illus., 44 in full color. Handsome volume depicting the many ways in which the iron horse was symbolized in scale models, on china, lithographs, toys, miniatures, medals, stamps, etc. 8 1/2 x 11. Pub. at $15.00. Only $4.95.
804. Music Building Games. By L. G. Frankel. Nearly 100 illus. A variety of simple exercises, athletic contests and competitive games for fun and bodily stamina. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
1657. Atlantis: The Antediluvian World. By Ignatius Donnelly. A Modern Revised Edition edited by Egerton Sykes. The Classic work on the Lost Continent of Atlantis brought up to date with new facts and theories. Orig. Pub. at $5.00. Only $1.98.
1232. The Art of W. C. Fields. By Wm. E. Everman. With 128 photos. Here in detail are all of the Fields' movies demonstrating his unique wit and imagination with masterful, pantomime. 7 1/2 x 10 1/2. Pub. at $7.50. Only $2.98.
98. The Delaney Book of American Wildflowers. 305 Photos by F. Grehan. Text by H. W. Ricketts. Every one of the 305 flowers is represented in a large, full color photo for easy identification, with descriptive text, growth characteristics, habitat, etc. Contains the most stunning photos of flowers produced in book form in this country. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Orig. Pub. at $12.95. New, complete ed. Only $6.95.
611. Marine Painting in Oil & Watercolor. By S. Woodward. Simplifies varied techniques for oil and watercolor. Step-by-step presentation begins with marine sketch, completing full-scale painting showing canvas states of development. Separate Chapters on moonlight, stormy weather, sky, rocks, location, etc. 61 Reproductions, 11 in Full Color. Pub. at $8.50. Only $3.95.
446. Paul Klee. By W. Grohmann. 430 illus., plus 40 hand-tipped, Full-Page, Full Color Plates. The life and work of one of the most inventive geniuses of modern art; his humor and insight are still an important influence in art and design today. Complete illustrated catalog of Klee's work included. Orig. Pub. at $25.00. New, complete ed. Only $14.95.
599. Drawing Trees. By H. C. Pitz. Step-by-step how to draw every major tree in America—oaks, elms, birches, evergreens, willows, maples, sycamores, cypresses, etc.—trunks, branches, foliage alive and dead. All major media. Over 100 reproductions and drawings by Wyeth, Watson, etc. Pub. at $8.50. Only $3.95.
9466. Knots & Splices. By P. W. Blanford. 200 clear, easy to follow illustrations. The whole range from basic to fancy knot work, splicing, boating, angler's, climber's, etc. Special $1.00.
3801. Indonesian Cookery. By Lie Sel Hiang. Coconut fritters, sauteed eggplant, chicken stuffed with shrimp, & hundreds of other palatable pleasing delicacies which made the Indonesian restaurant the sensation of the New York World's Fair. Orig. Pub. at $3.95. New, complete ed. Only $1.98.
6562. The Maine Woods. By Henry David Thoreau. Illus. by Henry Bugbee Kane. With Notes by Donald C. Lunt. A handsomely illustrated, new edition of this classic of the north woods recorded in Thoreau's three trips through the Katahdin country. Orig. Pub. at $5.50. New, comp. ed. Only $1.98.
6362. The Maine Woods. By Henry David Thoreau. Illus. by Henry Bugbee Kane. With Notes by Donald C. Lunt. A handsomely illustrated, new edition of this classic of the north woods recorded in Thoreau's three trips through the Katahdin country. Orig. Pub. at $5.50. New, comp. ed. Only $1.98.
975. How to Make Pottery & Other Ceramic Ware. By M. P. Turoff. Over 350 illus. Practical instruction on design, making, decorating and handling articles of clay for jewelry, tiles, dolls and other objects plus tableware. Pub. at $3.95. Only $1.98.
- K46. The World of Birds. By M. Ellis. Hundreds of illus. by major bird artists, many in Full Color. Fascinating chapters on the life of birds, territorial behavior, bird calls & songs, extinct & vanishing birds. $9.95 Value. Only $3.95.
1544. Mathematical Puzzles and Other Brain Twisters. By A. S. Filipiak. Delightful book devoted to making and solving of mechanical puzzles of all sorts, mostly mathematical or geometrical. Separate Chapters on moonlight, stormy weather, sky, rocks, location, etc. 61 Reproductions, 11 in Full Color. Pub. at $8.50. Only $3.95.
1592. The Burgess Book of Nature Lore. By Thornton W. Burgess. Illus. by R. Candy. 26 stories of how animals and plants make the most of life as told in charming style with lots of real information. Pub. at $5.00. Only $1.98.
3159. Peter Hunt's Cape Cod Cookbook. Illus. by the author. A treasury of good New England cooking—Boston baked beans, chowders, beach plum jelly, lobster, fowl, etc., all embellished with illustrations and designs in full color. Orig. Pub. at $5.00. New, complete ed. Only $1.98.
3105. Mary Thomas's Embroidery Book. With 350 illus. How to combine scores of stitches into patterns and designs in many chapters including: Samplers, Patchwork, Petit Point, Tapestry, Applique, Quilting & Smocking. New, complete edition re-issued by popular demand. Now, Only $1.98.
439. Kandinsky. By W. Grohmann. 920 illus., 41 hand-tipped, Full-Page, Full Color Plates. The most extensive presentation of the work of this great pioneer of abstract art. Every oil painting is reproduced, plus many drawings, sketches, and prints. The text traces Kandinsky's career, offers insights into his personality, and includes a completely illus. catalog of his work. 428 pages. 8 1/2 x 11 1/2. Orig. Pub. at $25.00. New, complete ed. Only $14.95.
- K390. America's Arts and Skills. By the Editors of Life. Over 300 Photos, 250 in Stunning Full Color. Fantastic presentation of the beautiful, useful things American craftsmen have fashioned through 3 1/2 centuries—the handsome gold, iron, silver and wood creations of Revolutionary days, magnificent weaving, pottery, brass, stoneware, glass, architectural creations, paintings, moccasins, etc. A treasure trove for antique collectors, decorators, etc. Orig. Pub. at $13.95. Only $7.95.
1063. Astrology. By R. C. Davison. Illus. Complete instructions for casting your own horoscope. Orig. Pub. at $2.50. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
8421. Flower Arranging by Number. For People Who Want Artistic Results Immediately. By F. Boehm & S. Matsuda. Over 50 illus. Simple, quick way to learning the basic flower arrangements with many seasonal variations—using garden flowers, branches, leaves and grasses. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
8706. Yoga for Beauty. By M. "Violin" N. Phelan. Illus. with photos & drawings. How to stay young and beautiful in face, body and spirit through Yoga exercises for men and women, diet, sleep, hygiene, etc. Pub. at $3.25. Only $1.00.
7087. Dictionary of Ecology. By H. C. Hanson. Practical dictionary for the use of students, teachers and workers, interested in forestry, wildlife, conservation, and other elements of life on Earth. Pub. at $10.00. Only $1.98.
- K34. Macrame & Other Projects for Knitting Without Needles. By P. Boehm. Over 100 illus. Easy to follow instructions for making things out of wool or cotton yarn—hats, hula skirts, beach bags, tassels, tapestry, cases, etc. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00.
1321. Old Time Meatless Recipes. Menus & Kitchen Antiques. By K. M. McClintock. 33 illus. Chowder Daniel Webster, Grand Central Oyster Stew, Finnan Haddock, other taste-pleasing fish and vegetable dishes plus appetizers, desserts, a section on cooking with herbs, information and illustrations of kitchen antiques. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. New, complete ed. Only $1.00.
3102. Mary Thomas's Dictionary of Embroidery Stitches. Illus. with 305 diagrams, showing how each stitch is worked, in alphabetical order, an index of uses for each stitch plus a number of photos. A classical guide reissued in response to popular demand. Orig. Pub. at $3.50. Now, complete ed. Only $1.98.

ENTERTAINMENT

The Arena Theatre Presents The Tempest

The University of Vermont department of speech and drama is pleased to present an all student production of The Tempest, by William Shakespeare. Steven A. Vandegriff, a senior theatre major from Randolph, Vermont is directing the play, which is one of Shakespeare's most popular comedies.

In the play, Prospero, the right Duke of Milan, is found to be on an island which has been his home for the past twelve years. In the opening scene, he enchants the very people who usurped his title and sent him and his baby daughter Miranda into this exile, by raising a tempest which shipwrecks them on his island. By means of his spirit, Ariel, he sees that none are harmed, and that they are in three different groups. There is the court party proper, which consists of Alonso, the King of Naples; Gonzalo, an old councillor; Antonio, brother to Prospero and usurping Duke of Milan; Sebastian, brother to Alonso; and Adrian, a lord. Ferdinand is left secluded on the island, and Stephano and Trinculo, quickly find each other and join with Caliban, a monster of the isle, in a plot to overthrow Prospero. Throughout the play several different plots develop. Antonio and Sebastian decide to kill Alonso and become Monarchs of Naples. Stephano and Trinculo with Caliban attempt to do away with Prospero, but find their bottles more enticing

S. Crocker Bennett in The Tempest

and Ferdinand, whose only thought is to win the hand of Miranda. All of this action takes place under the watchful eye of Prospero, whose magical powers are said to be brought about by his books. In the end all of the parties are brought together, and Prospero is persuaded by Ariel to refrain from taking revenge on them as he had planned. All are safely returned to their homes, and Ariel is set free.

Members of the cast include: S. Crocker Bennett, as Prospero; Sharon Smith as Ariel; M. G. Blaise, as Alonso; Ralph Lynch, as Gonzalo; Michael Savage, as Antonio; Michael Casella, as Sebastian; Peter Reynolds, as Adrian;

Amanda Arensberg, as Miranda; Michael Levine, as Caliban; David "Tang" Pangaro as Ferdinand; Jeff Wilson, as Trinculo; and Leon Marzili, as Stephano. Production design is by W. K. Frazier, and the original music for the production has been composed and arranged by Mary Jane Leach. D. Edward Ellis is stage manager, and he is assisted by Karen Woodruff.

The production will run March 18, 19, 20, and 21, with a matinee on Saturday the 20th. Tickets are $1.50, or free with school I.D.'s. Reservations can be made by calling the arena theatre box office at 656-2094. The arena theatre is located in the basement of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont. Performances will begin at 7:30 evenings, and 1:30 P.M. for the matinee.

Lane Chambers Series Presents The Smetana Duo

The Smetana Duo, a husband and wife team of cello and piano, will perform on the third Lane Chamber Arts series on Monday, March 22, 8:30 p.m. in Ira Allen Chapel.

Tickets, $2.50 each, are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and also at the door on the evening of the performance. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

The Smetana Duo is substituting for the cancelled Russian cellist Natasha Gutman, who was forbidden to come to the U.S. by the Soviet government because of "provocations" of Americans against Soviet artists playing in this country. Gutman is a pupil of cellist Rostropovich (a defender of the banned novelist Solzhenitsyn), who was also forced to cancel two concerts in Finland.

In addition to the Chamber Arts concert, the Smetana Duo will offer a Youth Concert and String Clinic on Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Ira Allen Chapel. Tickets, $1 each, are on sale in the Lane Office. At this concert the Smetanas will perform for about 45 minutes, and then Mr. Smetana will demonstrate the cello and audition cello students in the area.

Album Review:

Sly And The Family

by Doug Calhoun

Greatest Hits, Sly and The Family Stone. Sly has had his problems in the past year. He's developed a reputation for arriving late for concerts, if he gets there at all. There's been no new album since Sandl, although he has released some fine singles, and Columbia, impatient to get some new product into the store, has fashioned a Greatest Hits album that contains those recent singles as well as Sly's best things from the past.

Sly's music is real good-time music: in his band, everybody sings, everybody plays, and everybody dances and they all seem to be having so much fun that their music radiates good feelings. Sly has had a great deal of influence in pop music, most noticeably on other black artists like the Temptations, and the simplicity that permeates his music carries over if Sly has any message to put across. No clichéd generalizations for Sly though; he's just talking common sense to you. "Stand for the things you know are right; it's the truth that the truth makes them so upright." We are all everyday people.

Song titles are almost superfluous: the happy-go-lucky "Thank You Fa Lettins Be Mice Elf Ayn" and the funky, foot-stomping "I Want to Take

You Higher," a new classic, singalong. But the one I love best is the oh-so-smooth "Hot Fun in the Summertime" with its climbing rock'n'roll piano and Sly's good-natured growl just before each chorus. I hope Sly gets himself all sorted out before too long. He's a great, genuine and rock 'n' roll needs as many of those as it can get.

STRONG

Shown at 7 & 9 p.m.

WILDERNESS WAR between the bounty hunter and the black wolf!

THE SAVAGE WILD
GORDON EASTMAN
TECHNICOLOR — TECHNICOLOR
AN AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL RELEASE

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

COME TO THE KAMA SUTRA STATE
...the motion picture...
SHOWS MORE THAN YOU ALWAYS WANTED TO SEE ABOUT SEX!

UVM R.O.T.C. Military Ball Features

Cyndrome Rock And Roll Band

Cyndrome is the name of a new real live seven piece rock and roll band that features three horns. The group has been rehearsing for six months in Newbury and Eden, Vermont and the ski area at Jay Peak. The Band will be making its Burlington debut Friday night March 19, at the UVM R.O.T.C. Military Ball. Cyndrome plays music by Chicago, Blood Sweat and Tears, the Beatles and a variety of other rock. The group includes:

Chuck Malatzo — flute, alto saxophone, backup vocals

Fred Beck — Trumpet, background vocals, flugelhorn

Marty McKee — Trombone, backup vocals, formerly of "Bull"

Tom French — Electronic Piano, Organ, lead vocals

George Lewis — Guitar (rhythm and lead) formerly with the "Fat Band" from Vermont schools. For further information contact: Dave Herbert 862-4092.

John Cook — Bass, lead vocals. Dave Herbert — Drums. Five members of Cyndrome have College degrees in music (4 UVM, 1 Boston Conservatory of Music) and teach music in

Lane Series — Red Yehudi Menuhin, Famous Violinist

Yehudi Menuhin, one of the major violinists of the century, will give a recital on Thursday, March 18, 8:30 p.m., in Memorial Auditorium in place of the cancelled Menuhin Festival Orchestra on a Lane Series Red Concert.

Red Series subscription tickets will be good for this date. Single concert tickets, $6, $5.25, $4.50 and $3.75, are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Yehudi Menuhin, Violinist

As of this date the program was not announced. Yehudi Menuhin is one of those rare men who has become a legend in his own lifetime. Born in New York in 1916 of Russian parents, he started studying the violin at the age of five and made his debut at seven with the San Francisco Orchestra.

He has played in every country of the world, notably initiating a series of piano and violin sonata concerts with his sister Hezibah. Another sister, Taltah, is a fine interpreter of chamber music. And most recently Mr. Menuhin's 18-year-old son Jeremy has started giving piano recitals. In World War II Menuhin added hundreds of concerts a year to his usual routine by playing, often two or three times a day, for men and women in the armed forces of all nations.

It would take a page of the CYNIC merely to list all the honors he has received from governments and the academic world. The French Legion of Honor, and from General DeGaulle himself, the Croix de Lorraine; an honorary Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire, conferred by Queen Elizabeth; Freeman of the cities of Edinburgh and Bath — there are one a few of his awards.

Coming closer to Vermont, he is the honorary president of the Adirondack Music Festival, the group with which the Lane Series collaborated last summer in presenting its summer concerts. The music director of the Adirondack Music Festival, Edna Mitchell, and also a member of the Cantata Chamber Ensemble, was a protégé and pupil of Menuhin's.

The Universities who have given him honorary degrees include Cambridge, Oxford, London, Liverpool, St. Andrews, Bath, and many others. In addition to his knowledge of music, Menuhin is greatly interested in all the other arts, and also in politics, ethics, sociology, and science. He is indeed a rounded Renaissance man of the twentieth century.

A compassionate person, Yehudi Menuhin has identified himself with many humanitarian causes, to the extent that he has been called a citizen world.

The final Red Series concert will be given by pianist James Dick, April 1 (moved from April 6 because of the scheduling of the spring recess).

Keep on Truckin'...

Pipes To... Papers 152

The First Step

CHURCH ST. PARADE

FINAL WEEKS

EVE AT 7 & 9:15
SAT. & SUN. 2:00

MI MacGraw - Ryan O'Neal

John Marley & Ray Milland

BURLINGTON PLAZA
CINEMA 1 & 2

NOW SHOWING

EVENINGS AT 7:00 & 9:15
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00

Emily Bronte's defiant young lovers live again in a new and different look at an immortal classic.

Wuthering Heights

ANNA CALDER-MARSHALL TIMOTHY DALTON

as Emily Bronte's

DISLEARNDEMOCRACYVEXPRESSIONKNOWLEDGEHUMANSC
TYCOMPUTERFACTORIESUNIVERSITIESPOWERSOUNDSPICUR
FASCISTSSSLAVETIMESPACCOMRADETHEYTRUTHTHINGSPHEN
ENATHEORYMASSACRESTEELVIOLENCEEASTWESTSTRUGGLEFC
BREADPARISBLOODCUBASCIENCELINGERIEROTICSTUDENTS
KERSATELLITECOMMUNISTPOMPIDOUCHINESESEXUALCOLO
LISMTELEVISIONBOURGEOISMAOMARXLENINBLACKWHITEC
ILDRENIMAGEDGAULLEVIETNAMCULTUREINREPRESSIONFOOD
FRABATELESBABIESSTRIKEPEASANTSSYSTEMPERVERSIONGUE
LAIMPERIALISTJOHNSONWAGESPARASITEPROLETARIANPOLI
ANEPHEMERALDEMONSTRATIONAGGRESSIONRESISTANCEISR
CULTURALREVOLUTIONEXISTENCEAW'RENNESSINTELECTUAL
ITYAVANT-GARDEFREUDCRITICIZEHOLLYWOODVIETNAMPSYC
ANALYSISREPRESSIONTECHNOLOGICALREACTIONARYSHITDE
TIONDESCARTE'SPENTAGONPOLICECLASSMONEYINFORMATIC
ERGMANANTONIONIFRANCOCODEGAULLEBJSELF-CRITICISMFIC
ATICANMARXISMFREESELF-EVIDENTTRUTHSSUBURBSDISCOU
RISTOTLESOCIALISMBARRICADESHITLERSILENCESCIENCEPROG
SNEUROTICALLUCINATIONEXPERIMENTSLAWSRELATIONSH
OMRADEISOLATEDREFERENCEPOINTSUNCONSCIOUSLANGUA
ONTRADICTIONSANKSASSEMBLYLINESWESTMURDERGUERR
WARFARESTRUGGLECONTRASTSTENSIONSEASTAPPEARANCE
NSONCROSSOESOCIALSCIENCESROCKETSFREEDOMCRISISDAR
SMOLOTOVCOCKTAILSPHENOMENONDEATHLOVESIGNSAPPI
ANCEMOSCOWWEAPONSSCHOOLSMEMORYDEFINITIONCIT
PHILOSOPHY

Le Gai Savoir

S.A. Films presents...at Life Science Hall
March 20 at 7:30 pm.
Adm. $1.25

39. Sculpture Inside and Out. By Malvina Hoffman. 270 illus. The standard book on the art of sculpture, as history as well as a presentation of methods and techniques; practical suggestions for modeling, carving and the treatment of materials. Pub. at $4.50. Only $3.95

463. Webster's New World Dictionary of the American Language. Modern desk edition of one of America's best-selling dictionaries. Over 600 illus. 70,000 entries. Full Color Maps, Word Origins, etc. 9 1/4 x 6 1/4 weighs over 2 lbs. 576 pages, now a fraction of its original price. Only $1.99

421. Flower Arranging by Number. Ed. People Who Want Artistic Results Immediately. By P. Boehm & S. Matsuda. Over 50 illus. Simple, quick way to learning the basic flower arrangements with many seasonal variations using garden flowers, branches, leaves and grasses. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00

876. Yoga for Beauty. By M. Violin & N. Phelan. Illus. with photos & drawings. How to stay young and beautiful in face, body and spirit through Yoga exercises for men and women, diet, sleep, hygiene, etc. Pub. at $3.25. Only $1.00

707. Dictionary of Ecology. By H. C. Hanson. Practical dictionary for the use of students, teachers and workers, interested in forestry, wildlife, conservation, and other elements of life on Earth. Pub. at $10.00. Only $1.99

834. Macrame & Other Projects for Knitting Without Needles. By P. Boehm. Over 100 illus. Easy to follow instructions for making things out of wool or cotton yarn — hats, hula skirts, beach bags, tassels, lampshade, etc. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. Only $1.00

1321. Old Time Menus Recipes Menus & Kitchen Antiques. By K. M. McClinton. 35 illus. Chowder Daniel Webster, Grand Central Oyster Stew, Finnan Haddie, other taste-pleasing fish and vegetable dishes plus appetizers, desserts, a section on cooking with herbs, information and illustrations of kitchen antiques. Orig. Pub. at $2.95. New, complete ed. Only $1.00

3102. Mary Thomas's Dictionary of Embroidery Stitches. Illus. with 300 diagrams showing how each stitch is worked, in alphabetical order; an index of uses for each stitch plus a number of photos. A classical guide released in response to popular demand. Orig. Pub. at $3.50. New, complete ed. Only $1.99

1063. Astrology. By R. C. Davison. Illus. Complete instructions for making your own horoscope. Orig. Pub. at $2.50. New, complete ed. Only $1.00

Committee To Abolish "Niggerhead"

Editor's Note: The following is an open letter calling for changing the name, "Niggerhead" Pond in Marshfield, Vt. A group of interested black and white students and faculty of Goddard College have organized a "Committee to Abolish Niggerhead" (C.A.N.).

In the town of Marshfield, Vermont lies a mountain pond and beach called "Niggerhead." Local legend as to its origin is as varied (but rich) as the number of people with whom it has been discussed. We address ourselves first to the pain and anger of having to live with so racist an expression of insensitivity and contempt for black people wherever they live—and its repugnant ramifications highlighted by the abysmal failure of Vermont's State Library Board to approve a petition for change in 1966 in an action begun by enlightened citizens of that area.

We ask why the State of Vermont has permitted this insult to persist for well over a hundred years.

We ask how the State Library Board and the Legislative Council of Vermont State Government informed by the United States Department of the Interior, Board on Geographic Names in 1966 could continue to capitulate to the dehumanizing logic of "local tradition."

"Since it is the policy of the board on geographic names not to approve the use of derogatory names on federal maps, and since no suitable alternative names were found to be locally acceptable, the federal mapping agencies have been instructed to delete these names from future publications."

J. O. Kilmartin, Executive Secretary
Domestic Geographic Names

We've looked with bewilderment at letters to the Editor and the Library Board Chairman that suggest interference from "Outsiders," "Agiators" and argument that "it (Niggerhead) is part of our local color."

We are convinced that it is fruitlessly unproductive to involve ourselves in a debate as to the merit of intent and tradition, for history is replete with example that gives the lie to this rationale.

Editor's Note: The movement gains momentum; seeks wider support.

Dear Sir:

We are writing to seek your support in an effort to abolish the offensive "Niggerhead" Mountain, Pond, Brook, etc. in Marshfield, Vermont.

It is an affront to every Black man, woman and child in America, and many sincere whites, that the State of Vermont, its Senators, Congressmen, and local representatives have permitted this insulting racist slur to exist for well over a hundred years without a challenge being initiated by the Legislature itself.

We believe that the unsuccessful campaign launched in 1966 to change the name of "Niggerhead" could have been successful if the Legislature had asserted a leadership of moral integrity that issues such as these demand.

We therefore request that the Republican Legislature and its leadership, honored by a visit from the President of the United States in the 1970 pre-election campaign to help convince the voters of this state and nation of its sincerity, take a stand for the record of the fundamental issue of racism embodied in the term "Niggerhead."

We plan to make public through periodic reports to the media the response (or lack of response) of every member of the Legislature to publicly record his personal and political position as regards this issue.

It is the tragic irony of this nation that Black men die daily in the name of "freedom" and "respect for the dignity of man" in lands alien to their birth, to be continuously denied that same dignity and respect at home as too much of white America tenaciously clings to the racist rationale in perpetuity.

The challenge is clearly yours.

Sincerely,
Otis McRae
Chairman of C.A.N.

Editor's Note: The following is UVM students' attempt to end racism.

President Edward Andrews
University of Vermont
Waterman Building
Burlington, Vermont

Dear President Andrews:

We concerned students and faculty of the University of Vermont feel that the racist conditions and attitudes on this campus are intolerable. Your so-called attempts to remedy this situation have merely been a flagrant form of exploitation in order to meet minimal requirements necessary to receive federal aid for your institution.

We strongly believe that all aspects of this racist environment must be dismantled, for obvious reasons. First and foremost is the realization that the University of Vermont is attempting to stifle any type of meaningful interaction between Blacks and whites.

If in the process of obtaining an education, Blacks are constantly subjected to racist social and financial pressures, then the University is not fulfilling its educational or humanistic commitments. Therefore, we submit the following:

1. The adoption of a supportive program, such as PROVE.
2. The acceptance of at least 30 Black applicants for the 1971-72 academic year, as a step toward the EOC recommendation of an enrollment of 60 to 75 Black freshmen yearly.
3. The securing of Black faculty and staff.
4. The incorporation of Black studies within the curricula of the history and English departments.

Respectfully submitted,

Third World Organization at UVM
EWAR (Education of Whites Against Racism)
EOC (Educational Opportunity Committee)

Whitey, Wake Up!

by K. F. M.

Whitey, have you ever read the fine print on a Vermont Official Highway Map? This map, distributed to Vermonters and out-of-state for the asking, is a prime example of the paradox which pervades Vermont reasoning. Here the conflict between traditional American idealism and hard-core New England practicality becomes manifest.

The 1970 edition of the map reads as follows:

Here is a land of majestic mountain ranges and deep river valleys, quiet lakes and rushing mountain streams. Here is a land rich in contrast, where the new and the old, the modern and the traditional can be found side by side in a comfortable blending that appeals to people of all ages.

On the reverse side of the map, in area H-7, between Bailey Pond and Peacham Pond, stands Niggerhead Pond: the fertile American dream and the offensive American reality.

Following attempts by a group of concerned citizens, in 1966, to change the name of this Pond, Brook, and adjacent Mountain, the federal government took decisive action: in 1968 the U.S. Department of the Interior, Board on Geographic Names, issued this statement:

"Since it is the policy of the Board on Geographic Names not to approve the use of derogatory names on federal maps, and since no suitable alternative names were found to be locally acceptable, the federal mapping agencies have been instructed to delete these names from future publications."

The appeal in question, as earlier noted, appears on the 1970 State map. Why does the State Library Board, the agency responsible for geographical names, not follow the federal government's initiative?

The answer lies, according to hearsay, in a heart-warming tale of an old sea captain. Upon retiring to the Marshfield area, he named the said Pond etc. after a capstan-like apparatus referred to as a "niggerhead." Because the captain meant no harm, many are today reluctant to change the name and so desecrate his memory. But how much longer will the memory of a sailor displace the feelings of a group of Americans?

Both the federal government and the Vermont Ecumenical Council share the vision of the Black community to such a degrading element of an inhumanity. Where does the University stand? As a public institution, it should not take sides on a political issue, but when has equality become a political matter? The University cannot claim ignorance of the controversy. As a boy, President Andrews spent many hours fishing in that pond.

The controversy which this issue has raised indicates that the lack of understanding evident with Wake Walk has not yet passed. The obscure origins of either tradition do not outweigh their offensiveness to Black Americans. For this reason, the Committee to Abolish Niggerhead (CAN) has mustered support at Goddard College and has now turned to UVM for help. Whitey, wake up—take a stand!

Alas! The Poor Farmer

by K. O. Osgood

Until 1964 there were more cows in Vermont than Vermonters. Today, there are probably more out-of-staters in Vermont than Vermonters. The cows have gone out of business and the tourists have come in.

Vermont is one of the last rural paradises in an ever-spreading sprawl of urbanism. Increasing numbers of world-weary and city-sick seek their haven in the Green Mountains. They flee the overcrowded cities, over-developed developments, and crowded municipalities. But everyone can't come to Vermont. (Once Vermont becomes overpopulated, where can you go but back to Westchester County or Outer Mongolia?) It is necessary to maintain the verdant and grandeur of our hitherto isolation. There is no way, nor any reason, to prevent the influx of immigration; but there are ways to protect Vermont's environment.

Vermont, albeit be stony-soiled and frosty, was a farming state. In 1880 there were 35,500 farms. Eighty per cent of the land was cleared for use. Then, with the advent of industrialization, small farming proved unfeasible and generations of future farmers flocked to the cities, leaving the old farmers to tend the ailing acres.

Then a few enterprising persons started developing the potential of that white stuff and capitalizing on the maple leaves. That's fine. The rich New Yorkers come, pay fine tips, and go home. But the quaint rusticity attracts them; they buy bits of land and build expensive chalets. That's great. The unused land becomes valuable.

But year-round Vermonters scorn the "summer people" (who post their land). And summer people begin to like the white stuff and become year-round residents. That's tremendous. They pay taxes.

In their wake follows Ronald MacDonald and Souhan the Woolman and an intricate interstate highway system.

Vermont is definitely faced with a possible, irreversible trend toward middle-class mediocrity. In order to prevent this, small farming and constructive use of the country side must be revitalized. I live in Northern Vermont. There were no farms in active operation around my house in 1956. Now there is one, going out of business.

The Governor is presenting a bill to subsidize farming. We need this and more like it. The only way to prevent Vermont from becoming a spread of suburbia is to develop and utilize its land in an effective and active manner. The only way people are going to be tree or dairy or chicken farmers it to give them an incentive. If it is profitable to work the land, people won't sell their land to tacky tacky realtors and then go to work in a nuclear power plant.

UNBOUND Offers Help, Friendship And Medical Care On Bummer Trips

by Bruce Levine

There are a number of persons at the university who use drugs. Drugs—hard and soft, ancient Aztec, herbal remedies, homebrew syntheses, etc. gins, Drano, and what not—why not?

It is an affront to every Black man, woman and child in America, and many sincere whites, that the State of Vermont, its Senators, Congressmen, and local representatives have permitted this insulting racist slur to exist for well over a hundred years without a challenge being initiated by the Legislature itself.

We believe that the unsuccessful campaign launched in 1966 to change the name of "Niggerhead" could have been successful if the Legislature had asserted a leadership of moral integrity that issues such as these demand.

We therefore request that the Republican Legislature and its homosexual comes back to haunt you—when the walls and music and moon are trying to destroy you—when your legs turn red and teem with spiders and black blood.

In the past, when things have really become tense, you've had few alternatives. One was the hospital, emergency room. Another was a private physician or psychiatrist. Another was to find some sympathetic friend or friends. Or, what usually happened: you lock yourself in your room or womb and somehow sweat out. The incredibly slow passing of hours. Yet all these leave scars and none of them is the best thing you could do for yourself.

You might have seen the orange and black cards with a somewhat macabre landscape and the words "bummers" on it. . . . call 863-2026. . . . no names. . . . no heat. . . . 24 hours. . . . Hmmm. Well, hang onto that card because UNBOUND is a bona fide service offering positive action in regard to any sort of bad time resulting from drugs. Of a staff of a dozen experienced university people (students, staff, alumni, dropouts), three are on call at any given time 24 hours a day, every day. By calling 3-2026 and giving your first name and address to one of the kindly ladies who answer our phone, one or more unbound people will be notified and immediately head for your place to help you out (or back in). Absolutely no recriminations will follow. The State's Attorney's office has guaranteed that no attempts will be made to interfere with the service.

If problems can be talked out at your place, that's great. If you want to take a walk, we'll do that. If you feel you must split, we have a quiet suburban "recovery" chamber. If you need medical help, we have a physician on 24 hour call also.

In short, our concern is solely with assisting you with the immediate problem. We don't necessarily want you to decrease or increase your use of drugs. We will not exemplify your difficulty as a dire consequence of drug use. We do think you must ask yourself why you use drugs. If you think you might need help in understanding this, why, or if you would like to change your use patterns, we can refer you to several outstanding individual or group discussion programs.

Our service is available to all university members. All that we ask for is your first name and an address at which we can see you. You call, wait, we come, and we all help each other. The worst that can happen is that you'll make a friend.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

Put The SKI Back Into
SKIING!
CONTROLLED TICKET SALES
PREVENTS LENGTHY LIFT LINES
REASONABLE RATES
$1.00 OFF WITH UVM ID

Weekends & Holiday Weeks:
Adults, all areas 7.25; Half day (after 1 p.m.) 6.25.
Junior (under 14) 5.00. 1-day only 6.00.
Midweek:
Adults, all areas 6.25; Half day (after 1 p.m.) 5.25.
Junior, 3.00. 1-day only 5.00.
Family Plan, Ski Week, Group Ski Week Plans Available.

TRY US OUT!

Free skiing during the first and last hours of operation each day.

ROUND

TOP MT.

ON RTE. 100 PLYMOUTH UNION, VERMONT

Fraternity Forum Elections To Be Held

The Fraternity Forum moves into full operation this month with the election of its first chairman, the organization of various Forum committees, and planning for future Greek activities.

In a recent meeting, Bob McWilliam of Phi Delta Theta and Jack Arute of Sigma Phi Epsilon were nominated for the Forum chairmanship.

McWilliam is a sophomore and Arute a junior.

The all-fraternity election will be held March 24 with voting at Billings Center between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Only members of Greek houses can vote in the election, and all those voting must show identification.

No matter how the election turns out, both McWilliam and Arute will be leading the newly-created fraternity organization in its first full year of operation. The runner-up in the election will become vice-chairman of the organization, and will work closely with the chairman.

Other members of the executive board will be a treasurer and a secretary. These posts are appointed, and any interested Greek is eligible to submit his name to the chairman and vice-chairman for consideration.

Both Arute and McWilliam see a vital need for UVM's fraternities to pull together as a unit, rather than against each other as separate houses.

The Forum was organized during the last semester to replace the Interfraternity Council (IFC), which many Greeks felt was outdated and of no value. The Forum was established as a problem-solving and information-gathering organization to replace the policy-making, governing functions of the IFC.

The Forum plans to establish various committees to be composed of representatives from each of its member houses. Arute and McWilliam pointed the direction of things to come recently when they called for meetings of rush chairmen and pledge educators from each house.

Rush chairmen met with McWilliam at Phi Delta Theta Wednesday to discuss ideas for a summer rush program. Each fraternity's pledge educator met with Arute at Sigma Phi Epsilon Tuesday to discuss the pledge education programs of various houses and to hash out ideas for the future.

The Forum plans to work closely with the Fraternity Managers Association (FMA), which watches over the financial operations of almost all of the member houses.

Faculty Senate Recommendations

Faculty Senate

The Faculty Senate voted on March 12 that the "deadline for changes in the pass/fail option" will be the same as for adding new courses.

Previously, students were allowed to attend classes for almost a month before deciding to take a course pass no-pass. The new Senate ruling significantly reduces this time period.

The chairman of the Student Excellence Committee endorsed the proposal because of student abuse of the pass/fail system. He stated that students attend classes, determine which are the hardest and then take those classes pass no-pass.

Research has shown that the pass/fail option has no noticeable impact on the average of a good student but is injurious to students doing marginal work, he told the Senate.

A John Dewey Fellow spoke against the proposal but his pleas seemed to have little effect on the vote of the Senate, which was heavily in favor of the motion.

The faculty also approved the report and recommendations of the Building and Grounds Committee.

In regard to land use and joint planning with the community, the committee urged "that the University of Vermont recognize the importance of East and Centennial Woods for educational and scientific purposes and that the Board (i.e. Board of Trustees) pass a resolution that these woods be designated as natural areas and left in their natural state."

The group also reported on traffic and parking in and around the University. It advocated that parking "should be banned on South Prospect at least opposite Waterman Building and perhaps as far north as the entrance of the Waterman parking lot."

In other recommendations the committee urged that tunnels or ramps be constructed at the pedestrian crossings on the north and southwest corners of the Green and that handicapped students be given keys to light when crossing.

(This light is located opposite Pomeroy Hall and now blinks on and off. Supposedly it was to be coordinated with the light at the Main-South Prospect intersection, but unfortunately the city "misplaced" one of its necessary parts. In addition to this, the only man capable of fixing the light recently passed away. The light, undaunted, continues to blink.)

The committee also suggested that a connector road south of the Redstone Campus be built. This road would serve as a link between Spear and South Prospect streets.

The group also urged that University Place be closed to traffic. Prospect Street widened and the East Avenue-Main Street intersection improved.

One "completely satisfactory event" was the dedication, in December, of the UVM sundial.

The Student Life Committee also submitted a report but had no definite recommendations to make. It did however comment on the relationship of fraternities and sororities to the University. The social hours policy, student health and physical safety, and depersonalization in the expanding University.

J. H. Gans, chairman of the group, defended the report but admitted that there had been some difficulties in making decisions.

The Senate Research Committee reported but made no motions.

The next meeting of the Faculty Senate will be held on Thursday, April 15, in the Lower Lounge of the Waterman Building. All faculty are encouraged to appear.

the d

Column No. 3, March 1971
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner
Box 974, East Lansing, MI. 48823

QUESTION: I am very worried about my boyfriend taking diet pills to lose weight. He also frequently stays awake. Can you tell me if these dangerous as regular sleep? Will they cause death as they warn on the radio? How many times does it sleep before there is a danger of death?

ANSWER: I don't blame you for being very worried. The usual type of diet pill does contain which are popularly known as speed, although referred to a particular amphetamine, methamphetamine, or amphetamines is extraordinarily hazardous soon finds that he needs to take more and more to order to stay awake. Eventually, he can take an amount to cause major mental symptoms including the impaired judgement and a paranoid psychosis.

Stopping the drugs results in the clearing of the week or so. Some vulnerable people are tripped off illnesses that take a long time to straighten out. Abusers often have underlying depressions and difficulties and require professional help.

Death from amphetamines can occur when used continually, especially by injection. The death and general debilitation that results opens cardiovascular collapse.

Amphetamines are of value almost solely in conditions. One is narcolepsy, a syndrome of sleepiness and the second is the hyperkinetic child no permanent value in a weight reduction program as mentioned. Many people abuse because of the lift it gives them. The fall is greater QUESTION: Recently I've heard that each of us is born with 10,000 brain cells. Is it the long range effects upon the brain of mind what are effects on other organs?

Somnia

by Jeff Yacker

"Oh! Oh! h-h-h! Oh! h-h! My God, it hurts!"
"Would you please fill out a white slip sir?"
"Can't we dispense with that? My stomach me!"

"I'm sorry, sir, but rules are rules; now will you slip and have a seat? The doctor will be with you. But my abdomen feels as if it's going to burst. I've heard of an emergency?"

"Yes, sir, we used to take care of those kind of reason, students don't trust us anymore, and. . . Will you please get a doctor? I think I have a. . . 'Dear Mr. That is truly a shame. An absolute had it before?"

"HAD IT BEFORE!! Are you kidding? Oh doctor."

"One of the things I'd like to see you do, you sir, but I don't think we take appendicitis."

"WHAT? What about the thirty dollars I paid?"

"Forty dollars."

"Well, what about the forty?"

"Unfortunately, sir, we can only treat green had colds, and sometimes the flu."

"O.K., O.K. I think I have the green dead Waterman."

"Now you are making sense. Now, will you slip?"

"Please, I can't stand up anymore, the pain."

Mercy! My Heavens!! Those students have in sheer audacity!!! They have actually, in the request for the sale of certain contraceptives Vermont bookstore. Disgracing. Downright degrading. The entire picture, though, has now been "University of Vermont" is in reality not just a great educational institution overlooking Lake Champlain, it is now, and has been for some time. That's right, a brothel, serving needs and desires of 6,000 filthy unwashed slugs probably the center of activity, all those around become, well, you know, at night. The lower level are used at a higher price, by accident. And, you know that rag that they really eight or ten pages of instructions and sexual solicitation and the enjoyment thereof really go to classes five or six days a week.

Change Desirable

by Mike Dromore

If there is one segment of the system of law seems to appreciate, and the police. Liberty brutality and excess of our society. Radical agents of a repressive society. Obviously, these of their views completely. What then should be?

First, this writer does not think that dispute the fact that the police play an important role in society. If there were no police, then they are. Stop and think, if you will, of the policeman. A policeman is responsible for citizen safety, protection of property, prevention of riot control, but bar brawls, etc. If we seem to have problems in these situation if there were no police.

If, however, we concede the need for police? The trouble with citizen-police relationship of understanding on both sides, understand the role of the policeman to himself. Deficiencies in police training problem. A separate look at each of these.

The main difficulty with the public's view perspective. This problem cannot be cured, not live under equal conditions, they will same perspective. There is a way around the police must be adapted to the particular in. The police in Harlem should be different. Darin, Connecticut. White police in Watts to do a fair and adequate job. If the police the social group with which they work, a community-police relations may be solved in a campus area and one in a residential area different types of problems. The problem is very much different from suburb. These things must be taken into account and assigning them to neighborhood police problems may be solved by policeman's role to fit the locale.

HANNIBUL'S INC.

152 Church St.
Across from City Hall

HAPPY HOURS
DAILY

OPEN 3pm-1am
Sun. 3pm-11pm

"a different concept at low prices"

cover it

NEVERMORE

8 No. Windoski Ave.

Open 11-5 Monday Through Saturday

864-5294

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Warner M.D.

Column No. 3, March 1971
© 1971 College Press Service
Address letters to Dr. Arnold Warner,
Box 974, East Lansing, MI. 48823

QUESTION: I am very worried about my boyfriend. He has been taking diet pills in order to lose weight. He also takes them quite frequently to stay awake. Can you tell me if these diet pills are as dangerous as regular speed? Will they cause death within five years as they warn on the radio? How many times does one have to take speed before there is a danger of death?

ANSWER: I don't blame you for being very worried about your boyfriend. The usual type of diet pill does contain amphetamines which are popularly known as speed, although originally speed referred to a particular amphetamine, methedrine. The continued use of amphetamines is extraordinarily hazardous. The person soon finds that he needs to take more and more amphetamines in order to stay awake. Eventually, he can take an amount sufficient to cause major mental symptoms including "blurred" temper, impaired judgment and a paranoid psychosis.

Stopping the drugs results in the clearing of the symptoms after a week or so. Some vulnerable people are tripped into major mental illnesses that take a long time to straighten out. Amphetamine abusers often have underlying depressions and other emotional difficulties and require professional help.

Death from amphetamines can occur when large amounts are used continually, especially by injection. The decreased food intake and general debilitation that results opens the person to cardiovascular collapse.

Amphetamines are of value almost solely in treating two rare conditions. One is narcolepsy, a syndrome of uncontrollable sleepiness and the second is the hyperkinetic child. It is probably of no permanent value in either condition, and may be dangerous as mentioned. Many people abuse amphetamines because of the lift it gives them. The lift is greater than the risk.

QUESTION: Recently I've heard that each ounce of alcohol consumed by the body kills 10,000 brain cells. Is this true? What are the long range effects upon the brain of moderate drinking and what are effects on other organs?

ANSWER: The only way I know of one ounce of alcohol killing 10,000 brain cells is if it is poured through a hole drilled in the top of your head. The effects of moderate drinking of alcohol obviously depends on your definition of moderate. Under the guise of moderation, some people consume immense amounts of alcohol and do permanent damage to their livers. In an experiment, normal volunteers inhaled amounts of alcohol not unlike what many people consume during a weekend of heavy social drinking. Biopsies of their livers showed fatty deposits similar to what is seen in early liver disease. The condition cleared, however, and no definite conclusions could be drawn.

If it is likely that a person would not be damaged by small amounts of alcohol consumed on a regular basis or an occasional weekend indulgence. Nonetheless, individual variations must be considered as people who have recently suffered damage from hepatitis or damage to the liver from toxic agents or drugs are probably much more susceptible to subsequent damage from alcohol. Brain damage does occur in the severe alcoholic, but such persons usually have poor nutrition and this is probably a factor in what occurs.

QUESTION: Is it normal for a 9 year old to have a so-called "dry orgasm" - i.e. no ejaculation. I might add that during erection my penis has a noticeable crook in it. Could these events be related? What can be done about both the crook and form of orgasm?

ANSWER: Dry orgasm can be due to a couple of things. Some medications and some neurologic conditions result in an alteration in the functioning of the semen transporting system producing a retrograde ejaculation. That is, the ejaculate goes into the urinary bladder rather than out the penis. A constriction of the urethra can also produce a dry orgasm.

There is a condition known as Peyronie's disease in which there is a structural defect in the penis which becomes apparent during erection. This defect results in a severely angulated penis and I suppose it's possible that the urethra can get pinched leading to retrograde ejaculation. The condition is correctable. I wouldn't count on your condition being a substitute for contraception.

In any case examination by a physician and probably referral to a urologist is in order.

Somniator

by Jeff Yacker

"Oh! Oh-h-h-h! Oh-h-h! My God, it hurts!"
"Would you please fill out a white slip sir?"
"Can't we dispense with that? My stomach is absolutely killing me!"

"I'm sorry, sir, but rules are rules; now will you kindly fill out a slip and have a seat? The doctor will be with you within the hour."
"But my abdomen feels as if it's going to burst. Haven't you ever heard of an emergency?"

"Yes, sir... we used to take care of those things. But for some reason, students don't trust us anymore, and..."

"Will you please get a doctor? I think I have appendicitis!"
"Dear me. That is truly a shame. An absolute shame. Have you had it before?"

"HAD IT BEFORE? Are you kidding? Oh-h-h-h, please get a doctor."

"One of the nurses will be with you shortly. I have to discontinue your sir, but I don't think we take appendicitis anymore here."

"WHAT? What about the thirty dollars I paid for care here?"
"Forty dollars."

"Well, what about the forty?"
"Unfortunately, sir, we can only treat green death, strep throat, bad colds, and sometimes the flu."

"O.K., O.K. I think I have the green death; I just ate lunch at Waterman."

"Now you are making sense. Now, will you please fill out a white slip?"

"Please, I can't stand up anymore, the pain is so bad. Couldn't

#1 Over At Wheeler House #2 A Dire Warning !!

we please dispense with the red tape? Oh-h-h-h."

"Then you go again talking nonsense. You can fill out the white slip sitting down. All right? You know, I'm really in sympathy with you, sir, but I can't do... oh, here's a nurse who will help you."

"What seems to be the problem here?"
"Well, this young man thought he had appendicitis, but he just ate lunch. Must be green death."

"That's nice. But we've just taken green death off the list of treatable ailments here. There is substantial evidence that green death is all a plot to take up the infirmity's time."

"Ma'am, my stomach is really killing me. In fact, I think I am going to pass out any minute."

"Now, now, don't do anything rash. I just said that we took green death off the list. Might it be strep throat?"

"I know the hell do I know? It could be an advanced case of arsenic poisoning for all I know!"

"Don't get fresh with me, young man! If it's strep throat, fine. We can give you shots of penicillin. If not, then we can't be bothered. Now are you going to follow me for a throat culture?"

"I can't walk anymore."
"Well, then, hmmm. Take two of these, two of those, and gargle daily. If there's no improvement in three days, come back and see us."

"This is unreal!"
"I'm really in sympathy with you sir, but there is nothing we can do."

"I think I finally realized that."

Mercy! My Heaven!! Those students have struck a new record in sheer audacity!!! They have actually, in the open, made a brazen request for the sale of certain contraceptives in the University of Vermont bookstore. Disgusting. Downright disgusting.

The entire picture, though, has now become quite clear. The "University of Vermont" is in reality not such; the great, or once-great educational institution overlooking Burlington and beautiful Lake Champlain, is now, and has been for some time, a house of ill repute. That's right, a brothel, serving and furthering the sexual needs and desires of 6,000 filthy unwashed slobs. Billings Center is probably the center of activity; all those soft couches scattered around become, well, you know, at night. The various offices on the lower level are used at a higher price, because of the privacy accorded. And, you know that tag that they call the CYNIC? It's really eight or ten pages of instructions and directions in the arts of sexual solicitation and the enjoyment thereof. The students don't really go to classes five or six days a week in English, Math, Sociology, etc.; they receive daily directives from all the wild-eyed professors. The faculty are truly the culprits; they are all in a conspiracy with the Democrats, liberals, assorted left-wingers, and anti-war activists. They've all been taking orders from Moscow for years. Promiscuity is obviously a Communist plot; patriotic, upstanding Americans never engage in improper behavior, unless so tempted by an alien bent on destroying this nation of ours.

As taxpayers, we have both the right and duty to investigate and decide not only the political beliefs of the students and faculty, but their sexual values as well.

Praise should be given to the esteemed State Senator from Burlington for taking his courageous stand on this issue in public. The quicker the students conform to Queen Victoria's moral standards, the faster this country, and the University of Vermont included, will return to normalcy. Until then, fellow citizens, beware!

Change Desirable On Police-Community Relations

by Mike Donmore

If there is one segment of the system of law and order that no one seems to appreciate, it's the police. Liberals complain of police brutality and excesses. Conservatives criticize them as being too soft on certain elements of our society. Radicals attack the police as agents of a repressive society. Obviously, the police cannot fit all three of these views completely. What then is a policeman? What should he be?

First, this writer does not think that anyone can rationally dispute the fact that the police play an important role in society. Crime exists, and if there were no police, matters would be worse than they are. Stop and think, if you will, of all the everyday duties of the policeman. A policeman is responsible for traffic flow, citizen safety, protection of property, preservation of order (not necessarily riot control, but bar brawls, assaults, family disputes, etc.). If we seem to have problems in these areas now, imagine the situation if there were no police.

If, however, we concede the need for policemen, what is the problem? The trouble with citizen-police relations can be traced to lack of understanding on both sides. People do not fully understand the role of the policeman, and this lack of understanding causes the policeman to be unsure of his role himself. Deficiencies in police training also contribute to the problem. A separate look at each of these areas may prove helpful.

The main difficulty with the public's view of the police is one of perspective. This problem cannot be cured, for as long as people do not live under equal conditions, they will not see things from the same perspective. There is a way around this problem however. The police must be adapted to the particular situation they must work in. The police in Harlem should be different from the police in Darien, Connecticut. While police in Watts are not going to be able to do a fair and adequate job. If the police force can be adapted to the social group with which they work, a lot of the problems with community-police relations may be solved.

The role of the cop must be adapted to the area. The policeman in a campus area and one in a residential area are going to have to face different types of problems. The problems a cop must face in a ghetto are very much different from those found in a white suburb. These things must be taken into account in training policemen and assigning them to neighborhoods. A good many of our present problems may be solved by simply redefining the policeman's role to fit the locale.

Third, a different kind of policeman is needed. The day of the kindly old Irish flatfoot is gone, but the need for this simple, face-to-face relationship has only increased. Many police forces have been turned into pseudo-military operations. By the more conservative elements of our society, but is this the answer? The general role of the police in society needs revision. Instead of the emphasis on force and on meeting riot situations, the thrust of police training should be directed toward human relations. Most of the problems a policeman faces involve human relationships, but most policemen have no knowledge of psychology, sociology, etc. Like most other areas of endeavor, law enforcement must reach a new level of competence. Apprehending criminals is only a part of the need: Racism, poverty, and other social problems, along with civil liberty, are the pressing problems of the day.

Therefore, a policeman should be multi-purpose community servant. He should be part enforcer, part social worker, part psychologist, and part counselor for all types of problems. His training should make him a valuable asset to his particular community. He should represent his neighborhood. A Black cop should work in a Black neighborhood, and this shouldn't be taken to imply segregation. In order for a policeman to be effective, he must truly be attuned to the people he must deal with. Is a middle class white attuned to the black ghetto?

Finally, the attitude of the public toward the cop must change. The conservatives in this country would turn the police into a pseudo-military force. They feel that the police aren't cracking down hard enough. This attitude must be rejected as reactionary. Radicals would destroy the police. Although there is the danger that the police could become repressive, the answer is not destruction, but reconstruction. And liberals attack the police for using excessive force. But we must recognize the need for force in some cases, without going to the other extreme advocated by conservatives.

So, there is need for change on both sides of police-community relations. If this change doesn't come, there is the danger of major civil disorders and police repression. The solutions can only come from changes in public attitude and police training, and these changes had better come soon. The alternatives are very bleak indeed.

Next week, the final article in this series, will be a study of the penal system.

ANNOUNCEMENTS (continued from page 2)

Brandon Documentary

"Brandon's Children," a documentary on the dramatic progress being made by residents of the Brandon Training School, will be shown on Vermont Educational Television Friday (March 19) at 9 p.m.

The program, part of the Vermont ETV series "Vermont Today," will feature Brandon Superintendent Raymond Mukahy, who says Vermont faces the serious problem of inadequate community facilities and programs for the retarded.

Teacher Exchange

Bruce Ritchie, a British exchange English teacher who is teaching an "enrichment" course in British and American contemporary poetry at Montpelier High School this year, will share his views on the British and the American educational systems at Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity, Sunday at 5 p.m.

Ritchie is a graduate of both the University of Edinburgh and Cambridge. He teaches at one of Britain's oldest public schools, the Merchant Taylors' School, near London, and has traveled extensively, including part of his boyhood in Malaysia.

Several members of the university faculty will be present to share their ideas with Ritchie. All members of the university community are welcome to attend.

We regret to inform you your son was among the lowest casualty count in recent months.

Tender Is The Loin- Chapter One

Red Cross Chapter One won the Sunday afternoon bean bag toss when The My Lai Siren came to the stage (The Southeast-Asia Theatre) and began to sing a medley of rousing Stateside songs for our boys, arousing manly sentiment in our only defensive troops who paused from defending a little non-war.

"The old U.S. himself must pray the pauper to pick a parcel full of death, if he hollers, make him say, pugnaciously forced toward promenade round your corner, your corner dog boy dead see dough! Allemand, Alsace-Lorraine (Sweet Lorraine) your partner, parting with the payments, impoverishment give a dog a home, this old pollywog became a frog rowing home to Nantasket, in a basket, a green and yellow basket case comes marching home again, Viet Nam, Viet Nam, when the old Tommy gun explodes again, Viet Nam, Viet Nam, the men will fear, the boys will jeer, and we will march if it's a nice day."

The My Lai siren rang and recreation leader Red Dunby got cross and demanded immediate emergency precautions were in effect ("KILL!"). Last rites were given to the dying who only then realized the right to resist the complete absurdity of war, and then died. While in the dawn's early light and the insecure commander's might light disguised as a Hawtorn and J. Edgar Hoover's Searns might light disguised as a War Games Signature, the bombs bursting in air, on land, in the sea, all over the damn place, and the sky was cloudy all day, while unshrouded bodies (women and children first) were pitched crematory style into burning huts way down upon the My Lai blood bath river. Only doing their job, the men smiled in strong fraternal love; Army style, said in tired but rugged John Wayne tones, "Hey soldier, got a cigarette?" and took a look at the wife n' kids smiling from a photograph. Proud to be of America's men, the emasculated preening berets were berating the lack of sympathy for their war back home. Little did they know that at that very moment, thousands of mothers and fathers and wives and lovers were being sympathetic to our boys with no legs, or hands, or eyes, no future, and alas, sometimes no lives. And Mick Jagger was recording "Sympathy for the Devil" which should be dedicated to our Armed (amputees go to V. A. hospitals to waste) Serve Vices.

"Okay, soldier, put down that marijuana, look dedicated, here comes life, LIFE, you don't have to die before you give." Bang! Bang! The whir of the dirty reds (any resemblance to the "reds" we tried to eradicate in America?) returning fire and dying.

This was the last chance (for DOW Company to get the dirty, slant-eyed reds, if they don't look just like us, kill! Bob had hope and Father knew Best but Pete knew Mona and war is the failure to ease the frustrations of an extreme inability to give and receive love, easier to destroy in anonymous numbers where you mean nothing but another potential death-on their side or ours, easier to destroy than to create where you are and can be free.

Then the boys realized how infantile like diapers were their uniforms and like poisonous rattles were their guns and like machines over more machines were their life-perverted commanding officers and I met an ex-Marine Corps demolition expert who fell into the war street in Nashua, New Hampshire when he heard a car backfire and drinks his way aimlessly across the country all for a Bang in every town. You end the war, NOW!

David L. Ingraham

Remember To Vote!

Students - Elections

For S.A. Officers

Will Be Held

Tuesday -

Wednesday

March 23 - 24

In Billings

& Dining Halls

(Dinnertime)

Bring Your I.D.

This Ad Brought To You Courtesy Of The Cynic

or Farmer

Vermont than Vermonters. Farmers in Vermont than of business and the tourists radicals in an ever-spreading of world-weary and city. Mountains. They feel the development, and crowded come to Vermont. (Once you can you go but back to regular?) It is necessary to prevent the influx of Vermont's environment.

free, was a farming state. City per cent of the land was of industrialization, small operations of future farmers to tend the ailing acres.

and developing the potential the maple leaves. That's fine. Type, and go home. But the busy bits of land and build land becomes valuable.

the "summer people" (who post in like the white stuff and it's tremendous. They pay

MacDonald and Souhan the city's system.

possible, irreversible trend in order to prevent this, small entry side must be revitalized. are were six farms in active flow there is one, going out of to subsidize farming. We need, to prevent Vermont from develop and utilize its land in any way people are going to be give them an incentive. If it is won't sell their land to lucky nuclear power plant.

To Be Held

The Forum plans to establish various committees to be composed of representatives from each of its member houses. Arute and McWilliam pointed the direction of things to come recently when they called for meetings of rush chairmen and pledge educators from each house.

Rush chairmen met with McWilliam at Phi Epsilon. Wednesday to discuss ideas for a summer rush program. Each fraternity's pledge educator met with Arute at Sigma Phi Epsilon Tuesday to discuss the pledge education programs of various houses and to hash out ideas for the future.

The Forum plans to work closely with the Fraternity Managers Association (FMA), which watches over the financial operations of almost all of the member houses.

Recommendations

the Main-South Prospect intersection, but unfortunately the city "misplaced" one of its necessary parts. In addition to this, the only man capable of fixing the light recently passed away. The light, undaunted, continues to blink.

The committee also suggested that a connector road south of the Redstone Campus be built. This road would serve as a link between Spear and South Prospect streets.

The group also urged that University Place be closed to traffic. Prospect Street widened and the East Avenue-Main Street intersection improved.

One "completely satisfactory event" was the dedication, in December, of the UVM tunnel.

The Student Life Committee also submitted a report but had no definite recommendations to make. It did however comment on the relationship of fraternities and sororities to the University, the social hours policy, student health, and physical safety, and deprofessionalization in the expanding University.

SA president John Philips criticized the committee for accomplishing so little. Philips noted that although the group has held ten meetings since the presentation of its last report, it had not come up with any real proposals. He said it had instead, confined itself solely to making generalizations about life at UVM.

J. H. Gans, chairman of the group, defended the report but admitted that there had been some difficulties in making decisions.

The Senate Research Committee reported but made no motions.

The next meeting of the Faculty Senate will be held on Thursday, April 15, in the Lower Lounge of the Waterman Building. All faculty are encouraged to appear.

Fur Seals In Pribilof Islands Brutally Slaughtered With Clubs

by Alan Hovvian

It is early morning on St. Paul Island. The seals lie on the rocks along the shore or in the water of the Bering Sea.

The tracks stop quickly. They tightly hunched. Against the damp air, but their hands together to keep warm. Everything is quiet. A group of men walk towards the seals, spread from the seals. They put themselves between the seals and the sea.

Suddenly the air is filled with startled cries. The confused seals are driven inland. They are seeking the safety of their fellow animals. Great clouds of steam rise from their bodies. From camp to time one falls in a gasping man, exhausted.

At the end of the long drive the animals are broken into large groups of 5 or 6. A man rallies a large tin can. The seals raise their heads in panic. Crack, Crack. Their skulls are smashed with clubs. One seal is hit on the back and must be beaten again, another is hit on the side of the head and twirls around in agony, a third bleeds from a shoulder blade.

A team of sickles, moves through the bloodied animals delicately slitting the belly up the exact midline, then stabbing the heart. Sometimes one sees an open heart pumping blood into a dying body. The ripper and pulper work behind the sickles, yanking the steaming black skin from the seals' white bodies.

The process begins again and continues through the long hours until the red field is totally arrayed with long columns of white and black rows of black.

The Pribilof Islands—

Locals of the U.S. Gov't.

The scene described is only one of many hours of documentation by our cameras. On four mornings we joined the "waters" and at five o'clock were out on the beaches to film and to watch as seals were driven inland—as much as a mile—the drivers moving at a slow walk, the seals at full gallop. All seals to be killed on any one day as many as 2,500—are all driven inland at once to preclude any escape to the sea. The last to be killed will have watched and heard the terror and agony of all those who went before.

Just six men do all the clubbing, swinging five-foot poles. The rhythm and murder began in 1970 on June 24 and lasted well into August. The locale was U.S. Federal territory, property of all the people of the United States, a massive carried out in the name of those same people whose President promised "Peace With Nature."

Nature, in her concern for her animals, created island sanctuaries for seals and sea lions. The result of volcanic eruptions, these small islands—the Pribilofs—are located in the Bering Sea 770 miles southwest of Anchorage, Alaska and 250 miles north of Dutch Harbor. The climate, cold, foggy and rainy, is ideal for the breeding grounds of these animals whose coats are thick and waxy.

When the Russians discovered the islands in 1786, they immediately used slaves to kill the seals. When the United States bought the Pribilofs from the Russians as part of Alaska in 1867, the slaves were apparently part of the bargain. To quote from hearings of the Committee on Commerce of the United States, 89th Congress (1966): "...the people were held in utter bondage, given only food, clothing and shelter for their labor from the 1800's until 1950 when the first wage plan went into effect."

The Islanders, 120 families, live on the two largest pieces of rock—St. Paul and St. George. They are all closely related, descendants of the Russian slaves. Forty men, competent carpenters, plumbers and other craftsmen, are employed by the U.S. Department of the Interior (USDI) full-time, year-round (as compared to 79 in 1965). The household are employed only part-time during the seal-killing season and are on the relief rolls the rest of the year.

The people are entirely cut off from the outside world. They have no radio, no television, no newspapers. The older people have a fear of the unknown and prefer to submit to the demeaning patronage of the Washington bureaucrats than to leave the islands. The younger people, who now receive their high school education in Government boarding schools in Alaska, are eager to leave permanently.

The 1970 allocation from the U.S. Treasury to the Department of the Interior for maintaining these 120 families is $2,700,000. Members of the USDI testified before the Congress that it expects to operate at an increasing deficit—a deficit paid by the United States taxpayer. In addition to the expenditures of the USDI, public monies are spent on the islands by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Department of Agriculture, and impressively by the Army in the form of large quantities of massive construction equipment, transported from the U.S. on the S.S. Pribilof and lighted to shore on Navy barges. The Islanders own only the beautiful Russian Orthodox church and the post office, which they lease to the Government. All other buildings belong to the Government and the Islanders pay rent for their homes. The Islanders' totally regulated lives and dependence on government patronage is sweetened by the issuance of food stamps honored at a modern supermarket, complete with detergents, all-American cereals, crackers and meats, fresh fruit and vegetables. These products are all brought in by the S.S. Pribilof of the Reeves Aleutian Airlines which lands a plane once a week on the 5,000 foot runway. Roads from the village and the by-products plant (where the seal's flesh is churned into meat for mink) spiral to the seal havens. The buildings all have central heat, running water, electricity, a central sewage system. All in all, a very high-class murder camp indeed.

The Big Lie
Forty-two full-time, year-round bureaucrats are employed in Washington, D.C. and Seattle, Washington, to "administer" the islands (as compared to the 40 Islanders employed in 1970). And yet the Washington bureaucrats justify the massacres as "necessary to provide a livelihood for the Islanders." Clearly, the livelihood of concern to the bureaucrats is their own. If they cared at all about the Islanders, they would have seen to it that the full processing of the seal skins were done on the islands.

Instead the skins are shipped at Government expense half-way around the world to Greenville, South Carolina, where the Fur Company, which has had a monopoly contract with the Government since 1915, does the processing.

It would be a small thing for our Government, which annually moves thousands of families to build highways, to move the 120 Pribilof families to a body to the mainland, to freedom.

A most despicable lie is the claim that the killing benefits the seals. Assistant Secretary of the Interior Glasgow told Congress: "The harvest is merely a substitution for the natural mortality." But mortality, in nature's process of survival of the fittest, occurs primarily among the very young and the very old. Only about 15 out of every 100 seals born survives the first three years of life, at which point it is fair to say that nature has granted those 15 a place in her scheme of balance. And yet, with enormous audacity, the USDI, terms all the males and some of the females among the 15 "surplus" and orders them killed.

A multitude of little lies are also proffered as justifications:

(a) "The kill reduces overcrowding." Unless the USDI sends animal trainers to teach these herd animals to spread out, overcrowding will continue. With acres of empty space in the rookeries, the seal bunch together like people at a cocktail party. They simply like it that way.

(b) "The kill saves seals from starvation." All of the seals on the islands are fat and fit, prepared by nature to go without food for as long as two months. Once they return to the waters they have the whole vast ocean as a larver.

(c) "The kill saves death from disease and parasites." And then the same men say there are no contagious diseases among the seals and that parasites are contracted by pups from their mothers' milk, the mothers getting them from fish. Evidently what the USDI means is that a dead seal won't get sick and die. A small truth, at last.

Man's ability to rationalize his evil deeds is limitless. The fact that the USDI has an interest in protecting the seals for the benefit of the herd—the earth, or any ecological purpose is proved by this fact: The Stellar Sea Lion, ecologically as valuable as the seal, also breeds on the Pribilofs but receives no protection whatsoever. Why? Their skins have no value. The Islanders are free to use—and do use—the sea lions for target practice.

The Russians Warn:
"There Is a Serious Depletion of The Once-Huge Herds"

The biggest lie of all is the boast that "The total Pribilof herd was about 1,400,000 in early August 1967." (Quoted from 336, published in April 1970.) Why a 1970 circular should give data from 1967 instead of 1969 is immediately suspect. But most significant is the inclusion in the total of an estimated 385,000 newborn pups "85% of which may be lost by the time they are three years old." Who will believe a total which is based on such admitted padding?

However many seals there were in 1967, in 1970 the number (of seals in particular) is pathetically small. No despicable tagging, no fancy estimates are needed now. A simple head-count will suffice.

We suggest that the paucity of seals may be due to the fact that the USDI kills the males before they mature to be bulls... and then kills the females because there is a limit to how many each bull can service, as well as because "females furnish the best quality of skins and are most readily available."

"If we don't kill them, others will." This excuse, shouted over and over again by the USDI as they refer to an "International Agreement," falls apart immediately when it is known that dozens of countries are left out of the said agreement, countries whose fleets avidly ply international waters, countries which send to the United States hundreds of thousands of animal skins, unspecified as to type, for sale for the dollar.

When we suggest that a ban on the import of seal-skins would eliminate the dollar incentive for others to kill, the USDI claims that Europeans buy most of the skins at U.S. auctions. But do they? No European furriers were cited as participating in the 1967 price-fixing scandal at the Foulke auction of sealskins. Those fined were solely U.S. fur companies. European furriers who work with sealskin send the finished coats to the United States for sale. The USDI disclaims any knowledge of this marketing pattern.

If a ban on killing by U.S. citizens coupled with a ban on the import of sealskins, raw or finished, is not a good solution for the seals and for U.S. involvement in the slaughter, then let us ask: Why did the USDI authorize the 1970 public expenditure of $750,000 for advertising to try to keep Americans buying sealskin coats?

Sadism Added to Brutality
The television showings of FOX's documentary film has required and continues to result in a bombardment of protest to the Congress which, in turn, refers them to the USDI. That body, hoping to divert the public from its desire to end the killing, pretends the protests concern age, sex or method and assures the public that whales are not killed and that clubbing has the endorsement of what it terms "respected humane societies." In 1970 the USDI, again with the "respected humane societies" as a front, is

State Department Reacts To People's Peace Treaty

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)—The People's Peace Treaty, and organizations working with it, drew sharp response last week from the State Department and the conservative Young Americans for Freedom (YAF).

YAF announced it would "challenge" the Radical's so-called People's Peace Treaty on the campuses and in the communities around the nation by a "spring offensive" entitled "Don't Sell Out" designed to defeat the treaty.

The State Department denounced the treaty, saying "this treaty is not a program for a reasonable or lasting peace." In a statement made Friday afternoon, March 5, the department noted that "the provisions of the 'peace treaty' signed in Hanoi are in essence the same terms which have been put forward repeatedly over the past two years by the communist negotiators in Paris."

The statement names the National Student Association as the circulating organization. NSA's Frank Greer said that the treaty was submitted to the department on the promise that student leaders would be able to discuss its points with top State officials.

Instead, the department released the written statement which coincides with the beginning of the YAF national campaign.

The State Department says the treaty is unworkable because it demands unilateral and unconditional withdrawal of spending more of the taxpayer's money torturing the seals than they did in 1968 in the same "scientific" testing of ways to kill seals. The only new filip in 1970 is surgically implanting electrodes before the seal is clubbed, shot, or gassed. We need not prolong the reporting of this unsavory matter since the method of the kill is irrelevant. The point of the thesis is quite simple.

The Seals Should Not Be Killed

Vietnam, saying nothing about withdrawal of the North Vietnamese forces currently in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

However, the peace treaty states "the Americans and Vietnamese agree to respect the independence, peace and neutrality of Laos and Cambodia in accord with the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conventions and... to interfere in the internal affairs of these two countries."

According to State, the treaty "carries no obligation on the communist side to release the Americans they hold prisoner, only requiring them to 'discuss' the question." The treaty says that the parties will "enter discussions to secure the release of all American prisoners, including pilots captured while bombing North Vietnam."

The State Department interprets the Peace Treaty to mean that the U.S. government will "take action... to remove the government of South Vietnam." The treaty, however, only states that "the Americans pledge to end the imposition of Thieu-Ky-Khiem on the people of South Vietnam in order to insure their right to self-determination."

The State Department says that the treaty "contains no provisions to end the fighting in Laos or Cambodia." The treaty affirms the Geneva accords, and aims at stopping the fighting by mutual agreement of all parties.

CYNIC Photography Contest

The CYNIC announces a photography contest.

The rules are as follows:

1. The contest is open to all students of the University of Vermont who are amateurs. (Amateurs will be considered those people who do not support themselves by taking pictures.)
2. Each picture will fall in one of two categories: faces or landscapes.
3. All photographs will be black and white and will be approximately 8 x 10 inches. There is no limit to the number of photographs that each photographer may submit.
4. The picture submitted must be previously unpublished and it will be understood that the photographs submitted will be the property of the VERMONT CYNIC, which will have the consent of the photographer to publish them in the newspaper.
5. The VERMONT CYNIC has the right to request the photographer to submit a subject release form signed by those people who may appear in the photograph.
6. The pictures may have been taken at any time, past or present.
7. Photographs will be judged on print quality and composition by a board of judges.
8. The board of judges will consist of Tito, of the University Photo Service, Nancy Craigmile, a UVM sophomore, and Gene Peroni, photography editor of the CYNIC. These people will be ineligible to enter the contest.
9. All photographs should be placed in the appropriate box in the CYNIC office. If no one is there, entries may be slipped underneath the door in a protective envelope.
10. The photographer's name should be lightly printed in pencil on the back of each photograph he submits, along with a title, if any.
11. Deadline for entries will be April 15, 1971.
12. One winner will be chosen from each category and the winners will be announced in the May 6 issue of the CYNIC.
13. The winner in each category will receive $25.

All questions should be referred directly to Gene Peroni, in care of the CYNIC office.

"Wood Carving" Entered by Stephen M. Murphy

The Myth Of UVM

To the editor:

The Myth of UVM
to create a community of scholars and provide facilities and an environment for full educational development.

This is the philosophy of the University of Vermont as cited in the Bulletin.

These are the words which reach the minds of thousands of young students who are looking into the possibility of attending UVM. That statement is what the administration is supposed to stand behind and uphold. Unfortunately it is not a reality but only a myth. The truth about UVM lies deep in the roots of a racist institution whose environment is miles from "fully educational" and whose facilities are being burdened by an increased number of students. It is the responsibility of anyone who is sincerely concerned with upholding a high quality of education, of anyone who believes that the youth of America should be given a relevant education, to destroy this myth by relaying the truths. Tell young high school students who are planning to come or apply here, tell the guidance counselors at your former high schools, tell your parents or friends at other Universities that the University of Vermont is not upholding its "philosophy" but in practice is working against it. Tell them the "truth" so they won't be burdened by the myths.

An educational environment should be a crucible of American society. UVM represents white middle-class America, nothing else. In fact, it tries to do so. The Martin Luther King scholarship program here is mere tokenism. A relevant education must include contact with all many spheres of society as possible. A "university" should be composed of the same material which the nation is composed of, so that when the student graduates he is prepared to contribute to society in an unbiased manner. UVM has successfully bred a degree of racism so great that not only are her graduates unfamiliar with the various strata of American society but actually hold a contempt towards them. Prospective UVM students should be informed of this, informed that their educational life, and their social life for that matter, will be in a white isolationist atmosphere where bigotry is not only the practice but the rule.

They should be told that because of this racist policy their education will be incomplete, and an incomplete education is not preparation enough for future needs.

Tell them about the rising costs and decreasing services. Tell them about the crowded library and student union. Tell them about the basic athletic fee and the cost of games, and how the gym is usually reserved or designated for an "outside activity" or closed. Tell them about the crowded dorms and the decreasing number of courses offered. Tell them the truths about UVM so that they can make a valid decision about entering.

Although UVM does have many positive aspects not mentioned here, the negative characteristics of the University should be brought forth so that the two can be equally weighed. I know that if the policy of this institution does not change and expand to fulfill its "philosophy" which happens to be a good one, then I could not with a clear conscience recommend to anyone who is sincerely interested in learning and expanding his mind and culture that he attend the University of Vermont. Yours with many regrets,

Angelo P. Caranaro

Ross McDonald's (15) centering Bowdoin goalie Tom Hutchins

Summer Session

University of Vermont President Andrews has asked all departments of the University to cut current as well as projected operating costs and perhaps the most obvious sign to date that the order is taking effect appeared with the new Summer Session Catalogue.

In place of past color photos featuring the Fleming or Shelburne Museum, the Champlain State black and white announcement to circulate control, Dean explaining years, it been privileged equal vers

"Sympathy for the Devil"
If I asked you to convey to me
How to be with people
You couldn't do it
Any more than I can make you see
How nearly impossible it is for me
To grow with people (hence to grow)
Even though loneliness won't leave
Who can I be?

What symbols of love are there?
It's hard to see
I'm only in search of
Live identity; but it seems Forever I'm into black fields of no nowhere

Too long a silent river, slowly I exp
My mind's tears drowning my cap
Hopes, fears, desires, thoughts
And it is a frozen slow-motion pic distorted

Within those flashing images of w should never be
And I know that what should be u
All the harder easier you might th
I've tended my own garden much
To this day, weeds are the result.
So up I spring in search of another
But I meet my past
And now becomes just a way
Of saying no to tomorrow
I need another garden
However much sorrow
It grows (I promise not to tell a s
You'll stay with me a while, I tru
For wake up I must
If, indeed, I'm only sleeping dis a cam

Clubs

...ing more of the taxpayer's money to the state than did in 1968 in the same "public" testing of ways to kill. The only new bill in 1970 surgically implanting probes before the seal is dead, shot, or gassed. We do not prolong the reporting on an unwarrior matter since the point of the bill is irrelevant. The point of the bill is quite clear.

The Seal Should Not Be Killed

Peace Treaty

...them, saying nothing about the withdrawal of the North Vietnamese forces currently in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

However, the peace treaty says "the Americans and the South Vietnamese agree to respect the independence, peace and sovereignty of Laos and Cambodia in accord with the 1954 and 1962 Geneva Conventions and to interfere in the internal affairs of these countries."

According to State, the treaty gives no obligation on the communist side to release the Americans they hold prisoner, only requiring them to "discuss" the question. The treaty says that the parties will "enter discussions to secure the release of all American prisoners, including pilots captured while bombing North Vietnam."

The State Department interprets the Peace Treaty to mean that the U.S. government will "take action" to remove the government of South Vietnam. The treaty, however, only states that "the Americans pledge to end the imposition of Thieu-Ky-Khiem on the people of South Vietnam in order to ensure their right to self-determination."

The State Department says that the treaty "contains no provisions to end the fighting in Laos or Cambodia." The treaty affirms the Geneva accords, and aims at stopping the fighting by unilateral withdrawal of all parties.

C Photography

...st. ...phy contest.

...students of the ...ateurs (Amateurs ...o do not support

...of two categories:

...and white and will ...e is no limit to the ...photographer may

...at be previously ...erstood that the ...e property of the ...ave the consent of ...the newspaper."

...the right to request ...bject release form ...appear in the

...taken at any time,

...in print-quality and

...assist of Tito, of the ...Craigmik, a UVM ...photography editor of ...eligible to enter the

...be placed in the ...office. If no one is ...neath the door in a

...ould be lightly print- ...photograph he sub-

April 15, 1971.

...from each category ...in the May 6 issue

...will receive $25.

...and directly to Gene

Ron McDonald's (15) centering pass proves futile (above) as Bowdoin goalie Tom Hutchinson pounces on the puck (below).

Vermont's goalie Dave Reese (1) also saw a lot of action in the net. Number 10 is about to swoop in for the goal after the initial save.

THE INSIDER

As I stood by the goal and watched the championship melt into the ice, the puck did not seem to stop as all of the seniors watched their careers go by. Four years of UVM hockey had come to an end and that winning goal seemed in some way to be typical. We had had our glory and our depression as we did in the Bowdoin game.

Now that it is over we have that empty feeling; something is not going to be there anymore (namely us). We will have the memories of every graduating senior, but I think we are taking more memories than we deserve to have because we have been lucky, and because we have played better than we thought we were capable of. From my first look at Reese in the showers, I can remember wondering if he was kidding when he said he played goalie. Then he laughed when he saw Crane, Jenkins, Wilkinson, Pittman, and me. There was one who never stopped impressing us, namely Rico Minarsky. Well, we all passed through our moments of glory and it seems worth it to stop and point out the contributions of each senior.

Bob Wilkinson kept trying every year to double as Derek Sanderson and Joe Namath but never seemed to forget about that last punt he dropped until he finally started to come around to that hockey rink six weeks behind schedule. He would always reach his peak when the season was closing. However, he forgot about the football mistakes and joined the rest of us early, becoming one of the most improved players on the team this year.

Owen Jenkins had more to struggle with than football, as he constantly wondered about whether his knees would hold up. They did and in so doing, one morning he woke up to find out he had set the defensemen's record for most points in a game for our team. There are other defensemen who have the most points for the other team but they are not to be mentioned.

Peter Pittman will always be remembered for that famous moment when he was called upon to maintain a shutout at Connecticut's outdoor rink. The coach looked down the bench and yelled, "Hey Squint get out there." The temperature outside was around zero and after sitting on the bench for two and three-quarters periods, Pyter merely replied, "Oh Jesus" as he tried to feel his hands.

Next comes Tom Crane who has taken more punishment than Reese's underwear (worn both on and off the ice). He has withstood it all and come up with great stick handling and forechecking. Probably his greatest plays have been a tip in against Bowdoin ('70) and the great stick handling exhibition against Hamilton this year.

George Minarsky, the UVM all time scorer, has shown that his stick handling is some of the best in the East. For all defensemen, it has been a great challenge to see if we can stop Rico in practice when he roars at you, his legs churning, the puck hypnotizing you. He represents one of the pioneers in hockey who put UVM on the ECAC map. We will never stop hearing the applause of his great goal against Middlebury in the playoffs last year.

Finally there is Dave (Moon) Reese, the most superstitious player on the team. Every time we won a big game, he would remember everything he did on that day and tried to duplicate it for the next big game. By the time the last game rolled around he was reciting poems, snapping his fingers, not talking between the periods, having a kid touch his glove before stepping on the ice, etc. Moon's moments of glory and his antics would fill up the newspaper but a few should be highlighted. His most famous trick was against UNH his sophomore year when he thought he was Willy Mays and tried to hit the puck with his stick down to the other end of the ice and he took a strike. Every year he has come up with amazing games but perhaps his most impressive was Harvard. Seeing his stuff All-American Joe Cavanaugh, and stop shot after shot with the puck rarely getting out of our zone was a feat beyond belief. Harvard is now in the NCAA semi-finals. And as Harvard walks out of the NCAA's, it would be poetically symbolic to see a full Moon over their heads.

Cat's Mouth

(continued from page twelve)

The locker room was not a place of despair because each player knew that they had played Bowdoin even. As the young coach said repeatedly, "You have nothing to be ashamed of."

The optimism and pride of the Cats was stated in words as Steve Eckerson smiled and said, "We'll be back next year and it will be at home!"

Summer Session Catalogue Changed To Reduce Spending

University of Vermont plain Shakespeare Festival or a Vermont artist there is a black and white title and text announcing "We regret that due to circumstances beyond our control we've lost our color."

Inside, Continuing Education, Dean Raymond V. Phillips explains it this way "In recent years the Summer Session has been greatly pleased and privileged to feature the arts in its annual catalogue, using photographs from some of Vermont's outstanding museums and institutions and, incidentally, receiving much favorable comment."

"We hope," he continues in an editorial footnote, "these have provided as much joy to all who received them as they did to those of us at the University and the many cooperating institutions who had a hand in putting them together."

"We regret but cannot avoid the very serious budget crisis which makes it necessary for us to eliminate all photos including our color covers in order to cut costs of producing the Summer Catalogue. We hope that the near future may hold in store the kind of upturn nationally and within our state and University budget outlook which will make it possible for us to resume our tomorrow with and support of the arts on the pages of our Summer Catalogue."

Elimination of the color covers and about 40 black and white photos throughout the pages made it possible to save nearly $1,000, Dean Phillips said. This year's book was to have featured the Bennington Museum.

In two separate letters to deans and department chairmen President Andrews has asked all UVM departments to cut costs and he has asked for eliminations, cutbacks and or reviews in many areas, including: 1. Reduction in telephone equipment and use;

2. Cutback on mailing lists;
3. Cut down on travel;
4. Defer or cancel plans for new equipment;
5. No further redecoration authorized until further notice;
6. Reduction in use of copy machine;
7. Reduction in membership fees;
8. Review of publications costs to obtain savings, wherever possible.

Concerning personnel, President Andrews advised that neither full nor part-time staff for either new positions or replacements may be recruited without specific approval of the President or the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Alfred H. Rollins, Jr., and reminded that the University's budget makes it necessary to give compensatory time off instead of overtime pay for overtime work.

Dr. Andrews said the University's concern is "not only about our budget position next fiscal year but with the deficit position which faces us this year unless we trim operating costs."

Another casualty of the war with austerity will be senior photos distributed in the past by UVM's Public Relations Office with graduation stories. The savings will amount to about $500 and "probably be offset by the pending postal increases," according to Public Relations Director Larry Van Benthusen.

Friends of Animals, Inc.
11 WEST 60TH STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10023

☐ Enclosed is my tax-deductible contribution to help stop the slaughter of marine mammals. Please add my name to your mailing list.

☐ Send me a set of this advertisement so that I can place this advertisement in my local paper at my own expense (also tax-deductible).

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

NEW

Pinto

3-DOOR RUNABOUT

the little carefree car with THE BIG EXTRA DOOR

• Full opening rear loading door

• Fold-down rear seat for big cargo area

Packs more fun than any Import!

See it now at

OPEN EVERY EVENING UNTIL 5 PM EXCEPT WEDNESDAYS

NORDIC

1600 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington, Vt.
864-0231

Cat-nip

by Mike Robinson

Fred Hunt eased his imprisoned left leg across the seat of a chair and tried to keep his eyes away from his wristwatch. The Sunday night group at the Sugar House Restaurant had retired, and manager Mike Presay had come over to rap a little before closing. The little group at the table had assembled about eight hours before, but that's enough time to only scratch the nostalgic surface of a five-month Vermont hockey season.

Still swirling in everyone's thoughts, of course, was the climactic, tragicomic final chapter of the season: Saturday's 5-4 overtime loss to Bowdoin College in the Division II title game. That epic contest is embedded in the souls of all who were there; but Fred Hunt's file must be the thickest.

For Hunt was forced by injury to share the worlds of the skater and the spectator during those three hours in Brunswick, Maine. Ironically, his season-ending injury took place two weeks before, against the same opponent.

The dual reactions to the game's outcome began together, in one terrible silent moment, as Dick Donovan's shot sizzled into the Catamount net to crown the season. All movement on earth ceased between the puck's passage over the crease and the kindling of the red light.

Then feelings forked. For the Vermont team, a surge of accomplishment, satisfaction, relief — all the elements of a great campaign — helped to overwhelm the reality of the moment. For the 700 dedicated supporters in the stands, pride and gratitude flowed forth as one. The emotions that had been developing since Thanksgiving were now manifest in unison, reveling in the meaning of the occasion, converging upon each other like the waters of Burlington's constant companion on the day the ice submits.

The culmination of the 1970-71 season was not ideal. But it was nevertheless appropriate. A truly great season capped by a classic game left the Catamount coach with indelible, justifiable pride, seven reflective seniors with a gracious termination of their era, 13 awestruck returning athletes with the promise of a still brighter future, one devoted hockey manager with a satisfaction that made it all more than worthwhile, and thousands of followers — in person, over the airwaves, and in spirit — with innumerable memories and friendships that will last a lifetime.

Fred Hunt pondered it all, attempting to categorize the jumbled impressions of a sidelined athlete. He glared at the dormant rigidity of his left leg; then, with a hint of a smile, he headfaked an invisible defenseman and flipped an imaginary disk into the open corner.

YanCon Basketball Standouts Selected

Amherst, Mass. Julius Ewing (Roosevelt, N.Y.) of the University of Massachusetts is the only unanimous choice on the All Yankee Conference basketball team selected by a vote of the league coaches.

He is joined on the first team by Connecticut's Bob Staak (Darien, Conn.) and Rhode Island's Nate Adger (Hartford, Conn.), both 6-4 senior forwards, and guards John Bantancourt (Westwood, N.J.), a 5-10 junior from Massachusetts, and Dwight Lohmeyer (Hartford, Conn.), a 5-10 senior from Rhode Island.

Second team selections are Steve Rowell (Rockport, Mass.), 6-4 sophomore, and Phil Hickson (Somerset, N.J.), 6-4 junior, both from Rhode Island, and a Massachusetts 6-7 senior Ken Mathias (Lodi, N.J.) in the frontcourt, and

NBA News

NEW YORK — Arnold (Red) Auerbach, who coached the Boston Celtics to nine world championships in a 10-year span between 1957-66, was named Wednesday as the Silver Anniversary Coach of the National Basketball Association.

Auerbach received 19 votes in a poll of the 24 living nominees to the NBA's Silver Anniversary Team and the 10-man committee which selected the nominees.

His Celtics won nine consecutive Eastern Division titles between 1957-65 and eight straight world championships between 1959-66. He retired after the 1966 playoffs, turning over the coaching reins to Bill Russell, his star center, who led Boston to world championships in 1968 and 1969.

Auerbach won more games (1,037) than any coach in NBA history. His clubs always had a superstar — Cousy was a rookie in Auerbach's first year at Boston. But Red credited his team's success on teamwork and motivation.

Confusion around the UYM goal as Reece (1) spoils another Bowdoin scoring attempt (Photos from Don Fillion)

From the cat's mouth

by Dave Kopacz

700 Fall Silent As The Crown Passes Away

The clock froze with 5:31 left in the overtime period. For 700 Vermont fans who traveled 300 long miles, a dream was over. The Cats had bounced back twice from two goal deficits. The gutsy play that never died brought the Vermonters from the brink of disaster to a tie at the end of regulation play.

Then it was over. Dick Donovan, a sophomore center, drove up the left hand side and slid a 15 foot slap shot off Dave Reece's glove and the great season ended on a sour note.

The 5-4 overtime loss to the Polar Bears of Bowdoin will long be remembered, not for the final score but for the high caliber of play. Many fans left murmuring that they could not imagine a better game to end the season.

"If it was played at Boston Garden and we had Cornell written on our uniforms and they had Boston University on theirs, it would be called the greatest game ever," exclaimed Jim Cross after the game. That just about sums up what happened at Bowdoin.

The superlatives that come to mind seem inadequate. All that is desired in a "perfect" game became reality at Bowdoin. True sportsmanship, a capacity crowd, complete teamwork on both sides, pinpoint passing, and a score that was in doubt until the last split second were just a few elements evident in the championship battle.

The pre-game warm up also ended in a tie as both Charlie Catamount and the Polar Bear skated around the ice displaying signs to each other and to the fans. Meanwhile the fans shouted lines like "We're Number One" and "You're Number Two."

An overfilled crowd of more than 3,000 reached near hysteria when the teams entered the rink. And then the game began.

The Game
The contest remained scoreless until Bob Kullen picked up a penalty for Bowdoin. The Cats sent out their power play unit to take advantage. In going along with the game's theme the Bears took the puck and drove down the ice. Bernie Quinlan found an opening in the net and rebounded it in. This reversed the adage as the Brunswick team proved the best defense is a good offense.

Bowdoin put in another on a mix up in the Vermont end and left the ice leading 2-0. Little did they know what would be waiting when they returned.

Brad Cooke, called a "tower of strength" by Cross after the game, began to take charge. A smashing slap shot from the blue line and Cooke had closed the gap to one. Just 1:33 later, Cooke brought the puck up and fed first line wing Bob Hodde, who let fly a shot that trickled off Bowdoin's Tom Hutchinson and slowly entered the goal by three inches.

The Bears and Catamounts showed amazing passing and threw shot after shot on Reece and Hutchinson but both were equal to the task. All three goals that hit in the remainder of the period were on rebounds off great saves. Ted Yeates' hit the inside of the post and went in.

As the tension mounted so did the play. The flow of action in the third stanza traveled from one end to the other. The tone came on the pressure of Vermont and the relentlessness of the Catamount defense.

Ted Yeates and Bill Dunnington kept the puck in the Bear end and on the fourth rebound shot on a frantic Hutchinson, Doug Harding lifted the rubber over the goalie and lit the light. Four to four as time ran out!

Following a one minute rest, play resumed. It looked like a continuation of the third period. Then Donovan did his thing and it was over.

Iceing
Perhaps Doug Harding expressed the feelings after the game the best, when he stated, "You think after a game of the times you should have passed or the times you should have shot. And when you lose by one goal you think of it even more." Harding, a surprise in the UVM starting lineup played just the kind of game that Cross wanted, steady and defensive.

(continued on page eleven)

Catamount Clippings

Reflections On Past And Future

"A capacity crowd is expected to somewhat overpower the Vermont fans."

This statement is a direct quote from the "Bowdoin Orient" and I sincerely hope that all the statements in that campus newspaper do not prove quite so erroneous. The 650 Vermont supporters who made the three hundred mile journey to Brunswick made a cocky student body swallow a little bit of pride, and did much to "overpower the Bowdoin fans."

Tim Bickford put it well when he jumped from the bus on Sunday, "We've got the best fans in the East," seems to sum it up very nicely.

The journey and effort were not wasted. Despite the long and somber ride home, the game will remain as possibly one of the best many of us will see in a lifetime.

But now, the cheering, the bitten finger nails, and the fatigue have passed, and the all too obvious fact that the season is over is beginning to settle down on our heads, just as that blanket of hushed silence settled on half on the rink at Bowdoin after that fateful shot in the overtime period, a silence of frustration and disappointment.

It's hard to say goodbyes to Hockey for another year. It almost seems to some of us that a vital part of the campus is missing. The feeling, of course, will pass, but it will take time.

Now is the time not to lick our wounds, but rather to celebrate and look to next year. The celebration may not be as enthusiastic as before (although I'm sure the manager of the Holiday Inn in Brunswick will take issue with that statement), but it is nevertheless well justified. How many other teams would have paid any price to have a season like ours.

Graduation will take its toll. Dave Reece will have to leave the net in Gutterson to Steve Eckerson. Defenseman Tim Bickford will also prove to be a great loss to the club, and all time high scorer, George Minarsky also has to end his four year stay and move on.

Owen Jenkins, Bob Wilkinson, Tom Crane and Peter Pitman must also retire their sticks and face the end of their college careers. Undoubtedly the loss of these four lettermen will prove to be difficult to compensate for. But compensation, and plenty of it, is pretty much guaranteed. Many of this year's winning squad will be back again next year.

Patty Wright, Brad Cooke, Rick Burns, Fred Hunt and Ross McDonald are only sophomores, and with a year of tough competition under their belts, we can expect nothing but good things to come. The well represented junior class boasts Bill Dunnington, this year's Co-captain, Ted Yeates, Sam Skammons, Alan Johnson, Jim Wellington, high scoring Noddy Grant, Doug Harding and Bob Hodde. All are steady, consistent performers and promise success for the club in the future.

Indeed, graduation will take its toll, but the returning talent leaves us room for nothing but optimism, and the realistic expectation of regaining the ECAC crown, so close yet so far away!

Thinclads Bow To Bowdoin As Victory Slips In Final Event

by John Stowell

The University of Vermont Indoor Track Team put in many strong performances before bowing to Bowdoin College in the mile relay in a dual meet held Saturday at the UVM field house. The final score of the meet was Bowdoin 56, Vermont 48.

The meet was a close one with the Catamount thinclads leading all the way until the Bowdoin relay team secured the meet victory with a meet record win of 3:30.4 in the mile relay.

The Cats were led in the attack by double-winner Jerry Elwert who posted victories in the one and two mile runs. Learned set a new meet record in the mile with a clocking of 4:31.1 while running the device in a time of 9:59.4. The senior long-distance ace was followed by Donny Baker in the mile and Perry Bland who placed third in the two mile.

Vermont took clean sweeps in the long jump and the 1,000. The long jump was won by Charlie Stoecker who jumped 20-10 1/2. Stoecker was followed by teammates Mike Enson and Steve Coon who took second and third respectively. Phil Elwert smashed the old meet record by a second in the 1,000 with a time of 2:19.3. Elwert was followed by John Dimick who placed second and Ole Anderson who placed third. Mike Bilza won the shot put with a heavy of 44-4 while Jimmy Comstock took a disappointing second in the 35-lb. weight. Other scoring efforts by Vermont were a second and third in the pole vault by Bruce Lawrence and Henry Forges respectively, a tie for third in the high jump by Comstock and Dave Bird, and thirds by Bird and Frank O'Brien in the 600.

The Cats will wrap up their indoor season with GMAA Invitational Indoor Meet scheduled for Saturday, March 27th at the UVM fieldhouse.

The crowd was waiting as the bus returned on Sunday

United We Conquer

Coach Holmquist sees the combination of the Frosh, J.V. and Varsity programs into one Varsity team, as strengthening the UVM Baseball Program. He believes there will be more competition for each starting position. The prospect of four years of varsity competition will provide an added incentive for prospective frosh who are interested in the Ball program.

The Cats uniforms will feature a new "trim look" this year with brilliant green and gold lettering and new white "a la Charles Finley" baseball shoes.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

RATHSKELLER RESTAURANT

Fine Dining in a Unique Atmosphere

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY
THE MUSIC STYLINGS OF
THE FABULOUS NEW GROUP
THE PHOENIX

SUNDAY SPECIAL

ROAST PRIME RIB OF BEEF $295
SERVED 11:00 TO 5:30

NOW OPEN ON SUNDAY FROM 11 TO 9
ST. PAUL STREET BEHIND PEGTONS
864-9611

CHAMPLAIN LANES

985-2824

Hours 10 A.M. To 1 A.M.

- Automatic Pin Setters
- Expert Ball Fitting & Drilling
- Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
- Cocktail Lounges
- Snack Bar
- Hurricane
- Billiards
- Dancing

AIR-CONDITIONED 16 LANES

Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages
5 Minutes South Of Scan On Shelburne Rd.

NEW LAFAYETTE RK-890 Solid State Stereo 8-Track Cartridge Recorder/Player Tape Deck

With Pushbutton Fast Forward

Record 8-Track Cartridges thru your Stereo Amplifier or Receiver, or live with Microphones using the RK-890

119.95

RECORD FEATURES:

- Stop after each Channel and Automatic Eject, or Stop after Channel 1 Thru 4 and Eject
- Sound with Sound Muting
- Pushbutton Manual Eject
- Pushbutton Fast Forward
- Front Panel Left and Right Channel Microphone Input Jacks
- Record Safety Interlock Button
- Illuminated Track Indicator Lights
- Dual Recording VU Level Meter
- Separate Dual Concentric Microphone and Aux Volume Controls

PLAYBACK FEATURES:

- Continuous Play
- Pre-Select and Play any 1 Channel and Stop and Automatic Eject
- Pushbutton Track Selector
- Illuminated Track Indicator Lights
- Pushbutton Fast Forward
- Pushbutton Manual Eject

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES:

- Automatic Cartridge Ejector—insures you do not damage the tape head and your cartridge
- Specialty Designed Built-In Lafayette Solid State Stereo Record/Playback Pre-Amplifier

LAFAYETTE RADIO ELECTRONICS

370 Shelburne Road — Owned and operated by T.S. 658-4616

Only McRae of Goddard

UVM And To Protest

On Friday, March 19, a rally sponsored by groups from Goddard and UVM was held in Ira Allen Chapel. The meeting had as its purpose the agitation for the removal of the name "Niggerhead" from the maps and charts of the Marshfield area of Vermont. Another purpose of the meeting was to discuss racism which until now has been thought by many to be foreign to Vermont.

During the rally, speakers from UVM and Goddard addressed the crowd, which nearly filled the chapel. One black student from Goddard expressed her feelings about "Niggerhead" and racism in verse. She told of her anger when confronted by the racial

CYNIC Interview: Views On Cont

by Arlene Erikson

Editor's Note
The SA motion requesting the University Bookstore to sell foam and condoms has created quite a stir in this academic community. President Andrews has been approached with the motion and has, in turn, established a committee to delve into the contraceptive issue. To quote the President, "we don't want to use a bandage to keep a man from bleeding to death."

When Mr. Frederick Henry, the director of the University bookstore, was questioned as to the possibility of selling contraceptives in the store, he replied that the matter is entirely out of his hands. "This is an institutional vote and, if the University votes in favor of selling contraceptives, the store will do it."

Mr. Henry anticipates that the University's decision will depend much on legal aspects, especially regarding the state law in Vermont. He further stated that of all the stores belonging to the National Association of College Stores (which serves 90% of the nation's college students), he knows of none that sell the contraceptives. The only exceptions to the latter might be those university stores which have pharmacies and, here the

An Open Le

To the Editor:

There has been just about enough Activity Fee to confuse anyone as to it seems as though Mr. Blake and this "questionnaire" in opposition to the S.A. has espoused on certain rather his own personal repugnance to the played upon the naive of the student himself as a liberationist trying to protect our rights as an individual, attempting to stop funding all universities. How absurd and untrue individual be. In your editorial you which receive financial support from supported by the individual members that the UVM band should pay dues at football games, or that OVP member community on an increasingly they should charge each individual a read a poster. This would be an ext proposition, would it not Mr. Blake? speaker as a group for a concert, it backing us up; we can not depend on an endlessly concerning the practical. A cleverly disguised as Mr. B referendum, what we are actually these activities, but rather, will we This then is a question of essential who agree with Mr. Blake's belief th a classroom, I will in no way atten the S.A. Activity fee. But for the importance of a well balance and there can be no question of the fo essential. What would a university government, guest lecturers and co

Join As Event

Directed by John Dimack who placed second and Ole Anderson who placed third Mike Ribba won the shot put in a heavy 44-4 while Comstock took a surprising second in the 15-weight. Other scoring efforts in the pole vault by Bruce Swensen and Henry Forgue respectively, a tie for third in the high jump by Comstock and Bird, and thirds by Bird and Frank O'Brien in the 600.

The Cats will wrap up their indoor season with GMAA National Indoor Meet scheduled for Saturday, March 20th at the UVM fieldhouse.

on Sunday

KELLER URANT

Unique Atmosphere
SATURDAY
STYLINGS OF
NEW GROUP
PHOENIX

SPECIAL

TRIB OF BEEF $2.95
100 TO 5:30

DAY FROM 11 TO 9

BEHIND PEGTONS

-9611

Hours 10 A.M.
To 1 A.M.

985-2824

Automatic Pin Seters

• Export Ball Fitting

• & Drilling

• Complete Stock

• of Bowling Shoes

• Cocktail Lounge

• Snack Bar

• Bar

• Billiards

• Dances

AIR CONDITIONED

16 Lanes

• Soft Drinks

• Soda

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

•

VERMONT CYNIC

MARCH 25, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX NO. 8

Ole McKee of Goddard delivering a condemnation of Vermont's racism. Charles French

UVM And Goddard Unite To Protest 'Niggerhead'

On Friday, March 19, a rally sponsored by groups from Goddard and UVM was held in Ira Allen Chapel. The meeting had as its purpose the agitation for the removal of the name "Niggerhead" from the maps and charts of the Marshfield area of Vermont. Another purpose of the meeting was to discuss racism which until now has been thought by many to be foreign to Vermont.

During the rally, speakers from UVM and Goddard addressed the crowd, which nearly filled the chapel.

One black student from Goddard expressed her feelings about "Niggerhead" and racism in verse. She told of her anger when confronted by the racial slur connoted by the name "Niggerhead" and urged all people to protest this outrage and insult to black dignity. "He who remains silent must have been a Kake Walker."

She demands that this country take action, rather than make hollow promises, to destroy racism and told the nation, "Don't make me any promises. Your history has proved you can't keep any."

Brooks McCabe, a member for the Faculty Senate's Equal Opportunities Committee, spoke of the University's slowness in achieving integration. He said that UVM was investigated by HEW this fall and was found to be violating the requirements of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Referring to President Andrews' statement of March 16, McCabe stated, "Only when things border on disaster do they (the administration) make some changes."

Another Goddard asked the audience to imagine a good red-blooded American man taking his family around the country and seeing such sights as Kike Nose Mountain, Wop Mouth Reservoir and similar attractions. The reactions, he remarked, to such names would be immediate and angry. However when someone names a mountain "Niggerhead," no outcry is raised for over one hundred years.

CYNIC Interview:

Views On Contraceptive Selling Vary

by Arlene Eriksen

The SA motion requesting the University bookstore to sell foam condoms has created quite a stir in this academic community. President Andrews has been approached with the motion and has, in turn, established a committee to delve into the contraceptive issue. To quote the President, "we don't want to use a bandage to keep a man from bleeding to death."

When Mr. Frederick Heney, the director of the University bookstore, was questioned as to the possibility of selling contraceptives in the store, he replied that the matter is entirely out of his hands. "This is an institutional store and, if the University votes in favor of selling contraceptives, the store will do it."

Mr. Heney anticipates that the University's decision will depend much on legal aspects, especially regarding the state law in Vermont. He further stated that of all the stores belonging to the National Association of College Stores (which serves 90% of the nation's college students), he knows of none that sell contraceptives. The only exceptions to the latter might be those university stores which have pharmacies and, here again, there are probably tremendous variations due to state law. The CYNIC also spoke to Senator Robert Boardman, who had previously criticized the motion on the floor of the State Senate, and John Perry, Protestant Campus Minister.

Rev. Philip J. Branon, Director of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Vermont was not available for comment. Q. Why were you opposed to the SA resolution requesting the bookstore to sell foam condoms? A. I just thought that the bookstore as such is a rather inappropriate place to not only sell but to freely display the resolution's requests. I might point out, however, that I think that the resolution is symptomatic of something else and that is of a need at the University of Vermont for a program in human sexual behavior. I think that this university in conjunction with the medical center should have an open forum or a discussion or a clinic—somewhere where the students could talk and could receive information concerning the psychology of the male and female sexuality, the sexual identity relating to male and female, and the cause and effects in sexual responsibility. But it should be done by professionals, in other words, by a gynecologist and an obstetrician.

I think that in that resolution the students meant that there was a need for this type of thing and maybe the thrust of the resolution was that. If this is what they were looking for and sincerely desire to have, I would support it. But I was much opposed to selling and displaying these contraceptive devices as a means of educating the males and females at UVM. I didn't think that was the right approach and I still don't.

Q. In other words, you would be in favor of establishing a birth control clinic in the infirmary.

A. Well, I didn't say that. I didn't say a birth control clinic. What I said in effect was that I think that the students are looking for information and I think that since the medical center is contiguous to the University that the medical profession, the associates in obstetrics and gynecology could perform a real service to the students.

I've talked to Dr. Amidon. He (continued on page six)

President Andrews' Commitment

President Andrews, in response to the demands of the Equal Opportunities Committee and groups dedicated to the removal of the name Niggerhead from maps of the Marshfield, Vt. area, issued the following statement on March 18.

TO MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY:

There is a need, and it seems urgent, for all concerned with UVM's efforts toward increasing ethnic minority representation among students, faculty, and staff to be informed of our progress to date.

Interested groups within the University have made known their insistence that the University accelerate its efforts and that it do so immediately.

There have been a number of conversations with such groups during the fall and winter, the latest being a session with Black students on March 17. The subject was a letter received from representatives of three campus organizations the previous day suggesting that at least thirty(30) Black students be accepted at UVM in the 1971-72 academic year, as a step in the right direction.

This lies within our current estimate of feasibility. Commitment to such a goal for the new school year is realistic and desirable, and I accept it. I agree that it is the least that ought to be done in a campus community of more than 7,000 white students.

Policy on this matter was clearly set by the University's Academic Council and accepted by the Board of Trustees more than a year ago, in a statement on "Multi-Racial Diversity at the University of Vermont" which reaffirmed the "central proposition that diversity is essential for education. The statement not only endorsed a University commitment to maintain a diverse and widely recruited student population, but made it clear that this policy must be supported by the University's cooperation and community through the investment of time, effort, and money."

Our institutional conscience has been prodded by the pressures brought to bear upon us in the past months—some think not enough—and I want to say that we have in fact accelerated efforts to attract qualified Black students and to locate financial support for those that need it.

Finding enough financial assistance for Black students in need lies at the heart of the problem. Varying individual requirements make projections difficult, and I do not know now precisely how much will be required, but I am sure we will meet the need.

Related considerations which we must consider and are at work on include: transitional academic support, counseling needs, housing, etc.—meaning that we feel we must be dedicated to the construction of a balanced program for minority needs within the academic community, not a series of unrelated expedients.

Here are the specific steps taken in the past few months not only on Black student recruitment but other aspects of minority representation on campus as well:

1. The Admissions Office was instructed some time ago to use regular and special recruitment activity to attract Black and other ethnic minority applicants. It was asked to develop new contacts to assist in the process. All this has been done and continues to be done.

President Andrews sets goals at 30 more Blacks for 1971-72 academic year.

2. Our financial aid office has been instructed to give special urgency to a search for support for Black students beyond the present level, and to supplement Martin Luther King scholarship money (raised by the Trustees late last year to a projected total of $37,500 for 1971-72) with Federal Equal Opportunity grants, loans, work-study programs, and other private fund sources.

3. Our Federal Programs and Development Offices have been instructed to give special urgency to a search for federal foundation, and other private support funds for Black students.

4. A senior University official (Dean Robert Fordham) has been coordinator of our effort to become an equal opportunity employer in fact as well as name. This applies to women as well as ethnic minorities. We have said that we do not discriminate on account of race, creed, color, or sex, but the federal government (HEW), which is reviewing colleges and universities receiving federal funds, advised us last fall that we had not sufficiently met our responsibilities, and we are trying to fulfill them.

5. Every dean, department chairman, and supervisor who has approval to fill any position when it becomes open or any new position which may be authorized has been instructed that he must seek qualified candidates from minority groups (including women) in the hiring process, and also to keep Dean Fordham informed so that his channels and those of the Equal Opportunity Committee of the University Senate, with which he maintains contact, may be (continued on page seven)

Confessions Of A Vietnam Veteran:

by Ken Provan

I went to Vietnam as a hawk and my opinion changed during my 14 months over there. One of the first things I thought was that the war was not being fought to be won, but to maintain the "status quo." After that I realized we were not really over there to help the Vietnamese, for how do you help a people by destroying their country and turning all Vietnamese into victims of the war? The statement by Laib that the purpose of Vietnamization is to change the color of the bodies hardly seems like an attitude of wanting to help the Vietnamese, but rather the basic racism and self-interest of the government.

That the VC and NVA (North Vietnam Army) commit atrocities is well known due to the publicity already given to them. The atrocities committed by our troops and the South Vietnamese should be of concern to Americans because those are the ones we have control over. The acts committed by one side hardly justify similar acts being carried on by the other. Although it sounds rather callous, there are going to be innocent civilian casualties in any war, but especially in a war like Vietnam. What I object to is needless killing and destruction.

As a demolition man, I worked with many different companies and saw the war from many different angles. I was told that a "free fire zone" meant killing anything that moved. Moving into one such area we found nothing but women, children and old men. Six old men were shot; one so old and sick he couldn't walk. They were reported as being enemy casualties between the ages of 30 and 40. We also burned the village and slaughtered the livestock. A Vietnamese captain we were working with personally shot over 50 villagers in about 9 days. They had not been prisoners but alleged "VC sympathizers" he shot in response to some mortar and sniper fire we received.

These are a few of the many similar occurrences that happen constantly in Vietnam and they are hardly for the benefit of the people. What would help them would be to stop imposing the Thieu-Ky regime, which they are opposed to, on them. Only then will the war be able to end.

Editor's Note:

Ken Provan has recently returned from Vietnam and is now a UVM student. He is trying to organize a group of Vietnam Veterans who share his views. You can contact Ken Provan at 656-3493 for more information.

Ken Provan, who has witnessed the atrocities of the Vietnam War.

State's Attorney Leahy Commends UVM's Approach To Its Problems

by Jeff Yecker

QUESTION: Perhaps not now, but certainly last fall and during the last Presidential campaign, the term "law and order" was prominent. As a citizen and as State's Attorney, what does "law and order" signify to you?

LEAHY: Well, I think of it as society governed primarily by laws, that the laws are realistic, and that they are followed because they ARE the laws; and if there was general disagreement with any particular law, it would be changed in the normal democratic fashion. I don't like the slogan "Law and Order," and I don't like to use it myself because of the connotation to it. I think it is an unfortunate connotation, because people in any society need laws... they need some form of order. I think the unfortunate connotation it has is that we'll have law and order by bigger billy sticks and more police.

QUESTION: You are for law, and you are for order under law, but you are not for the things which the term connotes?

LEAHY: Yes... I'm not for it in the sense that it is a catch-all phrase to excuse any type of oppressive conduct.

QUESTION: What do you think of the University of Vermont, its students, faculty, and overall, as an educational institution?

LEAHY: I'm impressed by it. I'm a lifelong Vermonter. I'm not a UVM graduate, and most of my connection with the University has been in the past few years since I've been State's Attorney. I'm sure I do not always agree with every single person... I'm sure not every single person always agrees with me; but the University has avoided many of the problems which other universities have had. I think that they have a willingness to hear both sides. I think this is necessary, that you have this type of openness. I consider probably the most significant part of our Constitution the First Amendment, which guarantees the right to free speech. Any nation that cannot stand differences of opinion... just cannot stand, period, and I

(continued on page six)

State's Attorney Patrick Leahy believes that UVM has avoided many problems by listening to both sides of an issue.

An Open Letter To Fellow UVM Students

To the Editor:

There has been just about enough crap spouted on the Student Activity Fee to confuse anyone as to just what the issue is.

It seems as though Mr. Blake and his two friends have fostered this "questionnaire" in opposition to the political viewpoints which the S.A. has espoused on certain rather relevant issues. To appease his own personal repugnance to these political viewpoints, he has played upon the naïveté of the student body. He has espoused himself as a liberator trying to give equal protection to all us stomped upon and persecuted against academicians. For trying to protect rights as an individual, I sincerely thank you, but for attempting to stop funding all university activities, you verge on the ridiculous. How absurd and unambiguously oriented can one individual be. In your editorial you state that the organizations which receive financial support from the S.A. should instead be supported by the individual members. By this I assume you mean that the UVM band should pay dues in order to perform before us at football games, or that OVP members should pay dues to inform the community on an increasingly important topic. No, possibly they should charge each individual a certain fee as they walk by and read a poster. This would be an extremely efficient money making proposition, would it not Mr. Blake? To be able to acquire a speaker or a group for a concert, it is essential to have initial funds backing us up; we can not depend solely on ticket sales. I could go on endlessly concerning the practical absurdity of your proposition.

A cleverly disguised as Mr. Blake has tried to prevent the referendum, what we are actually voting on is not how to fund these activities, but rather, will we let these activities exist at all. This then is a question of essential academic concern. For those who agree with Mr. Blake's belief that education begins and ends in the classroom, I will in no way attempt to persuade you to vote for the S.A. Activity Fee. But for the rest of us who realize the importance of a well balanced and integrated college experience, there can be no question of the fact that the S.A. Activity Fee is essential. What would a university experience be without a student government, guest lecturers and concerts. Possibly Mr. Blake sees no reason for such activities, for him then I feel nothing but pity, but damned if I should let my pity for him ruin these university experiences for everyone.

Furthermore, I would like to question Mr. Blake's logic and rationality. It seems as though Mr. Blake is a politically conservative oriented person, which is all well and good, yet he proposes to destroy a duly elected governmental organization simply because he disagrees on one of their policy issues. Somehow, Mr. Blake I seem to sense just a slight touch of radicalism in your logic. One should overthrow a procedurally elected and representative government simply because one doesn't agree with a policy stand? Mr. Blake, shame on you! Anarchy solves nothing; if you would like to have your viewpoint heard this could be achieved through the democratic process. Mr. Blake, have you not learned this yet?

How long would our federal government last if each time people who were opposed to a policy which a representative legislature drew up, refused to pay their income tax? Not very long I can assure you. As a conservative, you should be opposed to such a radical stand. Mr. Blake, you had better get your ideology cleared up.

To try to foster a personal cause is admirable, but not when it is merely an "ego trip." To cloak this cause and to tell people it really won't hurt them when it will be detrimental. The S.A. activity fee as a practical measure is necessary for any hope of attaining a meaningful university experience at UVM. This, therefore, is the issue and nothing else, what we want the university to mean to us, not to Mr. Blake.

P.S., is it not totally absurd with all the pressing issues at hand, we must waste our time discussing the merits of a lousy ten dollar per semester activity fee? And we call ourselves students.

Editor's Note:

The CYNIC has not received any opposing viewpoints concerning the "Student Activity Fee Questionnaire."

$16,190 Grant Enables Lakefront Improvement Study

A group of civil engineering students at the University of Vermont has received a $16,190 grant from the National Science Foundation, and will use it this summer to seek ways to make better use of Burlington's lakefront.

Nationally, a total of 360 research proposals were submitted in the new federally sponsored Student-Originated Studies Program. Only 103 of these, including the UVM proposal, were funded.

The SOS program was organized to encourage college students to express in productive ways their concern for the environmental well-being of the nation. It also provides support for groups of students who can demonstrate their readiness to assume increased responsibility for their own educational development.

Wayne Timura of Farmington, Conn., a fourth-year student in a five-year civil engineering program in the College of Technology, is student project director. He and five other engineering students prepared the worthy grant request that won them federal backing. The others are Peter J.

Devine of Longmeadow, Mass.; Russell A. Hoidal, Jr., of Concord, N.H.; James Rowley of Burlington; Thomas A. Mann of Arosley, N.Y., and also Tuscany of Burlington.

Timura said his group's first move, in order to make this a strong interdisciplinary effort, "will be to involve students of other disciplines. These will be sought at the University as well as at St. Michael's, Trinity and Middlebury."

He said about seven more students will be chosen for salaried posts, with those studying in the following fields to be considered: Economics, sociology, art, landscape architecture or architecture, community medicine, life sciences, pre-law, and varied fields of engineering.

While the project is scheduled to operate from June 7 to Aug. 27, Timura and his steering committee won't wait until then to begin work. Basic work in understanding some of the problems of their project was done in writing the grant request.

Now the committee members are having weekly seminars, and plan to attend meetings of all organizations concerned with the research subject. They will also have discussions with such groups as the Burlington Planning Commission, the Lake Champlain Committee, state officials, local civic groups and persons working in fields relevant to the study.

The committee has selected Dr. William J. Jewell, assistant professor of civil engineering, as its project advisor. Also assisting will be Dr. Joseph C. Oppenlander, chairman of the department of civil engineering, and Dr. Arthur J. Condren, assistant professor of civil engineering.

The students' aim this summer will be to develop a comprehensive plan for the lakefront, a plan which include alternate proposals for revitalizing the area. To be considered are such factors as whether to maintain, rebuild or eliminate the railroad yards and some of the industries there, and the effect of the planned construction of a four-lane beltline along the waterfront.

The results of their work will be shared by the committee members with those actively involved in local efforts to rejuvenate the waterfront. The report, too, will be submitted to the National Science Foundation, which is planning a conference of project leaders in the nation after all projects are completed.

The local team has been promised assistance from local and state groups and officials, including Frank J. Gerred, Burlington city planner; the State Planning and Community Services Agency; the Vermont Highway Department; the Lake Champlain Committee and the Chittenden County Regional Planning Commission.

Julian Bond, March 28, 8:00 pm

NO ELECTRONICS

650-4616

Calendar/Announcements

President Andrews Guest Speaker At Vermont Day

UVM President Dr. Edward C. Andrews, Jr. will be the featured speaker at the 2nd Annual Greater New York Vermont Day on Saturday, April 3, at the Spence School, 22 East 91st Street, New York City.

President Andrews will be joined for the discussion by the University's Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Alfred B. Rullina, Jr., Dr. Malcolm F. Severance, Associate Professor of Economics and Business Administration, and two students, Mr. Gary McGowan '72 and Miss Carroll Harne '72.

The Alumni Club of Greater New York which hosts the Annual - Even - has selected "UVM in Perspective" as this year's topic for discussion.

Enrollment pressures, rising costs, student attitudes and the challenge of new and conflicting demands on old traditions are a few of the many subjects which will be discussed.

Dr. Robert H. Adler of Staten Island, a 1962 Alumnus of the University and Chairman of the committee which organized the meeting, said the program will begin with free registration at 1:00 p.m., and conclude with a Social Hour at 4:00 p.m.

Alumni, parents, students and prospective freshmen who have recently been offered admission have been invited to attend and a large turnout is expected.

April 3rd is the first day of Spring Recess and Dr. Adler has expressed the hope that the students who reside in the Greater New York area will attend the meeting with their parents and join in the discussion.

Summer Catalog Available

The University of Vermont Summer Session catalog, listing over 280 courses offered at the University and the Castleton and Lyndon State College campuses, is being distributed this week by UVM's Continuing Education Office.

In addition to standard academic offerings such as education, psychology and Russian literature, the catalog lists a series of special programs involving study in Finland, England, Africa, Japan, and Quebec.

The UVM romance languages department and Canadian Studies Program are again offering a six-week course of study in Trois-Rivières, Quebec, in cooperation with the University of Quebec for the study of cultural, social and political features of French Canada.

Through the College of Education, seminars are being offered for the study of education and culture in England and Africa. The early deadline for application to these programs is April 15.

Workshops and institutes during the summer will include many familiar from past Summer Sessions, such as the cooperative UVM - Shelburne Museum series of lectures and courses on American art, design and history, and the international music educators clinic.

Classes will begin at various dates between June 21 and July 19, with some education seminars abroad starting on May 26, and UVM courses at Lyndon State College on June 22, and at Castleton State College on June 23.

The deadline for preregistration in most courses is May 28. Copies of the Summer Session catalog may be obtained by writing the Continuing Education Office, University of Vermont in Burlington.

Anti-Draft Meeting

Organizational Meeting Women Against the Draft for interested faculty wives, students, student wives, etc. St. Anne's Catholic Church Monday, April 12 - 8:00 P.M.

ETV Schedule

The physical effect of "mothering" an infant and a study of quack cures for disease, the professional entertainment that was a vehicle for the upward mobility of American blacks and Vermont's governor in a dramatic role are all featured on Vermont Educational Television evening programming March 29-April 7.

A study of how mothering during infancy affects the emotional and physical development of both humans and animals is presented Monday (March 29) at 6 p.m. on "The World We Live In."

Quack cures—the devices that take economic advantage of human desperation are exposed for the frauds they are by the FDA and HEW Tuesday (March 30) at 7 p.m. on "You're the Master of All Trades."

"Reddick" is an inner-city minister whose attempts to help a group of alienated teenagers is met by their demand that he literally permit his motives to stand trial on NET Playhouse at 8:30 p.m. Thursday (April 1).

The Vermont Symphony, under the direction of Alan Carter, will perform Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait" in their State House Concert Friday (April 2) at 9 p.m. Gov. Deane C. Davis will narrate.

Thursday, March 25 POSTPONED until March 31 - Faculty String Quartet Concert.

Agricultural Engineering Student Club presents Mr. E. C. Lamb, Ford Motor Company, Albany, N.Y., illustrated discussion and film, "Agriculture 2000," followed by open forum, 7 p.m., Agricultural Engineering Building.

Friday, March 26 Deadline for submitting manuscripts to music department for "Amadeus" student musical composition award. Sociology and Psychology Colloquium, Dr. Stephen L. Klineberg, Princeton, (Phi Beta Kappa visiting scholar), "Modernization and the Adolescent Experience," 3 p.m., Memorial Lounge, Waterman Building.

Lane Film Society Series presents "Neglected Masterpieces": first, "The Miracle Worker," (Anne Bancroft, Patty Duke), 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, Benedict Auditorium March Life Sciences week preceded by a newsworld of the period. Tickets $1 single film, $5 season, on sale at Lane Office and at door. Folk Dance Group meets, 8 p.m., Southwick Ballroom.

Friday at Four, open house, 4 p.m., Arena Theatre.

Sunday, March 28 Alpha Zeta Sugar Party, 12 noon - 4 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Student Association speaker - Georgia legislator Julian Bond, 8 p.m., Patrick Gymnasium; tickets $1.50 at door or at S.A. desk, Billings Center. Lecture followed by questions and answers.

ALSO OF INTEREST: March 24: Burlington Art Month: art education classes for adults, 7 p.m., basement, Ira Allen Chapel. March 27: Vermont High School Debate Tournament. BAM children's art classes, 9 a.m. - 2 p.m., basement, Ira Allen Chapel. Art films during the class periods, 101 Voice Building.

WATCH FOR: March 30: Lab safety lecture - demonstration. March 31: Faculty String Quartet concert. Lecture, "Pollution in the Soviet Union." April 1: Lane Rod Series Concert, James Dick. Lecture, "Figuratively Speaking." April 2: Electrical Engineering Seminar. Children's play, "Rumpelstiltskin." Lane Film Society Series, "Ballad of a Soldier."

DEADLINE for the calendar of March 29 - April 4 will be March 24 at 10 a.m.

Tuesday, March 30 Lecture - demonstration, Mr. Henry Balboni, chief safety engineer, IBM, "Chemical Safety in the Laboratory," 1 p.m., Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building. Sponsored by the Safety Committee, College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Wednesday, March 31 Lecture, Prof. Marshal I. Goldman, Wellesley College and Russian Research Center, Harvard, "Pollution in the Soviet Union," 7:30 p.m., Carpenter Auditorium. Given Medical Building; sponsored by department of economics and business administration in cooperation with the program of Russian and East European studies.

Faculty String Quartet Concert, 8:30 p.m., Ira Allen Chapel.

during the summer will include

Liberty Union

There will be a meeting of the Liberty Union on Sunday, March 21 at 1:00 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hammar at 15 Pine Street in Springfield. The proposed statement of Liberty Union Principles and Programs will be discussed at the meeting. All interested persons are urged to attend.

The Liberty Union was formed in June 1970 and ran candidates for most of the major state offices in the last election. Currently the Liberty Union is involved with such organizations as the New England Poor Peoples Congress, Work, Inc., and other low income groups as well as environmental groups and various conservation activities around the state.

Synchronized Swim Club Results

Synchronized Swim Club placed first overall in the Eastern Intercollegiate Synchronized Swimming - Routine Competition.

Intermediate Duets: "Scare Trench" by Linda Liston and Diane Mantouel. "Young Lovers" by Larry Westover and Karen Brundage. Intermediate Groups: "Welcome To My Pad" by Cindy Matteson, Diane Mantouel and Judy Blanchard. "Patton" by Cindy Marresin, Judy Blanchard, Wayne Davis. "Young Lovers" by Larry Westover, Karen Brundage and Linda Liston. Advanced Solos: "Old Fun City" by Lynn Williams. Advanced Duets: "Jewels" by Lynn Williams and Pat Sauer.

Prof. Klineberg To Speak

Prof. Stephen L. Klineberg of Princeton University, a social psychologist who will speak on "Toward a Social Psychology of the Black Ghetto," Friday (March 26) at UVM as part of the Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program.

His 8 p.m. lecture in Waterman lower lounge will cover a number of topics, including classes, seminars and a colloquium on social movements, violence, time perception, and social psychology sponsored by the University's Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Peace Treaty

Groups for organized action against the war, including one on the Peace Treaty, will be held Thursday, March 25th at 8:00 p.m. in Billings, North Lounge. Note: A referendum on the Treaty is anticipated in April.

Vietnam Veterans

Vietnam Veterans who have not filled out an opinion poll may pick one up at the Student Association Activities desk. Please pick them up and fill them out so we know how all Nam vets feel.

There will be a meeting for Vietnam Veterans Thursday, March 25 at 7:00 p.m. in Conference Room B (Lower Billings).

NAACP To Sponsor "King"

The NAACP and the Burlington Council of Churches, in connection with the LaMancha Project, will sponsor a one-day showing of Eli Landau's "King." The three hour film, about the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, will be shown at Cinema I on the Shelburne Road, Thursday, April 1. There will be two showings: 9:00 AM and 1:30 PM. Tickets can be obtained from Dr. Frank Manchel.

Department of English, telephone 656-3056-7.

SKI RACK
BECOMES A
BIKE RACK
The Best Computer Store

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

Indispensable pairs.
Love and spring.
Engagements and weddings.
PRICES START AT UNDER $100
YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO OPEN A CHARGE ACCOUNT.

F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
JEWELRY, SILVER, GOLD, AND WATCHES
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON

Our Drive-in Windows
Make Banking
Easy at....

Chittenden
TRUST COMPANY
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

KENT STATE

WHAT HAPPENED-AND WHY
Pulitzer-prize winner, James Michener, recreates the tragedy at Kent. In an eye-opening book condensation he reveals, step by step, the events that led to the fatal shootings. It is all here, including the surprising reactions from adults and students across the country, and Michener's advice about handling the division between American lifestyles. One of 38 articles and features in the April READER'S DIGEST

Junior Year in New York

Washington Square College of Arts and Science of New York University sponsors a Junior Year in New York.

The College, located in the heart of the city, is an integral part of the exciting metropolitan community of New York City—the business, cultural, artistic, and financial center of the nation. The city's extraordinary resources greatly enrich both the academic program and the experience of living at New York University with the most cosmopolitan student body in the world.

This program is open to students recommended by the deans of the colleges to which they will return for their degrees.

There are strong and varied offerings in many areas, such as fine arts, urban studies, languages including non-Eu. open, mathematics in the College and at the Courant Institute, psychology, and others.

A qualified student may register for courses in all other schools of the University, including the specializations in Commerce and Education.

The University sponsors programs in Spain and France. Write for brochure to Director, Junior Year in New York

New York University
New York, N.Y. 10003

The Way In SMARTIE PANTS.

For Gals in the Know...
Smartie Pants
in Suede, Leathers, Denims
and PolyKnits.

From $7-to $25.

MAGRAMS

There is a chance your children will wish they had never been born.

zero population growth

the c

Column No. 4, March 1971

Address letters to Dr. Arnold
Box 974, East Lansing, MI

QUESTION: I would like to know if cause any birth defects in an unborn child.
ANSWER: Your question is deceptively different possible questions you might ask in an oblique manner.

Children born to women who have been and then stopped their use in order to have a higher incidence of birth defects although multiple births has occasionally been reported.
If your question is directed at the fetus woman conceived while taking oral contraceptives, then the answer is more complicated. When correctly taken, oral contraceptives with the oral contraceptives is so very long time to find enough children lucky circumstances to draw any conclusions of hormones can be damaged and can even result in an alteration of sex is unlikely that the doses in oral contraceptives.

The last question that came to mind was the woman started to take birth control she was already pregnant. As in this case, would be a very difficult thing to study and while the chances for damage are harmless.

The prescribing doctor should always instruct the woman on the use of the begin on the 5th day of the menstrual cycle. At this time are negligible. Un-start oral contraceptives by bootlegging script without ever seeing a doctor.

Selective Serv

The Selective Service System requir-today announced a new policy that closes two loopholes in draft regulations used by draft resisters and at the same time makes it easier for young men to be inducted in any part of the country, regardless of the location of their local boards.

A Presidential Executive Order, published today in the Federal Register, authorizes any called registrant to be voluntarily inducted at any to Armed Forces Entrance and Examining Station (AFES), provided that he reports to the AFES prior to his scheduled date of induction, and after he has received his induction order.

The new policy removes the restriction that formerly re-

More New Areas of Need!!!

Agency: Burlington Area Tenant
Union
Project: Organizing community tenants around issues concerning tenant rights, landlord-tenant code enforcement, housing shortage.
This will include office work as well as field work.

Agency: Wellstone - Rights
Organization
Project: Students are needed in increasing the aged in the community and informing them of their Social Security rights, medicare eligibility, and about Food Stamps. At the same time students could observe the housing situation and feedback any substantial housing to the Burlington Area Tenant Union.

Agency: Riverside Apts. Project
Project: Students are needed to work in outdoor recreational project with children 9-14 years old who live in the apts. It was low income area and the children need more social contact.

Agency: Bennett C. Douglas
School
Project: People are needed to work in our wood shop helping the classroom teacher to supervise 3-12 children "sawing and sanding."
These children are in the trainable mentally retarded program and have a desire to learn how to construct simple projects.

Agency: Adams School
Project: SKIING The school is presently offering instruction in skiing to their students but they need more instructors. The children are in the 4, 5, and 6 grades and the majority can ski well already.

Project: The school also needs Arts and Crafts instructors and volunteers.

Agency: Big Brothers
Project: Three Big Brothers are desperately needed for girls 10-11 and 13. One of the girls is handicapped, all the girls need help.

Agency: Wellstone Rights
Project: Students are needed right away to help push a campaign for more extensive Medication Legislation.

Older Projects will need help too.

Agency: Thayer School
Project: Students are needed to organize and supervise after school sports for students. People are also needed to do general tutoring with specific children.

Agency: The Place
Project: Helping people who have become involved with drugs as well as educating them who have not.
The drug is a two way street, it needs your help.

Agency: FIRMAMENT
Project: The need students to work in the production of a newspaper to be published which will deal with the issue of survival in the community.
There will be more than one issue of the FIRMAMENT so if you like you can continue.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

Column No. 4, March 1971

© 1971 College Press Service

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lanning, ME 04823

QUESTION: I would like to know if birth control pills could cause any birth defects in an unborn child.

ANSWER: Your question is deceptively simple. I thought of three different possible questions you might be asking, so I'll answer them in an ontogenetic order.

Children born to women who have been on oral contraceptives and then stopped their use in order to become pregnant do not have a higher incidence of birth defects although a higher frequency of multiple births has occasionally been reported.

If your question is directed at the situation that would exist if a woman conceived while taking oral contraceptives, the answer is more complicated. When correctly taken, the incidence of pregnancy with the oral contraceptives is so low that it would take a very long time to find enough children who started life in such luckless circumstances to draw any conclusions. It is known that high doses of hormones can be damaging to the developing child and can even result in an alteration of sexual characteristics, but it is unlikely that the doses in oral contraceptives are sufficient to do this.

The last question that came to mind was: What would happen if the woman started to take birth control pills not realizing that she was already pregnant? As in the preceding example, this would be a very difficult thing to study as it occurs very rarely and while the chances for damage are small one cannot be sure how small.

The prescribing doctor should always perform a pelvic examination and instruct the woman on the use of the pill. It is usually begun on the 5th day of the menstrual flow. Chances for pregnancy at this time are negligible. Unfortunately, many women start oral contraceptives by bootlegging pills from a friend's prescription without ever seeing a doctor. People who practice medicine on themselves (either with or without a license) are probably foolish enough to take birth control pills after getting pregnant.

QUESTION: I wish you would comment on Linus Pauling's book "Vitamin C and the Common Cold." Aside from its effect on colds, what are the known effects of taking large doses of Vitamin C? Is the Pauling regimen completely harmless? I'm hesitant to ingest any medication in large amounts.

ANSWER: Pauling himself states in his book that the long term controlled studies, involving a sufficiently large number of people to determine the effects of Vitamin C in treating the common cold, have not yet been done. The studies that he quotes, according to many experts in pharmacology (the study of drugs and their effects) were not designed to take into account the normal differences in infections, idiosyncrasies of the host's response, and many other factors. In addition much of the material quoted is strictly anecdotal. Investigation of high doses of vitamins in the treatment of certain illnesses is warranted. However, to print material which would encourage large numbers of people to take massive doses of any medication before there is proof of value is unwise.

Large doses of Vitamin C are not harmless. For instance, it is people susceptible to gout, kidney stones can be precipitated. Vitamin C interferes with the common urine sugar tests used by diabetics. Pregnant women on large doses of Vitamin C are thought to give birth to babies who have adapted to the huge amounts and when they are placed on a normal diet develop symptoms of scurvy. There have not been enough people on large doses of vitamins long enough to know the full impact of these vitamins on their systems.

The misuse of prescription and non prescription medications is very widespread. At times, people alter their physiologic balance and bacterial flora to such a degree that they become, in the words of one of my favorite physicians, comparable to an ecologic disaster.

Celebrate Spring At The Maple Sugar Festival

Spring is just around the corner, and so is the 4th Annual Maple Sugar Festival. Only in Vermont in the springtime can you become truly acquainted with the real activities and wonderful smells of pure maple syrup. Come to St. Albans, Vermont and the Franklin County Maple Festival on April 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, and see for yourself.

Highlights for this three day fun filled weekend are many and fill everyone's interest. Guided bus tours will take you to sugarhouses where you can watch the huge evaporators turn maple sap into pure maple syrup. You can even taste the hot maple syrup as it comes off the pan. Don't forget to bring warm clothing and boots. Come one, come all, and bring the kiddies too!

Friday night will highlight the crowning of a new Maple Queen at the Miss Vermont Regional Pageant. Also on Friday evening will be a Western-Square Dance and a Teen Dance.

Hot pancakes, pure Vermont Maple Syrup, sausages, and hot coffee. Sound good — you bet! You and your family can sit down to this delicious pancake breakfast on both Saturday and Sunday morning.

Saturday afternoon is the time for the Governor's Day Parade. Governor Deane C. Davis will be presiding. The parade will include floats, marching bands, Queen of the Maple Festival, and everything else needed to make a parade exciting.

The Maple Banquet on Saturday evening will feature the traditional Vermont turkey dinner, and all the trimmings. Following the presentation of special maple awards — at the banquet, one can move on to the Old Fashion Fiddler's Contest. No one will want to miss the toe tapping tunes of the fiddlers of the area. Each fiddler will be vying for top spot.

An antique flea market, craft show, and an art show are events you won't want to miss on your visit to the festival. Hand knits of all kinds, candy, ceramics, wood craft, along with many other goods are on sale at the craft exhibit and sale. Antique lovers will be around looking for antique goods to purchase before someone else does. These surely will be something for everyone.

Paul LaCross, "world's fastest, lancest, greatest, knife and tomahawk thrower," will have a show on Saturday afternoon, April 4th. Bring the whole family.

Maple cotton candy, maple syrup, candy and cream, are some of the goodies you won't want to miss trying. Then there is sugar-on-snow, this is maple symp boiled down, served on snow with pickles and doughnuts. Sound like fun? You bet it is. Going to be? You won't want to miss a single event. These plus 4th, in St. Albans, Vermont.

CLASS OF 1972

Senior Portraits March 28 and 30, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. — 3 p.m. in Conference Room A. Only portraits taken by official ARIEL photographer, MacLean's Studio can be accepted for the 1972 UVM Yearbook.

ARIEL Staff

CLASS OF 1972

YOUR YEARBOOK PHOTOGRAPH PLUS

Your retouched negative in our files will enable you to get overnite service for applications, passports or portraits needed in your senior year. Call for an appointment at your convenience any day from 9 to 5

CARR STUDIOS

TEL. 864-4411

199 Main St.

Next to Strong Theatre

Jesse James and Co.

OUR MAN IN ST. ALBANS, VERMONT

A totally new approach to retailing will make our new St. Albans store (opening mid-May) the most exciting store in the area. Eight different and distinct shops in one store will offer the finest things—handmade or from the best manufacturers.

2 NO. MAIN ST., ST. ALBANS
167 CHURCH ST., BURLINGTON

SCOTT PERSING, U.V.M. '73
New Store Manager

Selective Service Closes Two Draft Loopholes

The Selective Service System today announced a new policy that closes two loopholes in draft regulations used by draft resisters and at the same time makes it easier for young men to be inducted in any part of the country, regardless of the location of their local boards.

A Presidential Executive Order, published today in the Federal Register, authorizes any called registrant to be voluntarily inducted at any Armed Forces Entrance and Examining Station (AFES), provided that he reports to the AFES prior to his scheduled date of induction, and after he has received his induction order.

The new policy removes the restriction that formerly required "hardship" or "good reason" to support a request for transfer and eliminates the administrative requirement for a delay in induction for those registrants who have moved to new locations.

The new regulations further provide that if the registrant does not submit for induction three or more days prior to his scheduled date, he must report on the date originally indicated to the site specified on his induction order. This means that men who choose to refuse induction will be referred for prosecution in the judicial districts which service the areas of their local boards. Implementing instructions to local boards on the new regulations will be issued shortly.

Selective Service officials said that the new regulation will not affect any cases now before the courts, or cases where violations have already occurred.

VISTA

WHAT DO YOU DO AFTER YOU GRADUATE?
JOIN VISTA — THAT'S WHAT!

Volunteers In Service To America
On campus March 24, 25 and 26.

Fifth Avenue CARD Shop

VERMONT'S LARGEST CARD SHOP

WITH A WIDE SELECTION OF:

- Posters
- Wall Placks
- Buttons
- Incense
- Stationary
- Novelty Gifts

We Honor MBP and Collegiate Club Cards

BURLINGTON SHOPPING PLAZA
SHELBURNE ROAD
Located in the enclosed Mall next to Cinema 1 & 2

IMPORTANT

Students — please buy your books by April 5th. On that date we will begin preparing for the summer & fall semesters.

UNIVERSITY STORE

ON THE CAMPUS

More New Areas of Need!!

Agency: Burlington Area Tenants Union

Project: Organizing community tenants around issues concerning housing, minimum housing code enforcement, housing shortage. This will include office work as well as field work.

Agency: Welfare Rights Organization

Project: Students are needed in locating the aged in the community and informing them of their Social Security rights, Medicare eligibility, and about Food Stamps. At the same time students could observe the housing situation and feedback any substandard housing to the Burlington Area Tenants Union.

Agency: Riverside Apts. Project

Project: Students are needed to work in outdoor recreational project with children 8-14 years old who live in the apts. It is a low income area and the children need more social contact.

Agency: Bennett C. Douglas School

Project: People are needed to work on a wood shop helping the classroom Teacher to supervise 5-12 children "sawing and pounding." These children are in the trainable mentally retarded program and have a desire to learn how to construct simple projects.

Agency: Adams School

Project: SKIING!!! The school is presently offering instruction in skiing to their students but they need more instructors. The children are in the 4, 5, and 6 grades and the instructors can ski well already.

Project: The school also needs Art and Craft instructors and assistants.

Agency: Big Brothers

Project: Three Big Brothers are desperately needed for boys 10, 11, and 13. One of the boys is handicapped, all the boys need help.

Agency: Welfare Rights

Project: Students are needed right away to help push a campaign for more extensive Medicaid legislation.

Other Projects will need help!!!

Agency: Thayer School

Project: Students are needed to organize and supervise after school sports for students. People are also needed to do general tutoring with specific children.

Agency: The Place

Project: Helping people who have become involved with drugs as well as educating those who have not. The drug is a two way street, it needs your help.

Agency: FIRMAMENT

Project: We need students to work on the production of a newspaper to be published which will deal with the issue of survival in this community. There will be more than one issue of the FIRMAMENT so if you like you can continue.

Faculty String Quartet

Club presents Mr. E. C. Lamb, N.Y. illustrated discussion and led by open forum, 7 p.m.

Scripts to music department for contest award.

Colloquium, Dr. Stephen L. Kapp (visiting scholar), "Experience," 3 p.m., Memorial events "Neglected Masterpieces" (one Bancroft, Perry Duke), 6:30 p.m. Auditorium Marsh Life Festival of the period. Tickets $1.00. Office and at door. 100 Southwick Ballroom. 10 p.m., Arena Theatre

10 p.m., 4 p.m., Gutterson Field

Georgia legislator Julian Bond, 8 p.m. $1.50 at door or at S.A. desk, by questions and answers

24: Burlington Art Month: art in, basement, Ira Allen Chapel. Debate Tournament, BAM 101 Votey Building.

Sh safety lecture demonstration. Concert, Lecture, "Pollution in Red Series Concert, James Dick. April 3: Electrical Engineering

April 4: Lane Film Society of March 29 - April 4 will be

Henry Balboni, chief safety in the Laboratory, 3 p.m., Sciences Building. Sponsored by Dept. of Agriculture and Home

Oldman, Wellesley College and Harvard, "Pollution in the Soviet Union," 7 p.m., Auditorium. Given Medical Department of economics and business with the program of Russian and 8:30 p.m., Ira Allen Chapel.

Swim Club Results

Swim Club placed first. Easter Intercollegiate Swimming Routine

Touchdown

and Diane Manteau

er and Karen Brundage

pe: "Pad" firsts

on, Diane Manteau and sixth

min, Judy Blanchard

er, Karen Brundage and firsts

and Pat Sauer firsts

is ce dren they ver
orn.

LEFT BANK SHOES

were inspired by the students of Paris, those young, dedicated lovers of honesty, freedom and all things beautiful. Sound like someone you know? Maybe yourself? Then these shoes are for you, baby.

CONNIE

As seen in Mademoiselle

JONATHAN in uppers of Natural duck, White or Black crinkle patent, or Navy patent. $25.

HITCHHIKE in Violet, Mauve Pink, White, Taupe or Light Brown suede uppers. $25.

DUNDEE in Navy or Tan smooth Gradye leather uppers. $25.

THE TOWNE SHOP

A Fashion Group Store - Downtown Burlington

Letters To The Editor

Childish Protest

to the Editor:

Yesterday I chanced to be in the Billings Center for the first time since I graduated UVM several years ago. What I saw rather disappointed me: a handful of phony children, masquerading as college students, who insisted on stomping around the building to the playing of kazoo's.

I suppose they were protesting the presence of the Navy recruiters. But instead of getting a logical point across, they only impressed me as displaying their juvenile behavior.

Does the Marine Corps Band come crashing through anti-air rallies, playing "God Bless America"? Do the Republicans stomp the Democratic Convention? For God's sake, kids, every time you go off on a little game like that, you only sink one notch lower. If you must do it, do it in an orderly fashion.

Sincerely,
James Blough

Five

Five point bonus, Mr. America, late night little American men, seller success, and have at least, of American media, a little 7E with its simulated concern ULTRA WHITE sex appeal. And emission control FORD, Avenue, "safety" America (don't man, play for fun, it's safer, and come without any feeling to

The Solution

has failed to sign its name. SA VOICES' petition that SA did, however, vote to campus, enabling each own decision. The S.A.'s dy is commendable. tion pointed out, it would a petition without adding ates and South Vietnamese basic rights that are listed. evidence to prove our guilt as this petition as a port to support American voiding his responsibilities. already been signed with ect? Unfortunately, your a realistic solution to the withdrawal can help the our efforts to attain this d by petitions that can not

R. R.

Outdated Penal Systems Persist In U.S.

by Mike Donnelly

The most hidden sector of the system of law and order in the United States is the penal system. This is the system which is supposed to rehabilitate criminals and deter people from crime. However, there has never been a system of prisons which has been able to accomplish these things, and our present system is no exception.

The idea that prison deters people from committing crime is ridiculous. Crimes are brought about by abnormal conditions, and thoughts of prison are not entertained under these conditions. Most criminals are a product of some abnormal environmental conditions or have some abnormal mental condition (such as, psychopaths, kleptomaniacs, etc.). For these people, prison terms cannot mean anything. Other people, such as those who are poor, may have to commit a crime against society because of the crime society has committed against them. These people may have only the choice between crime and starvation. Prisons are full of people who have been convicted of somewhat dubious "crimes." In all of these cases the horror of spending some time in prison is not part of the plan. Either the person does not plan to be caught; or he doesn't care if he is caught.

The cornerstone of the deterrent theory is capital punishment. It also points out the weakness of the theory better than anything else. In order for anyone to commit the act of murder, he must be under great stress, and therefore will not be rational. Anger, fear, hate or mental illness override any fear of punishment. Capital punishment will not prevent murder.

The prison as a rehabilitative center is a complete flop. If a person cannot adjust to "normal" society and earn a living without resorting to crime, a term in prison and a little training will not change that. If a person must steal to eat, a few months in prison will not change anything. If people demonstrate and riot, prison terms and smashed skulls are not going to change the social conditions that sparked the disturbances. It is obvious that prison does not reach the roots of the problem.

The problem of criminal punishment and rehabilitation must be attacked in two ways. One, the prison system must be changed to accommodate the types of people it must deal with. Cages are inhumane treatment, even for animals. The type of training now offered in prisons is more like programming a computer than rehabilitating a person. Besides training a person in order that he may earn a living, he must be given the help he needs to adjust to the society around him. This leads to the second method of attack. The social conditions must sometimes be changed to accommodate the man. Slums breed crime and until they are removed, the problem is not solved. Poverty can lead to crime and until it is wiped out, the problem remains. The problems caused by unjust laws and social conditions cannot be solved by clubbing people and throwing them into prison. Criminals must be punished; but unless the underlying socio-economic causes of crime are removed, the number of criminals can only increase.

It is surprising that a country as advanced as this one still runs its prison system on the same principles and theories of the Middle Ages. It is surprising that the country that started the SPCA continues to cage human beings as a means to prevent crime. The penal system in this country is at best, unable to meet its self-stated goals of deterrence and rehabilitation. At worst, the system only serves to destroy human beings and perpetuate the problems of our society. The penal system, like many other institutions in this country, treats symptoms, while the disease is killing the patient. We need cures, not temporary relief.

Billings Renovation

Approximately $60,000 will be poured into the Billings Center for renovations beginning June 1971. The space in the Lower Billings area will be renovated with increased seating and expanded food services. In an up coming issue of the CYNIC the Billings Center Governing Board will reveal final plans.

During the past semester the Billings Center Governing Board has been active in providing general improvements. Light has been more than doubled in the Round Room, North Lounge and Marsh Lounge. This was accomplished without changing the visual effect of the building by increasing wattage in the converted gas lanterns.

The music listening rooms are in the process of being redone. All the rooms will be provided with turntables and two will have cassette decks. Last semester one speaker monofield system was in each room due to the limitations of space. To accommodate stereo, Shure-Pair Mounted Stereo Headphone amplifiers will be installed with the capability of having 2 stereo headphones plugged into each.

The Sisco Kid: Pigskin '70

In 1970, football at the University of Vermont appeared to be at the end of the long, bitter line. The old coach was virtually dismissed by the team players. The new coach opened his first season at UVM without a single win. The team dwindled to a handful of players, incurring injury after injury. The Student Association decided to mount a drive to relieve the Athletic Department of its money for football grants-in-aid. The empty Calumet Stadium rang out with hollow cheers on Saturday afternoons. Things couldn't have been much worse for football at UVM at the end of the '70 season.

Those aren't excuses for last year's poor season. Those are the reasons for last year's poor season. However, college football is not supported on rationale or excuses, but, instead, results. It is win or nothing, and we sufficiently proved that last year. While our classmates collected bruises and heartache working for a win for their school and state, we sat at home watching ABC's College Football Game(s) of the Week. This writer can easily understand Coach Scannella's one word description of last season. Disappointing.

As for the 1971 season Coach Scannella reports he is optimistic. After last season a coach can't go anywhere but up, so the optimism should be expected. Unfortunately, it is difficult for this writer to remain objective and be more than a pessimist.

Last Sunday's turnout for our returning men-on-skates was as encouraging as the disappointment was in our dismal support for our men-on-the-gridiron last season. We students tend to go with winners and abandon losers similar to rats leaving a sinking ship. Football is of no use to a student body unless it can enhance the prestige of their school and their pride in being a member of that school. To accomplish patronization of the student body in football the team has to win, and to win it has to score.

UVM has a good football team, that is, good enough for the Yankee Conference. Last year the team could not find the keyhole to the end zone, although there were plenty of keys on the team to unlock that keyhole. This year the Coach will have to teach the team the way across the previously elusive chalk line. To become a successful team at their own university, the UVM squad has to be more than a ninety-nine yard team.

Of course, the SA's attempt to hobble the football financial program was another good shot at sensationalism, but it didn't enhance the team's morale; and, if the football program is a losing endeavor and we, the students, want our money returned, let's be logical about the whole thing. If we are going to take our money away from the program, we shouldn't leave it crippled to die in misery. If we choose to do away with athletic grants-in-aid for football, we should abolish the entire football program. To retain coaching staffs in the future after taking away their recruiting effectiveness is poor financial management. Sell the equipment, while it is still salable. Put Centennial Field on the auction block or build another one of those square brick dormitories between the twenty yard lines.

However, if we should decide to support the program let us commit ourselves to that support whether the Cats are conference champs, contenders, or just football players trying to win for themselves, their school, and their state. Our support can be shown in many ways: the discontinuing of threatening the program's funds; administrative vocal support, spring practice attendance, scrimmage attendance, and game attendance. Only if we can give the team this kind of support can we expect results of success instead of the repeated defeats of yesterday.

The athletic grants-in-aid program is one of very few avenues of financial aid open to black and underprivileged students and shouldn't be destroyed to be remodeled, but, rather it should be employed to its utmost effectiveness. The athletic grants-in-aid program at UVM is precisely that. This aid is based on need with program at UVM is precisely that. This aid is based on need with fifteen full boats being divided among fifty players. These players have maintained an academic standing that is on the median of the university with the only academic trouble coming from two freshmen who just happened to be outstanding high school scholars. The grants-in-aid program can be used to finance the underprivileged students as SA proposed, instead of the scheme other schools have employed of using the players in these categories thereby supplementing their football program and eradicating duplication of aid money under the guise of laudable social action.

Coach Scannella and his staff are attempting to raise the level of their team both in academic and gridiron performance. The Coach is traveling about the state attempting to raise the level of statewide recognition, enthusiasm, and support. The coaching staff welcomes any and all to come out for spring practice, April 12, and are trying to inaugurate an annual Alumni v. Varsity scrimmage to end the practice season each spring. These efforts as well as ours as students may lead our team from the cellar and give them the previously absent push to cross into the diagonal stripes.

A. Williams Shere

Bernadette Devlin Stumps U.S. For Ulster Catholics

SEATTLE, Wash. (CPS)

These crazy Irish have always been fighting about something like a religious squabble that every other civilized country resolved long ago.

That's the kind of impression most Americans get of the conflict in Northern Ireland via the nation's news media. The bloodshed, the mayhem and the rift between Protestants and Catholics make the news. It's the overt violence in the streets that's news.

Bernadette Devlin will tell you about a more subtle, but equally vicious violence in Ireland. The youngest member of the British Parliament on a fund-raising speaking tour of U.S. college campuses says the conflict is not between religious faiths, but between groups fighting for survival.

"The Catholics are not given to detesting the Papal infallibility, the Virgin Birth or the 34 Articles," she says. "They don't care about what the Bishop preaches."

They care about jobs, she says. Throughout Northern Ireland, ten per cent of the male population is out of work. In some areas, unemployment exceeds 50 per cent.

"The rich Catholics are not fighting the rich Protestants," explains Devlin. "Heads of churches are not at each other's throats, but are friends."

"It is the working classes, living for jobs, that are fighting each other."

Because the new media in this country refuse to portray the Irish conflict as a class struggle, Devlin has been cross-examined the nation, speaking at colleges and universities explaining the situation in her home country. Jobs are scarce and unemployment is high because a man can not support his family on the low wages he receives—approximately 12 pounds for a 40-hour week ($29.68); and must work overtime, therefore taking away a possible job from another person, according to Devlin.

"An unemployed person gets 15 pounds a week," she says, "thus he gets more money by not working, but it is degrading to him as a human being."

Voting in "Britain's last colony" is based on property ownership. The number of votes allotted an individual depends on the amount of property he owns. It is also possible for a landlord to vote in the name of all the tenants in his building. "Some people cast as many as 150 votes in one election," she says.

Voting has nothing to do with religion, but with economic reasons. "We, the working class of Ireland, south as well as north, are single-minded in that we do not have control of what happens to our lives," Devlin says. "We are just extensions of machinery."

The answer, as she sees it, is that the people must take over the means of production throughout the world. Referring to her visit with Angela Davis last month, now in jail in California on charges of murder, she believes both she and Angela are involved in the same struggle.

"We, the working class, have been told that capitalism is the system under which we must live, but our own history tells us, as with the black people of America, that our history is unwritten. We know what capitalism has done for us. We have become fatter in its wars, in its profit-making, in its fighting against itself."

TRY SLEEPING ON THIS!

Whitey, Wake Up ...

by Brooks F. McCabe

Whitey, what does King mean to you? This word should provoke a hair of the emotions, a tingling in the spine, perhaps even a twinge of hatred, for King is one of the most acclaimed documentary films in cinema history.

King: A Filmed Record, Montgomery to Memphis, recalls the historic civil rights struggles from 1955 to 1968. The film focuses on the late Dr. Martin Luther King as a leader, spawned by a movement of Black people determined to achieve freedom. The chronicle begins with the Montgomery bus boycott that propelled Dr. King into national prominence. Newsreel and television footage re-create the lunch-counter sit-ins, the Freedom Rides, the 1963 March on Washington, the police dogs and fire hoses in Birmingham, the Selma voter registration campaign, the Chicago open housing campaign, the Poor People's Campaign, the Memphis sanitation workers' strike, and finally, Dr. King's funeral.

The music of the civil rights marchers provides the sound track for much of the film. Other voices include Mahalia Jackson, Odette, and Nina Simone. King himself supplies most of the prose with his unforgettable sermons, "I Have a Dream" and "I Have Been to the Mountain Top," and his speeches denouncing bigotry and war. Between episodes, selections from sources such as the Bible and Langston Hughes are read by Harry Belafonte, Ruby Dee, Ben Gazzara, James Earl Jones, Anthony Quinn, and Clarence Williams III. The film contains no narration, thereby avoiding any editorializing. The events speak for themselves.

Ely Landau conceived and produced the film. For two years he compiled all available footage on King. The end result not only paid tribute to a fallen leader, but documented the history of the civil rights movement. Originally destined only to be shown on one night, March 24, 1970, simultaneously to half a million people in 300 cities as a tribute to King, the film generated unprecedented enthusiasm. The unanimous acclaim for the film both as a social document and an artistic endeavor suggested that a wide audience existed. The Martin Luther King Foundation thus decided to make the film available to the general public during 1971. This Year of Rededication is intended to re-focus national attention on the precepts and programs to which Dr. King dedicated his life.

Through the efforts of the Burlington Council of Churches, the La Mancha Project, and the NAACP, King will come to Burlington on April 1. Showings will be held at Cinema 3 at 2 A.M. and 1:30 P.M. at a cost of one dollar per person. Whitey, in the words of the Denver Post, "No one can morally afford not to see it."

Jersey Students

Support Police Strike

by Steve Bengtson

College Press Service/

TRENTON, N.J. (CPS)—Trenton State College students last week served hot drinks and soup to members of the city police and fire departments who were picketing in a city employees labor dispute.

The action was taken, according to student spokesman Dennis Kutz, "to support the strike and to flip them out."

"They couldn't understand it," Kutz said. "One said: 'I'll remember that the next time I'm gonna bust somebody for grass.'"

More than 200 policemen and firemen on strike in New Jersey's capital last week attempted to blockade commercial traffic from the city's downtown section. Officially, the action is not a strike, since only off-duty patrolmen and firemen have participated. "The city is fully protected," said one fireman, wearing his fireman's raincoat to ward off the cold. There were no arrests in the unsuccessful blockade attempt.

According to police and firemen, the New Jersey Teamsters Union has agreed to cooperate with them, in honoring their "sick" lines. The Bell Telephone Co. has also agreed, according to the patrolmen. On-duty policemen have been trailing trucks that didn't honor the picket lines, ticketing the most minor traffic violation.

Other companies in the city have sympathized with the strike action, including the Yellow Cab Co., which took cabs off the streets.

The main gripe of the strikers revolves around a wage-increase dispute.

The "blockade" is the "first of its kind in this country, according to lawyer Lawrence N. Stein. Stein, City officials have still not decided whether or not to seek an injunction to halt the action.

The Changing Greeks Questions & Answers

by Jack Arute

This past Saturday, UVM held its annual Vermont High School Day for statewide high school juniors. Fraternity Forum and PanHiel representatives were on hand to answer questions which the visitors might have had about the Greek System. Some of these questions and the answers were as follows:

I live in Burlington. How can I be in a fraternity if I can't live in? Many girls asked this same question about sororities. Although the policy varies from house to house, special exception is made for people who live at home while attending UVM. In fact, in many sororities and some fraternities, there is not even a requirement that the members live in the house. A close look at a list of Greeks and their addresses will show many living in dorms or apartments.

I've heard that it is quite expensive to be in a fraternity or sorority. This statement is an outgrowth of a true fact. A few years past, maybe, but not today. Actually on the average, it costs ten dollars per month to be in a fraternity or sorority. A small price for all the benefits. Houses are constantly planning social functions, service projects, and other activities which make it necessary to charge dues.

With all of the privileges of dorms, what are the advantages of being in a Greek House? Fraternities offer much more than social opportunities, which for many years have been highlighted as the major advantage of Greek living. In reality, this is a minor point for joining. Greek living provides its members with a feeling of togetherness. But each member is still an individual. He does contribute some of this individuality to the rest of his brothers or her sisters. This intertwining of individuality and interaction provides for a unique relationship that cannot be found in dormitory living. This relationship manifests itself in all of the activities of a house, not just social events.

What about hazing? Well, the last Changing Greeks column dealt very deeply with this question and from the favorable response of many houses, it is pretty obvious that hazing as a practice is dying or in many cases dead.

There were many more questions centering around these basic issues, but these were the most re-occurring ones. The response to this table has prompted the leaders of both Greek organizations to lay out plans for the development of an information program, complete with visual aids that could be utilized for High School day orientation and registration. These plans are just another example of the "Changing Greeks."

GREEK NOTES: Fraternity Forum chairman elections were held on Wednesday, March 24, and the two new leaders of this organization are Bob McWilliams of Phi Delta Theta, and Jack Arute of Sigma Phi Epsilon. PanHiel has recently announced that they will be working on a service project in hopes of raising funds for the Vermont Artificial Kidney Machine Clinic. More on this in future columns.

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

LIVE
DIE
OR QUIT
YOU CANNOT LOSE

Brooks F. McCabe, Campus Representative
184 So. Winooski Ave., Burlington, VT. 864-6818

National Life
of Vermont

the ski shop

A complete Sportswear Shop

OPEN EVERY NIGHT UNTIL 9 PM

EXCEPT SATURDAY

CALIFORNIA JEANS $8 + $12

50 Pearl St.
Essex Jct.
879-0737

388 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington
862-5488

VISIT OUR FAMOUS BARGAIN BASEMENT

PRO SHOP

SPAULDING CONVERSE CCM
PADDLEBALL RACKETS AND BALLS
SQUASH RACKETS AND BALLS
HANDBALLS

28 MAIN ST.
WINOOSKI, VERMONT
655-2621

Get 'em while they're hot!

You look great in hotpants right now. They're just what you need for kicking up a little spring excitement. Find a pair or two you can't live without in the Underground. It's teeming with hotpants in all kinds of textures and looks, from $6-$22. Get into hotpants, the sooner the better. Spicy overalls sketched, sizes 5-13, $10.

MAYFAIR

Church St. - Burlington
Open Friday until 9

MARCH 25, 1971

ENTERTAINMENT

The Tempest Proves Disappointing

by Jeff Tucker
This past weekend's production of Shakespeare's The Tempest at the Arena Theatre was a disappointment. Although certain individuals clearly stood out from the rest of the cast, the play as a whole did not succeed. The director, S. A.

and confusing. Much of the magical air that should have existed was lost by Ariel, played by Sharon Smith. Although Crocker Bennett was good as Prospero, Alonzo, the King of Naples (M. G. Blane II) hardly came across as all Antonio (Michael Savage) and Sebastian.

the intermission, but that seemed to be due to the scenes with Caliban, Trinculo, and Stephano. It was not until the very end that the basic plot and themes were clear, and made the previous 9/10 of the action seem logical.

With that in mind, it is difficult to call the entire production a good one. The writer saw the performance on opening night, it quite possibly could have improved on succeeding evenings, but in this writer's opinion, considering the problems inherent in the direction, that seems doubtful.

Pres. Andrews Commitment...

(continued from page one)

utilized. There are already some encouraging results. Dean Fordham and our Personnel Office were asked some months ago to improve our staff recruitment channels in Burlington. All possible contacts have been explored, including the N.A.A.C.P. chapter in Burlington, which has been most helpful. Individuals within and outside the University are requested to give us leads and suggestions in all of these efforts. Finally, a special Black concern on this campus, while not related to the above, needs mentioning because the University by happenstance owns parts of both Niggerhead Pond and Niggerhead Mountain in Vermont and this nomenclature is under dispute because of its racial character. I am fond of the Marshfield area and know it well, and I cannot be content when name associations in our lovely land clearly convey a racial slur to so many Americans.

Therefore, I have proposed to the Vermont Board of Libraries a prompt change of name. Formal action by the Board can only follow the receipt of a petition or petitions signed by twenty-five (25) or more Vermonters. Such petitions are being circulated.

Edward C. Andrews, Jr.
President

'Miracle Worker' Opens Next Lane Film Series

"The Miracle Worker," starring Ann Bancroft and Patty Duke, will open the new Lane Film Society Series entitled "Neglected Masterpieces" on Friday, March 26.

The film, to be preceded by a contemporary newscast, will be shown at 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Seaport tickets for the Friday evening series of six movies are $5.00; single film admissions are $1.00. Tickets are on sale in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman and also at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

"The Miracle Worker," directed by Arthur Penn, was written for the screen by William Gibson and based on the same writer's prize-winning television and stage drama. The photography is by Ernest Caparzon. Running time is 107 minutes.

Starring in this 1962 movie is Ann Bancroft, who won an Ann Bancroft and Patty Duke in "The Miracle Worker" Academy Award for Best Actress; Patty Duke, who won an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress; and Victor Jones.

The movie has been transposed to the screen with faithfulness to the original play, but also with the additional breadth and scope and intensity — the motion picture can bring.

The gripping story of how 20-year-old Annie Sullivan (played by Ann Bancroft) struggled desperately to reach the blind, deaf, and mute 7-year-old Helen Keller (Patty Duke) to communicate with a world she could neither see nor hear became a prize-winning film.

It won little Patty Duke an Oscar, and helped raise Ann Bancroft to the top of her profession. Aside from its remarkable dramatic power, "The Miracle Worker" is a splendid example of how to translate a play into film — with, in this case, stage producer, director, author, and

Sharon Smith Appearing In "Tempest"

VandeGriek, apparently attempted to use the various scenes with Caliban (superbly played by Michael Levine), Trinculo (overdone by Jeff Wilson) and Stephano (Leon (Michael Casella) were not much better. All three seemed virtually devoid of personality and their lines tended to fall very flat.

It is only fair to say that the play definitely picked up after Martelli, to carry the whole play. They did not. The very first scene in the play was awful; many of the lines were lost and/or garbled. The audience was in the dark for some time. The entire first half, in fact, of the production, was disjointed.

SKI RACK
Becomes A
BIKE RACK
The Best European Wheel

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

STRONG
Shows at 7 & 9 p.m.

Nominated for...

"Best Foreign Film"

"FIRST LOVE"

"A very beautiful film!"
—Judith Crist, NBC-TV

SHIRLEY GLAZIER presents
MAXIMILIAN SCHELL'S
"FIRST LOVE"
Color UFA PICTURES

Winning Art Contest Entries To Be Displayed

Young artists from elementary schools throughout Vermont have been honored on Vermont Educational Television in a statewide art contest that drew 1,622 entries.

Prizes and honorable mentions went to a total of 12 students in three categories — grades 1-3, grades 4-6, and grades 7-8. The prize-winning works and many other contest entries will be displayed in downtown Burlington banks and shop windows in connection with "Burlington Art Month," an art education project sponsored by the University of Vermont art department.

Contest winners in the grades 1-3 category were: first place, Anna Louise Eighthall, Charlotte Central School; second place, Mary Amerio, Poulin Elementary School; third place, Patricia Thabault, St. Anthony School in Burlington; honorable mention, Chuck Nettleship, Woodstock Elementary School.

Second category winners in grades 4-6 were: first place,

Betsy Howard, Poulin Elementary; second place, Jill Anderson, Middlebury Independent District No. 4 School; third place, Jody Turpin, Vergennes Elementary; and honorable mention, Janis LeBaron, Woodstock Elementary.

Prize winners in the grades 7-8 category were: Mike Long, Stowe Junior High; second place, Geri Reilly, Colchester Junior High; third place, Kerry Lonergan, Shelburne Middle School; honorable mention, Curtis Jacques, Sacred Heart School in Newport.

The contest was judged by Rita Pfeiffer, arts consultant for the Vermont Department of Education; Mrs. John Kennedy of Forest Dale, elementary art teacher in the Northeast Rutland County School District; Arthur Williams, program director for the Vermont Council on the Arts; and Barbara Sandage, graphic artist on the staff of Vermont

ETV.

SPEAKERS BUREAU STUDENT ASSOCIATION PRESENTS JULIAN BOND

MARCH 28, 1971

PATRICK GYMNASIUM

Admission $1.00

8 00pm

FOR MENTIONING THIS AD—

30% OFF

ANY HANDBAG IN OUR SHOP
(ALL HANDCRAFTED LEATHER)

10% OFF

ANY OTHER ITEM IN OUR SHOP
OFFER GOOD THRU MARCH ONLY

AT

SUNDANCE

18 No. Winooski Ave.,
Burlington

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.

106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING
(All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING
(Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

Desegregation

by Mike Honey

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (CPS) — Two recently-released studies show that the Nixon administration's "desegregation" policies in the South have resulted in mass firings and demotions of black teachers and principals, increased discrimination against black students, and the closing of black schools on a large scale.

One study was undertaken by the Race Relations Information Center (RRIC) in Nashville, Tenn. The other, entitled "The Status of School Desegregation in the South, 1970," was a joint project of the American Friends Service Committee, Delta Ministry, Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, and the Washington Research Project.

re Boycot single on the label even if stamped as at all local union meetings so that the union to the general public. That's the farm workers in their struggle for they need your help and cooperation.

ON LABEL LEFT

an - Contact Don Day (408) 7588.

at Pak

Corp. Contact Ben R. Varn (408) 424-

John Meyer (602) 260-0454, 266-22-4130, 424, 1955

be identified by the black aster eagle to see the eagle. If there is no eagle, to lettuce. When you buy union label you are helping all farm workers win an union. Look for the union label of of lettuce you buy

area—that has consistently handled in St. Albans Grand Union officials purchased on the basis of availability, not agree to carry only United Farm re being made to picket stores that will can also help by making sure you buy the Eagle symbol, lettuce. Ask the store and urge him to handle only

WOC, AFL-CIO
11 Harvard St.
Worcester, Mass.
282-4085

plives...

in effect, we are having sex but we're like to be ideally and medically responsible, would you please make contraceptives more readily available?

I even if the University, or some leaders, happen to think that what the students have decided is wrong, that's no solution, two wrongs don't make a right. That's like saying to a drowning man "I told you not to go swimming so soon after eating."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

Q. Does the Protestant Church oppose pre-marital sex? A. That depends on which Protestant you ask. Some do, but the trend seems to be away from that. Besides, it depends on how old the person you ask is. I know a great many students who see nothing inconsistent in having pre-marital sex and being religious in the institutional sense. On the other hand, I have a theory, and this is pretty well documented by my conversations with students, that most of them who are participating in organized religion within a month of their first sexual experience. They really said "It becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. And in a way, it's tragic, because it leads to a lot of unnecessary guilt feelings, or at the very least, the withdrawal of a certain amount of psychic support precisely when it is needed the most."

VERMONT SINIC

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 9

APRIL 1, 1971

SINIC Interview:

Richard M. Nixon, Our Man In Washington

"Now let me make this point perfectly clear."

'Who Cares If He Can Play Hockey- His Hair Is Too Long For All-American'

BOSTON The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced through the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference here Thursday that because of a new code of ethics set forth by a special panel, University of Vermont hockey goalie David Reece would be stripped of his All-American and All-ECAC honors.

The committee, consisting of George Wallace and Tiny Tim, said that because of Reece's long hair and a certain left hat which pops up frequently, the All-American would no longer be an All-American.

"Just because he is the nation's best hockey goalie, it doesn't mean he has to be an All-American," explained Wallace, and then the well known southern sports fan added, "What in heck is hockey anyway?"

Brundage also expressed some concern over a lack of amateurism on Reece's part. "My investigating group, which is made up of tried and true former FBI and CIA men, tell me that Reece endorsed red gum drops, a felt hat and Dippity Doo. That is what I call selling one's profession as a sport."

Brundage also said Reece "is too good to be an amateur." Agnew also had some comments on the situation, but before he could make them known was taken aside by a lawyer over litigation stemming from one of the Vice President's many golf escapades.

Tiny Tim was the one opposing view on the outstanding panel of American nation, apple pie and motherhood.

"I think he is swell," Tim bubbled, "Mr. Reece does a fine job stopping all those pucks, and his hair is shorter than mine."

In addition to Reece, the panel also stripped honors from Bruce Durno, Joe Cavanagh and several other well known hockey players for similar reasons.

The entire Norwich freshman team was selected by the

(continued on page three)

Dave Reece's Unethical Sideburns

"Manna from Heaven"

Ed note, Richard Milhouse Nixon, aliases Tricky Dick, Richard the Lying Hearted, Mr. Establishment and The President, consented to give an exclusive interview with our Washington correspondent, B. Frank Zappa. Mr. Zappa was formerly Associate Editor of TV SCREEN TEEN QUEEN SCENE MAGAZINE, so he has the experience and special credentials necessary for interviewing the only stand-up comedian so sick he couldn't make it in legitimate theatre and had to be made President (see the November elections returns rerun issue of TV SCREEN TEEN QUEEN SCENE MAGAZINE for Mr. Zappa's brilliant analysis of the 1968 Elections and other political farce, "Was Groucho A Marxist?"). Mr. Nixon was extremely hard to reach, especially when he was asked to tell the simple truth, but even before that we had to break through the Gardol Invisible Shield (the best expenditure yet of government money, we realized when we encountered unprecedented air pollution no wonder he had to get a new Cabinet). We finally cornered Mr. Nixon in The White House Bowling Alley where he and the family and a few thousand intimate friends and business associates were throwing the White House Ball.

Mr. Nixon's valet, the indomitable Spiro T. Agnew, was arguing with Tricia about which North Vietnamese ambassador he had just struck with a bowling ball when Willit Work, Secretary of Labor, complained to Mr. Nixon, "How many times do I have to tell you not to yell 'Strike' in front of Company?"

"Don't worry about a thing," said Henry Kissinger, "The White House always has plenty of balls." Before we could give Henry some briefs to cover up with, Julie came up and said, "Father, have you been drinking in The Alley again?" Before Mr. Nixon could answer, Tricia was asking, between bites of an apple pie wrapped in a Festive American flag napkin, "Where's Mom?" Julie answered, "Patty cakes, Patty cakes, she's Bobbie Baker's maid."

Meantime, The Secretary of Defense had just given the President a preview showing of his latest film, "My Lai and Times Hunting The Slut-Eyed Cong," and still panting with excitement, Secretary Laird yelled into The White House Blue Phone, "Get me Arlo Guthrie, I wanna kill!" Mr. Nixon had just finished autographing his recent book, Think and Do, with the witty quotation, "To Jane, Sally, and Spot. Look. See Dick run. Dick finally won!" when we finally got his attention and conducted the following interview.

ZAPPA: "Mr. President, could you tell us what you believe are the responsibilities of the President?"

NIXON: "Gosh, Frank, I dunno, why don't you ask the President?"

ZAPPA: "But, you're the President." NIXON: "I am? Oh, yes, well, Frank, I've only been in office a little while now so I'm just getting acquainted with the responsibilities. To begin with, the President has to do a good job."

ZAPPA: "I can see you are doing an excellent job, already. Now, many of your critics cite you with contempt for the news media..."

NIXON: "What critics? I've never read a columnist who doesn't like me. Does J. Edgar know about these critics?"

HOOVER: "Sure, Chief."

NIXON: "Are you spying on me again?"

HOOVER: "Sure, Chief."

ZAPPA: "Mr. President, what's your opinion of today's youth?"

NIXON: "Sure, Chief, er, I mean Frank, you take my Julie. A fine girl, all A's in school, fewer cavities, too. Why, she'll make somebody a fine wife."

ZAPPA: "She's already married. Do protesters bother you on speaking tours?"

NIXON: "Well, seeing as how it's my policy never to say anything of the slightest importance, I don't see what they get so upset about." They threw rocks at me in Burlington, but...

DYLAN: "Everybody must get stoned."

NIXON: "Thanks, Bob. Dissent's healthy as long as it's silenced. Why just the other day a member of my staff criticized my handling of the Laos invasion."

ZAPPA: "What did you do?"

NIXON: "I kicked Pat in the shins."

ZAPPA: "Here comes the First Lady now."

NIXON: "Yes, Frank, she looks like the First Lady, and she's almost as old. I'm turning her over to the Smithsonian for their Americana collection when I go. Have you ever tried kissing a rag mop?"

ZAPPA: "That's no rag mop, that's your wife." NIXON: "That's My Lai, er, my line."

ZAPPA: "You a member of the Society of Friends. How do you reconcile your active role in the Viet Nam War with your involvement with the Quakers?"

NIXON: "Quakers" I eat 'em for breakfast."

ZAPPA: "You have emphasized your concern with America's domestic problems, yet, your speeches have not been supported by any significant action and many people wonder what your purpose is to do." NIXON: "I solved all our domestic problems. We have white caters for our international entertaining and keep extra colored domestics for our Southern Style Fried Chicken Dinners."

ZAPPA: "Mr. President, you sound like a racist pig."

NIXON: "You ain't just whistlin' Dixie."

ZAPPA: "Is it true we could have an economic depression?"

NIXON: "My horoscope said to watch 'money matters' between the tenth and twelfth, but, although we might have economic change, I am sure all my fellow Americans will trust their two cars to the man who reads the stars, so I wouldn't worry about it. After all, I never worry about money and I'm the President, right?"

ZAPPA: "Extreme right, I'm afraid. Tell me, Mr. President, how much truth is there in the alleged Army intelligence spying on civilians?"

NIXON: "Blip. Blip. Blip. And furthermore, Blip. Blip. Thank you, J. Edgar."

ZAPPA: "The activities of Army intelligence, the FBI, the CIA, and other government agencies have made large portions of Americans of all political leanings suspicious and even paranoid of secret government invasion of privacy." NIXON: "I can assure you that they'll all get fair trials."

ZAPPA: "Mr. President, what are you saying?" NIXON: "I worked hard to get this job and I'll be damned if I'll give up a good position. Why, I've got a nice house, good neighbors, a fine son-in-law, and just look at the view from here."

ZAPPA: "You mean Rand Corporation's alleged study of the effects of a cancelled election will be put into use?"

NIXON: "Could you speak up Frank, J. Edgar's in the other room and his stethoscope is bad."

ZAPPA: "You must be crazy!"

NIXON: "No, I'm Duffy. Crazy's my Teddy Bear."

ZAPPA: "Help!" NIXON: "Want to bowl another string? Want to bowl another string? Bowl another string!" LAIRD: "I pulled the wrong string!"

ZAPPA: "Why, he's just a puppet!" NIXON: "Shutup, or I'll take my ball and go home."

by David L. Ingraham

SINIC Scoop Of The Week: It's All Natural And All Organic, Explains A-GAS Representative

It's ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!!

An IMPORTANT lesson!!!

EAT IT CATAMOUNTS!!!

On a BEAUTIFUL, GROOVY, day, your SINIC reporter Gretchen Lufstafuk (EVERYONE calls me Sally. So WHY DON'T YOU???) paid a visit to Mister X. Crement, the man who is responsible for bringing ALL you people ALL that A-GAS food! I know all you readers LUV him! CUZ he's such a CHARMER!!! Boy-oh-boy IS HE.

We spent a WHOLE DAY following him ALL AROUND and having a WONDERFUL time with him.

"Nice to see ya," he beamed, when we found him at A-GAS CENTRAL. "I'll be with you in a little while."

WELL! WHAT can you say to SUCH A LUV?? I ALMOST swooned. REALLY! He's SO ADORABLE!

"COME ON!!!" he cried, "Have I got a DAY planned for US. We're going to go EVERYWHERE I go!"

And do you know what, UVMers?? WE REALLY DID!!! It was ALL I could do to KEEP MY BREATH. CUZ, Mister X. Crement is REALLY... ON THE MOVE!!! Oooooo was I EXCITED!! CUZ I just LUV Mister X. Crement and All that GOOD FOOD he prepares! I wanted to make sure that MY special DAY would be YOUR special day TOO, so I brought my CUTE, LITTLE camera to get a LOT of PIX of OUR day!!!

"WELL, COME ON!!!" he screamed. We've got to get STARTED!! FIRST we've got to get our FOOD ready-for-today. And there'll be PLENTY of it! And he added with a twinkle in his eye GOOD TOO!!

Well you know, I was already ALMOST OUT OF BREATH UVMers. JUST the way you MUST feel when YOU read about our WONDERFUL DAY! But I COULDN'T STOP, cuz Mister X. Crement had ALREADY started to get the FOOD ready!!! And NONE TOO SOON! CUZ some UVMers soon came in to GET SOME. Boy, did it SMELL good!!! THEY LUVED IT!!!

"WANT SOME???" asked Mister X. Crement. We've got PLENTY! And it's ALL NATURAL FOOD!! WE KNOW they like NATURAL FOOD, so we want to give them JUST what they DESERVE. I mean LIKE!

"Where NOW???" I asked.

"WELL," said Mister X. Crement, "I'd LIKE to have you meet my FOLKS, but WE DON'T HAVE TIME!! I've got to TEACH some CLASSES now."

And HE DID!!! We went to ANOTHER part of the kitchen. I WATCHED as Mister X. Crement TAUGHT THE CLASSES!! He was SO WARM and GENTLE and UNDERSTANDING it just seemed to OOOZE out of him. And the kids just LUVED IT!!! They thought it was OUT-A-SIGHT!!!

"And REMEMBER, IT'S ALL NATURAL!!! And SO ORGANIC!!!" said Mister X. Crement. We don't serve just ANYTHING!!! It's ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!!

"ISN'T THAT NICE???" said all the students. "It's ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!!"

"YES IT'S NICE!!!" replied Mister X. Crement as we left the kitchen. Come on OUTSIDE! Have I got a SURPRISE for you!!

And I didn't know WHAT to expect! He's just FULL OF surprises. IT IS WONDERFUL!!! But THIS was no REGULAR surprise. We were going to a PICNIC!! And Mister X. Crement had ALL the food PILED UP and READY TO GO!!!

"We'll NEVER run out," he said, "Cuz we keep getting MORE AND MORE from this pipe!!!" And it's ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!

"EAT IT!!!" he called to All the HUNGRY UVMers. And BOY OH BOY!!! DID THEY!!!

"I think I'm going to PUKE!!!" gaged one UVMer. "THAT'S NATURAL!!!" chuckled Mister X. Crement. "And ORGANIC TOO!!!" chorused ALL the other UVMers, with YOU KNOW WHAT eating grins.

WHAT A PARTY!!! Mister X. Crement FILLED US UP!!! "Do you do this EVERY DAY???" I asked. "Sure," said Mister X. Crement. There's nothing IRREGULAR about that!! Want A DRINK???

"GEEZUM!!!" I said, "I'm on a DIET!!!"

"Don't WORRY!!!" Mister X. Crement assured me. "There are NO ARTIFICIAL SWEETENERS in THIS!!! It's ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!!"

"Where do you SECRETE this???" I'm just BURSTING TO KNOW!!!"

"Over there. Over THERE!!!" beamed Mister X. Crement. We've got LOTS and LOTS of it!! We'll NEVER run out!! And it's ALL NATURAL!!

"And ALL ORGANIC!!!" I squealed. "But what's it like on OTHER days???" Isn't this a SPECIAL day???

"No!!!" gushed Mister X. Crement. "WE DO IT EVERY DAY!!! SOMETIMES it's HARD and SOMETIMES we have PROBLEMS, BUT we're all as REGULAR as the CLOCK!! We DO IT EVERYDAY!!!" And the kids all EAT IT!!

"Well, I've GOT TO GO!!!" I said.

"Come AGAIN!!!" begged Mister X. Crement. "And DON'T FORGET!!!" ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC!!

Wasn't that NICE UVMers?? I hope YOU loved it as MUCH as I DID!! And DON'T FORGET!! The NEXT time YOU see Mister X. Crement or any of his FRIENDS from A-GAS, say "THANK YOU!!!" Cuz they're making it ALL NATURAL and ALL ORGANIC just for YOU!!!

Second Annual Dandy Cowherds' Ball

Friends of UVM Cows have announced today the Second Annual Dandy Cowherds' Ball and Barn-cleaning Contest, open to all UVM students and faculty. The SINIC tracked down the President of Friends of UVM Cows, Beau Vine (which wasn't too difficult, as he's a well-known figure on campus). We asked him for a few comments concerning the event.

SINIC: Well, Beau Vine, would you care to comment on the upcoming Dandy Cowherds' Ball and Barn-cleaning Contest?

Beau Vine: Yes, I would (mounting soapbox). The Friends of UVM Cows is a non-profit organization dedicated to improving conditions of cows. We want the American public to know the scandalous treatment cows have suffered at the hands of people during their long and proud history. For this purpose, let me introduce the chairman of the Committee to Educate People About Cows, Miss Bulch III.

SINIC: Hello, Miss Bulch III. What exactly does the EPAC wish to publicize?

Bulch III: There are several aspects to the shabby treatment of our bovine brothers and sisters. Of course, they are virtually victims of the system. They're held prisoners in countless barnyards and pastures across the nation—and the world—and they're being denied their right to self-expression and living up to their potential. They have this stereotype you see, and the system won't recognize their individuality. Just imagine if you were forever fenced in a field in Rhode Island Corner, Vermont, or Oshkosh, Wisconsin? Inhumane! And all those dirty barns! An added aspect is, of course, their exploitation. Stealing a mother's milk! How would you feel if someone did that to your kids? And finally, people have consistently given cows degrading and silly names, such as Five Buses and Miss This. It's psychologically destructive and creates the false image that all cows are stupid and silly. How would you feel if you were called "People" or "stupid" or "silly"? People, don't you realize what you're doing? Aren't you ashamed? People, wake up!

SINIC: Thank you, Miss Bulch III. Back to Mr. Beau Vine.

What about the Dandy Cowherds' Ball and Barn-cleaning Contest?

Beau Vine: Hmmm, yes. It's being held during the National Drink Milk Week in Malcom A. Sheen's lower pasture in upper Jericho. Everyone is invited—bring a friend. We have an exciting line-up of thrilling events:

1. Original movie and slide showings on the topic, "Cow Eyes: Mirrors of the Soul."
2. A cud-chewing Endurance Test.
3. The biggest show ever to hit upper Jericho! Featuring live-in concert, "The Milkmen," straight from their recording studios in Holland, Michigan. Also appearing are The New Jerries, an exciting new group from Newark, and, lest we forget, the hilarious comedian Hol Stein, who sure can keep you slapping your knee! There'll be singing and dancing till the cows come home, all right!
4. Lastly, but not least, the Barn-cleaning Contest. Mr. Malcom A. Sheen has kindly allowed us the use of his barn for this exciting event. (his barn certainly could use it) Pitchforks will be provided. Whoever can dig his way out wins. We're looking for a lot of entries. Bulch III: Don't forget, Beau, the Elder, Miss America Contest. Enter all your favorite cows. First prize will be a round-trip, all expenses paid trip for two to Rome, Maine!

SINIC: Well, thank you, Miss Bulch III and Mr. Beau Vine. This certainly is shaping up to be the social event of the spring season!

Beau Vine: A-yuh, it sure is.

EDITORIAL

Be Relevant

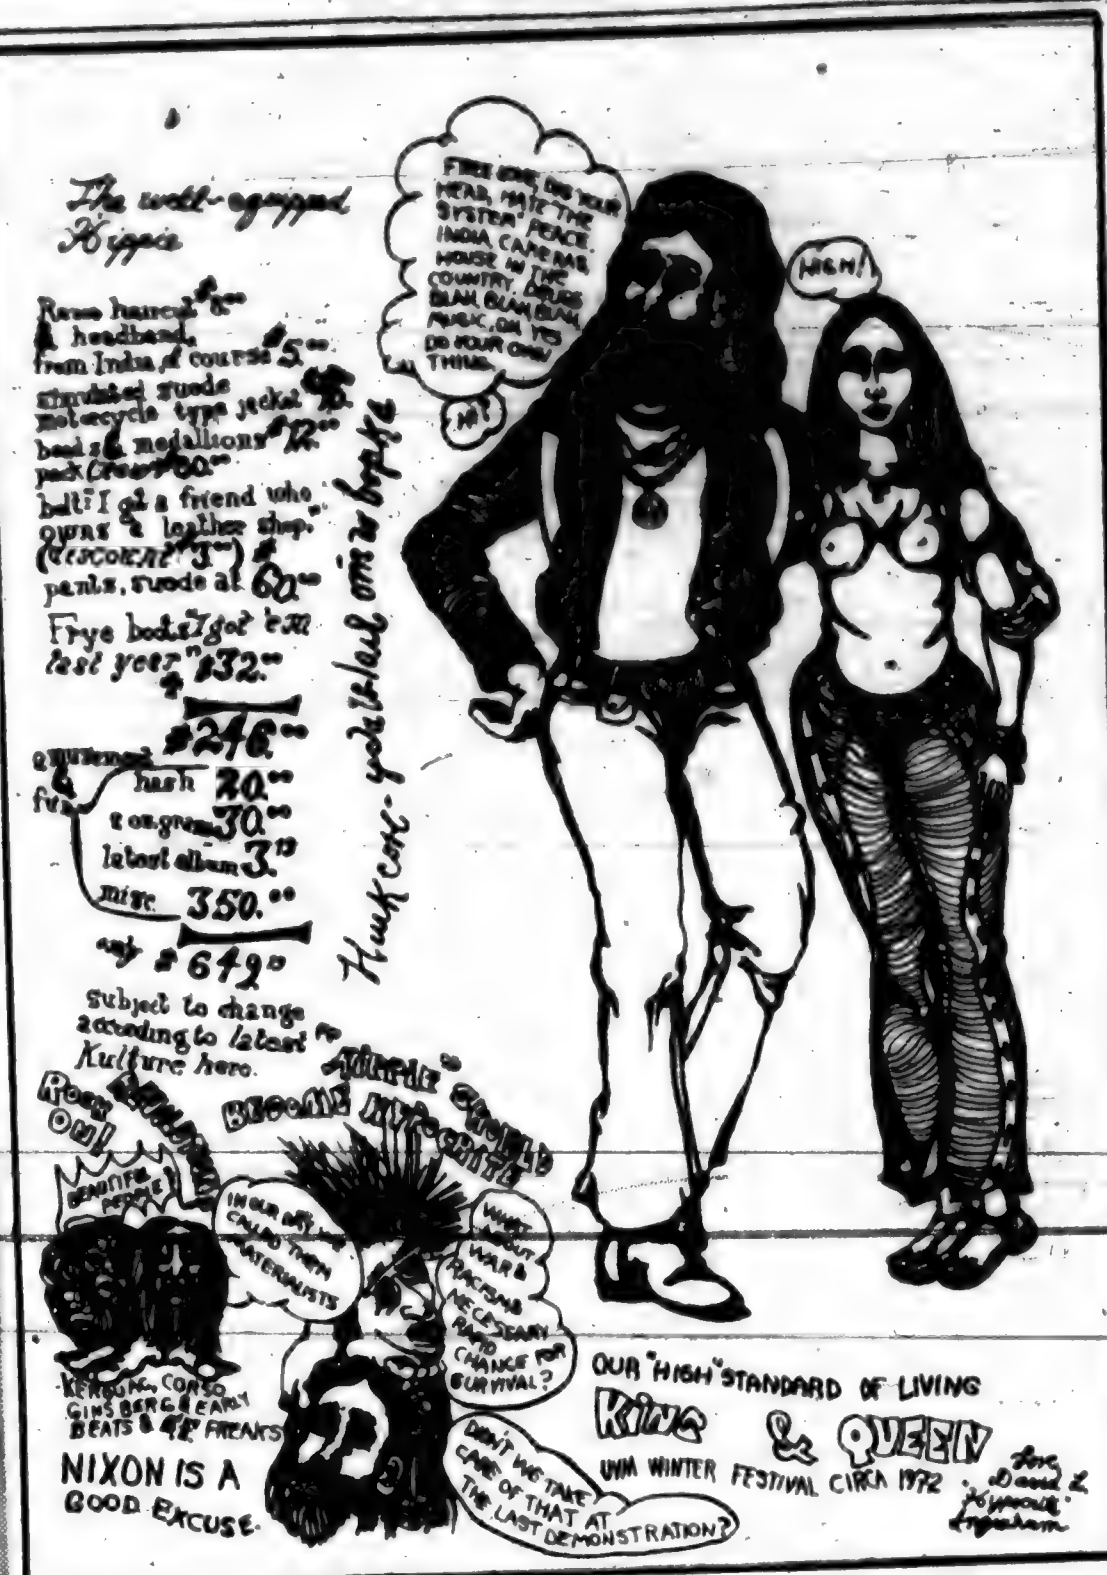

"Ed Bemis. Come to the front desk." Most Vermonters who went to the university have heard those seven little words. Students feel a surge of something intangible, a new will to succeed, when they break through the airwaves. Faculty and staff smile knowingly. And alumni fondle them, reserving a special little hook in their hearts for the announcement. Life is a long, rutted road, and sometimes the obstacles seem insurmountable: rocks, twigs, cow turds, stalled buses, dead woodchucks, ad infinitum. But when your candle flame is dim, when you feel like shedding some bitter tears, flavored with the fruit of the womb, the loom, and the seven rooms of gloom, when all seems lost, one thing can bring it all together again. Just remember it, and it'll be all right. You know what I'm talking about:

Pepto Bismol Requested

SAGA has come quite a way this year—we get Pepsi and other soft drinks with our meals along with the usual dairy staples. But perhaps the food service could go one step further and do the students a real favor: provide Pepto Bismol and Kaopectate in machines as they do other drinks. That way, a student can take a gulp of one or the other, or both, after dinner, and be free of the threat of a gastronomical disturbance.

Senator Boardman, is this acceptable to you? We realize this proposal verges on immoral (even radical), but in view of the prevalence of stomach upsets here, perhaps the State Legislators, basking in their knowledge of educational affairs, will not take umbrage this time.

F.B.S.

EVENINGS 7 & 9 - MATINEES - SAT & SUN 2 PM dedicated to the... all men are not created equal

THE SLAVE

David Niven—Verna Lisa

Opens Wed. April 7th

STATE

DUSTIN HOFFMAN
"LITTLE BIG MAN"

HANNIBUL'S

HEAVY HAPPY HOURS

TODAY THRU TUES. EVENINGS AT 7:00 + 9:00

WELDED 3rd WEEK

MAT. SAT. + SUN. AT 2:00

Wuthering Heights

BURLINGTON PLAZA
CINEMA 1 & 2

RT. 111, 119.50 BURLINGTON
R62 5070 - ACRES OF FREE PARKING

STUDENTS MATINEE THURSDAY AT 3:30

TODAY THRU TUES. ONLY EVENINGS AT 7:15 & 9:30

"A masterpiece. A brilliant, funny, moving film."

MAT. SAT. + SUN. AT 2:00

STUDENTS $1.00 THURS. MAT

A WARNING ABOUT "TRASH"

"Trash" is an X-rated film. No one under the age of 13 will be admitted.

"Trash" is, in my opinion, not an erotic or "sex film."

I believe "Trash" is a very good, sometimes great, movie. I know that it is not a film for everyone, that some people will be offended by its strong language and/or strong images.

TRASH

Introducing Jane Firth and Holly Woodlawn

GIANT Snowflake Breaks Weather Records

In a winter that broke all the records, it seemed impossible to find another one to break. Yet to those of faith, nothing is impossible. On March 30, reported local weatherman Earl E. Frost, the biggest snowflake every to fall on Burlington fell. The flake landed at approximately 2:37:21 p.m. EST on the sidewalk of University Terrace. Actually, it hit little Pete Moss on the head first, knocking him over in the process. Little Pete, after regaining his feet shouted with glee, "I, little Pete Moss, have witnessed the biggest snowflake every to hit Burlington." Photographers and reporters flocked to the scene.

"Gadzooks!" declared the editor

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

Filler

STRONG

2 Academy Award Nominations

James Earl Jones
...Best Actor...

Jane Alexander
...Best Actress...

"The Great White Hope"

"Hate, hot and bitter, flooding every frame—transmutes a stricken life into a smashing film. James Earl Jones glistens as the go-to-hell fighter whose night life and white mistress infuriates mass America." —Gene Shalit, Look Magazine

How strange...

"CUSTOM WIDE TREAD" POLYGLAS TIRES

PRICES START AT $40

E 70-14 tubeless white stripe, plus $2.43 Fed. Ex. Tax and old tire.

Other sizes available too at slightly higher prices.

FRED NYE'S GULF

460 Riverside Ave.
Burlington, Vt.
864-9538

NEW LAFAYETTE 8-Track

Record 8-Track Cartridges to or Receiver, or live with Mic

RECORD FEATURES

- Stop after each Channel and Automatic Stop after Channel 1 Thru 4 and 5
- Sound with Sound Mixing
- Pushbutton Manual Eject
- Pushbutton Fast Forward
- Front Panel Left and Right Channel Input Jacks
- Record Safety Interlock Button
- Illuminated Track Indicator Lights
- Dual Recording VU Level Meter
- Separate Dual Concentric Microphone Volume Controls

LAFAYETTE
370 Shelburne Road

WORD OF LIVING
QUEEN
CIRCA 1972

CAN YOU IMAGINE... CONTRAFACTIVES IN THE BASKETBALL COURT?

IT'S SUCH A RIDICULOUS ISSUE.

I'M GLAD YOU AGREE - I DON'T NEED THEM ANYWAY.

GREAT - THEN WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR?

Don't worry, President Andrews is doing everything he can to obtain funds from the Legislature.

This is so bad, I wouldn't even crap on it.

Reece...

(continued from page one)
committee to fill the vacant slots on the team.

"They may not be able to play basketball, but they sure look all American," said Wallace. "It's hockey, George." Agnew quickly corrected.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada said he would be making an appeal on behalf of the American hockey players as his new wife is apparently a Tiny Tim fan.

bag doctor the

Don't worry, President Andrews is doing everything he can to obtain funds from the Legislature.

This is so bad, I wouldn't even crap on it.

Reece...

(continued from page one)
committee to fill the vacant slots on the team.

"They may not be able to play basketball, but they sure look all American," said Wallace. "It's hockey, George." Agnew quickly corrected.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada said he would be making an appeal on behalf of the American hockey players as his new wife is apparently a Tiny Tim fan.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10 N. WINDOOSKI
BURLINGTON, VT.
658-3333

Obits

Miss Gertrude Eggleston, the University of Vermont's oldest housemother, celebrated her 99th birthday Sunday in the intensive care unit of Mary Fletcher Hospital, where she is reported to be in critical condition.

A fun time was had by all. Miss Eggleston is the housemother at Pomeroy Hall. She was surprised when friends kindly told her that Pomeroy Hall is not a dormitory.

Miss Eggleston asked photographers to focus and shoot. But the noise of the shutters clicking disturbed the matron. And she got pissed off!

The cake was made by Miss Eggleston's mother, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge of Plymouth Notch.

Funeral services will be held Monday at Patrick Gymnasium. The Rev. Deane C. Davis, pastor of the First Legislative Church in Montpelier, will officiate, assisted by his lively wife Marjorie.

Mrs. Davis will wear a dress by Magram, flowers by Boothman's, and a face by Gaud!

Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Hotel Wilson on lower Cabot Street, Burlington, anytime from 2 to 4 p.m. B.Y.O.B.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will live in sin.

Sinic Trio

Fact can be distorted only by the mind, therefore if you think this is fact, your mind must be distorted.

LATIGOS SQUARE

is where it's at

173 CHURCH ST. 863-5050

THE NEW VICTORIAN INN

A Renaissance of Elegance
Gracious Hospitality
Generous Refreshments
Gourmet Food
Impeccable Service
Enjoyable Entertainment
Modest Tariff

Ember lounge 11:30 am. Till Wee Hours
Luncheon Served Daily Mon.-Fri. 11:30-2:30 pm
Dinner served Nightly Mon.-Sat. 5-10 pm
Sunday Dinner 12-9 pm
Reservations Appreciated
Monique & John Ladue Innkeepers
1710 Sherburne Road
South Burlington, VT.
864-0338

Spring dreams in diamonds and gold.

PRICES START AT UNDER $100
YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO OPEN A CHARGE ACCOUNT

A FAMILY OF JEWELERS IN VERMONT SINCE 1848

F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
JEWELERS
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON

FEEL NAKED?

NEVERMORE HAS YOU COVERED

HI & LO RISE CORDS
HI & LO RISE BLUE DENIMS
FARMERS OVERALLS
HEAVY DENIM WORK SHIRTS
WESTERN SHIRTS
LONG & SHORT SLEEVE PULLOVERS

6 No. Windoski Ave.
Open 11-5 Monday Through Saturday

THE TOWNE SHOP

A Fashion Group Store - Downtown Burlington

THE DENIM SHOE

...just what the jeans scene's been waiting for!
Wear a purist-plain blue denim sandal with mock cork sole. Or, if you're a true funk fiend, an engineer-striped oxford trimmed in crinkle patent.

CoNNE
As seen in Burlington

BARBIZON in heavy denim or Natural come bianca upper.

ANNABELLE in uppers of blue and white striped denim w/white crinkle patent. Natural duck w/dark brown crinkle patent, or heavy denim w/heavy crinkle patent.

NEW LAFAYETTE RK-890 Solid State Stereo 8-Track Cartridge Recorder/Player Tape Deck

With Pushbutton Fast Forward

Record 8-Track Cartridges thru your Stereo Amplifier or Receiver, or live with Microphones using the RK-890

119.95

RECORD FEATURES

- Stop after each Channel and Automatic Eject, or Stop after Channel 1 Thru 4 and Eject
- Sound with Sound Muting
- Pushbutton Manual Eject
- Pushbutton Fast Forward
- Front Panel Left and Right Channel Microphone Input Jacks
- Record Safety Interlock Button
- Illuminated Track Indicator Lights
- Dual Recording VU Level Meter
- Superb Dual Concentric Microphone and Aux. Volume Controls

PLAYBACK FEATURES

- Continuous Play
- Pre-Select and Play any 1 Channel and Stop and Automatic Eject
- Pushbutton Track Selector
- Illuminated Track Indicator Lights
- Pushbutton Fast Forward
- Pushbutton Manual Eject

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES

- Automatic Cartridge Ejector - insures you do not damage the tape head and your cartridge
- Remotely Designed Built-in Lafayette Solid State Stereo Record / Playback Pre-Amplifier

LAFAYETTE RADIO ELECTRONICS

370 Shelburne Road Owned and operated by I.E.S. 658-4616

Calendar / Announcements

"Ballad Of A Soldier" To Be Shown

UVM Debate Team Takes Second

The Department of Romance Languages announces a weekly "Terminology" series of informal, free-wheeling gatherings for the sole purpose of speaking Spanish.

According to Time Magazine, Humphrey Bogart, April 10. The third film in the Lane Film Society Series is "The Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Members of the UVM Debate Team finished second place in the first round of the National Debate Tournament, held at the University of Rhode Island, April 2-3. The team, coached by Coach Robert J. Smith, defeated the University of New Hampshire, 2-1. The team consisted of Robert J. Smith, David J. Smith, and David J. Smith.

STUDENT HOLIDAYS
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Draft Resistance
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

DOMINOS PIZZA
10-N. WINDOOSKI BURLINGTON, VT. 658-3333

Films
Two films will be shown this Friday night, April 2, at 8:00 p.m. The first film is "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

UVM Debate Team Takes Second
Members of the UVM Debate Team finished second place in the first round of the National Debate Tournament, held at the University of Rhode Island, April 2-3. The team, coached by Coach Robert J. Smith, defeated the University of New Hampshire, 2-1. The team consisted of Robert J. Smith, David J. Smith, and David J. Smith.

OVP
The date of "Halt," the final concert on the sold-out White Series, has been changed to Wednesday, April 14, 8:30, in Memorial Auditorium. The previously announced date was April 12.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

Limiting

armed membership in a year and a half. Although I may have been honest, I have written here a piece of propaganda for the University. I have written here a piece of propaganda for the University. I have written here a piece of propaganda for the University.

by Brickman
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

Contradictory
The film "Ballad of a Soldier" (1956), which is called one of the best of Chabrol's camera work has force and creative quality. He makes inspired use of sound, silence, rhythm and a wonderfully witty and expressive score.

MAYFAIR
Church St. - Burlington
Open Friday until 9
you really see
the book, go with your heart
you really see
the book, go with your heart
you really see
the book, go with your heart

VERMONT'S LARGEST CARD SHOP
WITH A WIDE SELECTION OF:
• Posters
• Buttons
• Stationery
• Novelty Gifts
• Club Cards
We Honor MBP and Collegiate Register for the VVM Spring Parade of Gifts
BURLINGTON SHOPPING PLAZA
1000 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington, VT 05401
Tel: 255-1111

SKINHEAD LIBERTY
MARCH 29, 1971
in memory of...

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

YACHTING SUMMER POSITIONS
The American Yachting Association is seeking experienced and enthusiastic individuals to fill various positions on its summer yachts. Positions include skipper, mate, and crew. Interested individuals should contact the American Yachting Association, 1000 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10018.

UNIVERSITY STORE
full semesters.
begin preparing for the summer &
by April 5th. On that date we will Students - please buy your books

IMPORTANT
Students - please buy your books
by April 5th. On that date we will begin preparing for the summer &
full semesters.

NOT
1600 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington, VT 05401
Tel: 255-1111

hot pants
173 CHURCH ST. 863-5050
212-832-6844
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022
40 EAST 54th STREET
New York, N.Y. 10022

hot pants
173 CHURCH ST. 863-5050
212-832-6844
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022
40 EAST 54th STREET
New York, N.Y. 10022

VERMONT CYNIC

APRIL 15, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX NO. 10

Grassmount, whose history dates back to 1804, has an uncertain future.

Smaller Housing Units Will Close

According to Ray Lavigne, Assistant Director of Housing at UVM, the housing shortage that has plagued the University for the past few years will end shortly. With the anticipated completion of the "new dorms" next to MAT, there will be a total of 480 additional beds available for students who wish to remain in campus housing.

According to Richard Powers, Acting Dean of Students, the increased housing capacity offered by the "new dorms" will enable UVM to eliminate most of the smaller housing units such as Fort Ethan Allen, Allen House and the segment of the Sheraton Motor Inn which is now being rented by the University. Grassmount, which houses 29 girls and produces a $3,000 deficit each year, also seems doomed as a girls dormitory. Neither Housing Director Hedenburg, Dean Powers, nor any other "high official" could offer any final decision concerning Grassmount.

Although the University has officially stated that they intend to close Grassmount, the future of Grassmount is still anyone's guess.

Student Reactions
This year the housing office in conjunction with several other administrative offices has unwittingly and surprisingly provoked a faction of the resident students by closing most of the smaller housing units. The provocation has resulted not from the University's closing of these units due to financial austerity reasons, but rather, from the University's failure to shake the students aware of these closings until it was too late for the students to even have a diminutive say in the final housing decisions.

A prime example of the latter is the university's closing of Allen House as a boys' dorm and the tentative closing of Grassmount as a girls' dorm. The boys of Allen House had no idea that they would not be able to return to that house for the upcoming academic year until the University issued an irrevocable ultimatum turning the structure over to the Speech Department. Seeking an alternative small housing unit on the campus, the boys of Allen House naturally turned to Grassmount.

Boys' Attempts Fail
Much to the disappointment of Allen House, the girls of Grassmount heard rumors of the boys' attempt to usurp Grassmount from their feminine hands. While substantiating this rumor, the girls also discovered that the Vice-President of Financial Affairs had officially declared Grassmount to be closed.

The fact that some of the administrative offices (whose opinions carry considerable weight in the housing decisions) were even considering turning Grassmount into a boys' dorm bothered the girls of Grassmount much more than the Vice-President of Financial Affairs' declaration to have it closed.

Grassmount's History
Grassmount is the finest example of neo-classical Georgian architecture in the state of Vermont. Built in 1804, it has served as the governor's mansion and has even housed such dignitaries as General Lafayette. Grassmount does, therefore, have indisputable historical and architectural values. It is a building whose nine fireplaces, whose fragile mirrors, whose countless window panes and whose fine wood work simply cannot withstand the abuse administered by the typical college male.

The girls of Grassmount launched a successful campaign to keep their dorm from becoming a boys' residence hall. Much of their success was due to an article in the "Burlington Free Press," an article which made the public aware of Grassmount's possible fate. The remonstrances which the administration received from the community served as the impetus which was needed to finalize the University's decision not to make Grassmount into a boys' dorm.

Grassmount's Future?
The University is now in a period of realignment and whether Grassmount will be used as a girls' dorm or whether it will be restored in a historic manner is still undecided. Other possibilities include offices or a University of Vermont guest house. According to Ray Lavigne, the Assistant Director of Housing, the girls in Grassmount who wish to return there may sign-up with their resident advisor. If by any chance the housing office finds out during the summer that Grassmount will be needed as a women's residence hall, housing will immediately contact the girls concerned.

Mr. Lavigne stated that the closing of Ethan Allen, the Sheraton Motor Inn, Allen House and possibly Grassmount is due to two main reasons. First of all, there is the financial point of view in which the expense of maintaining the smaller units is greater than that of their income. Secondly there is the matter of space which is needed on the campus for academic and administrative people. Allen House, for example, is being taken over by the Speech Department.

When questioned as to the possibility of renovating a dorm such as Buckingham or Chittenden, which most students would not regret losing, for office space, Mr. Lavigne replied that he did not know about the ease with which such dorms could be renovated. Furthermore, he maintained that "what we're talking about is a matter of 30 students versus 145—that and the fact that the smaller halls do not tend to be on the good side of the financial ledger; they tend to run at a deficit. With a larger hall you're dividing your cost over more students and it looks a lot better." The money which must be used to subsidize the operation of the smaller dorms could be used for the betterment of all the halls that are going to remain residences.

Mr. Lavigne was questioned as to the University's ability to accommodate all the students at the normal occupancy level. That is, two students per room. "According to the figures which we have been given by Institutional Studies on projected demand from University housing, we would be able to open the year at less than one-half of one percent overcrowding." One-half of one percent is equal to about fifteen students.

If the overcrowding is greater than the projected figure, Mr. Lavigne would not say if any of the smaller dorms will be opened to handle the overflow. "This again is not my decision. Decisions will not be made by myself or by Mr. Hedenburg, the Director of Housing but rather by everyone concerned. The dean of students, the dean of women, the housing office, the people in the financial section of the University all have to be consulted here and I'm not saying it's greater—we're going to open it or what."

The possibility that the smaller dorms might be kept open if the students are charged a higher board rate to live in them is almost nil. "I don't think that the University wants to get involved in a multirate system. Say out of thirty spaces in Grassmount, we have twenty girls sign-up. This means that we

(continued on page three)

CYNIC Interview: Congressman Robert Stafford Suggests Hoover Retire Gracefully From The FBI

by Jeff Yarker

Q: From reading the February issue of your report to your constituents, I get the impression that you are fairly unimpressed about President Nixon.

A: I am about the programs which he's offered this year—the six major programs which he included in his State of the Union message back in January. I think these are good programs basically—I'm particularly enthusiastic about the proposal for revenue sharing because I'd like to see some of the decision making and some of the money either kept or retained at the local level. Since I've been down in Washington, I've seen a continuous flow of decision making power and money from Vermont and most of the states and localities to Washington.

Q: Do you think revenue sharing will provide any substantial increase in money for education in Vermont, specifically UVM, which seems to be experiencing a lack of funds?

A: UVM's experience is shared by most of the higher educational institutions in the country. Revenue sharing and the educational appropriations are being considered today (April 7) and one other proposal of the administration for creating a secondary market for college student loans all of these things combined will provide significant help for colleges and universities. Even so, they are having a lot of trouble.

Q: Revenue sharing is one of the best proposals which the Nixon Administration has come forth with to date. But how would you give Mr. Nixon's administration an overall rating?

A: I would give the Nixon Administration a moderately good overall rating.

Q: Does that include foreign affairs as well?

A: Yes, I haven't agreed with everything he's done, but overall I think the President has done fairly well on foreign affairs. I think perhaps he has done better there although he has had difficulty on the Indochina scene than he has on the domestic scene. When efforts to curtail inflation have contributed to a sluggish economy, unless the President changes the policy of de-escalation in Indochina to some kind of recalculation, that by next summer—a year from this coming summer, the issues which will be most volatile for the Republican Party will be domestic issues.

Q: You conclude your report by saying that you'd like to see the involvement of our combat forces (in Vietnam) ended by Christmas of this year. If another Congressman introduced a bill setting an arbitrary date—let's say December 31 of this year—for the end of American forces in Indochina, would you support that?

A: Well, you're running into the problem of what are combat forces and what are support forces. I expect that the combat role for our troops in Vietnam will end this summer.

Q: What about the Middle East situation. Would you give military hardware to the Israelis?

A: Yes, I've supported giving military hardware to the Israelis in order to preserve the balance of power there, as long as the Arabs are being given substantial military assistance by the Soviets.

Q: Do you believe there is a balance now?

A: Yes, I feel there is a reasonable balance there. One reason I think so is that neither side has launched a pre-emptive attack against the other.

Q: What do you think would happen if the Arab countries did launch a full-scale attack on Israel... and the Russians did have active planes, men, etc.; would the United States commit any more?

A: I don't know if I would go that far. That's a bridge I would have to cross when I came to it. I personally can't see the United States getting into a major war with Russia in the Middle East. However, past experiences would indicate to me that if the Egyptians launched a pre-emptive war that they might find it not much more successful than the last one. The difference now, as I see it, is that it would be much more difficult for the Israelis to launch surprise air attacks across the Suez Canal as they would run into the very sophisticated, in-depth, ground-to-air missile systems which have been installed.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Congressman Stafford did go on further to suggest that perhaps J. Edgar Hoover might retire gracefully from the FBI in the near future. When asked about mail on the Calley case, he reported a heavy preponderance—almost 100-1—in favor of Calley, and against the court-martial and its verdict.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Q: Back on the domestic scene, yesterday Mr. Boggs (House Majority Leader) made a pretty substantial charge against Mr. (J. Edgar) Hoover. Do you give much credibility to this charge, of spying on members of Congress?

A: I don't think I'll comment on that.

Narcotics Seminar Conducted Here Over Vacation; Federal Agent Speaks

The Benedict Auditorium of Life Sciences Hall was the scene last week of a three-day seminar on narcotics. The Law Enforcement Training Council of the State of Vermont, in conjunction with the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, conducted the meetings on April 6, 7, and 8. The scope of the seminar was quite extensive, and covered all areas related to the use and abuse of narcotics and associated drugs in Vermont.

On Wednesday, April 7, Dr. James Stackpole of UVM spoke on the pharmacological aspects of the drug situation. Special Agent Catale spoke again on the recognition of cases of drug abuse. The seminar closed on Thursday, April 8, with Catale again offering suggestions in identifying the various types of hallucinogens, barbiturates, and amphetamines. Mr. James Sarmanian, Director of the Acid Program in Malden, Massachusetts, spoke on recognition of drug users. Chief Barrett of UVM Security emphasized that the conference was not intended to provide law enforcement officials with better ways of busting people for drugs. Rather, he said, it was a comprehensive program involving all aspects of drug use in Vermont. The eighty people who attended did so by invitation. Chief Barrett added that the seminar was one of the best of its type that he has seen in quite some time.

Attorney Patrick J. Leahy opened the conference on April 6, followed by Special Agent

Catale of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

On Wednesday, April 7, Dr. James Stackpole of UVM spoke on the pharmacological aspects of the drug situation. Special Agent Catale spoke again on the recognition of cases of drug abuse. The seminar closed on Thursday, April 8, with Catale again offering suggestions in identifying the various types of hallucinogens, barbiturates, and amphetamines. Mr. James Sarmanian, Director of the Acid Program in Malden, Massachusetts, spoke on recognition of drug users. Chief Barrett of UVM Security emphasized that the conference was not intended to provide law enforcement officials with better ways of busting people for drugs. Rather, he said, it was a comprehensive program involving all aspects of drug use in Vermont. The eighty people who attended did so by invitation. Chief Barrett added that the seminar was one of the best of its type that he has seen in quite some time.

Attorney Patrick J. Leahy opened the conference on April 6, followed by Special Agent recognition of drug users. Chief Barrett of UVM Security emphasized that the conference was not intended to provide law enforcement officials with better ways of busting people for drugs. Rather, he said, it was a comprehensive program involving all aspects of drug use in Vermont. The eighty people who attended did so by invitation. Chief Barrett added that the seminar was one of the best of its type that he has seen in quite some time.

Attorney Patrick J. Leahy opened the conference on April 6, followed by Special Agent

Catale of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

On Wednesday, April 7, Dr. James Stackpole of UVM spoke on the pharmacological aspects of the drug situation. Special Agent Catale spoke again on the recognition of cases of drug abuse. The seminar closed on Thursday, April 8, with Catale again offering suggestions in identifying the various types of hallucinogens, barbiturates, and amphetamines. Mr. James Sarmanian, Director of the Acid Program in Malden, Massachusetts, spoke on recognition of drug users. Chief Barrett of UVM Security emphasized that the conference was not intended to provide law enforcement officials with better ways of busting people for drugs. Rather, he said, it was a comprehensive program involving all aspects of drug use in Vermont. The eighty people who attended did so by invitation. Chief Barrett added that the seminar was one of the best of its type that he has seen in quite some time.

Attorney Patrick J. Leahy opened the conference on April 6, followed by Special Agent

March On Washington

Editor's Note: The following resolution was passed by the National Student Congress, hosted by the Association of Student Governments to support a National Moratorium on April 24 and May 5 to protest the war in Vietnam. Various student leaders have voiced their reasons for supporting this resolution. Their comments can be found on page 3 of the CYNIC.

FOREIGN AND MILITARY

WHEREAS the U. S. continues to participate in the war in SE Asia in defiance of the sentiments of people throughout the nation and the world, and

WHEREAS the war in SE Asia has caused death and injury to countless American and SE Asian people; and

WHEREAS the cost of the war in SE Asia and the extraordinarily high level of U. S. Military spending has so distorted national priorities that it has made it impossible to adequately meet crucial domestic needs in areas such as education, technological improvement, housing and welfare; and

WHEREAS Kent State and Jackson State Universities stand as landmarks in the fight for freedom of expression which questions these national priorities.

WHEREAS we are approaching the first anniversary of the nationwide level of intense opposition to the expansion of the war into Cambodia in May 1970, and the subsequent tragedies at Kent State and Jackson State Universities;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED: that the NSC declares its support for the non-violent mass march on Washington D.C. and San Francisco on April 24, 1971 as an opportunity for all of those opposed to the continued involvement in the war in SE Asia to reiterate their demand for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces from SE Asia, and further declares its support for the commemoration on May 5, 1971—at campuses throughout the nation of the killing of students at Kent State and Jackson State Universities.

African Statesman To Receive Honorary Degree

by Jeff Yarker

Dr. Leopold Sedar Senghor, President of the West African Republic of Senegal, will visit Burlington and the University of Vermont from June 12 to 15. On Sunday, June 13, Doctor Senghor will receive an honorary degree from UVM.

Dr. Senghor was born on October 9, 1906, the son of a planter-merchant and landowner in Joul, Senegal. He is a member of the Serer Tribe, a north Sudanian ethnic group consisting primarily of farmers, fishermen, and shepherds.

He received his early education in Catholic mission schools, where he began the study of Latin, French, and principal language of Senegal—Wolof—in addition to the Serer language of his own group. After four years, in the secondary at Dakar, Senegal, he left to continue his studies in public high school and eventually was awarded a scholarship to continue his studies in France, where one of his fellow students was George Pompidou.

In 1935 he became the first African "agregé," a title granted in France on competitive examination, and somewhat equivalent to a doctorate. It was both a personal and national triumph, and recognized as such by Senegal when Dr. Senghor returned home in 1937 to be greeted by full military honors. His teaching in French universities was interrupted by war, and after one year on the battlefield he was sent to a German prison camp where German became his sixth language and where he took part in the underground resistance. Upon his release in 1942 for reasons of health, he returned to teaching and the Resistance. After the Liberation of Paris, he taught African languages and civilizations at the Ecole Nationale de la France d'Outre-mer.

His political and literary careers were both begun during 1945 and 1946, when he published his first collections of poems—"Chants d'ombre"—and was elected, deputy for Senegal to the French Constituent Assembly.

In October, 1957, Dr. Senghor married Colette Hubert of Normandy, France. Their son, Philippe, was born two years later. His two sons by a previous marriage, Francis and Guy, are students at the Sorbonne in Paris.

In 1957 Dr. Senghor also formed the InterAfrican Convention Africaine, in order to counter the feared Balkanization of Africa. In 1958 he worked successfully for Senegalese acceptance of continued membership in the French Community under General DeGaulle. After a term as President of the Federal Assembly of the short-lived Mali Federation in 1960, Dr. Senghor was elected President of the newly proclaimed Republic of Senegal, an office which he has held since that time.

Until December, 1962, he shared executive powers with Mamadou Dia, President of the Government, who on December 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Dr. Senghor, president of Senegal, will visit UVM from June 12 to 15.

Calendar/Announcements

CALENDAR, APRIL 15-18, 1971

Green Up Day Lunches

All Resident Hall students planning to help clean Vermont road on May 1st—Green Up Day—please notify your dining room manager by April 25th and he'll fix you a "bush lunch" to take with you. Commit your dorm buddies to help and get up a big work party to work in Chittenden. Additional work is needed in surrounding counties. Dining Halls will cooperate in any way possible to feed those willing to donate labor for this worthwhile project.

STUDENT HOLIDAYS JET TO EUROPE & ISRAEL

Lowest fares, choice of 1 way or round trip
40 EAST 54th STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022
212-632-6844

Earth Day Program

Last year the commission for Environmental Action sponsored Earth Day, a day of panel discussions and displays in Billings Center at U.V.M. which attempted to bring attention to environmental problems. Since then there has been wide-spread publicity of the environmental movement but seemingly little progress toward their solutions. This year on April 21 C.E.A. is presenting an Environmental Fair to provide the opportunity for various newly formed (Ecology-minded) groups to come to the Burlington Memorial Auditorium from 10:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. to present their views and accomplishments to the public. Groups will include high school students, population control groups, organic food people, bicycle buffs, musicians, politicians, outdoorsmen, and anyone else who wants to come and represent an activity related in any way to the ecology movement. There will be a poster competition for elementary school children, some games to play, some movies and slide shows to watch, some music to listen to, and many people to talk to. New ideas are badly needed. Come and participate in the celebration of Earth Day, 1971.

April 21, 1971
Burlington Memorial Auditorium
10:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M.

Green Up Day Needs Volunteers

It was announced today that Sigma Phi fraternity and Gamma Phi Beta sorority will be the co-chairmen of U.V.M. for Green-Up Day. Vermont's second annual state-wide clean-up, introduced by Governor Deane C. Davis, will be held May 1. There will be two sessions: one from 9-12 in the morning, the other from 1-4 P.M. U.V.M.'s main concern will be in cleaning up parts of Interstate 89 in the morning and U.S. Routes 2 and 14 in the afternoon. Students have no need for transportation, as it will be furnished by the Vermont National Guard.

The community is looking for much support from U.V.M. because of the additional work. This year there will be two different bags: one for cans, which will be recycled later, and the other for the remaining litter. It is because of this that U.V.M. will need additional help.

Dr. Alphonso Gilbert, chairman of the College of Agriculture, will be working with Sigma Phi and Gamma Phi Beta in their efforts to organize the student body for the May 1 clean-up. Dr. Gilbert is the chairman of Chittenden County Green-Up Committee.

Anyone wishing to volunteer for Green-Up can sign up in their respective dorms or call Sue Lewis, 864-4343 at Gamma Phi or Stephen Godin, 658-2354 at Sigma Phi.

Commencement Tickets

Commencement tickets for graduating degree candidates will be distributed this year by the Registrar's Office in Waterman Building, from Monday, April 26 through Friday, May 7, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Ceremonies Committee of the Faculty Senate has decided to follow the same method of distribution that was started last year.

The tickets will be included in a packet with information about the Commencement ceremony from University Marshal Prof. Roy A. Whitmore, Jr.

Reservations for University housing for guests of degree candidates, and information from the University Store for rental of caps, gowns and hoods.

Commencement Chairman Prof. Francis A. Weinrich said that each degree candidate will receive three Commencement tickets for his parents, and married students may receive one extra ticket for their wife or husband by writing to Prof. M. Caldwell, Tenth Hall.

"Married students who want an extra ticket should write to Miss Caldwell as soon as possible," he said. "She will forward the names of married students requesting tickets to the Registrar's Office, and the student will receive his extra ticket there when he picks up his packet."

Tickets which are unclaimed after May 7 will be used to fill requests from students for extra tickets for their guests. Those who want more than three tickets, or four if they are married, should contact the Registrar's Office. The available extra tickets will be distributed through a drawing.

Student Departmental Representative Elections

The Student Advisory Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences will hold elections for student departmental representatives during the week of April 26-30, 1971. Each department of the College of Arts and Sciences shall elect one student representative from either the Class of 72 or 73. Nominations shall be made to either the student representatives of the respective departments or to the secretary of the respective departments. No nominations shall be entertained after 3:00 p.m., April 23, 1971. All qualified students of the College of Arts and Sciences are encouraged to participate in this election. Information concerning the upcoming election can be obtained from the present departmental representative or from the Student Advisory Committee, through the office of the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, or from the Committee Chairman, D. William Sisco, 862-4386.

Vietnam Veterans

Vermont Vietnam Veterans Against the War are having a panel discussion followed by a question and answer period Thursday, April 15th at 7 p.m. in the Lower Lounge of Waterman. We want people to know why our opinion of the War has changed. Hear what we have to say and bring your questions.

Adventurous?

Looking for several adventuresome females interested in climbing, skiing, and kayaking expedition into Western Canada and Washington State this summer. Write: John Schweizer, Thayer School Hanover, N.H.

ATTENTION ALL STUDENTS

Recently the Registrar's Office mailed to all students, at their local address, a copy of an S & A which reflected the courses the student was enrolled in for the Spring Semester, 1971. All discrepancies were to have been reported to the Registrar's Office at once. If there are any students who did not receive an S & A recently they should check with the Registrar's Office immediately. Your help in this matter will be greatly appreciated. Registrar's Office

Ethiopia Lecture

The International Club of U.V.M. invites you to attend a lecture on Ethiopia: Past and Present Problems, held by Prof. Efram Isaac at 7:00 p.m., April 29, North Lounge, Billings Center.

Big Brothers

LAST CHANCE to get a little brother this year. There are over 30 kids in the Burlington area that need big brothers now! These kids must have students who will be here next year to help them through their problems. It is a very rewarding experience for both you and the little brother. Apply at the Office of Volunteer Programs by April 23. If you give a little, someone can have a lot.

Special S.A. Films

STUDENT ASSOCIATION
SPECIAL FILMS
SPRING SEMESTER 1971
LIFE SCIENCES BUILDING BENEDICT HALL
7:30 p.m.
All Admission $1.25
March 20

Jean-Luc Godard's LE GAI SAVOIR
April 23
Agnes (le Bonheur) Varda's LION'S LOVE
(with Viva and Jerome Ragni)
April 27
Harold Pinter's THE BIRTHDAY PARTY
(with Robert Shaw and Patrick McGee)
May 1
THE MAKING OF BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID
THE EPIC THAT NEVER WAS
(about Claudius, starring Charles Laughton and Merle Oberon)
Tickets on sale at SA Office one week before showing or at door.

Room Assignment Dates

Housing Contracts are available with your Fall 1971 enrollment materials. Those students desiring to live in a residence hall during the 1971-72 academic year must fill out the Housing and Meal Contract, have it properly signed by their parents if under 21 years of age, and return the Housing Office copy to the Enrollment Center no later than April 16, 1971. For those students whose contract is received by April 16, 1971 at the Enrollment Center, there will be room choosing on the following dates in Billings Center, Marsh Lounge, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
1971-72 Seniors April 21, 22
1971-72 Juniors April 23, 26
1971-72 Sophomores April 27, 28, 29
Students who have requested the same room in which they are presently residing need not come in to choose a room. However, this request must be indicated on the Housing Contract. Roommate selection should be arranged prior to the time allotted for room choosing. On the designated day for room selection, only ONE roommate need appear to choose the room. The Housing Office will make every effort to fulfill your request. In case of any conflict, the persons affected will be notified.

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.

106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING (All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING (Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

SILVER JEWELRY INDIA CLOTHING AND PRINTS

OPEN 9:30-5:30
MON.-SAT.

COLLEGIATE CLUB MEMBER

197 COLLEGE ST.

Madame Tenebris of Menebris

Que vous amuse-t-elle dans votre vie?

A summer in PARIS with Sarah Lawrence

A program designed to involve you totally in the City of Paris when it is at its best... its theatres, galleries, concerts, opera in full function... June 18 to July 29... a program for enthusiasts not tourists.

Courses in Art History, Literature, Philosophy—(both Modern and Classical)—and an intensive French Language program. Field work in Chartres, Mont St. Michel, the chateaux country, and in and around Paris.

Tuition, room, board $850—meal allowances each day for lunch and dinner at restaurants of your choice.

Charter Flight
Write: Foreign Studies Office
Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, New York, 10708

4-6 Credits

Summer Session Registration

Students planning to attend the 1971 Summer Session should preregister. Preregistration forms may be obtained by mailing the card in the back of the Summer Session catalog or they may be picked up in Room 357 Waterman Building. Catalogs are also available at that location. Completed forms must be received at the Summer Session Office by May 28. Complete bills will then be mailed to the student by June 4. This will include tuition, room, board, and any special fees which may apply.

A late registration will be held in Waterman Building on June 21 for 8-week and first 4-week courses and July 6 for six-week and first 3-week courses.

PRO SHOP

SPAULDING CONVERSE CCM PADDLEBALL RACKETS AND BALLS SQUASH RACKETS AND BALLS HANDBALLS

28 MAIN ST.
WINOOSKI, VERMONT
655-2621

Pegton's yardstick

ON

The Park

Turn Fabric for the Home Sewer diamond wedding

remembrances—created for the girl who can't say "NO."

PRICES START AT UNDER $100
YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO OPEN A CHARGE ACCOUNT.

A FAMILY OF JEWELERS IN VERMONT SINCE 1884

F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.

17 UPPER CHURCH STREET • BURLINGTON

CLASS OF 1972

YOUR YEARBOOK PHOTOGRAPH

PHOTO

Your retouched negative in our files will enable you to get overnite service for applications, passports or portraits needed in your senior year.
Call for an appointment at your convenience any day from 9 to 5

CARR STUDIOS

TEL. 864-4411

199 Main St.

Next to Strong Theatre

Our Drive-in Windows
Make Banking
Easy at.....

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

Student Leaders C

Editor's Note: The following is a statement by Debby Bunde, National Coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee to end the War in Southeast Asia, announcing call for National Student Mobilization on May 5, 1971, to demand an end to the War and in commemoration of the deaths of students at Kent and Jackson State Universities.

It is one year since the historic events of last May. The students of this country do not forget either the murders of their sisters and brothers at Kent and Jackson or the power of our response to the American invasion of Cambodia. We plan to demonstrate this on May 5 in a massive National Student Mobilization on campuses and High Schools throughout the country.

The events of last May triggered the most massive explosion of student antiwar activity ever in the history of the United States. America's campuses were taken over by their students and utilized as antiwar organizing centers. High Schools were closed down. Massive street demonstrations rocked the country. It is now one year later. Nixon has rushed and lied and invented a whole new dictionary of euphemisms. But the war goes on.

We have not enough. The SMC is joining the National Peace Action Coalition in building the huge antiwar marches planned for April 24th in Washington and San Francisco. Hundreds of thousands of Americans will join with us then at Nixon's doorstep to demand the war be ended.

The momentum that is building around April 24th is cracking the Administration-touted "full" in antiwar activity on America's campuses. We plan to channel this momentum into massive local mobilizations throughout the country on May 5. We call on our sisters and brothers on campuses throughout this country to join with us in strikes, rallies, memorial meetings, demonstrations in a moratorium on business as usual. We are going to unite in one voice to say:

cynic vers

Yes though I walk through the shadow of death
I fear not for my life, knowing waste:
My Redeemer shall come, yes he is thousand times
And all who walk the righteous path
And dare not tread where dark perdition and unabashed evil are Shall likewise be redeemed
Yes I have witnessed the Lord's power own eyes
Verily I have been touched by his my life transformed
No more do I truck with the sinner
For his ways are like a nasty infectious
And neither the wise nor prudent near it
Pray, now, and be thankful, and what is his, that the wars shall be
And always cleanse yourself for would wash another with you

Spring Band C

This is the time of year that the first most student organizations ask the students for financial support. But the U.V.M. Band is the exception to the rule. This is due to the fact that the band holds its annual spring concert at this time of year and as usual, the concert is free. The band asks only that you come to the concert to lend moral support to a small but important program. The concert will feature for who need money.

I NEED THREE (3) RESPONSES

(SALES & MARKETING P

To supervise on-campus direct-sales activities, Commission and overpotential future opportunity with 10 international corporations. To arrange interview call John Miller 862-2621 between 9am and 1pm.

EDITORIAL

It's About That Time...

While UVM was on vacation last week, the Vermont State Legislature voted against a 3.5 million dollar construction bond that would have helped finance UVM's proposed fine arts center and the needed renovations of other buildings on UVM's campus. It is obvious by this and other stands taken by the Legislature in the past that the State is seeking full control over UVM. UVM must have autonomy if it is to remain effective as a University rather than a mere puppet of the State. While the State supports only 22% of the University's budget, it has the audacity to seek 100% control over it.

The University can survive without the help of the state. The Liberal Arts College is paying for itself at the present time. The Medical College which is heavily subsidized should remain a state institution; i.e. if the state decides that doctors are desirable for Vermont and is willing to subsidize their education.

The loss of State funds will be overcome by the equalizing of both in-state and out-of-state tuition as well as the curtailment of other services which are directed solely toward the people of Vermont. For the Vermonters who will be unable to afford the high UVM tuition, they will be able to seek entrance in other state colleges. The state, which now subsidizes the other state colleges with almost 100% of their costs, will be able to expand these colleges.

It is time for the University of Vermont to face the facts. A fiduciary relationship between UVM and the State Legislature no longer exists. The various Legislators' ludicrous attitudes and accusations have made independence necessary if the University is to survive as a university.

R.R.

IRA Deserves Support

The Inter-Residence Association was brought into existence last year in order to unite all residence halls, male and female, and to work, therefore, for the benefit of the individual, the University, and the entire residence hall program. It, like all other new organizations, is undergoing growing pains and strongly needs student support in order to be an effective entity.

IRA's most obvious problem right now is that of student apathy. The number of unconvinced IRA officers, the percentage of students who actually voted during the IRA elections, the turnout at the weekly meetings and the few students who are actually aware of IRA's weekly proceedings are all indicative of this student apathy.

IRA has the potential to be a very effective organization and could be the most direct means by which resident students would be able to express their housing demands and suggestions to the administration. It is through IRA that we can most realistically open the lines of communication with those individuals influential in housing decisions and can uncover such bombs as the Grassmount and Allen House situations before they explode and the results are irrevocable.

A.E.

The New Reformation: A Look At Sensitivity

by John Perry

Social Scientists are fond of attacking—in a scientific way, of course—the petty irrationalities and perversities of common folk. Armed with multi-page questionnaires and related computer programming, they have "proved" that people are prejudiced, stupid, brain-damaged and crazy, sometimes simultaneously and often universally. Protected by an inviolable shield of technology and academic traditions, the all-powerful authorities issue pronouncements on educational philosophy, social reconstruction and mental health. Then they retreat behind white lab coats to chop up rat brains and squeeze data through the computer mill again.

The above description—which is probably grossly unfair to most if not all social scientists—nevertheless represents the viewpoint of a growing number of educated people who have dropped out of the system to form their own counter-system or, more properly, non-system. To the establishment, the claims of the revolutionaries are grossly ambitious, naively optimistic, and ridiculously oversimplified. Consider, for example, the new announcement of the famous Esalen Institute of Big Sur, California.

"Esalen represents a new approach to the family, medicine, the human body, sanity and madness, education, and religion." How's that for a sweeping program? Like a recent movie promotion, "There's something to offend everybody here!" Is it any wonder that Esalen and its approach have been attacked by establishment people from almost every profession?

To many people, Esalen represents the "sensitivity training" movement which was ambiguously characterized in the popular movie "Ted and Alice and Bob and Betty" or whatever it was. That film failed to differentiate California culture from the movement in California, and frightened millions of school board members into the unwarranted conclusion that T-Groups lead to wife-swapping parties. (The film's impotent and ambiguous ending presumably—a concession to the movie censors' guilt—dissuaded the other half of the country, although for opposite reasons.)

Open-minded souls will have the opportunity to see for themselves what Esalen is really like in three weeks, when the institute holds its second "East Coast Weekend" at the Hotel Diplomat in New York City April 16-18. Most of Esalen's "big names" like Alan Watts, Bernard Gunther (Sensory Awakening) and William Schultz (Joy) will be giving workshops.

The weekend is billed as "a look at encounter, sensory awakening, gestalt therapy, meditation, psychosynthesis, the Alexander Method, communication in couples, body therapies, and fantasy," including discussions of altered states of consciousness, affective education, brain wave conditioning, research into the paranormal, the potential tyranny of encounter groups, structural integration, mysticism and psychology, environmental and life design.

Unfortunately for many of us, the film's impotent and ambiguous ending presumably—a concession to the movie censors' guilt—dissuaded the other half of the country, although for opposite reasons.)

But Vermonters are not given to rushing headlong into anything. Let alone anything costing hard-earned money. Conscientious people for fiscal reasons, and Conscientious III types for aesthetic purposes, and even those Conscientious IV's who can't get away from the rat race that will find a plausible substitute in reading about Esalen's ecstasy. Their quarterly program announcements ($2 per year, from 1776 Union Street, San Francisco 94123) are definitely NOT science fiction, contrary to first impressions.

The Tide Of Resistance: It's Rising

Many hundreds of thousands of young Americans are refusing to cooperate with the military and the draft. Refusal to fight: Military conscription is breaking down. As reported in the New York Times, platoons and companies have refused to go into battle. The actual number of such instances are said to be far greater than those reported. Units continually refuse to make contact with the enemy. Officers who push too hard find themselves the targets of fragmentation grenades planted by their own men. The Army admits that morale in Vietnam is at an all-time low and is approaching crisis dimensions.

AWOL and Desertion: One soldier goes AWOL every three minutes and one soldier deserts every 12 minutes. Thousands of deserters now live in Canada, Europe or (under new identities) in the USA.

Flight into Exile: An estimated 15,000 to 20,000 youth have moved to Canada rather than comply with Selective Service laws.

Refusal of Induction: Many thousands are refusing to show up for induction when called (2,000 last year in the Chicago area alone). At most large induction centers the no-show ratio runs as high as 30%. At Oakland, Calif., 50% of those called fail to show; of those who show, some 50% refuse to step forward, and of that latter group less than 12% are being prosecuted, and a good portion of them do not end up in jail. At present only about 3,000 men are doing time in prison in the U.S.A. (ranging from 5 months to 2 1/2 years).

Non-Registration: Growing numbers of young men throughout the nation are refusing to register with their draft boards upon becoming 18 years old. Exact figures are of course impossible to get. But it seems that relatively few are caught and prosecuted. The Selective Service System depends upon voluntary compliance in order to work. Neither the SSS nor the courts have the time, money and manpower to locate every non-cooperative registrant to the induction center or force every inductor to step forward into the army.

As non-compliance increases, enforcement bogs down under the weight of numbers. As enforcement becomes increasingly inadequate, non-compliance increases. This is what is happening today in black ghettos, rural areas, and middle-class suburbs.

Non-Registration seems the best tactic available for a youth approaching his 18th birthday. The non-registrant is hard to find. The Selective Service has no record of his existence. Other young men who have already registered are into other forms of non-cooperation, such as not answering mailings by their draft boards, failing to show up for physical examinations, failing to leave forwarding addresses etc. The less cooperation given, the more difficult it is for the draft board to locate, control and draft any individual.

As of now, it seems that any person who wants to avoid both the army and jail can do so by not cooperating in the process and by contesting every decision in the courts—resisting induction. The Selective Service and the courts cannot handle the present-day large scale resistance.

This information provided by the
VERMONT RESISTANCE
Phone: 879-0831
656-3052

equal verse

Its Only Natural

I sat on a spot of warm sun
And watched the snow turn into running water.
Change of season.
Its only natural.
But what would happen if the season didn't change?
Everyone would say
Hey something's wrong.
I think it's about time I changed seasons.
Because somethings wrong.
Our love is a winter love.
It shows no sign of new life.
If you know what I mean.
Change is a natural thing you know.
Its about time I started to grow again.
I've got to go.
Sorry.
Its only natural.
Good-bye.

K. Dodds

UVM Should Become A Private Institution Or Receive A Substantial Increase In State Funds

by Arnold Rubinoff

With the recent crisis of the Vermont State Legislature augmented by their desire not to hamper the state budget by meeting the increasing cost demands of the University, a modest proposal is in order. The University should demand private status.

As the situation is at present the next lowest amount of state fund. This appears to be nothing more than political blackmail. Our present situation, as stated by the American Association of University Professors is that we are ranked the lowest among the other six New England state universities in professor salaries. This amounts to as much as two or three thousand dollars a year difference. Yet when we attract a high caliber instructor, the state operating through our board of trustees must sit in judgment on making up.

As a private university we would be able to attract students nationally and over a period of time develop a strong alumni endowment fund which would be the answer to our athletic funding problems. The essential question now becomes what of Vermont students. As with any other private or properly subsidized state university there will be many scholarship funds available to qualified students who could not pay the high tuition costs. With this vast increased amount of scholarships, recruitment of underprivileged urban whites and blacks could feasibly be introduced.

The question is now left to the State Legislature. If it wants to retain the University as a state institution, then it will have to play a stronger financial role in the University. For is it not the American way to pay for what you get; and certainly this state would never want to violate an American tradition?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Questions Vernon Plant

Revision

materials in plant and animal organisms in our food chains, the effective discharges into ground water and the water table, fogging and icing from atmospheric changes are some of the issues regarding the Vernon nuclear power plant about which Vermont Attorney General Jeffords questioned the Atomic Energy Commission in a letter dated December 18, 1970. The AEC responded in its Draft Detailed Statement on Environmental Considerations, but I understand, the response did not answer the many genuine concerns with respect to the potential radiation dose effects in the area surrounding the plant and we do not believe that an informed judgment can be made as to the safety of the plant in the absence of the information indicated.

What can each of us do? (1) Write to Attorney General James Jeffords, Montpelier, Vermont 05602: (a) Thank him for his excellent letter of December 18, 1970 and his courageous stand on radioactive pollution; (b) Ask him to request the AEC to answer the questions he raised in his letter described above and to do it in time for the intervenors to study the answers before the AEC hearing on the licensing of Vermont Yankee's Vernon nuclear power plant; (c) Ask him to request more time from the AEC for a detailed study of their comments in the AEC's Draft Detailed Statement; (2) Send cartoons of your letter to the "Division of Reactor Licensing, Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D.C., the Honorable George D. Aiken and the Honorable Winston L. Prouty, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, and to the Honorable Robert T. Stafford, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515 and ask each of them to also make their requests to the AEC.

Sincerely,
Gladys Lodge

Production Staff: Nancy Ciacchini, Melanie Meyers
Advertising Staff: Steve Koss
Photography: Greg Polverini, Student Photo Service
most and State Agricultural College, Burlington and Business offices in Burlington, Vermont. Telephone 650-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1963. Subscription rate $10.00 per year, single copy two cents. Second Class Postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

Isolationist Sentiment Poses A Serious Threat To World Peace

by Ron Docksal

Ever since youth became a national resource, and students—the idle rich—became our nation's exterminators of foreign policy, many of America's leading businessmen have become (seemingly) more diffident or apologetic in defining America's investment role abroad. The idea of profit as a mutually beneficial thing for both parties concerned and the fact that economic ties abroad boost the prestige of the United States in the community of nations are either discounted or bypassed in the company's stockholder's report with limp references to "helping all the world's people."

This isolationist spirit is not only unfortunate but dangerous. The writer is a student and, therefore, can say these things and get away with them. Though the United States and the Soviet Union maintain their international peace by way of the balance of power created by "both sides having the bomb," a major third party could dangerously upset this balance if not thoroughly aware of the risks involved. Japan is probably the best example.

What stops Japan from going nuclear when she has the industrial capability—and she does in the U.S. role abroad. As the U.S. remains strong enough to protect Japan's economic interests in the Southern Pacific (e.g. the 7th U.S. Fleet protecting Taiwan), there is no need for Japan to develop such a nuclear arsenal. Furthermore, Japan's going nuclear under such conditions as now exist would compel her to take more international responsibility than she cares or is able to take. (One can only speculate how Japan and many other nations would eventually be forced to go nuclear if the United States proves to be incapable of saving Southeast Asia from the communists, thus exposing our worthlessness as a defense treaty partner.)

On a few strategic level, America's economic role abroad, which contemporary Calvinists like to dub exploitation, incidentally helps many social and economic groups advance along the road of "upward mobility" through greater diversity in the economy. For example, in South Africa, if American businessmen did not sell U.S. made wares in the marketplace, most blacks would be forced to buy South African made products and, through no choice on their own, benefit the business promoters of apartheid. American businessmen have not only sold goods in the market place but helped many Africans in establishing their own outlets and business trade centers. (If, however, Senator Kennedy convinces Congress to economically embargo South Africa in full, the black population is provided with no alternative save migrating from a country they do not wish to leave.)

South America is and has been the stimulant of a leftist indignation when choosing to get in heat over U.S. economic policies abroad. In 1969, when President Nixon asked Governor Rockefeller to go to South America, the President was not only doing a favor for the people of New York State, but the Governor actually returned with some interesting things to say. (See the Rockefeller Report on the Americas The New York Times edition Quadrangle Books 1969 $1.25). Statistics show that not only have U.S. industries not "ripped-off" South American republics (in fact, our economic presence led to net increases in GNP and individual income); but our industries have been and will probably continue to be shy in establishing new overseas investments in South America. Though President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress, and the unfulfilled expectations of peasants who were promised Cadillac and only received Chevrolet resulted in much of the current political and economic instability, as witnessed in the election of Allende and the new style of coup in Peru, South America has a long track history of social and political anarchy between election days. Such unstable environments are not promising for companies that must plan in terms of longrange investments—and individual countries are not helped by U.S. companies only interested in immediate economic gain.

No one has all the answers (and only some have a few of the answers) to the economic and political dilemma South America poses for herself and her neighbors. However, in the pursuit of solving them in our nation's just national interests, Americans should cease apologizing to the world for our prosperity and continued life. There is an unhealthy arrogance in the attitude of Americans who see the world's problems, all of them, as our own invention. Traditionally, Americans have never liked the idea of exploitation. As our stature grew as a nation with the responsibility of leading the free world, we agonized with our power and even proved our unwillingness to establish a Pax Americana, in spite of the suggestions of Bertrand Russell, during the four year interval after World War II when we held a monopoly of nuclear weaponry. At the Ford Foundation, men earn their professional wages by worrying about such things and writing books to instruct future generations on how exploitative we must never be. In short, our nation has great ability to prosper as long as we are willing to hold up our veil of tears long enough to breathe.

Unified Student In Lebanon

On Feb. 10, the council of the Lebanon University formulated a plan which led to the demand for unified student movement in Lebanon. The demands for unified student movement in Lebanon are: improving the quality of the University's participation in governance; representing equivalent trustees; and, on Feb. 10, the Lebanon University formulated a plan which led to the demand for unified student movement in Lebanon.

Students at Lebanon University have occupied the buildings of the various colleges and appointed student deans to replace the regular deans until the student strike is over and their demands fulfilled. For three weeks the country has been beset by an avalanche of strikes and demonstrations involving thousands of university students and supported by some labor unions and secondary school students.

The demonstrations include a confrontation between police and 5,000 students attempting to take over Beirut International Airport March 10 to dramatize their demands, in which 24 persons were injured. Students also marched 15,000 strong against the Parliament.

Book Review

The Bodies Arise

by Victor de Keyserling

"The community hates blacks and blacks react. Can a book based on this bitter, negative perspective, be constructive? Most assuredly, yes." (McGraw-Hill, $6.95).

Two distinguished psychiatrists, authors Victor M. Cobb and Victor de Keyserling, have written the numerous case histories from their professional files. At the same time, they tell us that the new work, they go much further than in the best-seller Black Rage.

Leading up to the proposed solutions is an conditions which have caused America's fate. Through the centuries, the authors note, the black population has been forced to assume a posture in the face of overwhelming odds. It endures today in the guise of "the inhibitor blacks by the white community and transmit children. The children grow up in an environment to master the world are actively discouraged man's essential weapon: the mind, is discouraged. Ghetto boys train each other in the toughest needed to cope with life. Doctors Grier and Cobb say they impair their sensitivity and psychological stress: "We suggest that when era of childhood governed by parents and the enter school where an unfettered rush of the where a significant preparation involves such a road of ritual cynicism and alienation from the dozent" harden their growing feeling of against the prevailing misery and injustice in modicum of hope for better conditions resignation in this life, lest he clash head-on with the system.

"Religion is a matter of such importance on so many aspects of black life that even the survival techniques, it is the central thrust of the provocative title, The Jesus Bag."

Religion was originally imposed from without keeping the slave enslaved and to assuage master's, the authors note. "Where effort to perfect slaves and destroyed their desire demand for honesty, it opened their eyes to master, and, preaching as it did against hands from being lifted in rebellion. It even in the after-life for slaves to work themselves. Except when it is the tool of such an entity Luther King, the authors believe, it serves a similar purpose today.

Violent insurrection, however, is suicide bitterly condemn the outsiders who would at no risk to themselves: "It is a tragedy radiance push blacks prematurely into baby guns, no ammunition and no plans pushing, they have themselves been a part."

"When the dust clears, the bodies are all present-day oriented," i.e. reality oriented. "Walking always in the shadow of death when he conquers that fear he has observed that white people have preferred. They laughed as they lay running through cemeteries, turning white But we rise now unafraid, with a new willing to die for principles we hold a suffered hideous mistreatment and are nor anyone else is to suffer anything like. The blacks' new strength and self-forgiveness, the authors state, and on the no doubt for more than that man without fear is also inspired by their hatred of injustice their idealism has much to contribute to the world."

"Those who were once the lowest are for America to fulfill a genuine expectation travel the path of the oppressed and definition."

VOLUME LXXXIX

VERMONT CYNIC

NUMBER 10

RALPH ROBBINS
Editor-in-Chief

SARAH SCHUYLER
Assistant Editor

JILL DAVIDSON
Managing Editor

CHARLIE FRENCH
Sports Editor

JEFF YACKER
Feature Editor

KEN WHYTECKER
Sports Editor

TERRY DEMAS
Business Manager

GARY GABSO
Advertising Manager

BRUCE WAGONER
Art Advertising Manager

GENE PERONI
Photography Editor

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty or staff or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the majority of members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published weekly during the college year by the students of the University of Vermont.

Sports Staff: Bonnie Bradney, Mark Teisstein, John Stowell, Mike Rosenberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Glassey, Tim Buckford, Sandy Magid, Mike Brown, Bill Bode, Robert Frommefeld, Dave Kopacz.

News Staff: Arlene Erikson, Sue Solomon, Louise Stanton, Gene Peroni, Kip Arnold, Mike Fish, Alice Carter, Jill Stevens, Cordie Sanborn, K. Dumas Bray.

Feature Staff: Mervyn Smith, Brooks McCabe, James Abrams, Doug Collette, Gary Haslam, Bruce Albert, Laurel Osoff, Mike Demore, Jim Willey.

Production Staff: Nancy Ciacchini, Melanie Meyers

Advertising Staff: Steve Koss

Photography: Greg Polverini, Student Photo Service

most and State Agricultural College, Burlington and Business offices in Burlington, Vermont. Telephone 650-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1963. Subscription rate $10.00 per year, single copy two cents. Second Class Postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

Fourth Annual Winooski River Raft Race Rules And Regulations

Date: Sunday, May 2, 1971—1:00 pm
Start: Bolton Falls, on Winooski River near North Duxbury about 9 miles from Richmond Village and about 30 miles from Burlington.
Finish: Jonesville Bridge, 3 miles from Richmond Village.
Length: 7 miles long.
The course begins below the dam at Bolton Falls below the old

Winooski River Raft Race

power dam. One half mile downstream is the one major rapid known as the Rainbow Rapids. This easy run culminates in the swift run beneath the notorious railroad trestle at North Duxbury. The last 6 miles is less exciting. But there are smaller rapids which appear in different places at different water levels. The entire course bisects the backbone of the Green Mountains. Time: Usually an hour and a half for the 7 mile course.

Trophies: This year additional trophies are being offered, especially for larger rafts. A trophy for the most unusual raft in design will also be offered.
Entries: Anyone is eligible. A group may enter any number of rafts. Deadline for entries is Wednesday (postmarked) April 28th. Any entry form is provided but not required. All that is needed is a signature for each raft entered under someone who is over 21 and who will agree to see that the rules of the race are followed and that the $1.00 entry fee is paid. The same person may sign for any number of rafts.

Return entries to:
UVM Outing Club
c/o Billings Center
Burlington, Vermont
05401

Entries in the Fourth Annual Winooski River Raft Race must conform to the following regulations:

CREW: Minimum crew is four

Huck Finn Division: Minimum crew is five

Maximum crew is unlimited

To qualify for the mixed trophy, at least one crew member must be female.

FLOATATION:

1. Nothing that was commercially constructed to be a boat, raft, pontoon or any part thereof may be used.
2. For safety sake, all rafts must be designed so that if they capsize they will still float upside down.

DECKING:

1. Area:
a. Huck Finn Division—at least one unbroken section of deck must measure 30 square feet or larger. There is no maximum size.
b. Minnraft Division—at least one unbroken section of deck must measure 16 square feet or larger. There is no maximum size.
c. The unbroken section must be 4 feet wide, at least.

4. The area shall be determined by measure, "cent of the outside dimensions of the raft as viewed from above.

2. The deck must be capable of supporting crew members without capping.

3. The raft may have any number of decks, platforms, outriggers, etc., as long as one section satisfies the requirement above.

4. Floatation devices such as barrels, etc., may be counted as parts of the area of deck where they are continuous with the rest of it.

5. The areas measured need not be on the same level.

PROPULSION:

1. Rafts may be propelled by any thing run by hand, foot, body, wind, or current. No electrical engines or motors may be used.

2. POLES, PADDLES, OARS, OAR LOCKS AND SAILS MUST BE HANDMADE. Nothing that was commercially contrived or marketed to be a canoe paddle, oar, oar lock, or sail may be used.

IT IS SUGGESTED THAT all rafts have some propulsion other than poles which enables them to move sideways in deep water to reach the bank at the end of the race.

CLEAN UP:

All crews are responsible for the removal of the rafts and materials from the site of the race.

SAFETY:

1. All crew members of all rafts must be competent swimmers. Life jackets or other floatation devices must be worn by all crew members. Due to water temperature, thermal underwear or wetsuits are recommended.

JUDGING:

Judging will be on a time basis over the length of the course.

LITTERING:

ANY RAFT RETURNING WITH SUBSTANTIALLY LESS LITTER OR WHOSE CREW IS SEEN LITTERING DURING THE RACE WILL BE DISQUALIFIED FROM ALL TROPHIES.

SIGN UP:

1. Entry blanks will be signed by a sponsor or captain who must be over 21 years old.

2. Entry blanks will be accompanied by a dollar entry fee.

3. The deadline for entry blanks is the Wednesday before the race, however, entrants are asked to turn their entry blanks in earlier if possible.

STAFF:

Help is needed to help direct traffic, to clean up, and to help man rescue stations. Those interested—contact the Outing Club.

ENTRY BLANK

1. Number of rafts entered (Crew size below)

2. Affiliation of crew:

3. I agree that the raft(s) listed here and their crews will obey the rules and regulations as set forth by the UVM Outing Club for the Fourth Annual Winooski River Raft Race.

(must be over 21)

Early arrivals will be appreciated to prevent the starting line congestion.

Camping sites can be provided for those arriving Friday by contacting the Outing Club, in advance.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823

QUESTION: What is the purpose of drinking plenty of fluids for colds? At what temperature should one consult a physician? My temperature is normally 98 degrees F. Does that mean anything? Is it true that alcohol is good physically when one has a cold?

ANSWER: The common cold is a viral infection that usually remains localized in the upper respiratory tract (nose, pharynx and sinuses). Lasting from two to five days, almost all colds clear up with only a minimal amount of attention. Treatment of a cold does not require antibiotics or other fancy and vigorous treatments.

It is normal to have decreased appetite with a cold. When fluid intake decreases, and this is coupled with a mild fever and a dry environment, dehydration results. This causes more irritation of the linings of the nose and throat and a thickening of secretions. Therefore, a large fluid intake is helpful in keeping comfortable and enabling the body to fight the infection.

In addition to fluids, two aspirin every four to six hours will reduce the discomfort. A number of preparations are sold to clear stuffy and running noses; these things usually contain a combination of an antihistamine and decongestant. Often, 0.25 per cent or 0.50 per cent Neo-synephrine nose drops or nasal spray works quite well. Such a preparation should not be used for more than two days at a time. Some people who think they have colds actually have allergies; if the symptoms last a while you ought to see a doctor.

While 98.6 degrees F is normal, many people run slightly lower or slightly higher temperatures. An elevated temperature accompanied by symptoms such as a bad cough with the production of sputum, a sore throat, an earache, bad nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea, or severe facial pain all suggest that consultation with a physician would be in order. These conditions are usually accompanied by a temperature of above 100 degrees F.

For some of you, the ingestion of alcohol or rubbing it on the body—Alcohol tolerance may be decreased with a viral infection, but some people are unaffected. The alcohol does not kill the virus. It is a waste of good booze to rub it on your body and much cheaper rubbing alcohol (which is poisonous if ingested) is used. The evaporation lowers body temperature and may make you feel more comfortable. Although it feels nice, it probably doesn't help much.

QUESTION: I've been told that slightly unequal breast size is normal for most women. Is this true, and if so what causes it? Also, is one breast more often larger?

ANSWER: Slight inequalities in breast size are quite usual. Often the differences are so small that the owner never notices them. As far as I know, either breast can be the larger one. It is more typical for man to be asymmetric than it is for him to have identical halves.

The disparity in breast size can be minimized somewhat when the woman has a baby. If she breast feeds on the smaller breast more than on the larger breast, the smaller breast will increase somewhat in size and when she stops breast feeding, they will be more nearly equal.

Non-structured Tours Are Cheap And Enjoyable

by Renee Botwin

Everywhere a student looks today there seems to be people offering flights, student cards, package tours—for here there and anywhere. By the time a student makes up his mind, he often finds himself reduced to a third week group tour, covering twenty different cities and giving him very little time to relax or get to know the people. Sure, when he comes home, he's free to say, "hey, I've been to Madrid, Barcelona, Paris, Munich, Stockholm, Oslo, Amsterdam, Hamburg, London, Frankfurt... and so on and on. All in twenty-one days! What did he see? Westminster Abbey, London bridge, the autobahn—lots of airports—but never really anything of the people, the foods, the customs.

Most students fail to realize that chartered flights are very cheap things, that they also have open returns and that they do fly jets. As opposed to Icelandic Airlines prop-jets that stopover in Iceland, cost three hundred and eighty three dollars ($383.00), besides taking a lot of time and landing in Luxembourg. Their advertising slogan connotes that they are the cheapest airline to Europe.

Students, the age of enlightenment is upon us!

Right now there are chartered flights leaving New York City every Thursday through Sunday—all open returns (meaning you can come back to the States whenever you please) and twenty minutes. You can land in London's Gatwick airport, catch a train into the city without once leaving the shelter of the terminal! You can feel the freedom of being able to do whatever you please; no schedules (believe this student, the changing of the guards is a pretty dull affair)—accommodations are inexpensive—one pound a night at a YMCA, where you receive breakfast also. Concerts and clothes are really cheap. An average movie—e.g. M.A.S.H.—costs ninety cents. On a tour you'd be lucky to see a marquee.

Something else most students don't realize, is that there are student flight rates once you're in Europe—from London to Paris student rate is twenty dollars ($22). So, how come students aren't aware of this? Because most of them go on the neatly packaged tours and never have time to find out for themselves. Down at the health food store on S. Winooski and Center Streets there's an interesting paper about chartered flights to London. Would you believe two hundred and twenty dollars round trip before May 14th and two hundred and thirty-five dollars round trip any time after—and all with open returns? In fact the company Consolidated Air Brokers, also charters flights to India, Israel, Africa and places you never even began to hear about—Check it out and have fun this summer in Europe!

ENVIRONMENTAL FAIR
MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM
APRIL 21
10 AM-8 PM

PLEASE COME AND CELEBRATE
EARTH DAY 1971
THE EARTH NEEDS YOU!

'Battle Hymn Of

A recent release from The Shelby Singleton Corporation and the gully, applied to the Calley case have combined to produce a chain-reaction across the country that will long be remembered. The record "Battle Hymn of 13 Calley" was released some ten days prior to the court decision and received mixed reaction from radio stations. Many adamantly refused to play it, while those who did received tremendous response.

A virtual storm broke loose on the day following Calley's verdict, with the Singleton promotion department being deluged with phone calls from radio stations who were getting overwhelming requests for the tune as a means of protesting the verdict. This included stations who had previously refused to play the record.

In the St. Louis market, a station received 200 phone calls per hour over a two hour period. At WFL in Chicago, the record was included in a news special, after which the switchboard received a torrent of calls, 99 to 1 in favor of Calley.

In Wilmington, North Carolina, April 1st was proclaimed "Calley Day" and

Student Travel Magazine

At last someone's tuned in to young travelers, senior high and college students who are leaving their footprints all over the world.

EASYGOING, the first magazine devoted to student travel, will make its debut on newsstands throughout the country on April 13th. Editor William M. Hartney says the purpose of the magazine is to inform as well as entertain and to open new travel vistas to all young people.

EASYGOING takes a young look at all phases of travel including pros and cons of independent travel versus going with a group; the merits of hitchhiking in Europe, and the good things to do and see both in the U.S. and abroad.

The Summer Issue features an interview with Singer-Brey Saint-Marie who voices her feeling on beach-humming in Hawaii, differences between Hawaiian culture and true Indian identity. She comments on fashion, on being your own person, and concludes that "Happiness is a way of traveling through the world."

For skiers and those who dream about skiing there's a lively article on summer skiing in the French, Swiss and Italian Alps and how one might just end up down hill racing with Olympic Gold Medal winner Jean-Claude Killy.

Student travelers who really want to know a country and its culture will learn that "Interaction" is the name of the game. That they should stay off the beaten tourist track, and meet the locals for real people-to-people confrontations.

Students who are planning a trip this summer but haven't decided where to go may choose from more than 1000 destinations, including 11 Discover America vacations, and more than 400 departures. Those on a budget can read about a swinging three-day Canadian weekend for as little as $39.25, while the adventurous traveling abroad may want to rent a room in a castle for as little as $8. There's a packable, practical Unix wardrobe selected by EASYGOING editors for those who are fashion as well as travel wise. In addition, EASYGOING will launch a photo contest. Prizes are a trip to the South Pacific, a complete movie making outfit, and luggage.

Regular EASYGOING features will include a travel merchandising section, a listing of all student, tour, and information Plus where to write to get additional information from or about the people and places featured in the magazine.

The magazine will be published semi-annually. Price $1.

ENTERTAINMENT

Album Review

Dave Mason And Cass Elliot

by Doug Collette
DAVE MASON & CASS ELLIOT As one of the original members of Traffic, Dave Mason established himself as an exceptional songwriter, singer and composer, and after his final split from that group he did the journeyman bit, playing with Delaney and Bonnie when their friends included George Harrison and Eric Clapton. Early last year, Mason traveled to Los Angeles, where with the help of Leon Russell, Jim Capaldi, the Brannetts and many others he cut Alone Together, a superb album of original songs.

Mason's first LP in alliance with Mama Cass doesn't quite measure up to his solo effort. The members of the band provide competent back-up. Paul Harris' keyboard being quite lively and interesting at times, and Cass lends the harmonies a CSNY touch that just stays short of being too imitative. But as in the case of any group, each individual has to compromise with the other individuals in any number of ways. In this particular case, Mason, although the primary writer of the group, has stepped aside on a few occasions to allow the compositions of other members of the group to be exhibited. That would seem to be a mistake, for those songs that would otherwise be a first-class record all the way through.

Of the ten tunes on the album, seven were written by Dave Mason. Ned Doheny's "On and On" is the best of the remaining three simply because it sounds like a Mason throwaway song. Dave felt wasn't quite good enough to use. Bassist Bryan Garcia's "Next to You" is merely an amateurish attempt at songwriting, but his collaboration with Cass produces a real klunker "Here We Go Again." With its syrupy strings and simplistic, mushy lyrics ("feeling warm and feeling good feeling love will last like it should"), it sounds like a prime choice for those lovesick couples searching for their own song.

Subtract those musical non-entities, though, and all the rest is vintage Mason: simple, tasteful rock 'n' roll music matched with uncomplicated but meaningful lyrics. Each performance is tight and polished; no song on the album is over five minutes long. Like John Fogerty, Dave Mason can write economically without sacrificing quality while at the same, treading that fine line between simplicity and banality. The news that Mason is planning to do a solo album is indeed welcome. Until that is released, I'll be satisfied with this one, now Dave Mason songs and all.

HANNIBUL'S

HEAVY HAPPY HOURS

VT. PREMIERE

STRONG

LITTLE MURDERS IS COMING

'Battle Hymn Of Lt. Calley' Stirs The Nation

A recent release from The Shelby Singleton Corporation and the gully-verdict in the Lt. Calley case have combined to produce a chain reaction across the country that will long be remembered. The record "Battle Hymn of Lt. Calley" was released some ten days prior to the court decision and received mixed reaction from radio stations. Many adamantly refused to play it, while those who did received tremendous response.

A virtual storm broke loose on the day following Calley's verdict, with the Singleton promotion department being deluged with phone calls from radio stations who were getting overwhelming requests for the tune as a means of protesting the verdict. This included stations who had previously refused to play the record.

In the St. Louis market, station received 200 phone calls per hour over a two hour period, all pro-Calley. A station in the Macon, Georgia, area played the record an entire hour without commercial interruption. At WFCL in Chicago, the record was included in a news special, after which the switchboard received a torrent of calls, 99 to 1 in favor of Calley.

In Wilmington, North Carolina, April 1st was proclaimed "Calley Day" and the record was used to publicize the event. At a San Diego station, 300 phone calls were received the first hour after the record was played. In New York, a Hell's Angels clan voiced strong support of the record and a story concerning the record and its writers was featured in the New York Post.

Sales on the record jumped from 10,000 on March 30th, to 35,000 on March 31st and then up to 154,000 on April 1st. "Battle Hymn of Lt. Calley" on Singleton's Plantation label features Terry Nelson as vocalist. Having been associated with the music business for a number of years, this is his first release as a solo artist. The tune was penned by Julian Wilson, an engineer, and James M. Smith, an attorney. Written several months ago, the song tells of Lt. Calley as a soldier, revealing nothing about the outcome of the trial. It is the first song the duo has written.

'You're A Good Man Charlie Brown'

Good Old Charlie Brown and all the other comic strip "Peanuts" characters will appear on the Lane Series in the smash Broadway musical "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" on Saturday, April 24, and Sunday, April 25, in two performances.

The April 24 performance, which will be held at Memorial Auditorium and begin at 8:30 p.m., is a combined final Blue Concert and a Chamber Arts series presentation. Tickets for the cancelled Nana Mouskouri concert, a Blue Concert originally scheduled for March 2, will be good for this performance.

The April 25 performance, which will also be held at Memorial Auditorium and commence at 3:00 p.m., is a Lane special.

Tickets for April 24 are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, at $6.00, $5.25, and $3.75. Tickets for April 25 are $2.00, all general admission. Reservations may be obtained by telephoning the Lane Office at 656-3418.

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," based on the comic strip "Peanuts," is a complete musical, with orchestra, sets and costumes.

All the "happiness" characters from the tuneful "Peanuts" world appear in the cast. Charlie Brown, the half-pint hero; Lucy, the crabby heroine; Schroeder, the budding Beethoven; the pixilated Patty; the blanket-brandishing Linus; Lucy's little brother; and Snoopy, the beagle bountiful and enemy of the dreaded Red Baron.

The comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles M. Schultz, is currently in its nineteenth year of publication in newspapers all over the globe. It is said that the "Peanuts" fan can be likened to the inveterate potato chip eater who finds it impossible to eat just one.

The "Charles Brown" musical, which premiered at New York's Theatre 80 St. Marks on March 7, 1967, is one of the biggest hits in the American musical theatre. Besides playing to capacity crowds in New York, it ran for two years at the Wilbur Theatre in Boston — a new record. Seven separate companies have toured the North American continent.

Clark Gessner provided the music and lyrics for the show, which Joseph Hardy directed for producers Arthur Whitelaw and Gene Persson.

In addition to the North American productions, "Charlie Brown" has played to theatre-goers in London, England; Oslo, Norway; and Stockholm, Sweden.

It also ran for nearly three years in San Francisco, as well as in Washington, D.C., Chicago, New Orleans, Boston, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Toronto and Montreal. New performance records were established in many of these towns. So far, the musical has seen twenty productions.

Some of the top songs include "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," "The Red Baron," "Happiness," "Snoopy," and "Suppertime."

Appearing in the Burlington presentations are Vic Vail as Linus, Richard Whelan as Charlie Brown, Marylu Moyer as Patty, Dennis Phillips as Schroeder, Grant Cowan as Snoopy, and Cathy Wallace as Lucy.

One critic, Allan Jeffreys of WABC-TV, wrote that "Charlie Brown" is the most delightful, witty, warm, wistful show on or off Broadway!

Lane Film:

'The Barefoot Contessa'

Humphrey Bogart in "The Barefoot Contessa" will be shown on Friday, April 16, in Marsh Life Sciences Building as the next Lane Film Society movie in the current series of Neglected Masterpieces.

There will be two showings of the color film: 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Preceding the feature there will be a contemporary newsworld.

Tickets, $1.00 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418.

Also starring in the 1954 film, in addition to Bogie, are Ava Gardner, Edmond O'Brien, and Rossano Brazzi. O'Brien won an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor for his role.

Directed by Joseph Mankiewicz, with an original screenplay also by Mankiewicz, the film runs for 128 minutes. The photography is by Jack Cardiff, and musical credits by Mario Nascimbene.

The story of "The Barefoot Contessa" is a tragic drama of a beautiful Spanish gypsy dancer who soars to stardom—and the grave—in a mad, meteoric three years.

Four-time Academy Award winner, writer-director Joseph L. Mankiewicz has made his story as much an inside story of Hollywood movie-making in its heyday and the shoddy shallowness of Europe's international playboy set, as it is the pathetic, poignant, absorbing drama of the star-crossed actress, the "has been" director (who rams her to the top), and the erratic movie tycoon whom he battles every inch of the way. Like Ava, the film is a thing of beauty in itself.

Writing in the N.Y. Times, critic Bosley Crowther called the film "a caustic and cynical report on the glittering and graceless behavior of the Hollywood-international set. Across some magnificent color scenery, the performance leaves ugly and unwholesome smears, making for an aesthetically startling and arresting film."

The remaining movies in the Neglected Masterpieces series are "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold" (English), with Richard Burton, April 30; "The Horse's Mouth" (English), with Alec Guinness, May 7; and "Shame" (Swedish), directed by Ingmar Bergman, May 14. Newsreels precede each feature.

Student Travel Magazine

At last someone's tuned in to young travelers, senior high and college students who are leaving their footprints all over the world.

EASYGOING, the first magazine devoted to student travel, will make its debut on newsstands throughout the country on April 15th.

Editor William M. Hartney says the purpose of the magazine is to inform as well as entertain and to open new travel vistas to all young people.

EASYGOING takes a young look at all phases of travel including pros and cons of independent travel versus going with a group, the merits of hitchhiking in Europe, and the good things to do and see both in the U.S. and abroad.

The Summer Issue features an interview with Singer Buffy Sainte-Marie who voices her feeling on beach-bumming in Hawaii, differences between Hawaiian culture and true Indian identity. She comments on fashion, on being your own person, and concludes that "Happiness is a way of traveling through the world."

For skiers and those who dream about skiing there's a lively article on summer skiing in the French, Swiss and Italian Alps and how one might just end up down hill racing with Olympic Gold Medal winner Jean-Claude Killy.

Student travelers who really want to know a country and its culture will learn that "Interaction" is the name of the game—that they should stay off the beaten tourist track, and meet the locals for real people-to-people confrontations.

Students who are planning a trip this summer but haven't decided where to go may choose from more than 1000 destinations, including 31 Discover America vacations, and more than 400 departures. Those on a budget can read about a swinging three-day Canadian weekend for as little as $39.25, while the adventurous traveling abroad may want to rent a room in a castle for as little as $8. There's a packable, practical Unisex wardrobe selected by EASYGOING editors for those who like fashion as well as travel wise. In addition, EASYGOING will launch a photo contest. Prizes are a trip to the South Pacific, a complete movie making outfit, and luggage.

Regular EASYGOING features will include a travel merchandising section, a listing of all student tours, and information Plus where to write to get additional information from or about the people and places featured in the magazine.

The magazine will be published semi-annually. Price $1.

CHAMPLAIN LANES
Hours 10 A.M. to 1 A.M.
985-2824
Automatic Pin Setters
* Expert Ball Fitting & Drilling
* Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
* Cocktail Lounge
* Snack Bar
* Horsery
* Billiards
* Dancing
AIR-CONDITIONED 16 LANES
Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages 5 Minutes South Of Town On Shelburne Rd.

It's the real thing. Coke.
Real life calls for real taste.
For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola.
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company, Inc. © 1971. A Division of The Coca-Cola Company.

BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2 NOW SHOWING SPECIAL STUDENT MAT. THURS. AT 3:30

THIS MOVIE IS SO POWERFUL BECAUSE IT SHOWS WHAT REALLY HAPPENED

YOU FEEL THE TREMENDOUS IMPACT WHEN YOU WATCH PEOPLE CAUGHT IN AN EVENT GONE COMPLETELY OUT OF CONTROL. IT'S ALL HERE. 300,000 PEOPLE WHO CAME TO ALTAMONT, CALIFORNIA. THE ROLLING STONES, THE JEFFERSON AIRPLANE, TINA TURNER, THE HELL'S ANGELS. SOMEONE WROTE IN ESQUIRE MAGAZINE, 'THERE ARE SOME THINGS WHICH AREN'T TRUE, EVEN IF THEY DID HAPPEN. ALTAMONT IS LIKE THAT.'

'FABULOUS ENTERTAINMENT' NEW YORK TIMES

THE ROLLING STONES GIMME SHELTER

MATINEE SAT. & SUN. 2:00. EVENINGS 7:00 & 9:15

BURLINGTON PLAZA CINEMA 1 & 2

Cat-nip

Gordon Atkinson, Montreal's sophisticated and provocative sports score reporter and observer, delivered a typically poignant criticism Saturday night just prior to the Canadian Broadcasting Co. Stanley Cup quarterfinal presentation.

"The National Hockey League schedules nearly 500 hockey games between mid-October and April—just so that six of the 14 teams can be eliminated, and the other eight can play another 49 games to determine who is the real champion. They call the game 'hockey'; it is pronounced 'ho-key'."

And a couple of weeks ago, on the New York Times "Op. Ed." page, America's counterpart to Atkinson, Howard Cosell, lamentably proclaimed the end of professional sports' reign as the greatest escape from everyday and profound troubles.

Cosell implied that greed and commercialism now dominate all major sports in this country, and that the trend seems to be toward further degeneration of sports as a pastime.

The points are certainly well founded, and deserve prolonged discussion. Elements in support of the argument include lengthened schedules, closed-circuit television probabilities, and formal competition at lower and lower age levels.

There are also a number of counter-arguments. If anyone wants to dig deeper into this area with me, during the next few weeks, I'll be happy to oblige. We can talk any evening—as long as it's between periods of the Stanley Cup matches.

But, currently, you may find me a bit biased.

Rugby Team Looks To Tough Weekend

by Gerry Glawey

This Saturday and Sunday, the UVM Rugby Team will host Norwich and the Montreal Irish at the Archie Post Field which is adjacent to the Guttenberg Field House. The contests will start at 1:30 p.m., with a second game following the first on each day.

1970-71 UVM WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM (left to right) Val Gardner, Jennifer Oakes, Lynda Howells, Arlene Frega, Sue Duprat, Jan Upton, Co-captains Patty Wheeler & Sue Saunders, Kathy Keenan, Wendy Buchanan, Barb Munnett, Linda Horsford, Cindy Donnelly, Sue Shaw, Manager Betty Jones.

Vermont Women Go To Regional Competition

The UVM Women's Basketball Team, co-captained by Sue Saunders and Patty Wheeler, culminated its first undefeated season by going to the New England Regional Invitational Tournament held at the University of Massachusetts. Sixteen teams in New England and New York were invited to this first regional tournament which is followed by the National Women's Basketball Tournament held this year in North Carolina.

The UVM women upset the University of Massachusetts in the first round, 40-38, in a tough defensive game. Vermont qualified for the quarterfinals while UMass went to the consolation round, which it eventually won.

In the quarterfinals, Vermont lost to a good, aggressive Queens College team, 61-38, but not before they took the New Yorkers into double overtime in what was most likely the toughest tournament, the State Champions of New York, went on to win the tournament and qualified for the Nationals.

In upsetting UMass and pushing the eventual tournament winner into double overtime, the University of Vermont's green-hatted, highly spirited team made a very impressive showing.

In the four years that women's varsity basketball has been in existence at UVM, the team have come very close several times to having an undefeated season, but never quite made it. This year, however, four years of hard work—both by the girls

Gary Reed, Captain for the coming season.

Joseph Scannella, Head Coach for the club.

Football Ranks Swelled With New Talent As Spring Practice Commences

Six outstanding football prospects have accepted grants-in-aid to attend the University of Vermont this fall, it was announced Monday (April 5) by head coach Joseph Scannella.

The six athletes represent three states, California (3), Maryland (2) and Vermont (1). "This is just the first phase of our recruiting program ready for release," said Scannella, as he indicated several more gridders are "expected to make their decisions in the near future."

Hoping to rebuild the Vermont program, which has dipped the last three years, Scannella has gone after players that should give the Catamounts immediate help. Out of the six being a rough and tumble club much like UVM.

This is the fourth season of Rugby, he is at the University, and a month of workouts and the large turnout should produce the best club yet.

If you have never seen a Rugby game, you are in for a surprise. It is a unique, fast-moving contact sport, combining elements of both American football and soccer with surprising variations, like a sixteen man scrum, which is a mass of bodies pushing against one another with the Rugby ball tossed in between them.

There is no admission, and the fans line the perimeter of the field in close proximity to the action.

NBA Notes

Bob Cousy is the only man in NBA history to score at least 1,000 points in 13 consecutive seasons.

accepted, four are junior college transfers.

The junior college transfers include three from California: Doug Bull (Pomona), Mt. San Antonio Junior College; Mel Connelly (Chico), College of Sequoia; and Stan McConnell (LaMadrada), Cerritos Junior College. "These three Californians will allow us to fill in some gaping holes right away, offensively and defensively," said Scannella.

Bull, a 6'1" 190 lb. linebacker, should step in at an outside linebacker position for the Cats. "Bull is very fast (4.7 40-yard dash), and should really beef up our linebacking corps, a trouble area last fall," said the second-year coach.

Connelly (5-11, 208), an offensive guard, is considered an outstanding blocker, and is expected to step in for the departed Bob Lynch (6-7, 290), who will graduate this May. "Mel is an excellent pulling guard and is a very solid, strategic blocker," reports Scannella.

McConnell (5-10, 180), a defensive back, should be one of the fastest players on the team. He runs a 4.6 40-yd. dash. Scannella indicated that McConnell would be an excellent cornerback.

The fourth JC transfer is Gary Jenkins (6-1, 210), a tight end for Baltimore, Md., via Baltimore Junior College. "An outstanding receiver, Jenkins could be in our starting lineup this fall. He is an excellent blocker and is extremely strong and surprisingly quick," said the head coach.

The other three gridders who have accepted football scholarships include Lawrence Onley (6-2, 180), a defensive back from Baltimore, Md.

Onley, a graduate of Baltimore City College High School, is considered one of the best defensive backs ever recruited at Vermont. His high school club was runner-up in Baltimore for the city championship. "Onley possesses quick hands and excellent mobility," cited Scannella.

Also expected to enroll at Vermont this fall is Rutland (Vt.) High School's versatile athlete, Billy Looker. He could be one of the most "versatile" football players on the squad," according to Scannella, and will be given a serious look at offensive end and defensive back. An All-Stater last fall, Looker was a Vermont Sportsman and Sportsman's Athlete of the Month selection in April for his exploits in track.

Eleven Records Shattered

A total of 11 individual or team records were broken this year by the University of Vermont's hockey team, enroute to a second-place finish in the ECAC playoffs.

Heading the record-breaking list are George Minarsky, last year's All-American goalie, David Reec, and this year's prime All-American candidate, defenseman Ted Yeates.

Between the three, they hold five records. Minarsky became the career-scoring leader this year when he scored against Army, March 2. The Willowdale, Ont. native finished with 56 career goals, 61 assists (also a record) for 117 points. The old record was 115 points set by Lee Roy (1964-68).

Yeates, a co-captain, accounted for six goals which smashed the record of four goals by a defenseman in one season. Sophomore Brad Cooke also had six goals in one season. Catamounts. In addition, Yeates (Dorval, Que.) established a record for most points by a defenseman in one season (25). He also tied the record for most assists in one season (19).

Vermont also tied three records: Most assists by a defenseman in one season (19) Ted Yeates; Best UVM Division II record (14-4), and longest-winning streak (6).

Last year, enroute to the Division II title, Vermont shattered 21 individual or team records.

This year, Vermont also upped its undefeated streak at home against Division II opponents to 19. They have not lost a home game in divisional play since Feb. 26, 1969.

The Catamounts, seeded second for the ECAC playoffs, ended the year with a record of 17-8 and 14-4 in divisional play.

THE INSIDER

by Jay Blumenthal

To most UVM student spring means long lazy afternoons out on the green, but to the 65 members of the football team, spring means long afternoons of banging heads out on the green of Centennial Field.

Spring practice is not just for torment of players (as they sometimes feel it is), but it will enable the coaching staff to see just what kind of team they will be able to put together for the 1971 season. Coach Scannella is hoping the team can draw on the experience of the dismal 1970 season and put it all together for the coming campaign. Practice will also give the coaching staff a chance to see how well last year's freshmen will be able to fill in weak spots caused by graduation or just plain lack of talent.

There will be two newcomers to Centennial field this spring, Gary Holtz, a 6' 3", 230 pound defensive end or tackle who comes to UVM by means of Hudson Valley Community College in New York. The other new griddler is Steve Lippe, a native of Pangola, Mississippi who joins the club after leaving Perkeston Junior College in Alabama. Steve is a quick six foot, 183 pound linebacker and defensive end.

The presence of Bob Rodger will be sorely missed in spring practice. Bob is recovering from surgery on his leg to an injury suffered during the past season. Also missing from spring practice will be Vic Zollo, who is spending his spring afternoons with the basketball team.

The fifteen days of spring practice will be climaxed by a game against the Alumni team coached by former UVM All-American Bob Mitchell. The game will be played under the lights at Burlington High School on Saturday night, May 1.

Swimming Stars Honored

Don Macomber, the diving ace for the University of Vermont Swim Team, has been elected to serve as the captain of next year's squad.

Macomber had posted 42 straight victories in his diving performances before he lost his first dual meet competition on February 13 to the University of Connecticut.

A further announcement by the Coach of the team, Les Leggett, concerned the presentation of the Vermont Swimmer Award to John Radimer, who during the past year excelled in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle events. He was credited with contributing the most points, dedication and loyalty to the Aquatics.

Macomber and Radimer were the leaders of the successful Vermont Team during the past year as the club posted an impressive 8-2 dual meet record.

According to Froines, the men

Sexual Behavior

by Charlie French

In a letter read to the Faculty Senate at its April 15 meeting, three University doctors, John Macock, J. Donald Schultz and Patrick McKenney, expressed concern about human sexuality in relation to UVM's responsibilities.

The letter, originally sent to President Edward Andrews, was read by Dr. Schultz, who appeared in response to the request of an earlier Senate meeting. At its March meeting, the question of sexual behavior at UVM and the Health Service's attitude towards that behavior was raised. In an attempt to gain the opinion of the Health Service and to learn what steps are being taken regarding various sexual problems, the Senate invited representatives from the Health Service to the April meeting.

Editor's Note: The CYNIC attempted to obtain a copy of the letter sent to President Andrews by both Dr. Schultz and Mr. Donald Wilson, Executive Assistant to the President, refused to make a copy of that letter available, even though it had already been read at the Senate meeting, which is open to all students.

Mr. Wilson said, in his refusal, that the letter should be considered by the Board of Trustees before being made available to students. Dr. Schultz stated that the letter could no longer be housed by him and was now the responsibility of the President, who is away for the week.

Became this letter is of intimate concern to all students at this University, the CYNIC urges the administration to make it available without further delay.

The doctors' letter declared that increased sexual activity at UVM has "disclosed areas of

Patterson F

Dr. Wayne C. Patterson, Underhill, has been selected to fill the newly-created position of Executive Vice-President of the University of Vermont, it was announced today. The move has the approval of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees and will be taken to the full Board for formal ratification at its next meeting on May 1.

Dr. Patterson, 35, joined the University's faculty in 1965 as an Assistant Professor of Psychology. He was made Associate Professor in 1968 and Acting Chairman of the Department in 1970, then Coordinator of Academic Planning for the University in the fall of 1970.

It should be made clear that the new title is the result of a rearrangement of functions and responsibilities rather than the addition of a new person to the University's staff. President Edward C. Andrews, Jr., explained today. He said that the Executive Vice President will be responsible for day-to-day University administration so that the Chief Executive can devote more attention to fundamental issues and to broad policy and problems, both on and off the campus. This will make possible closer collaboration with the institution's Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Alfred B. Rollins, Jr., and the entire academic community as well.

Dr. Patterson's focus will be

Student—Faculty

Auto Service SPECIALS!

FREE—Car—Lube with Purchase of Oil Change!

This Coupon Valued $3. to $5.

This Coupon entitles Bearer to FREE! Auto Lubrication with Purchase of Oil Change Student or Faculty I.D. Required

- Quaker State Oil—10-30—58¢ qt.
- Oil Filter with oil Change 88¢

Zayre

155 Dorset St. So. Burlington, Vt.

You can become an advertising salesman for the CYNIC and can earn $50.00 a week plus bonuses. No previous experience is needed. Although you won't start until next semester, we need your name now so we can plan ahead. Please fill out the following and drop it in the CYNIC office in Lower Billings.

Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____

free delivery DOMINO'S PIZZA

DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO
discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon
25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA
Name _____	Name _____	Name _____	Name _____
Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____
GOOD FOR APRIL 15	GOOD FOR APRIL 16, 17, 18	GOOD FOR APRIL 20, 21, 22	GOOD FOR APRIL 20, 21, 22
DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO
discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon
25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA
Name _____	Name _____	Name _____	Name _____
Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____
GOOD FOR APRIL 23, 24, 25	GOOD FOR APRIL 27, 28, 29	GOOD FOR APRIL 27, 28, 29	GOOD FOR APRIL 30
DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO	DOMINO
discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon	discount coupon
25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	25¢ OFF 16" PIZZA 15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA
Name _____	Name _____	Name _____	Name _____
Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____	Phone _____
GOOD FOR MAY 1, 2	GOOD FOR MAY 4, 5, 6	GOOD FOR MAY 4, 5, 6	GOOD FOR MAY 7, 8, 9

DOMINO'S PIZZA

10 N. Williston Ave.
Burlington, Vt.
658-3333

VERMONT CYNIC

APRIL 22, 1971

VOL. LXIX NO. 11

According to Froines, the most profound lesson from the Vietnam War is that "ordinary people are going to win."

John Froines Calls For Civil Disobedience; Washington March Will Be 'Biggest Ever'

by Ralph Robbins

John Froines, one of the defendants in the Chicago 7 trial, who has been acquitted, spoke at the University last Friday, April 16. The CYNIC estimates that at least 200 people listened to Froines rap the Nixon Administration's policies. According to "Froines, the Americans have succeeded in their goals of driving the Viet Cong out of the small villages. He added, however, that the Viet Cong were driven to the cities.

Froines also discussed the Peoples Peace Treaty and the events that will take place in Washington at the end of April and the beginning of May with respect to this treaty. He stated that the momentum for the ratification of this treaty is gaining. "Over 3,000 active-duty GIs at Ft. Cragg, North Carolina have already signed the People's Peace Treaty." Many others have also signed their names on the Peace Treaty, including parents of POWs, wives of POWs, rotary clubs, etc. However, "that is a long term way of functioning and moving."

"Particularly now during the dry season campaign we have to go into the streets in the most serious, militant, committed, and joyous way of our experience."

The activities have already begun, it was stated. George Wiley and Ralph Abernathy took a mule train to Wall Street and with the help of two or three thousand other participants, disrupted traffic for a few hours. Froines feels that although this is only the beginning, it is important that the first spring anti-war action was led by Black people.

"This spring it is not just students. It is a different movement, a better movement. Everyone from all walks of life is getting involved. 5,000 to 10,000 Vietnam Veterans and families of POWs are going to camp out in Washington from the 18th to the 23rd."

Marches to Washington have already left from Kent State, from Arlington, Texas, from Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and from other areas of the country.

On April 23 a group of GIs will take their medals received in the Vietnam War, place them in a "body bag," and throw them on the lawn of the White House.

On April 24, there will be a day-long massive rally, "probably the biggest rally ever."

From April 25 to April 30, people will take the Peace Treaty into congressmen's offices, HEW, the Commerce Department, CIA, Pentagon, and other governmental agencies.

"On April 28 the marchers from all over the country will arrive at a place called Algonquin Peace City." Algonquin Park is actually Rock Creek Park, but has been renamed by the leaders of the movement.

"Beginning on May 1, if the government has not stopped the war, we will begin to stop the government of the United States in Washington, On May 1, 1971, Madam Nguyen Thi Bin, in Paris, will call for the absolute disruption of every American installation throughout the world. On May 1, 1971, in South Vietnam, there will be the most massive demonstrations in the history of the war by the South Vietnamese people. This is to be the most coordinated, clearly defined effort with the South Vietnamese people ever."

"In London, Paris, Frankfurt, Rome, Stockholm, Tokyo, Australia and New Zealand, people are going to disrupt American installations. Many GIs in various army camps in the United States will call in sick, 'sick of the war, too sick to work.' This will mark the beginning of a strike."

On May 1 there will also be a tent city in Washington with the Jefferson Airplane, Richie

Havens, Joan Baez and some other popular people and groups, and on May 2, there will be a huge rally in Washington at which many of the movement's leaders will speak.

"Then it all begins on May 3rd. May 2nd is the call for civil disobedience throughout the week. On May 3rd we begin to disrupt Washington."

This disruption will happen in many different ways: The students at St. Cloud College in Minnesota have bought 40 bread trucks, all of which will be driven to Washington where they will all break down; 25 different target areas will be taken by different groups; all of the roads leading to the Pentagon and CIA building as well as others will be blocked by "broken down cars." Boston University is organizing an amphibious landing in Canada at the CIA building; thousands of people will sit down and lock arms in Dupont Circle. According to Froines, "these people have to be prepared to be arrested, to be beaten, to be arrested, to be beaten, to be beaten, and that is why people who go to this have to look inside themselves a little bit. If you don't want to be arrested when the police come, move a block and sit down."

"Some people who seriously want to be arrested—who want to carry out non-violent civil disobedience—far out!" Froines' descriptions of the planned "civil disobedience" drew laughter from the audience. Towards the end of his speech, he commented: "I sometimes hesitate to talk about them (the different events) because they sometimes take away from the seriousness; but I don't think we should apologize for the feeling that politics should have some joy associated with it."

Other activities that are planned include the surrounding of the capital on May 3 so that congress can not function. "On May 5—no business as usual anywhere in the United States. We are going to shut down the United States and keep it shut down for as long as we can shut it down."

Froines said that many will leave Washington on May 6 and travel to New Haven, Connecticut to finally link up (continued on page three)

John Froines addressing UVM students, described the events that will take place in Washington.

Sexual Behavior At Faculty Senate Meeting

by Charlie French

In a letter read to the Faculty Senate at its April 15 meeting, three University doctors, John Maccek, J. Donald Schultz and Patrick McKegney, expressed concern about human sexuality in relation to UVM's responsibilities.

The letter, originally sent to President Edward Andrews, was read by Dr. Schultz who appeared in response to the request of an earlier Senate meeting. At its March meeting, the question of sexual behavior at UVM and the Health Service's attitude towards that behavior was raised. In an attempt to gain the opinion of the Health Service and to learn what steps are being taken regarding various sexual problems, the Senate invited representatives from the Health Service to the April meeting.

Editor's Note: The CYNIC attempted to obtain a copy of the letter sent to President Andrews but both Dr. Schultz and Mr. Donald Wilson, Executive Assistant to the President, refused to make a copy of that letter available, even though it had already been read at the Senate meeting, which is open to all students. Mr. Wilson said, in his refusal, that the letter should be considered by the Board of Trustees before being made available to students. Dr. Schultz stated that the letter could no longer be issued by him and was now the responsibility of the President, who is away for the week.

Because this letter is of intimate concern to all students at this University, the CYNIC urges the administration to make it available without further delay.

The doctors' letter declared that increased sexual activity at UVM has disclosed areas of great ignorance among students and has resulted in psychological conflicts, various forms of venereal disease infection and unwanted pregnancies.

The doctors also recommended that the University should take, in the future, a more active role in providing instruction, more services (including diagnostic and therapeutic treatment of venereal disease), counseling and help for pregnant women.

Schultz told the Senate what steps had already been taken to establish a course in Human Sexuality which would encompass both its broadest and narrowest aspects. The course is planned to begin by the fall of 1971 and the University hopes eventually to offer it for academic credit.

During the discussion that followed, the increase in the incidence of venereal disease on this and other campuses was touched upon.

Dr. Schultz also described to the Senate the Health Service's criterion for dispensing contraceptives. They are being provided to women who fall into one of six categories already established by the Health Service. Two of these categories concern women who have already been using some form of contraceptive under another physician's care and women over 21, the age of majority in Vermont. (Now that the age of majority has been lowered to 18, this criterion must obviously be revised.)

In other discussion of Dr. Schultz's remarks, the publicity given the Health Services at Orientation and the confidentiality of records of patients who have contracted venereal disease were discussed.

Professor Riggs recalled the days when Hygiene, taught through the Department of Physical Education, was a required course for all University students.

The Senate then went on to consider other business. In a special resolution, Professor Harvey Salgo, speaking for the UVM Veterans Against the War, read the following statement to the Senate: "We urge all faculty members to consider, seriously, postponing the classroom obligations of Veterans who plan to go to Washington during the week of April 19-23."

The Senate approved the motion and then went on to receive the report of the Student Excellence Committee.

The report suggested that admissions be based on "excellence" in both academic and extra-academic areas, and that a definition of that term be developed.

The committee also acknowledged that they have contacted highly qualified prospective students. These "highly qualified" students are those who represent the top ten percent of those offered admission.

Also mentioned were the John Dewey Fellows who are "currently engaged in a redefinition of (their) goals and objectives."

The group also asked for specific access to a place where their meetings can be held. While admitting that this is a fairly minor problem, the Fellows asked that a solution to it be propounded.

April 24th Committee Plans Trip To Washington For Anti-War Protests

by John French

Because of the persistent double talk about troop withdrawals and the attempted cover-up by the Administration of the South Vietnamese defeat in Laos, more and more Americans are becoming radicalized and are demanding immediate and total withdrawal of all American forces from Southeast Asia. Trade unions, portrayed by the media as pro-Nixon, are becoming increasingly alienated by the President's policy shenanigans. Hard hats in Iowa, angered by wage guidelines, marched with students and housewives against Nixon during a recent Presidential visit.

Because of this increase in anti-war sentiment, an immense effort is being undertaken to mobilize in Washington on April 24. This mobilization, designed to be a peaceful mass action, will enable all anti-war forces to gather and make their demands known to the government. The action organizers have been able to gain the support of many groups such as the National Student Association, the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, unions such as the United Auto Workers and Amalgamated Meat Cutters, and Senator's such as Muskie and Hartke.

Organizers expect a turnout larger than the November 15 Moratorium. Estimates run from 500 thousand to a million marchers. New York alone had already reserved two trains and 400 buses as of March 26. The significance of this is that, in all probability, students will be in the minority and that a large number will consist of workers. This will blow the hard hat myth perpetrated by the Administration and the media. With such an outpouring of the rank and file, Nixon can politically ill-afford to time sit in front of the TV and twiddle his thumbs.

Many UVM students are planning to make the trip down. The UVM April 24th Committee is providing transportation for many of these students, which will leave here at 7 PM Friday, and will return sometime Sunday morning. Also, nearly a thousand April 24 buttons have been distributed on Campus. Marchers will show that the reputed ill in anti-war sentiment is a wishful Administration thinking. All out for the 24th!

Fine Arts Bond Cut; $200 Tuition Increase

Tuition Increase

The trustees are expected to approve a $200 tuition increase for both in-state and out-of-state students, Melvin Dyson, vice president of financial affairs has announced.

According to Mr. Dyson, the present revised budget has already allowed for this $200 increase. If the trustees did not approve the increase, there would have to be further cuts. When asked if another raise in tuition would be anticipated for the fall of 1973, assuming this increase is approved, Dyson commented that the trend has been to raise tuition and increase governmental loans to those in need. However, it is too early to say if there will be an increase; and if there is an increase, how much it will be.

Construction Bond Cut
The University of Vermont's proposed Fine Arts Center has been cut from the State's construction bond budget. Before adjourning, however, the Legislature added $500,000 for UVM's appropriation for improvements to existing University building facilities.

UVM requested $5 million for the Fine Arts Building, to be given in $250,000 installments over the next 20 years. According to Mr. Dyson, the University will have to wait until next year to bring the proposal before the Legislature again.

Sen. Robert Boardman, newly elected UVM Trustee, tried to convince his constituents of the importance of the new building and needed renovations for other buildings at UVM. His efforts were not totally in vain as the $5 million amendment was finally approved.

Mr. Dyson, when asked what he feels are the "prospects of UVM's financial position" replied: "There is nothing to make us believe it will be any better next year than this year."

Anti-War Rally on the Green

Today at Noon

To March on Federal Building

Patterson Fills New Position

Dr. Wayne C. Patterson, Underhill, has been selected to fill the newly-created position of Executive Vice President of the University of Vermont. It was announced today. The move has been approved by the Board of Trustees and will be taken to the full Board for formal ratification at its next meeting on May 1.

Dr. Patterson, 35, joined the University faculty in 1965 as an Assistant Professor of Psychology. He was made Associate Professor in 1968 and Acting Chairman of the Department in 1970, then Coordinator of Academic Planning for the University in the fall of 1970.

It should be made clear that the new title is the result of a rearrangement of functions and responsibilities rather than the addition of a new person to the University's staff. President Edward C. Andrews, Jr., explained today. He said that the Executive Vice President will be responsible for day-to-day University administration so that the Chief Executive can devote more attention to fundamental issues and to broad policy and problems, both on and off the campus. This will make possible closer collaboration with the University's Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Alfred B. Rollins, Jr., and the entire academic community as well. Dr. Patterson's focus will be on the planning, management systems, and administrative aspects of UVM and he is expected to spend most of his time on such matters.

The new Executive Vice President received a Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology from Juniata College in Pennsylvania in 1960 and did graduate work in experimental psychology and physiological psychology at the University of Delaware, receiving a Master of Science degree in 1962 and his Ph.D. in 1965. He has published a number of papers in the field of physiological psychology and has served as a research consultant and director for a series of research projects in his field, under Government grants. He is a member of the Vermont Drug Rehabilitation Commission, the American Psychological Association, New York Academy of Sciences, and the Underhill School Board.

Dr. Patterson will fill the newly created position of Executive Vice President.

'Niggerhead' To Remain 'Niggerhead'; Legislature Only Toys With New Name

From Rutland Herald

Friday, April 16, 1971

(Vermont Press Bureau)

MONTPELIER—The House figures Vermont can call anything it wants "Niggerhead," and no one is going to make it change the name.

Marshfield has a pond, brook and mountain all called "Niggerhead," and the term has become hateful to a sizeable number of Vermonters because of its racial slur. But the House made it clear Thursday it won't change the name, even in order to honor one of its own members.

There was an attempt Thursday to change the names of the brook, mountain and pond to "Tibbits," in honor of Rep. Arnold Tibbits, R-67, of Plainfield.

Some lawmakers thought the suggestion had the ring of a mock honor since its backer, Rep. Emory Hebard, R-28, of Glover, is known to take a certain amount of glee in occasionally putting his fellow legislators on the spot.

Hebard is a conservative who apparently thinks too much fuss is being made about whether an official state name offends people. His unstated reasoning behind the resolution seemed to be something like this:

If the liberals don't like calling the Marshfield areas Niggerhead, maybe they should be named for Tibbits, a very conservative Marshfield resident who frequently berates "hippies" and that segment of the Marshfield-Plainfield area population connected with liberal Goodard College.

As Rep. Tibbits, sat blushing with his head in his hands, the House voted 73-35 to send the proposal to the General & Military Affairs Committee. A division (standing) vote was demanded, to make it evident to Tibbits and everyone else which lawmakers didn't want to give the Marshfield landmarks his name.

House Majority Leader John Grenier, R-22, of Waterbury, was one of those calling for a division vote.

If Hebard, Grenier and others thought it would be fun to play around with the Niggerhead issue two days before the end of the session, some others didn't, including House Speaker Walter Kennedy, R-35, of Chelsea. Kennedy made it clear when the opponents of the Niggerhead name first swung into action this year that he likes the name and won't be pressured into changing it.

He also has made it clear that he doesn't like the House to idle away its time, particularly when time is running out on the session. He wasn't happy with the time taken up Thursday by the question.

The General Committee didn't consider the Tibbits resolution very funny either, and voted 10-0 against changing the name of the pond, mountain and brook.

The Niggerhead problem really rests with the state Library Board, which is charged with setting names of state landmarks. The board will be petitioned April 21 to change the Niggerhead name.

But since the House unhelpfully (continued on page three)

Stanley Tolliver

Thursday, April 22, 1971

Ira Allen Chapel 8:00 p.m.

Presented by SA Speakers Bureau

IDER mean long lazy the 45 members of long afternoons of Centennial Field.

ment of players (as enable the coaching they will be able to Coach Scanlon is the experience of the together for the coming the coaching staff
freshmen will be able education or just plain

Centennial field this ound defensive end or eans of Hudson Val-York. The other new of Pasagola, Mississippi, Perkins Junior quick six foot, 182

will be sorely missed ering from surgery on the past season.

vice will be Vic Zollo, months with the base

actice will be climaxed team coached by for-Mitchell. The game is at Burlington High

re Honored

est, concerned the estimation of the Vermont
Summer Award to John
Admirer, who during the past year excelled in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle events. He was rewarded with contributing the best points, dedication and loyalty to the AquaCats.
Macomber and Radimer were the leaders of the successful
Vermont Team during the past year as the club posted an impressive 8-2 dual meet record.

DOMINO

discount

coupon

25% OFF 16" PIZZA

15% OFF 12" PIZZA

Name

Phone

GOOD FOR

APRIL 20, 21, 22

DOMINO

discount

coupon

25% OFF 16" PIZZA

15% OFF 12" PIZZA

Name

Phone

GOOD FOR

APRIL 30

DOMINO

discount

coupon

25% OFF 16" PIZZA

15% OFF 12" PIZZA

Name

Phone

GOOD FOR

MAY 7, 8, 9

OS PIZZA

10000 Ave.

Stanton, VT.

3333

Calendar/Announcements

Students Honored

The University of Vermont will honor students for academic achievement and will present newly-elected members of class honor societies Wednesday (April 21) afternoon in Honors Day programs conducted by four colleges and two schools that make up the undergraduate academic divisions of the University.

The University's military science department will conduct a separate Honors Day program

Friday (April 23) at Ira Allen Chapel.

Wednesday afternoon classes have been cancelled for the programs, which are open to the public.

This will mark the second year in which the various academic divisions have conducted individual Honors Day programs, replacing the former University-wide convocation.

ETV Schedule

The genius of another era—John Donne and Ludwig van Beethoven—are considered side-by-side with contemporary problems such as the place of Mexican-Americans in modern society, and pornography in literature, in evening programs on Vermont Educational Television April 25-30.

Lois Nettleton and Edward Mulhare give their interpretation of the poetry and prose of the 17th Century poet and priest John Donne on "Actor's Choice" Monday (April 26) at 7 p.m.

At 9 p.m. Monday Prof. James G. Case and John C. Harriott of St. Michael's College consider pornography and sexuality in literature and art, part of their continuing series in a study of "Human Sexuality."

John Shepherd rode the train "City of Los Angeles" on its last journey across the American West. He relives the trip and an earlier one, during his Army days, on "Jean Shepherd's America" Tuesday (April 27) at 7:30 p.m.

The trial of a Black Militant, and his defense in court, are presented Wednesday (April 28) at 8:30 p.m. on "Trial—The city and County of Denver vs. Laura R. Watson."

NET Playhouse Thursday (April 29) at 8:30 presents the dramatization of a critical period in the life of Beethoven, when he first wins recognition and comes to realize that eventually he will be "deaf."

The problems of the Mexican-American in today's society are explored by U.S. Office of Education officials Friday (April 30) at 9:30 p.m. on "You and Manana." The program will be repeated on May 4.

Family Associates Officers

A Burlington couple, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lask, will head up a new slate of officers for the University of Vermont Family Associates, succeeding Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Blasen of South Burlington.

They were elected at the spring meeting of the Family Associates executive board.

Also newly-elected were Mr. and Mrs. Torrey C. Carpenter, Burlington, first vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Spengler, Burlington, second vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Zimmerman, East Junction, third vice presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Tracy, Barre, secretaries; and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Woods of Burlington, treasurer.

The new slate takes office June 1.

The Family Associates is an organization open to parents of UVM students whose aim is to encourage parents to take a closer interest in the University and its efforts to enrich student life.

Through voluntary dues—which have been $5 per family since the inception of the organization in the early 1960's—the Associates have made many gifts to enrich student life such as encyclopedias and other study materials for Billings Center and residence halls, emergency discretionary funds, sewing machines, silver tea services, as well as gifts to organizations such as the Oting Club and the Office of Volunteer Programs.

Noting their relative ability to keep up their services has been the victim of rising costs, the organization voted at the Saturday meeting to increase dues from $5 to $10 per family per year.

Card Company Sponsors Photo Contest

Young men and women will get a chance to click their cameras and send the results of the professionals, in a photography contest sponsored by a New York greeting card company, beginning May 1.

Persons prominent in the photographic world will judge entries and will award several top prizes valued at more than $1,000, including a Nikon Photomatic FTN camera.

Judges will also select an unlimited number of photographs for use by the company at regular professional rates. Amateurs, whose work is purchased, will also receive a credit line—his or her name on cards that are published.

The contest sponsor, Empathy Graphics of New York, has become nationally famous for its photographic greeting cards and posters, which deal in social satire as well as the conventional subjects of love, friendship and togetherness. The work of such well-known photographers as Tosh Matsumoto, Hugh Bell, Susan Szaiz and Phoebe Dunn appear on its cards.

The contest closes September 30, but all photographs mailed to the company prior to that date which are found purchasable will be paid for as well as entered in the contest for major prizes.

Those wishing to enter the contest may obtain entry forms at greeting card, gift and chain drug stores which carry the Empathy line. Entries will be judged on the basis of creativity, pictorial ability and content and may be submitted in black and white or color.

GRADUATING MEN AND WOMEN

Check Your Education

- Agriculture degree or experience
- 2 year degree or B.S. in Nursing
- B.A. in English plus a foreign language
- Degree in primary or secondary ed. able to teach math or science
- Civil Engineering degree
- Forestry or Fisheries degree or experience
- Math or science degree or emphasis
- Urban planning or architecture degree
- Liberal Arts major with summer experience in construction, health or mechanics.

Then Check the Peace Corps

7,000 American Volunteers, most of them just out of college. Black and white. With the kind of education listed above. Working hard in 180 countries to help people in 60 countries help themselves. That's the Peace Corps. You can be part of it. Contact your local Peace Corps office or send in the coupon. Today.

THE PEACE CORPS
Washington, D. C. 20525
Tell me more about the opportunities in the Peace Corps for graduating college men and women.
I'd be available for service in the next 6-12 months ☐ YES ☐ NO ☐ MARRIED ☐ SINGLE

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____
STATE _____ ZIP _____

Thursday, April 22
IUF Lecture, Dr. Paul I. Wachter, San Mateo, Calif., Community Mental Health Center, "Community Mental Health Center as a Training Milieu," 8:30 a.m., Shelburne Inn.
Varsity Golf at St. Michael's, 1:30 p.m.
Varsity Tennis vs. New Hampshire, 2 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Friday, April 23
Varsity Track, Penn Relays at Philadelphia.
Varsity Golf vs. Norwich, 1 p.m., Burlington Country Club.
Varsity Baseball at Connecticut, 3 p.m.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.
Varsity Tennis vs. Rhode Island, 1 p.m., Gutterson Field House.

Debate Team Co Two Successful

In two recent tournaments, the U.V.M. debate team managed to heap more glory on themselves. First, with a fantastic showing at the National Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha tournament, the low man team of Lydia Harvey, Anita Leggett, Ellen Hoffman, and Rick Raum tied for fourth place with an overall record of eleven wins and five losses. Over sixty teams from all parts of the country attended the tournament, held at Indiana State University. Rick Raum, returning senior and the president of the Lawrence Debate and Discussion Club, received the fourth place speaker award for the entire tournament.

The excitement didn't stop in the varsity division. A contingent of U.V.M. debaters travelled to that fun city of the Northeast, Portland, for the New England and Eastern Tournaments held at the University of Maine at Portland-Concord, Gorham. Working in a feverish search of a place to pitch by skillful coaching the team of Larry Walton and Phil Vermont Maniati swept the novice at National division. Not only did they win place in the fourth place individual speaker Oral final award. In the varsity division, team of B. however, things did not go quite as well. Ellen Hoffman and Rick Raum were tossed together for But, as the result was a somewhat less momentous than impressive record of one as they

Seniors Participate in Marijuana Study

All UVM Seniors have been asked to participate in a study of Marijuana usage patterns which is being conducted by a graduate student in Psychology.

Seniors received a two-page questionnaire from the "A.W.N.—Project" in the middle of last week, with instructions to return the completed questionnaire as soon as possible. As of Monday morning, about 40 per cent of the Seniors had returned their forms.

The research is being conducted by John Perry, a graduate student, under the direction of Dr. James Ferguson, for a course in social psychology.

According to Mr. Perry, the project seeks to discover "intrinsic patterns" of marijuana use, unlike most projects, which try to relate drug use to external, social and psychological "causes."

Initial results of the survey will be reported as soon as a significant number of seniors have responded, according to Mr. Perry. He said that would mean somewhere over two-thirds would have to be returned before any results could be announced.

He did say, however, that "everybody will be shocked—users and non-users alike—if the final returns are anything like the early returns have been."

Food Stamps Gain A

The Growth in the Food and Stamp Program reflects increasing acceptance by Vermonters. Commissioner J. W. Beitt said today, Mr. Beitt released the statistics for January and February, which show a total value increase of $70,458, over the December, 1970, total. Total value for January, 1971, figures have grown to $28,037. In February the number increased by nearly 1,000.

Because it is possible to see people who use food stamps, there have been complaints of possible abuse of the program. The United States Department of Agriculture and Welfare established specific requirements for participation in the Food Stamp Program. These include maximum income levels, intent to reside, a residence that is suitable for year around living; participants must either be working, or if unemployed and able-bodied must be registered

4 Winds Gallery
FERRISBURGH, VERMONT
Telephone 802/425-2101
MADEIRA C. BORDEN

NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN ART

NAVAJO-ZUNI-APACHE-HOPI PAINTINGS & JEWELRY
APRIL 16TH THRU MAY 12TH
OPEN DAILY 10-6
THE GALLERY IS ONE MILE OFF ROUTE 7 - TURN EAST BETWEEN THE DAKIN AND SPADE FARM SHOPS, AND BEAR LEFT - IS MILES SOUTH OF BURLINGTON - 5 MILES NORTH OF VERGENNES

CLASS OF 1972
YOUR YEARBOOK PHOTOGRAPH PLUS
Your retouched negative in our files will enable you to get overnite service for applications, passports or portraits needed in your senior year.
Call for an appointment at your convenience any day from 9 to 5
CARR STUDIOS
TEL 864-4411
199 Main St Next to Strong Theatre

Chittenden TRUST COMPANY
Our Drive-in Windows Make Banking Easy at...

UNIVERSITY OFFICE WILLISTON ROAD

Diamond wedding ensembles—created for the girl who can't say "NO."
PRICES START AT UNDER $100
YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO OPEN A CHARGE ACCOUNT.
F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
A FAMILY OF JEWELERS IN VERMONT SINCE 1904
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON

ST. LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY
Summer Session
Undergraduate—June 1-July 2 & June 28-July 30
Up to 8 Credit Hours
Liberal Arts Offerings... Near Adirondacks
Computer Science... St. Lawrence Seaway
Summer Theater Workshop... Thousand Islands
Write: Director of Summer Session
St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y. 13617

EUROPE: year round student charters, tours, employment opportunities, discounts. Anglo America Assoc., P.O. Box 36, Nahant, MA 01908

Madame Tenebris et Monsieur
Que vous venez-vous à Paris voir?
A summer in PARIS with Sarah Lawrence.
A program designed to involve you totally in the City of Paris when it is at its best... its theatres, galleries, concerts, opera in full function... June 18 to July 29... a program for enthusiasts not tourists.
Courses in Art History, Literature, Philosophy—(both Modern and Classical)—and an intensive French Language program. Field work in Chartres, Mont St. Michel, the chateaux country, and in and around Paris.
Tuition, room, board $250—meal allowances each day for lunch and dinner at restaurants of your choice
Charter Flight
Write: Foreign Studies Office
Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, New York, 10708

Revolutionary Mock Conference

The regular Revolutionary film series will shift location Friday, April 23 to South Hall, Redstone Campus. The MAY DAY Film on the People's Peace Treaty and May Day festival in Washington will be shown at the community gathering—Be There!

Class Council Elections

The election for the Class Councils & the Supreme Court Justices will be held on April 28. Sign-up sheets are at the SA office in Billings. The Class Councils consist of 8 members which choose their own chairman. Next year's sophomore, junior & senior Class Councils will be decided in this election. The Supreme Court has openings.

To be eligible to run for any of these positions a student must have a 1.7 cume or better and be a student in good standing (not on any type of probation). The sign-up ends Monday, April 26th at noon. The election will be held in Billings 9-4 and in the dining hall 5-6:30 with I.D.'s.

Environmental Workshops

The UVM Task Force on Environmental Workshops is sponsoring: "Lifestyles, Human Values, and the Environment: A Community Gathering." Billings Center, North Lounge.

Friday, April 23, at 3:00-5:00 p.m.

Scope Gathering

SCOPE Presents a Community Gathering Friday night, April 23, 8 p.m. at Southwick Hall, Redstone Campus. Paul Weiner will be there to present his dirty blues and other groups will be joining. Bring instruments, food, and good vibes. The May Day film on the Peoples' Peace treaty and Festival in Washington around May Day will be shown. Donations will be accepted to the Community Center, 160 N. Winoski St. Get your ya-ya's out!

Billings Board Elections

Applications for a position open on the Billings Center Governing Board will be available at the Student Activities Desk until April 26th.

Woman's Gymnastics

The Women's Gymnastics won its fourth meet of the season, defeating Lyndon State College and Keene State College at Keene. Anne Geller lead the team by placing first in floor exercise, 2nd in beam and tied for fourth on the balance beam. Patty Wagner took first place honors on the uneven parallel bars and placed third in floor exercise. Anne Dietz took a third place in vaulting. The last meet of the season will be May 1 at Green Mt. College.

PRO SHOP
SPAULDING CONVERSE CCM PADDLEBALL RACKETS AND BALLS SQUASH RACKETS AND BALLS SQUASHBALLS
28 MAIN ST.
WINOOSKI, VERMONT
655-2621

APRIL 22, 1971

APRIL 22, 1971

VERMONT CYNIC

Debate Team Concludes Two Successful Tours

In two recent tournaments, the U.V.M. debate team managed to keep more glory on themselves. First, with a fantastic showing at the National Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha tournament, the four-man team of Lydia Harvey, Anita Leggett, Ellen Hoffman, and Rick Raum tied for fourth place with an overall record of eleven wins and five losses. Over sixty teams from all parts of the country attended the tournament, held at Indiana State University. Rick Raum, a returning senior and the president of the Lawrence Debate and Discussion Club, received the fourth place speaker award for the entire tournament.

The excitement didn't stop there, however. A contingent of debate debaters traveled to that fun city of the Northeast, Portland, for the New England and University of Maine at Portland-Gorham. Worked to a fever pitch by skillful coaching, the team swept the novice division. Not only did they win first place, but Larry won the fourth place individual speaker award. In the variety division, however, things did not go as well. Ellen Hoffman and Rick Raum were teamed together for this particular tournament, and the result was a somewhat less than impressive record of one win and four losses. Excuses for the results ranged from the old stand-by of squirrel judging to such excuses as fierce Portland weather. Jan Goldstein helped redeem the good name of Vermont however, as he made an excellent showing in Oral Interpretation, winning second place in the event.

Seniors Participate In Marijuana Study

All UVM Seniors have been asked to participate in a study of Marijuana usage patterns which is being conducted by a graduate student in Psychology.

Seniors received a two-page questionnaire from the "L.A.W.N. Project" in the middle of last week, with instructions to return the completed questionnaires as soon as possible. As of Monday morning, about 40 per cent of the Seniors had returned their forms.

The research is being conducted by John Perry, a graduate student, under the direction of Dr. James Ferguson, for a course in social psychology.

According to Mr. Perry, the project seeks to discover "intrinsic patterns" of marijuana use, unlike most projects which try to relate drug use to external, social and psychological "causes."

Initial results of the survey will be reported as soon as a significant number of seniors have responded, according to Mr. Perry. He said that would mean somewhere over two-thirds would have to be returned before any results could be announced.

He did say, however, that "everybody will be shocked—users and non-users alike—if the final returns are anything like the early returns have been."

Food Stamps Gain Acceptance

The Growth in the Food Stamp Program reflects increasing acceptance by Vermonters. Commissioner J. W. Betts said today, Mr. Betts released the statistics for January and February, which show a total value increase of $70,458, over the December, 1970, total. Total value for February was $648,727. This amount includes that portion paid by recipients plus the "bonus" value which is financed by the United States Department of Agriculture. Vermonters add more than half of the total value from their own funds.

The program has grown since last year at this time by over 100%. January, 1970, showed a total of 12,842 individuals benefiting from the program. January, 1971 figures have grown to 28,037. In February the number increased by nearly 1,800.

Because it is possible to use people who use food stamps, there have been complaints of possible abuse of the program. The United States Department of Agriculture and Department of Social Welfare established specific requirements for participation in the Food Stamp Program. These include maximum income levels, intent to reside, a residence that is suitable for year around living, participants must either be working, or if unemployed and able-bodied must be registered

LIFE SCIENCES BUILDING STUDENT ASSOCIATION SPECIAL FILMS

BENEDICT HALL

7:30 P.M.

All Admission $1.25

Agnes (le Bonheur) Varda's

April 23

LION'S LOVE

(with Viva and Jerome Ragni)

Shakespeare Festival Invited To England

The Champlain Shakespeare Festival at the University of Vermont is one of a limited number of U.S. performing groups which have been invited to be part of the American Festival in Britain sponsored by the Restoration Arts Theatre of Detroit this summer.

Because of the University's stringent operating budget, however, the Shakespeare Festival is unable to meet the costs of sending a group to perform in the Festival, and has had to refuse the honor.

Shakespeare Festival Producer-Director Edward W. Feidner said the Restoration Arts Theatre had invited the UVM group to perform Shakespeare's "Othello" and "Richard III" in a three-week tour of the British Isles preceding the July 20 opening of the Champlain Festival at the University.

The American Festival in Britain features selected choral, drama, orchestral, instrumental and dance groups from the U.S. in performance tours of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. The event has been conducted annually for ten years.

Niggerhead...

(continued from page one)

Committee thought it would be a good idea to go ahead and settle the matter by legislative resolution, some members of the General D. 7-3, of Barre, suggested swapping Niggerhead for "Hewitt" pond, mountain and brook, in honor of Dr. Arthur Hewitt, a well-known retired Methodist minister in Berlin and former state Education Board member.

However, his idea wasn't accepted, and some committee members who felt equally as serious about the issue were also adamant about leaving the name as it is.

Said Rep. George Branch, R-14-2, of Milton: "I'm voting to leave the name Niggerhead."

University Orchestra

The University Orchestra under the direction of Frank W. Lital will present its final concert of the season in Ira Allen Chapel at 8:30 p.m., Friday, April 23, 1971. Dr. Robert Wagner of the music faculty will perform an unusual concerto for trombone and orchestra by Georg Wagenaar, an eighteenth century Viennese classical composer. Other works include the Mozart Impresario Overture, Haydn's Symphony No. 97 in C, and Robert Russell Bennett's Symphonic Synthesis on Gerhart's Porgy and Bess. The concert is free and open to the public.

Pegton's yardstick

ON

115 St. Paul St.

The Park

"Fine Fabrics for the Home Sewer"

THE NEW VICTORIAN INN

Announces a Spring Special for all UVM Students Planning their formal weekend. To make this a most traditional and elegant time, Stop At The New Victorian Inn And receive As A gift from us 10% off your Dinner. Alcoholic Beverages excluded.

Reservations Appreciated. Monique & John Ladue Innkeepers. 1710 Shelburne Road. South Burlington, Vt. 864-0338.

APRIL 22, 1971

San Mateo, Calif., Community Mental Health, Shattouh Inn.

re. 2 p.m., Guterson Field.

Philadelphia.

Springtown Country Club.

Am.

Arms Theatre.

emony, 4:30 p.m., Ira Allen

Varsity "Lion's Love," 7:30

Life Sciences Building. Tickets

a week prior to April 23.

Philadelphia.

a.m.

p.m., Guterson Field House.

Chamber Arts Series Concert,

rown, 8:30 p.m., Memorial the cancelled March 2 Nana

this "Charlie Brown" concert.

able $4, $5.25 and $7.75).

Good Man, Charlie Brown," 3

Admission tickets $2.

April 26—May 2 will be 10

Mock Conference

On Wednesday, April 28, a Mock White House Conference on Children will be held in North Lounge in Billings Center from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The members of the U.V.M. community who represented Vermont in the national White House Conference on Children will be present to provide information on the Conference for all who are interested. Everyone is invited to take advantage of this presentation.

All Greek Party

It has been announced that May 1 and 2 have been designated as UVM Greek Weekend. Paul Phelps of Acacia, chairman of the Weekend, outlined the events. Individual houses will be participating in Green-up day.

On Saturday, May 1, there will be an All-Greek party at Jaques's Barn, Huntington, Vermont. Entertainment will be supplied by "Wreckage." Tickets are $2.00 per couple, and are available to anyone, Greek, or independent, at Alpha Gamma Rho on South Prospect Street, or at Billings Center.

Greek Games will be held on Sunday, May 2, in front of the Patrick Gymnasium from 1 to 5 P.M. Competition will be held in various fields between fraternities and sororities.

Draft Counseling

Any prospective conscientious objector interested in having a mock trial to prepare him for his Personal Appearance, please come to the Draft Counseling Office Wednesday or Thursday nights between 6:30 and 8:00 p.m. to sign up for a time.

We remind everyone there is draft counseling every Wednesday and Thursday, 6:30-8:00 p.m. in the West Balcony of Billings.

Woman's Gymnastics

The Women's Gymnasium won its fourth meet of the season, defeating Lyndon State College and Keene State College at Keene. Anne Geller lead the team by placing first in floor exercise, 2nd in beam and tied for fourth on the balance beam. Patty Wagner took first place honors on the uneven parallel bars and placed third in floor exercise. Anna Dietz took a third place in vaulting. The last meet of the season will be May 1 at Green Mt. College.

PRO SHOP

CONVERSE CCM JACKETS AND BALLS

IN ST. VERMONT

22

April 27 Harold Pinter's THE BIRTHDAY PARTY

(with Robert Shaw and Patrick McGee)

Tickets on sale at door

BICYCLES

Ski the Rack

TENNIS

TAKE IT OFF

A LITTLE TIME FROM YOUR BUSY SCHEDULE TO DISCOVER A TOTALLY NEW AND EXCITING SELECTION OF HANDCRAFTS AND TEMPORARY GIFTS NEVER BEFORE OFFERED IN THE AREA. EACH DAY IN APRIL, IMPORTS FROM 40 DIFFERENT COUNTRIES WILL BE ARRIVING, GIVING YOU THE ULTIMATE OPPORTUNITY IN SHOPPING FOR THE UNUSUAL.

VARIETY IS LARGE, BUT SUPPLIES ARE LIMITED AND MANY ARE "ONE OF A KIND." SO SHOP EARLY FOR GREATEST SELECTION FOR MOMS, DADS, AND GRADS OR NO. 1 MBP AND CC CARD HONORED.

Serendipity

201 MAIN STREET Next to Strong Theatre

It's the real thing Coke.

Real life calls for real taste. For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola.

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by BECK'S-BRAU OF BECKING

THE blue tooth

Every Friday Afternoon! HAPPY HOURS

3-7

Drinks Reduced—No Cover

Live Band

"THE TRIADS" Wed.—Sunday

'Thursday Nite 'Special' on mixed drinks

Every Mon.&Tues.

PETER ISAACSON IN CONCERT No Cover

Hot Pants take a ribbing!

But, believe us, you won't when you pop into the hottest, springiest look around. Hot Pants and Skinny Ribs, they're for wearing now, anywhere you please. And we've got a selection that tops the short scene anywhere in town! Hot Pants in suede, buckskins and leathers, stripes, solids, and checks. Belts, buttoned or band. From $7. Sizes S-12.

8 1/2 Sweaters in big stripes, little stripes, and solids. Sm., Med., and Large. From $7.

MAYFAIR

Church St. - Burlington

EDITORIAL

Protest in Washington

This weekend thousands of people will converge on the nation's capital for massive protest rallies against the Indochina War. Although the cynics will sneer and condemn the activities as pointless and futile, the protest indeed does have a point, is not futile, and will not be merely one more ego trip amidst the cherry blossoms. This weekend's rallies, and those activities which are planned for the weeks ahead, will achieve the very real goal of letting Mr. Nixon—the title President hardly seems fitting anymore—know that not everyone is a Middle American dupe, fooled by Republican rhetoric and Nixonian nonsense and emotional appeals on the television. All evidence at this point seems to indicate that Nixon does not intend to draw the war to a close in the immediate future, when it would save the most lives on both sides, but rather around election time in 1972, when he will be up for reelection to the job which he sought so long, and now clings to with such a passion. However, there are quite a few people in this country who see through Nixon's parochial appeals and political guttersnipey. The language of votes seems to be the one which he understands the best, and that will be the unspoken yet everpresent language in Washington this weekend.

J. B. Y.

The Changing Greeks

Unity Replaces Rivalries

With the signing by Gov. Davis of the Vermont Majority Bill, lowering the age to vote, drink, to 18, fraternities have lost another so-called drawing card. Traditionally Fraternity House has acted as campus type speak-outs where under 21 students could procure and consume alcoholic beverages. This privilege will no longer exist as the UVM administration allows students who have reached majority to keep and use liquor in their dormitory rooms. Another tradition is lost but there are no tears because traditions such as this no longer appeal to the "new man in college." This "new man" is much more mature, intelligent and serious minded. Students have become more and more independent, failing to see the individualism that they desire in the Greek System.

We must make new traditions in this era of questioning. There must be a commitment of every one of us to make the Greek System truly relevant to the student of today.

Some houses here at UVM have taken up the challenge: some have not. Pledge education and better programs.

have begun to include the present state of fraternities. They are not willing to make the change because it means extra work. Others, however, make this extra effort to change traditional stereotyped impressions. These are the people who will build the fraternity for the 70's. The others will pass out of existence slowly but surely. All that will survive will be the "Changing Greeks."

We don't need Greek Weeks with violent house rivalries and lack of constructive organization. These are not necessary for a good time. TOGETHER should be a fraternity by word. More communication between houses should take place. It is time to think of the Greek System as a whole and not from the single house standpoint. A good look at UVM shows much of this is being done. These are the "NEW TRADITIONS" which we must establish if we are to continue to live and gain new life.

We must continue even to a greater extent than the Fraternity Forum, the opportunity for constant exchange of ideas. Fraternal living is probably the oldest communal living experiment in history. It is a complete course in human interaction. But not enough of us look at Greek life in this light.

At the high school level, courses are offered in only two local schools. Here the entire Black experience is condensed into Black Literature. There are some who would even question the validity of this single course. Why separate Black from the rest of the (white) world? In the total world picture, white is a smaller minority than Black! This large minority has so long been neglected that most whites have been grossly mis-educated. The remedy lies not in a Black Literature course, but rather in an Area Studies Program.

Whitey, Wake Up!

Black Studies At UVM Found Wanting

by Brooks F. McCabe

Whitey, what is Swahili? Not only is it the primary language of Tanzania, Kenya, and some of Uganda, but it is currently the fastest growing language in the world. How might an interested student learn about the language, history, or literature of Africa?

At the high school level, courses are offered in only two local schools. Here the entire Black experience is condensed into Black Literature. There are some who would even question the validity of this single course. Why separate Black from the rest of the (white) world? In the total world picture, white is a smaller minority than Black! This large minority has so long been neglected that most whites have been grossly mis-educated. The remedy lies not in a Black Literature course, but rather in an Area Studies Program.

What does an Area Studies Program involve? Faculty from the Departments of History, Political Science, Geography, Sociology, Anthropology, Religion, Art, Music, Language, Literature, and Education are brought together to focus on a geographical area. This University is not adverse to Area Studies, for such a program

the small society

Somniator

by Jeff Yacker

The Vermont Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences recently held its annual awards dinner on the ice-bound Burlington-Port Kent ferry, now docked at the foot of King St., Burlington. The awards given out were as follows:

Best Production—"Obfuscation and Meaningless Talk," produced by the 1971 session of the Vermont State Legislature, 18th Century Studios, Montpelier.

Best Actor in a Supporting Role—Governor Deane Davis, "The Rowboat," Farical Productions, Montpelier. Runner up was John Beckley for his role in "The Pargenti Affair."

Best Actor in a Supporting Role—State Representative Giuliani, "The Parenti Affair," Nouveau McCarthy Productions, Burlington.

Best Actress in a Supporting Role—Mary Jane, for "What's A Nice College Like This, Doing With a Girl Like You?" Acapulco-Gold

Academy Awards

Studios, Acapulco, Saigon, and Beirut.

Best Actress in a Supporting Role—That beautiful female skier who assisted me down the slope when I dislocated my shoulder.

Best Director—Sen-a-tor Prou-ty's Public Relations Manager, last fall, for "Emotional Appeals," Farical Productions, Montpelier.

Best Special Effects—The 1970-71 UVM S.A. Senate, for "Let's Play Government," Student Productions, Burlington.

The Academy also presented a Special Award to Spiro T. Agnew, for his brilliant role in "How to Make a Fool of Yourself Without Really Trying." Another Special Award was given to the Vermont Sunday News for its noteworthy, but unsuccessful attempt in the motion picture field. The film was entitled "Journalism."

We urge you to march for peace April 24.
We'd do it ourselves, but we're in Vietnam.

Members of the First Air Cavalry Division, U.S. Army

PFC Michael DiLuigi, SP/4 George Stump, PFC Larry Widner, SP/4 William Hepler, SP/4 Bob Matteson, PFC Paul J. Forter, SP/5 Jerry Johnson, SP/5 Leroy F. Parr, SP/4 Joseph W. Gibbs, Sr., PFC Ernest Aguilar, PFC Michael Neff, SP/4 James D. Lofland, SP/4 Dunbar Brooks, SP/4 Conrad LaFromboise, PFC F. B. Bell, PFC James M. Carroll, E-4 John Ryan, E-5 Larry Fenk, E-4 Kenneth D. Collier, SP/4 John A. Pitkat, SP/5 William P. Faenger, PFC Darcy C. Mottmiller, Sgt. Ray Scott Ronan, SP/4 Michael Parisi, SP/4 Jerome L. Jones, PFC Edward Tomczyk, SP/4 Milo J. Alltop, SSG Lester Sinclair, SP/4 Leon R. Burton, SP/4 James B. Schock, PFC Leslie G. Lucas, PFC Harry Colon, SP/4 Barry Parker, PFC Thomas F. Hummel, SP/4 Roy Wheeler, SP/4 James Brown, SP/4 Leo Woott, PFC Mose Winchester, PFC Guadalupe De La Rosa, SP/4 Joseph David Stepp, SP/4 William Belby, PFC Nathaniel Burton, SP/4 Thomas J. McGirr, SP/4 William J. Videtto, PFC J. Belcher, SP/4 Charles J. Withers, SP/4 Richard Liscomb, SP/4 Fred Malone, Jr., PFC Daniel Phillips.

Bring all the GI's Home Now End the War Now!

March in Washington and San Francisco April 24

FUNDS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED - PLEASE MAIL COUPON TODAY

FUNDS For Further Publicity and March Logistics

Urgently Needed Now. Please Give All You Can.

Mail to: NATIONAL PEACE ACTION COALITION

1000 Vermont Avenue, N.W., 20th Floor, Dept. C

Washington, D.C. 20005 Tel. (202) 692-0891

Send in no contribution of:

☐ $1 ☐ $2 ☐ $5 ☐ $10 ☐ $25 ☐ $50 ☐ $100 ☐ $250 ☐ $500 ☐ $1000

☐ I understand the mailing address program. Put me on the mailing list as in my card.

☐ My organization:

☐ Mail me:

FOR TRANSPORTATION INFORMATION

In N.Y. area, contact N.Y.P.A.C. (212) 924-0200

Outside N.Y. area, contact S.F.P.A.C. (415) 864-0200

In S.F. area, contact S.F.P.A.C. (415) 864-0200

Sponsored by

National Peace Action Coalition

1000 Vermont Ave. N.W., 20th Fl.

Washington, D.C. 20005

COORDINATORS: Ruth Gage-Culley, Jerry Gordon,

Don Corcoran, Joanne Lafferty,

John T. Williams

Serious Addict

By Frank Browning
and Banning Garrett
RAMPARTS, 1971

College Press Service
reprinted by permission of publisher

(Editor's note: The following article has been made available to subscribers of College Press Service prior to its release nationally because of CPS's involvement in the story's inception. Michael Aldrich, Adam Bennett, Joan Medlin and Peter Spott assisted the author.)

Sandwiched between the President's State of the World message, in which he announced an all-out campaign to halt the world's opium traffic, the Laotian invasion, and this spring's growing anti-war protests, the story is an explosive one. Sen. George McGovern and Rep. Ronald Dellums are both pressing for hearings in Congress on the U.S. government's complicity with the world opium trade, and detail on these and other subsequent developments will follow in other stories.)

500,000 Addicts In U.S.

"Mr. President, the specter of heroin addiction is haunting nearly every community in this nation." With these urgent words, Senator Vance Hartke spoke up on March 22 in support of a resolution on drug control being considered in the U.S. Senate.

Estimating that there are 500,000 heroin addicts in the U.S., he pointed out that nearly 20 percent of them are teenagers. The concern of Hartke and others is not misplaced. Heroin has become the major killer of young people between 18 and 35, outpacing death from accidents, suicides or cancer. It has also become a major cause of crime: to sustain their habit, addicts in the U.S. spend more than $15 million a day, half of it coming from the 55 percent of crime in the cities which they commit and the annual $2.5 billion worth of goods they steal.

Once safely isolated as part of the destructive funkiness of the black ghetto, heroin has suddenly spread out into Middle America, becoming as much a part of suburbia as the Saturday barbeque. This has gained, with attention it otherwise never would have had, President Nixon himself says it is spreading with "pandemic virulence." People are becoming aware that teenagers are shooting up at lunchtime in schools and returning to classrooms to nod the day away. But what they don't know—and what no one is telling them—is that neither the volcanic eruption of addiction in this country nor the crimes it causes would be possible without the age-old international trade in opium (from which heroin is derived).

addiction—like inflation, unemployment, and most of the other chaotic forces in American society today—is directly related to the U.S. war in Indochina.

Relation To War

The connection between war and opium in Asia is as old as empire itself. But the relationship has never been so symbiotic, so intricate in its networks, and so vast in its implications. Never before has the trail of tragedy been so clearly marked as in the present phase of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia. For the international traffic in opium has expanded in lockstep with the expanding U.S. military presence there, just as heroin has stalked the same young people in U.S. high schools who will also be called on to fight that war. The ironies that have accompanied the war in Vietnam since its onset are more poignant than before. At the very moment that public officials are wringing their hands over the heroin problem, Washington's own Cold War crusade, replete with clandestine activities that would seem far-fetched even in a spy novel, continues to play a major role in a process that has already rerouted the opium traffic from the Middle East to Southeast Asia and is every day opening new channels for its shipment to the U.S. At the same time the government starts crash programs to rehabilitate drug users among its young people, the young soldiers it is sending to Vietnam are getting hooked and dying of overdoses at the rate of one a day. While the President is declaring war on narcotics and on crime in the streets, he is widening the war in Laos, whose principal product is opium and which has now become the funnel for nearly half the world's supply of the narcotic, for which the U.S. is the chief consumer.

justice (1970)

david i. ingraham

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New Cooperation Essential For Improvement

To The Editor:

The closing of Grassmount and Allen House is certainly something that can't be forgotten. The manner in which they were closed leaves me, as a student of the University, wondering what my role is on this campus. For, once again, the student was the last one to know about the acquisition of these residence halls.

How long is this to continue? One would think that a policy decision, that will affect all of us, should be decided by all of us. This is the keynote to a successful democracy.

Ever since September, we have heard the complaint that there isn't any communication among the students, faculty, and administrators. All of us must share the blame for this. However, I would like to think, in one way or another, want to do something about the problem.

The CYNIC in "we last issue" presented an editorial asking that the Inter Residence

Association be given a second chance. It pointed out well the frustrations that the organization, whose primary concern is for the welfare of its residence halls, had during its initial year. It also stated that an effective IRA could prevent happenings like the closing of Grassmount and Allen House.

As IRA's newly elected president, I feel that this organization, in order to reach any degree of success, must champion the causes that affect our lives here at the University. To accomplish this goal, there has to be a new atmosphere of cooperation among we, the students, and the faculty and administrators. And cooperation can only be achieved with a willingness to communicate with one another as human beings.

By being able to do this, we can mold policies that will help better the University and our lives. So, I ask your help in starting on this new road for cooperation and a better understanding. If we succeed, it will prevent happenings like the closing of Grassmount and Allen House. Sincerely, Steven Rice, IRA President.

Hyde Park Conditions Exposed

To The Editor:

It has come to our attention that a serious environmental situation exists in Hyde Park, Vermont. There are seven dwellings on a street with 20 children. It is reported that vicious dogs have bitten people there. An open dump sits on the property of one resident, who also owns two of the other properties. The dump, of course, attracts rats which run quite freely on the street and invade the dwellings. A third condition of dangerous wiring with water allowed to run through the partitions is reported in at least one of the dwellings. It seems that several residents of this street have protested, even bringing some of these situations to the attention of the selectmen and the State's Attorney to seek alleviation; but up to the present, no action by authorities has been taken.

Our committees are concerned not only about this one situation in Hyde Park, but we are also certain that equally serious conditions exist in other areas of the state. We would like to hear about specific situations of this sort as we want to bring them to the attention of the Governor and the Vermont Environmental Commission.

If you know of problems like those described above please write us describing the conditions. We would like your letters by April 26 so we can pass them on to Governor Davis in time for Green-Up Day on May 1.

Send your letter to the Local Issues Committee/Task Force on the Environment, Department of Mission, Vermont Conference of the United Church of Christ, 235 Maple Street, Burlington, Vermont 05401.

Sincerely, Eleanor Simons, Nancy Boyer, Robert Gregg, Darryl Hanson, John Van Horn, James Livingston, Peter Gilbert, John Nutting, David Pinkham

VOLUME LXXXIX

VERMONT CYNIC

Number 11

RALPH ROBBINS
Editor-in-Chief
SARAH SCHUYLER
Assistant Editor
HILL DAVIDSON
Managing Editor
CHARLIE FRENCH
News Editor
JEFF YACKER
Feature Editor
KEN WHITTAKER
Sports Editor
TERRY DEMAS
Business Manager
GARY GARGO
Advertising Manager
BRUCE WACOMOR
Asst. Advertising Manager
GENE PERONI
Photography Editor

Opinions expressed in editorials, articles or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University of Vermont, faculty or staff or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the majority of members of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published weekly during the college year by the students of the University of Ver-

Sports Staff: Bonnie Brindley, Mark Teisstein, John Stowell, Mike Rosenberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Glasser, Tim Bickford, Sandy Magid, Mike Brown, Bill Bode, Robert Fromenfeld, Dave Koppes.
News Staff: Arlene Erikson, Sue Solomon, Louise Stanton, Gene Peroni, Kip Arnold, Mike Fish, Alice Carter, Jill Steven, Cedric Sanborn, K. Duster Bray.
Feature Staff: Adamson Smith, Brooks McCabe, James Abrams, Doug Collette, Gary Hanson, Bruce Alger, Laurel O'Connell, Mike Desnoere, Humphreys.

Production Staff: Nancy Chaschka.

Advertising Staff: Steve Kane
Photography: Greg Postinen, Student Photo Service and State Agricultural College, Burlington and Vermont offices in Rutland, Bennington, Vermont. Telephone 630-9911.
Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication.

Founded in 1882. Subscription rate $10.00 per year, single copy five cents. Second class postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

by Brickman

DON'T KNOW WHETHER TO GIVE A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE OR ROAD MAP—

—A. B. BRICKMAN

Wanting

...needs Area Studies of the Third World, as well as experience in America. If one of it that we know practically

Black experience! Certainly, considering the total experience in pull the pieces together. A Black America: History of the Area Studies Program of the all these threads together, past in a proper perspective,
turns to African History now

Black Studies are most often wealth of knowledge that has to find out what you have

Awards

...That beautiful female skier men I dislocated my shoulder.

...Public Relations Manager
...Farcical Productions.

...UVM S.A. Senate, for "Let's
...Burlington.

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

...Special Award to Spiro T.
...to Make a Fool of Yourself

...Special Award was given to the
...noteworthy, but unsuccessful
...field. The film was entitled

Serious Addiction Problems Among 'Nam Troops Expose Extensive Opium Empire

By Frank Browning
and Manning Garrett
RAMPARTS, 1971
reprinted by
College Press Service

(Editor's note: The following article has been made available to subscribers of College Press Service prior to its release nationally because of CPS's involvement in the story's inception. Michael Aldrich, Adam Bonison, Joan Medina and Peter Scott assisted the authors.)

Sandwiched between the President's State of the World message, in which he announced an all-out campaign to halt the world's opium traffic, the Laos invasion, and this spring's growing anti-war protests, the story is an explosive one. Sen. George McGovern and Rep. Ronald Dellums are both pressing for hearings in Congress on the U.S. government's complicity with world opium trade, and detail on these and other subsequent developments will follow in other stories.)

500,000 Addicts in U.S.

"Mr. President, the specter of heroin addiction is haunting nearly every community in this nation." With these urgent words, Senator Vance Hartke spoke up on March 22 in support of a resolution on drug control being considered in the U.S. Senate. Estimating that there are 500,000 heroin addicts in the U.S., he pointed out that nearly 20 percent of them are teenagers. The concern of Hartke and others is not misplaced. Heroin has become the major killer of young people between 18 and 35, outpacing death from accidents, suicides or cancer. It has also become a major cause of crime to sustain their habits, addicts in the U.S. spend more than $15 million a day, half of it coming from the 55 percent of crime in the cities which they commit and the annual $2.5 billion worth of goods they steal.

Once safely isolated as part of the destructive funkiness of the black ghetto, heroin has suddenly spread out into Middle America, becoming as much a part of suburbia as the Saturday barbeque. This has gained it attention it otherwise never would have had. President Nixon himself says it is spreading with "pandemic virulence." People are becoming aware that teenagers are shooting up at lunchtime in schools and returning to classrooms to nod the day away. But what they don't know—and what no one is telling them—is that neither the volcanic eruption of addiction in this country nor the crimes it causes would be possible without the age-old international trade in opium (from which heroin is derived), or that heroin addiction—like inflation, unemployment, and most of the other chaotic forces in American society today—is directly related to the U.S. war in Indochina.

Relation To War

The connection between war and opium in Asia is as old as empire itself. But the relationship has never been so symbiotic, so intricate in its networks and so vast in its implications. Never before has the trail of tragedy been so clearly marked as in the present phase of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia. For the international traffic in opium has expanded in lockstep with the expanding U.S. military presence there, just as heroin has stalked the same young people in U.S. high schools, who will also be called on to fight that war. The ironies that have accompanied the war in Vietnam since its onset are more poignant than before. At the very moment that public officials are wringing their hands over the heroin problem, Washington's own Cold War crusade, replete with clandestine activities that would seem far-fetched even in a spy novel, continues to play a major role in a process that has already reouted the opium traffic from the Middle East to Southeast Asia and is every day opening new channels for its shipment to the U.S. At the same time the government starts crash programs to rehabilitate drug users among its young people, the young soldiers it is sending to Vietnam are getting hooked and dying of overdoses at the rate of one a day. While the President is declaring war on narcotics and on crime in the streets, he is waging the war in Laos, whose principal product is opium, and which has now become the funnel for nearly half the world's supply of the narcotic, for which the U.S. is the chief consumer.

There would have been a bloodthirsty logic behind the expansion of the war into Laos if the threat had been to wipe out supply centers of opium. The communists were hoarding up to spread like a deadly virus into the free world. But the communists did not control the opium trade; processing and distribution were already in the hands of the free world. Who are the principals of this new opium war? The ubiquitous CIA, whose role in getting the U.S. into Vietnam is well known but whose pivotal position in the opium trade is not, and a rogues' gallery of organizations and people—from an opium army subsidized by the Nationalist Chinese to such familiar names as Madame Nhu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky—who are the creations of U.S. policy in that part of the world.

The story of opium in Southeast Asia is a strange one at every turn. But the conclusion is known in advance: this war has come home again—in a silky grey powder that goes from a syringe into America's mainline.

The CIA Poppies

Most of the opium in Southeast Asia is grown in a region known as the "Fertile Triangle," an area covering northwestern Burma, northern Thailand, and Laos.

The Burmese Government regularly complained about all this activity to the United Nations, the Taiwan government and the United States, charging the Americans and Taiwanese with actively supplying and supporting the KMT, which in turn has organized anti-government guerrillas. In 1959 Burmese ground troops seized three opium processing plants set up by the KMT guerrillas at Wonton; the troops also took an airstrip the Chinese had used to fly in reinforcements. By February 1961 the Burmese had pushed the KMT troops southeast into the Thai-Burmese and Thai-Lao border areas, where they now hold at least eight village bases. Just last year a reporter who was at Cheng Mai Thailand, saw Thai troops and American advisors as well as military supplies provided by the Taiwan government. The Taiwan government, he noted, maintains an information office

One of Chan's caravans, says one over-looked observer, may stretch in single file for well over a mile and may include 200 mules, 200 porters, 200 cooks and camp attendants, and about 400 armed guards. Such a caravan can easily carry 15 to 20 tons of opium worth nearly a million dollars when delivered to the syndicate men in Laos or Thailand.

To get his caravans to market, however, Chan must pay a price for the crucial part of his route is heavily patrolled not by Thai or Laotian but by nomadic Nationalist Chinese or Kuomintang (KMT) troops. Still supported by the ruling KMT of Taiwan, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's 93rd Division controls a major part of the opium flowing out of Burma and Thailand. Roving bands of mercenary bandits, they fled to northern Burma in 1949 as Chang armies were being routed on the Chinese mainland, and have maintained themselves since by buying opium from the nearby Meo tribesmen which they then resell, or by exacting tribute payments from entrepreneurs like Chan Chi-foo. As travelers to the area attest, these troops also supplement their income by running intelligence operations into China and Burma for the U.S.

Kuomintang Lives

The Burmese Government regularly complained about all this activity to the United Nations, the Taiwan government and the United States, charging the Americans and Taiwanese with actively supplying and supporting the KMT, which in turn has organized anti-government guerrillas. In 1959 Burmese ground troops seized three opium processing plants set up by the KMT guerrillas at Wonton; the troops also took an airstrip the Chinese had used to fly in reinforcements. By February 1961 the Burmese had pushed the KMT troops southeast into the Thai-Burmese and Thai-Lao border areas, where they now hold at least eight village bases. Just last year a reporter who was at Cheng Mai Thailand, saw Thai troops and American advisors as well as military supplies provided by the Taiwan government. The Taiwan government, he noted, maintains an information office

There are hundreds of routes, and certainly as many methods of transport by which the smugglers ship opium—some of it already refined into heroin—through and out of Southeast Asia. But there are three major networks. Some of the opium from Burma and northern Thailand moves into Bangkok, then to Singapore and Hong Kong, then via military aircraft, either directly or through Taiwan, to the United States. The second, and probably major, route is from Burma or Laos to Saigon or to ocean drops in the Gulf of Siam; then it goes either through the Middle East and Marseille to the U.S. or through Hong Kong and Singapore to the West Coast. A final route runs directly from outposts held by Nationalist Chinese troops in Thailand to Taiwan and then to the U.S. by a variety of means.

Modern-Day Warlord

One of the most successful of the opium entrepreneurs who travel these routes, a Time reporter wrote in 1967, is Chan Chi-foo, a half-Chinese, half-Shan Burmese modern-day warlord who might have stepped out of a Joseph Conrad adventure yarn. Chan is a soft-spoken, mild-mannered man in his later thirties who, it is said, is totally ruthless. He has tremendous knowledge of the geography and people of northwestern Burma and is said to move easily among them, conversing in several dialects. Yet he is also able to deal comfortably with bankers and other businessmen who finance his operations from such centers as Bangkok and Vietnam. Under Chan Chi-foo's command are from 1000-2000 well-armed men, with the feudal hierarchy spreading down to encompass another 3000 hill tribesmen, porters, hunters and opium growers who pay him fealty and whom he regards about the same as the more than 300 small mules he uses for transport.

Moving the opium from Burma to Thailand or Laos is a big and dangerous operation.

there and regularly accompanies the KMT troops on their forays into China to proselytize among the peasants of Yunnan province. These sorties are coordinated by the CIA (which is feverishly active if not wholly successfully in this area), and the United States even provides its own backwater R & R for the weary KMT, flying its helicopters from hilltop to hilltop to pick up the Chinese (and the Establishment reporter who supplied this information) for organized basketball tournaments.

Although the KMT troops are often referred to as "remnants," they are not just debris left behind by history. They are in fact an important link in American and Taiwan policy toward Communist China. Not only does Chiang Kai-shek maintain direct contact with his old 93rd, but fresh recruits are frequently sent to maintain a troop level of from 5000 to 7000 men, according to a top-ranking foreign aid official in the U.S. government. And, as the New York Times has noted, Chiang Kai-shek's son, Chiang Chiao-kuo, is widely believed to be in charge of the KMT operations from his position as chief of the Taiwan secret police.

The KMT are selected by the Thai for several reasons: they have helped in the counterinsurgency efforts of the Thai and U.S. governments against the hill tribespeople in Thailand; they have aided the training and recruiting of Burmese guerrillas—armed by the CIA—and they offer a payoff to the Border Patrol Police (BPP), and through them to the second most powerful man in Thailand, Minister of the Interior Gen. Prapach Charuathira. The BPP were trained in the '50s by the CIA and now are financed and advised by AID and are flown from border village to border village by Air America. The BPP act as middlemen in the opium trade between the KMT in the remote regions of Thailand and the Chinese merchants in Bangkok. These relationships, of course, are flexible and changing, with each group wanting to maximize profits and minimize antagonisms and dangers. But the established routes vary, and sometimes doublecrosses are intentional.

In the summer of 1967 Chiang Chi-foo set out from Burma through the KMT's territory with 300 men and 200 packhorses carrying nine tons of opium, with no intention of paying the usual fee of $80,000 to the Lao elite.

But these packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these

packhorses carried more than opium. They also carried a threat to Laos's political stability. He also argued that the trade gives the Lao elite (which includes government officials) a chance to accumulate capital to ultimately invest in legitimate enterprises, thus building up Laos's economy. But if these packhorses carried more than opium.

Audience

plot of the show was very constructed, and if not constructed, it would be constructed. It was a performance to make a point. Nevertheless it was the type of performance to be allowed, but rather a series of episodes and songs to be enjoyed and enjoyed, for the sake of the audience.

It took up most of the time the performance, and the show itself appeared to be a direct lead-in to that music. The show started off with a very quick "beat" which tended to slow down and even drag a bit before the music. At the end of the show, it ended with a song and a song at a constant peak until the end where the lead character

It finally submit to the draft, and became a symbolically invisible to the other members of the company. The show ended with an exciting "Let The Sun Shine In" and was topped off by the audience packing the stage and dancing frantically to the closing notes of the band.

In "Peanut" musical
Good Man, Charlie Brown'
 p.m. in a Blue Concert, Memorial Auditorium, and Sun., April 23, 3:00 p.m. Memorial Auditorium, in a Lane Special Plan to meet all the "happiness" characters: Charlie Brown, the "half-pint" hero, Lucy, the crabby heroine, Schroeder, the budding Beethoven, the pixilated Patty, the blanket-brandishing Linus, Lucy's little brother, and Snoopy, the beagle bountiful and enemy of the "Red Baron." Tickets available in the Lane Office (234 Waterman) and at the Door: $2.00 for the Sunday concert, and $6.00, $5.25, and $3.75 for the Saturday concert.

How to use
 the system
 to fight
 the system

the Soft Revolution
 A STUDENT HANDBOOK FOR TURNING SCHOOLS AROUND
 Bill Postman and
 Charles Wiegman

Now at your bookstore

Della paperback $1.95
 Delacorte hardcover $4.95

Del Publishing Co., Inc.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

© 1971 College Press Service
 Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lanning, Me. 04023

QUESTION: While spending a dull evening at the library a few weeks ago, we hit on a rather novel method of entertaining ourselves. We took out a couple of neckties and proceeded to the copy machine where we xeroxed our heads. The only precaution we took was to close our eyes. We have had many aches and pains, including some rather severe headaches since our experience at the library. We are not sure whether we have developed a good case of hypochondria, or if the Xerox machine is responsible. The people who keep telling us that we are going to get cancer and die are not helping our morale.

ANSWER: According to a representative of the Xerox Corporation, the light source in their machines is a patented device with secret attributes, none of which are dangerous. The super bright lamp does not produce harmful amounts of ultra violet radiation, x-rays or cancer producing agents. The light is so bright that it may cause some mild eye discomfort and spots before your eyes even though you keep your lids closed. Such an effect should last only a few minutes. Repeated use is apt to result in the waste of a lot of neckties.

QUESTION: I'm looking for a competent physician to perform a vasectomy on myself. I am 23 years old and quite positive of the need for the vasectomy.

ANSWER: If you are single, it will be difficult to get a physician to do this surgery unless you have an inheritable disease. Reversing the operation is a gamble with the odds against success, so vasectomy should be considered as if it is an irreversible procedure.

A vasectomy is an excellent means of birth control. It is a simple operation performed under local anesthesia in a doctor's office. The tubes carrying sperm are tied off and cut. The man is able to function sexually in every way that he could before the procedure but his ejaculate does not contain sperm cells, therefore pregnancy cannot result. Men without sexual problems who are not pressured into the operation, do not appear to risk psychological damage.

Presently the feeling among people knowledgeable in this area is that the utmost caution must be exercised when the request for vasectomy comes from a single man or a man with very young children. Marriage to a woman who very much desires to bear a child herself, can make the man who had a vasectomy when he was single rue his decision. The death of a young child may result in the desire to have another baby. On the other hand, many people with children well on their way to growing up feel very certain about the size of their family and would not wish to have children on their own again. I would highly recommend procedure for such people. If another child is desired, adoption is an alternative. But, it must be pointed out that with the increased availability of abortions, adopted babies are becoming harder and harder to find.

QUESTION: After a close shave, I often have razor bumps that, at later times, develop into "hair bumps." I have tried every method possible to combat this condition (razor, electric shaver and depilatory). The electric shaver doesn't really give a close shave, and the depilatory cannot be used often enough.

ANSWER: Shaving very close, especially against the grain, can chop the hair off below the skin level resulting in the formation of a crater of skin around the hair shaft. If your whiskers are curly they may curve back and reenter the skin thereby producing an ingrown hair. It has also been suggested that a rough cut edge of hair may encourage it to be caught by the skin and grow inward. Dull blades result in the use of more pressure when shaving and this also enhances the formation of skin bumps and ingrown hairs.

I would suggest not shaving against the grain and using a sharp blade. If the electric razor does not cause this condition, you can use it more often even though it does not give a close shave each time. Depilatories are too harsh to use regularly on the face. A beard solves the whole problem.

QUESTION: A friend of ours recently fell through the ice into a river. We are wondering if she should get a tetanus shot. She has no open wounds other than badly bitten cuticles.

ANSWER: Almost everyone has a series of tetanus shots when they are children. The shots provide extraordinarily long lasting protection from tetanus infections. Booster shots are not necessary more often than every five years, and may not even be needed that often. Generally, if one has not had a booster for several years and one is exposed to a potential source of tetanus, a booster shot is given.

The organism producing tetanus is found everywhere, including rivers. It is present in high amounts in soil. Puncture type wounds are the ones most susceptible to infection as tetanus bacteria grow best in the absence of oxygen.

QUESTION: Is there any truth to the rumor that it is possible to ignite intestinal gas with a match? If so, what chemical reaction would cause this phenomenon? A friend and I have a sizeable wager riding on this matter and decided you would be the definitive authority. We were afraid of experimenting on ourselves for fear of bodily injury.

ANSWER: Every once in a while I wonder if writing this column has had any effect on my professional reputation. The confidence that you express in me offers little reassurance. The gas you refer to has the medical name of flatus, which is at least as good a sound to it as the more frequently used vernacular term. The composition of this gas is primarily carbon dioxide, although generous amounts of hydrogen, methane and hydrogen sulfide are also present. The latter three substances are ignitable. Blue and yellow flames are possible. I have seen a demonstration of this but cannot recommend experimentation because of the obvious dangers. It is probably against some dormi-nary rule anyway.

 For the true doctors, I refer you to Emily Zale's novel, "Earth" ("La Terra").

QUESTION: I read recently that Vitamin A tablets will help keep your complexion clear. I bought a bottle of Vitamin A tablets and each one contains 50,000 units. So far there has been a slight improvement in my skin, but for the first time in my life my hair has become very oily and I have to wash it every other day. Could this be caused by the extra Vitamin A?

ANSWER: Although Vitamin A has been prescribed in the treatment of acne, there is no evidence that it is effective. The only appropriate use of Vitamin A is in the treatment of Vitamin A deficiency. Such a deficiency is very rare but can occur when people are on diets that contain no vegetables, little fat or milk or if they have certain intestinal abnormalities so that absorption of this vitamin is impaired. The body does not manufacture Vitamin A and depends on external sources.

The daily requirement for Vitamin A is only 5,000 units and when it is given as a dietary supplement no more than 10,000 units a day is necessary. There are skin lesions associated with Vitamin A deficiency which resemble hard bumps on the arms, thighs and back. More importantly, Vitamin A deficiency can lead to night blindness, and if the lack is severe, permanent loss of vision can result.

Many cases of hypervitaminosis A (too much Vitamin A) have been reported. This condition occurs most often when people overdose themselves with the vitamin in treating skin disorders. Nausea, vomiting, weakness, loss of hair, itching and splitting skin at the corners of the mouth can result. If you are taking more than one per day of those pills you bought, you are a candidate for hypervitaminosis A.

If you are suffering from acne, there is something else involved in the clearing of your complexion. The increased oiliness of your hair would tend to make acne worse, not better.

QUESTION: I am a 22 year old male who enjoys the contemporary long hair styles for men. I have worn my hair shoulder length for over two years now. My problem is that in order to keep it from looking like I have to wash it every day and I seem to be losing more hair than is normal as a result. I've tried about every type of shampoo, nothing seems to keep it looking nice for more than one day. Any suggestions?

ANSWER: About five per cent of the hair in your head is setting there fairly loosely attached. Hair follicles go through periods of growth and rest. This explains why it is possible to pull some loose hairs from your head at any given time. Obviously, the longer your hair is, the more apparent it will be when some of it comes out.

Most people can tolerate washing their hair fairly frequently, but you may be doing it too often and causing it to dry out which only causes hairs to break off. I would suggest using Prell, a high quality shampoo that gives you about the most for your money. Try washing your hair every other day or every third day and washing it carefully on the between days. Many of the fancy and expensive shampoos and rinses are of no more value than cheaper ones and some are quite harsh.

QUESTION: I am two to three months pregnant and considerably overweight. I'm wondering if it would be advisable to go on a weight reduction diet. Perhaps you could suggest such a diet. If a diet is not recommended, what foods would be good to eat to maintain my present weight?

ANSWER: Weight control during pregnancy is an important and complicated matter. Under normal circumstances, a woman tends to gain weight during pregnancy due to the increasing size of the fetus and the structures that support its growth. The increased size of the uterus, embryonic fluids, placenta and the increased blood volume weigh more than the fetus itself. The normal weight gain is about two or three times the birth weight of the baby. This gain is distributed unevenly during pregnancy with an increase of about two pounds during the first three months. During the last six weeks of pregnancy there is an increase of one pound per week. Rapid weight gain during pregnancy can indicate fluid retention and other conditions which are warning signs of difficulty.

Since the fetus needs many nutrients in order to grow properly, severe diets and weight loss are generally to be avoided. The woman who begins pregnancy in an undernourished and underweight condition may be advised to increase her food intake considerably. The over-weight woman might be advised to maintain her body weight but would certainly be warned against any sort of crash diet.

Your obstetrician should be able to advise you of an appropriate diet suited to your particular needs.

QUESTION: My girlfriend takes birth control pills. There is a seven day interim per month when she takes the placebo. She has a period of about three to four days duration. If intercourse occurs after the menstruation and before pill taking is resumed, what will the chance of pregnancy be?

ANSWER: The change of pregnancy will be the same as if she has intercourse during any other time a month when she is taking the pill. When the pill is taken as directed, ovulation is under the hormonal control of the pill. Even though the pill is stopped so that bleeding can occur, ovulation does not resume. As I have indicated before, the pills are given in such a way that bleeding occurs with a frequency that resembles a normal menstrual cycle. Much of this is for psychological reasons.

Many pill manufacturers have begun to package placebos (physiologically inert substances, essentially "blank pills") in sequence with the active hormones. In this fashion the woman pops the pill every day, which is supposed to reassure her. I guess sometimes the blanks are not placebos but actually contain iron to treat theoretical anemia. Theoretical anemia is a condition which if it really existed would require more iron than they give you in those blanks. In other words it is a foolish game.

Cynic Photography Contest

John Miller

Mimi Polisher

Deadline April 23

Winners Will Be Announced In May 6 Issue

Cat-nip

And it was evening and it was morning on the First Day After in Boston, Mass. (According to reports, New York City also didn't seem any different on Tuesday.)

The Bruins and the Knickerbockers: two dynasties overthrown as routinely as the Trifolios of Santos Domingos; two dynasties overthrown before they were really established.

Thousands of supporters sustained the disappointment of the competitors. The sorrow was actual physical pain for the more fanatical followers. (In Brazil, suicide rates depend on the performance of the national soccer team.)

For centuries, in almost every society, athletic competition has been the ultimate relaxant and diversion for participants and spectators.

Sports is an escape; nevertheless, from it wisdom can be drawn.

For example: in sudden, seemingly catastrophic defeat—such as those which took place early this week in professional competition—two fundamental maxims emerge for the enthusiast:

1) Never allow the diversion to become an obsession, for the rewards will inevitably be overshadowed by sorrow.

2) Keep the entertainment in its proper perspective, so it can become cynical—even after a decisive loss, there's always tomorrow, next week, next year.

The sports fan must concentrate on proper priorities. Competition's status in the environment, whether athletic or commercial, must be relegated below many of the profound issues that face man daily, e.g., world peace and brotherhood, justice, health and sufficiency, and personal satisfaction.

Sports interest may be important to an individual; it must not, however, dominate his life. For in the entire scheme of things, sports is frivolity.

The desired condition is personified by many well known athletes, like Bill Russell, Muhammad Ali, Bobby Orr, Wilmer Mitchell, and others. These people have seen the importance of involvement in politics, of commitment to helping others. They have not abandoned interest or participation in athletic competition, but they've put these drives under control.

Maintenance of interest near this level results in a beneficial addition to one's life style. The satisfaction of success, the sensation of accomplishment and physical well being, the spirit of anticipation, and the friendly dialogue of rivalries are some of the happy results.

What about those losses? No matter how shattering they seem, never are they final.

Athletic competition can be disillusioning in its idealism, frustrating if obsessive, all-encompassing in its statistical mania.

But if the participant and enthusiast keeps his head together, sports becomes fulfilling and rewarding. It serves as a challenge to mankind: how to transfer the spirit of the athletic field (or ping pong table) to the real world, which so desperately needs it.

Spring Track Starts Off Strong

by John Stowell

The University of Vermont outdoor track team put in a solid team effort Saturday to crush Fitchburg State College, 94-28 in their first outdoor meet of the season. Some of the events were held in the fieldhouse because of snow and chilly weather conditions.

Vermont won twelve of fourteen events to secure the victory. Vermont's first five points were put on by sophomore Greg Ashford who leaped an excellent 6' to win the high jump. Ashford, who also is an excellent basketball player, was followed by Joe Rasmussen of Fitchburg.

Freshman Mike Bilza put in one of his finest performances ever in the shot put with the winning toss of 45' 2 1/2". Bilza was followed by teammate John Radmer (44' 3/4").

Freshman Bruce Lawrence put in another brilliant performance in the pole vault with a height of 18' 6" while Mike Enson and Charlie Stoecker took 1-2 in the long jump with jumps of 20' 6" and 20' 5" respectively.

The most outstanding Vermont performance of the day came from freshman Donny Baker who ran a brilliant 4:22.7 mile to win that event. Baker was followed by Jerry Learned who ran the mile in 4:24. Both times are the best times ever for each performer.

Freshmen Craig Stearns and Dave Bird put in their best times ever in the 55 yard high hurdles. Stearns won the event with a time of 7.5 seconds while runner-up Dave Bird posted a time of 7.6 seconds.

The 50 yd. dash (5.5) and the 100 yd. dash (13.6) were won by Rasmussen of Fitchburg. Matt Davis of Vermont placed second in the 50 yard dash (5.7) while Dan Labour placed second in the 300 (34.8) and third in the 50 (3.75) for the Cats. Glen Milizia added a third in the 300 (35.2) for Vermont's scoring effort.

Vermont took clean sweeps in the 400, 800 and the triple jump. Frank O'Brien won the quarter-mile with an excellent time of 53.5. O'Brien was followed by teammates Daryl Warner (54.4) and Bill Bode and Dave Lewis who tied for third with a clocking of 54.8. The half-mile was taken by Phil Elwert (2:00.8); John Dimick (2:04.1) and Ole Anderson (2:04.6) were in, Stoecker and Bird took 1-2-3 in the triple jump with jumps of 42' 1 1/4", 40' 1 1/4", and 39' 1". John Radmer and Mike Bilza took firsts and thirds respectively in the hammer and discus. Leroy Hayes added scoring depth in the hammer with a second place.

Vermont's final points of the afternoon came with a victory by Perry Hland in the two mile (10:01.8) and a win by the mile relay team in a time of 3:32.2.

Vermont's next meets are April 28-Vermont State Meet at UVM (1:00 PM) and a dual meet with the University of Maine at Orono on May 1st.

WANT QUALITY CONTRACEPTIVES? Once upon a time, the best male contraceptives that money could buy were in your local drugstore. That time is gone. Today, the world's best condoms come from England, and are available in America only from POPULATION PLANNING.

POPULATION PLANNING has the exclusive U.S. distributor for the most remarkable (and highly respected) British condoms—scientifically shaped, ultra-thin, and superiorly comfortable. And we make them available through the privacy of the mail. Both are superiorly fine and light—the privacy of the mail. Both are superiorly fine and light—the privacy of the mail. Both are superiorly fine and light—the privacy of the mail.

POPULATION PLANNING ASSOC. Box 100-M, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514. Your five year guarantee and price list is at no obligation. Please send me your sample for $1.00. Address: _____ City: _____ State: _____

Cats Look To Strong YanCon Finish

Despite a double dip to an overpowering Massachusetts squad, the Vermont Catamounts are still hopeful to improve upon last year in Yankee Conference Baseball Competition. The reason behind this optimism was a Southern trip which saw the Cats break even with four wins and four losses.

Vermont Club had several standouts in their Southern swing. Brendan "Beep" Foster, Vic Zollo, and George Minarsky all proved to be valuable assets to the club.

Zollo held down the first base position, and Foster, who missed last year because of a hitch in the marines, came back to hit a phenomenal .519 down south to leave little evidence of his lay-off. Zollo and Minarsky, standouts in football and hockey, came through in the batter's box by hitting .412 and .385 respectively.

George Smith, the only senior pitcher on the squad and holder of half of the ten wins last spring, picked up two more on the journey south. He held a respectable 2.47 ERA and struck out 50 men in 87 innings last year.

Other pitching hopefuls include Dave Ertz and Gayl Bartlett. Ertz led the freshman team last year along with Jim Endres, who posted a combined ERA of only .061. Bartlett, on the other hand, is a new-comer to the squad. The tall left-hander has impressed everyone with his uncanny control.

The Cats feature a young infield. The only returning veteran is Dennis Robinson who Although Delta Psi has built a commanding lead in the Intramural League, this semester has found a number of smaller houses hitting the winning circle. Both Alpha Tau Omega and Acacia scored firsts and the Faculty showed physical prowess in winning the Independent Basketball league.

Alpha-Tau Omega fought off a Sigma Phi Epsilon threat to win the UVM Bowling league. Buzz Foster and Al Strobbridge paced the five man ATO squad over Sig Ep and Phi Sigma Delta/Allen House in a three team head to head match.

Acacia edged out Delta Psi and Sig Ep for the Gymnastic crown with Simpson's highest score, finishing sixth. The Faculty beat the Independents in Basketball by a 34-29 score, proving that a sound mind and sound body... although funds are down, more people have competed this year than ever before.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon proved to hold the only dominance this semester by winning four of the events so far. SAE socked Sig Ep for the Volleyball championship, swept the Paddleball Doubles "A," won the Paddleball Doubles "C" and asked to the finish line first in the winter Ski meet. Roeder and Zehnacker beat their brothers, Horton and Nolan in the "A" tournament while Simmons and Marks put SAE on top in the "C" over Sweeney and Lagrega of Simpson Hall.

In the Squash-Singles "A" Charlie Quimby of Sig Ep came from behind to nudge by the Meds' Eddy in a thriller, 15-11, 5-15, 12-17, 17-5, 15-11.

Overall the Intramurals have again proved to be a success according to Director Norm Strassburg. Strassburg said that

UVM Recruits Four Basketball Stars

New York Star Makes Final Decision

The University of Vermont Basketball team is now looking forward to a successful winter and a strong team to develop within the next several years. Four of the top hoop stars from the Northeast have announced their plans to enter the University this fall.

Probably the top catches for Coach Art Locke are Joe Greco from Whitehall, New York, and Demarett's (N.J.) Don Oatler.

Also expected to perform for the freshman in the coming winter will be Don Sisto from Clifton, New Jersey and one of the top Vermonters in recent years, Jeff White from Windsor.

Greco, one of the standouts for all of New York State, totaled up almost 2000 points during his four year, high school basketball career. He stands 6-3 and has served as a "wing man" for his home town club. In the 80 games of his high school career, he posted an average of 24.9 points per game.

This season, Greco netted 52 points against Ticonderoga, another New York school, and during the 1969-70 season, he shot for 34 points and pulled down 40 rebounds against Cornish.

Whitehall won the sectional hoop title before losing out to Phillip Schuyler by two points, the fourth-ranked team in the state.

Don Oatler, a schoolboy standout from Northern Valley Regional High School, where he also played in the "swing man" position. The native from Halworth, New Jersey posted an average of 19 points per game during the last season.

Also expected to perform for the Freshmen this winter is Don Sisto, a 6-5 forward from Clifton, New Jersey. Joining Sisto on the Freshman squad will be Jeff White, one of the stars of Vermont Schoolboy basketball.

Sisto, a strong, 220 pound forward, is expected to beef up Locke's rebounding corps in a couple of years, while White, who impressed Locke very much during the Vermont Schoolboy playoffs, could develop into one of the "top surprises" in the Conference recruiting program this fall.

Whitehall won the sectional

When the heat's on... the University of MAINE AT ORONO SUMMER SESSIONS make it a matter of degrees!

Reverse degree credits in the cool, relaxing Maine climate. Recreational opportunities abound at nearby lakes, mountains, and scenic overlooks. Modern dormitory accommodations.

Twelve-week session June 11 to September 14. Three-week and six-week sessions. Register by mail, return July 12 - August 29.

For information, contact: DIRECTOR OF SUMMER SESSIONS, University of Maine, Orono, Maine 04469.

WANT A BETTER INLAND YOUR VOCATION? Address: _____ City: _____ State: _____

Semester Results For Intramurals

Although funds are down, more people have competed this year than ever before.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon proved to hold the only dominance this semester by winning four of the events so far. SAE socked Sig Ep for the Volleyball championship, swept the Paddleball Doubles "A," won the Paddleball Doubles "C" and asked to the finish line first in the winter Ski meet. Roeder and Zehnacker beat their brothers, Horton and Nolan in the "A" tournament while Simmons and Marks put SAE on top in the "C" over Sweeney and Lagrega of Simpson Hall.

In the Squash-Singles "A" Charlie Quimby of Sig Ep came from behind to nudge by the Meds' Eddy in a thriller, 15-11, 5-15, 12-17, 17-5, 15-11.

Overall the Intramurals have again proved to be a success according to Director Norm Strassburg. Strassburg said that

Although funds are down, more people have competed this year than ever before.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon proved to hold the only dominance this semester by winning four of the events so far. SAE socked Sig Ep for the Volleyball championship, swept the Paddleball Doubles "A," won the Paddleball Doubles "C" and asked to the finish line first in the winter Ski meet. Roeder and Zehnacker beat their brothers, Horton and Nolan in the "A" tournament while Simmons and Marks put SAE on top in the "C" over Sweeney and Lagrega of Simpson Hall.

UVM Recruits Four Basketball Stars

New York Star Makes Final Decision

The University of Vermont Basketball team is now looking forward to a successful winter and a strong team to develop within the next several years. Four of the top hoop stars from the Northeast have announced their plans to enter the University this fall.

Probably the top catches for Coach Art Locke are Joe Greco from Whitehall, New York, and Demarett's (N.J.) Don Oatler.

Also expected to perform for the freshman in the coming winter will be Don Sisto from Clifton, New Jersey and one of the top Vermonters in recent years, Jeff White from Windsor.

Greco, one of the standouts for all of New York State, totaled up almost 2000 points during his four year, high school basketball career. He stands 6-3 and has served as a "wing man" for his home town club. In the 80 games of his high school career, he posted an average of 24.9 points per game.

This season, Greco netted 52 points against Ticonderoga, another New York school, and during the 1969-70 season, he shot for 34 points and pulled down 40 rebounds against Cornish.

Whitehall won the sectional

When the heat's on... the University of MAINE AT ORONO SUMMER SESSIONS make it a matter of degrees!

Reverse degree credits in the cool, relaxing Maine climate. Recreational opportunities abound at nearby lakes, mountains, and scenic overlooks. Modern dormitory accommodations.

Twelve-week session June 11 to September 14. Three-week and six-week sessions. Register by mail, return July 12 - August 29.

For information, contact: DIRECTOR OF SUMMER SESSIONS, University of Maine, Orono, Maine 04469.

WANT A BETTER INLAND YOUR VOCATION? Address: _____ City: _____ State: _____

THE INSIDER

Spring football practice arrived last Monday, but someone forgot to tell Jack Frost about it. Due to poor weather conditions our first few practices were reduced to team meeting down at the field house.

Friday's snow storm dumped an inch of fresh snow on Centennial Field and Saturday morning at 9:15 A.M. we were out practicing in that wonderful cold, wet snow.

It was a beautiful day for spring skiing; but as for football practice, I personally would have chosen another day. The morning practice ended at 11:30 and we had just enough time to shower, eat and return for our 2:00 P.M. session. The early afternoon sun had melted the snow and we were lucky enough to have the afternoon practice on a field covered by an inch of fresh mud.

And day can be a good day for football when there is spirit and team unity. And, even though the season doesn't actually start for another five months everyone is working together and helping each other (signs of a winning team).

It is quite difficult to explain what football practice is really like; so, why don't you come down and see for yourself? 4:15 at Centennial Field.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

Don't forget the Alumni Football game, Saturday night May 1st at 8:00 P.M. Tickets are on sale in the Den, the Bookstore, and at the Gym.

165 Protesters R Vietnam War And

About 165 people participated last Thursday in a "Smash the War" rally and march which began in front of Billings and ended up at the Federal Building in downtown Burlington. The demonstration had a militant, anti-capitalist, anti-imperialist theme and was organized by the Vermont Resistance.

The crowd listened to several speakers who called for an end to American imperialism in Vietnam and throughout the world, and who urged listeners to participate in the May Day demonstrations in Washington. The protesters then walked down Main Street. Along the way one of the leaders addressed the crowd with a megaphone and pointed out the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the local jail, and the civil defense office in City Hall as features of "class oppression and boondoggle characteristic of American society."

During this stretch of the march, a bystander threatened to attack one marcher who carried an NLF flag, but finally left, promising that "about 300 more people are coming to attack you from Boston and New York." A few blocks later, another man seized and ripped up one of the flags and was restrained by several of the marchers from destroying the

Stanley Tolliver

By Arlene Erickson Stanley Tolliver, a civil rights attorney and actor, spoke in Ira Allen Chapel last Thursday, April 22. In his speech, Mr. Tolliver expounded the meaning of "black nationalism" and "black power."

"Black Nationalism," Mr. Tolliver asserted that the essence of black nationalism is pride, pride in the sense that one must have proper self-respect. "A person has to understand that he should be proud of what he is. He doesn't have to imitate somebody else in order to be proud. Black nationalism says: that I don't have to imitate somebody. I don't have to bleach my skin; I don't have to straighten my hair; I don't have to try to make my lips thinner."

"Black nationalism simply is this: that a black man is proud of being black. He can say that a girl that has black skin, thick lips, a flat nose and a head full of curls is beautiful. We don't have to accept the white man's conception of beauty."

"Black nationalism teaches me as a black man that I should support my black woman and support my black children. I should take them off of welfare and be a taxpayer instead of a tax receiver. For I recognize that one of the things that is out here, to emasculate me as a black man is to have somebody else taking care of my woman and my kids, so that I can't be a man."

Hypocritical Whites Regarding black women, Mr. Tolliver proceeded to denounce the hypocrisy of certain white males. As a criminal lawyer I

When the heat's on... the University of MAINE AT ORONO SUMMER SESSIONS make it a matter of degrees!

Reverse degree credits in the cool, relaxing Maine climate. Recreational opportunities abound at nearby lakes, mountains, and scenic overlooks. Modern dormitory accommodations.

Twelve-week session June 11 to September 14. Three-week and six-week sessions. Register by mail, return July 12 - August 29.

For information, contact: DIRECTOR OF SUMMER SESSIONS, University of Maine, Orono, Maine 04469.

WANT A BETTER INLAND YOUR VOCATION? Address: _____ City: _____ State: _____

Over 500,000 marchers from all walks of life marched in Washington to protest the War in Vietnam. See pages 6 and 7 for photo essay.

165 Protesters Rally To Protest The Vietnam War And Capitalist System

About 165 people participated last Thursday in a "Smash the War" rally and march which began in front of Billings and ended up at the Federal Building in downtown Burlington. The demonstration had a militant, anti-capitalist, anti-imperialist theme and was organized by the Vermont Resistance.

The crowd listened to several speakers who called for an end to American imperialism in Vietnam and throughout the world, and who urged the people to participate in the May Day demonstrations in Washington.

The protesters then walked down Main Street. Along the way one of the leaders addressed the crowd with a megaphone and pointed out the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the local jail, and the civil defense office in City Hall as features of "class oppression and boondoggle characteristic of American society."

During this stretch of the march, a bystander threatened to attack one marcher who carried an NLF flag, but finally left, promising that "about 300 more people are coming to attack you from Boston and New York." A few blocks later, another man seized and ripped up one of the flags and was restrained by several of the marchers from destroying the second. When asked why he was carrying an NLF flag, one demonstrator said, "Because the NLF is not our enemy. They are the Vietnamese fighting to get the American murderers out of their country, and that's our goal also."

The marchers then proceeded up Church Street to the Burlington Free Press where Professor Michael Parenti addressed the demonstrators, passers-by, and Free Press employees who watched from the windows. He attacked "the selective and distorted reporting policies" of that publication, and called for a newspaper owned and controlled by the community, reflecting "many different views and not just the interests of Warren McClellan and his wealthy associates." Professor Parenti concluded to a cheering crowd, "We detect the Free Press. Never has there been a newspaper so unworthy of its name."

The group then moved down Church Street to the Federal Building where it was met by various officials including the head of Burlington branch of the FBI. Most of the protesters entered the building and were told they could use the elevator to carry small groups to the draft board on the fifth floor. When they attempted to use the elevator, however, they found it to be shut off, and several guards blocked the entrance to the stairs.

Eventually fifteen of the demonstrators were permitted to go up only to find the draft board locked. The students then went to the basement and entered the Marine recruiters office and started to look through the literature. Sgt. Robert McCoy insisted that everyone leave immediately. The demonstrators pointed out that they were within their rights as they were simply looking at printed materials displayed for browsing purposes. McCoy summoned the police who ordered them to move into the hall. Eventually the group left the building and returned to the campus via Pearl Street.

Judging from reports of several observers who overheard employees complaining about the considerable inconvenience caused by the halting of elevators and by the crowd in the lobby, the march seemed to have accomplished one of its goals which was to disrupt "business as usual" at the Federal Building. It also made clear that at least 165 people on this campus felt strongly enough to brave unpleasant weather and take their grievances against the war and the system into the streets.

Niggerhead Hearing Is Broken Up

Montpelier, Wednesday April 21. Today the State Library Board demonstrated its attitude toward justice. The board made a surprise move limiting speakers on the Niggerhead issue to three minutes. Proponents of the name change collectively decided to allow Otis McRae, chairman of the Goddard-based Committee to Abolish Niggerhead (C.A.N.), to speak for them. McRae pointed out that the Niggerhead issue is part of the totality of racism in Vermont and the world. He cited the Calley case and the Indochina War as examples of institutional racism. After references were made to Lt. Speaker of the House "Peanuts" Kennedy, Loriman L. Brigham, Chairman of the Board, attempted to silence McRae. When he could elicit no help from the Sergeant at Arms (a State patrolman), Brigham returned and attempted to jostle McRae into silence. McRae, speaking from his emotions as a black man, demanded his right to speak. Proponents of the name change, a majority of the audience responded with cries of "Let him speak! It's our time!"

At that point the hearing was abruptly adjourned, and the board walked out. The eight members of the board, Brigham, Mrs. Frances Curtis, Osmer C.

Fitts, Stewart A. Smith, Lawrence A. Turgeon, Mrs. Janice Waterbury, Mrs. Dena Zolotas and Igoe, were followed by most of the opponents of the name change.

Members of the audience continued to voice their support of the name change in spite of the action of the board. Two uniformed guards and a number of plainclothesmen observed the proceedings.

The white liberal chairman of the Vt. Human Rights Commission, Paul A. Wacker, objected to McRae's emotional appeal but received little support from the proponents.

Prof. Richard Warner of UVM accused Hackel of "blaming the victims." Professor Harry Lighthall, also part of the UVM delegation, also supported McRae. "The board, eight of them, went back on their word. We can't blame McRae," Oran Harris, president of the Burlington NAACP, spoke in support of McRae and C.A.N.

As the 200 proponents left the building, there was an attitude of pessimism toward existing governmental structures and their ability to deal with social problems. Outwitting them, however, was a group feeling of self-confidence and solidarity.

Added Health Services Require Health Fee Increase Of $4.00

President Andrews announced yesterday that he will review with the Board of Trustees the proposed implementation of the suggestions made in Dr. Schultz's report on human sexuality and other health oriented problems on UVM's campus. In order to expand and initiate certain services recommended in the Report, President Andrews will ask the Board of Trustees to approve a $2 per semester increase in the student health fee. The present health fee is $20 per semester.

Dr. Schultz, who is staff physician of Health Services at Waasong Infirmary, was asked by President Andrews to head a team of three to investigate and recommend changes in the present health services provided to the students in the area of human sexuality, as well as the drug problem. Dr. John Macleod, Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University Medical College and Dr. Patrick McKenney, Jr., Chairman of Psychiatry at the University Medical College were the other two members on the Committee.

(Editor's Note: The students object to the funding of any course by means of additional "outside funds" for they feel UVM's basic tuition should cover all academic courses.)

Dr. Schultz explained "that any course that is given for as many students as we are hoping to reach or feel we need to reach must have the active participation of a number of faculty people. This course should not be misconstrued as a course on 'abortion.' We hope to cover the full range of sexuality, not only the plumbing and disease but also the attitudinal aspects, the responsibility, the morals, the impact on society as well as the physiological and anatomical aspects of human sexuality. We hope to touch on all of this so that when we are done, we set a broad basis for what the role of human sexuality plays in everyone's life. We will cover more than just the nuts and bolts of the plumbing."

Contrary to what many believe, such a course will decrease promiscuity rather than increase it, Schultz stressed. "We feel the people need to know what the proper place of sexual activity is."

Such a program is not new on college campuses. Yale University has about 1,000 participants in just such a course.

The administration obviously feels that such a course is needed. Both President Andrews and Dr. Schultz also recognize that there are faults with the existing Infirmary system, "but we have to start somewhere."

Andrews added that "we are in the process of negotiating for an evaluation team from the American College Student Health Organization to have an external, in depth review of the needs and problems of the health center."

The administration claims that the Infirmary's existing services are improving, citing the fact that there are now three full-time physicians in the health center.

Confidence Sought

Although all of the plans are not finalized, Andrews is seeking the fee increase now rather than at the Trustees' meeting in June "to be fair to the students, so that they know how much their bill will be now, before they leave school, rather than hearing about it when they receive their bill over the summer. If for any reason this whole program falls through, the additional $2 per semester charge will not be collected."

Dr. Donald Schultz explains the realistic situation that exists on UVM's campus. Ralph Robbins

The University Has A Responsibility To Educate Students About Human Sexuality

Editors Note: The following letter was read in the Faculty Senate meeting on April 15, but was not released by President Andrews until yesterday.

5 April 1971

Edward C. Andrews, M.D.
President, University of Vermont
Waterman Building

Dear Mr. President:

At our meeting on March 22, 1971 you requested from us a written opinion concerning what should constitute a responsible position for the University of Vermont to assume in regard to the sexuality of its student body. We have met, considered the issues, and submit to you the following statement of our findings.

Our campus is certainly no exception to the increased expression of sexuality among youth of all sorts. This sexual openness cannot be dismissed and ignored; it must be accepted as a fact in our present day culture and dealt with accordingly.

Whatever else might be said about overt sexuality on our campus, we are struck by the evidence of the increased incidence of medical and psychological problems resulting therefrom. A large number of our students know far less than they should about the plain facts of sex; their self-knowledge is frightening. This is not their fault; no one has seen fit to properly teach them. Partly because of this ignorance, ignorance being the most prevalent, increase in venereal diseases, gonorrhea, the frequency of unwanted or unexpected pregnancy among unmarried female students on the campus is, according to our most reliable sources, in excess of ten per month. Our Counseling Service reports a noticeable increase in utilization of their facilities for the resolution of emotional problems and psychological conflicts relating to sexuality.

Our young people are as much concerned by the problems of ignorance, VD, unwanted pregnancy and psychosocial conflict as we are, and they share with us the conviction that together we can and should be doing some concrete things about these problems. We believe that this University has a manifest duty to address itself in a humanitarian and constructive fashion to the prevention and resolution of these physical and mental health problems related to sexuality among its student population.

How should this institution meet this medical responsibility? The University should accept the premise that the medical problems attendant to sexual activity—ignorance, VD, pregnancy and psychosocial conflict—must be handled by the University Health Service in the same fashion that it currently resolves other medical problems. It matters little what the nature of the difficulty; the student deserves optimal preventive and medical management of the problem.

We specifically recommend that:

1. The University provide adequate instruction in the field of human sexuality. This instruction should cover not only the core content of sex information as related to the physical health needs of students, but should also aim at developing an awareness of an appreciation for the strong interpersonal, psychological and moral aspects of the subject.
2. The University, as quickly as possible, assume its responsibility in preventing the health hazard of an unwanted pregnancy just as strongly as it strives to control other problems which adversely affect the health and well-being of its student population.
3. The University make available diagnostic, therapeutic and preventive programs for venereal disease.
4. The University provide counseling for students who need to resolve conflicts relating to sexuality. It is anticipated that this task will demand extensive and multifaceted services which are not presently adequate or co-ordinated satisfactorily.
5. Inevitably, our best efforts at education, medical management and counseling will sometimes fail. Female students will continue to get pregnant. Helping such girls find the most appropriate solutions to their problems and restoring them to maximum mental and physical health should be possible on this campus. Mechanisms for utilizing the services of other outside agencies when needed must be more fully developed.

The University of Vermont has the competence to do all of the above jobs well. Motion has already begun in some of these areas. We urge that, in the interest of the health and well-being of our student population, the University of Vermont implement these recommendations now.

Respectfully submitted,

F. Patrick McKenney, M.D.
John Van S. March, M.D.
J. Donald Schultz, M.D., Chairman

Stanley Tolliver Extolls Black Nationalism

by Arlene Erickson

Stanley Tolliver, a civil rights attorney and activist, spoke in his Allen Chapel last Thursday, April 22. In his speech, Mr. Tolliver expounded the meanings of "black nationalism" and "black power."

Black Nationalism

Mr. Tolliver asserted that the essence of black nationalism is pride, pride in the sense that one must have proper self-respect. "A person has to understand that he should be proud of what he is. He doesn't have to imitate somebody else in order to be proud. Black nationalism says that I don't have to imitate anybody. I don't have to bleach my skin; I don't have to straighten my hair; I don't have to try to make my lips thinner."

"Black nationalism simply is this: that a black man is proud of being black. He can say that a girl that has black skin, thick lips, a flat nose and a head full of curls is beautiful. We don't have to accept the white man's conception of beauty."

"Black nationalism teaches me as a black man that I should support my black woman and support my black children. I should take them off of welfare and be a taxpayer instead of a tax receiver. For I recognize that one of the things that is out here to emasculate me as a black man is to have somebody else taking care of my woman and my kids, so that I can't be a man."

Hypocritical Whites

Regarding black women, Mr. Tolliver proceeded to denounce the hypocrisy of certain white men. As a criminal lawyer I find many white men who say that they don't believe in integration, that they don't want to live on the same street with black folks, that they don't want to go to school with black kids and with them. They don't want to have anything to do with them. Yet when it comes to sex, the white man can be the most democratic person I know. For he denounces integration by day and he is very democratic with the black woman by night."

Black nationalism, according to Mr. Tolliver, is no different from the nationalism of other ethnic groups. "Black nationalism is the same as Irish nationalism on St. Patrick's Day, when people walk under the green color, being proud of being descendants from Ireland. It's no different from the Jewish people who proclaim pride because of the ancestry in Israel. It's no different than the Italian people who talk about Verdi, Puccini and their accomplishments."

One of the problems of the black people with respect to nationalism is their inability to trace their ancestry. "You have to understand the black position. It was introduced here as Stanley Tolliver. But you see, that's not really my name. I don't know what my name is. Tolliver is the name that was given to me by the slave owner of my great-grandfather. ... It's not my fault that I do not know. You see while other groups can trace their ancestry back to Europe, I am prevented from tracing mine because of slavery over which I had no control. So I've got to have some that I can stand on and be proud just like other people do. This is what nationalism is all about."

Black Power

"Black power," stated Mr. Tolliver, "simply means that black people get together to do what is necessary to protect and to perpetuate their legitimate aims."

Mr. Tolliver cited how the black people in Cleveland used their black power in order to achieve beneficial results. "In Cleveland black folks decided that they cannot fight and beg at the same time; that in order to be good citizens, there are certain responsibilities that you must take into consideration. We registered, we voted. We selected a man who we wanted to be the mayor."

"For after all, why shouldn't a black man be the mayor? If we can fight and die in Europe, if we can fight and die in Asia, if we can fight and die in every way this country's head, if we can pay taxes, then why can't we be like anybody else? So we decided that we were going to

Stanley Tolliver denounces black nationalism to self pride.

(continued on page three)

USAR Military Personnel Center
Post A
Randolph AFB, Texas 78148

Please send me more information

☐ Officer Training School
☐ Air Force ROTC Program

Name (Please print) _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Phone _____ Date of Birth _____

Service _____

I understand there is no obligation.

United States Air Force

Western Wear. Boots.

gler

It's We're into it.

Giant Stores
Sury Wilson Rd.
Essex Jct., Vt.

APRIL 29, 1971

APRIL 29, 1971

Stanley Tolliver's Remarks...

(continued from page one)

have a mayor. We selected Carl Stokes, the man who became the mayor of Cleveland in 1970.

Mr. Tolliver noted that it is natural for blacks to want to be politically represented, since other ethnic groups are so represented. "For every other ethnic group is represented. In the Italian community, they have Italian representatives, they have Bohemian representatives, they have Hungarian representatives. Consequently, the blacks want black representatives and they do not want these representatives to be chosen by other people but, rather, by themselves."

"Black power is necessary to show black people in every ghetto in the country that you can be somebody. For there is no way for me to have been inspired as a black child by a President Nixon or a President Kennedy. But I could be inspired if I saw one of my own people up there who could tell these kids not to 'burn, baby, burn' but to 'learn, baby, learn,' and if you 'learn, baby, learn,' you too can be a Carl Stokes."

Mr. Tolliver stated that it is necessary for the white people to help the black people. "You have to do it by example, by helping. Whites have to help us. You see, you can't criticize us and then stand in the way. If you want us to do the things that you say we ought to do, then don't get in the way. Help us, do it."

Racism
The only means by which whites will be able to help blacks is to overcome their racism. "The thing that is hurting our country at this time, the worst violence that exists in this country today is racism, the same kind of racism that existed in Hitler's Germany. Didn't Hitler say that the Aryan was the superior man? Didn't Hitler say that he was superior to everybody else? Didn't Hitler say that the German Aryan soldier was the finest, the greatest person that ever lived? Didn't he say that? And we said that he was crazy. We said that he must be paranoid, didn't we?"

"Isn't that what is happening in this country today? Aren't people who are saying they are white saying that they are better than those who aren't white? Isn't it a fact that any person that is born, is born black? Isn't it a fact that when he dies, he dies a black? Isn't it a fact that any man puts his pants on one leg at a time? Then who is any better than anybody else?"

In order to overcome their racism, the whites must forget the black myths, the black stereotypes. Included in these stereotypes are the ideas that black people emanate peculiar odors and that their homes are filthy and insanitary.

Black nationalism and black power, therefore, are necessary for the blacks to protect themselves. However, stated Mr. Tolliver, "we recognize that we cannot exist in this society without you. You have to understand that you can't exist in this society without us. And if it happens to us yesterday and you ignore it, it's going to happen to you today. It's just that simple."

Mr. Tolliver stated that the actions of the blacks are not anti-government. "We're not trying to overthrow the government. In fact you can read in history that no black has ever been accused of assassinating a president. We never held up an airplane. We don't run the Mafia. All we are trying to do is to be good citizens and get the fruits that we have died for over since this country has been here."

"So when we talk about black power, it is a political method of black folks coming together to do what is necessary to perpetuate their legitimate aims. In Cleveland we own black folks homes, six apartment houses, one Red Barn outlet, two Mahalia Jackson outlets. We have factories. We have insurance companies. We have newspapers. We even have an automobile agency—a Chrysler dealership. This is what we mean by black power. Because if you get the businesses, then you can hire your own people and do your own thing. That's what black power is all about."

Mr. Tolliver expounded further on black nationalism. "Nationalism says, 'I have come from Africa. I am of African descent and I am not ashamed of being an African.' For Africans don't run through the jungle with bones in their noses and they're not trying to cook white folks to eat. They had a civilization, they had a culture long before Europe had one. That's what nationalism means—making us proud of being what we are."

Mutual respect is the key to harmonious living between ethnic groups in America. "A person has to understand that our country exists on mutual respect. No man can serve two masters. Either he's going to hate one and love the other or love one and hate the other. If respect unites the country and hate divides the country, then it seems to me that the choice is this: Which one do we love? Do we want to support our hate or do we want to support our country? Which one do we worship? And if we want to support our country, then we're going to have to sacrifice our hate."

Black Messiah
"The black messiah, Martin Luther King (that's what I call him), said that we're either going to live together as brothers or we're going to perish as fools. There is no such thing as a master race. It wasn't true in Hitler's Germany and it isn't true today in America. All the people are human, and all of them have red blood. Everyone of us is entitled to freedom, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"Black people are not asking you to give them nothing, as James Brown said. We don't want you to give us nothing. Just open the door and get out of the way. We'll take care of the business."

According to Mr. Tolliver, another thing that black power and black nationalism say is "White folks, you can walk with us, you can walk at our side, but you can't walk in front of us anymore. We are capable of leading ourselves. We need your help but we don't want you to lead us because we're not robots, we're men."

"Lastly, this is what black power says... that I can stand and be a man, that I'll fight to protect my own woman."

There's nothing wrong with me being proud of what I am. There's nothing wrong with you being proud of what you are. The only difficulty comes when I try to be what I'm supposed to be and somebody gets in the way. Then when somebody gets in the way, that's when I fight back and we don't intend to lose."

Mr. Tolliver concluded his speech by commending the American youth for their efforts in solving the racial problems of this nation. "I'm proud of the youth. As far as the generation gap is concerned, the kids are the generation; our side, the adults, is the gap. I say to you young people—don't get hung-up on that racism. Don't get hung-up on that super-race, that master race, that I'm better than somebody else because I'm white. Don't get involved or infested with that sick paranoia because it will not only destroy you but it will destroy your country."

"I respect that the revolution that is happening in America today is coming from the youth who will not accept the paranoia that is trying to be visited upon them and handed to them by their parents. All I can say to this is 'Power to the people. Right on!'"

Love Rene

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Exercise Your Authority

To The Editor:

The time is long overdue that the Black American be respected, in the United States in general and in Vermont in particular, as a human being.

In Vermont, the Black American has had to contend with "Kake Walk," "The Insburg Affair," "tokenism in Black student enrollment at the University of Vermont," and "negroes" pond, mountain and brook."

As we know, "nigger" has a negative connotation and is derogatory. Blacks students, you can no longer remain silent and, or, indifferent to any form of racism.

Exercise your authority by writing the State Library Board to change the name in question. Very truly yours, Leon Lawrence

Vermont Music Festival

To The Editor:

On May 8, a Saturday, Burlington will be host to the Vermont Music Festival. The beauty of the occasion was blighted last year by the appearance of two American Legion (VFW?) gunners flanking the first row of the parade. What have these dudes got to do with this occasion? Can they be obscured by a fifty thousand strong throng of hips throwing spring flowers or are we to let our high-schoolers see these same two old gun-slinging farts lead the show again? Love Rene

Don't Call Your Travel Agent!

When you want the most charters available for Summer 1971, Call 212-697-3054. As a student at this college, YOU may be eligible for our low, low cost fares. Flights from New York to all major European Cities. Weekly departures. Flights under the auspices of World Student Government Organization. Send coupon... call, write or visit.

W.S.G.O. please send: ☐ Travel bulletins ☐ Application for International Student I.D.
Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____
School _____
Charter & Group Travel Specialists
60 East 42nd Street
New York 10017
Call (212) 697-3054

VISIT US.
AND YOU HAVE VISITED THE WORLD.

The World of Fine Things Handmade — Or From The Best Manufacturers.

Things for Spring and Summer.
Things for you to Keep or Give Away.
Jewelry Gifts.
And So Many, Many More Great Things.

Jesse James and Co.
167 Church St.
Burlington, Vt.
2 NORTH MAIN ST., ST. ALBANS VT.
OPENING MAY 15

Empathy wants you to win a Nikon and other valuable prizes.

Send us your black and white photographs and color slides. If they can be used in the Empathy greeting card and poster line you'll be paid at our regular professional rate... and your entry may be selected for one of these prizes.

1st Prize — Nikon Photomic FTN camera with 50mm f2 lens.
2nd Prize — Nikkormat FTN camera with 50mm f1.4 lens.
3rd Prize — Nikkormat FTN camera with 90mm f2 lens.
Honorable Mentions — an unlimited number of photographs published and paid for at our regular professional rate.

The Empathy Photographic Contest is continuous. Our first contest deadline for the above prizes will be September 30, 1971. The next deadline, for a new set of valuable prizes, will be January 31, 1972.

Keep sending us your photographs. Many will be published before the deadline and you will receive our regular publication fee plus a credit line. Remember, the sooner you enter the sooner you may win!

For entry forms containing the full details and for a look at what Empathy has already published... ask your local greeting card or poster dealer. If they do not carry Empathy, please send us the details to you immediately.

Empathy, 7 West 20th Street, New York, N.Y. 10011, Dept. PC.

New Creative Writing Teacher

The English Department has announced that it has hired a second teacher for its creative writing courses. Mr. David Huddle, presently finishing his M.F.A. at Columbia University, will be helping to teach sections of English 17, the introduction to writing of poetry and prose fiction. He is himself a prose writer and recently published a short story in Esquire Magazine. He also studied at Hollis College where he was an editor of the Hollis Cynic. Due to the opening of additional sections of English 17 permission of the instructor will no longer be required.

Jeff Arnold C&F Shop
VERMONT'S LARGEST CARD SHOP
Don't Forget
MOTHER'S DAY
MAY 10th
with your Selection of the finest from one who cares.
BURLINGTON SHOPPING PLAZA
SHELBOURNE ROAD
Located in the enclosed Mall next to Crome 1 & 2

The making of "BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID"
As on TV's hit documentary narrated by George S. Scott, William Goldman, Paul Newman, and Robert Redford.
on the same program
THE EPIC THAT NEVER WAS
Charles Laughton's most memorable performance in a documentary reconstruction of a multi-million-dollar film abandoned over thirty years ago.
STUDENT ASSOCIATION
SPECIAL FILMS
LIFE SCIENCES BUILDING BENEDICT HALL
May 1 7:30 P.M.
All Admission $1.25
Tickets on sale at SA Office one week, before showing or at door

UP THE ESTABLISHMENT SALE
FRI AND SAT MAY 1 AND 2
NOON TILL MIDNIGHT
BIB OVERALLS — $5.00
ALL SWEATERS — $5.00
ALL CORD PANTS — $8.00
LEATHER BELTS — $5.00
WESTERN SHIRTS — $6.00
CORD JUMPSUITS — $10.00
NEVERMORE
anti-establishment clothing
8 NO. WINOOSKI AVE
864-5294

DOMINO'S PIZZA
69-3333
10 N. Winooski Ave.
GOOD FOR MAY 1, 2
GOOD FOR MAY 4, 5, 6
GOOD FOR MAY 7, 8, 9
25% OFF 15" PIZZA 15% OFF 12" PIZZA
25% OFF 15" PIZZA 15% OFF 12" PIZZA
25% OFF 15" PIZZA 15% OFF 12" PIZZA

For an excellent, disabled 20 yr. old girl of above average intelligence and sophisticated tastes who writes poetry and paints. She is interested in art, literature, politics and the environment. She lives on a farm near Underhill. She needs outside interests and friends her own age. SBAC

Volunteers are needed during the summer to assist with in-house and one-of-house activities with kids who are living at SHAC on an emergency basis. Volunteers can help with follow-up programs, take "duty" at the house during specific periods of time, develop activities of all sorts, and share in the coming-fest events.

Speaker, Dartmouth, "A Williams Science Hall."

Pharmacist, Harvard, "7 p.m., North Lounge."

aid by E.V. Harburg and 10 p.m. Tickets $3 or $1.50 music in song, concert by Nicole Francine, German 101 Vosey Building.

Rash, M.D. Memorial Pleasant Valley (Sutton).

S. Rosenblatt, Rutgers, nonhomosexual factors in John Dewey Hall.

Arena Theatre Memorial Lounge, Waterman

ical at Arena Theatre, 7:30

The Spy Who Came from the Rings, each preceded by a Life Sciences Building.

"Baroque Sonatas and a Mann and Bach, 8:30 p.m."

Rash, M.D. Memorial a.m., Memorial Lounge.

a.m.

p.m., Arena Theatre Details

m., Centennial Field p.m., Arena Theatre Details

the Madrigal Singers and the Allen Chapel. First part of singers doing 15th and 16th of the program will consist of musical comedy.

remain the next will cover ADLIFE will be Wednesday. will list events from May 17 at will be May 3. Thank you!

The Death of Jim Crow
Grass Methodist Church, 130 Apple St., St. Albans, Vt. is sponsoring a play, "The Death of Jim Crow," Friday, April 30 at 7:30 p.m.

Purpose of the play which will be followed by a panel is to explore the topic, "Why Black Power?" and to promote "better understanding."

VP

Five work-study students will be working in various areas of the state as a part of Extension Service projects. They will be developing projects with children and working with people in need. One of these projects may be functioning in the community where you are this summer. You will probably have some spare time and these projects could certainly use help. Stop by OVP for more information if you are interested!

Plan a Project
If you can spend some time in community action this summer plan a project where you think the need is greatest. Some seed monies are available for well thought out projects that involve the community in the planning process and show promise of meeting genuine need. Stop by OVP for further information and assistance in preparing a proposal for the OVP Steering Committee.

People Day a Success
More than a hundred Volunteers and their kids showed up at the gym last Sunday to swim, play volleyball and basketball, work out in gymnastics and enjoy refreshments and films. There were many comments that it ought to be done more often. We need volunteer power to make it go on a regular basis. Is someone willing to take this on as a regular project?

Electricity
A limited electricity is needed to help extend power to the home of an elderly low-income person in a rural area.

Math Tutor
High School remedial math for a girl in NYC.

Language Arts—English
High School kids who have left school and are trying to catch up.

Companion
For an excellent, disabled 20 yr. old girl of above average intelligence and sophisticated tastes who writes poetry and paints. She is interested in art, literature, politics and the environment. She lives on a farm near Underhill. She needs outside interests and friends her own age. SBAC

Volunteers are needed during the summer to assist with in-house and one-of-house activities with kids who are living at SHAC on an emergency basis. Volunteers can help with follow-up programs, take "duty" at the house during specific periods of time, develop activities of all sorts, and share in the coming-fest events.

CIA, Madame Nhu, Premier Ky Involved In Far-Eastern Opium "Business"

BASS SANDALS

JUST GREAT!

Ready to take you anywhere and back. Famous Bass quality speaks for itself.

All with leather Soles. For the best Selection come in now.

IN MAHOGANY
$16.

IN MAHOGANY
$12.

IN MAHOGANY
WHITE
$14.

IN VILLAGE BROWN
$12.

April 24, 1971

Photographs by Tim Hanson

tee

Patrols going out on duty would be out of company and sit for several hours. One company claimed to be paid a dollar reward on their part. They felt he was continually being paid. I met several GIs who had been in the area.

with a battalion of ARVN's from the northwest corner of the area, to a resettlement area in a Vietnamese village that had been turned into a rice paddy. The only time I saw the ARVN's was when they were on trucks and the rest of the area was on a flat, sandy area. The forests, the paddy fields, and the rice paddy fields were already in the area.

"I was confined to the enemy area. I described our APC bogged down. I left it under the guard of a battalion of ARVN's and continued our search to find it rammed and a battalion of ARVN's from one of the villages was sent out to find it and having more than our allies, I put my M16 on a hill off safety and stormed the ARVN's had taken up positions. I don't know how far I would have gone, but I wouldn't have been there."

that stand out the most in my mind. I know they are far from the area. I have tried to find out more, but everything I know to refuse, from helping the "Democracy Theory," and "Red Army" in my government for the future. A majority of the population is in a democracy. What has happened when 75% of the population of the U.S. is of Vietnamese descent but are overruled?"

Nabokov

Transposition of Russian in confronted a dilemma.

...tendent and delightful masterpiece, whose every English. But what about century or a quarter of a century ago? One cannot rather like a potentate conspicuous priest blessing one contemplative, for one being and improving one's make-up, one's complexion.

"for its shadow," offered have never twisted the tail of the original measure has led to be made for its sake.
Previously published in The
...ing, no doubt, to their with old perplexities and marks poems written in one's its parallel murmur and a its richest chords.

which Nabokov "refuses to attention on his part. "Chess set the same virtues that city, invention, consciousness, sincerity. The composing of imperatively rare gift and as then all art is intuitive, and of a few problems composed any later verse."

The Cold

The Cold

(continued from page five)

America's Asian strategy—the stealthy conquest of a continent to serve the interests of the likes of the China Lobby.

The shift in the international opium traffic is also a metaphor for what has happened in Southeast Asia itself. As the U.S. has settled in there, its presence radiating a nimbus of genocide and corruption, armadas of airplanes have come to smash the land and lives of a helpless people; mercenary armies have been trained by the U.S.; and boundaries reflecting the U.S. desires have been established along with houses of commerce and petty criminality in the American image. One of the upshots has been the opium trade has been systematized, given U.S. technological expertise and a shipping and transportation network as pervasive as the U.S. presence itself. The practical Corrosion transports have been replaced by pragmatic technocrats carrying out their jobs with deadly accuracy.
Unimpeded by boundaries, scruples or customs agents, and nurtured by the free flow of military personnel through the capital of the Orient, the United States has "a reflex of its warfare in Indochina—built up a support system for the trade in narcotics that is unparalleled in modern history.

The U.S. went on a holy war to stamp out communism and to protect its Asian markets, and it brought home heroin.

It is a fitting trade-off, one that characterizes the moral quality of the U.S. involvement.
This ugly war keeps coming home, each manifestation more terrifying than the last, home to the streets of the teeming urban ghettos and the lonely suburban suburbs where in the last year the number of teenage heroin addicts has taken a quantum leap forward. Heroin has now become the newest affliction of affluent America—of mothers in Westport, Connecticut, who only wanted to die when they traced track-marks on their daughters' elegant arms or of fathers in Cicero, Illinois speechless in outrage when their corrupted sons came back from the war bringing home a bloodstained needle as their only lasting souvenir.

The memo, dated Feb. 25,
from Communications Director
Mary Nell York to conference Director Stephen Hess, outlines procedures for setting up a delegate steering committee in the event of real trouble.

Such a steering committee was established Sunday night at the outset of the conference after a youth delegate wrestled the microphone from Hess during the opening ceremonies in demand more delegate participation in setting the conference agenda.

The memo says that the creation of the steering committee is designed to suggest "that the conference is controlled by the delegates."

York confirmed the existence of the memo and said, "It was stolen, apparently from someone at the conference."

The memo goes on to say the steering committee must have confidence because the media expects some dissent opinion.

The memo controversy comes on the heels of pre-conference charges, beginning with the youth caucus at the December
White House Conference on Children in Washington, that the program and selection of delegates was being manipulated to ensure a politically quiet conference.

Delegates to the conference supposedly were picked to ensure a delegate mixture of men, women, and ethnic groups in equal proportion to the population of the U.S. The final selection procedures, however, have not been revealed.

At a press conference called
Monday afternoon by the Task Force on Poverty, President Nixon's Williamsburg, anti-welfare speech was resoundingly condemned.

The Task Force agreed with Nixon that "the present welfare system is an utter failure," but found different reasons for the failure of the welfare system.

Alex Stephens, Task Force member reading the statement for the 150-member group, said
"We feel that the President's statement represents a gross injustice to poor and non-poor Americans alike. If we are to work reasons behind the unjust and regressive tax burdens in America, we must look first to the endless war in Indochina, the national defense follies of the Nixon administration and the welfare doles given to the corporation farmers, the oil industry, and the like in our nation."

Jim Branscome, coordinator of the Task Force, reported that it had adopted a resolution to abolish strip mining and nationalize the coal industry without remuneration. The resolution will become part of the official task force report.

Of the 1500 conference delegates, nearly two-thirds are accorded "youth" status, with the remainder being a mix of resource guests. D. union areas include (see CPS 70-12):
justice, poverty, legal rights and justice, the draft, culture and ethics, environment, foreign relations, race, education, and economy and employment.

Several of the workshop
areas, particularly drugs, poverty, legal rights and foreign relations, have developed significant proposals and involved youth delegates in contributory roles. However, many of the rap sessions and workshops, such as draft, have been dominated by resource guests.

For instance, two groups discussing alternatives to the draft developed into arguments between the opposing viewpoints of the Defense Department and anti-draft group guests.

One of these groups became an expert's discussion on manpower procurement between Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Reserve Affairs Roger T. Kelley and the Draft Task Force coordinators.

The conference is being held at the YMCA of the Rockies Summer Camp High in the mountains outside Estes Park.

possibility that the person may be sterile. Does this mean I'm sterile? Where can I find out?

ANSWER: When the operation is performed in early childhood, normal testicular function occurs at the onset of adolescence. It is felt that the undescended testicle in adulthood does not produce sperm because of the higher temperature in the testicle that results when that organ is held in close contact with the body. Also, an undescended testicle in adulthood has a much higher risk of developing malignancy.

From what you describe you have nothing to worry about.

QUESTION: It has been suggested that the combination of depositing sperm in a sperm bank followed by vasectomy probably would be an effective means of family planning. This would allow the couple to use artificial insemination when they choose to have a child.

What is involved in depositing sperm in a sperm bank (i.e. where are sperm banks located, what is legally involved, how much does it cost, how long can sperm be stored, etc.) and what is involved in artificial insemination?

My wife and I are very interested in this idea but are concerned about the financial and esthetic aspects of the procedure as well as its validity.

ANSWER: Human sperm banks sound like an intriguing idea. To date, the long term storage of human sperm cells has not been perfected to the same degree that it has been for other species. I do not know of any human sperm banks; in any case, it will be a long time before there are branch offices. The idea of a sperm bank raises a number of other questions:

Will they pay interest?
Will they have night deposit boxes and drive-in windows?
Will accounts be insured by a federal agency?
And, what would happen if a bookkeeping error were made?
It has been possible to collect sperm samples from a man with low sperm count and over a period of a few days concentrate the number of sperm and use this to artificially inseminate the man's wife. Artificial insemination is very simply done. The time of ovulation in a woman is determined as accurately as possible and a sperm sample is deposited by syringe in the area of the cervix.

QUESTION: Can I get venereal disease from oral sex?

ANSWER: Yes. Syphilis can be transmitted through any type of direct contact with an infected area. Gonorrhea enters the body almost solely through the genital area.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals, or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below 100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are introduced into the milk from a previous batch of yogurt.

Skimmed milk is the starting material of choice for making yogurt. In using dry milk you would be wise to add about 25-50 per cent more milk crystals than you would ordinarily. The fat is not necessary for clabbering to occur, as the curd is a precipitate of
milk protein.

Maintaining a proper temperature during the procedure is crucial. You need a thermometer that registers temperature from 90 to 200 degrees F. This may be hard to find, but an inexpensive darkroom thermometer available in any photo store will cover the lower temperature. The skimmed milk should not be boiled but should be brought to a temperature of 180 degrees F. It is then cooled to 110 degrees F but should not be allowed to drop below
100 degrees F. A small amount of yogurt culture or yogurt from a store bought bottle is added to the container. The containers
should be kept in an insulated box (a small foam picnic chest would be fine) with each container covered with a piece of aluminum foil.
Do not disturb the brew as bacteria like to work in peace.
Thickening should occur in about eight hours; you can then cap the containers and store them in the refrigerator. If thickening does not occur, it is possible that the milk was too hot at some stage and all the bacteria were killed. Also, if antibiotics were present in the milk
as a contaminant (unfortunately, an occasional happening) you will also be out of business. As a last resort you can try store-bought skimmed milk instead of the powdered, dry type.

Refrigeration is important as the yogurt can spoil. Fresh fruit or jelly can be added after the yogurt is chilled or before eating. If you are using a different method in which you leave the culture pots
stand out overnight, I would suggest covering them with a piece of foil or cheese cloth to keep mosquitos out as they can track in large amounts of unwanted, harmful bacteria.

QUESTION: I've been trying to make yogurt but I've run into a
few problems:
If the yogurt comes out too thin (I've tried using just non-fat dried milk) is it possible to thicken it by adding more milk crystals,
or does it require a certain amount of fat content in order to clabber? Is it necessary to bring the milk to a full boil before letting it cool enough to add the culture, or is it just that the milk must be at room temperature before adding the culture? How important is refrigeration after the yogurt has been made? Can I add fresh fruit or jelly immediately, or will this make the stuff spoil?

What other strange and horrible things might be growing in the culture pot if I leave it sit out overnight?

ANSWER: Yogurt is one of a number of sour and fermented milk
and cream products of Eastern origin. Yogurt derives its taste from the fermentation of milk by selected bacteria which are

Catnip

Thoughts and events are recorded constantly by students during their 45 months as collegians. But for most seniors, all occurrences that fall within the final month are not just experienced and noted, they are savored and cherished.

These activities range from beer blasts to solitary contemplation in a familiar library cubicle; from marathon raps to a smoke on the shore when the Adirondacks are ablaze; from counting the days till commencement to recounting the credits till diploma.

And for some of us, a special chapter is set aside for intramural softball.

There is no intramural sport as relaxing or all-inclusive as softball. There is little challenge, it is informal, and its blithe unimportance generates an appropriate diminuendo for the season of rebirth.

But there is a myth about intramural softball at the University of Vermont; a legend that has been perpetuated, and probably will continue to gain stature.

The myth, simply, is the assumption that there is intramural softball competition.

Annually, Norm Stranburg and his assistants compile the schedule for softball matches and playoffs. The slate is posted, rosters are submitted, and, late in March, the effervescence of spring and its representative sport can be viewed near dormitories and fraternities: pre-season practice.

Then a week's vacation; a return for most to warmer climates where perfection of softball technique can be realized.

But meanwhile, inexplicable forces are at work in Burlington. Three inches of April snow covers the sopping softball fields; it melts a few hours later, creating a Loch Ness effect. Then it rains. Soon it clears, but with cold temperatures and no wind. Then the cycle resumes.

Students return, eager for lining drives and chasing flies. The first teams on the intramural schedule bundle up and, ignoring a misty rain, descend upon the subterranean fields.

Some of these men have never returned. "They were swallowed by the deep," an awestruck witness was once quoted as saying. "The last thing I saw was a sinking catcher's mitt with three protruding fingers, and a student athletic assistant marking 'forfeit' on his clipboard."

Days pass. Postponements pile up on each other. Afficionados desperately seek a solution. Clairvoyants are employed. One was recently seen standing on the hillock overlooking the marshlands, gesticulating with a long rod and pleading, "Part, waters, part. Let my people throw!" Self-appointed soothsayer Jean Dixon was once consulted; she predicted that the university would imminently be consumed by seventeen-year locusts. Tons of sand were another time trucked from the nearby Gobi Desert. The sand disappeared in the muck.

A week before finals, years ago, a custodian saw a dove alight on second base of Field No. 1, and pluck an olive branch from the turf. And a mammoth rainbow spanned the Champlain Valley, providing a week of Page One color pictures in the Free Press.

An abbreviated schedule was set up; each team played as many games as possible. Half-hearted playoffs began; final and Senior Week soon took first priority.

But the dreams of potential glory linger on, the bases and the bats sit patiently in the cage, the mineographed schedules are placed in the archives.

And every July, droves of little kids play tag, fly kites, and trod in general all over our indelible memories of softball, and another segment of our fading era.

Vermont Nine Trounces State Foes

The University of Vermont baseball team, under the direction of Coach Holmquist, continuing to stand unbeaten against all state opposition this week. The club succeeded in giving a sound beating to state rivals St. Michael's and Norwich, defeating them by scores of 11-3 and 13-2 respectively.

To date, the Catamounts have posted a 7-10 record, but have posted a poor conference slate, being 0-6 in this respect.

Quite obviously, both games were an excellent display of power at the plate on the part of the Catamounts. Monday's game, originally scheduled to be played at St. Michael's but was shifted to UVM since the Knight's field was unplayable, saw the Catamounts post twelve hits as opposed to only three on the part of the Knight's. In the contest Tuesday against Norwich, played on the opposition's home turf, the Catamounts notched up a record of 14 hits for the day, while the UVM pitching staff limited competition to only two.

Monday's win over St. Michael's left the Catamounts with a 2-0 record, in the first contender position for the mythical state crown.

The UVM, Gray Bartlett started the day on the mound and carried through until the fourth inning when Peter Ross took over. Ross continued to hurl until the end of the game, allowing only one of the three hits that the Knight's posted for the day. Against Norwich, the pitching staff was composed of Jim Endres and winning pitcher John Jacobs. In the fourth inning, the competition together four walks and a single for two runs and the closest margin to victory they would see for the rest of the afternoon.

On Monday, it appeared as though St. Michael's was going to post another of their famous upsets against the Catamount squad as they managed to build up a 3-0 lead by the fourth inning. Holmquist's men got it together in the fourth as they combined for four runs and as many hits to start the ball rolling towards victory.

Probably the most outstanding play of the day against the Knight's was put in by second baseman Dom Serino as he plucked a bid for a single and through the opposition's rightfielder out by a step.

In the Norwich contest, the Catamounts were trailing in no part of the game. They built up a 3-0 lead in the first three innings mostly on the strength of walks coupled with Dave Stetson who exploded for a triple in the third stanza. The competition managed to come within one run, but the Cats added four runs in the next three Serino tags out a St. Michael's opponent during an attempted second base steal.

Football Club Prepares For First Alumni Game

Most people consider Alumni to be the forgotten faces of the past who make an occasional donation. Their existence is seldom recognized by the student populace, even when the stream of letters comes pouring after those "hippies" try and sometimes succeed in changing the tried and true traditions which the University has held dear in years past.

This week, the Alumni will be making their presence known in a very different way, as they put on the pads and the cleats and do battle with the current football team.

On Saturday, May 1, at 8 P.M. at Buck Hard Field at the Burlington High School, the University of Vermont football stars of the past will give it another try against Coach Joe Scannella's present squad.

All the proceeds from this epic battle will be forwarded to the Centennial Club's Grant-in-Aid Program, to give the rebuilding of the varsity squad under Scannella a shot in the arm.

The graduate squad will be coached by former Little All-American Bob Mitchell. The truly remarkable fact of this contest is that Mitchell has been able to recruit the services of 42 alumni. The club will feature such standouts as Harry Canning, Jeff Kuhman, who signed with the Denver Broncos and Scott Pitts, who quarterbacked the club to three of its most successful seasons. Joe Saldano, who still holds the school record for the most points after kicks, will provide back-up strength.

Scannella is putting a lot of hope in the new-comers to the squad this year. Running back Gary Vendercar, who is a Freshman, was the outstanding back in workouts. Also, Tom Milliken, a newcomer to the squad after a season of skiing, has proven to be a great surprise in the linebacker spot.

by Jay Blumenkopf

THE INSIDER

There were two practices again Saturday. An hour workout in the morning covering punting and place kicking, and a rugged two-hour scrimmage in the afternoon.

Looking impressive in the first actual scrimmage held during the spring drills were four different running backs: Gary Vendercar, Larry Bona, Steve Coon, and Billy Comstock. They were all running hard and I think a coin toss will decide who is in the starting line-up on Saturday night.

The passing game was little on the sour side. It lacked something Saturday and it will take a lot of work this week to get it clicking for the Alumni game.

In the defensive backfield, Dave Bowman covered receivers closely and came up with a beautiful interception. There was also some good hitting by defensive end Tom Milliken and linebacker Kevin Lynch.

Spring practice comes to an end this Saturday night at 8 P.M. at Buck Hard Field in the first University of Vermont Alumni Game.

CHAMPLAIN LANES

Hours 10 A.M. To 1 A.M.
985-2824

- Automatic Pin Setters
- Expert Staff Tipping & Drilling
- Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
- Cocktail Lounge
- Snack Bar
- Hourly
- Billiards
- Dancing

AIR-CONDITIONED 16 LANES

Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages 5 Minutes South Of State On Shelburne Rd.

It's the real thing. Coke.

Real life calls for real taste.
For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola.

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by GREGORY BOTTLES OF BURLINGTON

From the cat's mouth

by Dave Kopacz

Spring. What had been an idle happy time is touched with sadness when you are a Senior. The memories are many and regret enters your mind until you realize that life must go on. Just as your life must continue so must the institution known as the University of Vermont.

While tuition and expenses go up and classroom overcrowding continually plagues the administration, the Sports department is taking great strides to alleviate their problems. Certain teams (i.e. Joe Scannella's football squad and the quintet of Art Locke's) are vastly improved with the addition of incoming freshmen and transfers. The gridiron should not become a breeding ground for despair nor should the courts lose the heartbreakers to teams the caliber of St. Mike's.

Of course the gleaming skates of our men on ice, should again challenge for the Division top spot. The addition of Boston University (the number one team in the nation) on the Cat schedule will not make the task any easier but it will make it more exciting. Jim Cross has done his usual fine job of recruiting. Speculation has it that even a non-English speaking Canadian may be on his way down after a crash course on how to "talk" to the refs in English. If only Steve-Eckerson can fill the shoes of the imitable David Reese then next year's squad may surpass the past two.

Both the Swim team and the Trackmen are facing stiff competition but a surprise or two can caput either to the top. The aquacats, led by the diving talents of Donny Macomber could possibly even win all of their head to head meets next year. Most other teams should be competitive.

As far as the administration of J. Edward Konnely goes, the department is hopeful of providing necessary improvement in the hockey arena. Both the acquisition of glass to replace the screening around the rink, and better seating are on the agenda. These improvements would be a welcome relief to the thousands of fans who struggle to see every UVM game. A return to the athletic programs offered last year is hoped for but is less likely to occur than is the hockey repairs. Both depend on budgetary action. Let us pray.

All in all "Wait 'till next year" may not be a futile cry.

If all the Vermont students stood up and applauded, I do not think this would do justice to one of the greatest UVM sports figures in recent history. David Reese, recipient of the Athlete of the Year Award at a banquet this weekend, has had a fantastic career. Numbering among his greatest feats were the victory over Harvard, the Championship effort over Bowdoin last year, and the All-Star game to climax the season. Thank you "Moon" for some great times.

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.
106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING
(All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING
(Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

CHARTERS

GUARANTEED
OPERATION SERVICE

FROM LONDON TO

MAJORCA
MUNICH
YUGOSLAVIA
GREECE
LISBON
ITALY
CORSICA

MAY THROUGH OCTOBER
FROM $45.00 UP.

89 Central St. • WOODSTOCK

26 Center St. • RUTLAND

TOLL FREE 1/800-622-4137

Bob Ayres • Ruth C. Barry • Helen E. Woods • Diane McCaughan • Shirley W. Moore • Blanche Wells

NORTHEAST TRAVEL ORGANIZATION, INC.

Travel Agents for Vermont

P.J. AUTO

U-Haul
Truck
& Trailer Rental.

Reserve now your truck or trailer for your move Home.

P. J. Auto Village Inc.
2073 Williston Road
So. Burlington, Vt.

Phone 862-0875 863-6669

VERMONT CYNIC

MAY 6, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 13

The Veterans Against The War stage guerrilla theater

Trustees Raise Tuition: Health Fee, East And Centennial Woods Are Preserved

by Ariene Erikson

At the Board of Trustees' meeting on May 1, both the in and out-of-state tuition at the University of Vermont were increased by $200. Effective in the fall of 1971, the tuition will be increased from $750 to $950 for Vermont residents and from $2200 to $2400 for non-residents.

The action, which was not unanimous, makes the University the highest in the nation for any state university for its in-state as well as its out-of-state tuition.

Noting objections of several members of the Board, UVM President Edward C. Andrews, Jr., said "we are all upset, we all deplore, we all wish we could vote against it. You all know our budget situation. There are no alternatives."

Gene Beaudoin, the new president of the Student Association, expressed the concern of the students and the Student Association and stated that the S.A. will be "looking into" administrative and academic costs. He also suggested that the University should consider giving entering students some idea of what they may have to pay each year during their college studies.

Referring to the level funding recommended by the Governor and approved by the T. Schechtman said "this Board is forced to increase tuition because of what the Legislature failed to do." He said faculty salaries at UVM are the "lowest of any New England state university," and added that the University is subsidizing part of students' educational costs.

President Andrews said the nation has "always put a very high priority on education," recognizing that all society benefits, but he added, "we seem to be headed in the deplorable direction of education only for the elite and the wealthy."

New Officers Elected

Kenneth Scott, a Grosse Pointe, Mich., alumnus of the University of Vermont was elected to serve as chairman of its 23-member Board of Trustees, succeeding Edward R. Eurich of Waitsfield, Vt., who completed a six-year term on the Board at the last meeting.

Scott is a vice president of General Motors and an executive in charge of body and assembly divisions. A native of Amesbury, Mass., and a 1935 Vermont graduate, he was elected to a six-year term on the Board in 1966, and had served as vice chairman.

Other officers elected were Dr. Robert E. O'Brien of Winooski, vice chairman; Leon D. Latham of Burlington, secretary and clerk; Thomas H. Candon of Rutland, assistant secretary.

Health Service Fee

The Student Activities Committee recommended to the Board of Trustees an increase in the Student Health Service fee to cover a drug crisis intervention center and the development of a program in human sexuality, medical counseling and gynecological care. The recommendation also included a stipulation stating that, if satisfactory programs cannot for any reason be developed or implemented, the increase in the health fee would be abolished.

The Board of Trustees approved the Financial Committee's resolution to increase the student health fee from $20 per semester to $22 per semester, effective the academic year 1971-1972. This resolution, however, contained no reference to the abolishment of the increase in the health fee if a "satisfactory program" does not materialize.

President Andrews and Dean Powers stated Monday that the additional fee will not be collected unless the program concerning increased OB-GYN services and expanded Crisis Intervention services are "acceptable to both the Board of Trustees and the students."

According to Gene Beaudoin, President of the Student Association, a five member student committee will be set up to review the administration's proposals. Beaudoin emphasized that a program that is "acceptable" to the Board of Trustees may be a waste of money for the students.

Both the students and administration hope that plans will be finalized by the next Board meeting in early June, but "we can't be sure of this since we are not certain of the problems we will be faced with," Andrews stated.

Personnel Actions

The University of Vermont Trustees approved a number of staff actions at their Saturday meeting, including the formal approval of the appointment of Dr. Wayne C. Patterson as executive vice president.

Suzanne T. Bettinger, from the University of Minnesota, was named chairman of the department of home economics. She is succeeding Blair Williams, who last year indicated her desire to return to teaching and research on a full-time basis.

Dr. Hubert Vogelmann will serve as the chairman of the department of botany, effective September 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972, while Dr. Beal Hyde will be on sabbatical leave.

Dr. John H. Davis, professor of surgery, was named associate dean of extramural affairs in the College of Medicine.

Dr. George W. Albee, a nationally known scholar, was named professor of psychology in the College of Arts and Sciences. A recent past president of the American Psychological Association, he will be coming to UVM from Case Western Reserve University.

Dr. Kenneth N. Fishell was appointed associate dean and professor in UVM's College of Education. Dr. Fishell will be coming to Vermont from teaching and administrative positions at Syracuse University.

The Trustees also approved the appointment of John W. Alden as director of institutional studies. From the University of Illinois, he is succeeding Richard Kneller who resigned the post in October, 1970.

New Residence Halls Named
Two names for the "1971 residence hall" complex were presented for the Board's approval. The complex will be named to honor former Dean of Women Anna Rankin Harris and former President John Schöff Mills.

Dean Harris, during her twelve years of service, "worked very closely with resident students and through much of her efforts a strong residence hall program was developed." Currently she is the executive secretary of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors.

Dr. Mills, president from 1941-1949, "served the University of Vermont during a critical period of its development and is a nationally known and honored educator." He is retired Chancellor of Case Western Reserve University.

Environmental Action
The UVM Trustees continued to express their interest and action in the environmental area by approving resolutions designating East Woods and Centennial Woods as "natural areas." They agreed that they should be preserved in their natural state both as valuable resources and as outdoor laboratories for students in such classes as botany and forestry.

Trustee O'Brien called the areas "the best forests in the Burlington area."

Honor Scholarships
The Trustees approved a recommendation that the $200 University of Vermont scholarships awarded to the top ranking graduates of every

(continued on page three)

106 Faculty And Staff Sign The Peace Treaty

One hundred and six University of Vermont faculty and staff members have signed The Joint Treaty Of Peace Between The People Of The United States And The People Of South Vietnam and North Vietnam.

Copies of the treaty, commonly known as "The People's Peace Treaty," were sent to all departments of the University by Peter Seybold, Assistant Professor of History.

Twelve departments supplied all the signatures received so far and Seybold expects about thirty-six more departments to return copies in the near future.

Asked to comment on the reaction to the treaty, Seybold said, "On the whole response is excellent." He added that he did not expect to receive too many signatures from certain University departments such as ROTC.

In a letter accompanying the treaty, Seybold describes the extensive casualties suffered by the people of South Vietnam. "Over one million people in Vietnam alone have been killed to date, including several hundred thousand civilians, according to U.S. Department of Defense figures."

"Vietnam is a land of refugees. In the south the rural population has declined from 85% of the total population, fifteen years ago, to 40% today. A U.S. Senate investigating team was told, in the area it was surveying, that 70% of the refugees fled their homes because of saturation American bombing and artillery fire."

"The United States has already devastated Vietnam with ten times the tonnage of explosives used in all theaters of the war throughout the course of World War II. As a result, Saigon and other urban areas are teeming, filthy slums. The situation in Laos is similar and getting worse. It is estimated that 1/4 to 1/2 of all Laotians are now refugees."

The letter goes on to explain the ecocide being committed by the United States in Indo China.

"The United States has already sprayed, with defoliants, over five million acres of land in Vietnam, much of it crop land. In some areas sprayed nine years ago, nothing grows! Fish and shell fish breeding areas in mangrove swamps have been destroyed. There are no more

(continued on page three)

Scott Clarifies His Positions

Editor's note: Kenneth N. Scott, an alumni trustee from Grosse Pointe, Michigan, was elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees, at the April 22 meeting of the Board.

Q. What do you plan to do to help make the situation at Vermont better with respect to the relationship between the students and the trustees, the state and the trustees and the faculty and the trustees?

A. I believe that the administration has the responsibility for running the University. The Board of Trustees is to cooperate with the administration, they should cooperate with the academic community, the faculty, the student body. They have to always be looking at their fiscal responsibilities to the people of the State of Vermont. I would hope, that with the Board as I see it now, with the administration that exists here, we should have nothing but improved relations, we should have better communication. I think these things are important and will take place.

Q. Some people stated that in the fall, people were opposed to having student representation on the Board of Trustees.

A. Now that was a misquote. I was not opposed to having student representation. I was opposed to having student members on the Board and I was opposed to having wide-open student participation at Board meetings. I know this upset several students. We compromised, and I agree with the compromise. I think this is fine. I think that when two or three student leaders feel that they could make comments on subjects on which the Board is deliberating, that they should have their opportunity. And as long as they keep it on a business-like basis and don't make long political speeches, that's the way it should be.

Q. There came some discussion today about the "Yale Plan" and the students paying more for their education. President Andrews stated his philosophy on this how do you feel about this?

A. I really can't comment because I'm not familiar with either of those two plans. I do know this. I contact other universities as a part of my job. I know that there is a feeling that in order to operate the universities and maintain the standards, that we're going to have to, if we are going to have the education that we want in this country, with the limitations that we're getting on allocations from Legislatures, that in all probability the students are going to have to bear more of the burden, if they want the education. I think it's going to have to be done by providing more scholarships, more loan money. In my own particular case, I was a poor boy, poor family. I worked every summer while I was going to school, when I got through I owed a bundle. I would do it exactly the same way again. I hope we never get in the area both in cost of living and high tuitions, where we deprive a student of an education.

on the Board of Trustees.

A. Now that was a misquote. I was not opposed to having student representation. I was opposed to having student members on the Board and I was opposed to having wide-open student participation at Board meetings. I know this upset several students. We compromised, and I agree with the compromise. I think this is fine. I think that when two or three student leaders feel that they could make comments on subjects on which the Board is deliberating, that they should have their opportunity. And as long as they keep it on a business-like basis and don't make long political speeches, that's the way it should be.

Q. There came some discussion today about the "Yale Plan" and the students paying more for their education. President Andrews stated his philosophy on this how do you feel about this?

A. I really can't comment because I'm not familiar with either of those two plans. I do know this. I contact other universities as a part of my job. I know that there is a feeling that in order to operate the universities and maintain the standards, that we're going to have to, if we are going to have the education that we want in this country, with the limitations that we're getting on allocations from Legislatures, that in all probability the students are going to have to bear more of the burden, if they want the education. I think it's going to have to be done by providing more scholarships, more loan money. In my own particular case, I was a poor boy, poor family. I worked every summer while I was going to school, when I got through I owed a bundle. I would do it exactly the same way again. I hope we never get in the area both in cost of living and high tuitions, where we deprive a student of an education.

Q. So you don't have the same philosophy on this as President Andrews who was directly opposed to this?

A. No, I do. Except this, I think it's going to be a difficult thing. All of government has pressures, not only for education, but they've got it for relief, for ecology... everybody wants tax money. I think that education should get their fair share from government, both federal and state, and, in the case of elementary schools, local. I think somewhere along the way it's going to have to go up in a balance. The state pays more, we pay more. We're in a period of inflation, it's going to cost more. Our particular worry now, even with this increase in tuition, to make sure that we don't come up with a deficit situation in 1972.

Q. In actuality, however, the students are paying more, but the state is not paying more.

A. That's right. That's the current situation. They just didn't go up, so we had no choice. We didn't like it and we've given this a lot of soul-searching. I can tell you that I don't think there's a member of the Board that wanted to increase those tuitions.

Q. Do you foresee any improved funding on the state level for next year?

A. (Laughs) I wouldn't even dare to comment on that because we have too many legislators on the Board and I have no way of knowing. I'm sure that unless the State finds new sources of revenue, now I understand the gas tax went up, there'll probably be more tax increases, so maybe there will be more for education. I'll tell you this, I think that we're going to have to take a very careful look at one thing, and that is that when you have so much income, you can provide so much service, we may be providing more education at the University of Vermont than we should. Let me change that. We can't just keep on whittling down the budget for the engineering department on arts and sciences. You can't just keep doing

(continued on page five)

Kenneth Scott gathers his thoughts before delivering acceptance speech.

Majority Of Votes Support Student Association Fee In One Form Or Another

by Jim Stevens

Disputes over a mandatory student activities fee at UVM are likely to continue until August after a resolution concerning the matter was tabled at Saturday's meeting of the Board of Trustees.

The conflict began in June of 1970 when a group of students objected to certain expenditures of Student Association funds which they claimed were used for purposes not representative of a large enough segment of the student body. The students, several of whom are married and/or veterans challenged, among other things, a series of "biased" statements in the Cynic during last June's strike, various campus speakers, and the activities of SA president John Phillips who, while on a trip at Association expense, supposedly signed a statement requesting the impeachment of President Nixon.

The Cynic spoke to acting Dean of Students Richard

Powers who stated that the legality of the mandatory nature of the fee is under fire. Formal action began at the December meeting of the Board of Trustees when former member John Beckley proposed that a student poll be administered on the subject. He formulated a questionnaire and a Student Activities subcommittee comprising Powers, Phillips, and student Stetson Blake was appointed under the chairmanship of Trustee Howard A. Jr. to examine its wording and potential effectiveness. The subcommittee returned to the Board in February to review the questionnaire with the Student Activities committee. Final decisions were made and the poll was circulated during the pre-enrollment period for the fall semester. Meanwhile, a suit was filed at St. Albans court requesting a declaratory judgment on the legality of a mandatory fee. Papers were served March 12 on Leon Latham, secretary-clerk of the Board of Trustees. Court action is still pending.

Powers expressed concern with the poll returns in which 1,784 students voted, only 44.55% of those who registered. Apathy toward the issue might be taken several ways, he said, but gave no specific explanation. Of the total, 462 voted to maintain the present fee collection practice. 636 students voted to have funds employed in a manner similar to that of the United Fund, 275 desired automatic membership in the Student Association but a voluntary activities fee, and 460 favored elimination of the fee and voluntary membership in SA. An additional 41 ballots contained alternative suggestions. The subcommittee feels that results of the poll are inconclusive and recommended a resolution be made at the May 1 meeting of the Board. Committee member Blake, one of those who has filed suit on the matter, has expressed dissatisfaction with the resolution although he does not disagree with its substance. In essence, the resolution asks that the Board reaffirm its support of the mandatory Student Activities fee under the following stipulations for expenditures:

1. Funds shall be expended for purposes which are educational, cultural, recreational, or social in nature.

2. Funds shall be expended to support activities which are in conformity with appropriate federal, state, and local law.

3. Funds shall be expended only if the allocation of these funds conforms to the democratic processes established by the Student Association organization.

4. All Student Association accounts shall be audited

(continued on page two)

Debate Club Ends Year With Awards, Banquet

The Lawrence Debate and Discussion Club wrapped up another year of activity Sunday with its annual awards banquet held at the Shelburne Inn. Before the group of debaters, discussants, coaches, alumni and administrative officials, participants were honored for their activities during the year.

Awards

In discussion, Elizabeth Fletcher and George Phillips received $100 each from the Elizabeth Luman award. The Jackson Someborn award for the outstanding freshman debater went to Larry Weston.

The Edward Page Butler Awards for outstanding female debaters constituted a cash prize of $25 for Annita Leggett who was declared the third best female debater. Lydia Harvey received the second best award and $35. The most outstanding female debater was Ellen Hoffman who received $45 for the first place position.

There were five recipients of the Robert Ashton Lawrence awards for outstanding debating. Doug Eldred and Annita Leggett tied for fourth place and received $150 each. Lydia Harvey was declared the third best debater of the year and was awarded a $250 prize. The $325 second place award went to Ellen Hoffman, with Rick Raum winning the $425 award as the most outstanding

(continued on page five)

Vermont's Abortion Laws Are Contested

by Ralph Robbins

Within a few weeks, Patrick Leahy, the State's Attorney, must answer a complaint filed by the Zero Population Group against State's Attorney and the Attorney General of the State of Vermont, James K. Jeffords, which seeks to enjoin either of these two from prosecuting any doctors in Chittenden County Center from counseling on or performing abortions. The Attorney General has 44 days from the day of the complaint (April 15, 1971) to file his answer.

The suit is a test case of Vermont's abortion laws and will probably resolve in a declaration by the Vermont State Supreme Court as to whether or not the state's abortion laws are constitutional or not. Leahy stated there have been no prosecutions in this county by the last four state's attorneys in this area.

It has been upheld in the state's supreme court that the "layman" cannot perform abortions, but it has not clearly been defined whether a doctor is permitted to perform abortions. This question that has been left open has bothered many doctors as well as prosecutors. According to Leahy, "This case will solve the question once and for all."

Leahy explained that a complaint was needed before the State's Attorney could prosecute such a case. He said that he was not aware of any illegal abortions that have been performed in Chittenden County.

The CYNIC's Guilt

Many questions will have to be answered concerning various sections of the Vermont statute such as Section 104 in which it states: "A person who knowingly causes to be made public by print, writing, words or language that give any information where anything, or any advice or information, may be obtained for the purpose of causing or procuring the miscarriage of a pregnant woman, shall be imprisoned in the state prison, not more than ten years nor less than three years." Leahy stated that it is not clear whether this applies to a person who is advising for a legal abortion.

Leahy then offered an example: "If the Vermont Cynic prints the name and address of a place where abortions are legal, is this against the law?" This question has not been answered because there has not been a complaint made. Leahy said that if he had nothing better to do, he could write up a declaratory judgement answering this question, "but I know exactly what the court will do." Historically, these type of declaratory judgements are almost never brought by the prosecutor.

Planned Parenthood's Reaction

Laural Whitel, a volunteer working for planned parenthood and a director of information and education for the State Planned Parenthood of Vermont, stated that they "have given girls the number they could call for a safe abortion in New York at a reasonable price. We do not advise people about abortions; they make their own arrangements."

Planned Parenthood interprets the Vermont statute to mean "that you can give somebody information about another facility where it is legal in that state."

When asked how she would change the abortion law, Whitel answered, "I would wipe it off the books completely."

When asked what she felt would be the maximum "safe" period in which an abortion should be performed, she replied "that psychologically, 20 weeks is probably a good cutoff point, but I would leave it completely up to the doctor."

State's Attorney for Chittenden County, Patrick Leahy.

Dr. Richard Amidon, Director of the University Health Services. Dr. Amidon, when asked what he felt about the Abortion Reform Bill that was pending in the Vermont Legislature, replied, "I have no objections to this. I would just like to have the thing clear-cut and to have a definite decision made. Actually I think we'd all be in agreement that we would like to have our sex education course and all the available resources along this line available to young people in order to avoid the necessity of abortion. But I certainly hope that they get this law (which is still in Committee in the Vermont Legislature and obviously will not be voted on this year) through the Legislature and get a decision on this quickly."

Dr. Amidon said the University has received immunity from legal action

(continued on page six)

Seniors!
Meeting about graduation
Caps & gowns?
4:00 p.m. North Lounge Today Billings Center

Calendar / Announcements

New Student Officers To Lane Committee

Newly elected student officers of the Lane Committee are: Chairman Leon Lawrence, '72 of Burlington; House Manager, Justin Davis, '72, of Ludlow; Treasurer Alan C. Hughes, '73 of West Strydom, Conn.; Secretary Ann Margaret Gurd, '73 of Burlington; Publicity Director Bruce G. Dutcher, '73 of West Redding, Conn. and Production Manager William F. Thorne, '73 of Vergennes, Vt. Other members are Assistant Treasurers Philip N. Crump, '74 of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Kenneth J. Aiken, '74, of Bellows Falls, Vt.; Assistant House Managers Margaret A. Mahoney, '72, of Burlington.

DON'T LUG IT HOME!

Winter Clothing Blankets
Drapes Spreads, etc., etc.

Let us
DRY CLEAN & STORE
it all?

$10 or more.
STORAGE is FREE,
until Fall.

EMPIRE
Launderers & Cleaners
247 No. Williston Ave.
Phone 4-6801

Continuing faculty and staff members are Professor Edward J. Fedner, Associate Professor of Speech and Drama, Dr. Frank W. Lidal, Chairman, Department of Music, Mr. Lawrence E. Van Benthuysen, Director of Public Relations, Mr. Charles L. Wolf, Comptroller, and Dr. Jack Trevischio, Director of the Lane Series.

Women's Gymnastics

UVM Women's Gymnastics Team won the State College Gymnastic title this past Saturday. The young team coached by Miss Holly Carroll is in its second year of competition. Team members are Judy Blanchard, Ann Dietz, Cecelia Elwert, Ann Geller and Patti Wagner.

Results
Floor Exercises 1st and 3rd
Vaulting Two team members tied for 2nd.
Balance Beam 1st and 4th
Parallel Bars 1st and a tie for 2nd, 4th.
Total score UVM 48.2, Lydon State 42.0.
Participating Colleges: UVM, Lydon State, Green Mountain and Vermont College.

STUDENT HOLIDAYS JET TO EUROPE & ISRAEL

Inexpensive flights throughout the year.
Lowest fares, choice of 1 way or round trip.
40 EAST 54th STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10022
212-632-6844

THE ROBERT HULL FLEMING MUSEUM PRESENTS

THE 9th ANN ARBOR FILM FESTIVAL

FRIDAY, MAY 7th	SATURDAY, MAY 8th
2-4 p.m. 7-9 p.m. 10-12 p.m.	7-9 p.m. 10-12 p.m.
SUNDAY, MAY 9th
1-3 p.m. 6-8 p.m. 9-11 p.m.

PRIZE WINNERS!!! PRIZE WINNERS

IN VOTEY AUDITORIUM
MUSEUM MEMBERS FREE
OTHER FRIENDS
$75 per showing
$4.00 Festival Pass

Mythology Speaker

The John Dewey Philosophy Club will present guest speaker, Joseph Campbell this Thursday, May 6th at 8:00 p.m. in the lower Waterman Lounge. Mr. Campbell, a well known lecturer, is considered one of the leading authorities in comparative mythology today. His major work The Masks of God, considering the new science of comparative world mythology, comprises four volumes:

- 1.) Primitive Mythology.
- 2.) Oriental Mythology.
- 3.) Occidental Mythology, and
- 4.) Creative Mythology.

His other works include: The Hero With a Thousand Faces, A Skeleton Key to Finnegans Wake, and Papers from the Eranos Yearbooks. His latest book is The Flight of the Wild Gander.

His topic this Thursday will be "Visionary Voyage," and is expected to relate aspects of mythological themes with psychological experience.

S.A. Meeting

(continued from page one)

annually by an independent public accountant.

In addition, it is requested that SA officers make a formal presentation of past and future plans for Association funds to the Student Activities Committee of the Board.

Although the resolution was presented at the meeting, it was decided that no final action should be taken until the declaratory judgment is handed down from St. Albans, hopefully before the August meeting.

Free Horror Films

Sat. May 8, 1971
Patrick Cinema 8:00 p.m.
Presenting FRANKENSTEIN, THE BIRDS, THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA
and 3 more of The Greatest "Shoekers" ever made.
Continuing into the "wee" hours of the morning. Caution: If you have a weak heart, these films may be hazardous to your health.
An S.A. Production

Thurs. May 6
Panel discussion, "Ethical, Social and Economic Issues in Dialysis and Transplantation," sponsored by Division of Nephrology. Moderator Dr. Carl F. Runge. Panelists: Dr. Belding H. Scribner, University of Washington School of Medicine, and Drs. F. Patrick McKegney, Charles S. Houston, and Roger S. Foster, all of UVM College of Medicine. 3 p.m., Carpenter Auditorium, Given Medical Building.

John Dewey Philosophy Club presents Joseph Campbell, author of "Hero with a Thousand Faces," 8 p.m., Lower Lounge, Waterman Building. His topic: "The Visionary Voyage."

Fri., May 7
Psychology Colloquium, Dr. Richard Held, M.I.T., "Behavioral-neural correlates in sensory-motor learning," 3 p.m., 314 John Dewey Hall.

Lane Film Society Series presents "The Horse's Mouth," 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, each preceded by a newsreel, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Fleming Museum presents Ann Arbor Film Festival, shows 2-4, 7-9, and 10-12 p.m., 101 Votey Building; 75¢ per show or $4 for a pass to all shows (3 days).

Varsity Golf, May 7-8, New England at Sutton, Mass.

Varsity Tennis, May 7-8, Yankee Conference at University of Maine.

"Friday at Four," open house, 4 p.m., Arena Theatre.

Sat., May 8
Spring Semester classes end.

Varsity Track, UVM Relays, 12 noon, Post Field.

Ann Arbor Film Festival, shows 7-9 and 10-12 p.m., 101 Votey Building. Details under May 7.

Sun., May 9
Ann Arbor Film Festival, shows 1-3, and (prize winners) 6-8 and 9-11 p.m., 101 Votey Building; details under May 7.

Wed., May 12
Examinations begin.

Thurs. May 13
Lectures, Dr. Daniel Banes, Food and Drug Administration, 4 p.m., "The Chemistry of Oral Contraceptive Drugs," and 8 p.m., "Chemical Consideration of Nostrums, Quack Remedies and Related Frauds," both in Carpenter Auditorium, Given Medical Building; presented by Western Vt. Section, American Chemical Society.

Psychology Colloquium, Dr. Elliot S. Valenstein, University of Michigan, "Aspects of hypothalamic systems," 3 p.m., 314 John Dewey Hall.

Fri., May 14
Lane Film Society Series presents final "neglected masterpiece," "Shame," 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. showings, each preceded by newsreel, Benedict Auditorium, Marsh Life Sciences Building.

Folk Dancers final get-together, 8 p.m., Southwick Ballroom.

Sat., May 15
Varsity Track, Yankee Conference at University of Massachusetts.

DEADLINE for the FINAL CALENDAR of academic 1970-71, which will cover events from MAY 17-AUGUST 31, 1971, will be WEDNESDAY, MAY 5 at 10 a.m. Please send any appropriate material to Mrs. Cindy Kent, Public Relations Office, Alumni House. Thank you.

ALSO OF INTEREST: May 12: Showing of CBS Documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon," 12 noon, Carpenter Aud., Given Medical Bldg. Sponsored by ACLU and Unitarian Church. May 12-22: Second Chittenden County UNICEF Art and Crafts Show and Sale at Shelburne Crafts School, Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sat. 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sundays 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Pottery Exhibition

There will be a pottery exhibition on Friday, May 14 at Sundance-on-Winooski Avenue from 7 to 10 p.m. Pottery by Mr. Patrick Kennedy will be featured. There is no admission charge, and refreshments will be served.

UVM Datebook

PanHel is planning to publish a UVM Datebook for the 1971-72 academic year. Any group of organization with dates they wish included, should leave those dates with Michele Keenick, c/o Alpha Delta Pi (ADPi) mailbox, Billings Center. The deadline for all dates is July 1.

Counseling And Test Center Open

All students are invited to use the spacious Counseling and Testing Center at 146 South Williams Street. The building, often called the Jacobs House was formerly the Newman Center and Psychology lab. Students and staff are encouraged to study at the Counseling Center or meet their friends there. Just walk in; building is intended for informal use.

Carla Steinberg, a graduate student, has loaned the house over seven hundred books covering a multitude of interests. University community is invited to browse through and use them in the building any time. The house is open from 8:30 to 5:00 p.m. on Monday through Friday and occasionally at other times for group sessions. At present the furniture is sparse but orange carpets make good sitting. The staff counselors and psychologists (Richard Does, Janet Forgays, Nancy Magnus, Kay Francis Schmucker) are still settling in but will be present to see students through May.

indications
MAGAZINE

GET YOUR FREE COPY WERE YOU PICK UP YOUR CAMPUS NEWSPAPER.

Our Drive-in Windows
Make Banking
Easy at....

Chittenden
TRUST COMPANY
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.

106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644
BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING
(All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING
(Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

Your mother loves you, no matter what.

Send her a BigHug bouquet, and send it before Sunday. Make Mother's Day last a little longer. Call or stop in right now. We'll take it from there. Delivered almost anywhere in the country. A special gift. At a special price. For a special mother. Yours. $00.00

Send her the
FTD BigHug bouquet early.

Chappells Florist Inc.
Grove The Florist
Laberge Flower Shop Inc.
Boothman's Flowers

1437 Williston Rd., So. Burlington Vt. 05401
184 Main St., Burlington Vt. 05401
163 Cherry St., Burlington Vt. 05401
28 Church St., Burlington Vt. 05401

Summerize come to uri

Flexible Scheduling

- First 6-week session begins June 14
- First 5-week session begins June 21
- Morning and evening classes — afternoons free

Guaranteed Courses

- Over 200 in each session
- Small, intimate classes
- Reasonable Rates

Relaxed, Informal Atmosphere

- 5 minutes to ocean beaches
- 30 minutes to Newport Music Festivals
- 2 hours to the Cape

For Catalog & Registration forms, write:
Summer Session
University of Rhode Island
Kingston, Rhode Island 02881

uri

'Problems Of The

Symposium on related medical topics will be held May 7 and 8 at the University of Vermont College of Medicine.

"Problems of the Unborn" will be the topic of the fifth annual Karl Jefferson Thomson, M.D., Symposium May 7 and 8 in Carpenter Auditorium of the Given Medical Building. Dr. Thomson won many friends during his two years as a professor of experimental medicine at the University, and following his death Dec. 17, 1965, they established a fund to finance this annual symposium.

Dr. H. Lawrence McCrory, associate professor of physiology and biophysics at the College of Medicine, will receive the Thomson award for excellence in teaching and will address those attending the symposium dinner to be held May 7 at the Marble Island Resort.

The symposium will open that afternoon and continue through the following morning.

Speakers will include Dr. Harry Bard, assistant professor of pediatrics, University of Montreal; Dr. Ronald A. Chaz, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, Pittsburgh associated members.

Dr. Karl of obstetrics, Columbia and Surg Mead, U. Albany, College of July 1.

Also Dr. John V. Herbert, College of

The physician topic, Dr. Rosamund head nursery, Hospital members, Medicine M. Levy, R. W. Pa

Speakers will include Dr. Harry Bard, assistant professor of pediatrics, University of Montreal; Dr. Ronald A. Chaz, professor of obstetrics and

CYNIC

LANDSCAP

Runners-up

'Problems Of The Unborn'

Symposium on related medical topics will be held May 7 and 8 at the University of Vermont College of Medicine.

"Problems of the Unborn" will be the topic of the fifth annual Karl Jefferson Thomson, M.D., Symposium May 7 and 8 in Carpenter Auditorium of the Given Medical Building. Dr. Thomson won many friends during his two years as a professor of experimental medicine at the University, and following his death Dec. 17, 1965, they established a fund to finance this annual symposium.

Dr. H. Lawrence McCrory, associate professor of physiology and biophysics at the College of Medicine, will receive the Thomson award for excellence in teaching and will address those attending the symposium dinner to be held May 7 at the Marble Island Resort.

The symposium will open that afternoon and continue through the following morning.

Speakers will include Dr. Harry Bard, assistant professor of obstetrics, University of Montreal; Dr. Ronald A. Cher, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. William A. Call, associate professor of anesthesiology, Case Western Reserve School of Medicine; Dr. Karl Adamson, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons; and Dr. Philip B. Mead, U.S. Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N.Y., who will join the College of Medicine faculty on July 1.

Also Dr. John D. Lewis, Dr. John Van S. Mack and Dr. Herbert A. Durlow Jr., all of the College of Medicine.

The second symposium, for physicians and nurses, is on the topic, "The Newborn in Distress," and will be open May 7 at 9 with registration in Given Medical Building.

Speakers will include Dr. Alexander G. M. Campbell, associate professor of pediatrics, Yale School of Medicine; Rosamund Anderson, R.N., head nurse in the intensive care nursery, Medical Center Hospital of Vermont, and three members of the UVM College of Medicine faculty, Drs. Arthur M. Levy, Jerold F. Lucy and R. W. Paul Mellish.

'71-'72' Financial Aid

FROM: Dale Hyman, Director of Financial Aid

The Financial Aid Office wishes to remind all students who will be, or might be returning to UVM for the 1971-72 academic year that filing an application is necessary in order to be considered for financial aid for next year. Even students currently receiving assistance from that Office are required to reapply if they wish to be considered once again. Other students not currently receiving assistance are urged to apply if they may have clearly definitive need for financial assistance.

The Financial Aid Office is responsible for almost all institutional and Federal assistance for undergraduates and Health Professions Students. For graduate students the Office administers only some long-term loans. A recent addition to aid available is a Federal program for assistance to students interested in certain careers in Law Enforcement or Corrections. Although financial need is a criterion for most other programs, for this one it is not necessarily important, but "serious intent" toward an appropriate career in Law Enforcement of Corrections, including juvenile delinquency work, is the main criterion. Interested students are urged to inquire at either the Financial Aid Office or the Department of Sociology and Anthropology. The same program also provides for grants to eligible employees of agencies involved with certain phases of law enforcement.

All necessary forms for any of the above are available at the Financial Aid Office, 316 Waterman, during the normal office hours. (Medical students will be notified when their forms are ready, and they will be able to then pick them up at the Medical School.)

Although the Financial Aid Office does not believe in punitive deadlines for aid application, available assistance is limited and students are urged to submit completed application materials before June 1, 1971 in order to receive timely consideration. Applications received after that date will be considered in order of their receipt in the Office of Financial Aid, subject to the availability of funds. It is hoped that notification of application results will be made by the middle of the summer.

Students are also informed that professional personnel are available for personal consultation, usually without appointment.

(continued from page one)

infectious birth in Vietnam. Numerous human birth defects were reported when "agent orange" was widely used in Vietnam at thirteen times the recommended strength for use in the U.S.

In calling for a cessation to the war, the letter also condemns the American "Vietnamization" program.

Trustee's Meeting

(continued from page one)

Vermont high school is replaced with Certificates of Scholarship Honor. It was noted that the scholarships were inaugurated twenty years ago, that they have shrunk relatively in value as college costs have gone up, and that many high schools had noted that the students who needed financial assistance last often won the scholarships.

Honorary Degrees The University of Vermont will confer honorary degrees on a former President, a conservationist, a well-known song writer and playwright, and on U.S. Senator Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., who will be Vermont's commencement speaker May 23.

The Trustees approved the honor for Senator Ribicoff and for President Emeritus Lyman S. Rowell, conservationist Richard M. Brett of Woodstock and Justice E. V. "Vic" Hastings of New York.

Peace Treaty

"It is time for this barbarous activity to stop. We, the American people, must demand that the United States immediately discontinue its war operations in Southeast Asia. 'Vietnamization' is not the answer. Its main concern is with saving American lives without changing the objectives of the war. Because it substitutes more sophisticated technology and greater fire power for American personnel, there is a good possibility that it will result in even more intensive destruction in Southeast Asia."

Editor's Note: The Joint Treaty Of Peace Between The People Of The United States And The People Of South Vietnam And North Vietnam is printed in this week's Cynic. We urge all members of the University community to give it their hearty endorsement.

Gifts to Mom @ @ @ @ Shop

VERMONT'S LARGEST CARD SHOP

Don't Forget

MOTHER'S DAY
MAY 9th

with your Selection of the finest from one who cares.

BURLINGTON SHOPPING PLAZA
BURLINGTON ROAD
Located in the courtyard
Just next to Cinema 1 & 2

Interested in starting your own business this summer with a new, nationally-known product? Write R.A.N. Distributing Company, Suite 14, 4821 Sahler St., Omaha, Nebraska 68104 or call Area Code 402-455-3395 (no collect calls).

rah

CYNIC PhotographyContest Results*LANDSCAPES

Winner Kevin Osborn

Runners-up

Charles Cillen

Ron Rondeau

FACES

Winner Steve Buerkle

Reaching For The Sun

Runners-up

John Miller

Bob Baird

Kevin Osborn

UVM Datebook

Panflel is planning to publish a UVM Datebook for the 1971-72 academic year. Any group of organization with dates they wish included, should leave those dates with Michele Resnick, c/o Alpha Delta Pi (AΔΠ) mailbox, Billings Center. The deadline for all dates is July 1.

Counseling And Test Center Open

All students are invited to use the spacious Counseling and Testing Center at 146 South Williams Street. The building, often called the Jacobs House, was formerly the Newman Center and Psychology lab. Students and staff are encouraged to study at the Counseling Center or meet their friends there. Just walk in; building is intended for informal use.

Carla Steinberg, a graduate student, has loaned the house over seven hundred books covering a multitude of interests. University community is invited to browse through and use them in the building any time. The house is open from 8:30 to 5:00 p.m. on Monday through Friday and occasionally at other times for group sessions.

At present the furniture is sparse but orange carpets make good sitting. The staff counselors and psychologists (Richard Does, Janet Forgays, Nancy Magnus, Kay Franco Schmucker) are still settling in but will be present to see students through May.

UNIVERSITY
OFFICE
WILLISTON
ROAD

EDITORIAL

The Optimistic Future

Traditionally it is this last editorial that sums up the events of the past school year, and assesses whether or not the school year could be labeled a "success." I prefer to look at the future, for the outlook appears to be very optimistic.

For those of us who will be returning to UVM, there will be no loud political rhetoric, as there was this past fall. As a matter of fact, Senator Prouty will probably not be seen or heard from until it is time for his re-election, and he makes another trip to Vermont.

The students will also be lured from the distractions of construction workers. We should be extremely grateful to the Vermont State Legislature, who, by not passing UVM's construction bond, has made it possible for a student to view the grandeur of various antiquated buildings on UVM's campus in the placid atmosphere of "Beautiful Lake Champlain."

Barring any court action, the Student Association will once again be in the financial position to spark some life into this campus and attempt to diminish the apathy. Big deal. Who cares anyway.

Perhaps the most encouraging thought concerns the possibility of another tuition increase at this time next year. Just think, we no longer have to worry about the in-state tuition rising to $950 or the out-of-state tuition rising to $2400, a thought which has worried most of us the entire year.

There are still many questions about next year that remain unanswered. What will the housing situation be? How exactly will the "18 year-old majority" affect the student in such areas as "gynecological counseling" without parental consent, and how will this bill affect out-of-state students who wish to claim in-state residency? The Cynic will try to resolve these and other unanswered questions during the summer months.

R.R.

Editorial Changes

There will be a few changes on the Cynic Editorial Board this summer. Both Sarah Schuyler, Assistant Editor, and Charlie French, News Editor, have been accepted in overseas programs for the next school year. Jeff Yacker, Feature Editor, will replace Sarah as Assistant Editor. Arlene Erickson, Assistant News Editor, will replace Charlie. We are now accepting applications for the position of Feature Editor which has not been filled. Bruce Wagoner will replace Gary Gabas, who will graduate in May, as Advertising Manager. Congratulations are due to all those involved.

R.R.

Next Issue

Every returning student should receive the next issue of the Cynic through the mail during August. If anyone would like to submit a paper, poetry, an article, or an announcement that will be of interest to the students, place it in the Cynic mailbox in Billings no later than May 24.

the small society

by Brickman

B-J BRICKMAN

VERMONT CYNIC Number 13

RALPH ROBBINS
Editor-in-Chief
SARAH SCHUYLER
Assistant Editor
JILL DAVIDSON
Managing Editor
CHARLIE FRENCH
News Editor
JEFF YACKER
Feature Editor
KIM WHITTAKER
Sports Editor
TERRY DEMAS
Business Manager
GARY GABAS
Advertising Manager
BRUCE WAGONER
Art Director
GENE PERONI
Photography Editor
BARRY WILSON
Circulation Manager
GARY H. BARNES
WALLY JOHNSON
Student Advisors

Sports Staff: Bonnie Bradley, Mark Tait, John Stowell, Mike Rosenberg, Dave Clark, Gerry Glassey, Tim Bickford, Sandy Magid, Mike Brown, Bill Bode, Robert Frowenfeld, Dave Kopack.

News Staff: Arlene Erickson, Sue Solomon, Louise Stanton, Gene Peroni, Kip Arnold, Mike Fink, Alice Carter, Jill Steven, Cedric Sanborn, K. Dueter Bray.

Feature Staff: Maureen Smith, Brooks McCabe, James Abrams, Doug Collette, Gary Naeson, Bruce Alger, Laurel Ostroff, Mike Denmore, Jim Wiley.

Production Staff: Nancy Ciuchini, Judy Parker, Linda Del Hagen.

Advertising Staff: Steve Kae.

Photography: Greg Poitoven, Student Photo Service.

mail and State Agricultural College, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone 650-4911. Deadline for articles is one week prior to date of publication.

Published in 1968. Subscription rate $10.00 per year, plus copy fee. Second Class Postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

A Veteran's Viewpoint:
Vietnam Is A Different Type Of War

by Kim Proven

I was in Washington last week, April 19-23 for the demonstration held by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, of which I am Vermont coordinator. I feel we accomplished a lot despite attempts to discredit us, to have us ignored. Some people were against us because the majority had long hair. This is a form of rebellion against a society that sent us to fight in a war we no longer believe in. I, like most of the veterans, was a short-haired conservative when I went to Vietnam, believing in the war.

Another point to discredit us was an obscure hint about our war records. Medals are not given in reward for a bad record, and if anyone doubts, even after the number of medals we turned in on the steps of the Capitol, by all means let our war records be examined.

There was also a question raised in regards to our numbers. President Nixon stated that only 30% of us were Vietnam veterans. We were prepared for that, and turned in proof which showed that 90% of us were veterans. It was then said we represented a small minority of veterans. The government has the names of several million veterans of Vietnam. Let them turn over that list for an independent poll. It will show we represent the majority, not the minority. As a group we feel we were used by the government, and shy away from any type of organization. There is a record loss of Vietnam veterans joining the American Legion and VFW will support this. We are starting to speak, however. At the beginning of February, there were 3,500 members of VVAW. They started advertising and when we went to Washington, the number was around 15,000 with over 1,000 of those still in Vietnam. They don't know the membership now, but it has increased considerably since our march on Washington.

Finally there was the question of our honesty. Anyone who doubts that can get the Congressional Record from their Congressman for April 6 and 7, and April 21-23, 26-27 or 28. We have testified to the innumerable war crimes and the feelings of the Vietnamese. I testified for Senator Kennedy's Subcommittee on Refugees on April 22 and was going to testify for Senator McGovern's Foreign Relations Committee the next day, but with the number of veterans to testify we ran out of time. I did submit a written testimony. Anyone that still doubts our honesty can bring charges for perjury ourselves before Senate committees.

What we are asking is that people listen to what we have to say and not close their minds to us. Patriotism is not blindly following the government; patriotism is doing what one feels is the best for the country. I would have been proud to fight in World War II, but I am not proud I fought in Vietnam. This is a different type of war. As Senator McGovern said to us Friday, he has been in combat but not in a war like this with the savage and senseless destruction.

As veterans we would prefer to forget this war we once believed in. We cannot because we feel an obligation to ourselves, our country, and humanity. Speaking personally, talking about the war brings back memories I would rather forget, but I must talk about them to try to help bring an end to the war.

The Unconstitutional And Anachronistic Vermont Abortion Law

by Dan Hoberman

The abortion dilemma today is immense. "Public health experts have long been concerned about the fact that about one million illegal abortions are performed in the United States annually, many of them by jack-leg incompetents. Such operations take an estimated 500 to 1,000 lives each year, making them a major cause of maternal mortality in the nation. In addition, they maim an unknown number of women." (Newsweek, April 13, 1970, p. 547. To add to the problem, many of the present abortion laws especially the Vermont law are unconstitutional and anachronistic.

The Vermont abortion law states that "anyone who wilfully administers, advises or causes to be administered anything to a woman pregnant... or employs... any means with intent to procure the miscarriage of such woman, or assists or counsels therein, unless the same is necessary to preserve her life, if the woman dies in consequence thereof, shall be imprisoned... not more than twenty years nor less than five years. If the woman does not die... such person shall be imprisoned... not more than ten years nor less than three years. However, the woman whose miscarriage is caused or attempted shall not be treated as a person prescribed to this section." The woman is not even necessary for a conviction just an attempt is enough to put the doctor in jail.

Vermont's Anachronistic Law

Why is the law anachronistic? The first abortion law in Vermont was passed over 100 years ago. At this time there was a health need for the law. This statute was an attempt by the state to protect the mother from the dangerous surgery procedures of the day. Dr. Edward M. Gold, Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the N.Y. Medical College at the National Public Health Association in 1961 said that in the late 1800's there was 15 times more chance of the mother dying during an abortion than during normal birth. The first abortion law was passed in Connecticut in 1821. In 1841 Alabama enacted what had by that time become a standard statute, forbidding attempts to cause miscarriage by any means unless "necessary to preserve the life of the mother." (59 J.C.L. 84, 86). Yet thanks to modern medical science, nearly all illnesses caused during pregnancy can be cured, and thus it seems that very few abortions can be legally performed under the present laws. Clearly then, this law, which may have been valid 150 years ago, is an anachronism today.

Constitutionality of the Law

Why is the law unconstitutional? My main contention is that the doctor is forced to choose whether or not the abortion is necessary to preserve the life of the mother. "A statute which either forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application, violates the first essential of due process of law." (Lanzetta v. N.J. (1939) 306 U.S. 451, 453). "This requirement of clarity is greater when constitutional rights are in question." (Smith v. California (1959) 361 U.S. 147, 151). One must also keep in mind that doctors are not men of common intelligence, but usually have a much higher intellect than the average person.

The phrase "necessary for the preservation of the (mother's) life" is an unconstitutionally vague phrase denying the doctor due process under the 14th Amendment. U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, in ruling on a similar statute in U.S. v. Vitich (1969) said that "professional judgment made in good faith should not be challenged." The phrase under discussion fails to give that certainty which due process of law considers essential in a criminal statute. Its many ambiguities are particularly subject to criticism for the statute unquestionably impinges to an appreciable extent on significant constitutional rights of individuals.

"Present abortion statutes offer little guidance to physicians. Most states offer no statutory guidelines to educate what constitutes a threat to the pregnant woman's life, and the distinction between a danger to health and probable danger to life is a nebulous one." (Roy Lucas, North Carolina Law Review, Vol. 46, p. 748). The quotations could go on endlessly. The doctor just has too many choices. Words such as "preserve," "life," and "life" have tens of meanings. The statute clearly violates the 14th Amendment which states that "no state shall make or enforce any laws which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law."

Unreasonable Law

In addition to being unconstitutional, a law may be unreasonable and thus also deprive the doctor of his due process. It is apparent that the law has no useful function today. As the common law maxim states, "resane ratione legis cessat ex ipsa lex—once the reason for a law has ceased to exist, the law has ceased to exist." (New York Times Magazine, January 25, 1970, p. 88). This principal has repeatedly been given formal legal standing, most notably in Harper v. Virginia Board of Elections, 383 U.S. 663, 669. "A statute valid when enacted may become invalid by change in the conditions to which it is applied." In 1900 any operational procedures was dangerous, today, with medical science's new antiseptic methods this is not so.

HEARD ABOUT THE BIG CAMPUS BUDGET CUT FIGBY?

Vermont Law

Few abortions under the Vermont law can legally be performed, yet there are in the U.S., one abortion for every four or five pregnancies, more than one million a year. A reasonable law should require open public opinion, yet 71% of the populace favors legalized abortion if the health of the mother is in danger, 50% in the case of rape, and 55% in the case of a defective child. Today 4 of 10 people believe abortion should be a private matter between the physician and the woman. (National Opinion Research Center).

I do not contend that because a law is bad it should be broken; however, the population explosion is just one more point that must be considered in the reasonableness argument. It appears to many scientists that we will populate ourselves off the face of the earth within fifty years, yet unreasonable laws such as the Vermont law add to the earth's population (there is a marked decline in birth rates in those countries with abortion on demand). It is time for a change, and the time is now. Hopefully laws like these will be declared unconstitutional since they deprive the doctor of due process as provided by the 14th Amendment. What is left for the individual to do. Groups such as Z.P.G. and the like are a start in the right direction. And yet, the real hope lies with the legislators that we have elected. Led by Colorado in 1967 "ten states have moderately liberalized their century-old abortion laws." In Hawaii and Maryland all penalties for abortion have been abolished provided that abortions "are performed by licensed physicians in approved hospitals." New York has passed a similar bill the restriction being that after 24 weeks an abortion may be performed only to save the mother's life. ("Abortion Reform, Cont'd," Time, April 20, 1970, p. 46).

In Vermont, the present bill on abortion reform got out of the House Judiciary Committee. It has taken a court case for the people of Vermont to face this realistic problem. The only challenge to the Vermont abortion law which reached the Vermont Supreme Court, that of Joseph Bartlett, was decided last June against him. Today he is serving his sentence in Windsor.

It appears that the final solution to rid the nation of all the unconstitutional and archaic abortion laws, must be a Federal Law such as Senator Robert W. Packwood of Oregon introduced last April 21st into the Senate. "Prohibiting the states from denying an abortion to any woman who wants one." Only then will the Doctors have the freedom of choice which are constitutionally due to them.

Reconsider Infirmary Services

To the Editor:
A few thoughts on the infirmary:

- 1) No doctor can cure the common cold or the 48-hour virus yet. Be glad when the Infirmary M.D. hands you the packets of "pills that do nothing." They're free contact or corticoid run about $2.00 and they "don't help" equally well.
- 2) If you feel the attention you were given was inadequate go back the doctor won't know you're still ill if you only complain to your roommate.

- 3) Yes, there is an annoying wait, many doctor's don't run by appointments and those that do invariably make you wait anyway.

- 4) The fees $40.00 for all the visits your heart desires. A private physician charges $8.00 $10.00 per visit, for $40 would get four or five.

- 5) And no doctor can give out prescription medicine free. The days of samples are at an end. The major drug companies don't give them out so the physicians don't either.

- 6) Additional services are certainly worth four dollars. We are bitched enough for ob-gyn related services, four dollars is cheap for the extra care.

The infirmary is there if you need it. If you don't have $40.00 worth of visits, be happy, for you must be healthy.

Sheila K. Mullen '73

Feels Necessity To Object To Ingraham

To the Editor:

I don't quite know how to object to David L. Ingraham's vehement attack against "The Country Living Trip" but I sincerely feel the necessity to object. First of all, the implications involved with generalizing any "hip rural

David, what is? Do you think that the single person alone can combat the urban evils or whatever evils you see? I think not. And even if Harlam doesn't hear my flute, there is an urban commune called Emman House in Harlam who work to do something to change the conditions (not just verbalize it). People have got to get together in some way and cooperate with each other regardless of geographic situation. We all really need help. We need each other.

Julie Klein '73

Objects To Advertisement

To the Editor:

I have just read my copy of the April 22nd Cynic. As a graduate of UVM in 1943, I have always been intensely interested in, and deeply revere, my Alma Mater. Through recent years of sometimes enlightened, and many times ultra-liberal reporting of the Cynic, I have never criticized the right of freedom of the press. Free expression on all sides of controversial issues, concerning social, moral, educational and political problems is imperative to truly democratic reporting. With this inherent freedom also exists a responsibility to ourselves, our fellow men, and our God, depending on our respective beliefs and non-beliefs. The grim spectre of economic survival has now become obvious to you students who produce the Cynic. Therefore you turn to the market place and assume responsibility for soliciting and printing advertising matter.

In effect, this is a good experience in the development of business acumen together with your responsible reporting. However, in the most recent issue, I find an example of completely irresponsible and objectionable advertising matter. The inclusion of an ad for contraceptives, in my opinion, is an act of the lowest form of repulsive permissiveness. Relating the beauty of human sexuality to the realm of "barnyard love" as epitomized by this type of ad is disgusting. My objection is not to contraception as such, but to the grossly poor taste of accepting this advertising in the Vermont Cynic.

"There's something rotten in Denmark and the UVM Cynic."

Joseph Corbett, Class of '43

CYNIC Editorial Questioned

To the Editor:

In the April 29th issue of the Cynic, there appeared an editorial which attempted to "rectify the error" that occurred when Senator Boardman received unfavorable publicity in previous coverage. Evidently, the Cynic does not believe their past journalistic efforts correctly reflect the Senator's accomplishments.

On the surface, this is acceptable, but some of us might still question the motives behind this editorial.

My question is: Was the complete editorial board of the Cynic in accord with the opinion expressed in this editorial, or was the editorial given impetus by a word to the right individual concerning the direction which the opinion should take? Our newspaper, like any newspaper, is not required to print only objective expressions of issues. However, political plants of favorable publicity are usually done with more finesse than that which we can attribute to J. H. V.

David Buckley

Class of 1972

Editor's Note:
The editorial was entirely of the writer's own volition. It was merely an effort to illustrate the Senator's more constructive work and words for UVM. In view of the past unfavorable publicity, the writer felt it necessary.

The Changing Greek
Reflections On Fo

by Mike Rosenberg

Fraternities should be sustained at the University. They must remain not because of sentimental or inherent social advantages. Those are just rationalizations. Fraternities must survive because of the benefits to many individuals.

And I'm not talking about so-called "Civic" kind programmed to create impressions with those who are just public relations. The impact to which I refer is felt by every member of the Greek system.

For fundamentally, fraternities exist to create the kinds of relationships that are best described as brotherhood. They are not just public relations. But they're not. They grow with the Greek through his increased understanding of civic sacrifice, and loving.

All else is subservient to this. And all else is Greek theme. The system, whether it knows it or not, is a motive.

Why are fraternities at the University deteriorating to a point of apparent drought?

Is it because they are unfashionable? It is not grow close to other human beings.

Is it because they are expensive? The benefit overhadow the costs.

Is it because they are out of touch with Fraternities can be shaped into what the campus important.

Is it because of preconceived notions? Perhaps information, when the opportunity for personal close at hand, is a cop-out.

My experience with the Greek system during my undergraduate years at the University of Wisconsin, under stipulation, I have planted a mulch reaped as many elevating bonds of compromise as any of my own convictions.

This is my ongoing concept of fraternity, because it is a summary of countless experiences. And, verily, now is only the beginning.

Ribicoff To Speak

The University's 1971 Commencement speaker will be U.S. Senator Abraham Ribicoff. Ribicoff is a Democrat and was elected to a second full term in the Senate in leading the national Democratic state by a margin.

He will be the University's second Commencement speaker in recent history, the being U.S. Representative Robert Stafford in 1968.

A former Congressman, Governor, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the Kennedy Administration, Ribicoff has been a powerful figure in state and national politics many years. He was the first nationally-known figure to endorse John Kennedy for President in 1960. He was Convention Floor Manager for Kennedy that year as well as for George McGovern in 1968.

Recently, Ribicoff has garnered notable publicity as Chairman of a Senate Special Investigative Committee which exposed widespread corruption in NCO clubs in the Armed Forces and a million dollar black market in currency manipulation in Vietnam.

A Vietnam war critic of long standing, Ribicoff has been especially attentive to the pleas of young for an end to the War. He also introduced an amendment to a appropriations bill which would implement a two-year, twenty-million dollar desegregation program for schools in both the North and

SILVER JEWELRY
INDIA CLOTHING
AND PRINTS

OPEN 9:30-5:30
MON-SAT

COLLEGIATE CLUB
MEMBER

197 COLLEGE ST.

Rally To Oppose Continued American Involvement

"The last facade has been stripped bare, and we find that we as a nation have been morally perverted. There is no moral, military, strategic, or political logic left, no matter how spurious, for our conduct and support of that of our clients in Southeast Asia."

It is not sufficient alone that American participation in the war in Indo-China end. Nor is it sufficient that we cease our support of client states in Indo-China. Rather, we as individuals and as a nation must recognize the culpability of past and present actions perpetrated in our name. A national consciousness must bear testimony that never again might our honor be washed with the blood of folly.

Daniel Berrigan is a priest and poet, in federal prison for speaking the voice of a national conscience. Might we join our voices in witness with his, and again speak the truth that is greater than any national policy.

It is proposed that on Saturday morning, May 8, at 10:00, there be a public witness of Vermonters at the State House grounds in Montpelier to oppose continued American involvement and support of the war in Indo-China, and indeed, of any "legalized" devastation wherever it may exist.

You are encouraged to bring your family and friends in a spirit of fellowship and communion to bear witness that our complicity in death and destruction must stop forever.

You are also encouraged to take part in the program, a public reading of poems, that assents the abhorrence to war of human dignity.

Poems by Fr. Berrigan, Vietnamese poets, Denise Levertov, Rupert Brooke, Siegfried Sassoon, Wilfred Owen, E. E. Cummings, W. B. Yeats, Dylan Thomas, Robert Lowell, Leonard Cohen, Bob Dylan, Robinson Jeffers, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Walt Whitman, A. E. Housman, Emily Dickinson, Richard Lovelace, Robert Southey, Thomas Hardy, and others will be read.

Readers are needed. There will be no program without them and you are encouraged to take part. You might read any poem that you feel might add to our awareness, either from among the poems mentioned above or any other, including your own. Use the form below to notify us in advance (hopefully so that we might provide printed copies and set up a program) or bring it with you and a time will be provided for your reading or you might not.

You don't have to be experienced in public reading; just have the desire to have someone else share the insight a poem gave you. Good reading, and we hope you will join us, whether you plan to read or just listen, May 8, 10:00 a.m., on our statehouse lawn.

"The attitude of great poets is to cheer up slaves and horrify despots."

—Walt Whitman

"Poets are the unacknowledged legislators of the world."

—Percy B. Shelley

Yes, I want to read and take part May 8 at our state house.

NAME _____

POET _____

Poem _____

Estimated reading length _____

Send to: _____

Clinton J. Vickers

RD No. 2

Northfield, Vermont 05661

Telephone: 445-7429 (night)

Student Leadership Institute Held

During the week of June 13-18, 1971, the Council on International Relations and United Nations Affairs (CIRUNA) will sponsor its National Student Leadership Institute on World Affairs at the College of Mount St. Vincent in Riverdale, New York. Invitations have been extended to more than 10,000 contacts on college campuses and youth organizations throughout the United States.

The Institute is the national congress of CIRUNA, the collegiate affiliate of the United Nations Association and a national student network, dedicated toward constructive change in American foreign policy, and building the basis of critical support for the United Nations and its related activities. The Institute will elect the new officers and set organizational policies for the coming academic year.

During that week, students will undergo a series of experiences to provide them with the tools of change—how to use communications systems that reach Congress, UN people, corporate decision makers, press—fundraising for alternative solutions through

People's Peace Treaty

In November and December, 1970, a delegation of student body presidents of American Universities, organized by the United States National Student Association, exchanged views by mail and in person with representatives of the South Vietnamese National Student Union, the North Vietnamese National Student Union, and the South Vietnamese National Student Union. An American student bill in Vietnam was organized as a result of a mandate of the 1970 National Student Congress. The purpose was to explore the possibility of a peace treaty that would put an end to the war on terms that would satisfy the honor and safeguard the interests of the people of the United States and Vietnam.

Fearing that this democratic initiative would lead to formulation of peace terms that could readily be adopted by the American and Vietnamese people, the Thieu-Ky-Khiem regime denied visas for the American students to enter Saigon. Ironically, some of the students denied visas were veterans of the Vietnam war. An advance representative of the delegation, however, was already in Saigon and was able to meet with official representatives of the South Vietnamese National Student Union. From this meeting came the Joint Declaration: "Peace with the South Vietnamese Students."

Meanwhile the entire delegation of eleven American students traveled to Hanoi and met with official representatives of the North Vietnamese National Student Union and the South Vietnamese National Student Union, whose representatives had traveled to Hanoi for this meeting. This conference produced a Joint Declaration of Peace, signed by representatives of the three groups.

Based on the area of agreement between the Saigon document and the Hanoi document and after discussion with Vietnamese in Paris, a common declaration of peace has been written and agreed to by the three Vietnamese groups and the Americans. This document will be submitted to a wide range of organizations in the United States and Vietnam. Wherever possible it will be submitted for ratification either by referendum or by the vote of the official governing body, in cities, towns, and states and by religious, labor and civic organizations, in the schools and universities, women's groups, professional groups, business groups, the organized poor and any other groups whose integrity or life is threatened by continuation of the war.

It is expected that many groups will draft their own pledges to reflect their special concerns or experiences. In addition, both official and unofficial groups and bodies are encouraged to sponsor the ratification of the methods by which they intend to try to implement or enforce the treaty so that it will become necessary for the US Congress and the Nixon Administration to follow the lead of the people in making it a reality.

JOINT TREATY OF PEACE BETWEEN THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE PEOPLE OF SOUTH VIETNAM AND NORTH VIETNAM

Be it known that the American and Vietnamese people are not enemies. The war is carried out in the names of the people of the United States and South Vietnam but without our consent. It destroys the land and people of Vietnam. It drains America of its resources, its youth and its honor.

We hereby agree to end the war on the following terms, so that both peoples can live under the joy of independence and can devote themselves to building a society based on human equality and respect for the earth.

1. The Americans agree to immediate and total withdrawal from Vietnam and publicly to set the date by which all American forces will be removed.

The Vietnamese pledge that as soon as the U.S. Government publicly sets a date for total withdrawal:

2. They will allow discussions to secure the release of all American prisoners, including pilots captured while bombing North Vietnam.

3. There will be an immediate cease-fire between U.S. forces and those led by the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam.

4. They will enter discussions of the procedures to guarantee the safety of all withdrawing troops.

5. The Americans pledge to end the imposition of Thieu-Ky-Khiem on the people of South Vietnam in order to insure their right to self-determination and so that all political prisoners can be released.

6. The Vietnamese pledge to form a provisional coalition government to organize democratic elections. All parties agree to respect the results of elections in which all South Vietnamese can participate freely without the presence of any foreign troops.

7. The South Vietnamese pledge to enter discussion of procedures to guarantee the safety and political freedom of those South Vietnamese who have collaborated with the U.S. or with the U.S.-supported regime.

8. The Americans and Vietnamese agree to respect the independence, peace and neutrality of Laos and Cambodia in accord with the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conventions and not to interfere in the internal affairs of these two countries.

9. Upon these points of agreement, we pledge to end the war and resolve all other questions in the spirit of self-determination and mutual respect for the independence and political freedom of the people of Vietnam and the United States.

By ratifying the agreement, we pledge to take whatever actions are appropriate to implement the terms of this joint Treaty and to insure its acceptance by the government of the United States.

Fourth Annual Winooski River Raft Race

Owling Club's "Winooski River Raft Race" attracted area-wide competitors.

by K. O. Osgood

The Fourth Annual Winooski Raft Race was a roaring success. As compared to four entries four years ago, there were 48 paid entries this year. Probably on account of the intermittent crud falling from the skies only 42 of these showed. Two crews were disqualified for lack of life jackets. Six rafts were overturned by the wild Winooski & did not finish the seven-mile course from Bolton Falls to the Jonesville Bridge. But I don't think any crew finished without some dastardly disaster or a generous soaking.

The prizes will be awarded as follows: Minibuilt (2-4 crew) Mace Bonus SPHE 1:04:30. Minibuilt Mixed (2-4 crew, at least one Q) Woody Miller 1:21:10. Most unusual. Huck Finn (over 4 crew) John Gergely TEP 0:57:30 Grand Prize. Huck Finn Mixed (over 4 crew, at least 1 Q) Jim Teasman, Forestry Club 1:11:15. Raft Race Results:

Minibuilt Men
1st, No. 22, Mace Bonus, 1:04:30; 2nd, No. 35, Joe Lasse, 1:18:00; 3rd, No. 17, Gene Proulx, 1:20:35; No. 1, Lara Willis, 1:25:05; No. 34, Jeff Haddell, 1:26:20; No. 15, Charlie Rose, 1:32:00; No. 11, Clarke Thibault, 1:34:12; No. 42, Unknown, 1:34:15; No. 13, Steve Goodrich, 1:38:05; No. 39, Owen Jenkins, 1:53:05; No. 31, Ray Delworth, DNF; No. 27, John Smith, DNF; No. 23, Mike Boroski, DNF.

Minibuilt Mixed

1st, No. 18, Woody Miller, 1:21:10; 2nd, No. 9, Woodchuck Ecur, 1:29:15; 3rd, No. 30, Gary Smith, 1:30:50; No. 21, Steve Ross, 1:32:40; SPHE, No. 16, Derrick Davis, 1:33:30; Stowe Tubing Club; No. 41, Gary Hanson, 1:39:50; No. 29, Dick Wasco, 2:13:10; No. 30, Toby Clay, 2:19:40; No. 33, Joy Hopkins, DNF, Pine Ridge School.

Huck Finn Men

1st, No. 7, John Gergely, 0:57:30; TEP, 2nd, No. 26, Don Rosser, 1:13:55; SAE, 3rd, No. 2, Caleb Davis, 1:23:45; No. 25, Bill Mathews, 1:24:35; No. 14, Bob Thompson, 1:25:15; Packard Town-House Apts; No. 28, Hannibal, 1:34:10; No. 10, Unknown, 1:56:50; No. 1, Bruce Corlies, DNF, Davis Hall; No. 37, Curt Benjamin, DNF.

Huck Finn Mixed

1st, No. 38, Jim Teasman, 1:11:15; Forestry Club; 2nd, No. 9, Toby Clay, 1:26:05; UVMOC, 3rd, No. 12, Scott Bacon, 1:27:05; UVMOC; No. 8, Ron Dufrene, 1:27:20; Redwood Raiders; No. 6, Doug Ballou, 1:28:35; BHS; No. 24, Fred Koehler, 1:35:55; New England College; No. 40, Ray Danchak, 1:39:40; Buckham Bears; No. 32, Steve Perkins, 1:41:30; Johnson College; No. 36, Bruce Bardo, 1:43:45; Dartmouth; No. 19, John Meyer, 1:45:50; No. 4, Bruce Corlies, 1:56:34; Davis Hall.

* DID NOT FINISH

Abortion

(continued from page one)

when they "refer these young ladies (that request abortion information) to the Planned Parenthood."

The Result

If the Vermont statute on abortion is struck down by the courts, Vermont will be left with no abortion law at all. This happened in Illinois. Within three months of the courts ruling, however, the Illinois State Legislature passed an Abortion Reform Law. The State of Vermont has refused to pass any such Abortion Reform Bill, and thus may be left without any Abortion laws.

The prizes will be awarded as follows: Minibuilt (2-4 crew) Mace Bonus SPHE 1:04:30. Minibuilt Mixed (2-4 crew, at least one Q) Woody Miller 1:21:10. Most unusual. Huck Finn (over 4 crew) John Gergely TEP 0:57:30 Grand Prize. Huck Finn Mixed (over 4 crew, at least 1 Q) Jim Teasman, Forestry Club 1:11:15. Raft Race Results:

Minibuilt Men
1st, No. 22, Mace Bonus, 1:04:30; 2nd, No. 35, Joe Lasse, 1:18:00; 3rd, No. 17, Gene Proulx, 1:20:35; No. 1, Lara Willis, 1:25:05; No. 34, Jeff Haddell, 1:26:20; No. 15, Charlie Rose, 1:32:00; No. 11, Clarke Thibault, 1:34:12; No. 42, Unknown, 1:34:15; No. 13, Steve Goodrich, 1:38:05; No. 39, Owen Jenkins, 1:53:05; No. 31, Ray Delworth, DNF; No. 27, John Smith, DNF; No. 23, Mike Boroski, DNF.

FOR SALE
1968 MG MIDGET
MARK IV

- Bellier
- Sports Wheel
- Electric Tachometer
- Indico Driving Light
- Walnut Grate
- Steering Wheel
- Radio
- Turnover Cover

CALL: DON O'BRIEN 888-888 (9-4 BORN, - FRI.)

FREE FREE

Summer Storage of Winter Clothing
Woolens—Parkas—Ski Wear
Blankets—Jeans, etc...

When dry cleaned by us at regular prices, stored in our fire proof vault.

WHY transport them back and forth to home and college—

Make it easier for yourself and parents.

CALL 864-9888—We will furnish storage bags and collect them.

Pay when delivered to you in the fall.

Vermont Cleansing Co. Inc.
274 North Winooski Ave.
Burlington.

RENTAL RATES

Bachelor Cap & Gown (men)	4.75
Bachelor Cap, Gown, Coffer (women)	5.25
Dental Hygienists (same as above)	5.25
Doctor's Cap & Gown (Medical)	5.50
Doctor's Hood	5.50
Master's Cap & Gown	5.25
RENTAL of Cap only	1.75
PURCHASE of Coffer	.75
PURCHASE of Tassel	.75

ACADEMIC REGALIA WILL BE AVAILABLE for rental at the University Store May 2nd through May 21st Monday through Friday 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon — 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Please make a note of the hours the store is open. We advise renting your regalia early.

All Academic Regalia MUST be returned immediately following Commencement Exercises. It will be checked in at the University Field House.

Make all checks payable to the University of Vermont. Do not include Sales and Use Tax.

It's the real thing. Coke.

Real life calls for real taste
For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola

Reserve now your truck or trailer for your move Home.

P. J. Auto Village Inc.
2073 Williston Road
So. Burlington, Vt.
Phone 862-0875 863-6669

P.J. AUTO
Village Inc.

U-Haul
Truck
& Trailer
Rental.

Reserve now your truck or trailer for your move Home.

P. J. Auto Village Inc.
2073 Williston Road
So. Burlington, Vt.
Phone 862-0875 863-6669

Album Review

The Most Exciting

In pop music, it is generally a time of singer-songwriters. The rise of performers like Laura Nyro, James Taylor, Neil Young, John Sebastian, Carole King and Elton John is indicative of that. And while a good number of the artists named bring a lot of emotion and intensity to their music, they are still dealing with roots in folk rather than rock music. "Mellow" and "Laid back" are two terms often used to characterize the resultant feelings they express.

On the other hand, it is also a time of incredible lead singers; Mick Jagger, as always, Roger Daltrey (of the Who), Robert Plant (of Led Zeppelin), Rod Stewart (of the Faces) and, of course, Joe Cocker. Their emotionalism and intensity is imperative, their roots rhythm and blues, their vehicle rock and roll. Their styles are "at it" and "on the edge" styles, with desperation, urgency, pain and primal response running deeply in them.

One of the latter group, Joe Cocker, epitomizes the potential to be found in the new crop of rock and roll singers. A native of Sheffield, England, Cocker used a love for the music of Ray Charles as his initial inspiration, incorporated a bizarre stage presence and good musical taste, and moved, in the space of six years, from pipefitter to international popstar. He is now widely acknowledged as the best white rhythm & blues singer currently performing, save for perhaps Traffic's Stevie Nickswood, and beyond that, he

Dione Warwick To Appear In

The programs for the 18th annual Newport Jazz Festival were announced today by George Wein, producer, in the historic resort city of Newport, Rhode Island. The four-day event will be held on the July fourth weekend, Friday to Monday, July 2-5 at Festival Field, the site of the festival since 1965. Four evening and three afternoon concerts will provide a vast array of the best talent in the world of jazz.

Vocalists include Roberta Flack on Friday night, Dione Warwick Saturday night, Aretha Franklin Sunday afternoon, and Billy Eckstine

Lane Film

"The Horse's Mouth," starring Alec Guinness, will be presented on Friday, May 7, under the auspices of the Lane Film Society Series of Neglected Masterpieces.

There will be two showings of the film, 6:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., in Marsh Life Sciences Building—Auditorium. A contemporary news-reel will precede the feature.

Tickets, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Telephone reservations may be made by calling 656-3418.

In color and running for 96 minutes, the 1958 comedy film stars Kay Walsh and Renee Houston in addition to Alec Guinness.

Based on the novel by Joyce Cary, "The Horse's Mouth" was written for the screen by Alec Guinness and directed by Ronald Neame. The photography is by Arthur Ibbett.

Cary's witty and brilliant comic novel of the life and hard times of a British artist—a tramp, renegade, arch non-conformist and genius—has been made into what one critic called "far and away the maddest comedy of the year; but more than that, a masterly veridical comedy on art, culture, society and genius."

The film is undoubtedly one of the most penetrating and persuasive pictures of an artist ever made. Abounding with the many humor of Cary's totally unyielding character, and the fantastic situations into which he gets himself, the movie is a

Cat-nip

By Bill Williams

Don't look back.
Something might be gaining on you.

—Satchel Paige

Like an inevitably soothing narcotic, the Past follows me: touching in its nostalgic beauty, but also haunting, a constant threat to overwhelm and dominate the future.

Memories. An integral part of any life style; they can easily become chemicals, strengthening ties that should be loosened or severed, clinging like flypaper and impeding the development of further experiences.

Such are the difficulties of leaving the Cynic sports page.
Never to return? It depends on the influence of the Past.

For three years I have watched this column mature, spilling onto the paper in a pattern of satisfying metamorphosis. It began under the current byline in the fall of 1968 as a reflection of its title: silly, insignificant notes of passing interest.

But after a few weeks of printing this pap, I realized that, rather than saturate the sports page with frivolities, it would be more rewarding to attempt to generate some controversy, some profundity, some hopefully sophisticated humor, even some ideology in my allotted space.

As a self-confessed sentimentalist, I already miss writing Cat-Nip, not to mention the happenings in various sporting events that motivated my thoughts.

The role played by intercollegiate (and intramural) athletics here for everyone is integral. Not just the isolated pleasures of the game, but other aspects come to mind: coping with defeat, developing friendships, anticipating, allocating, sharing, eating. The program is too valuable to ever consider eliminating, despite apparent conflicts with the intellectual life style and the critical state of today's society.

I'm afraid that, as an alumnus, these elements in sports at this university will be harder to find. A graduate is an outsider. That is why I'm taking a chance and looking back.

Perhaps someday I'll wipe the dust that will have gathered on my collection of Cat-Nip and reread them. Maybe at that time I'll laugh at their — and my — irrelevance and naivete. Or maybe I'll come back to Burlington, post them on bulletin boards, and proudly proclaim how it used to be.

But more likely I'll turn my back on The Past and leave these columns unopened, preferring the intangible memories to the printed proof. I'll bequeath them to my descendants as a legacy for those who are college-bound.

As for this chapter... the ballgame is over.

Bears Hand Tracksters Only Loss

by John Stowell

The University of Vermont Outdoor Track team completed their dual meet season with a 4-1 record with a victory over Middlebury and Norwich in the State track meet held Wednesday, April 28th and a defeat at the hands of the University of Maine in a dual meet held at Orono on Sat. May 1st.

The Cats defended their state title by edging past Middlebury College 53-72. Norwich University trailed with 33 points. Jay Kellor of the Catamounts posted the meet's only record with a jump of 6'4" in the high jump, tying his old record of 6'3" set in 1968. Vermont's double-winner of the day was Mike Enson who helped to victory in the long jump and the triple jump.

Other wins by Vermont were Ole Anderson in the 880, John Radimer in the hammer, Mike Bilsa in the javelin and Bruce Lawrence in the pole vault. Vermont took both the 440 and mile relay events.

Middlebury College was led by double-winners Joe McNulty and Glen Krug. McNulty won the mile and two-mile, followed by teammate Johnson in both events. Krug captured the shot and discus.

Norwich University dominated the sprints with Larry Deno winning the 100 and 200.

The Cats traveled to Orono, Maine on Saturday and took a 109-44 loss to the University of Maine. The Cats were led in the attack by freshman Mike Bilsa who won the shot and javelin, the only wins of the day posted by the Catamounts. Bilsa posted outstanding distances in the shot and javelin of 185'11" and 49'7" respectively.

Vermont came up with several fine performances from John Radimer who placed second in the shot put and discus, Mike Enson who placed second in the long jump and triple jump, Greg Ashford who placed second in the high jump (6'2"), Jerry Learned in the mile, Bill Bode who placed third in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

Also, freshman Don Labourr who placed second in the 220 and Gary Dunham who placed third in the two mile. Freshman Ole Anderson nearly won the 880 with a time of 1:57.4, just a tenth of a second off the winning time of 1:57.3. Anderson's time is one of the best times ever for a UVM half-mile.

THE INSIDER

by William Bode

As the spring semester nears a close, we find that at least one UVM spring team can boast of a fairly impressive record. Yes, the varsity outdoor track team wound up its dual meet season on Saturday with three victories and one defeat.

Our first meet and victory number one was against Fitchburg State College on Saturday, March 27th. No records fell but it gave the team and coaching staff real moral support; being the first and only victory since the start of the indoor season. We then plunged right into victory number two with an outstanding 144 to 30 win over state rival Norwich University. One week later, April 28th, we again met Norwich coupled with Middlebury College in the state meet held here on Post Field. Senior stand-out Jay Kellor, scored an impressive victory in the high jump with a leap of 6'4". The team's newest member, Greg Ashford, followed second with a jump of 6'2".

Saturday rolled around and the University of Maine handed us our only defeat in dual meets in the 1971 season. The Bears beat us at Orono with a score of 109 to 44. The defeat was most disappointing for they handed us a defeat of equal magnitude during the indoor season. Maine's victory did not, however, leave us without commendable performances; the finest of which was freshman Gille Anderson's time of 1:57 for the 880 yd. run.

Outstanding UVM Seniors Honored

Members of the University of Vermont Centennial Club hosted the annual UVM Senior Letterman's Dinner at the Burlington Country Club last Sunday, May 2.

During the dinner which featured guest speaker Lee Williams, Director of the Basketball Hall of Fame in

Cats Enter New Tourney

The University of Vermont basketball team, with participation in the Sacred Heart Holiday Tournament in Bridgeport, Conn. Dec. 28-30, it was announced this week by J. Edward Donnelly, Director of Athletics.

The Catamounts will join Wagner, UMass, Wesleyan, Hamilton, Bowdoin, Clark and John Hopkins in the Christmas tourney, hosted by Sacred Heart College.

Vermont was originally scheduled to play in the Phoenix (Pa.) Classic the same dates, but a change in the Classic's dates made it impossible for the Catamounts to appear.

Springfield, Mass. UVM's achievement, was awarded to George Minarsky. The recipient of the Henry Semans Trophy for the senior of outstanding qualities of leadership, loyalty, and service to the University, and winning the respect and regard of his fellow students went to Perry Bland.

Dave Reece received the outstanding player award for Division II Hockey and Phil Arndon was the recipient of the Athletic Council's Managerial Award.

Varsity Overpowers Alumni

The first annual spring Varsity-Alumni football game, held last Saturday at Buck Hard Field, saw the "old-timers" putting up a fine battle before going down to the younger men by a score of 14-7.

The Alumni stayed in the battle all the way with a surprisingly strong offensive and defensive attack. It was not until the closing minutes of the game that the final seven points were tallied on the scoreboard.

Much to the dismay of the Varsity, the Alumni posted the first real scoring threat of the game, which occurred during the second quarter. However, Bob Stearns' accuracy was not quite enough as the field goal attempt went wide.

The Varsity, in turn, also moved within field goal position, but Paul Jakubchik's attempt was stopped short by Jim Krause, a graduate in '68.

Later in the second period, the Varsity managed to draw first blood. Billy Comstock, who was the team workhorse on the ground, combined with Larry Bona and Steve Coon to set up a 23 yard scamper by Gary Vandecar for the score. Jakubchik kicked for point number seven.

Battling back, the Alumni, led by the passing ability of Fran Peterson, amassed a 83 yard scoring drive midway through the third quarter. Peterson scooped in from seven yards out for the tally, with Stearns tying it up with the point after.

With just a minute remaining in the contest, the Varsity once again got it together and started a scoring drive in from their own 22 yard line. Two Earl Olsen passes, one for 17 yards to Vandecar, and 44 yards to Danny Leber set up the win. Coon crashed over the line for the score and Jakubchik punted his second point after for the day.

The Alumni Club held dominance in the air throughout the contest, chiefly by means of the passing ability of Fran Peterson and the great hands of Scott Pitts. However, Scannella's present squad overpowered the Alumni in their ground attack, to make the final statistics come out just about even.

Reece Chosen Athlete Of The Year

Another honor was bestowed upon University of Vermont's David Reece, as he was named Vermont's Athlete of the Year by the Vermont Sports Writers and Sportsmen's Association.

The sixth annual Athlete of the Year Dinner in Montpelier, co-sponsored by the VSSA and the Montpelier Elks Club, had an overflow crowd of 500 honoring the 12 monthly winners during the year (April 1970-March 1971).

Reece became the third University of Vermont athlete to capture the coveted award. Former Little All-American halfback, Bob Mitchell, won the award in 1967 and Olympic ski hopeful, Marilyn Cochran, gained the laurels in 1969.

Three particular feats stand out for Reece in 1970-71. First, his incredible 41-save performance which led Vermont to an astonishing 3-2 upset over Harvard, Jan. 6, considered one of the greatest college hockey upsets in the history of the game. For his efforts against the powerful Crimson (ECAC Division I champions this year), Reece was selected to appear in the Jan. 18th issue of Sports Illustrated's Faces in the Crowd feature.

Second, his spine-tingling 37-save performance against Massachusetts, March 10, which led Vermont to a 2-1 win over the Redmen, and a chance to meet Bowdoin College in the finals of the ECAC Division II playoffs. Reece had 15 in the final period, most of them in the frenzied final two minutes.

Finally, he capped his college career when he was named the Most Valuable Player in the first annual All-Star hockey game between the New England College Stars and members of the semi-professional New England Hockey League, March 22 at the Boston Arena. Reece had 21 saves in 1-1-2 periods, including a breakaway in the overtime session, to spark the collegians to a 5-4 upset win. He had replaced Harvard's Bruce Durno midway in the second period. Reece was the only Division II hockey player selected for participation in the All-Star tilt.

Other accolades handed to Reece this season followed: All-New England College Hockey team (only Division II player named), ECAC Division II Most Valuable Player, College Division All-American squad, selected as the MVP by the players and served as the co-captain of this year's team which lost to Bowdoin, 5-4, in the overtime, in the finals of the ECAC Division II playoffs.

The Catamount goalie is one of the key factors—if not the key—that Vermont is one of the powerhouses today in Division II College hockey. The Troy, N.Y. native holds every conceivable goalie record at Vermont, which includes career goals-against-average (.300), most saves in a season (84-did it twice), lowest average of goals against in a season (2.69), most shutouts in a season (4) and a career (9), most career saves (2020) and most saves in one game (52-against Division I New Hampshire in 1970).

New Coach

Lloyd "Chip" LaCasse, nordic ski coach at the University of Vermont the past two years, has been named the new head coach for the fast-rising Catamount ski team, fourth-place finishes in two of the three Carnivals last season.

The New Hampshire native, a former competitor and assistant coach for the perennially potent University of Colorado ski team, will begin his duties this fall. LaCasse has spearheaded the effort to move the Catamount ski team up with the best in the country. The effort began to show its dividends last winter, as Vermont had one of the best alpine squads in the East, and one of the top jumpers in the nation in Martin Grimes, only a freshman.

LaCasse graduated from Lebanon High School in 1963 and from Colorado in 1968.

Catamount Clippings

As the students of this University must once again prepare to make the mass exodus to repopulate the towns of New England, New York, and New Jersey, the thoughts of summer activities must weigh heavily on their minds.

In the interests of public service, I am here including various pointers on the summer which may have been forgotten after a year of academic endeavor.

Summer activities is a pretty general heading, but since this is a sports page, and sports seems to be the forte of the male of the species, let the remarks be directed towards them.

In summer football, never wear any padding, even though the opposition may choose to do so. Penalties for illegal use of the hands can be avoided if done subtly. However, throwing too many passes during the game may result in hard forearm shots to the face. Never let your interference get in the way too much.

While playing baseball, start the season by going for singles. By getting quickly and consistently to first base, the promise of months of summer recreation is assured. By all means, stay clear of being stuck in left field, it's a long way from the action.

Basketball also presents its problems. Here also, be careful of your passes, and the opposition is usually very quick to call you for going out of bounds. Be sure not to commit too many personal fouls, it only takes a few to be thrown out of the game.

Swimming, probably the most popular summer activity, presents quite a few dangers. Always go swimming with a "friend" but be sure you can keep up lest you find yourself in over your head with no one to bail you out. Also in diving, be sure the risk is worth the effort before taking the plunge.

If the match is important to you, be sure to stay clear of other golfers when you're going to get teed off. That way, you can keep yourself off the hook and don't slice your chances too thin. Stay clear of traps, and by no means let your partner get a hold of a pin, lest the partnership become permanent.

Finally, in tennis, be careful not to play too far forward. You risk getting tied up in the net and leave yourself no room to maneuver in the back court. Be especially careful in doubles. Your partner may sneak up behind and pull some unexpected antics.

With these points in mind, the summer should prove to be a successful one. The fall should see you return unscathed and in a good frame of mind.

Talent On The Way

The University of Vermont Football program received a big boost during the past several weeks as the announcement came that eight much sought after standouts will journey to the University in the Fall.

Heading the list will be Larry Jones of Baltimore, Md. Jones, a 6-0 running back achieved the coveted distinction of being named to the High-School All-American team. Jones ran over 3,000 yards, and during his last year rushed for over 1,000 yards and was the second leading scorer in the city.

Another top prospect is Englewood's (N.J.) Richard Orlando, a fullback-linebacker from St. Cecilia High School.

Barry Visen will journey all the way from California in the fall. He stands six feet even, weighs 205 lb. and doubled as both running back and linebacker.

Two other standouts who are expected to be of valuable help are Bob Weiler of Burlington and Mike Paterkoster of Clifton, N.J. Weiler is a 6-0, 206 lb. offensive guard from Burlington High, and Paterkoster has held down the same position during his four year career at Pope Paul VI High School in Clifton.

Joining Visen are three other California residents. All of these, Doug Bull, Mel Conney, and Stan McConnell are Junior College transfers.

STUDENT APPRECIATION DAYS PRE-INVENTORY CLEARANCE

- 10% Disc. Trade Books & Paper Backs
- Books by the Pound
- 33 1/3% Disc. Winter Jackets
- 33 1/3% Disc. Ski & After Ski Boots
- 33 1/3% Disc. Skates
- 10% Disc. All Art Supplies
- 10% Disc. All Novelty Items
- 50¢ Off Price All Records
- 80¢ Off Price All 8-Track Tapes
- Special Health & Beauty Aids

MAY 12-15

UNIVERSITY STORE
ON THE CAMPUS

CASH FOR YOUR USED BOOKS

CHAMPLAIN LANES

Hours 10 A.M. To 1 A.M.
985-2824

- Automatic Pin Setters
- Shower Ball Pitting & Drilling
- Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
- Cashless Bowling
- Snack Bar
- Bar
- Billiards
- Dancing

Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages & Alcoholic Drinks On Main St. Burlington, Vt.

New Adult Forum Planned

Students at the University of Vermont have long been heard to complain about problems with merchants, landlords, and other matters basically within the consumer area. With the passage of the law establishing the age of majority at eighteen years there will be additional responsibilities as well as opportunities for the student who is a "New Adult."

Of primary importance, of course, is that the new adult will now be responsible for contracts which he enters into in Vermont. Consequently, the eighteen year old student will as an adult be establishing a credit rating and entering into agreements which could have a lasting impact on his financial affairs. The opportunities for an unknowing or careless student to be taken advantage of will also increase.

On the other hand, the new adult will have available to him a large variety of rights and remedies heretofore unused by students due to their status as minors. In order to explain the rights, and in particular to outline the remedies available to students who are adults in Vermont, the Cynic has arranged a forum to be held on the evening of September 7 at 7:00 P.M. in Billings Center.

James M. Jeffords, Attorney General for the State of Vermont, will keynote the forum. He will speak about the rights and responsibilities of the new adults. Mr. Jeffords has been an advocate of the eighteen year old majority law and is particularly interested in making the law work in Vermont. Many other states are watching the impact of the eighteen year old majority in Vermont for possible enactment in their respective areas.

Two other speakers will also be on hand. William A. Gilbert, Assistant Attorney General for the Consumer Protection Bureau will speak on individual rights in the consumer area. Also, Attorney John Dooley, the Assistant Director of Vermont Legal Aid, will speak on the subject of landlord and tenant rights. This subject, of course, is of continuing interest to those students who live off campus. Mr. Dooley will also distribute a pamphlet explaining specific rights of the tenant under Vermont law.

The Office of Volunteer Programs is presently designing a volunteer project to be operated by university community volunteers, including the students and faculty to provide education and protection of consumer rights. It is anticipated that a full-time person will be available to work directly with the Attorney General's office and the University task force offering seminars, teaching skills in the use of investigative techniques, and most importantly, the handling of specific complaints generated by the University community.

It is envisioned that specific task forces of University volunteers will be trained in such areas as consumer law and investigative procedures; to deal with problems both of a general consumer nature raised within the Burlington area as well as specific University areas. In addition, the additional task force will study student housing problems as well as consumer problems unique to the University community.

Following the forum, organizational meetings will be arranged by the Office of Volunteer Services for investigative volunteers on the various task force groups. Any student interested in becoming involved with such task forces should write to the Office of Volunteer Services, Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont, 05401 as soon as possible.

President Andrews warns of difficult times ahead.

Board Of Trustees Wipe Out Current Reserve Funds

(Editor's Note: Because of the deadline for this issue, the Cynic is unable to cover the August meeting of the Board of Trustees. We are able, however, to report the events that took place in the June meeting of the Board.)

BURLINGTON, Vt. The Board of Trustees of the University of Vermont on June 5 wiped out all current reserves to balance the current budget and approved what UVM President Edward C. Andrews, Jr., called "a precariously balanced budget" for fiscal '72 which begins July 1.

The Board heard Financial Vice President Melvin A. Dyson report that as of the end of April "we are anticipating spending $1.3 to $1.4 million more than the resources we may anticipate" in the current fiscal year. He displayed a chart showing the current anticipated deficit could be eliminated as follows:

1. Liquidation of the full amount of the $500,000 income stabilization reserve fund which Trustees have established as advisable and desirable. Dyson noted the Trustees had previously authorized use of $250,000 of the fund and he proposed use of the remaining $250,000.
2. Use of the fringe benefit reserve fund totalling $303,000.
3. Use of the annuity reserve fund of $171,000.
4. Use of the total amount available from unrestricted endowment income, totalling $260,000.
5. Use of gifts received during the year for the unrestricted alumni, parents and friends funds, totalling about $140,000.

Dyson said using all those resources would leave an anticipated deficit of about $7,000 and said he believed this amount and perhaps more will be realized through savings departments have been asked to make earlier in the year in anticipation of the need to reduce expenditures. Speaking of the coming budget year, President Andrews said the process of coming up with a new budget "has been very painful, as anyone who has been reading the papers knows."

He said $2.5 million had been cut out of the budget before it had been submitted to the Legislature and that another $1.6 million had been cut out of it in two budget-cutting rounds afterwards.

The important fact to (continued on page seventeen)

CYNIC Interview

President Andrews Warns of Fiscal Difficulties Ahead

by Ralph Robbins
(Editor's Note: Dr. Edward Andrews has completed his first year as President of the University of Vermont. We have asked the President to comment on his first year as President, as well as his expectations for this academic school year of 1971-72.)

CYNIC: Now that you are about to start your second year as President of UVM, would you consider your first year a success?

ANDREWS: Yes—we've had our problems, but I think it has gone very well. I feel close to the students and I feel, from my point of view, that we (the administration) have an empathy to understanding the students which is fundamental. I feel the role that the student representatives play on the Board of Trustees is very effective.

CYNIC: How would you categorize the student body at the University of Vermont?

ANDREWS: I think the students in a general way are a responsible, concerned group of students within both extremes of the spectrum.

CYNIC: We are all aware of the financial difficulties of the University. What would you predict for the future?

ANDREWS: The future will be very difficult and will require sacrifices on the part of everyone if we are to maintain the quality of education at this University. We have an extremely tight fiscal '72 budget that we will have to be very careful not to exceed since we have used up all of our reserves this year.

CYNIC: Do you foresee a tuition increase for next year (1972-73)?

ANDREWS: I realize the tuition is too high now for many students. Therefore, we are determined not to increase tuition.

(Editor's Note: The present in-state tuition is $950, while the out-of-state is $2,400. Both of these figures are among the highest tuitions for any state institution in the nation.)

CYNIC: If the state did provide level funding (the same amount that we received last year), what will the University do cover the deficiency?

ANDREWS: If that were the case there is no question that we would have to eliminate some major programs or cut down our expenses. We would probably have to control enrollment and we might have to go up on tuition. However, we are determined to do everything at our disposal in order that we will not have to raise tuition.

CYNIC: What you seem to be saying is that the University would drop a program before raising tuition.

ANDREWS: Yes, I think we will take that course of action if it is necessary.

CYNIC: Could you name any programs that might be dropped if indeed such action becomes necessary?

ANDREWS: No.

CYNIC: What were the reasons for dropping baseball at UVM?

ANDREWS: It was dropped for academic as well as for financial reasons. CYNIC: Some students as well as faculty, and especially the players on the team were upset with the manner in which baseball was dropped, at the end of the year when it was difficult to question the decision and difficult for the players to transfer to other schools. If the decision did have to be made, (continued on page seventeen) why could it not be done sooner?

ANDREWS: When ever a decision such as the baseball decision is made, it is always unpopular with many people, and I'm beginning to think there is no good way of carrying through any decision of this kind. We did not know we were going to go with this decision until a week to ten days before it was announced. We tried to get buy without cutting any program in its entirety. Athletics had to share in the second and third rounds of cuts just as every other department did. It has been known for some time that baseball would be most vulnerable. Ralph LaPointe said about four or five years ago that baseball would be hurt by the adoption of our new calendar. We had planned a very smooth announcement sequence for the dropping of baseball, but the news media got onto this, and we had to make the decision public before the end of the season.

CYNIC: If a program had to be dropped next year, could it be dropped as abruptly as this one or will it be phased out?

ANDREWS: That would depend on the program. We might be forced to phase a program out over a period of years.

CYNIC: If a program had to be dropped, would it be in the area of sports?

ANDREWS: I don't know and wouldn't even speculate on that. I assume we will have adequate funds to maintain virtually all of our existing programs, but it will depend on the financial situation. We now have a special group within the University who is gathering all sorts of data on various programs and information about their costs. (continued on page seventeen)

Harris-Millis Complex Completed; UVM Will Leave Walls Unpainted

Although the two new dormitories, Harris (girls) and Millis (boys), will be "completed" by the end of August, the rooms will not be painted by the University. It has been announced by University officials. Each student, however, will have an opportunity to exhibit his artistic talents with UVM supplying the paints and equipment necessary to do the job.

Reasons

The University simply ran out of money. Not only did they have to cut the professional painting of the rooms, but the edifice now stands one story shorter than originally anticipated. "That's typical of UVM building," one senior commented. "I'd love to paint my room," commented an incoming freshman.

If the University painted the rooms professionally, it would cost about $40.00 per room, which would result in a bill of over $10,000 for the 240 rooms in the complex. As it now stands, the University will supply each student with the necessary paint, about three gallons, that will be needed to cover the bare cinder-block walls as they now stand.

It was stressed by Mr. Heddenberg, the Director of Housing, that the students do not have to paint their rooms if they do not choose to. When asked if the University will eventually paint the rooms, Heddenberg replied "Yes, but I couldn't say when."

Student Flexibility

There are only two rules that guide the students. First, the students must use a "University color," and second, the job must be acceptable to a Housing official. If it is not acceptable, the students will be given two weeks to correct the deficient work, or they will be held financially responsible for a professional painter to repaint the room.

The term "University colors" has become much broader over the years. A student can choose from 22 different colors, ranging from Rose Petal Pink to Misty Mint. Other colors include Rich Cream, Raffia, Poplar Green, Apricot Cream, Kashmir Blue, Focal Red, Cream of Wheat, etc., many of which are quite loud in comparison to the traditional colors students are accustomed to.

The major problem will evolve if every student wants to paint his room during the first week of school. At present time the Housing Department had enough sets of painting equipment (tarp, rollers, etc.) to enable six rooms to be painted simultaneously. It is expected that more sets of painting material will be available by the time the students arrive.

Students in other dormitories who wish to paint their rooms are permitted to do so provided they follow the rules as issued by the Housing Office. Since there is already paint on the walls, however, these students must pay $3.25 per gallon of paint (cost to UVM), which they must purchase from the Housing Office.

(continued on page eight)

'Niggerhead' Is Quietly Changed To 'Marshfield'

(Reprinted from The Rutland Herald, May 20, 1971)

by Mavis Doyle

(Vermont Press Bureau)

MONTEPELIER The names of Niggerhead Pond, Mountain and Brook in Marshfield were quietly and quietly changed here Wednesday, May 20, 1971, by the State Library Board, to Marshfield Pond, Mountain and Brook.

The board took the action at the request of Marshfield selectmen, who made it clear they wanted the name changed so it would not be associated with black people from Goddard College who have been pushing for the name change.

The board was also prodded by Gov. Deane C. Davis to change the names.

In a letter to the state Library Board, the three Marshfield selectmen said:

"We realize there is a group in the state that is trying to create an 'incident' and is using Niggerhead Mountain in Marshfield as an excuse. They have referred to people of Marshfield, in letters to the newspapers, as racist, white trash, etc."

"They have tried to intimidate our state officers, and members of the General Assembly. Many of us who live in Marshfield were at the Pavilion auditorium on April 21 for a public hearing called by the state Library Board with regard to changing the name of Niggerhead Mountain, Brook and Pond."

"We were called racists. The governor and other state leaders were insulted with unfounded accusations and lies. The people of Marshfield were given no opportunity to be heard. We witnessed racism at its worst and we want no part of it."

"This fiasco made us realize we no longer wish to have any part of Marshfield called 'Niggerhead,' or by any other name that could be associated with this group."

The letter obviously referred to Otis McRae, a black who is chairman of the "Committee to Abolish Niggerhead."

The state Library Board walked out on its April 21 hearing after McRae refused to limit his comments to geographical names and accused Gov. Deane C. Davis and other state officials of turning their backs on the situation.

Mrs. Dena Zolotas of Burlington, wife of Socrates Zolotas, a prominent state Republican, was the only member of the state Library Board to comment as the unanimous vote to change the name was taken.

She said "I want it understood that I am voting in favor of the change because that is what the selectmen want."

The three Marshfield (continued on page fifteen)

UVM's Baseball Program Is Abruptly Ended

The University of Vermont baseball program has been dropped, it was announced on May 12 by Dr. Edward C. Andrews, Jr., University president. The administration gave no warning of this move to terminate the program prior to the announcement.

Because of the increasing budgetary problems facing the University and the academic pressures endured by the players last spring, 79 years of baseball, which included 17 winning seasons in the last 20, has succumbed "to the insurmountable budget problems which is facing every program at the University."

Dr. Andrews said the decision was made "regrettably" and added that UVM is not alone in having to cut athletic as well as other programs. "All colleges are facing similar problems and decisions."

In addition to athletics, most academic and administrative programs have felt the financial pinch, and have suffered sizable cuts. Like athletics, some programs have been sliced more than once. The athletic department was forced to cut a sizable portion out of its operating budget earlier in the year.

The additional cut today meant the end of collegiate baseball at Vermont. No other spring athletic programs were eliminated.

Academics were also a deciding factor. Because of the academic schedule at Vermont this spring, the Catamounts were forced to play their new expanded schedule in a very tight time space. The Yankee Conference expanded each member's conference schedule to 15 games (three games with each school) in order to keep its automatic qualifier for the District One playoffs, with the winner of the playoffs invited to the College World Series in Omaha, Neb., in mid-June.

Because of this amplified YanCon slate, Vermont had to schedule 18 games in 18 days, which included four doubleheaders. The state games were sandwiched in between conference tilts.

In addition, the team had to stay one week after the examination period was completed in order to complete the 1971 schedule. Out of a total of 26 games, four games had to be played after commencement.

Player's Reaction
All of the players were shocked at the administration's decision to drop their sport. They thought it was very unfair that they were not given any warning prior to the actual decision.

While many of the younger players will attempt to transfer (when the players were interviewed at the end of May they were not certain if it was or was not too late to be accepted at another school) the older players realized it is academically unfeasible to transfer because of the credits that would be lost.

Holmquest's Reaction

Mr. Holmquest, the Varsity Baseball Coach, was in New Jersey on a recruiting trip at the time of the announcement. He was notified of the decision over the phone.

After Holmquest came back to Vermont and had time to fully comprehend the decision, he explained: "I feel bad for the boys on the team who have worked very hard. I have never heard of a college simply dropping a major program before—the proper way would have been to phase it out. This would have given the players some chance to work out other plans."

(continued on page seventeen)

UVM's baseball team was the first program to suffer a major defeat against "the budget."

THE CYNIC'S INSIDE
Computer Games.....	8
OVP.....	4
Calendar/Announcements.....	5
Editorial.....	6
Environment.....	8
Deane's Bag.....	9
Photographs.....	10-11
Dr. Rollins.....	13
Entertainment.....	14-15
Grease.....	16
Sports.....	18-19

Students Can Match Their Skill With The Brains Of A Computer

by Ralph Riphahn

"Go directly to jail. Do not pass go. Do not collect $200." This commonly known "chance" card along with the rest of the Monopoly rules are now stored in the "mind" of a computer at UVM. Without any previous knowledge about computers, a student can play this or any of 23 other games by pressing the appropriate keys on a keyboard known as a computer terminal.

The installation of over 20 computer terminals on campus will enable increased use of the computer for academic studies as well as for "academic play." The terminal looks similar to a typewriter keyboard and is connected to a new computer which will be located in Votey Hall. This computer will be used for academic purposes while the computer in Waterman Building will be used for administrative purposes.

Any student will be able to compete with the computer if he addresses the computer according to the instructions that will be located near each terminal. Once the student looks into the computer, he merely has to press one or two keys for a move to take place.

Take a football game for example. The computer after being addressed properly will print out all the rules on paper that is attached to the keyboard. Let us say that the rules define the number 7 as meaning "a long pass." If you would like to try a long pass for your next play, you would press the key number 7.

Your chances for a completion will be calculated by the computer which will use matrices and random selection to make its decisions. The result of the play will then be printed on the roll of paper that is attached to the keyboard. Basically, all a computer can do is add and subtract. All computations including dividing and multiplying are the result of a multiple usage of these simple calculations. Yet, many people are afraid of this seemingly complicated and often forbidding piece of machinery. For the student who has not had any formal instructions in the workings of a computer, this will afford an excellent opportunity to learn about the machine that may someday control our society.

In some games students play against each other while in others the student plays directly against the computer. Students should be cautioned not to get too frustrated when competing directly against the computer. Ellen Baptist, who has tried to match her wits with the computer in 3-dimensional Tic Tac Toe claims "it is impossible to beat the computer."

For Academic Study

Although the computer can be used for "academic play," its main function is for the academic study of computer science and its application to many other fields of research and technology. Because of the rapid expansion of this field, the University of Vermont has expanded its computer capacity for administrative work.

When the computer is first installed, it has about as much knowledge in its memory as the Boulder in front of Old Mill. Every piece of information and every instruction the computer is to follow must be supplied by a programmer. It is the programmer, therefore, and not the manufacturer that writes the program which instructs the computer exactly what to do.

The programmer for each "academic game" that is now stored in UVM's computer was written by a student at UVM. Some of the programs are the results of assignments given to students in various computer courses. Other programs were written in spare time after a student learned the basics in a programmer's instructions. Take Monopoly for example. If you are in jail, you need "doubles" to get out. The programmer must first define the rule and then tell the computer when to apply it.

The programmer can include any information in his program. When writing the "1967 World Series," the programmer

The following is a list of all the games that are now stored in the computer:

HOW TO RUN THE MONOPOLY PROGRAM (LIST) GAME BASED ON CHESS MOVE PLAYS GOLF

1967 WORLD SERIES
GUESSES SEQUENCES OF NUMBERS
PLAYS GAME OF NIM
SOUTH PORTLAND HIGH RACETRACK
LEARNING PROGRAM (A GAME OF 21)
TIC-TAC-TOE (QUITE BEATABLE)
COMPUTER SLOI MACHINE
DIGITAL BASKETBALL GAME
BRIDGE PRACTICE SESSION
PLAYS LAS VEGAS VERSION OF BLACK JACK DIGITAL FOOTBALL (YOU ARE DIGITAL QB)
BATTLE OF NUMBERS PLAYS BINGO
LAS VEGAS CRAPS TABLE
PLAYS HANGMAN
PLAYS 3-DIMENSIONAL TIC-TAC-TOE PLAYS ROULETTE
PLAYS THE CARD GAME OF WAR
WRITES A LETTER FOR YOU
PLAYS CARD GAME OF CRAZY EIGHTS PLAYS THE GAME OF HOCKEY

 PLEASE NOTE *****
IF ANY PROGRAMS HAVE BEEN WRITTEN AND ARE AVAILABLE FOR INCLUSION IN THIS GROUP, PLEASE REFER THEM TO SECRETARY, COMPUTATION CENTER, WATERMAN BUILDING

course. It is usually the student's ingenuity that leads to "Las Vegas Craps Table," "Roulette," or "Hockey."

The success of each program depends on the "logic" used by the programmer. "Logic" refers to the sequence of steps in the included all of the batting averages, fielding averages, each pitcher's ERA, etc. so that the probabilities of the computerized world series game are the same as the actual 1967 World Series Game. Therefore, the Red Sox should lose in seven, although this is not always the case.

Although a very sophisticated problem could be computed in a matter of seconds by the computer, the amount of time it takes to write the program may be much longer. The average time that was needed to write each of these games was about 2 months. John Catozzi has been working on his Monopoly program for over 2 years, perfecting each minor error in his logic as he discovers them.

There are now about 30 terminals in various buildings on campus. Terminals are already located in MAT and WDW dormitories. Another new term which has been introduced as a result of this computer system is "computer etiquette," i.e. people who have work to do for an academic course have priority, and a person in the middle of a game should allow him to use the terminal. There is, however, a way of interrupting a game and then coming back to the point where you left off.

A computer terminal in WDW dormitory.

A segment of a golf match:

YOU ARE AT THE SEVENTH TEE OF THE APAWAMIS GOLF COURSE. IT IS 422 YARDS LONG, PAR 4.

WHICH CLUB DO YOU CHOOSE ? 1
YOU HIT IT 222 YARDS. YOU ARE 200 YARDS FROM THE GREEN.

WHICH CLUB DO YOU CHOOSE ? 2
YOU HIT IT 173 YARDS. YOU ARE 27 YARDS FROM THE GREEN.

WHICH CLUB DO YOU CHOOSE ? 11
YOU ARE ON THE GREEN, 1.63179 FEET FROM THE PIN.

WHAT IS YOUR PUTT ? 1
THE TAP IS GOOD.

YOU HAVE HAD 4 STROKES ON HOLE NO. 7.

Coed-Housing Aids Social Intercourse

College Park, Md. (I.P.) College sons and daughters who live in campus co-educational housing units may come home less often on weekends than their counterparts in all-female or all-male facilities, but they are happier, mingle more with faculty, watch television less, dine more often in mixed groups, and enjoy more social events and programs.

These trends were brought to light in a study recently completed at the University of Maryland under the coordination of Robert C. Lynch, assistant director of housing.

Coeeducational housing was instituted at the University of Maryland in the fall of 1969 with the conversion of Hagerstown Hall. Quotes from the report, "An Evaluation of the Hagerstown Experience" in its introduction:

In comparison to non-coed halls, residents felt that Hagerstown encouraged good study habits, cultural programming, creativity, and intellectual discussions, and achievement significantly more than their non-coed counterparts.

Gagerstown residents also felt significantly more pride in their hall, activity in student government, and respect for fellow-students than residents of non-coeducational halls.

Of the 800 questionnaires distributed in randomly-selected units among ten residence halls on the campus, 300 went to the coed units and 500 to the non-coed units. Percentage-wise, the number responding was about even and final results were tallied from a total of 362 males and 110 females in the sample. Here is a rundown of similarities and differences:

Both groups, coed hall residents and non-coed hall residents, said they spent 65 percent of their time studying in their own rooms and did their most effective studying there.

Most respondents from both groups said they studied alone by preference, with a roommate as their second choice, with friends as a third option and with a date as their last choice.

Reading for pleasure varied little between the two groups, 62 percent of the coed hall students and 70 percent of the non-coed hall students read fewer than two non-assigned books during the fall semester, but television viewing showed opposite trends, with 82 percent of the coed hall residents watching fewer than four hours a week compared to 69 percent of the non-coed hall residents.

The report concludes. Generally, it seems that coed hall residents have greater affinity for, and more interaction within, their living unit. Extensive and pervasive differences in self-reported behaviors, however, were not found.

"We are left to conclude that more 'spirit' among members of the unit, manifesting itself in programs and activities, and a greater enjoyment of the residence hall itself may be the most meaningful difference observed to date between coeducational and non-coeducational units at the University of Maryland."

GIVE HER ONE OF OUR ENGAGEMENT RINGS BEFORE SOMEONE ELSE DOES.

PRICES START AT UNDER $100.00
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT.

PRESTON'S
JEWELRY AND GEMS
17 STATE STREET, SUITE 100, BURLINGTON, VT.
Hours: Mon. - Sat. 9 AM to 6:15 PM
Open Friday 'til 8:00 P.M.
CLOSED SUNDAYS

Best Selection
Tennis — Squash —
Paddleball — Racquetball
Stringing by Charlie
Repairs — Accessories
Lightning Fast Service

Bu

New Adult Forum - Sept. 7 - Billings Cen. - 7:30 p. m.

Pinto
3-DOOR
RUNABOUT
the little carefree car with
THE BIG EXTRA DOOR

• Full opening rear loading door
• Fold-down rear seat for big cargo area
Packs more fun than any Import!
See it now at
OPEN EVERY EVENING UNTIL 8 PM EXCEPT WEDNESDAYS

NORDIC
1600 Shelburne Rd.
Burlington, Vt.
864-0231

computer

game should allow him to use the terminal. There is, however, a way of interrupting a game and then coming back to the point where you left off.

WAMIS GOLF COURSE.

IDS FROM THE GREEN.

S FROM THE GREEN.

OM THE PIN.

Intercourse

Of the 800 questionnaires distributed in randomly selected units among ten residence halls on the campus, 400 went to the coed units and 400 to the non-coed units. Percentage-wise, the number responding was about even and final results were tallied from a total of 162 males and 110 females in the sample. Here is a rundown of similarities and differences.

Both groups, coed hall residents and non-coed hall residents, said they spent 65 percent of their time studying in their own rooms and did their most effective studying there.

Most respondents from both groups said they studied alone by preference, with a roommate as their second choice, with friends as a third option and with a date as their last choice.

Reading for pleasure varied little between the two groups. 62 percent of the coed hall students and 70 percent of the non-coed hall students read fewer than two nonassigned books during the fall semester, but television viewing showed opposite trends, with 82 percent of the coed hall residents watching fewer than four hours a week compared to 69 percent of the non-coed hall residents.

The report concludes: Generally it seems that coed hall residents have greater affinity for and more interaction within their living units. Extensive and pervasive differences in self-reported behaviors, however, were not found.

We are left to conclude that more "spiral" among members of the unit, manifesting itself in programs and activities, and a greater enjoyment of the residence-hall itself may be the most meaningful difference observed to date between coeducational and non-coeducational units at the University of Maryland."

THE SKI RACK

The Finest European and Scandanavian Racing and Touring Bicycles
Expert Mechanics
All Parts
All Accessories

Racing and Recreational Equipment
Canting and Binding Testing Equipment
Fast Ski Mounting Service
Unbelievable Repairs Performed
Childs Ski Boot Program
Large Selection used Equipment

Ski the Rack

Best Selection
Tennis — Squash — Badminton
Paddleball Raquets
Stringing by Charlie Wilkens
Repairs — Accessories — Apparel
Lightning Fast Service

Cross Country Skiing Equipment
Weekly Waxing Clinics
Racing and Touring Equipment
Clothing — Accessories —
Experienced Staff

Burlington St. Albans

658-3313

OVP... Learning... Understanding... Together...

The Office of Volunteer Programs is made up of people. There are no miracle workers who believe that they can wipe out the forces of evil, hunger, loneliness, frustration and pain from the human race with one energetic blow. But, there are people, ordinary human beings, who make their way to the office on the second floor of Billings in order to volunteer their time, effort, and services to improving conditions in the Burlington Area Community.

Why do they volunteer? They volunteer because they are people, people who care. They wish to extend themselves by way of the various programs offered; programs that are as varied and unique as the individuals who volunteer for them. Many are filling personal, private needs by volunteering—needs to share talents, knowledge, understanding, and, above all, love with those citizens of Burlington, both young and old, who urgently require those services.

What are some of the programs OVP has to offer? There are programs concerned with children such as the Big Brother Program in which children who need love, attention, understanding and outside activities are matched up with UVM students who will devote time on a regular basis to their little brother or sister.

There are also programs devoted to sick people such as the volunteer work done at Waterbury State Hospital, including such activities as reading to elderly patients, teaching crafts, and playing musical instruments. And there are programs concerned with the well-being of the community at large such as Vermont Legal Aid which provides fair treatment for the rights of citizens.

The Office of Volunteer Programs also attempts to fulfill special requests for student volunteers for special projects. There are abundant needs which must be handled; the above is a mere sampling of the list of numerous projects requesting volunteer work which can be found in the Office of Volunteer Programs. There is something for everyone to do.

Or if one prefers to do nothing, there is a catch phrase of OVP which was coined by Director of the office, Hal Woods, which is "Do Nothing With Someone." Often a student may feel that he is not qualified to volunteer, and may not realize that just his time and effort are vitally needed and valuable. Thus, these words, "Do Nothing With Someone" express the needs of various members of the community.

These, members from children seeking attention and help, to runaway teenagers seeking people they can turn to for understanding and hope, all need someone just to be there, to do "nothing" with, and to grow, expand and share moments of their lives.

The OVP is constantly open to suggestions for new programs as well as providing a center for discussion, information, and assistance with the programs already in progress. The Office of Volunteer Programs welcomes students with all interests, hobbies, and skills. It welcomes all who feel a need to help, a need to find some program that can be adapted to themselves, a need to feel needed. Those students who wish to find some meaningful interest aside from classes, dating and parties should come up and talk to the people in the OVP. They want to talk to you.

Dismissed Prof. Must Be Given The Reasons

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — The university had informed Bhagwati K. Poddar, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, that his contract would not be renewed for the 1971-72 academic year, with no reason given. The university said a regulation prohibited stating reasons for not renewing contracts with non-tenured faculty members.

Judge Frank J. Battista said, "On the evidence before it, the court finds that the defendant (continued on page 5 tomorrow) world affairs," according to a College Establishes 'Peace' Major

Riverdale, N.Y. — (I.P.) — Manhattan College has become the first institution in the nation to establish an undergraduate major in the study of peace.

The new major, which will be available to students beginning in September, 1971, will be interdisciplinary for undergraduates. "Interested in the problems of peaceful resolution of conflict and of stability in community and world affairs," according to a description made public recently by Brother Francis Bowers, F.S.C., dean of Manhattan's School of Arts and Sciences.

Described as a "major breakthrough" by Dr. Tom T. Stonier, a professor of biology at Manhattan, the peace studies major involves a core curriculum of seven courses, totalling twenty-one credits. Dr. Stonier did much of the organizational work that resulted in the establishment of the major program.

Typical courses will include: Anatomy of Peace, a history course; Peace and Revolution, to be taught by religious studies faculty; Biology of Human Behavior, which Dr. Stonier will teach; and World Economic Geography.

In addition to regular course work, students will be required to attend a weekly seminar in peace studies and conduct an independent research or field project with an advisor. The seminars will involve team teaching by the peace studies faculty as well as lectures by visiting experts.

Dr. Stonier calls peace studies a "rapidly developing science that encompasses many traditional disciplines."

Students majoring in the field have several career options, he explains. Executive careers, especially with internationally-oriented firms, government service and education are some of the areas Dr. Stonier lists as offering opportunities to undergraduate peace studies majors.

"Peace studies majors," says Dr. Stonier, "will be particularly well-equipped to go into fields like labor-management, with a background in inter-group conflict and management of conflict."

The peace major would have a more international education and would be able to relate to other cultures easily," he adds. "His education, too will have been problem-oriented, not the traditional discipline-oriented."

Dr. Stonier predicts students from the pilot program will help staff future peace studies departments in colleges and universities throughout the nation. Underlining this contention, Dr. Stonier indicates that already in the talking stage is the establishment of a course in the School of Teacher Preparation on How to Teach Peace.

Learn Your Rights Sept. 7

the SKI shop INC.

A FAMILY SPORTWEAR SHOP

50 Pearl St. Essex Jct. 879-0737

388 Shelburne Rd. Burlington 862-5488

WHY?

WHY DO FRYE BOOTS COST MORE THAN BOOTS OF SIMILAR DESIGN?

- ALL TOP GRADE COWHIDE
- FULLY LINED WITH CALFSKIN
- PRE CRIMPED VAMP
- OIL TREATED SOLES
- HEEL OF P.V.C. AND NEOLITE
- RIBBED SPRING STEEL ARCH
- SOLID BRASS HARDWARE
- IMPREGNATED WITH LANOLIN UNDER HEAT AND PRESSURE
- EASILY WEATHER PROOFED
- HAND CRAFTED THROUGHOUT
- QUALITY BOOTMAKERS FOR 107 YEARS

THE FRYE BOOT
FOR MEN
From 32.50

SHEPARD & HAMELLE

24 Church St.
Burlington, Vt.

"WHAT'S THE TEMPERATURE?"

The most famous quote on the UVM campus!

WHEN YOU OPEN A THRIFTCHECK ACCOUNT
AT THE CHITTENDEN

WE GIVE YOU A NEW FLAIR THERMOMETER
BY TAYLOR

Thriftchecks are only 10¢ per check -- $2 for a book of 20 -- no other charges.

KEEP TRACK OF YOUR COLLEGE EXPENSES FROM THE START

OPEN A THRIFTCHECK CHECKING ACCOUNT TODAY

At our campus-side office on Williston Road or at any other Chittenden office in Chittenden County or northern Vermont.

Chittenden TRUST COMPANY

Burlington St. Albans Montpelier
Rutland New York
Middlebury Vergennes
Wilmington

Sunday, August 29, 1971

Wednesday, November 24, 1971

Sunday, November 28, 1971

Wednesday, December 22, 1971

Sunday, January 16, 1972

Saturday, March 25, 1972

Sunday, April 2, 1972

Wednesday, May 17, 1972

BAXTER'S EMPORIUM
GIFTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

WATER BEDS (SILK)
INDIAN PRINT MATTRESSES
STUDY LAMPS
COFFEE MUGS
GLASSWARE
HAND DIPPED SILVER
SILVER JEWELRY
ART PRINTS & WALL
POLY-OPTICS
MEXICAN HANDICRAFTS

- Burlington
- St. Albans
- Montpelier
- St. Johnsbury

• LEVI'S • ARROW
Plus

NEXT CYNIC THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16

Calendar/Announcements

Sunday, August 29, 1971	Residence halls open for occupancy at 12:00 noon.
Wednesday, November 24, 1971	Residence halls close for Thanksgiving Recess at 5:00 p.m.
Sunday, November 28, 1971	Residence halls reopen at 12:00 noon
Wednesday, December 22, 1971	Residence halls close for winter recess at 12:00 noon.
Sunday, January 18, 1972	Residence halls reopen at 12:00 noon
Saturday, March 25, 1972	Residence halls close for Spring Recess at 5:00 p.m.
Sunday, April 2, 1972	Residence halls reopen at 12:00 noon
Wednesday, May 17, 1972	Residence halls close for the year at 12:00 noon

Homecoming

Homecoming weekend will be October 9, when the University of New Hampshire Wildcats will come to Centennial Field in the homecoming game.

Events of special interest will include the Athletic Hall of Fame banquet Friday evening and the Centennial Club Barbecue preceding the football game on Saturday. Proceeds from the latter go to the athletic student fund.

A great time to take a date or a group and have a great meal before the game.

Also a great time for alumni, parents and friends to visit the campus when the foliage should be at or near its peak.

More details about the weekend in subsequent issues of the Cynic.

S. A. Elections

At the end of September, the election of the SA Senate will take place. Each living unit (dorm, Greek house, and off-campus area) will elect senators to represent them for the academic year 1971-72. Until the election of the new senators, last year's senators will attend the meetings. SA Senate meetings are Wednesday evenings at 6:30 in Marsh Lounge of Billings Center and are open to all. Also to be elected at the same time are the Class Councils. The specific date of the election will be announced in September. More information about the elections can be obtained at the SA office in Billings.

Parents Weekend November 6

Parents Weekend

The Family Associates annually plan a fall parents weekend open to all interested parents. This year, the program will come on Nov. 6.

Students are cordially invited to share the date with their parents and to encourage them to join the Associates. The $10 family dues are likely to be returned to us in form of such gifts as magazine subscriptions in Billings, art work, sewing machines in the residence halls, help for the Outing Club, globes and encyclopedias in the dorms and at Billings, silver tea services, etc., as well as a special emergency fund available through the Dean of Students.

Students Should Evaluate Professors

During the last academic year many students expressed concern about the way in which faculty were hired, fired, reappointed, and given tenure. The method, as it operates now, has very little student input. Faculty, administrators, and trustees are the ones most directly involved in this system. In order to get more student input into the system, students should write critiques of courses and professors and submit them to the proper department chairman. This should be done early in the fall because this is when the tenure process begins.

Seniors Who Graduate In May:

Campus Interviews for graduates in the Technical and Scientific areas will begin on October 25, 1971. Deadline for registration before campus interviewing is October 8, 1971.

Campus Interviews for graduates in Agriculture, Home Economics, Business Administration, Liberal Arts, and Allied Health Services will begin on January 31, 1972. Deadline for registration before campus interviewing is December 10, 1971.

December graduates in all academic disciplines should immediately register for career assistance and arrange an appointment with the Placement Director.

All Seniors and Graduate Students expecting to complete degree requirements in 1972 and who would like assistance for Career Placement are urged to visit the Placement Office, 224 Waterman Building and pick up Placement Registration material.

Ecology Conference

Environmental Corner 1971 pg. 1 Times Roman Flo

In October a conference between UVM faculty and other interested UVM people and people from Montpelier is being planned by the Environmental Task Force for Faculty Education. The purpose of the meeting is to allow government personnel to present environmental problems and projects they have and to have UVM personnel who are knowledgeable in the area attempt to help out. Plans are still tentative. More information will be available in the Cynic in the fall.

As a service to the students, the Cynic will print an announcement submitted by any organization that is recognized by the Student Association. Either type or print the announcement on this blank and drop it in the mailbox located outside the Cynic office in lower Billings Center.

Deadline: 12:00 noon the Monday prior to Thursday issue.

The Cynic reserves the right to edit any announcement. Although we will try to include every announcement that is submitted to us before the deadline, space problems may prohibit us from doing so.

BAXTER'S EMPORIUM
GIFTS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

WATER BEDS (Slightly larger type)
INDIAN PRINT MATERIAL & DRESSES
STUDY LAMPS
COFFEE MUGS
GLASSWARE
HAND DIPPED SCENTED CANDLES
SILVER JEWELRY
ART PRINTS & WALL HANGINGS
POLY-OPTICS
MEXICAN HANDICRAFTS

12 North Winooski Ave.
Burlington, Vermont
864-6628

WELCOME
MALE
CLASS OF 75

Nate's INC.
Vermont's Largest
Men's Clothiers

Has Something Special to Offer.

Eye-openers in Men's Fashions.

Nates Inc. has catered to the College man's tastes season after season... for Fall 71 we've assembled another Bevy of Beauties. When it comes to clothes for young men, you'll find all the Famous Brands you want at Nates Inc.

• LEVI'S • ARROW • BOTANY 500 • HAGGAR

Plus Hundreds of Others

Sorry about the Models
we've used—All we can do is furnish the clothes—
The rest is up to you.

Nate's INC.
3-5 CHURCH ST. BURLINGTON
Vermont's Largest Men's Clothier

Just for openers,
we'll give you
a free book of checks

We'd like to get to know you, so the Howard will give you your first book of checks free when you open an account with us. A checking account is the safe, convenient way to handle your money. It's also a good way to keep a record of your expenses. Open a special student checking account with us, and be sure to ask for your free book of checks.

Turn
to the
HOWARD
Bank

Main Office: Main and St. Paul Streets, Burlington
Offices at: Northfield, Burlington, Keen Junction, Winooski, Shelburne, Richmond, St. Johnsbury, Roxbury Falls, Barre, Orleans, Rutland,
Montpelier, Waterbury

EDITORIAL

The Age of Majority

On July 1st the State of Vermont will recognize all eighteen year olds and above as adults. That means an eighteen year old may marry, enter into contracts, buy alcoholic beverages, and generally do that which, in the old phrase, "appertaineth unto a man." The vistas that are opened to the young are remarkable, but so are the pitfalls. With the gift comes the responsibility and despite all the good will intended by the state legislature and the men who passed this law, many are the young people, newly enfranchised, who will pay the penalty for ignorance, not of what they "get" out of the law, but of what their responsibilities are.

Unfortunately many may look at this new law as merely a carte blanche to buy liquor. The law is not lucid on all points. For instance, an out of state student buys, under contract, something in Vermont. Of course, that purchase is binding in Vermont but what happens when he goes home to a state that does not give eighteen year olds the status of adults? Current untested opinions of lawyers say the contract is binding, but it is ultimately the courts which decide.

Another case is the "out of state, in-state" residency requirements of the University. Almost all students who live in Vermont a year will be able to claim "in-state" tuition. University lawyers say that if this is the case the University will simply change its residency requirements to suit its needs. And yet there are other lawyers who aver that such an action by the University would be in violation of the student's rights.

But the right to vote is perhaps the most dramatic right of the new law. With all of this it is conceivable that the young could make a great difference in the political makeup of our governing institutions. What will happen if they band together for one man? But actually getting out the vote is the most important issue of the young vote. Will all those young people who worked for Kennedy and worked for McCarthy now register and vote? These are questions that have to be answered.

Therefore, the VERMONT CYNIC will sponsor in Billings Center on September 7, 1971 a New Adult Forum. Guest speakers will include Attorney General Jeffords, Chittenden County State's Attorney Patrick Leahy and others who will speak on the new law. We urge all students, whatever their age, to attend. Considering the new law, it is their right to attend, but most importantly it is their duty—to themselves as well as to their fellow citizens.

Alas, Poor Apathy

This is to propose we hold a funeral for apathy this year.

There was a time — hopefully securely buried with a stake through its heart — when it was fashionable to call anyone with whom one did not agree a "Communist." There are still a few souls left who believe all ills are Communist inspired, but few reasonable people are willing to tar and feather everyone and everything with that epithet precisely because it isn't reasonable.

We still suffer, as a social tribe, from general name-calling.

It is awfully easy, for example, to be called a radical or reactionary—not because of what you really stand for or don't stand for, but because of something you may have said in passing and which has probably been taken out of context to suit the wishes of the accuser, who probably won't repeat the accusation in front of witnesses anyway.

It is also uncommonly easy to find one's self described as racist these days, and the number so accused seems to be growing faster than the ranks of "card-carrying Communists" during the Joe McCarthy era.

Well, doubtless there may still be some bona fide Communists, radicals, reactionaries and racists around, and some of them may even be your best friends. Mine, even.

But the purpose here isn't to praise Communists, radicals, reactionaries and or racists; it is to ask your help in burying apathy, real and imagined.

I, for one, find those who go around bemoaning this "apathetic campus," or those "apathetic students, faculty, alumni or parents," increasingly wearying.

I have a deeply growing suspicion that those who cry apathy really mean "I can't get very many people interested in the things I am concerned with." Naturally the things each of us are concerned with are the most important things in the whole world and it takes a great deal of tolerance to understand why everybody does not drop everything he or she is doing and line up immediately behind my bandwagon!

I submit, naturally claiming deep humility in the submission, that this is not, repeat, not an apathetic campus. It is an active (oops!) campus. As a university, it offers a diversity of opportunities which defy the time and energy of any individual. There is more going on on any given day than any one individual can take part in.

It is illogical and unreasonable to expect that the 10 or more thousand individuals who are the students, faculty and staff of this institution will ever show up at one time or place behind any one cause or to participate in any one event.

We do show up regularly in groups of six or sixty and occasionally 600 to do our thing, and many of us show up regularly in several such groups.

To be sure, there may be some individuals and some groups who or which are apathetic. Whoever they are, shame on them and for heaven's sake mend your ways. But unless you know for a fact that an individual or a group is a card-carrying apathetic, stick to calling him or her or it "radical or reactionary." Those terms, after all, have a spread broad enough to encompass us all at one time or another without unduly injuring or maiming either the truth or our reputation.

And as we look forward to the committal services for friend apathy, please remember to omit flowers and send a contribution to the Alumni or Parents or Friends Fund.

L.E. Van Benthuyssen

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Larry Van Benthuyssen is an alumnus of Vermont in the Class of 1951. As an undergraduate he was a co-editor of the CYNIC and later editor of the student literary magazine, the Windfall. He joined the UVM Public Relations staff in 1953 and became Director of Public Relations in 1955.)

2 Poems by Abbie Schaefer

rag Black I

Oh Lord, I'm tellin' ya man
I'm looking for your peace, lookin' hard as I can Walkin' down this here white road
Carryin' a blackie's heavy load

Please white man, let me be
Please white man, let me be
Please white man, let me be Existin' in a world of the free

rag Blacker II

sittin' in the gutter, watchin' my walls blue tumble feelin' so old, yet feelin' the rumble earth ain't white, neither am I I'll see life once, see it 'fore I die

white man, let life be white man, let life be white man, let life be when I realize I can be happy

rag Blackest III

waitin' on this road, wantin' to be part of the sky, part of the sea you white man say no, I say yes how can you tell for me what is best white, be white, be white, be

'fore we black folks push ya' into the sea

Nixon—Too Liberal For Conservatives

(FCNS) — Though it has evidently slipped his mind, President Nixon was elected as a conservative, on a conservative platform, through electoral votes that came largely from conservative areas. His nomination came only through the united support of such men as Senators Goldwater, Tower and Thurmond, hardly members of the Eastern liberal establishment. One does not reverse political trends easily, especially those of decades. Even had Barry Goldwater won in 1964, the conservative millennium would still be a week or two in coming, and Richard Nixon is not Barry Goldwater and by 1968 the Democrats had had four more years to collectivize America. Still, conservatives could rightfully expect that the Nixon Administration would not be one of grandiose new domestic programs or of coysing up to Communist dictatorships. Hopefully, the President would at least hold the line on domestic spending and government control over individual lives, and slightly stiffen our foreign policy and national defense postures. To do any less would mean that the delicately assembled "emerging Republican majority" would rapidly crumble.

Instead, when our economic difficulties should have proved once and for all that deficit spending was no solution to our problems, the President declared his conversion to Keynesianism. With the American public more fed up with welfare boondoggles that it has ever been, the President posited a Family Assistance Plan that would permanently expand the dole, lower work incentives, and raise welfare costs.

The Republican Mr. Nixon approved a government takeover of rail passenger service. The Republican Mr. Nixon proposed government-guaranteed medical care. The Republican Mr. Nixon has proposed new government program after new government program. Even . . . proposals some conservatives praise, the SST and revenue sharing, are vehemently criticized by others on the right; and one campaign pledge that would clearly mean more individual freedom, a volunteer military, is evidently last on Mr. Nixon's list of legislative priorities.

In foreign policy it is difficult to know whether Vietnamization is geared to the ability of the South Vietnamese troops or to Nixon's re-election in 1972. There is no such uncertainty about his attitude toward Red China. His moves toward expanding relations and trade have been the boldest of any President since the Communists assumed control of the mainland. Once again a Republican President is taking steps few Democrats would have dared contemplate for fear of a barrage of Republican criticism.

Why is the President following a course in domestic and foreign policy that may alienate the bulk of his followers? White House insiders evidently feel that the "emerging majority," actually only a plurality in 1968, is much too narrow, and that the President must pick up liberal votes if he is to be re-elected in 1972. As for the President's 1968 supporters, the saying is that they "don't have any place else to go."

The public opinion polls and actions of political leaders indicate just how shortsighted this strategy is. After the 9-0 busing decision of "Nixon's" Supreme Court, one can expect many Southern voters to go to George Wallace, while some Southern conservative officeholders go it alone. Strom Thurmond has already publicly divorced himself from the Administration. One can also expect many blue collar workers and suburbanites disappointed with what they see as Nixon failures on busing, welfare and foreign policy to head for the Wallace column.

Nor is the President achieving much success in winning the support of liberals. Why should a liberal support a liberal Republican if a still more liberal Democrat is running? Within the G.O.P., Republican liberals are beginning to desert the President for the banner of super-dove Paul McCloskey.

Responsible conservatives, who see Wallace as a populist with a basically racist appeal and who wouldn't touch McCloskey with a ten-foot pole, are also finding an alternative to the President. In increasing numbers, they're turning to Governor Ronald Reagan of California.

Reagan has not brought the conservative millennium to California, but he has come much closer there than President Nixon has nationally to stopping the snowballing growth of government. To the outrage of the liberals and the state bureaucracy, Reagan has done his best to live up to his campaign promises, ignoring the knee-jerk reaction of those who see as cruelty to "the people" any attempt to cut back government. "The people" who pay taxes in California no doubt have a different view. Reagan's welfare reform program is, unlike the President's, a real reform that would cut costs, encourage the able-bodied to seek employment, and still help those genuinely in need. In foreign policy, few doubt that Reagan would pursue a harder line than has the President.

Both liberals and conservatives have acknowledged that Reagan is one of the most effective television campaigners in American politics, and he has a national recognition few other Republican leaders have. An April Gallup Poll showed that if President Nixon decided not to run, Reagan would be the first choice of Republican voters, by 31%, over any other Republican candidate. Second was another conservative, Spiro Agnew, with 25%. A poor third was liberal Nelson Rockefeller with 19%. Reagan and Agnew also ran one and two with independents, in itself a commentary on the Nixon strategy that seems to assume independents are liberal.

Conservatives tired of trying to bring the President back in the fold through friendly persuasion have decided that the time has come to nominate someone else. An impossible dream? Perhaps. But who would have thought the loser Nixon of 1960 and 1962 would be the President-elect in 1968 or that the landslide winner Johnson of 1964 would be afraid to run four years later. In politics, today's impossibilities often become tomorrow's realities.

'Mayday' Malaise

Good Cases Rejected

WASHINGTON (FCNS)—District of Columbia Superior Court judges were blamed May 19 for not convicting "Mayday" demonstrators despite valid cases against them.

The accusation was leveled by D. C. Corporation Counsel C. Francis Murphy. Murphy told a reporter, "We've had difficulty with some of the judges who refuse to think it possible we could have a good case so they throw them [cases] out."

Murphy said he was studying "15 to 20 transcripts" of cases to document his charges. He said, "I've got reports from several of my assistants that cases they thought were perfectly good were thrown out and I want to see why."

Murphy was later criticized in court for his remarks by a D.C. judge. Murphy told the judge he regretted his statement, and said he had told the reporter that "we had concern as to the number of cases being tried without conviction and that we wanted to study those cases to determine why—whether bad cases were being put before the court, whether the prosecutors were not putting all the evidence they had."

(Editor's Note: The CYNIC received a letter shortly after the "Mayday" demonstrations in early May of this year. The text of the letter appears below.)

Dear UVM Students,

During the recent anti-war demonstrations in Washington I was a witness to the possible false arrest of five young people who might have been University of Vermont students or residents of Vermont. The arrest was made in the Dupont Circle area at the corner of 20th and M Streets, N.W., Tuesday, May 4th at 10:30 a.m.

Two policemen came up to the group, one called "Hold it right there," and they were taken into custody and lead into a parking lot down the block. I was there before the police and saw no sign of disorderly conduct. This appeared to be a police round-up of anyone in blue jeans and old clothes.

This incident has been reported to the Mayor's Office and an investigation of possible false arrest has been opened. One of the girls arrested was about 5'2", had long light brown hair pulled back with a thin headband, and the words FREE VERMONT painted on her jacket. If anyone knows this girl or her friends, please ask them to contact me in Washington. I might be able to help in clearing their arrest records.

(Editor's Note: Unfortunately, this letter arrived too late to be included in the last CYNIC of Spring semester '71. Although it may be too late, any information concerning the identity of these people would be appreciated. Contact the CYNIC if you have any information and we will give you the phone number to reach.)

ATTENTION ALL PARENTS OF UVM STUDENTS

"A good parent-student-faculty-administration relationship is essential for a successful University. The CYNIC serves as an excellent cohesive force between these segments—it deserves your support."

Dr. Edward Andrews
President, University of Vermont

Please mail your check (only $8.00) today so you will receive every CYNIC during the 1971-72 academic year. Address: VERMONT CYNIC, Subscription Dept., Billings Center (UVM), Burlington, Vermont 05401.

I have enclosed my check for $8.00 to cover a 1-year subscription to the CYNIC.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

ZIP _____

Surveillance

Reprinted from The Chronicle of Higher Education, May 31, 1971

by William A. Sievert

Richard Kannon is a liberal arts student at the University of Minnesota. For a year, he says, he also was a campus spy.

Assigned to Intelligence during his hitch in the Army, his job was to collect data on the political lives of students on the Minneapolis campus.

"Any type of activity that is against Vietnam, anti-military, or just not super right-wing" was subject to surveillance, he said in an interview.

On more than two dozen other campuses across the country, students and faculty members have been spied on by the government, the military, and the police.

In some cases, college administrators have assisted Army intelligence officers in investigations. In others, they have been shocked to learn of spy activity.

Details in FBI Documents The Federal Bureau of Investigation appears to be the chief participant in campus surveillance recently took Office at several camps has gone on. According to documents, the campus University "established" of information. Rutgers that the use with the FE agency to that was ave public, an involving a involved put.

Role of One of documents interest in Swarthmore department non attend.

Free

(Editor's Note: Names of legal workers, legal defense offices have been changed to protect them.)

Millions of people grow up in this Constitution provides everyone with the same protections. They believe a courtroom proceeding for both landlord and tenant, and innocent of crime do not get convicted and are

Knowledge of how the legal system actually confined to those with formal legal training, police departments, courts and prisons. Public do not provide students with legal defense and Neither does the mass media.

Most lawyers who have the opportunity to the law refuse to, because their professional tarnished if they lost exclusive rights to the mention the opportunity to sell it in the fore exorbitant fees.

But now, a growing number of "people's" lawyers who understand they must use the needs of the people, rather than exploit efforts, and those of the many volunteers them, thousands of people throughout the community organizations, and political power, badly-needed legal assistance.

Unearring Legal Hams

Alvin Stanner was desperate when he community legal defense office in San Francisco and disabled by an industrial accident, faced a $500 hospital bill stemming from a

The social worker who interviewed him assured him that because he was on welfare care of all his bills. So he signed a paper reading the tiny print on the other side — later received a bill for $500, payable before up treatment at the hospital's clinic.

His claim for damages against the factory Stanner's sole income was from welfare support him, his wife and two children. At a $500 hospital bill, he was in a bind. There his case was investigated by Elsie woman who had recently come to San Francisco of college in New York. She had volunteered defense office in order to learn socially related in her college curriculum.

During the complex and time-consuming Alvin's social worker, the billing department former employer, defense office lawyers, Alvin's family, and many other people. St issues involved, with the help of some law, who volunteered their services to the office

Don't be taken
NEW

Fartio

James M. Jeffords
"Rights a

William A. Gill

"Indi

John Dooley, As
"La

Tue

VERMONT CYNIC

September 1, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX NUMBER 14

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University administration, faculty or staff or the State of Vermont. Opinions expressed by contributors do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the CYNIC Editorial Board.

Published weekly during the school year by the students of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College. Editorial and Business offices in Billings Center, Burlington, Vermont. Telephone 658-4911. Deadline for notices is one week prior to date of publication. Founded in 1883. Subscription rate, $8.00 per year, in advance, one credit toward Class Project Fund at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

RALPH ROBBINS

Editor-in-Chief

JEFFREY YACKER

Assistant Editor

JILL DAVIDSON

Managing Editor

ARLENE ERIKSSON

News Editor

DAVID BUCKLEY

Feature Editor

LINDA ROSEN

Ass. Feature Editor

KEN WHITTAKER

Sports Editor

TERRANCE DEMAS

Business Manager

GARY GARSO

Advertising Manager

Surveillance On Campus: Some Administrators Are Shocked, Others Cooperate

Reprinted from The Chronicle of Higher Education, May 31, 1971.

By William A. Stewart

Richard Kason, a liberal arts student at the University of Minnesota. For a year, he says, he also was a campus spy. Assigned to intelligence during his hitch in the Army, his job was to collect data on the political lives of students on the Minneapolis campus.

"Any type of activity that is against Vietnam, anti-military, or just not what we're doing," was subject to surveillance, he said in an interview.

On more than two dozen other campuses across the country, students and faculty members have been spied on by the government, the military, and the police.

In some cases, college administrators have assisted Army intelligence officers in investigations. In others, they have been shocked to learn of spy activity.

Details In FBI Documents

The Federal Bureau of Investigation appears to be the chief participant in campus surveillance. Documents recently stolen from the FBI's Office at Media, Pa., tell of several campuses where spying has gone on.

According to one of the documents, the deputy chief of the campus patrol at Rutgers University had been an "established and reliable" source of information for the FBI.

Rutgers officials responded that the university cooperated with the FBI and other public agencies to provide information that was available to the general public and that actions involving the campus patrol involved public information.

At Swarthmore College, President Robert D. Cross, in a letter to teachers, students, and staff members, warned that those who divulged confidential information not demanded by law or college policy, risked dismissal.

Role of Campus Personnel

One of the stolen FBI documents detailed the agency's interest in a member of Swarthmore's philosophy department whose 14-year-old son attended camp in East Germany last summer. The document showed that a campus security officer and a watchboard operator had supplied information on the teacher to FBI agents.

At nearby Haverford College, shortly after the stolen documents were released, President John R. Coleman issued a statement saying that members of the college community "will not be involved in any undercover searching into the thoughts or teachings of a professor, student, or staff member."

"Anyone on campus who is asked for information to be provided on a covert basis on another member of the community should immediately report that request to the president. Any failure to do so will be considered a violation of college policy."

Another stolen FBI document described a file on the Black Student Union at PMC College in Chester, Pa. The file said the organization's members were "not engaged in any militant type of activity on campus, and not advocating or supporting any such activity elsewhere."

Controversy at Ohio

The stolen documents also revealed that a former journalism student at Ohio University had been secretly investigated on the campus by locally based FBI agents.

To test the confidentiality of student documents, reporters on the student newspaper, The Post, using false names, gained access to supposedly confidential student files in several academic departments.

University President Claude R. Sorensen said that the presence of the FBI on campus would be "unjustified and improper."

An undercover agent for the FBI testified at a conspiracy trial in Tacoma, Wash., that he had participated in meetings of the Weatherman and other radical groups at the University of Washington.

At the University of Vermont, a former campus security officer told the student newspaper, The Cynic, in a notarized affidavit, that the police force had investigated students and had turned over compiled information to agents of the FBI.

The officer, Thomas Hettinger, said that part of his job had included attending campus demonstrations and political meetings to gather information for the FBI.

(Editor's Note: A fact-finding committee of UVM students and faculty members could not find any conclusive evidence to support these allegations.)

"If an institution of higher learning is subjected to close surveillance by government, then what substance is there to our assertions that the academy is a place where unpopular ideas can be expressed and advocated?"

Ideology of Demonstrators

Following a peaceful anti-war demonstration at Simpson College in Iowa in the fall of 1969, the dean of students reported that an FBI agent showed up on campus asking for the names of organizers.

The dean, William Webster, said that the agent wanted to "find out if the organizers were identifiable with the political ideology of North Vietnam or China."

"I see this as a form of intimidation," Mr. Webster said. "People being put on a list for legitimate political dissent is somewhat frightening to me."

At the University of Kentucky, Gene Mason, an assistant professor of political science, complained that the administration there had asked the FBI in investigating statements by a student in one of his classes last fall.

In the class, the student had predicted a political burning or bombing of buildings in the Lexington area. Mr. Mason said the remarks had been made as an analytical "anticipation," not as a threat.

Several students in the class reported that they had been interviewed by FBI agents concerning the student who had made the comment. The agents had a copy of class enrollment records they said had been supplied by the office of the dean of students.

Fear of Intimidation

Mr. Mason said he resented the investigation and the university administration's involvement in it because it could intimidate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of expression in his class.

The dean of students office defended its action, saying that the registrar's office and the university administration's involvement in it because it could intimidate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of expression in his class.

Some faculty members objected to the snooping. "It's a hell of a feeling to know that you and your students are being investigated," according to Jerry Lewis, assistant professor of sociology, who has been told by several of his

"the request pertained not only to the possibility of violation of law, but to the physical safety and welfare of the university community."

At Harvard University, the Afro-American Student Union reported that an FBI agent asked one of its members to serve as an "informant" on the organization's activities.

In response, Lawrence D. Fouraker, dean of the business school, told students that secret surveillance of student groups was "unwarranted and unacceptable." He said that, depending on the case and the evidence, students, teachers, and staff members who were found guilty of involvement in such surveillance could be subject to dismissal.

At Kent State University, FBI agents questioned students and faculty members about the political beliefs and teachings of some faculty members. The American Civil Liberties Union protested the surveillance.

Agents had been given lists of class rosters of nine teachers by students that the FBI has been investigating him.

"I'm concerned for the future of the social sciences. We don't deal in black and white. But if you know you're under investigation, there's a sense of psychological consciousness imparted to your teaching. You're going to be more careful."

Tommy the Traveler

While the FBI appears to be the most active domestic surveillance agency on the campuses, police and military agents also have spied at some colleges.

The most publicized police agent is M. L. Singata Thomas Tongyai, better known as "Tommy the Traveler."

At Hobart College in New York, Mr. Tongyai served as an agent for the Ontario County Sheriff's Department to uncover information on drug use on the campus.

Students charged, however, that he became an agent

Free Legal Defense Aids People In Need

(Editor's note: Names of legal workers, clients, and community legal defense offices have been changed or omitted for their protection.)

Millions of people grow up in this country believing the Constitution provides everyone with the same legal "rights" and protections. They believe a courtroom provides an "impartial" hearing for both landlord and tenant, and that people who are innocent of crime do not get convicted and sent to prison.

Knowledge of how the legal system actually works is generally confined to those with formal legal training or those who work in police departments, courts and prisons. Public schools and colleges do not provide students with legal defense and survival information. Neither does the mass media.

Most lawyers who have the opportunity to educate people about the law refuse to, because their professional image would be tarnished if they lost exclusive rights to the information — not to mention the opportunity to sell it in the form of legal services, for exorbitant fees.

But now, a growing number of "people's lawyers" is emerging. Lawyers who understand they must use their skills to serve the legal needs of the people, rather than exploit them. Through their efforts, and those of the many volunteers they have trained to assist them, thousands of people throughout the country — poor people, community organizations, and political prisoners — have received free, badly-needed legal assistance.

Unearthing Legal Hazards

Alvin Stanner was desperate when he went for help to a community legal defense office in San Francisco. Forty-five years old and disabled by an industrial accident, he was on welfare and faced a $500 hospital bill stemming from a serious illness.

The social worker who interviewed him before he was admitted assured him that because he was on welfare, Medi-cal would take care of all his bills. So he signed a paper presented him, without reading the tiny print on the other side — and about two weeks later received a bill for $500, payable before he could resume follow-up treatment at the hospital's clinic.

His claim for damages against the factory was pending in court. Stanner's sole income was from welfare payments, which were to support him, his wife and two children. At a friend's suggestion, he sought free assistance at a nearby legal defense office.

There his case was investigated by Elaine Jameson, a young woman who had recently come to San Francisco after dropping out of college in New York. She had volunteered to assist in the legal defense office in order to learn socially relevant skills she couldn't find in her college curriculum.

During the complex and time-consuming case, Elaine talked to Alvin's social worker, the billing department of the hospital, his former employer, defense office lawyers, medical administrators, Alvin's family, and many other people. She researched the legal issues involved, with the help of some law students and the lawyers who volunteered their services to the office. Finally, she suggested

Alvin file suit against the hospital.

In the course of investigating the case, Elaine discovered the hospital's social worker didn't know the billing policy of the hospital and that the "fine print" on the contract was designed in a way that greatly handicapped poor people. She also found that Alvin's previous lawyer was not actively pursuing the suit against the factory because it didn't promise him enough financial return, and that the lawyer hadn't even bothered to communicate his decision to Alvin.

In pursuing Alvin's case, she also discovered a sense of commitment and purpose which she had lacked as a typical, 22-year-old college dropout from New York.

Elaine Jameson had become involved only a few months after her arrival in San Francisco. Her curiosity aroused by a notice about a movement theater group benefit, she went to the benefit and attended a meeting afterward for people interested in setting up a community legal defense office. The 15 people who came were college students, recent graduates, and drop-outs like herself. After an evening's discussion, they decided to open a legal defense office as soon as possible.

Then a legal worker from the regional office of the National Lawyers Guild conducted a 12-day training session, scheduled on six successive weekends. She discussed how to set up and run the office; how to keep files; how to recruit volunteer lawyers; and what to do when someone is arrested. She also outlined criminal defense procedures and general areas of civil law.

The office is now actively functioning in San Francisco. It charges no fees for its work. A full-time volunteer lawyer works out of the office, and there is a referral list of another 40 attorneys. Fifteen volunteer legal workers contribute their time each day, some of them full-time.

In its first three months of operation, the office has assisted over 65 people from the community, and many more cases are pending. About half are criminal cases, half civil.

All the legal workers are also involved in other community activities, such as food conspiracies, development of a neighborhood mental health center, a movement theater group, a movement rock band, and in plans to start a small community bookstore. They participate in local and city-wide political activities as well, including struggles against the welfare department, defense of political prisoners, and anti-war activities.

As the workload gets heavier, the office staff is trying to recruit more people, increase their legal skills through additional training in special areas of the law, and arrange more benefits to support their work. Some of the legal workers have part-time jobs in unrelated fields, but more are seeking temporary work in law offices with lawyers who are beginning to understand the importance of working with trained and dedicated community legal workers.

Community legal defense offices are a relatively new phenomenon. The idea emerged about two years ago on the west coast, resulting from the experiences of people who had worked in emergency mass defense committees which handled the legal defense of students and others who had been arrested during demonstrations and other political actions. People gradually began to understand the need for more durable legal facilities that could deal with the daily legal needs of people who can't afford lawyers, as well as for those who are busted. In both criminal and civil law matters, there was an obvious and vital need for legal defense and survival information, that is, for information about what laws actually mean, how they're selectively enforced, and how to defend against them individually and collectively.

Because of the scarcity of people's lawyers and the potential ability of legal workers to relate closely to the problems of the communities from which they come, more and more people are deciding to become legal workers and to organize community legal defense offices.

Ten have been organized during the past year in California alone, and the idea is spreading to other parts of the country. These offices are both Third World and white, depending upon the community they relate to. They operate under the assumption that the majority of people in this country will never receive true justice within the context of the present political and economic institutions. Only a total revolutionary upheaval of these institutions can create the conditions from which to develop a just legal system. In the meantime, the people who are struggling to survive under the present institutions and change them must be protected by any means necessary.

Credit: This article was prepared collectively by the regional office staff of the San Francisco-based branch of the National Lawyers Guild, for Alternative Features Service.

Don't be taken! Learn your legal rights.
NEW ADULT FORUM

Participants and Speakers include:

James M. Jeffords, Attorney General for the State of Vermont
"Rights and Responsibilities of New Adults"

William A. Gilbert, Assistant Attorney General for the Consumer Protection Bureau
"Individual Rights of the Consumer"

John Dooley, Assistant Director of Vermont Legal Aid
"Landlord and Tenant Rights"

Tuesday, September 7, 1971
7:30 P.M.
Billings Center

Sponsored by VERMONT CYNIC

atives

President's 1968 supporters, saying is that they "don't have any place else to go." The public opinion polls and those of political leaders show just how shortchanged a strategy is. After the 9-0 ruling decision of "Nixon's" Supreme Court, one can expect any Southern voters to go to George Wallace, while some Southern conservative Whiteholders go to James Strom.

Nor is the President achieving much success in winning the support of liberals. Why should a liberal support a liberal Republican if a still more liberal Democrat is running? Within the G.O.P., Republican liberals are beginning to desert the President for the banner of super-dove Paul McCloskey.

Responsible conservatives, who see Wallace as a populist with a basically racist appeal and who wouldn't touch McCloskey with a ten-foot pole, are also finding an alternative to the President. In increasing numbers, they're turning to Governor Ronald Reagan of California.

Reagan has not brought the conservative millennium to California, but he has come much closer there than President Nixon has nationally to stopping the snowballing growth of government. To the outrage of the liberals and the state bureaucracy, Reagan has done his best to live up to his campaign promises, ignoring the knee-jerk reaction of those who see as cruelty to "the people" any attempt to cut back government. "The people" who pay taxes in California no doubt have a different view. Reagan's welfare reform program is, unlike the President's, a real reform that would cut costs, encourage the able-bodied to seek employment and still help those genuinely in need. In foreign policy, few doubt that Reagan would pursue a harder line than has the President.

Both liberals and conservatives have acknowledged that Reagan is one of the most effective television campaigners in American politics, and he has a national recognition few other Republican leaders have. An April Gallup Poll showed that if President Nixon decided not to run, Reagan would be the first choice of Republican voters, by 31%; over any other Republican candidate. Second was another conservative, Spiro Agnew, with 25%. A poor third was liberal Nelson Rockefeller with 19%. Reagan and Agnew also ran one and two with independents, in itself a commentary on the Nixon strategy that seems to assume independents are liberal.

Conservatives tired of trying to bring the President back in the fold through friendly persuasion have decided that the time has come to nominate someone else. An impossible dream? Perhaps. But who would have thought the loser Nixon of 1960 and 1962 would be the President-elect in 1968 or that the landslide winner Johnson of 1964 would be afraid to run four years later. In politics, today's impossibilities often become tomorrow's realities.

TUDENTS

Relationship
as an reserves

mont

C during the 1971-72
Billings Center (UVM).

for a 1-year

Help Wanted

Three Task Forces Have Been Formed; Now It Is Up To You

Anyone, even the President of the University of Vermont, can make a decision. But implementing the decision... Ah, there's the rub. Based on recommendations of a special committee, President Andrews has committed the University to play a highly visible, highly active and, undoubtedly highly controversial role in the environmental control of Vermont. If this commitment is to be effective, there is need for a machinery (dare we use the word administration?) to focus on these areas within the general framework of the commitment, to determine the feasibility of potential courses of environmental action and to involve both faculty and students. Not unexpectedly, the machinery consists of committees.

In overall supervision and regulation, an Executive Committee has been appointed to be headed by a Director—a post for which a search committee has been appointed. As members of the Executive Committee, the ticket was balanced with members representing both expertise and University-wide. Professors Christensen (Forestry), Craighead (Pathology), Potash (Zoology) and two students, Mr. William Cruikshank and Mr. Gary McQuestion, together with the Director, are to report directly to President Andrews and Vice President Rollins.

To encompass the broad sweep of the environmental commitment, three balanced Task Forces have been formed. The Task Force on Core Courses and Curriculum consists of Professor Condren (Civil Engineering) as Chairman with Professors Schneider (Agricultural Engineering), Phillips (Medicine), Posner (Philosophy) and two students, Miss Anne Ehrlich and Mr. John Novak. The Task Force on Conferences and Workshops is chaired by Professor Laff (Psychology) and consists of Professors Conrad (Education), Warner (Political Science), Sinclair (Resource Economics), Miller (Philosophy), Mr. John Bushey (Evening Division) and Miss Sally Barnett (student).

The Task Force on Faculty Participation has Prof. Houston (Community Medicine) as chairman with Professors McKegney (Psychiatry), Case (Education), Sargent (Resource Economics), Klein (Botany), Mr. Gordon Mills (Burlington Free Press), Mr. Charles Ross (Lawyer) and Mr. Eugene Sandolin (student). It is one of the functions of these Task Forces to involve other members of the faculty and the student body in the deliberations and in the actions proposed and taken by the task forces.

On first sight, the charge of the task forces is clear. Design of curricula and of courses, their acceptance by the appropriate faculty committee and the evaluation and review of courses proposed and in operation seem straight forward. But cutting across traditional lines of departments and of colleges is a relatively new thing at UVM and new concepts and approaches will be needed. There are currently a number of courses and programs within the University whose efforts and directions will have to be reexamined in the framework of a total University commitment.

The development of informational programs and workshops presents challenges that will have to be carefully considered. Faculty and students alike have been talked to death about environment and ecology. One faculty member has said that he can virtually give the lecture of at least ninety percent of the speakers he has heard over the past three years and now attends the usual conferences and seminars only to see how much in advance he can mentally give the salient sentences. The Task Force on Faculty Participation is confronted with a faculty whose interest in and commitment to environmental activism ranges from indifference through apathy and distaste to opposition with a small core of activists. All of the Task Forces are beset by administrative hurdles, financial problems and the room full of feathers that is routine for a new concept. There is, indeed, the very legitimate question of whether this commitment is a proper function for the University.

If the University of Vermont is to assume an active leadership role in the environmental affairs of our State, the commitment of President Andrews will have to be translated into actions that are appropriate for the University. The University has the prestige within the State and the region to pull it off, we have the intellectual resources, the expertise, and the background. The main impediment is the will.

This picture of New York City was actually taken on a sunny day. Will we let this happen to Burlington?

Sometimes You Can't See The Forest For The White Toilet Paper

by Martha Wright

Ever since "environment" exploded into the American consciousness, the most frequently asked question has been, "What can I do?"

To answer those questions many organizations have published pamphlets, handbooks and guides that deal with what could be called "lifestyles." They urge the citizen to use white toilet paper, compost his garbage, launder with non-phosphate soaps, tune up his car, and in general see that his purchases are not the result of environmentally destructive practices.

Too often these booklets become the easy way out both for the organizations that publish them and the citizens who use them. They enable the organizations to cope in a simple and efficient manner with the growing numbers of people who contact them for advice. And they enable the individual to check off his list of lifestyle practices and feel he is doing all he can to save the environment.

In no doing, the booklets can divert the citizen from looking more deeply into the issues of pollution and responsibility. They also make it easier for organizations to avoid coming to grips with complicated problems and reorienting their programs to cope with them.

That is not to say the lifestyle booklets are bad. Far from it. They are often essential in helping people realize that everything they do has environmental implications—whether it is in misuse of natural resources or poisoning of air and water. They also help people see the interconnectedness of all things which is the essence of ecology. However, they can mislead people into thinking that if they follow those guides, environmental problems will be solved. And they imply that the consumer can always make significant environmentally sound choices.

Unfortunately, that just isn't so.

For even if everyone carried out the lifestyle recommendations there would be no noticeable improvement in the poisonous condition of air and water. Solid waste problems would still be overwhelming and natural resources would continue to be misused. The probable result would be disillusionment on a massive scale.

The real problem is that there are few environmentally sound alternatives. In most realms of choice one can only pick the lesser of two evils. And that is not good enough.

Consider the automobile. It is responsible for the majority of air pollution. Except for the very few American cities which have subways, mass transit in America is still a dream. Most people have no choice but to drive to work, and they cannot choose but to own an auto with an internal combustion engine. The alternatives—walking and bicycling—are both unpleasant and unhealthy as long as the majority continues to drive cars. Bikes most often are not available. Therefore, the honest way to tell people how they can help is to point out to them their current lack of alternatives and urge them to press public officials for stricter controls on autos. They should also be urged to work for private mass production of automobiles with external combustion engines which are virtually non-polluting.

Or take recycling. Most lifestyle booklets focus attention on turning in old newspapers but ignore the problem of creating a demand for the recycled paper those newspapers will become. Many mills already claim to be handling all the waste paper they can and industry says it will take 20 years to build the facilities necessary to recycle the paper now available. If all government, businesses and organizations insisted on buying recycled paper, it's probable those mills would be built a lot sooner.

Or water pollution. Some 60 percent of it is caused by industry over which the individual has no direct control. Only forceful action by government and public outcry is going to get polluting industries, which have always assumed a right to pollute, to change their ways. The majority of the remaining water pollution comes from municipal sewage treatment plants. The only way the citizen can eliminate that source of pollution is to elect public officials who will spend his tax money for total water treatment.

These solutions, however, are complicated and more difficult. Since it's hard enough to get people to give up their phosphates and to buy returnable bottles, it isn't surprising that organizations often emphasize the easier things, postponing for a while a serious discussion of what saving the environment really requires.

It requires reading dull, complicated laws and financing lawsuits against polluters and recalcitrant government agencies. It takes finding out how city or county government works, what interest groups get their way, and how the citizen can make his voice heard over that of the lobbyist. It takes writing Senators and Congressmen over and over again. It takes bringing abuses at home into the public spotlight. It takes questioning and challenging the sacred cows of government and industry. It takes being immune to and able to refute innuendoes that environmentalists want to precipitate unemployment, take away conveniences and essentials and may be communist-inspired.

It is hard hard work. And it will take a long long time.

But the cause of environmental quality will founder on a compost heap of handbooks and pamphlets unless concerned citizens move into the public arena where the real battles must be fought. The lifestyle issues are valid educational tools and a measure of personal commitment. But they will never clean up the air and water or redirect a wasteful natural resource policy that ignores the needs of the future. To imply or believe that they will is misleading, and may prevent or postpone important action until it is too late.

Credits: Conservation News

UVM's new heating system runs on natural gas, the "cleanest" form of heating.

Colleges In Transition

(Continued from page fifteen) professional class is probably the greatest single handicap facing the black community in its effort to raise standards of living. Because of inadequate preparation in the secondary schools, black youth needs better counseling and a broadly based, federally supported, professional scholarship program for professional education. The black colleges should join in efforts to recruit such students, especially for the science-based fields of medicine, dentistry, paramedical work, and engineering. The authors believe.

They say the existing black colleges could double their enrollment without great difficulty, given sufficient financial aid. What they need above all else "is a student body large enough to fill their classrooms and well-to-do enough to pay fees and charges."

If a federal "education salary" were made available to any student who wished to claim it, they declare, enrollment in the black colleges would rise rapidly and they would soon be able to markedly improve their offerings and their general condition. A 1964 study of the graduates of predominantly Negro colleges showed that 62 percent owed money for college expenses as compared with 36 percent of white students.

THE BLUE TOOTH
OPEN 3 P.M.
7 DAYS A WEEK

Live Entertainment
MONDAY Nightly
Thru
SATURDAY
Happy Hour
3 To 6
Fridays.

Is this Lake Champlain?

Dorms

(Continued from page one)

More information will be provided by the Housing Office which is located on Main Street, just west of MAT, for those who wish to paint their rooms.

Other Features

Other features of the new MH complex add to the dormitory's uniqueness at UVM. Each floor is divided into separate sections, with each section containing five rooms, a lounge, and a bathroom. This arrangement is designed to make the dormitories more personal.

Carpeting will line the halls of the dormitories although there will be no carpeting in each bedroom. According to Mr. Heddenberg, the purpose of carpeting, contrary to what many believe, is to cut down on the noise rather than for decorative purposes.

Where was this taken?

Organisation Prov Harvard University

BOSTON — At least four businesses in the Boston area have been organized to provide college students with term papers to order—either ready-made from files of papers purchased from students, or tailored to the occasion by a staff of professional writers.

For more than eight months, Termpapers Unlimited—has been buying them on almost every subject for 50 cents a page, and reselling Xeroxed copies at $2 a page.

"We have sold thousands of papers so far," says Ward Warren, 22-year-old owner of Termpapers Unlimited. "Our agents are in New York, California, New Mexico, Puerto Rico—all over the country and in Canada, too."

Custom-made papers are more expensive than the ready-made variety, but a professional job is worth the extra expense, according to Mr. Warren. He claims a staff of 400 professional writers, almost all of them with master's degrees or doctorates.

Most Subjects and Languages

"We can cover almost any subject in practically every language," says Mr. Warren, a student at Babson College in Massachusetts who also owns a Christmas tree plantation, and eight other businesses.

the d

by Arnold Werner, M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 48823

QUESTION: My husband and I have decided I would like to know if there is an accurate one is ovulating. Before I began taking irregular menstrual cycle, but on the average, so much emphasis is put on contraception women are really sure when they can get pregnant their menstrual cycle is other than 28 days.

ANSWER: Menstruation begins approximately ovulation. The interval between ovulation and menstruation is rather constant for each woman where the menstrual cycle varies in duration the beginning of menses to ovulation variation. Therefore, if a woman has a 28-day cycle in length she would be ovulating on day 14 of the cycle. In the so-called average cycle of 28 days, ovulation occurs on day 14 of the cycle. By convention, the first day of menstruation is day 1.

To pinpoint when ovulation actually occurs the fact that body temperature rises slightly (Fahrenheit) due to the release of hormones occurrence of ovulation. If the woman, preferably rectally, each morning before she records this temperature she can often detect certain months difficult to interpret. A rise in the ovulating because she gets a sharp coincident with release of the egg.

The tick in getting pregnant is to get the while both are in shape to do business. Speculate the woman's reproductive tract for 48 hours probably be fertilized somewhere during the release. Therefore, if intercourse occurs before ovulation and a day after ovulation, chance that pregnancy will take place. It is that the couple attempting to begin a pregnancy the day before the assumed date of ovulation and the day following.

It is usually recommended that oral contraceptive pills be taken before pregnancy is attempted.

QUESTION: I am writing for advice about skin. Although I have not had acne which would I do have some small flaws which I want to get rid of. I've heard something about "peeling" techniques to smooth over a rough really effective for everybody? Would such have sensitive skin.

ANSWER: There are a number of techniques of skin allowing normal regeneration. These techniques are based on the fact many layers thick with regeneration of down. Therefore, certain blemishes which be removed and fresh skin without the area.

Two techniques that are used widely are abrasion and freezing. In each case only be removed at a time and a number of times eliminate blemishes. Very deep, pock sometimes be made less apparent but entirely. With the use of local anesthetic painful while they occur, but a raw and heal is left, so a moderate amount of discoloration. Consultation with a dermatologist would about the advisability of such a procedure.

QUESTION: While in Vietnam, I was injured by artillery and other weapons. During a relatively near me. I was not wounded, but for the rest of my life. In my left ear high pitched tones. Sometimes the tones t mo. There also seems to be a full feeling from active duty the doctor told me the away. It's been almost three years and anything the ringing is worse. I don't mind but the ringing sometimes bothers me.

ANSWER: Hearing depends upon a mechanism which can be damaged by sustained periods of exposure to high sound performers in rock groups who spend amplifiers end up damaging their hearing. The condition you describe is a technical history certainly suggests that you

Organisation Provides Term Papers; Harvard University Takes Action

BOSTON — At least four businesses in the Boston area have been organized to provide college students with term papers to order — either ready-made from files of papers purchased from students, or tailored to the occasion by a staff of professional writers.

For more than eight months, Termpapers Unlimited has been buying theses on almost every subject for 30 cents a page, and reselling Xeroxed copies at $2-a-page.

"We have sold thousands of papers so far," says Ward Warren, 22-year-old owner of Termpapers Unlimited. "Our agents are in New York, California, New Mexico, Puerto Rico — all over the country and in Canada, too."

Custom-made papers are more expensive than the ready-made variety, but a professional job is worth the extra expense, according to Mr. Warren. He claims a staff of 400 professional writers, almost all of them with master's degrees or doctorates.

Most Subjects and Languages

"We can cover almost any subject in practically every language," says Mr. Warren. "We have a student at Babson College in Massachusetts who also owns a delicatessen, a catering business, a Christmas tree plantation, and eight other businesses."

So far it seems that the term paper companies are legal. Termpapers International, an 18-month-old competitor, calls itself a "reference service" and maintains that it sells papers as "research material." The company buys all rights to a writer's work and implies that what customers do with their purchases is not its responsibility.

International's policy is that customers are to use papers as a basis for further research. Students are encouraged to adapt themes they buy to fit the requirements of a course, says staff member Michael Crowley.

Some local colleges and universities are distressed about the possibility of mass-produced plagiarism. Harvard University hopes to bring collective legal action against term paper companies by taking the matter before the members of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, according to Archie Epps, Harvard's dean of students.

As to the ethics of selling term papers, "I will admit we are an unethical organization in an unethical system," says Mr. Crowley, a Boston University student who plans to teach college English.

"The university should question itself and its basic system before they question us," he maintains. Mr. Crowley calls the outboard-and-foam ritual of writing formal term papers, especially in the humanities, "a destructive experience" that elicits "forced response."

Mr. Epps takes issue with this reasoning. "I do not think that because some people find education irrelevant fabrication is justified," he says.

(Editor's Note: This article appeared in The Chronicle of Higher Education in May, 1971. Two weeks after this article appeared, the same newspaper reported the following news item.)

Purchased Term Papers Uncovered

One student has been expelled and another suspended for a year after Harvard University discovered that they had submitted identical essays on British history which they had purchased from a Boston-area company that buys and sells term papers. Most of the organizations engaging in such sales claim that they try to prevent duplication. In this case, the company provided papers that would have earned grades "somewhere in the B or C range," according to the professor who received the papers.

scumbings

like when you first step off to a war or something that

with the collective head of millions of nine-to-five protestors with banners unfurled on high
'end death'

while all seems lost in a battle with sincere fighters and weekend red can you picture being pent up in a five sided gray mass of egyptian slab

peering out your filing cabinet sees of heads of sweat and nightsticks

knowing your pushed pen is one that blows up skinny trees while skinny babies climb trees observing skinless hats being burned to get that red out.

and even though steppers are nine-to-five or bubblers

they are out to get that pen to gloriously suck blue fluid from your metal tubes of plated gold and starred authorities to CEASE your filing cabinet and end your five sided campaign

Vietnam
Free-it-man
of green soldiers and amethikan-sive-the-economy-mongers let it be let it be

Abbie Schaffer

Law And Med Applications Rising

By Philip W. Simon

Graduate-school applications and enrollments appear to be leveling off, while applications for admission to medical and law schools have risen dramatically and several thousand applicants will be turned away this fall.

An informal survey by The Chronicle of Graduate Deans and disciplinary associations indicates these other trends:

- Enrollments and, to some extent, applications are down at some of the more prestigious universities, while they are up at many state colleges and smaller private institutions with new graduate programs. Some of the private universities, including several in the Ivy League, are limiting graduate enrollments.
- Applications are up in the social sciences and down in physics and chemistry. Some institutions also report increased enrollments in the biological sciences.

Draft Deferrals End

There had been speculation by some graduate deans and scientific manpower experts that the end of draft deferments for graduate students in 1968 and the current shortage of jobs for Ph.D. recipients would mean a decline in graduate enrollments. That has not happened.

Graduate-school enrollments this year rose 6.55 per cent, from 390,485 in 1969-70 to 416,279 in 1970-71, according to a survey by the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States.

Based on informal checks with schools across the nation, the council estimates that next year's enrollments will at least equal this year's, if not exceed them.

Most deans write off the effects of the draft entirely. Some institutions that are limiting or reducing graduate enrollments cite the Ph.D. surplus, but most say they are cutting back because of financial problems and decreases in federal aid for graduate students.

Patterns of graduate applications are shifting, however, from the large private and state universities to the smaller state colleges. For example, graduate applications for next fall at Brown University are down 11 per cent, and Brown is planning to reduce its graduate enrollments by 12 to 15 per cent.

By contrast, at Mankato State College, a Minnesota institution with a relatively new and rapidly expanding graduate program, applications for next fall are up 20 per cent, as is enrollment.

New Schools Seen Benefiting

The new graduate schools are probably benefiting from the decisions of some of the prestigious universities to reduce or limit graduate enrollments, says Winston Brown, graduate dean at Mankato State.

Besides Brown, Harvard and Yale Universities and the University of California at Berkeley, among others, are planning to reduce their graduate enrollments next fall. Other state universities, such as the University of Illinois and Minnesota, are planning to hold graduate enrollment at this year's level because of budgetary problems and reduced federal support.

This trend worries some educators and other observers. "We see graduate enrollments down in the top-quality departments — and up in the emerging institutions," says Betty M. Vetter, director of the Scientific Manpower Commission. That may not change the quantity, but it will surely dilute the quality.

Even graduate deans at institutions with increasing enrollments are not completely optimistic.

"I have no great hopes for the future," says Herbert Weisinger, the graduate dean at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, a relatively new state college. "Graduate applications have increased 10 to 15 per cent. Like many other deans, he cites declining federal support for graduate students and the worsening job market for Ph.D. recipients.

Graduate deans are almost unanimous in reporting a decline in enrollments in the physical sciences, balanced by increases in the social sciences. This view is supported by professional associations in the various disciplines.

The number of first-year graduate students in physics is down 17 per cent, according to the American Institute of Physics.

In psychology, however, applications are "zooming up," says an official of the American Psychological Association. "Sociology has been gaining vis-a-vis other departments," says an official of the American Sociological Association.

Social scientists believe their fields are doing better in attracting students because they have not been hit as hard by the job shortage as the physical sciences.

The most dramatic changes in applications — for post-baccalaureate study are in the medical and law schools.

Medical School Rejections

The Association of American Medical Colleges estimates that 26,000 persons will apply for admission to medical schools this year, compared to 24,465 last year. Only 11,900 will be admitted. The association estimates that about 7,500 of the 14,300 who will be turned away would be qualified to enter, if there were places for them.

Applications have soared at some individual medical schools. Georgetown University has received 5,000 applications, the largest number in the nation, for 705 places. Harvard has 3,000 applications, compared to 1,600 last year.

The medical schools also report that increasing numbers of persons with Ph.D.'s are applying for admission. Some institutions, such as Harvard, the University of Southern California, and the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, say they could fill their entire entering classes with Ph.D.'s.

Up 20 Pct. in Law Schools

Law-school enrollments are increasing even faster than those of medical schools. According to a survey by the American Bar Association, enrollments are up 30 per cent, from 68,386 in 1969 to 89,041 in 1970.

Applications for next year have risen an estimated 30 per cent from last year's level. Harry B. Reese, professor of law at Northwestern University and chairman of the council that administers law-school entrance examinations, estimates that more than 100,000 applicants will take the tests this year, compared to 74,000 last year. The applicants will be competing for about 35,000 openings.

Many law schools are taking only one applicant in 10. Applications at the University of North Carolina are up 100 per cent, with more than 2,000 candidates for 230 places. Harvard has received 6,332 applications for about 700 places in its law school. Willamette University, in Oregon, reports 1,250 applicants for 120 places.

In contrast with medicine and law, engineering schools report a decline in enrollments. The Engineers Joint Council, a federation of 38 major engineering societies, says graduate enrollments are down about 2 per cent this year.

(Reprinted from the May 17, 1971 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education.)

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Werner M.D.

by Arnold Werner, M.D.

© 1971 College Press Service

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Werner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823

QUESTION: My husband and I have decided to start a family and I would like to know if there is an accurate way to determine when I am ovulating. Before I began taking the pill I had a rather irregular menstrual cycle, but on the average it was every 30 days. So much emphasis is put on contraception that I imagine very few women are really sure when they can get pregnant if they want to if their menstrual cycle is other than 28 days.

ANSWER: Menstruation begins approximately 14 days following ovulation. The interval between ovulation and the beginning of menstruation is rather constant for each woman — as is the interval from the beginning of menses to ovulation that accounts for the variation. Therefore, if a woman has a menstrual cycle that is 30 days in length she would be ovulating on about the 16th day of the cycle. In the so-called average cycle of 28 days, ovulation would occur on day 14 of the cycle. By convention, day one in the cycle is the first day of menstruation.

To pinpoint when ovulation actually occurs, you can make use of the fact that body temperature rises slightly (0.6 of a degree of Fahrenheit) due to the release of hormones simultaneously with the occurrence of ovulation. If the woman takes her temperature, preferably rectally, each morning before she gets out of bed and records this temperature she can often detect when ovulation has occurred. Of course, illnesses and natural variations can make certain months difficult to interpret. A rare woman can tell when she is ovulating because she gets a sharp pain in the flank region coincident with release of the egg.

The tick in getting pregnant is to get the sperm to where the egg is while both are in shape to do business. Sperm probably stay alive in the woman's reproductive tract for 48 hours and the egg can probably be fertilized somewhere during the 24 hour period after its release. Therefore, if intercourse occurs between a day or two before ovulation and a day after ovulation, there is an excellent chance that pregnancy will take place. It is usually recommended that the couple attempting to begin a pregnancy have intercourse the day before the assumed date of ovulation, on the day of ovulation and the day following.

It is usually recommended that oral contraceptives be stopped a couple of months before pregnancy is attempted.

QUESTION: I am writing for advice about a complexion problem. Although I have not had acne which would leave deep pock marks, I do have some small flaws which I would like to have removed from my skin. I've heard something about the "sanding" or "peeling" techniques to smooth over a rough complexion. Are these really effective for everybody? Would such a treatment be painful? I have sensitive skin.

ANSWER: There are a number of techniques to remove the top few layers of skin allowing normal regrowth without scarring. These techniques are based on the fact that the skin is actually many layers thick with regeneration occurring from fairly deep down. Therefore, certain blemishes which are more superficial can be removed and fresh skin without the blemishes grows over the area.

Two techniques that are used widely are sanding or dermal abrasion and freezing. In each case only a thin section of skin can be removed at a time and a number of treatments are necessary to eliminate blemishes. Very deep pock marks and scars can sometimes be made less apparent but usually cannot be removed entirely. With the use of local anesthesia, the techniques are not painful while they occur, but a raw and very tender area that must heal is left, so a moderate amount of discomfort can be anticipated. Because the abrasions are superficial, healing occurs rather quickly. Consultation with a dermatologist would answer your questions about the advisability of such a procedure.

QUESTION: While in Vietnam, I was subject to the loud sounds of artillery and other weapons. During an attack, a round exploded relatively near me. I was not wounded, but my ears gave me trouble for the rest of my tour. In my left ear I could hear several rather high pitched tones. Sometimes the tones are louder than at other times. There also seems to be a full feeling. When I was released from active duty the doctor told me the ringing in my ears would go away. It's been almost three years since my separation and if anything the ringing is worse. I don't mind the hearing loss so much but the ringing sometimes bothers me when I try to go to sleep.

ANSWER: Hearing depends upon an extraordinarily sensitive mechanism which can be damaged by sudden loud noises or by sustained periods of exposure to high levels of sound. It is said that performers in rock groups who spend hours rehearsing with loud amplifiers end up damaging their auditory acuity.

The condition you describe is technically called tinnitus. Your history certainly suggests that your hearing mechanism was damaged while you were in the service. Find out about getting authorization from the Veterans Administration to be evaluated by a specialist in the area of hearing.

Unfortunately, some types of ringing in the ears are very difficult to treat as anything done to change the ringing would also result in deafness. You need expert advice.

QUESTION: I write this letter out of frustration from masturbation. I am 24 years old and have been masturbating for two years. Ever since I started masturbating, my hair began to fall out, at first gradually and now profusely. I'm at my hair's end trying to find a way to stabilize this condition. I've ruled out heredity as a possible cause of the fallout because my father and both grandfathers still have a full head of hair. Can masturbation cause hair loss? I've also considered the psychological effect that masturbating might have on my hair loss.

ANSWER: I receive a large number of questions concerning harmful effects resulting from masturbation, but I'm still waiting for a testimonial to the beneficial effects. Masturbation during the sexually mature years usually begins in early adolescence. Often a man who has not masturbated during early adolescence has particular fears and concerns about this normal, harmless form of sexual release that stems from ultra-strong prohibitions which have been coupled with threats of loss of physical or mental function. The fact that you didn't begin to masturbate until you were 22 years old makes me wonder if you are prone to severe anxieties about sexual matters.

An emotional upset of a severe nature can result in hair loss. On the other hand, some men do begin to get bald at your age. There is a slight chance that your mother transmitted a baldness gene to you (the condition is recessive in women) or that you have a fungal disease of the scalp. A visit to a dermatologist can deal with the latter possibility and may even deal with the former, since he could recommend hair transplantation for you. On the other hand, if this is on an emotional basis I suggest that you seek help from a competent professional who can deal with your concerns.

QUESTION: My appendix sometimes hurts several hours at a time. It is not an unbearable pain, so I have never asked a doctor about it, but it seems to be happening more frequently in the past few months and I wonder what it means. Should I see a doctor?

ANSWER: I am impressed with your conviction that this is your appendix that hurts. I don't want to shock you or anything, but there is quite a bit of stuff rattling around in your abdominal cavity aside from your appendix. There are about 25 feet of intestines, a stomach, liver, spleen, pancreas, bladder, miscellaneous other things, plus ovaries and a uterus if you are a woman. The appendix is a three to four inch skinny remnant of the large intestine serving no discernable purpose in man. It is susceptible to becoming infected because it is a tube with a closed end.

An infected appendix can produce a large variety of symptoms, though characteristically the pain begins around the umbilicus and migrates down toward the lower right hand part of the abdomen.

While the likelihood is you are suffering some ill defined "gas pain" it would none the less be wise for you to visit a doctor and have him examine you so your fears could be allayed. If you are a woman, part of the examination the doctor performs should be a pelvic exam including taking a culture for gonorrhea and other bacteria as pelvic infections can cause abdominal pain.

QUESTION: I am a 26 year old man and have frequently been plagued with the following problem: Everytime I drink three or four beers before having sex with my fiancée, I get a burning sensation in the urethral area of my penis following orgasm. Could you tell me the cause and if it is a serious problem that must be corrected in the near future?

ANSWER: You have a unique opportunity to make a contribution to medical science. If inclined, you may proceed as follows: Starting with no beers increase your beer intake by one bottle each time before you have intercourse. Note the exact number of beers that causes the burning sensation. You can then try this with different brands and determine a "burn index" for each brand. You might even find the brand that will permit you to drink enough beer to make you impotent before any burning occurs. Then, you will be faced with another decision.

Urethral-burning can be caused by gonorrhea. In such a case the burning is severe and there is usually a discharge. Immediate treatment is advised. Other causes of burning can be an overly concentrated urine due to dehydration, or the presence of some unusual substances in the urine. Some men report the desire to urinate following intercourse; this appears related to the presence of semen in the urethra.

Alcohol definitely decreases one's ability to perform sexually (and in most other ways) if taken in excess. This is especially true as one ages (i.e. over 30, alas). One drink may serve to lower inhibitions and make sexual intercourse possible; multiple drinks may serve to avoid intercourse.

Arnold Werner

Job Market

(continued from page thirteen)

Since aerospace companies have been hit hardest by the economic slowdown, graduates in engineering and scientific areas face the worst job market. The placement council reports that job offers to bachelor's degree recipients in technical areas is down 66 per cent, compared with 48 per cent in non-technical areas.

At Oregon State University, 25 to 30 per cent of the engineering graduates lacked jobs in mid-May.

Rise in Government Interviews

Interviews for jobs in federal, state, and local government have increased on many campuses, because government is not affected as much as business by the economic slowdown.

Black students have not been affected by the job squeeze as much as white students. Andre G. Beaumont, managing director of College Placement Services, an independent consulting service that works primarily with the black colleges, says placement directors at black colleges report "virtually no reduction in the number of employers recruiting on their campuses."

The current job crisis may have had some beneficial effects, says Mr. Herrick of the placement council. "After 10 or 15 years of trying to convince students that they ought to plan ahead, placement directors suddenly had kids besieging them for information on the job market," he explains.

Computerized Services

Partially because of that, he adds, placement directors are "putting increased emphasis on career counseling and less on being a traffic cop" — matching students and employers.

The council is trying to help the placement directors get rid of that "traffic cop" role by developing a computerized placement system.

Under the program, known as GRAD II, students indicate their field of interest, their qualifications, the kind of job they want, and they preferences for location and type of employer.

The computer then matches these with its file of available jobs. The results of the matching are sent to the student, the employer, and the placement director.

The program was operated on an experimental basis this year, involving 17 campuses, 10,000 students, 117 employers, and 24,000 jobs. Next year, it will expand to 153 campuses and 90,000 students. By 1974, anyone who wants to participate will be able to.

(Reprinted from The Chronicle of Higher Education, June 7, 1971.)

DIRNDL'S IMPORTED FROM THE TIROL OF AUSTRIA

by Skihaus

10 Styles—All Sizes! Come Browse Or Write Us at Box 509 Middlebury, Vermont Or Call 388-4451. WE MAIL FREE OF CHARGE.

John M. Miller

Bob Reid

photography

Charles Gilman

Don Randau

John M. Miller

Bob Bair

John M. Miller

The

The CYNIC announces the "Second Semi-Annual CYNIC Photography Contest."

The rules are as follows:

1. The contest is open to all students of the University of Vermont who are amateurs. (Amateurs will be considered those people who do not support themselves by taking pictures.)
2. Each picture will fall in one of two categories: faces or landscapes.
3. All photographs will be black and white and will be approximately 8 x 10 inches. There is no limit to the number of photographs that each photographer may submit.
4. The picture submitted must be previously unpublished and it will be understood that the photographs submitted will be the property of the VERMONT CYNIC, which will have the consent of the photographer to publish them in the newspaper.
5. The VERMONT CYNIC has the right to request the photographer to submit a subject release form signed by those people who may appear in the photograph.
6. The pictures may have been taken at any time, past or present.

7. Pictures entered in the Second-Semi Annual CYNIC Photography Contest could not have been entered in any other photography contest sponsored by the CYNIC.

8. Photographs will be judged on print quality and composition by a board of judges.

9. The board of judges will consist of Titó, of the University Photo Service, Nancy Craigmile, a UVM junior, and Gene Peroni, photography editor of the CYNIC. These people will be ineligible to enter the contest.

10. All photographs should be placed in the appropriate box in the CYNIC office.

11. The photographer's name should be lightly printed in pencil on the back of each photograph he submits, along with a title, if any.

12. Deadline for entries will be November 19, 1971.

13. One winner will be chosen from each category and the winners will be announced in the December 2 issue of the CYNIC.

14. The winner in each category will receive $25.

All questions should be referred directly to Gene Peroni, in care of the CYNIC office.

puses

themselves to such."

In a memorandum to his staff at about the same time, Mr. Hoover said, "Increased campus disorders involving black students pose a definite threat to the nation's stability and security and indicate need for increased intelligence information."

"Fred Lemmon," Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian, recently suggested that more surveillance on campuses was needed.

The killing of four students by National Guardsmen at Kent State University last spring "has some hard lessons about the need of government to have full and accurate information," Mr. Mardian said in a law day speech to the "Increased campus disorders involving black students pose a definite threat to the nation's stability and security and indicate need for increase in both quality and quantity of intelligence information."

Federal Bar Association. "It is my belief that the tragedy at Kent State was the result of the men (guardsmen) not knowing initially what to expect, and then building expectation on the only information they had—rumor."

"I cannot help but wonder what would have happened if, because of thorough information, law-enforcement personnel had known from the beginning who might be a potential disrupter and who might be a potential peace-maker," Mr. Mardian said.

President Moon, of Minnesota, in his testimony before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, disagreed. He said:

"A polygraph portrait of political beliefs, randomly collected and stored among several bureaucratic warrens, presents a lifelong threat to not only the individual but even his family."

RAGES

from the beach

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

RAGES

from the beach

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

RAGES

from the beach

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

RAGES

from the beach

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

RAGES

from the beach

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

100 - 110

Lane Series Now Lets You Make Up Your Own Series

The 1971-1972 Lane Series, one of the top singing and instrumental groups in the country, will head the popular attractions on the 1971-1972 Lane Series. It was announced last week by Lane Committee chairman Leon Lawrence. The group will perform on Nov. 3.

Other popular artists in the process of negotiation at this date are singer Gordon Lightfoot and the British rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." It is confidently expected that each of these two attractions will be booked, with dates to be announced later.

Other major artists on the 1971-1972 series include the long-running Broadway comedy hit "Butterflies are Free," scheduled for Oct. 18. Kiki Dorian created the leading role in this play on Broadway.

Also, the Scots Guards (April 13), a regimental marching band from Great Britain, including bands, pipes, drums and dancers. A company of 60, this unit is one of Britain's most famous regiments to appear in a musical spectacular of pomp and ceremony. This concert will appear in Patrick Gym.

Two of the world's most famous orchestras have also been booked: Pierre Boulez conducting The Cleveland Orchestra (March 23), making its third appearance on the Lane Series, and the Budapest Symphony Orchestra (Nov. 29), from Hungary, under the direction of György Ligeti.

Among the solo artists will be pianist Claudio Arrau (Feb. 3), hailed by critics as one of "the greatest musicians in the world today," and violinist Daniel Heifetz (March 2), young American artist who has won many prizes.

Another major attraction will be the Vienna Opera Company (Jan. 18), making its first tour of North America. One of the largest and most prestigious groups ever to appear on any Lane Series, the company will offer Johann Strauss' comic opera "Die Fledermaus," complete with full orchestra, sets and costumes.

Dance will be represented by the American Ballet Company (Nov. 11 and 12), whose director, Eliot Feld, has been hailed as the single most important choreographic talent to emerge on the American ballet scene in this generation, and also by the Sierra Leone National Dance Troupe (Oct. 23), a folk company from Africa.

Rounding out the series will be the Preservation Hall Jazz Band (April 26) from New Orleans — the greatest of the original New Orleans jazz bands; the Romero (March 13), a family of four guitarists — father and three sons; and the Juilliard String Quartet (Nov. 19), in its third appearance under Lane auspices. This last concert will be held in the Ira Allen Chapel.

This year, for the first time in its seventeen seasons, the Lane Series will inaugurate a new system of concert selection. Each subscriber will be allowed to choose his own series of 6, 9, 12 or all 15 events.

Prices remain the same as those of last year: $24, $21, $17 and $13 for six events; $36, $32, $26, $20 for nine events; $48, $42, $34, and $26 for twelve events; and $60, $53, $43, and $33 for all fifteen events.

Brochures, including ticket applications, will be mailed to all students (old, new, and transfers), and also to faculty, staff and townspeople on the Lane mailing list, in mid-August. Students will receive their brochures at their home address. If an upperclassman student's address is not listed in the current Directory, or if his address has been changed, he should notify the Lane Office (234 Waterman, UVM — tel. 656-3418).

Tickets may be ordered upon receipt of the brochure. Faculty, staff and students are given priority if their orders are received before Sept. 12. Since many of the concerts are quickly sold out, subscribers are urged to send in their orders immediately.

It is to the advantage of every subscriber to purchase season tickets: a savings of approximately 50% is effected by the purchase of a season ticket. Single concert admissions, which go on sale two weeks before each concert, are $6, $5.25, $4.50, and $3.75.

Faculty, staff and townspeople may have their names placed on the mailing list by contacting the Lane Office.

In addition to the live concerts, the Lane Series will offer a series of "Horror Classics" films on Thursday evenings at 9 p.m. in Marsh Life Sciences Building Auditorium. The six films are "Freaks" (Sept. 30), "Vampyr" (Oct. 7), "Diabolique" (Oct. 14), "King Kong" (Oct. 21), "How of the Wolf" (Oct. 28), and "Masque of the Red Death" (Nov. 4).

Season tickets for the six films are $5.00, and single film admissions are $1.00.

The George Bishop-Lane Artists Series, a major university concert series, is due to the generous gift of Mrs. George B. Lane in 1954 in memory of her husband, George B. Lane, class of 1883. Formally started in 1955, the Lane Series was enthusiastically received that a Summer Series was immediately begun in 1956, a second winter series added in 1958, and a third winter series in 1967.

Another program, the Lane Chamber Arts Series, was started in 1961; and the Lane Film Society Series made its appearance in 1970. In addition, one or more youth concerts and special attractions are offered each year. Finally, the Lane Series frequently sponsors Extension Concerts in towns outside of the Burlington area, notably in St. Johnsbury and Springfield.

The prices for Lane Series tickets, which are bought by nearly fifty percent of the student body as well as by large numbers of faculty, staff and townspeople, are kept low because of the subsidy from the Lane fund. Also, this year for the first time, many donations have been received from individuals and corporations to help the Lane Series maintain its current programs. These later gifts have been solicited by a group known as the Friends of the Lane Series, whose honorary chairmen are soprano Beverly Sills and pianist Rudolf Serkin. Mr. Bernard H. Zais, prominent Burlington business man, has headed this year's Friends of the Lane Series drive. Mr. Zais has been a member of the Lane Advisory Committee for several years.

IKE & TINA TURNER

ENTERTAINMENT

Avadon-Black Goes To Trial For Draft Dodging

Everyone who saw Avadon-Black perform his mystifying show at UVM will always remember him. The charge for admission to his show—your friendship. We are not eulogizing Avadon, or are we? There is no doubt about it, his immediate future is bleak.

In April of 1969, AVADON-BLACK, actor, left the U.C.L.A. school of theatre with only a pack and a sleeping bag plus the energy and imagination to carry out his daring dream. His dream was to hitchhike all through the country and share the beauty and power of his unique new theatre with the people he met.

Arriving at universities uninvited, he conjured up theatres in which to perform and even more magically built large audiences for his performances. In over forty universities from Bangor to San Diego, thousands of people have experienced his one man show. In the show, Avadon recreates the truckers, soldiers, and salesmen who have carried him over 29,000 hitchhiked miles. In one sequence, Avadon, playing a soldier from Ft. Ord, tells of his army experiences: the cold inhumanity of military bureaucracy, a desperate need for money to support a family, and a frightening murder by military guards. In another piece, Avadon plays a confused and frustrated insurance salesman running away from his wife who will never sleep with him nor accept his kisses. "AVADON-BLACK opens up eyes, hearts and heads, and makes us begin to see, feel, and hear the world around us." Program director, University of Iowa.

Avadon doesn't believe in tickets, he opens the doors of the theatre to everyone. During his two years on the road, Avadon's audiences have supported him with donations of food, money, lodging, and sometimes an embrace.

And then Avadon would be back on the road with his pack, hitchhiking, waiting for a ride. Now he's waiting for his trial.

On February 2, 1971, AVADON-BLACK returned to Los Angeles to refuse induction into the army. As to why, he said, "Life is sacred. I will do everything I can to perpetuate and inspire life. I will not learn to destroy. I cannot accept alternative service as that would affirm the government's right to impress men into service. I can't put an end to war or to the military corruption of the human spirit. I can only refuse to participate." He finds some humor in his situation: Waiting in an office, Avadon overheard two officers discussing "deployment of troops" and "effective use of forces" then he realized they were talking about the typists at the Selective Service Center.

On June 22, 1971, twenty-two year-old AVADON-BLACK went on trial in Federal District Court of Los Angeles. He faces a sentence of up to five years in prison.

The result of the trial was not known to the Cyrus before publication. We will keep you informed.

WATERBEDS!

by LIQUA-LUV ONLY

WANTED!!! $29.95

STUDENT REPS FOR OUR WATERBEDS (ANY SIZE)

OPPORTUNITIES PATCHES
DECALS
T-SHIRTS
CLOTHING
WORK AVAILABLE

Call for details

GAYNES... CLOSEST
DEPT. STORE
TO THE CAMPUS!

SOLANACEAE NATURAL FOODS, Inc.

415 SO. WINOOSKI AVE. • BURLINGTON, VERMONT 05401 • 863-6130
OPEN MON - THURS 10:00 - 5:30 FRI - UNTIL 9:00 & SAT

MACROBIOTIC SUPPLIES
PARAMOUNT BREAD ORGANIC PRODUCE
NUTS&CEREALS
HERBAL TEAS
DRIED FRUIT
CHEESE
HONEY BOOKS
EGGS

HEADQUARTERS FOR SAVINGS ON.....

- * Ladies and Men's FASHIONS
- * Panasonic and Sony ELECTRONICS
- * Latest Releases ALBUMS & TAPES
- * Complete Selection SPORTS GEAR
- * Top Brands in PHOTOGRAPHY
- * Big Savings on COSMETICS
- * Dormitory & Apartment FURNISHINGS

GAYNES... CLOSEST
DEPT. STORE
TO THE CAMPUS!

UVM Speaks

Sam Jaffe, the former ABC commentator, April 12, 1971.

Book Review:

Black Co

by Victor de Keyserling

Historically black colleges and universities founded in the U.S. after the Civil War were, until a decade ago, the main hope of black youth for higher education. Today these institutions—more than 100 in all—still have important work to do, but many of them are in serious trouble, according to Between Two Worlds (McGraw-Hill, $7.95), a new book about the black colleges and universities, written for The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education. The authors are Frank Bowles, academic vice president of Hailu Sellaia I University, Ethiopia, and Frank A. DeCosta, dean of the graduate school of Morgan State College, Baltimore.

no stranger to colleges; its now intense have to cur institutions students, administrators. Proportional black colleges fallen off the movement. students today there remain fact that the college he- unreadiness. "At the any other is to demon-

'Niggerhead'...

(continued from page one)

selections include Rep. Arnold Tibbitts, R-67, of Marshfield, who would have had the pond, mountain and brook named after himself had one member of the Legislature had his way.

Rep. Emory A. Hebard, R-28, of Glover, introduced a resolution calling for the name of the three geographic locations to be changed to "Tibbitts," but the resolution was rejected by the House General Committee.

Although Hebard said his resolution was serious, some members of the Legislature believed it was made in jest because Tibbitts is such an avowed foe of Goddard College where much of the push for the name change emanated. However, the state has been petitioning for the change for some time.

In 1966 the former trustees of the state Library Board held two public hearings on the matter.

At that time the former Vermont Council of Churches, along with a number of other groups, pushed for the change in name but it was resisted by many older Marshfield residents who were led by Asst. Atty. Gen. Robert Schwartz of Marshfield, who was then the state's motor vehicle commissioner.

The 1965 board turned down the name change on a 4-1 vote, with only Sen. Graham Newell, R-Caledonia, voting in its favor.

Vermont Supreme Court Chief Justice James S. Holden, who was then an ex-officio member of that board, had pleaded with the group to change the name on the grounds it had racist overtones and was offensive to many people.

On Wednesday Atty. Gen. C. Flitts of Brattleboro, a board member, made the motion that the names be changed to "Marshfield."

There was no question that the intervention of Gov. Davis had motivated the board to make the move.

On Tuesday the governor had written a letter to Lorrman, Brigham of Montpelier, chairman of the board, in which Davis said:

"While I think this issue has been blown up out of all proportion, nevertheless, if there

1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137, 2138, 2139, 2140, 2141, 2142, 2143, 2144, 2145, 2146, 2147, 2148, 2149, 2150, 2151, 2152, 2153, 2154, 2155, 2156, 2157, 2158, 2159, 2160, 2161, 2162, 2163, 2164, 2165, 2166, 2167, 2168, 2169, 2170, 2171, 2172, 2173, 2174, 2175, 2176, 2177, 2178, 2179, 2180, 2181, 2182, 2183, 2184, 2185, 2186, 2187, 2188, 2189, 2190, 2191, 2192, 2193, 2194, 2195, 2196, 2197, 2198, 2199, 2200, 2201, 2202, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2206, 2207, 2208, 2209, 2210, 2211, 2212, 2213, 2214, 2215, 2216, 2217, 2218, 2219, 2220, 2221, 2222, 2223, 2224, 2225, 2226, 2227, 2228, 2229, 2230, 2231, 2232, 2233, 2234, 2235, 2236, 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240, 2241, 2242, 2243, 2244, 2245, 2246, 2247, 2248, 2249, 2250, 2251, 2252, 2253, 2254, 2255, 2256, 2257, 2258, 2259, 2260, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2264, 2265, 2266, 2267, 2268, 2269, 2270, 2271, 2272, 2273, 2274, 2275, 2276, 2277, 2278, 2279, 2280, 2281, 2282, 2283, 2284, 2285, 2286, 2287, 2288, 2289, 2290, 2291, 2292, 2293, 2294, 2295, 2296, 2297, 2298, 2299, 2300, 2301, 2302, 2303, 2304, 2305, 2306, 2307, 2308, 2309, 2310, 2311, 2312, 2313, 2314, 2315, 2316, 2317, 2318, 2319, 2320, 2321, 2322, 2323, 2324, 2325, 2326, 2327, 2328, 2329, 2330, 2331, 2332, 2333, 2334, 2335, 2336, 2337, 2338, 2339, 2340, 2341, 2342, 2343, 2344, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2350, 2351, 2352, 2353, 2354, 2355, 2356, 2357, 2358, 2359, 2360, 2361, 2362, 2363, 2364, 2365, 2366, 2367, 2368, 2369, 2370, 2371, 2372, 2373, 2374, 2375, 2376, 2377, 2378, 2379, 2380, 2381, 2382, 2383, 2384, 2385, 2386, 2387, 2388, 2389, 2390, 2391, 2392, 2393, 2394, 2395, 2396, 2397, 2398, 2399, 2400, 2401, 2402, 2403, 2404, 2405, 2406, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2410, 2411, 2412, 2413, 2414, 2415, 2416, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2422, 2423, 2424, 2425, 2426, 2427, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436, 2437, 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, 2442, 2443, 2444, 2445, 2446, 2447, 2448, 2449, 2450, 2451, 2452, 2453, 2454, 2455, 2456, 2457, 2458, 2459, 2460, 2461, 2462, 2463, 2464, 2465, 2466, 2467, 2468, 2469, 2470, 2471, 2472, 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 2478, 2479, 2480, 2481, 2482, 2483, 2484, 2485, 2486, 2487, 2488, 2489, 2490, 2491, 2492, 2493, 2494, 2495, 2496, 2497, 2498, 2499, 2500, 2501, 2502, 2503, 2504, 2505, 2506, 2507, 2508, 2509, 2510, 2511, 2512, 2513, 2514, 2515, 2516, 2517, 2518, 2519, 2520, 2521, 2522, 2523, 2524, 2525, 2526, 2527, 2528, 2529, 2530, 2531, 2532, 2533, 2534, 2535, 2536, 2537, 2538, 2539, 2540, 2541, 2542, 2543, 2544, 2545, 2546, 2547, 2548, 2549, 2550, 2551, 2552, 2553, 2554, 2555, 2556, 2557, 2558, 2559, 2560, 2561, 2562, 2563, 2564, 2565, 2566, 2567, 2568, 2569, 2570, 2571, 2572, 2573, 2574, 2575, 2576, 2577, 2578, 2579, 2580, 2581, 2582, 2583, 2584, 2585, 2586, 2587, 2588, 2589, 2590, 2591, 2592, 2593, 2594, 2595, 2596, 2597, 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, 2606, 2607, 2608, 2609, 2610, 2611, 2612, 2613, 2614, 2615, 2616, 2617, 2618, 2619, 2620, 2621, 2622, 2623, 2624, 2625, 2626, 2627, 2628, 2629, 2630, 2631, 2632, 2633, 2634, 2635, 2636, 2637, 2638, 2639, 2640, 2641, 2642, 2643, 2644, 2645, 2646, 2647, 2648, 2649, 2650, 2651, 2652, 2653, 2654, 2655, 2656, 2657, 2658, 2659, 2660, 2661, 2662, 2663, 2664, 2665, 2666, 2667, 2668, 2669, 2670, 2671, 2672, 2673, 2674, 2675, 2676, 2677, 2678, 2679, 26

Sororities And Fraternities Realize New Directions Are Needed for Survival Of System

(Editor's Note: The following article appeared in the May 31, 1971 issue of Commonwealth, which is published by the Public Relations Department of the University of Vermont. Dick Whittier, '68, and Cindy Kent, '68, both writer editors for Commonwealth are the authors of the reports on fraternities and sororities respectively.)

In Summary their findings reveal:

"Membership is down, but the financial picture is brightening. The Greek system at Vermont is continuing to do well, and while no one has projected any losses, we left our series of interviews feeling that, as one woman put it, 'now that we've admitted we have a problem, we can start to do something about it.'"

THE FRATERNITIES

Rushing statistics point out that the fraternities witnessed a 20 per cent decline in membership, but thanks to a relatively new organization on campus, the Fraternity Managers' Association, the financial picture is probably the strongest in its history.

The next few years are critical for the survival of the fraternity system on campus. A continuous dip in membership would undoubtedly agitate the financial stability of the system. "Membership has been severely declining, and without an increase of approximately 15 new pledges this semester, we shall be in dire circumstances," said Alpha Tau Omega president, Jim Harrington. Formal rushing statistics revealed that ATO had one pledge this semester. However, all is not that bleak.

Most of the fraternities are confident that the present members are beginning to realize the value of a solid recruiting program, and many of the houses had the most organized rushing tactics in years. "The brothers are realizing the importance of rushing, and are becoming more active. I feel the future is very promising," said Bob Gormann, president of Theta Chi.

Most of the fraternity presidents (13 of 16) responding to our questionnaire felt the change in the attitude of the college men today has altered drastically. "The once major status symbol (fraternity) and center of all campus social life no longer exists," says Jim Libby, president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

"Because of this new emphasis on small group and individual endeavors, the great attraction in fraternities a few years ago—doing things with a large number of men—no longer has the same drawing power."

"Although the numbers may be down, the quality is up," added Libby. However, Phi Sigma Delta was forced to sell its house last fall and Tau Epsilon Phi is currently petitioning the administration for the permission to go co-educational. Both were inactive during formal rushing.

Delta Psi topped rushing statistics with 26 pledges, followed by Alpha Epsilon Pi (18) and Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon with 16 each. Only one house (ATO) had less than seven pledges.

Financially, most of the fraternities are in a tight spot. The FMA manager, Robert Pisk, a retired Army colonel, strongly feels the fiscal future of the houses on campus is a "very healthy" one. Fourteen of the 16 fraternities are now members of the FMA.

"FMA has been a positive development the last three years for the fraternity system and I see financially strong years ahead," said Richard W. Powers, Acting Dean of Students.

But, memberships are another problem. "While the institution has grown in recent years, the fraternities have not. Thus, they (fraternities) have become less influential. Growth hasn't been TEP's new "experiment" appears to be a success.

proportionate with that of the University," said Powers.

In addition to the Fraternity Managers' Association, the fraternities have another "new look" approach. It is called Fraternity Forum.

Replacing the traditional Interfraternity Council (IFC), Fraternity Forum is an organization which hopefully will become, in the words of past-IFC president, Jim Millett, "a forum for an exchange of ideas, concepts, problems and programs, where the fraternity system will make better utilization of the manpower within the houses; with the end result—workable solutions for the majority (if not all) of the fraternities on campus."

Basically, the new Fraternity Forum principle is a workshop of ideas which will be molded together, to help each fraternity in one area or another. For example, house stewards are to meet on a regular basis discussing the many kitchen problems they confront today (particularly, the trend of food prices).

Responsible and detailed discussion of the problems hopefully "will save money in the long run and make our fraternity system more effective and realistic," replied Millett, the interim president of Fraternity Forum. Another backer of Fraternity Forum is Fraternity Affairs Coordinator, Hal Woods. "It seems to me, the fraternity men, behind the leadership of Millett, have become more responsible. The Forum is an arena for discussion of mutual interaction. It is more dependent on self-motivation than was IFC."

It could develop into "an invaluable tool for the fraternity system or, as Millett says, "We could fall flat on our faces." But, he doesn't think so. "We have developed something which should set up stronger communication within the system (as opposed to IFC) and hopefully Fraternity Forum will become more workable for everyone involved."

THE SORORITIES

The sororities at UVM are governed through the Panhellenic Council, an organization of which every sister is a member. Its purpose is to organize, activate and coordinate the six sororities on campus. A seventh sorority, Alpha Epsilon Phi, became inactive last year because an insufficient number had indicated a desire to live in the house.

We asked Dean of Women hundred and thirty-nine women entered UVM last fall as freshmen).

"When the Greek system enters to be influential on a campus," says Dean Gribbons, "it's time to take a hard look at the direction of the program." The Dean's role vis-a-vis the sorority system is primarily an advisory one, but with the recent rush statistics in the plans to become "more active. There are many good things going on," she says. "The basic direction and attitude just have to change. These groups have got to find what it is they can do better than any other group, and do it."

Senior Lynne Saxton of Wallingford, Conn., is president of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, one of the two houses which took their quota of pledges this year. She feels that the University's attitude is one of "using the Greeks as a scapegoat for the general ills on campus... the Greeks owe everyone an explanation for their existence, while other organizations are not challenged."

Many of the respondents to our questionnaire felt, as Miss Saxton does, that "with the 'dorms changing and offering many of the social programs formerly confined to the Greek system, fraternities and sororities are attracting people with larger interests than simply social."

Kappa Alpha Theta is the other house that met its quota of pledges. But house president Donna Kuniholm, a junior from Orange, Mass., feels that interest in the Greek system is on the decline. "I don't think there will be enough people rushing in ten years to keep the house alive."

Sharon Wagner, president of Alpha Delta Pi, is a junior from Brattleboro, Vt. Kake Walk, she says, was one of the Greek system's major social functions, and without it "it is the other aspects of Greek life that will attract future Greeks." Today's students, according to Miss

Wagner, are no longer interested in the past social functions of the Greek system, which now is attracting "those more interested in service."

Will more sororities dissolve this year? we asked Dean Gribbons. "No," she said, "they'll continue to find enough pledges, at the present rate, to hang on two, three, four years." At some institutions where problems were so insurmountable, she said, chapter presidents requested that their charters be lifted. "I hope this never happens here. It doesn't have to."

Senior Polly Herlihy, a sister of Alpha Chi Omega from Reading, Mass., is just completing her term as Panhellenic Council President. She feels that the sorority system has to take a hard look at where it is going. "When the national see the latest rush statistics, they'll be asking questions. You can't build classes when each house pledged, on the average, six freshmen."

Delta Delta Delta sorority has joined the Fraternity Managers' Association in an effort to trim expenditures, and at least two other sororities are considering doing the same. FMA provides financial advice and practical assistance in areas such as cooperative buying of food.

"It's nice to give repair jobs on the house to the men down the street," just because it's a tradition," says Miss Herlihy. "But we should put things out on bid. Everyone is so much more careful how he spends his money these days."

"We're asking people to spend about $200 more per year to be in a sorority than they would spend if they were not. We have to have real reasons for women to join—we have to undergo some positive changes."

"Dean Gribbons," she says, "has the most optimistic way of facing up to problems. After you leave a meeting with her, you go out saying 'What great challenges are ahead!' Only later does it hit you that it's going to be a lot of work."

Trustees Study Im

(continued from page one)

remember, he said, "is that we've have spent more than we've taken in in the current year in spite of stringency economies."

The budget for fiscal '72 is balanced, he said, "but not necessarily balanced, because we've wiped out all our reserves." The Board authorized use of the reserves to balance the fiscal '71 budget and approved the revised budget for fiscal '72—a budget of approximately $38.6 million.

ETV Budget, Gifts and Grants

Alumni Giving Increasing The Board also approved a $364,000 operating budget for Vermont Educational Television, up slightly from the $338,000 current budget operation.

Budget and Finance Committee Chairman William J. Humphrey of Mt. Carmel, Conn., saving "the good news for last," reported receipt of gifts and grants of $108,000 and $741,000 received since the last meeting of the Board in April.

The Trustees also heard some encouraging news from George H. Sloan of Rutland, reporting for the Development Committee. "Despite all the things we hear are wrong," he said, "alumni giving to the University's unrestricted alumni fund is the largest in history, with more alumni participating this year." The parents fund has doubled, he added, and membership in the Ira Allen Society, according to Sloan, have given $1,000 or more to one of the unrestricted funds.

CYNIC: We won't be information level funding ANDREWS: On a darker note, Sloan said "at no time has it been more important for us to have good communications, yet we are faced with having to reduce our communications resources due to budget stringencies."

Green Light for Private Phase of Fine Arts The UVM Board approved a motion signaling action for improved facilities for the University's educational programs in the fine arts area, which they long ago called the number one priority for campus development.

The action came when they passed the following resolution, introduced by Sloan:

Resolution It is the recommendation of the Development Committee that the University proceed with the private phase of the fine arts program, which will include the construction of a new building for the fine arts department, and the purchase of additional equipment for the fine arts department.

Baseball...

(continued from page one)

Holmquest wants to find another coaching job at another university, but his plans have not been finalized by the time this paper went to press in early July.

Student Reactions Some students feel the administration could and should have found another way of cutting expenses. Other students felt that baseball was the logical sport to cut since the climate does not permit a long season. It was also cited that the attendance at the few home games that there are, was extremely small.

Many students were more concerned by the decision taken by the administration than by the decision itself. It was felt by Student Association leaders that the fact that the decision was made during exam, a time when the students had very little time to question the administration, was strictly a political move.

The Cynic was unable to publish any information last semester concerning the dropping of baseball since the decision came shortly after the last issue of the Cynic for the Spring Semester.

Administration's Reaction When the Cynic asked the Acting Dean of Students, Richard Powers, the reason for the decision he explained that the budget had to be cut by $30,000. According to Powers, the administration felt that it would be better for the athletic program as a whole if they cut just one sport rather than "chipping" more from each sport. "We simply could not have anything else off the other sports to make up for the deficiency in the budget, because the other sports are already at their minimal operating level."

When asked why the decision was made in the manner that it was, so late and abruptly, Powers answered that this method provided relatively little room for outside political pressures.

Everything You Need for Exciting 4 Channel Stereo Now...

From LAFAYETTE

4 CHANNEL STEREO...

The Second HI-FI Revolution

Some years ago stereo brought a new dimension to the music listening experience. Today, we see the beginning of another revolutionary era in high fidelity—four channel sound. The difference between ordinary 2-channel stereo and 4-channel stereo is even more dramatic than the difference between 2-channel stereo and mono. Four channels of sound offer greater musical expression, greater clarity, and an increased sense of "presence" in the music conveyed to your ears. No longer will you have to sit and listen from a particular spot in your room. As you sit, you can move around, and the sound will follow you. The sound of 4-channel stereo is truly a new dimension in music. Recorded music, the sound of 4-channel stereo is truly a new dimension in music. Recorded music, the sound of 4-channel stereo is truly a new dimension in music. Recorded music, the sound of 4-channel stereo is truly a new dimension in music.

Lafayette, in one giant step, has taken 4-channel stereo sound out of the dream stage and made it a reality now... at a price you can afford!

The combination of our new LA-44 4-channel stereo Amplifier and new RK-48 4-channel 8-track stereo cartridge Tape Deck will provide you with the complete electronics for 4-channel stereo. With the pre-recorded 4-channel 8-track stereo cartridges available right now, you need only add four speakers and thrill to an exciting new dimension in sound—a sound that surrounds and involves you in a totally new musical experience.

Our new four channel amplifier also has what we call "PSC" (Program Source Compatibility). An exclusive "Composer" circuit provides "derived" 4-channel sound from any standard 2-channel stereo program source (records, tape, FM) by a special system of "ambience recovery". This is not a gimmick, but rather another method of deriving 4-channel material already present in most 2-channel program sources. "PSC" means you need not relegate your precious stereo records and tapes to the junk heap. Compatibility means the RK-48 Tape Deck will play back standard 2-channel 8-track stereo tape cartridges as well.

The LA-44 also permits you to set up two separate independently controlled stereo systems (For example, an FM tuner system in one room and a phono or tape system in another). The LA-44 has complete control flexibility with most functions pushbutton controlled. Power output is 170 watts ± 1 db. Six pairs of inputs and jacks for two pairs of headphones are provided. We believe that these Lafayette instruments are truly extraordinary. The Price? Only $219.95 for the LA-44 and $79.95 for the RK-48.

Listen to a demonstration of the newest innovation in the world of high fidelity at your nearest Lafayette dealer. At the same time you can choose from the full line of Lafayette quality speaker systems.

Lafayette Radio Electronics

Complete Electronics Center
Shelburne Road, Burlington, Vt.
Phone 658-4617

Of System

Wagner, are no longer interested in the dual special functions of the Greek system, which now is attracting "more and more interest in service."

Will more sororities dissolve this year? We asked Dean Gribbons. "No," she said, "they'll continue to find enough pledges, at the present rate, to hang on two, three, four years." At some institutions where problems were so insurmountable, she said, chapter presidents requested that their charters be lifted. "I hope this never happens here. It doesn't have to."

Second Party Herlihy, a sister of Alpha Chi Omega from Reading, Mass., is just completing her term as Pledge Council President. She feels that the sorority system has to take a hard look at where it is going. "When the national see the latest rash statistics, they'll be asking questions. You can't build classes when each house pledges, on the average, six freshmen."

Delta Delta Delta sorority has joined the Fraternity Managers Association in an effort to trim expenditures, and at least two other sororities are considering doing the same. FMA provides financial advice and practical experience in the area of cooperative buying of food.

"It's nice to give repair jobs on the house to the man down the street, just because it's a tradition," says Miss Herlihy. "But we should put things out on bid. Everyone is so much more careful how he spends his money these days."

"We're asking people to spend about $200 more per year to be in a sorority than they would spend if they were not. We have to have real reasons for women to join—we have to undergo some positive changes."

"Dean Gribbons," she says, "has the most optimistic way of facing up to problems. After you leave a meeting with her, you go out saying 'What great challenges are ahead!' Only later does it hit you that it's going to be a lot of work."

Trustees Study Implications Of '18-Year Majority'

(continued from page one)

remember, he said, "is that we'll have spent more than we've taken in in the current year in spite of stringent economies."

The budget for fiscal '72 is balanced, he said, "but previously balanced, because we've wiped out all our reserves."

The Board authorized use of the reserves to balance the fiscal '71 budget and approved the revised budget for fiscal '72—a budget of approximately $38.6 million.

ETV Budget, Gifts and Grants

Alumni Giving Increasing
The Board also approved a $564,000 operating budget for Vermont Educational Television, up slightly from the $538,000 current budget operation.

Budget and Finance Committee Chairman Bingham J. Humphrey of Mt. Carmel, Conn., saying "the good news for last," reported receipt of gifts and grants of $108,000 and $741,000 received since the last meeting of the Board in April.

The Trustees also heard some encouraging and some discouraging news from George H. Sloan of Rutland, reporting for the Development Committee. "Despite all the things we hear are wrong," he said, "alumni giving to the University's unrestricted alumni fund is the largest in history, with more alumni participating this year."

The parents fund has doubled, he added, and membership in the Ira Allen Society, accorded to all who have given $1,000 or more to one of the unrestricted funds, has reached its highest point since formal establishment of the Development Office, with 50 members to date.

On a darker note, Sloan said "at no time has it been more important for us to have good communications, yet we are faced with having to reduce our communications resources due to budget stringencies."

Green Light for Private

Phase of Fine Arts
The UVM Board approved a motion signaling action for improved facilities for the University's educational programs in the fine arts area, which they long ago called the number one priority for campus development.

The action came when they passed the following resolution, introduced by Sloan:

Resolved: It is the recommendation of the Development Committee that the University proceed with Baseball...

(continued from page one)

Holmquist wants to find another coaching job at another university, but his plans have not been finalized by the time this paper went to press in early July.

Student Reactions

Some students feel the administration could and should have found another way of cutting expenses. Other students felt that baseball was the logical sport to cut since the climate does not permit a long season. It was also cited that the attendance at the few home games that there are are extremely small.

Many students were more disturbed by the procedure taken by the administration than by the decision itself. It was felt by Student Association leaders, that the fact that the decision was made during exams, a time when the students had very little time to question the administration, was strictly a political move.

The Cynic was unable to publish any information last semester concerning the dropping of baseball since the decision came shortly after the last issue of the Cynic for the Spring Semester.

Administration's Reaction

When the Cynic asked the Acting Dean of Students, Richard Powers, the reason for the decision he explained that the budget had to be cut by $30,000. According to Powers, the administration felt that it would be better for the athletic program as a whole if they cut just one sport rather than "shaving" more from each sport. "We simply could not shave anything else off the other sports to make up for the deficiency in the budget, because the other sports are already at their minimal operating level."

When asked why the decision was made in the manner that it was, so late and abruptly, Powers answered that this method provided relatively little room for outside political pressure.

the private phase of the fund effort toward construction of new and renovation of existing facilities for the departments of art, music, and theatre and communications. New classroom and laboratory facilities for these education programs which are integral to the University's liberal arts opportunities are urgently needed. This resolution gives formal impetus to our objective of earliest action to remedy the current situation.

Admission for all Qualified

Vermonters Reaffirmed

With non-resident tuition of $2400 and resident tuition of $950, University of Vermont Trustees are studying carefully the implication of the act passed by the Legislature making it the duty of the University to accept all qualified students.

Trustee Allen O. Eaton of Winchester, Mass., reporting for the educational policy committee, said the committee will have a report for the August meeting of the Board, which was not available in time for this issue.

He also said the committee had discussed UVM's faculty salary situation at some length and commented that the University faces difficulties because of its "relatively low scale."

Enrollment projections were also a matter for considerable discussion of his committee, and he noted that the rate of enrollment growth is "leveling off."

Trustee Luther F. Mackett of South Burlington, a member of the committee, noted the University has formally affirmed its admissions policy of admitting all qualified Vermonters. Trustee Sloan added that UVM also continues to offer admission to a relatively substantial number of well qualified non residents.

C. Douglas Cairns of Burlington reported the Investment Committee has discussed the new "common fund" of the Ford Foundation, designed primarily to assist smaller colleges with investments. Noting the Ford Foundation has thrown about $800,000 into the fund to get it started, Cairns said "our committee agreed we should look into this," said the committee planned to meet with a representative of the Fund at Dartmouth, and would report back at the next meeting.

Health Service Undermined

Arthur H. Jones of Morgan said a preliminary report to the Student Activities Committee indicated the University's student health service is "understaffed, underfunded, and has inadequate facilities."

The current student health fee provides only a third to a half of the support needed, he said, adding a complete report on the study of the service by an accrediting team would be made to the Board in August.

He also reported that court action is still pending on the mandatory student activities fee.

He also summarized a report to the Committee by UVM Financial Aid Director Dale Hyerstay. UVM currently administers nine different federal programs—seven of them not yet funded for the coming year. Something of the impact of this is indicated in the fact that 53 per cent of UVM's aid resources are now federally funded. About 25 to 30 per cent of UVM students are receiving aid, said Jones, who commented Dean Powers, who has served as committee liaison while Dean of Students Roland D. Patzer has been on sabbatical leave.

Dr. Senger, President of Sengul, receives honorary degree from governor Davis (left), President Andrews, right.

Andrew's Objective Is To Improve Administrative Beauracracy

(continued from page one)

their benefits, what they mean to the University and the State, etc. We won't begin to get all this information until the fall.

CYNIC: What would you attribute the state's policy of level funding for UVM?

ANDREWS: I think the reason we got level funding this year, as did many other state programs, is simply because of the shortage of dollars. As you know, we had a close vote on the fine arts building. That came so close to passing that I think it is very encouraging. We had a lot of support from the legislature—we didn't have quite enough.

CYNIC: Do you see an increase in state funding?

ANDREWS: Yes, I think there will be, but I couldn't predict what it will be and I don't think anyone can at this point.

CYNIC: The Faculty Senate has expressed its "strong disapproval" of the administration for its action in establishing the post of executive vice president without meaningful consultation with the faculty. How has the administration reacted to that criticism?

ANDREWS: It is highly desirable in creating such positions and filling such positions to consult with the appropriate faculty committee. But the one thing I think the faculty recognized, but didn't recognize clearly enough was the timing. We had been consulting with the Academic Policy Committee all during last summer and last winter. When the Administrative Policy Committee was organized last year, we were already well on our way to a decision. I am really sorry. I certainly hope that this kind of timing trap will be avoided in the future when new committees are formed.

CYNIC: Last fall you announced a $4.00 increase in the health fee to cover additional programs in the area of human sexuality. You also said that if an acceptable program to both the Board of Trustees and the students was not approved, the additional $4.00 fee would not be collected. Has any program been finalized by this time (June 18)?

ANDREWS: No, we are still working on it.

CYNIC: Being somewhat skeptical of the beauracracy at UVM, I imagine that the additional $4.00 will be added to the already existing $40.00 Health Fee with the expectation that a program will be completed and accepted before September. If this hypothetical situation occurs, but the program proves unacceptable to the students, what will be the result?

ANDREWS: The money will be refunded.

CYNIC: The American

Association of College Health Centers has evaluated the existing health services at UVM.

What are these preliminary findings?

ANDREWS: Our health center is just about half of what it should be in terms of staff, and it is very inadequate in terms of facilities and resources. If we were to make this a first class health service with the correct number of physicians and with greater breadth of services provided, we would have to increase the health fee to between $100 and $120. This is going to be a problem and hopefully we will face this in the fall to determine what we are going to do about the situation.

I'm a physician and I feel that we should have first class, first rate medical services available to the students. Every other college in the country that provides this type of services does charge up to $150. I hope the students will be willing to pay this fee for better quality and broader health care.

CYNIC: What are your major objectives for this coming year?

ANDREWS: First, I hope we can clarify and define the role, responsibility, and authority of the many constituencies that are involved in good governance of the University—the students, faculty, alumnae, trustees, etc. We have to be careful of the splitting of authority and responsibility. Another objective is in the area of administration and management of the institution. Financial and human resources have to be improved tremendously. We are in the process of developing a management information system which will aid in the allocation of resources in a rational basis, rather than on an

Dismissal Violates 14th Amendment

(continued from page four)

University's termination of plaintiff's employment, by failing to renew his contract of employment without disclosing the reasons for such termination, constitutes arbitrary and capricious conduct prohibited by the due process clause of the 14th Amendment, and violates plaintiff's rights under the federal civil rights statute.

The court's decision is similar to one handed down by a federal court in Wisconsin last year. In that case, the judge ordered Wisconsin State University at Oshkosh "either to grant a hearing to an assistant professor of political science or to reappoint him. An appeal in that case is now pending before the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago."

Judge Battista also told Youngstown State that if it decided to terminate Mr. Poddar's employment, it must provide him with a written statement of reasons and give him a hearing at which he would be entitled to be represented by counsel, to submit evidence, and to cross-examine witnesses.

My third objective is to find new methods of teaching and learning that would be far better than the previous ones and at the same time be far cheaper.

THE TOWNE SHOP

A Fashion Group Store—Downtown Burlington

Back to Campus Back to

Bass Weejuns

Bass Weejuns® are for doing things. People notice the way you look, and move in handworn Bass Weejuns. Only Bass makes genuine Weejuns. The soft, supple, fine leather casual with authentic moccasin construction. Comfortable. Good looking. Ready to move. Lots of styles to choose from.

EVERYDAY PEOPLE INC

DOWNSTAIRS FROM HANNABALS
152 CHURCH ST.

ANTIQUE FIRS

Trade in your old Jeans (any condition)
$1.00 Toward a new Pair

- Second hand Denim Jackets
- Hi & Lo Rise Jeans Button & Zipper Fronts $7.00
- Hi & Lo Rise Cords $10.00
- Washable Tops $5.00-$6.00
- Western & Heavy Denim Work Shirts $7.00
- Randeer Sweaters

THE FROG POND

Hand Made Clothing
(Made to order)

rolled stereo systems (For er system in one room and a in another). The LA-44 has ability with most functions. Power output is 170 watts puts and jacks for two pairs of sided. We believe that these are truly extraordinary. The for the LA-44 and $79.95

ation of the newest innovation gh fidelity at your nearest the same time you can choose of Lafayette quality speaker

Radio Electronics

Electronics Center
Road, Burlington, Vt.
658-4617

197 COLLEGE ST.

Prospectus...

BASKETBALL

With only one letterman definitely gone from last year's 9-15 club, this year's team is probably the most experienced club head coach Art Locke has had since taking over the duties in 1965. Captain Ray Ortiz, a sharp-shooting guard, leads the veterans back for the 1971-72 campaign. He'll pick up aid from junior Jim Dancy, another guard who developed into one of the best shooting players on the club (and was the top free-throw shooter in New England). Up front, the Catamounts will return center Mark Miller, and forwards John Deibert (6-9) and Greg Ashford (6-11). Miller, a leaping 6-6 pivotman, has averaged over 20 rebounds a season for the past two seasons, after leading in about 19 his freshman year. Ray Ortiz, one of the biggest weapons in the Yankee Conference, might possibly be ready for the entire season, pending a ruling by the ECAC. Sophomores help will come from top front scorers, Fred Zimmerman (20.6) and Dave Kaschulap (15.8). Center Tyrone Miner (6-6) will give more depth to the frontcourt. Locke feels his club will definitely be the best ever at Vermont. Locke feels his club will definitely be improved in the Conference, with the better overall shooting, rebounding and maturity.

Ray Ortiz Becomes Basketball Captain

The University of Vermont's sharp-shooting guard, Ray Ortiz, was elected captain of the 1971-72 basketball team, it was announced by J. Edward Duncanny, Director of Athletics. Ortiz, the only Vermont selection in the ECAC weekly squad during the season averaged 14.7 points a game last winter and was the top assist man on the club, averaging four a game. The Union City, N.J. native has accumulated 545 points over the two seasons for an 11.4 points-per-game average, which includes 47% from the floor and an outstanding 83.7% from the foul line (67-80).

A graduate of St. Joseph's in West New York, N.J., Ortiz was a three-sport star, hauling in All-City, All-County and All-State honors in basketball for two years, while winning post-season honors in football as a quarterback one year. He also played basketball for two years at St. Joseph's.

"I am very pleased that Ray has been named the captain of next year's club, because with his background, leadership capabilities, and knowledge of the game, he'll make a great contribution as captain of the team," said Art Locke, head basketball coach.

Holmquest Feels Administration's Ties With Athletic Dept. Are Poor

The cancellation of baseball at UVM was a shock to everyone, especially to Doug Holmquest who coached the team. It seemed very unclear to many exactly how the decision was made. It was difficult for Holmquest to hide his contempt towards the administration, while he tried to clarify the decision and its impact.

"The first I heard about the decision was Tuesday (May 11), the day before baseball was officially dropped. . . . I was in New Jersey on a recruiting trip. They (the administration) told me to go on the recruiting trip and that baseball would not be dropped although the budget would be cut. I was told to call in that Tuesday night, at which time they told me that baseball had been cut entirely."

When asked which administrative official originally told him that baseball would not be dropped, he laughed for a second and then said "that was it as a high administrative official". Ironically, Holmquest seemed to be handling the situation more diplomatically than the administration had done.

Prior to the decision, it had already been established that the Southern Trip, which the baseball team goes on each spring vacation, would be cut. Holmquest had other plans to cover some of the cost of the program even though the trip had been cut. "I was planning to have a rock concert, raffles and other fund raising events, but the administration never even gave me a chance to explain them."

The administration uses the figure of $30,000 as the total baseball budget, but Holmquest feels this is not a realistic figure. He pointed out that his own salary was included in this figure, and yet he had actually a dual position since he was also the basketball coach for the freshmen team as well as a teacher. Although Buildings and Grounds receives $14,000 of the budget to maintain the grounds alone, the total operating budget which includes trips, lodging, uniforms and all the equipment was only $9,000 and "if I had it, I could run the club with an operating budget of $3,000. . . . I'd be willing to take care of the field by myself this summer for a few bucks a week."

"The thing that is really sad is that the administration doesn't seem to show any genuine interest in athletics at UVM. When I was a coach at Michigan State for their freshmen baseball team, the President came over to the athletic department about once a month just to see how things were going. . . . I've never even seen anyone from the administration here."

Not only was the late decision unfair to the players who are already here and will now have difficulty transferring at such a late date, but it is equally unfair to the incoming freshmen ballplayers who were to receive financial aid. It will be difficult for these freshmen to transfer and receive aid from other schools since most of the allotted aid at other schools is probably used up by the time (May 11) the decision was made.

For those who contend that only a few spectators viewed the games, Holmquest answered: "Attendance at games is the most miserable excuse for abolishing any sport at this University. If attendance was our justification, only hockey would survive."

The administration feels that 18 games in 18 days was too much of a strain on the ballplayers. Holmquest explained that to the contrary, the players like the schedule because it simulates pro ball, which many of them are striving for.

According to Holmquest, the proper procedure the administration should have taken, if indeed baseball had to be dropped at all, would have been to phase out the program. "You don't drop a program in this manner they did. . . . A neighbor of mine who is also on the faculty at UVM termed the action of the Board of Trustees as 'immoral'."

Holmquest described the initial reaction of the players: "At first the players were very emotional about it, but then it got to a feeling of anger, and now it's a feeling of not caring about the school. . . . It was because of this feeling that the team voted not to play the last four games for the University, but rather for themselves. As a result, they covered the 'V' on their hats with tape in protest of the decision."

Some people within the university community believe that the dropping of baseball was the first step in a phase-out of all sports at the University of Vermont. At the present time Holmquest is searching for another coaching job at an undisciplined university. UVM has already agreed to retain him for another year if he so chooses.

Doug Holmquest finds it hard to disguise his disgust.

UVM Big League Baseball Players

Vermont has produced many top baseball figures, including former University of Vermont and Boston Red Sox teammates, Larry Gardner and Ray Collins. Gardner, a former great third baseman with the Red Sox, played for three World Championship teams (1912, 1915 and 1916). He was also a member of the Cleveland Indians' World Championship team in 1920.

Collins was considered a top-rated pitcher during his tenure with the Red Sox, following his graduation from Vermont in 1909. Although his best season in the majors was 1913 (19-4) and 1914 (20-13), he starred for Boston in the 1912 World Series, matching the immortal Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants pitch for pitch in a game that was eventually called because of darkness, with the score tied.

Gardner returned to his alma mater in 1928 as head baseball coach and Director of Athletics, a dual role he held for 24 years (1928-52). He is currently a member of the University of Vermont Athletic Hall of Fame selection committee. Collins passed away in 1970.

Both Gardner and Collins were inducted into the University of Vermont Athletic Hall of Fame in 1969.

Another top Vermont athlete was Ralph Lapointe, who played for the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals, prior to coaching baseball at Vermont from 1952-67. Lapointe racked up 16 consecutive winning seasons, including two Yankee Conference titles. He never had a losing season at Vermont. Lapointe passed away in 1967.

The Lapointe Trophy, originated in 1968, is presented annually to the Yankee Conference champions.

UVM

'71 Football Team

On September 18, the Catamounts will open their football season against UConn. Joe Scarella, who will be coaching the Cat for the second season, feels that the major recruiting program which he undertook this past winter will pay off once the season gets under way. Although a more victory will be an improvement over last year's winless season, Scarella expects more than just a single victory.

Scarella traveled as far south as Mississippi and as far west as California seeking candidates for his squad. As a result of his efforts, there will be four new players from California, one from Michigan, two from Maryland, one from Texas, as well as recruitments from Vermont and its boarding states.

Individual Players
Stacy McConnell, from La Mirada, California, will be a defensive back. Doug Bull from Pomona, California, will be a line backer. Mel Conley from Millbrae, California, will be a guard. The fourth Californian, Barry Viven who is from Capuchine, California, will be a running back.

Bull, a transfer from Rutland, Vermont, is "left all the time" an outstanding prospect. He has won three State titles in track, the 100 yard dash, the 220, and the quarter mile. He is a receiver as well as a defensive back.

Bob Weiler from Burlington, is a guard. Bob Peat from Connecticut is considered to be quick as well as a good passer. Jeff Shaw who is 6'4" and 235 pounds will be a defensive lineman.

Prospectus
Scarella bases much of his optimism on what he considers was a good spring workout. Many of the positions that were weak last year have been filled. One such position was running back. Scarella added the weaknesses were primarily due to a shortage of man power, citing that there were only three running backs at the start of last season. Once the season got under way and injuries took their toll, the team was left with

BASKETBALL

Nov	20	Alumni game
Dec	1	Middlebury
	4	Massachusetts
	8	Dartmouth
	9	Norwich
	11	Connecticut
Jan	3-5	Sacred Heart Christmas Tournament (Vermont, Sacred Heart, Wesleyan, Hamilton)

SILVER JEWELRY
INDIA CLOTHING
AND PRINTS

OPEN 9:30-5:30
MON-SAT.

COLLEGIATE CLUB
MEMBER

197 COLLEGE ST.

Bak

Two free captains of Vermont
it was at
Edward I.
Athletics
Coach (E)
and the team will to ever team at also elect year's cro

CHAMPLAIN LANES
985-2824
Automatic Pin Setters
• Export Ball Fitting
• Bowling
• Complete Stock of Bowling Shoes
• Cocktail Lounge
• Snack Bar
• Nursery
• Billiards
• Dancing
AIR-CONDITIONED
16 Lanes
Visit The Walnut Lounge For All Your Favorite Beverages
3 Minutes South Of Town On Shelburne Rd.

Prospectus..

HOCKEY

Just prior to last season, coach Jim Cross thought it would be practically impossible to duplicate the achievements of 1969-70, and only one goal scored 4:29 into the overtime in the championship game kept them from being beyond the efforts of 1969-70, when they won the Division II title. Vermont edged Bowdoin, 4-1 in 1970, but lost to the same club, 5-4 in sudden-death overtime, March 12 at Brunswick, Me. The Cats succeeded in establishing 11 more University records. In 1969-70, they racked up 21 individual or team records. With six Division I teams, the Thanksgiving tourney at St. Lawrence and the rugged divisional schedule, Vermont will again have the toughest schedule of any Division II team. Such powers as Boston University, St. Lawrence, Clarkson, New Hampshire, Bowdoin, Massachusetts, and revived Northeastern dot the Catamount schedule.

But, with three of the top scorers from last year's 17-9-0 (14-4-0) club, Vermont should again be more than respectable. Center Pat Wright (19 goals and 22 assists), Fred Huft (22 goals and 15 assists) and All-American defenseman, Ted Yeates (six goals and 19 assists) headline the returnees. Put this trio together with All-American candidate, Brad Cooke (defenseman—six goals and 15 assists), veteran winger, Ned Grant, speedster Sam Simmons, Ross McDonald, Rick Burns and versatile Bob Hodde, and the Catamounts again should find the way to the Division II playoffs. One problem appears paramount—finding the replacement for two-time All-American goalie, David Reece. Coach Cross believes he has one in Steve Eckerson, the back-up netminder for Reece last year. In 11 appearances, Eckerson compiled a 4.75 goals against average. At the time this prospectus was in press, there was a possibility that Vermont might be able to use freshmen next year. "Without a doubt, this is the best incoming frosh group I have ever seen at Vermont—we have eight outstanding forwards, five solid defensemen and one promising goalie," said the successful hockey mentor.

Yeates, in the foreground, will be a returning letterman.

HOCKEY
Nov	13	Montreal Junior "B" Team
25-27		St. Lawrence Thanksgiving Tournament (Vermont, Clarkson College and St. Lawrence)
Dec	1	Clarkson
	4	Massachusetts
	7	Norwich
	11	Boston State
Jan	6	Bowdoin
	8	Colby
	12	Hamilton
	19	Middlebury
	22	Boston University
	25	St. Lawrence
	28	Massachusetts
Feb	3	New Hampshire
	4	Colby
	6	Northeastern
	7	Boston State
	12	Connecticut
	19	Williams
	19	West Point
	23	Middlebury
	26	Alumni Game
Mar	1	Norwich

DOMINO'S PIZZA
10 N. Woodstock Ave.
Burlington, VT
629-3333

KILL THE MUNCHIES AT DOMINO'S

ROCK DOWN TO DOMINO'S FOR A PIE

FREE DELIVERY

DOMINO	25¢ OFF 15" PIZZA	15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	good for 3rd & 4th
DOMINO	30¢ OFF 15" PIZZA	15¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	good for 5th & 6th
DOMINO	40¢ OFF 15" PIZZA	20¢ OFF 12" PIZZA	Good for 1st & 2nd days of School

ZIP

UNIVERSITY STORE

ON THE CAMPUS

The University Store is one of several service facilities which are part of the Auxiliary Enterprises of the University, provided for its family of students, faculty and staff. It is owned and operated by the University with all its assets, obligations and policies under administrative control. Savings are placed in the general budget of the University to help defray operational expenses.

HOURS

The University Store is open Monday through Friday 8:30 to 5 and from 8:30 to 12 noon on Saturday. During the year we are open additional hours for such events as Evening Division Registration. During the summer we are open 8:00 to 4:30 and closed on Saturdays.

Special Hours
August 30 - September 3
9 AM - 5 PM

Sept. 4 9-12 Noon
Regular Hours Start Sept. 5.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the University Store is to cooperate with the library, the laboratory and the classroom in giving you the best education possible: to provide you with the necessary tools for your present learning and the stimulation of your continued learning long after your school days are over. In addition, it makes available the college-rated items that will make your stay at Vermont more pleasant and enriching. Service — with a friendly smile — is the purpose — the aim — the objective of your University Store.

SERVICES

The University Store is a self-service operation with up to nine checkouts to provide you with efficient service. We ask that you leave your notebooks, books and attaché cases in the bookdrop at the entrance or in the free coin-return lockers which are provided, before you enter the sales area. This habit will eliminate embarrassment for you and the cashier when you are ready to leave.

Special Orders

With a small deposit we will order any book in print not currently in our stock. We have available the latest copy of BOOKS IN PRINT, PAPERBOUND BOOKS IN PRINT and SUBJECT GUIDE TO BOOKS IN PRINT, if at any time you would like to look up information regarding price, publisher, title or author of any book published in the United States. Our special order service is also often used by fraternities and sororities for banquet favors and graduation gifts.

Film Processing

The University Store offers 24-hour film processing to round out a complete selection of films and flashbulbs.

Check Cashing

A check cashing service is available at the University Store through most of the hours the store is open. It provides 2 full-time employees who render this no-charge service. An I.D. card is required to cash a check. Freshmen may present their temporary I.D. until the permanent card is issued.

Xerox

A Xerox copy machine is available for student and faculty use. It is coin-operated at 10¢ per copy.

Magazine Subscription

A complete magazine subscription service is available, and on many magazines students receive special rates amounting to as much as 50% off the original price.

Wrapping Service

A wrapping service is provided. You may have any package wrapped to send home at no charge. Gift wraps are furnished on purchases of $5.00 or more. There is a small charge for gift wrapping purchases under $5.00.

Ticket Sales

The University Store offers for sale tickets to various campus functions and performances. We sell these tickets to make various student groups to promote their fund raising drives. We receive no commissions on these sales and charge only the price established by the sponsoring students.

BOOK DEPARTMENT

Textbooks

Our most important service is providing you with your "tools of the trade" — the textbooks you will need to complete your course work. We trust that you will come to know that these books which have been selected by the faculty are the carefully chosen tools of your profession which, with proper use, will open new fields of knowledge and understanding. Seeking an education without books is like trying to build a house without a hammer. Tools are vital to any worthwhile endeavor.

Bookrush Procedure

Our textbook department is set up for self-service with the books shelved by course in course number order. You will notice signs which indicate each major area such as English, History or Zoology. Under each of these are grouped the books by course number. Copies of the book list are readily available in the book section and, of course, the store staff is always available to assist you should you experience difficulty.

Shopping baskets are provided to assist you. Please keep your register receipt which the cashier gives you. This is your proof of payment and must be presented with any request for adjustment or refund.

Do not make any sort of marks, including your name, in the books which you purchase until you have stamped class and are absolutely sure you have purchased the proper ones.

USED BOOKS

In order to stretch your textbook dollar we attempt to have available used copies of current texts whenever possible. We purchase them from University students and from other sources. The University Store buys used books at one-half the current new book price and sells them for three-fourths. This is a standard bookstore policy across the country.

Should the same used book be sold back to us a second time the student is still paid one-half the current new book price. Thus he has paid only 25% for the use of a required book. Representatives of used book companies are at the University Store three times each year. They will buy back the books being dropped from course use providing the book has market value. Their prices are current market prices which will average 20 to 25% of the new price. We will buy dropped books for them during the balance of the year at the same rate.

The initial purchase of a text from the University Store carries no resale guarantee, for no faculty member is committed to use a text for more than the semester it has been assigned. Therefore, we would urge you to make every effort to obtain your money's worth through studying your texts. Then the ability to sell (those you do not care to add to your library) will be an added dividend.

Textbook Prices

Because the prices for your elementary and high school textbooks were, in many cases, lost in the total tax dollar your parents paid, paying cash for textbooks will be a new experience for you. You will discover, as thousands of college students have discovered before you, that textbooks are expensive. They are expensive because they are costly to write, to publish, to ship and to sell; and because the evergrowing body of knowledge in our atomic and space age gives most textbooks a shortened period of usability. Nevertheless, your textbook investment will represent less than 3% of the total cost of your education, while the knowledge you will gain from their proper use will have a value that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. The prices you will pay are established by the textbook publisher and not the store. Students all over the nation are paying the same price that you are for these books.

NON-TEXTBOOKS

You will find thousands of books in the University Store you will not be required to buy as textbooks, but which will, nevertheless, become a vital part of your education. If you let them. We readily admit we will encourage, tempt and entice you to discover (if you have not already done so) the wonderful world of books. We believe that every college student should devote considerable time, thought, and at least a portion of his or her allowance in acquiring a carefully-selected personal library. We invite you to begin the selection of your library from the wide choice of great and good books (in both cloth and paper bindings) you will find on our shelves.

OTHER MERCHANDISE

You will find a great many other items in addition to books at the University Store. Notebooks and pencils, stationery and book-ends, typostats and shampoo, art supplies and greeting cards, desk pads and study lamps, pennants and puppets, and those indispensable Vermont sweatshirts and jackets.

POLICIES

We guarantee satisfaction on all merchandise purchased at the University Store. Great care is used in selecting manufacturers whose quality is established and who will back their products. We support them and insist that you are pleased.

REFUNDS

Due to last minute course and section changes, drops, and adds, and schedule conflicts, there are bound to be situations when you find yourself in possession of a textbook you should not have purchased. Unmarked textbooks may be returned for full credit if presented at the Refund Counter with your purchase receipt. Do not carry a book for which you are requesting a refund into the sales area. If your book has any markings it can only be repurchased at the regular used book price.

The University Store will, when possible, accept books for cash refund. To receive 100% refund the following conditions must be observed:

1. Book must be returned within ten days of purchase WITH CASH-REGISTER RECEIPT.
2. Book must bear our price tag or mark.
3. Book must be absolutely free of all markings, either pencil or ink other than our price mark.
4. Special order books are not returnable.
5. We are the sole judge in determining whether books returned are in new or used condition.
6. Defective books will be replaced at no charge and should be returned at once.

NON-REQUIRED PAPER-BACK BOOKS ARE NOT RETURNABLE FOR REFUND.

SALES TAX

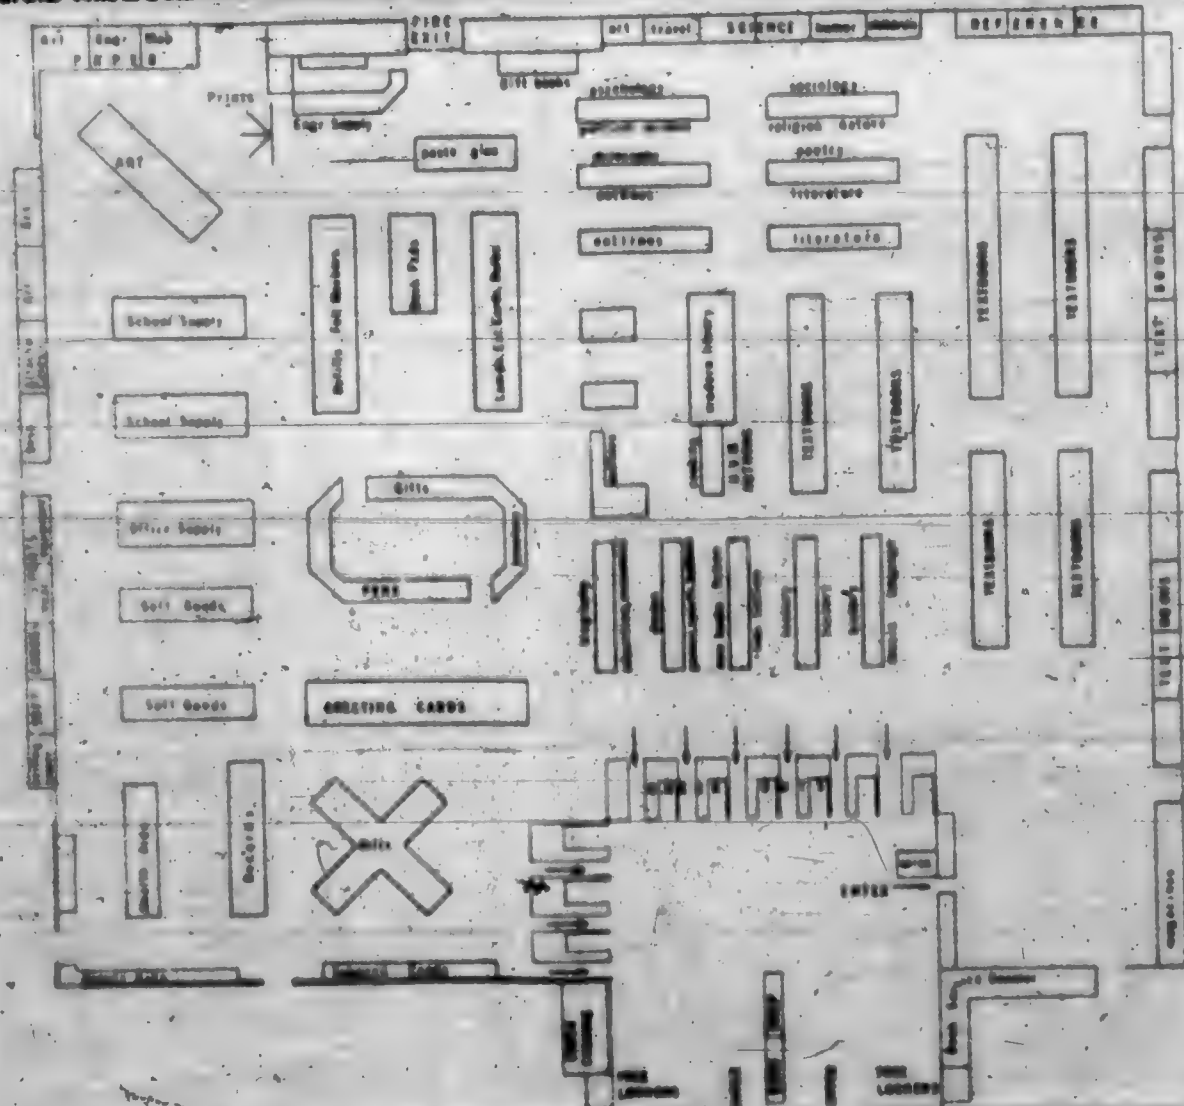

A 3% State sales and use tax is collected on all merchandise which has been defined as taxable by the State of Vermont Tax Department.

SERVICES

Special Order Books
Film Processing
Check Cashing
Xerox Copy Service
Magazine Subscriptions
Wrapping Service

Stamps
Typewriter Repairs
Fraternity-Sorority Favors
Ski Tickets
Student Ticket Sales

We support campus activities such as CYNIC, WRUV, Intercollegiate Athletics, Shakespeare Festival, Winter Weekend, etc., through active advertising in their publications and programs. This is but one example in which the University Store is a partner in the educational community it serves.

Floor Plan

SEPTEMBER 17, 1971

Harris/Mills Dorm

New Dorms R

By Jeff Yacker
For the past two years, UVM students in the vicinity of MAI and the Patrick Gymnasium have watched the "new dorms" rise from two cavernous excavations. This semester, Harris and Mills Halls, as they are properly called, were opened for residency by students who had signed up for rooms there at the end of last semester. Almost immediately there were reports of unappointed walls, no telephones, and a general discontent among the residents.

The Cynic interviewed a random sample of students at Harris-Mills in an effort to get a more balanced picture of life in UVM's newest residence complex. Katie Hill, a sophomore from Rio de Janeiro said, "The suite which I expected here just does not exist... you're looking at it (a room with two beds). The 'suite' in Harris Mills actually consist of mini-halls with five or six rooms for two persons on them. And naturally, Katie is a little annoyed with the lack of paint on the walls and the absence of telephones. However, she had good words for the cafeteria: "It's good, it's quiet, it's nice... it's probably the best on campus." She feels sorry, though, for the few freshmen which were put in Harris-Mills by the Housing Office: "It must be a little hard for them to adjust here; because, everybody tends to stay in their

UVM R

By Arlene Erickson
Upon scanning the UVM campus, one is readily aware of the construction and the renovation processes occurring here. Last week Mr. Mitchell Call, the Coordinator of Facilities Planning, enlightened the Cynic on these processes, ranging from the refurbishing of Grasmount, built in 1944, to the construction of the new Cook Physical Science Building.

Grasmount, a former girls' residence hall, is presently being used as a staging area for the Speech Department; this is due to delays in the construction of the Department's two buildings, Allen House and Pomeroy Hall, in two to three weeks the building will be refurbished with limited funds in order to accommodate the Department of Continuing Education. According to Mr. Call, there will be no structural changes and therefore one would be able to restore Grasmount to its original architectural design at a later date with undue difficulty.

The refurbishing or renovation of Grasmount has been conceived in terms of a two-phase plan. Phase I concerns the facilities for Continuing Education and it should be completed on or before January 1, 1972. Phase II, whose completion will not materialize for five to six years, provides for the realization of VIP suites and for the restoration of Grasmount's elegant formal parlors. The two North rooms of Grasmount, The Lafayette crew has suite and Governor VanNess's suite, and perhaps one other room will be refurbished in order to provide bedroom, bath facilities for distinguished visitors. Moreover the formal

VERMONT CYNIC

SEPTEMBER 17, 1971

VOLUME LXXXIX

NUMBER 14

Infirmiry Is A Firetrap; Other Inadequacies Cited

by Ralph Robison
The American College Health Association has recommended that UVM's health fee be increased to an amount between $100 and $120 to cover more nearly the true costs of rendering adequate ambulatory health care. The final report of the committee was made available to the UVM's administration this week.

Criticisms of Health Service
The preliminary report, which was made available to the Cynic, highlights the weakest points in UVM's Health Service. The fundamental problem as seen by the survey team is that up until very recently, there has been no serious commitment by the University to the somewhat special health needs and perceptions of its students.

Other areas where improvement is recommended include laboratory services and X-ray services.

President Andrews' Response
President Andrews acknowledged the validity of the report and added that the University is already trying to alleviate some of the problems. The infirmiry has expanded its program to cover the field of human sexuality. A part time gynecologist will counsel students in the area of human sexuality as well as prescribe contraceptive devices to those students of legal age.

When asked about the suggested health fee of $100 to $120, Andrews commented that he hoped to persuade the students of the necessity of such an increase "if we are to have a first-rate health service."

Andrews added, however, that a decision to raise the health fee a substantial amount would be a major decision and that the students would have to be consulted first.

KEN PERRY

Harris-Millis Dormitory complex was "completed" on September 1, 1971.

New Dorms Receive Mixed Criticism

By Jeff Yackow
For the past two years, UVM students in the vicinity of MAT and the Patrick Gymnasium have watched the "new dorms" rise from two cavernous excavations. This semester, Harris and Millis Halls, as they are properly called, were opened for residency by students who had signed up for rooms there at the end of last semester. Almost immediately there were reports of unpainted walls, no telephones, and a general discontent among the residents.

Katie Hill, a sophomore from Rio de Janeiro said, "The suite which I expected here just does not exist... you're looking at it (a room with two beds). The 'suites' in Harris-Millis actually consist of mini-halls with five or six rooms for two persons on them. And naturally, Katie is a little annoyed with the lack of paint on the walls and the absence of telephones. However, she had good words for the cafeteria: "It's good, it's quiet, it's nice... it's probably the best on campus." She feels sorry, though, for the few freshmen which were put in Harris-Millis by the Housing Office: "It must be a little hard for them to adjust here, because everybody tends to stay in their own little section. Freshmen need to meet a lot of people."

So, the Cynic located two freshmen girls in Harris and asked them how they felt. The gray walls seemed to depress them, the absence of telephones (which, incidentally, is steadily being overcome by the Telephone Company) was annoying, and the fact that the shower stalls had no curtains seemed to go against their grain. Just wait until they go over to Buckham or Chittenden! As freshmen, they did feel isolated; they seemed to sense a lack of communication with most of the other students. Another feature of Harris-Millis which bothered them, and most of the students interviewed, was the floor plans; they are truly like a maze, and it is no shame to be lost and wandering around for ten minutes, trying to locate a room. In the midst of the conversation, one of the freshmen girls was notified that she had a long distance phone call at 220 Harris. But, where is 220? The girls also said it was absurd that, as freshmen, they had to get special permission to get a coke from the machine at 1:30 A.M.

Two sophomore girls were in a slightly better mood. The lack of cold water in the first few days (hot toilets, hot showers) was troublesome, but they think that most of the difficulties will be ironed out soon. An RA who was interviewed was generally pleased, and thought that most of the kids were also pleased. "Structural problems being overlooked, I think this place will really work out well," she said. "It's quiet, it's peaceful, and although it is rotten for freshmen, for upperclassmen it is really good."

Katie Hill explains her dismay with her new dorm.

KEN PERRY

Freshmen Can Now Pledge Fraternities In Mid Oct.

Last week at the first Fraternity Forum meeting it was passed to allow fraternities to accept freshmen as pledges during the first semester of the school year. In past years, fraternities could not pledge a freshman until the first semester's grades were registered. This new ruling will permit pledging freshmen first semester, but will not allow pledges to become full-fledged brothers until the semester's grades are in.

It is hoped that a stronger and shorter rush period will be more beneficial than a rush period that lasted the whole first semester and two weeks into the second. It is felt that with the long rush period, some of the pledges were not as committed as they should have been. This seemed quite evident with the smaller pledge classes which many houses had last year. Having a more intense rush program, the rusher will be able to become more familiar and friendly with the house in a shorter period of time, without dragging it out over an entire semester.

A formal rush period was set up at the meeting. It will last until October 15, when each fraternity is eligible to submit bids. Rushers will be able to pick up bids on the following day, October 16. After this formal rush period all houses are still permitted to take pledges. Sometimes a rusher will wait to wait an extra week or two before pledging. They may not know all of the brothers yet, or they may want to have more time to look at other houses. The Fraternity Forum urges all freshmen to look at more than the customary one or two houses. It is most essential that a freshman, or anyone, for that matter, choose the right house for himself. For further rush information, any fraternity at UVM is pleased to assist.

Another topic discussed at the meeting was "The Great Fraternity Race." On Saturday, October 23, the fraternities will hold their first annual event. The track will supply the cars, the fraternities supply the drivers. There will be a prize and trophy for the winning car. Races begin at 8 P.M. and everyone should be back in time for Lambda Iota's Garbage Collectors' Coalition on the same night. These two events plus the afternoon football game with UConn should add up to a good time for all.

Cynic Positions

The Vermont Cynic is now accepting names of those who wish to work on the staff. If you are interested, leave your name and phone number in the Cynic's mailbox in upper Billings Center. Please indicate what area of the paper you are interested in—sports, news, photography, production, business, advertising, or any other area.

five years, there was extra space available for the establishment of an Academic Computer Center. With a six-million dollar modification, three large rooms and five staff rooms are now being used in the area of computer research and instruction. Annexed to Cook Hall are two major auditoria—one with a capacity of one hundred, the other with a capacity of two hundred and twenty-five; these are not however solely limited to physical science classes.

Williams Hall, which used to house the Chemistry and the Physics Departments, is now

Bookstore Loses Credit

Last spring the University bookstore sent back 46% of the text books ordered according to Bookstore manager, Mr. Heney. Prentice Hall and Holt Company, along with several other major publishing companies responded by notifying the Bookstore that it was 100% "shut off" from returning books until new purchases were made.

According to Heney, publishing company policies differ in the amount of return privileges they allow. The range is normally from 20% to 100%.

This year, the bookstore has been forced to reexamine their method of ordering course books. Consequently, many students are finding particularly as they drop and add courses that the bookstore is out of many needed books. The students are upset, the faculty are upset and the reality of the situation remains. The instructor may have the book for his course but many of his students don't.

The Cynic approached Mr. Heney requesting an explanation. Heney explained that the high return percentage was due to the lack of an accurate method of anticipating student needs. Last year the Bookstore found that they could not rely upon faculty requisition forms, pre-registration projections, and past year ordering percentages in relation to enrollment.

Heney cited communication as the major problem. Despite the presumed efficiency of the University computer, the bookstore has benefited very little from its use. He explained that the input into the computer was very poor. Requisitions become dated very quickly and pre-registration figures are often meaningless due to a long drop-add period.

Last year, many books which were merely recommended, were communicated to the bookstore as required. Heney pointed out that there is a big difference in terms of sales and inventory requirements between a recommended and a required book.

In addition, the extensive reading list required by many courses were never covered, and many students wisely bought books only as the instructor got to them.

Another one of Heney's biggest "head aches" is the drop-add period. During this period of constant shifting, the bookstore must respond to the changing needs but in order to do this it must have daily figures as to change. In other words, the bookstore would like to be able to quit the computer at any time and get up-to-date information.

Finally, a more subtle problem is that the faculty constantly demand new editions, requiring ordering of new books despite an abundance of older editions all over campus.

This year Heney is confident that things will be more organized. The bookstore has recently installed a Western Union Telex, which gives UVM a direct hook up to most of the major publishing houses. 24 hours a day by means of a central computer monitor.

This time-saving device allows the bookstore some leeway in its ordering. An order which might

(continued on page six)

Staff Layoffs Appear Imminent

Editor's Note: The Cynic was unable to attend a trustees' publication of the minutes of the Board of Trustees' meeting on August 21, 1971. The following does contain highlights of the Board's last meeting.

BURLINGTON, Vt. — University of Vermont Board of Trustees Saturday (Aug. 21) approved a request to the state for $5.1 million in capital and $10.5 million in operating funds, but both UVM President Edward C. Andrews, Jr., and various members of the Board made it clear both requests will be reviewed and probably reduced in light of the austere warnings out for all state agencies.

Reason for moving ahead with the requests, it was noted, is that all operating and capital requests for state funding must be presented on or before Sept. 1.

President Andrews indicated the University's state request for $10.5 million in operating funds represents a $1.6 million increase over state funding for the current year. Governor Deane C. Davis has recommended an increase of $388,000.

Briefly summarized, Dr. Andrews said the $1.6 million increase is the amount UVM estimates it will need to balance its fiscal '73 budget on the basis of an estimate of expenses. He said certain increased costs "over which we have no control" create the situation, and he told Trustees "we have cutback expenditures."

"We will try to do both," he told Trustees "we will try to persuade the Governor to increase his recommendation, but we are also looking at all our programs to see where we can cut."

Budget Directors Preparing Program, Staff Cuts
The UVM President said the budget directors—deans and vice presidents—had already held several meetings to consider programs which can be reduced or dropped in fiscal 1973.

Describing the process as "pretty grim," he noted that about 70 per cent of UVM's total operating budget is expended in salaries and wages. "The only way we can trim is to lay off staff."

In administrative support areas, he said, "we are estimating we will reduce expenditures somewhere in the area of $300,000" by the end of the current year.

"I would warn everyone that in the next couple of months we will be addressing ourselves to some very unpleasant decisions," he said. "As you know, every program has its constituency," Dr. Andrews said, and he called on the Board for its understanding, prompting Board Chairman Kenneth N. Scott to remark that the Board understood the problem and what must be done. "We're in this with you."

Further action—reduction in staff—will be made to avoid

He said the matter of budget review might necessitate a special meeting of the Trustees' budget and financial committee and possibly of the full Board and said that in any event the Trustees' special committee on management and planning would be having a special meeting before the regularly scheduled Board meeting in October.

Capital Request Subject To Trustees Further Review
Budget and finance committee chairman Bingham J. Humphrey acknowledged that the committee members "got into a real hassle" over the administration's recommendation to ask the state for $5.1 million in capital funding.

The largest part of the total $4,250,000 would be earmarked for a new music classroom building which nearly won approval in the last session of the Legislature when the estimated price tag was $3.5 million.

Mr. Humphrey said several committee members had raised the question of "what is the sense of building a new music classroom if, on the basis of present budget outlooks, we may not be able to afford to operate it?" On the other hand, he said "President Andrews feels we can't do it without you."

(continued on page FOUR)

books in the University Store are as textbooks, but which are part of your education. If we will encourage, tempt you have not already done books. We believe that every considerable time, thought, her allowance in acquiring a copy. We invite you to begin from the wide choice of great and paper-binding—you will on all merchandise purchased best care is used in selecting is established and who will want them and insist that you and section charges, drops, effects, there are bound to be yourself in possession of a have purchased. Unchecked for full credit if presented at our sales receipt. Do not carry a waiting a refund into the sales any markings it can only be and book price. A, when possible, accept books to 100% refund the following within ten days of purchase RECEIPT. No tag or mark. Only free of all markings, either in our price mark. Do not returnable. In determining whether books used condition. be replaced at no charge and once. BACK BOOKS ARE NOT AND.

use tax is collected on all defined as taxable by the State

Stamps
Typewriter Repairs
Fraternity-Security Favors Shirts
Student Ticket Sales

activities such as CYNIC, WRUV, Shakespeare Festival, Winter active advertising in their publication but one more way in which the year in the educational community

DOMINO	discount	coupon	NAME	PHONE	GOOD FOR	DATE
30¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 21, 22, 23
20¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 18, 19, 20
15¢ OFF	ON A SMALL PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 15, 16, 17
30¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 12, 13, 14
20¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 9, 10, 11
15¢ OFF	ON A SMALL PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 6, 7, 8
30¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Oct. 3, 4, 5
20¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 31, Oct. 1, 2
15¢ OFF	ON A SMALL PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 28, 29, 30
30¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 25, 26, 27
20¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 22, 23, 24
15¢ OFF	ON A SMALL PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 19, 20, 21
30¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR	Sept. 17, 18
20¢ OFF	ON A LARGE PIZZA				GOOD FOR
15¢ OFF	ON A SMALL PIZZA				GOOD FOR

FREE DELIVERY
658-3333

DOMINO'S PIZZA

10 N. Winooski Ave.
Burlington, Vt.

Slide Documentary And Discussion

A slide documentary and discussion of the 2nd Vermont International Sculpture Symposium will be presented by June Aschenbach on Tuesday evening, September 21, at 8 p.m. in Vosey Auditorium. The program, the third in a September series on contemporary sculpture, has been arranged by the Fleming Museum in connection with its current exhibition of sketches and models by members of the Symposium entitled "Highway Sculpture." All are invited to attend.

Tuesday evening's discussion will focus on "The Work" of the symposium, from the construction of the molds to the installation of the finished sculptures on Interstate 89. Mrs. Aschenbach, the wife of Prof. Paul Aschenbach of the UVM Art Department, is a photographer. Her work is included in the "Highway Sculpture" show.

Held at Rock Point School and Griswold Industrial Park, the Symposium brought twelve sculptors from Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Columbia, France and various sections of this country to Burlington this summer. Each working in his own style, all working together on the technical problems of creating sculpture in industrial concrete, they produced twelve monumental pieces in eight weeks. These sculptures, as well as the seven created in marble during a similar symposium in the summer of 1968, have been installed in the rest areas along Interstate 89 during the past month.

Organized by Prof. Aschenbach, the Symposium was sponsored by the University, the Vermont Council on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

before the participants had been selected, the concept of sculpture for the highway caused controversy in the Burlington area. The issues raised in letters to the Editor of the Burlington Free Press were reexamined during an informal discussion/debate by members of the Symposium at the opening of the "Highway Sculpture" exhibit at the Museum, August 8th. Mrs. Aschenbach will touch on points of the debate in her talk Tuesday night. The exhibition itself may be seen at the Fleming through Wednesday, September 22.

Nader-Influenced Group in Area

A program modeled after Burlington area Ralph Nader's famous "The Organization, Vermont consumer advocate organization Social Research, Inc.", presently located at 19 Church Street, is currently in the process of being organized in the hopes to serve as a public interest research group with the ability to use the courts to challenge institutional actions that jeopardize the interest of human service organizations, or the public interest.

Core meetings to determine policies of the newly-formed group have had in attendance Lynn Miller, Zero Population Growth; John Phillips, Consumer Protection; attorneys Richard Thomas and Woody Higgins; Dennis Morrisseau, OEO County Developer; OEO staffer Paul Townsend; and Carl Blumberg, VISTA Volunteer.

Representing the group, Blumberg said: "We need plenty of help-ideas, actual volunteer help, and of course, money." He went on to say all interested people should contact the organization at the Church St. address or call 658-2341.

FAST 5 DAYS
"Carnal Knowledge" is one of the best movies ever!
—Liz Smith, Cosmopolitan

"Carnal Knowledge"

Mike Nichols, Jack Nicholson, Candice Bergen, Arthur Garfunkel, Ann-Margret and Jules Feiffer.

STATE
Special Student Price—
All Performances
$1.50

Now showing 7:00 & 9:15
"A FILM YOU NEED TO SEE"
INGENUE
In everyone's life there's a
SUMMER OF 42
Thursday Sept. 16th
A SPECIAL
SHAKESPEARE
FILM AT 9:00 A.M.
AND 3:30 P.M.

SHOWING EVENINGS 7:20 & 9:15
WEDNESDAY, SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00
Dustin Hoffman
"Who Is Harry Kellerman and why is he saying those terrible things about me?"
Monday Sept. 20th
AT 4:30 P.M.
"HOUSE OF USHER"
STUDENTS $1.00

STRONG
Show at 7 & 9 pm

woody allen's "bananas"
STARTS SUNDAY

LARRY KRAMER and MARTIN ROSEN
KEN RUSSELL'S new film
D.H. LAWRENCE'S "WOMEN IN LOVE"

The Cheese House
World Famous Vermont Cheese
New England Products
Gifts — Gourmet Foods
MAIL ORDERS
1940 SHELburne ROAD
SHELburne, VERMONT 05482
TELEPHONE 802-953-3697

THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP
30 CHURCH ST.

TURN ON
YOUR NEW STEREO COMPONENT SYSTEM YOU JUST GOT FROM THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP AT THE LOWEST PRICES IN BURLINGTON. THEN

TUNE IN
THE SOUNDS OF YOUR NEW HIP RECORD AND TAPE COLLECTION YOU JUST PICKED OUT AT THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP. AND REMEMBER TO

DROP IN ANYTIME YOU NEED ANYTHING TO HEIGHTEN YOUR LISTENING PLEASURE.

Teacher Exam Dates

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY, September 13. College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examination on any of the four different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 13, 1971, and January 29, April 8, and July 15, 1972. The tests will be given at nearly 300 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examination are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations. The school systems and state departments of education which use the examination results are listed in an NTE leaflet entitled Score Users which may be obtained by writing to ETS.

On each full day of testing prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and a Teaching Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Open House at Counseling Center
On Wednesday, September 22 there will be an all day Open House at the Counseling and Testing Center, Jacobs House, 146 South Williams Street. Everyone is invited to become acquainted with our expanded staff and new facility.

Billings Center
Freshmen & Sophomores Members of the Classes of '74 & '75
College of Arts & Sciences
If you are interested in serving on the Student Advisory Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences while working with the Faculty Committees of the College, please submit your name to the Secretary of the Office of the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, 300 Waterman building, no later than the 25th of September.

WEIGHT WATCHERS
Mon.—Winooski—St. Francis Xavier Church
Mon.—Burlington—Christ Church—No. 7
Tue.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 7
Tue.—Shelburne—St. Catherine's Hall
Wed.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 8
Wed.—Essex Junction—Hewatha School
171 Church St.
Burlington Vt.
Nona Loppert, President, Director

22. Sundae Strips

3. Flying Saucers

8oz. and Cherry Bonnets

Old Fashioned Sundaes

Carvel Cakes

ICE CREAM

SEPTEMBER 17, 1971

Teacher Exam Dates

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY, September 13. College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the four different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a non-profit organization which prepares and administers the testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 13, 1971, and January 29, April 8, and July 15, 1972. The tests will be given at nearly 300 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations. The school systems and state departments of education which use the examination results are listed in an NTE leaflet entitled Score Chart which may be obtained by writing to ETS.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and a Teaching Area Examination which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they seek employment, or their colleges, for specific advice on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Open House at Counseling Center
On Wednesday, September 22, there will be an all day Open House at the Counseling and Testing Center, Jacobs House, 146 South Williams Street. Everyone is invited to become acquainted with our expanded staff and new facility.

CORD SHOP
ST

CORD SHOP
ST

CORD SHOP
ST

CORD SHOP
ST

CORD SHOP
ST

Calendar/Announcements

Billings Center Renovations

Freshmen & Sophomores
Members of the Class of 74 & 75
College of Arts & Sciences

If you are interested in serving on the Student Advisory Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences while working with the Faculty Committees of the College, please submit your name to the secretary in the Office of the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, 300 Waterman building, no later than the 25th of September.

Counseling Service

Growth Groups
All persons interested in growing in interpersonal relationships are invited to meet at the Counseling Center, 146 South Williams Street on Wednesday, September 29 at 4:00 P.M. when our Staff will be available to discuss your needs and plan mutual meeting times.

SO MANY (of our) U's in Vietnam are on drugs that the term "the need for withdrawal" takes on new significance.

WEIGHT WATCHERS

Mon.—Winoski—St. Francis Xavier Church at 7 P.M.
Mon.—Burlington—Christ Church—North Ave. at 7 P.M.
Tue.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 7 P.M.
Tue.—Essex Junction—St. Catherine's Hall at 7 P.M.
Wed.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 9:15 P.M.
Wed.—Essex Junction—Hewatha School at 7 P.M.

171 Church St.
Burlington, Vt.

658-1920

Rona Loppert, President, Director

Students Attend Alder's Meetings

A community education project, The Municipal Government School of Vermont, Inc., is currently getting under way in Burlington.

The project, organized under the auspices of the Chittenden Community Action Council of the Champlain Valley OEO, will have the school attending the Board of Aldermen's meetings weekly, meeting afterwards to discuss the meetings and publishing a newsletter, called "Puckish," for public distribution.

The students will be 10 low-income people and 10 people working in human services.

College credit from the Vermont Community College will be given.

The project's organizers, OEO County Developer Dennis Morrisseau and VISTA Volunteer Carl Blumberg hope that the school will contribute "a greater awareness of the need to participate in the process of city government" to the school's students and the readership of the newsletter.

Any UVM students or faculty interested in the school are urged to contact Morrisseau or Blumberg at the OEO offices at 19 Church St., or to call 863-6248.

Advisory Committee Elections

If you are majoring in Art, Biology, Chemistry, Economics, English, Geology, German & Russian, History, Math, Music, Sociology, Speech & Drama, or Zoology and are interested in serving on the Student Advisory Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences while working with the Faculty Committees of the College and have a declared major in one of the above areas, please contact the secretary of your department to place your name in nomination for the election of department representatives to be held during the week of the 20th-25th of September. If there are any questions about the Committee or the elections please call the Committee Chairman, Bill Secor, 862-4386.

representatives to be held during the week of the 20th-25th of September. If there are any questions about the Committee or the elections please call the Committee Chairman, Bill Secor, 862-4386.

WAKE UP HAPPY

AS LOW AS
$29.95

WATER BEDS TRY ONE

BAXTER'S EMPORIUM
12 N. Winoski Ave.
Burlington, Vt.

AT

THE PURPLE COW
34 Park St.
Essex Junction, Vt.

CASINO BEACH

St. Albans Bay, Vermont
Rte. 36—Maquam Shore Road

OPEN FRIDAY and SATURDAY

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT—HOME BREW

1st & 3rd Class License

"IT'S MORE THAN JUST A BEACH"

22. Sundae Sticks

5. Lollipops

2. Flying Saucers

Brownie and Cherry Sundae

Old Fashioned Sundae

Carvel Clair

Ice Cream Pie

15. Sno-Balls

8. Tiramisu

4. Spumoni

Carvel Cup (Ice cream snack)

PARFAITS (The ice cream dessert)

ICE CREAM CAKE

CARVELOG

CARVELOG

CARVELOG

CARVELOG

When you think of Ice Cream think "CARVEL"

1st Anniversary Sale

10% DISCOUNT to all UVM Students & Faculty

Mon.—Thurs. thru May '72

SAVE with this ad SALE

Essex Junction store only!

TONIS Fresh Carvel ice cream with toasted coconut and cherry. 7 for $1.25

Carvel. 36 FLAVORS - 60 VARIETIES

Goodness Gracious 36 FLAVORS ICE CREAM

REAL HEAVYWEIGHT ICE CREAM!

That delicious SUNDAY

Carvel. HARD & SOFT ICE CREAM PARLOR

Skate here, come by jalopy, just make sure you get to our New 36 FLAVORS 60 VARIETIES

Carvel. 36 FLAVORS 60 VARIETIES

ESSEX JCT. SHOPPING CENTER open 7 days a week

10:30 A.M. to 11 P.M.

Pearl Street, Essex Jct.

879-0010

Colleges

Delicate Cash Flow Balance
Leads to $2 Million Credit Line
Trustees, authorized, the University to establish a line of credit at the Howard National Bank and Trust Co., in the amount of $2 million. Mr. Humphrey put it this way: "In the past we had some financial problems, but we no longer have."

Dr. Andrews added "we have a very aggressive financial policy. Our cash flow as a result has a very thin margin." If anticipated revenues are delayed in coming in, that can be a big problem, and he cited the fact that students bills were a week late in going out for this fall semester.

The line of credit will enable the University to meet any temporary cash flow interruptions.

M Doubled

Nearly $1 million ($922,000) came in unrestricted and designated gifts to support current operations. $812,000 was given for capital purposes, including building equipment, endowment, and gifts in kind. The latter category included a gift of a rare and valuable book and a substantial art collection.

Both the annual unrestricted alumni and parents funds rose to new levels, as 4387 alumni contributed $147,000, 601 parents contributed $35,000.

Trustee, Hackett said the report of increased giving seemed to run counter to national trends, and he said the development committee and staff deserved congratulations. Mr. Brooks confirmed that increases came in a time when, for the first time in at least two decades the percentage of giving to higher education institutions declined. UVM is among 52 percent of institutions in a national survey reporting an increase, Dr. Schachtman noted.

He said the development committee recognizes that part of the UVM story is a "continuation of the tradition of private interest and support which has helped to build the University over a long period of time."

He particularly expressed appreciation to Franklin J. Saul, former trustee, and Saul Robbins, parents fund chairman; Glen McKibben, chairman of the organization of friends; and Lawrence J. Doolin, chairman of the bequest committee.

Bye Teacher, Hello Keller Method in Introductory Psychology Course

Students taking Psychology I this semester can say exactly that. "Goodbye, teacher, goodbye to learning solely from lecture, goodbye to rigid exam schedules, no making, and I.B.M. sheets." In one huge innovative effort the psychology department is attempting to improve its introductory course, and utilize those principles of learning it has been exposing for years.

The radical new psychology course is designed so that students may move from start to finish at their own pace. The course material is broken down into "units" or "modules," each consisting of a reading assignment and a set of study questions. The students are divided into groups of ten, each group led by a student professor. When the student feels he is ready he may take a quiz on the unit.

The quizzes are administered by the student professors who successfully completed the course last year. Quizzes are graded immediately, and any incorrect answers are discussed. If the student passes the quiz, he is allowed to go on to the next unit. If he should not pass it, he may retake it as many times as needed without penalty. In order to pass, the student must score a 100, however, the study questions for each unit, are, in fact, the unit quizzes. The tests are comprehensive enough to allow administration in this way. This set-up has several advantages: it requires active responding; it allows the student as much practice as needed, thereby decreasing test anxiety; and it gives him immediate knowledge of results.

Students Stranded Without Money or Tickets

By Jeff Yecker
An unfortunately large number of American students found themselves stranded in London, England this summer, the result of dealing with shady travel agencies and organizations in New York City. In most cases, an American student had purchased in the spring a round-trip charter airplane ticket to Europe, usually London, for about $200.00. He actually received a one-way ticket, and a voucher which was to be presented at a travel agency in London for the ticket for the return trip to the States. But many students, beginning their homeward trek in late August, arrived in London only to find their "vouchers" worthless, or redeemable at a future date. According to press reports and people returning from England, the list of such students was growing daily.

One UVM student who was abroad from May 31 to August 24, explained, "I made plans to go to Europe and Israel way back in April, before the commercial airline announced their youth fares. So unless I wanted to spend an absurd sum of about $900.00 on air fare alone, I had to take a charter flight." The student dealt with Student Holidays of New York City, which advertised in the Cynic in March. "Student Holidays, for $210.00, gave me a one-way ticket to London, and a

Freudian View of Agnew

WHEN REP. William Clay, black Democrat from Missouri, said in the House that Agnew is "seriously ill"—in the lead—the comment was widely quoted in the press. But, though his complete remarks were brief, the rest of what he said was virtually blacked out by the media. Clay was reacting to the "carping and unconstructive" criticism—the same terms Agnew used about American blacks when in Africa on his government-sponsored golf tour. Clay had also said Agnew is guilty of "mental insecurity" and is "an intellectual sadist who experiences intellectual orgasm by attacking, humiliating and kicking the oppressed." Did you see that in your papers? Clay added: Agnew "suggests that black leaders in America emulate the leadership of Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya and Joseph Mobutu of the Congo. I hope the Vice President did not mean that if blacks in this country are to attain equality, justice and first-class citizenship, it will be necessary for them to do what Kenyatta and Mobutu did to their white oppressors."

National Guard Let off The Hook at Kent

Washington—The U.S. government will not seek a federal grand jury investigation of the killing of four students by National Guardsmen at Kent State University in May, 1970, Attorney General John N. Mitchell has announced.

Mr. Mitchell's decision brought an immediate and angry reaction from the parents of the four students.

"It is my judgment that further action by the Department of Justice would not be warranted," Mr. Mitchell said.

Parents Express Shock
The decision came despite calls from many investigators for a federal grand jury. William W. Scranton, chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest and former governor of Pennsylvania, testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in June that the evidence warranted a federal investigation.

Until the decision was announced, the parents said, "We continued to believe that the system works or that it can be made to work. Now we know that it does not work for all, and as times as does not work at all. We deeply regret this, for the loss of faith in our government, in this instance, is nearly as great as we have said, as the loss of our own children."

At Kent State, President Robert I. White said the institution "must and does" accept the decision, although he noted that "there are many who will be disappointed."

Liberate Yourself

Books and Posters from our Bookshop—2nd Floor

McAuliffe

Church and College Sts. box 848
Downtown Burlington

National Life of Vermont

Welcomes you back for the 1971-72 school year and reminds you that

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

184 So. Winooski St.
Burlington, Vt. 854-6819

LARGEST SELECTION IN TOWN

POSTERS
OILS
PAPER LANTERNS
HANDCRAFTED JEWELRY
Featuring Our Own Exclusive Designs Created in Our Back Room

Collegiate Club

BankAmericard
Master Charge

Serendipity

RICHARD R. BRUNELLE
805 868-8400

801 MAIN STREET
BURLINGTON, VT. 05401

PONCHO'S SUBMARINES

140 Church St.
Across From City Hall
13 Varieties
Imported Ham
Genoa Salami
Smoked Ham
Spacola
Bologna
Tuna Fish
Chicken Salad
Turkey
Hot Meatballs
Roast Beef-cooked fresh everyday
Plus Many Combinations

3 Different Sizes—
Priced from $.50 to $1.35

"QUALITY FIRST AT PONCHO'S"
Open Everyday Until 1 A.M.

Handcrafted Jewelry in Silver and Gold fine & metal Silvermiths
North Winooski & Avenue
Burlington, Vermont
652-0423 douglas french

BOYD'S MUSIC STUDIO
BURLINGTON, VT.
TRUMPET
SAXOPHONES
RENTALS

BOYD'S MUSIC STUDIO
BURLINGTON, VT.
TRUMPET
SAXOPHONES
RENTALS

Mystery Cancer Drug Ignored By "Big Medicine"

New York (AFS)—An inexpensive apricot kernel extract called Laetrile, used in foreign countries in the treatment of cancer, is being ignored by "big medicine" in the U.S. and by some important people in the F.D.A.

A Dr. Hans Nieper, of a clinic in Hanover, Germany, reported this spring that he had been using Laetrile in cancer treatment for four years. In treating 70 patients, he has observed regression of histologically confirmed tumors and metastases.

Dr. Ernesto Contreras, an American-trained cancer specialist who operates a clinic just over the border in Tijuana, Mexico, reports he has treated several hundred terminal cancer patients in the past eight years. The majority had already tried all the approved methods of cancer correction—radiation, chemicals, surgery. "Frequently enough to be significant, I see arrest of the disease—or even regression—in some 15% of the very advanced cases."

And from the Philippines, Dr. Manuel Navarro, a professor of surgery at the University of Santo Tomas in Manila, reports that after 18 years, he has treated more than 500 patients with Laetrile. "With very rare exceptions," he says, his patients improved, or—at least experienced relief of pain.

Why is Laetrile ignored in the U.S.? An official of the National Cancer Institute says the explanation is that the production process for Laetrile (amygdalin) is already in the public domain—and hence unprofitable for exploitation.

An application by a non-profit research institute to test Laetrile on American cancer patients has lain unapproved for more than a year on the desk of Dr. Charles Edwards, a former surgeon who is now Commissioner of the Food & Drug Administration. The applicant is the McNaughton Foundation of San Francisco.

Dean Burk, Ph.D., a cell biochemist who is director of the Cytochemistry Department of the National Cancer Institute, estimates there are "upwards of 200,000" terminal cancer patients who would be eager to have Laetrile tested on them. He said, "I get two or three phone calls a day—I've had two already this morning—from people who ask me where they can get Laetrile."

Burk, with a 40-year interest in cancer research, provides the national cancer research bureau with laboratory evaluations of chemical cancer therapies to be tested on humans. On the basis of his limited study of Laetrile, he says the only explanation he can give for Dr. Edwards' foot-dragging on the McNaughton application is that "the FDA sits in the lap of the medical industry."

He said there are two dozen chemical cancer-therapy drugs currently in use. All have a marginal performance record of cure ratios as small as 5%—10% in some cases. All are toxic.

Yet, Laetrile is non-toxic. "No one has ever been harmed by using Laetrile, as far as is known," Burk said. He pointed out that the FDA regularly approves drugs which have side effects—often severe, painful, and sometimes have had bad effects.

The FDA's response to inquiries on the subject are inconclusive. The bureau issues a 1½-page typewritten "Fact Sheet," composed a year ago, which gives some background on the McNaughton application and some interesting details about Laetrile's discoverer (a Dr. Ernst Krebs of San Francisco). But nowhere does it indicate Laetrile could be of any danger to anyone. Yet the FDA concludes with an arbitrary statement that an application to test Laetrile in humans should not be approved.

Queries to the American Medical Association and the American Cancer Society are equally futile. The AMA sends a 2½-page statement, by their "Department of Investigation." The statement was written five years ago and does not refer to any original research on the drug. The AMA, instead, is a review of controversial articles and news clippings.

The American Cancer Society's 6½ pages are a duplication of the same effort, if a little better researched and written. Again, nowhere is there any indication the ACS has done any original research with Laetrile.

Several Congressmen—at least eight so far, including Senator Proxmire, Mondale and Hart—have become interested in the medical establishment's surprising indifference to what might be an who have no conflicting interests and who are able to evaluate the evidence objectively.

Fountain holds the trump card. He can call hearings on the FDA's policy—or lack of it—toward Laetrile, and cause the FDA to give Laetrile thorough study. Even the director of the FDA Bureau of Drugs (a subordinate of Edwards) has said, "In this country, Laetrile has not had its day in court."

(continued on page six)

SOLANACEAE NATURAL FOODS, Inc.

MACROBIOTIC SUPPLIES

PARAMOUNT BREAD ORGANIC PRODUCE

NUTS SPICES

FERTILIZED EGGS

DRIED FRUIT

HONEY

HERBAL TEAS

GOAT MILK PRODUCTS

NEW HOURS 9:00-9:00

MON.-SAT.

BURLINGTON, VERMONT 05401 • 863-4430

115 SO. WINOOSKI AVE.

e Motivated

for former patients in Burlington area. Also teaching modern dance, drama, and piano.

Champion Unit, Vermont State Hospital - One-to-one relationship with patients in psychiatric unit.

Literary, Vermont State Hospital - assist patients in selecting books and reading to them.

Geriatric Rehabilitation Unit, Vermont State Hospital - one-to-one relationship with elderly patients, reading to blind patients.

Vermont State Hospital, ARATU - work on one-to-one basis with newly admitted patients.

Northeast Kingdom Unit, Vermont State Hospital - one-to-one and group work with long-term patients.

Psychology Department, Vermont State Hospital - assist in psychometric, collecting research data.

Recreation Department, Vermont State Hospital - musicians for patient dances and patients confined to wards.

Volunteers with ideas on using music therapeutically are needed.

Elderly School, Vermont State Hospital - learning individualized, of elementary or high school.

Southern Vermont Unit, Vermont State Hospital - volunteer functions as part of Unit.

Treatment Team - working with individual therapy.

OUR ENGAGEMENT RINGS MAKE IT EASIER TO POP THE QUESTION

YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT.

E.J. PRESON & SON

1100 CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON
Hours: Mon.-Sat. 9:30 to 5:30 P.M.
Open Friday 9:30 to 5:30 P.M.
CLOSED SUNDAY

Making Love Is Great. Making Her Pregnant Isn't.

Face it, "The progestin" isn't just for Boy Scouts. If you really care about your life and here, you'll take precautions to prevent an accidental pregnancy. By using a condom. One of today's new condoms—so highly reliable yet so exquisitely sensitive that you no longer have to sacrifice pleasure for safety.

Why-free sex? Yes!

So why run the risk of accidental pregnancy? Especially now that you can get famous brand condoms privately—by mail—from Population Planning Associates. The 51 top brands we offer have been carefully selected from the more than 100 available today. All are electronically tested and meet rigorous FDA standards.

Choose from the Fidelity from England, thinnest and most exciting to use, with "sensitex" lubrication for extra enjoyment. Or the NuForm, also from England, pre-shaped for a unique new sensation. Or the famous Trojan. Or the well-known and popular Satisfay. And many more.

Fast Delivery—Money Back Guarantee

Discover our fast, low-cost service by sending just $6 for a deluxe sampler pack of 18 assorted condoms—5 each of 6 different brands, including the Fidelity and the NuForm—plus an illustrated brochure describing our complete selection. Or send just $1 and get 3 Fidelity, 2 Fothergill and 1 NuForm, plus the brochure. All orders are filled the same day received and sent in a plain pack. Money back if not delighted. Mail coupon now.

Population Planning Associates
190 North Columbia
Shelton, CT 06484
Please rush me to plain package:
☐ Deluxe sampler pack of 18 assorted condoms plus brochure, $6.
☐ 2 Fothergill, 1 NuForm, plus the brochure, $1.
I enclose payment in full. If not delighted, I may return unused portion of order for full refund.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Phone _____

292

"Sunrise Seminars"

On Thursday, September 2, the Experimental Program began its third academic year at 6:30 in the morning with the first of its "Sunrise Seminars." The topic at this first seminar was Aristotle's concept of work, presented by Professor Robert Anderson of St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland. Fifty students and teachers attended the session. Early morning academic work of the first week also included presentations by Rabbi Murray Dachsman of Burlington, on the Old Testament, and Professor R. Thomas Simone of the University of Vermont on G. M. Hopkins' poem, "The Windhover."

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, hearing the going-on like this come as no surprise. For those new to UVM, some explanation is necessary. The Experimental Program was founded two years ago as a special program of the College of Arts and Sciences. Although most of the classes that Experimental Program students take are held in Coolidge and Mason Halls, the Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environment and process, but also with the substance of education itself.

The Sunrise Seminars were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarmann, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshmen and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of physical and mental stimulation, and conventional habits, Experimentation, with the surrounding environment, has also been encouraged through a room design contest. The living-learning theory is encouraged through semester-long seminars and tutorials which replace some or all of the conventional university courses. An EP student may vary his choice of conventional and experimental courses. The maximum course load is four, either two experimental and two conventional, or three experimental and one conventional course. Special programs that deviate from these basic requirements are planned in consultation with the student's advisor and the Curriculum Committee of the Program.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in this fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a place in the curriculum, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural sociology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Book and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, empty for small classes conducted in a cory residential setting."

The Experimental Program begins the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Stirling Mountain at Madonna. Students also attended an informative discussion on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling service, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood under 21 Program. Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing

Want a taste of New Wine and its Allen Chapel, 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Thank you.

MA HEAD

INCL CO TY CA MA

harm ma 17 S

VERMONT CYNIC

SEPTEMBER 17, 1971

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Warner M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Warner, Box 974, East Lansing, MI 48823. Copyright, 1971

QUESTION: Is it true that if a man has intercourse every day the sperm will not be fully developed and thereby pregnancy will be prevented. If so, how long does it take for new sperm to develop? My wife would like to get pregnant; does this mean there should be a day or two of rest before intercourse?

ANSWER: Very frequent sexual intercourse can result in a decreased sperm count and may cause pregnancy difficulties. No physical harm results from such a situation. As a means of contraception, it is totally unreliable and is more complicated than the usually recommended techniques. A four to five day rest period before attempting conception probably would enhance the possibility of success.

QUESTION: Recently there have been many advertisements for "water beds." Are they good for the back? Over a long period of time could they be harmful to posture? Are they better than a firm mattress?

ANSWER: Waterbeds are mattress-shaped bags made of a heavy weight flexible plastic and are filled with about 200 gallons of water. Because the water can shift around within its container, a waterbed provides a soft, yielding surface that yields to the body's contours. People who purchase them claim that they help induce restful sleep. Advertisements play up how enveloping, security inducing and relaxing the waterbed is. They also hint that there are some sexual benefits to be reaped from their use.

Whether the waterbed enhances sexuality would be difficult to evaluate. A friend indicates that a new dimension is added to intercourse since the bed is so responsive, but he adds that if one is in a hurry, it is easy to lose your balance. The recent medical literature does not contain information about harmful or beneficial effects when the waterbed is used for back trouble or posture. My orthopedic consultant advises that sleeping on your back, in any kind of bed would aggravate back trouble. For low back pain, sleeping on your side on a firm mattress or placing the mattress on the floor is recommended. If you must sleep on your back, pillows should be inserted under the knees to flatten out the hollow of the back. A word of caution, a gallon of water weighs eight pounds. Some waterbeds weigh nearly a ton. Not all second floor bedrooms in old dwellings can support such a weight.

Charter Flights

Cont. From Page Five

BOAC, arch-computers for the New York-London route are doing something similar.

But what of the money lost on the charter flights? Students who were awarded have several avenues by which they may retrieve some of their money. If they are the Better Business Bureau, the Consumer Affairs Division of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and the office of the New York Attorney General. Student Holidays has moved its address in Manhattan, and two other agencies which routed the students have simply gone out of business.

For many of the thousands of American students who travelled in Europe this summer, it was a sad ending to an otherwise fantastic trip.

NEWSWEEK: "With the possible exception of speeding in cars, marijuana smoking is probably the most widely committed crime in the U.S. today."

possible and to re-expose the fine wood structure. Completion of the renovation is hoped for by September, 1972.

MACHIAVELLI: "It is inadvisable to drive into a situation, for they who are without hope are without fear."

Buildings

Cont. From Page One

being renovated to meet the needs of the Art and the Math Departments. Not expected to be completed until next year, the first three floors of the renovated hall will be used by the Art Department for sculpture, painting, ceramics and woodwork. The fourth and fifth floors will be occupied by the Math Department. The Military Science Building is a utilitarian structure designed by the office of the famed architect, Mr. Henry Richardson. Interior construction will begin in January, 1972 on a new theater to replace the original Agnes Theater in the Fleming Museum. The new theater will contain 350 seats. Efforts will be made to preserve the exterior and the interior as much as Good Luck to All in the Coming Year!

UNIVERSITY STORE ON THE CAMPUS

MIDAS MUFFLER and SHOCK CENTER AT 699 PINE ST.

Guaranteed Mufflers • Guaranteed Shock Absorbers • Custom Exhaust Work • Muff Pipe Bending • Official Vermont Inspection Station

We do the job faster, in 30 minutes or less! FREE Pick-up and Delivery!

STUDENT DISCOUNTS

Bankamericard PHONE 862-7500 master charge OPEN Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Featuring Columbia Records Blockbuster

RECORD MART

"Where Price is King" 68 Church St. Burlington Biggest Selection & Lowest Prices on all LP's & Tapes

JIMI HENDRIX JOHNNY WINTER AND SLY & THE FAMILY STONE TEN YEARS AFTER MILES DAVIS KRIS KRISTOFFERSON MOUNTAIN THE ALLMAN BROTHERS POCO PROCOL HARUM THE CLASH IS BROTHERS GACTUS LEONARD COHEN DAVID BROMBERG

Isle of Wight Atlanta Pop Festival 3 Pocket LP for $6.58

RECORD MART

Student Statistics

Estimates provided by the Registrar's Office indicate that there are 7300 full-time students at the University of Vermont this fall.

A final statistical report will be compiled later this month; the following figures are rounded.

Of the 7300, about 6300 students are undergraduates. The remaining thousand is composed of roughly 750 graduate students and 250 or 300 medical students.

The freshman class is about 1650, although that number may well be 1700 when transfer students are all accounted for. Persons who transfer less than 30 credit hours are classified as freshmen.

Late registration for Evening Division was held last week, as was registration for full-time students also enrolling in evening classes. Figures for those categories were not available as we went to press, but 1200 students had already enrolled in evening classes. When late registrants and full-time students also enrolling in Evening Division are tallied, the figure may well exceed last year's per semester total of about 1500.

Census Bureau

Washington — As population growth poses increasingly difficult policy problems for public officials and businessmen, more and more people need some idea of what the future number of Americans is likely to be. And their principal source of information is likely to be the projections put out by the Census Bureau.

But the art of estimating future population trends is still in an early stage of development, warns the Population Reference Bureau, in its just-published Bulletin, "The Future Population of the United States." Nothing better than educated guesses is now available, says the PRB. In August 1970, for example, the Census Bureau issued a set of four projections for the U.S. population in the year 2000 that ranged from a high of 321 million to a low of 266 million, a spread of 55 million persons. The 1970 projections followed by only three years an earlier set of projections that had quickly become outdated and overtaken by events.

The Census Bureau itself, points out the PRB, declines to call its figures "predictions," or to say which of its four projections is most likely to be nearest to actual future experience. This reluctance is understandable, in view of past surprises. Census predictions after World War II greatly misjudged the size and duration of the postwar baby boom, and later projections missed the downturn in fertility that began in 1958.

The major difficulty facing the Census projectionists and other population men is the changeability and unpredictability of the American people where fertility is concerned, says the PRB. Projections are made on the basis of recent rates of fertility, but numerous factors can intrude to change those fertility rates, and most of them are difficult to measure or even predict.

THE REDWOOD REST.

60 NORTH ST., BURLINGTON

"WHERE ALL OF UVM GATHERS"

HAPPY HOUR EVERY TUE. & THURS. NIGHT

9:00-11:00 P.M. REDUCED PRICES

HAPPY HOUR

FREE SHUFFLE BOARD—POOL TABLE HOT DOGS—GRINDERS—PIZZA—

OPEN EVERY SUNDAY 12:00-11:00 P.M. DURING FOOTBALL HALF-TIME

COLOR TV

FREE FOOD ON SUNDAYS

BEFORE AND AFTER ALL SPORTING EVENTS

THE GATHERING PLACE TO BE (DOWN TO EARTH PRICES)

"THE REDWOOD REST"

BRING YOUR ID'S

YOU HAVE CHANGED! WE HAVE CHANGED

Big Ben pizza pub

922 Shelburne Road So. Burlington 207 Colchester Ave. Burlington

FROSTY MUGS OF BEER SERVED!

SUNSHINE MOUNTAIN

9 mechanics la. (down the alley)

ag

Many advertisements for back? Over a long period of time, they have been a firm belief made of a heavy bag with about 200 gallons of ground within its container, a supporting surface that yields to the weight of the bag. People who purchase a bag of back for the purpose of creating a firm mattress or a bed for the waterbed are usually disappointed. The bag is not as responsive; but, it is easy to lose your back. The bag is not as responsive; but, it is easy to lose your back. The bag is not as responsive; but, it is easy to lose your back.

Student Statistics

Estimates provided by the Registrar's Office indicate that there are 7500 full-time students at the University of Vermont this fall. A final statistical report will be compiled later this month; the following figures are rounded. Of the 7500, about 6500 students are undergraduates. The remaining thousand is composed of roughly 750 graduate students and 250 or 300 medical students. The freshman class is about 650, although that number may well be 1700 when transfer students are all accounted for. Persons who transfer less than 10 credit hours are classified as freshmen. Late registration for Evening Division was held last week, as was registration for full-time students also enrolling in evening classes. Figures for these categories were available as late as last week, but 1200 students had already enrolled in evening classes. When late registrants and full-time students also enrolling in Evening Division are tallied, the figure may well exceed last year's per semester total of about 1500.

Census Bureau

Washington - As population growth poses increasingly difficult policy problems for public officials and businessmen, more and more people need some idea of what the future number of Americans is likely to be. And their principal source of information is likely to be the projections put out by the Census Bureau. But the art of estimating future population trends is still in its infancy. The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., in its just-published Bulletin, "The Future Population of the United States," Nothing better than educated guesses is now available, says the PRB. In August 1970, for example, the Census Bureau issued a set of four projections for the U.S. population in the year 2000 that ranged from a high of 321 million to a low of 266 million, a spread of 55 million persons. The 1970 projections followed by only three years an earlier set of projections that had quickly become outdated and overtaken by events. The Census Bureau itself, points out the PRB, declines to call its figures "predictions," or to say which of its four projections is most likely to be nearest to actual future experience. This reticence is understandable, in view of past surprises. Census predictions, after World War II greatly misjudged the size and duration of the post-war baby boom, and later projections missed the downturn in fertility that began in 1958. The major difficulty facing the Census Bureau and other population users is the lack of a reliable and reproducible method of measuring fertility, but numerous factors can intrude to change those fertility rates, and most of them are difficult to measure or even predict.

"Sunrise Seminars" Instituted

On Thursday, September 2, the Experimental Program began its third academic year at 6:30 in the morning with the first of its "Sunrise Seminars." The topic at this first seminar was Aristotle's concept of work, presented by Professor Robert Anderson of St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland. Fifty students and teachers attended the seminar. Early morning seminars are a new feature of the Experimental Program. The first seminar was held in the Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, there's nothing new here. The Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environments and processes but also with the substance of education itself. The "Sunrise Seminars" were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarman, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshman and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of learning and living.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in the fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a glance at the theme of love and marriage in literature, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural ecology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Seed and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, simply for small classes conducted in a cozy residential setting."

The Experimental Program began the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Skirling Mountain at Madonnas. Students also attended informative discussions on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling services, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood during 21 Program Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing their course offerings, followed by the fastest registration period in the history of UVM - an average of 2.9 minutes per student. In addition to a new film series on the American Western, weekly presentations of both recorded and live music will be held in Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, there's nothing new here. The Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environments and processes but also with the substance of education itself. The "Sunrise Seminars" were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarman, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshman and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of learning and living.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in the fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a glance at the theme of love and marriage in literature, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural ecology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Seed and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, simply for small classes conducted in a cozy residential setting."

The Experimental Program began the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Skirling Mountain at Madonnas. Students also attended informative discussions on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling services, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood during 21 Program Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing their course offerings, followed by the fastest registration period in the history of UVM - an average of 2.9 minutes per student. In addition to a new film series on the American Western, weekly presentations of both recorded and live music will be held in Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Art Posters

Any University student may rent a framed print or poster from the Robert Hall Fleming Museum for the academic year. These prints and posters will be available beginning Thursday, September 16 on the Museum's Marble Court Balcony. Rental rates are: Student Museum Members, $1; non-member students, $2. A $1 deposit for glass, returnable at the end of the year, is required for all rentals. Original Fleming Museum exhibition posters by outstanding printmakers including Clair Van Vliet, Louis Lozowick, and Bill Davison will be on sale at the same time. Among these posters is an exceptionally fine Toulouse-Lautrec reproduced by the famous Mourlot printers in Paris. These posters are available to all members of the University and the community at a small price.

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, there's nothing new here. The Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environments and processes but also with the substance of education itself. The "Sunrise Seminars" were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarman, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshman and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of learning and living.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in the fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a glance at the theme of love and marriage in literature, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural ecology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Seed and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, simply for small classes conducted in a cozy residential setting."

The Experimental Program began the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Skirling Mountain at Madonnas. Students also attended informative discussions on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling services, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood during 21 Program Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing their course offerings, followed by the fastest registration period in the history of UVM - an average of 2.9 minutes per student. In addition to a new film series on the American Western, weekly presentations of both recorded and live music will be held in Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

Art Posters

Any University student may rent a framed print or poster from the Robert Hall Fleming Museum for the academic year. These prints and posters will be available beginning Thursday, September 16 on the Museum's Marble Court Balcony. Rental rates are: Student Museum Members, $1; non-member students, $2. A $1 deposit for glass, returnable at the end of the year, is required for all rentals. Original Fleming Museum exhibition posters by outstanding printmakers including Clair Van Vliet, Louis Lozowick, and Bill Davison will be on sale at the same time. Among these posters is an exceptionally fine Toulouse-Lautrec reproduced by the famous Mourlot printers in Paris. These posters are available to all members of the University and the community at a small price.

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, there's nothing new here. The Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environments and processes but also with the substance of education itself. The "Sunrise Seminars" were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarman, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshman and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of learning and living.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in the fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a glance at the theme of love and marriage in literature, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural ecology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Seed and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, simply for small classes conducted in a cozy residential setting."

The Experimental Program began the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Skirling Mountain at Madonnas. Students also attended informative discussions on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling services, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood during 21 Program Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing their course offerings, followed by the fastest registration period in the history of UVM - an average of 2.9 minutes per student. In addition to a new film series on the American Western, weekly presentations of both recorded and live music will be held in Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

Art Posters

Any University student may rent a framed print or poster from the Robert Hall Fleming Museum for the academic year. These prints and posters will be available beginning Thursday, September 16 on the Museum's Marble Court Balcony. Rental rates are: Student Museum Members, $1; non-member students, $2. A $1 deposit for glass, returnable at the end of the year, is required for all rentals. Original Fleming Museum exhibition posters by outstanding printmakers including Clair Van Vliet, Louis Lozowick, and Bill Davison will be on sale at the same time. Among these posters is an exceptionally fine Toulouse-Lautrec reproduced by the famous Mourlot printers in Paris. These posters are available to all members of the University and the community at a small price.

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

For people familiar with the Experimental Program, there's nothing new here. The Program is attempting to deal not only with some issues of educational environments and processes but also with the substance of education itself. The "Sunrise Seminars" were instituted on recommendation of the student-faculty Curriculum Committee of the Experimental Program after a morning-long session discussing the problems and possibilities of educational innovation.

Currently under the direction of Professors Jon Fackler and Richard Sugarman, the Experimental Program consists of about 270 freshman and sophomore students selected at random from the last two incoming freshman classes. Their orientation is towards building a living-learning community. In other words, many of the people involved have come to believe that each activity, social or academic, can be a learning experience, and that these activities can enrich one another. Thus, the sunrise seminars are easily viewed as experiences experimenting with the basic life style, processes of learning and living.

Graded by a pass, no-pass system and extensive written comments, students have a wide variety of course choices. Forty-two courses are listed in the fall's folder, including offerings in art and psychology, a glance at the theme of love and marriage in literature, the history of women, basic ideas in biology, the Quixotism of our time, environmental psychology, cultural ecology, themes and traditions in Christianity, experimental elementary Greek, and a cross-disciplinary course in neuroscience. In addition to these, sophomore Ed Hochman is working towards establishing an Experimental Program physical education program with conventional accreditation. The most important aspect of these courses is that most of them represent educational experiments themselves. As Jon Fackler stressed in the first issue of the new Experimental Program newsletter, Seed and Shovel: "We have no right to ask, and the University has no obligation to provide, simply for small classes conducted in a cozy residential setting."

The Experimental Program began the fall term with a busy week. In addition to the sunrise seminars, the past week's events included a 27-mile bicycle trip, a Coolidge-Mason softball game, and a hike up Skirling Mountain at Madonnas. Students also attended informative discussions on the drug crisis at UVM, on draft counseling services, and on Burlington's Planned Parenthood during 21 Program Academic orientations were conducted for two days, with faculty discussing their course offerings, followed by the fastest registration period in the history of UVM - an average of 2.9 minutes per student. In addition to a new film series on the American Western, weekly presentations of both recorded and live music will be held in Coolidge or Mason Lounge every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. And the Program also expects to conduct a community choir and folk-dancing sessions.

When interviewed, students admitted to being a little confused by all that has been going on the first week of the fall term, but most say they are attracted by the potential the Program holds. In comparing the previous year to the prospects of the fall semester, a sophomore contended that the Program is definitely expanding and progressing towards "what it should be... experimental."

Time and dedication have been and will probably continue to be the primary factors contributing to the expansion and improvement of the Experimental Program. The majority of faculty and students seem to feel a sense of optimism this fall, and are concerned with improving the Program as much as possible.

Want a taste of New Wine? What's New Wine? Rock and message, both, and a flick along with it. Come and taste the sound of New Wine and see the many images of Clear Light. Where? At Ira Allen Chapel, four nights, Wednesday-Saturday, September 22-25, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets at the door. Thank you.

ALPINE SHOP

Williston Road, So. Burlington
OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M.

SKI and BOOT SALE

95 Pair of SKIS UP TO 40% OFF
Rossignol - Kneissel - Yamaha
Fischer - Head - Dynamic
K2 - Hart - Kastle

220 Pair of SKI BOOTS UP TO 50% OFF
• Nordica
• Henke
• Ruithe
• Koflach
• Lange
• Letrappier
• A&T
• Molitor
• Rieker

Enjoy the game, then enjoy a visit to your favorite TOWER RESTAURANT!

Now Serving Ice Cold

DRAFT BEER

at all Tower Restaurants!

PIZZA (24 kinds)

• Italian Dishes (16 kinds)
• Delicatessen Style Sandwiches
• Submarines (15 kinds)
• Muffins (9 kinds)
• Breakfasts (country style)

... the unique eating establishment for the entire family, large seating capacity, air conditioned.

THE Tower RESTAURANT

DIAL 864-9817

HOURS: 9:30 a.m. to 1 a.m. Fri. & Sat. to 2 a.m.

1234 Williston Rd. S. Burlington
Essex Junction Shopping Ctr. 878-8338
Tower Number Three, Barre Montpelier Rd.

MAZEL'S SHOE STORE
194 NORTH ST. BURLINGTON
HEADQUARTERS FOR DUNHAM'S
FAMOUS QUALITY SHOES
INCLUDING:
★ CONTINENTALS
★ TYROLEANS ★ CAMPUS BOOTS
MAZEL'S SHOE STORE
194 North St.
Free Parking
57 Years Service

NEW! FFi & Sat.
NEW! ROCK AND NEW!
NEW! BARK AND NEW!
$3.64 ROLL Red Stewart
EVERY PICTURE $3.64
With this Ad!
THE UPSTAIRS RECORD SHOP
30 CHURCH ST.

LITTLE PROFESSOR BOOK CENTER
4000 Fairbank
Tues. - Thurs.
- CARDS - Underground
Newspapers
Other Earth
Coping
48 CHURCH STREET
Open every night 'til Nine

The COMPANY STORE
custom made LEATHER CLOTHING
FRYE boots
hand made SILVER jewelry
177 Church Street BURLINGTON
802/864-7379

Black Consumer Boycott

ONE OF THE most and reported stories of recent years is the violent resistance to the black consumer boycott, occurring in third-year in Camp (pronounced Bay-put) III. The media were determined to wait until there's a movement of blacks before taking in on it. Camp is situated at a confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, as night of gunfire into the black community each week since the boycott began. Two deaths have resulted so far. The blacks are organized behind the United Front, headed by a 28-year-old black, Rev. Charles Koen. A "Lifeline to Cairo" nationwide collection of food, clothing and medical supplies is being organized by the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. To find out the local drop-off point in your area, send a stamped self-addressed envelope to: Al Hubbard, VVAW, 25 E. 26 St., N.Y. 10010.

NOW! Don't worry anymore about typing errors!

ERRORITE™ is a quality nylon typewriter ribbon featuring a built-in error corrector.

ERRORITE™ eliminates the need to purchase ribbon and correction aids separately.

ERRORITE™ is always in position to make quick, clean corrections...no more fussing with separate paper or fluid correctors.

Purchase ERRORITE™ at your book store.

Sold Exclusively at College and University Book Stores

FILM PROCESS CORP., 653-630 Eleventh Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10036

College Cerebral Psychological Illness Part
The Great Psychological Part
By David Newcomb

Part I Chapter 4 On the Narnian Floilla

Have you been home lately?

No.

I guess this travelling gets you down

Yeah.

On the Narnian Floilla

Here's where dreams are made

But you're too sick to see

Did George survive

Yes but Hamilton is cracked

On the Narnian Floilla

Here's where dreams are made

But you're too sick to see

I guess it's always this way

Find some land soon John Paul Columbus

And make some dreams of your own

On the Narnian Floilla

Here's where dreams are made

and clichés too.

New Talent Boosts Ranks

Two more junior college transfers are slated to report to the opening session of the University of Vermont pre-season football drills, which began August 23. It was announced today (June 21) by head coach, Joseph L. Scannella.

Carl Daukas, a 6-1, 295 lb. fullback-linebacker, and Coast Guard veteran, Jeff Shaw, a 6-4, 235 lb. defensive end, will enroll at Vermont this fall and will be immediately available for this season, and the toughest schedule in the history of the school.

Such clubs at Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Bucknell and Lehigh did the rugged Catamount football calendar, which will open Sept. 18 against last year's Yankee Conference champions, Connecticut, at home.

Connecticut will be followed by Bucknell, Lehigh and Rhode Island, all at home.

Vermont then travels to New Hampshire, Hofstra and Massachusetts before hosting Maine in the final home game. The Cats will close out its season at Northeastern, Nov. 6.

"We are very anxious for the season to kick off this fall, and with the addition of Daukas and Shaw, our task of improving upon last year's season (0-9) will be that much easier," said Scannella. "Both are excellent candidates who should add immediate maturity to our club."

Daukas, a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., is a graduate of Grand Rapids Junior College, while Shaw, a resident of Conshohocken, Pa., attended Montgomery Junior College for two years.

Keep Charlie Kicking

Charlie Catamount is falling apart in the seams, literally. That famous costume which gives us all a chuckle at the games, has just about breathed its last.

The cheerleading squad here at the University needs money, both the girls and Charlie himself. That collection that was taken at the scrimmage last Saturday was meant to help absorb the expenses of the sideline scrimmage.

In the past, Charlie and his girl friends have followed the team to the away games, paid for the upkeep of the costumes and uniforms, and have even helped with the recruiting, all with their own money. The cheerleaders even have to provide their own uniforms. The old Charlie Catamount costume, which is now being held together by spit and a prayer, does not have much mileage left in it. A new one is needed, and costumes like that don't run cheap.

At present, the cheerleaders are not financially supported by the University in any way. This is very noble for the girls, but it's not very fair. If you wish to see Charlie Catamount die and never be reincarnated, and if you want to chance that the cheerleaders bank accounts will hold out, just walk into the stands and take your seat. However, if you want to keep just a taste of tradition and spirit, throw in a quarter.

INSIDER

by Peter Hicks

to the success or failure of a sportsperson is a la Dallas football game. A team of mentally prepared in order the University of Vermont to some extent on all equipment suffered from lack of a rush of injuries. Coach complicated system precluded the short-term adaption thus half prepared mentally. The experienced.

Factors quite understandably start against Dartmouth in games, a rather delicate but factor entered into the picture. Only that we could go out and to doubt ourselves. In mention its own ability. It must prerequisite knowledge of itself to succeed. A Coach can only a team into gaining self-analysis. It is the team which utilize its own potential.

As in the present team and precursor. The 1971 Catamounts know their capabilities as a to say that our 1970 club were the existentialists asking their questions at the line of scrimmage. The present team has eradicated the year before, and with the a positive and optimistic view major concern. Coach Scannella bevy of Junior College and sophomore and Juniors of the maturing day by day. Most and a half of constant exposure the team is beginning to master formations which seemed so Last year is a century away.

TTE

controlled stereo systems (For tuner system in one room and a item in another). The LA-44 has flexibility with most functions rolled. Power output is 170 watts of inputs and jacks for two pairs of provided. We believe that these units are truly extraordinary. The 9.95 for the LA-44 and $79.95 stration of the newest innovation high fidelity at your nearest. At the same time you can choose one of Lafayette quality speaker

SAVE $36.00

Video in Your Cartridge $28.95 Reg 64.95

Catamount Clippings

Beginnings follow a pattern just like anything else. For Freshman, they bring curiosity and maybe a little anxiety. Sophomores return with the conceit that they now know it all. Juniors are pretty neutral on the whole subject and seniors just look ahead, waiting for the bubble to burst into another time of curiosity and fear.

For a writer, a beginning means scraping a summer's worth of cluttered images off the brain and trying to write something somewhat relevant. This isn't rim between cursing the heat and shouting obscenities at the cold is the toughest, for everybody.

Yet, some images are tougher to shake, than others for they somehow never lose their bitter taste. Some people merely try hard to forget, some make an attempt not to let it bother them, and some work hard to free themselves from the curse of the past.

The football team fits into the third category, and I believe they are on the right track. Bouncing back from a winless season isn't easy, but it looks as though Coach Scannella's Club has the stuff to do it.

It's easy to let a 6'5", 250-pound behemoth push you around, especially in a scrimmage. UVM did not think so. The club came back from an embarrassing 46-6 defeat last year to almost win it, the winning touchdown of the 14-7 score came on a 60 yard run. Its looks as though Vermont will be presenting some really tough Yankee Conference competition in the coming months. Yet, the entire athletic program is still left with that same bitter taste. With budget cuts, the attack on the football scholarship program by those with no faith in the future, and long since buried under the weight of the SA bureaucracy and the aborting of the baseball program at a moment's notice, the picture has been bleak. Even a successful Hockey program is heading toward a financial bind, and remedies are hard to come by. Perhaps with the coming season, for which I feel nothing but optimism, a new emphasis will be placed where it is so desperately needed, and emphasis and a support of the athletic program here at the University.

One final observation which I find to be the most surprising, for Centennial field has been, over the past year, a lonely place. A place where, just one short year ago, the athletes pleaded for support, but found no one to listen, and a time when the days of victory seemed but shadows of the past, with only a few daring to have hope in the future.

Saturday was different, very different. What's the secret that brought the 3,000 fans to the field. A new year's new club, booze, or free admission? I make no attempt to understand. I only hope that it will continue, for the team's sake and for their own.

Lemans In Vermont?

It seems that the fraternities have thought of every conceivable type of athletic competition to hold among themselves. This year, they have come up with the most novel idea in years, and the competition will be held at Catamount Stadium in Milton.

On the evening of September 18 at 8 P.M., the first Great Fraternity Race will be held, with each house doing their best in the heated competition to bring home the coveted "Battered Bumper" award.

This will be a regulation race, following all the necessary safety standards, and all cars will in the "Hurricane Division" class. This will hopefully be the first of many such Inter-Fraternity competitions to come.

They're good tough kids and they're going to raise hell all year.

Optimistic perhaps, but understandable optimism on the part of Coach Joe Scannella after the fine performance his football club put in during Saturday's scrimmage against Dartmouth at Centennial field. The final score of 14-7 serves as a good indication of how close the battle was.

The team from Hanover, far outdistancing the defensive unit for the Catamounts, put in a good steady ground game during the entire contest. Vermont stuck to their strategy of letting the Indians chop away for small yardage and avoid the long gain. For the most part, UVM put up a solid, consistent defense and kept Dartmouth far away from scoring.

The first quarter saw Dartmouth mount two offensive drives, but was only able to pose a threat once. The Indians moved from its own 24 yard line to the home club's sixteen before being halted. An excellent play by Rich Kostowski blocked the field goal attempt after a near completion in the end zone. Vermont took over on its own 47. However, UVM was unable to capitalize on the mistake.

The defensive unit for the Catamounts weakened a little during the early parts of the second quarter, enabling the Indians to mount another offensive and bring the ball down into pay dirt. Moving from its own 38 yard, and aided by two costly Vermont penalties, the Indians took eight plays before they drew first blood. The point after attempt proved successful as the Hanover team moved to a 7-0 lead. The remainder of the half proceeded without incident as the ball was traded several times.

The opening minutes of the second half saw Vermont pose a serious threat, the high point of which was an Earl Olson to Gary VanDoeur pass which took the ball down to the Dartmouth 27 yard line. The drive was stopped short by a Vermont fumble, the first of three during that period, on the 18. Vermont got another chance as John LeBlond intercepted on the Vermont 40, but the Catamounts were unable to get the ball moving. Vermont recovered at the midstripe, but lost the chance as they fumbled for the third time to end the period.

In the opening minutes of the fourth quarter, the Dartmouth secondary pulled a fine reverse as Rick Klugchak scored 94 yards for the touchdown. Vermont was able to then start the ball moving from their own 26, giving the fans their most impressive offensive drive of the afternoon. Seventeen plays and five first downs later, E. Olson sent a fine aerial to Freshman Bill Comstock in the corner of the end zone to tally up the first points for Vermont. Paul Jakubchick sent it straight through the uprights to make the score 14-7.

Earl Olson saw most of the action in the quarterback position during the contest, with Ed Yurica calling the signals for greater part of the third quarter. Bob Roger, who suffered an injury last year which really hurt his season, came back in fine form. Gary Vandoeur was the workhorse of the day, being utilized much in the rushing and receiving capacities. Bill Comstock, Phil Warner, Charlie Russo and Kevin Lynch were all singled out by Scannella as having put in a fine effort.

Both teams used the screen pass effectively and each almost broke for touchdowns on several occasions when it was used. However, the main emphasis of the day was on the ground game, and the number of fumbles suffered by both sides in evidence of this. The Hanover team suffered a total of four fumbles to the Vermont three.

Had not those occurred, the game picture may have changed drastically.

The scrimmage was held under complete game conditions, and featured the first units of both clubs battling head to head. Vermont, who is returning with 22 lettermen, has been in camp since Aug. 23. Dartmouth started a week later on the 31st, and graduation has taken its toll, since the club has lost All-American Murray Bowden and All-Ivy selection Barry Brink.

Gary Vandoeur crashes over as Bob Rodgers celebrates. Touchdown was nullified by penalty but regained on next play.

New Varsity Strategist

The freshman football coach at the University of Vermont last year, Michael Murphy, has been promoted to a varsity assistant at Vermont, it was officially announced.

Murphy, a graduate student at the University, will be primarily responsible for the defensive linemen and linebackers. The former standout lineman at Huron (S.D.) College, 1962-65, will continue as a graduate student at Vermont, where he will be a candidate for his Masters in Education in December.

Murphy will fill only one of the two voids left by the recent resignations of varsity assistants, H. "Bink" Smith and John Bove.

Smith, recently accepted a position as athletic and physical education director in the Manchester, N.H., school system, while Bove resigned to become an assistant at East Stroudsburg (Pa.) State College. Smith was the defensive secondary coach, while Bove was the defensive coordinator for Scannella.

Murphy is a native of New York City and attended Greenwich (Conn.) High School. Prior to joining Vermont last fall, he was an assistant coach at Fairview High School in Boulder, Colo.

STOCK CAR RACING
LATE MODEL SPORTSMAN
AND HURRICANE CARS
CHARGERS—TORINOS—FAIRLANES—
PLYMOUTH!
40 OF STOCK CAR'S FINEST DRIVERS
DRIVERS FROM NEW YORK, NEW ENGLAND AND CANADA

THE GREATEST STOCK CAR ACTION IN THE NORTHEAST!

—PLUS—

"The Great UVM Fraternity Race"
FRAT BROTHERS IN HURRICANE CARS
RACE FOR THE BATTERED BUMPER AWARD AND A KEG OF FALSTAFF!

SATURDAY 8 P.M.

Adults
$2.50

Kids
25¢

DIFFERENT

LEE
LANDLUBBER
SEAFARER
U.S. MALE
TAILFEATHERS
LIVE INS
SMITH BROTHERS
CONTACT

ALL AVAILABLE AT....

68 1/2 CHURCH ST. 27 CENTER ST.
BURLINGTON RUTLAND
GUYS' SLACKS GIRLS LOVE

McNASH MOTORS INC.

1325 Shelburne Road

Your VW's Home Away From Home

Factory Trained experts to Sell and Service

THE blue tooth

Presents

IN CONCERT

• ANVIL • BULL
• The WILDWEEDS

Sunday, Sept. 19th—8 P.M.

MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM

Advance Tickets $1.75 at the Blue Tooth
At the Door $2.00

MONDAY 5:00 NIGHT

Every Friday Afternoon!
HAPPY HOURS

3 to 6 FRIDAY

ANVIL
THIS WEEK

THE blue tooth

156 St. Paul St.

Burlington, Vermont

PAGE TEN

VERMONT CYNIC

Reworking Of Personality

Bloomington, Ind. — (UPI) — Students entering college face a "crucial period," Dr. Frederick W. Coons, director of the Psychiatric Division of the Student Health Service at Indiana University, believes.

"We are who we are because of what we have been taught," Dr. Coons says. This is his basic premise. Man's uniqueness comes from his ability to learn. When a student enters college, what he has learned may be challenged. Students are surrounded by different values and beliefs. College involves a reworking of personality, Dr. Coons says.

After early childhood, when basic personality is formed, he explains, there is a fairly stable period until adolescence. Adolescence is the first period of reworking of personality. Then there is another fairly quiet period. College brings about a second reworking.

Dr. Coons discusses five developmental tasks which college students may face:

— Changing from a child-parent relationship to an adult-adult relationship with parents. This task often involves an ambivalent situation for students, Dr. Coons says. For example, they want to be free of parental control, but are satisfied to be financially dependent.

— Establishing a sexual identity. Students often worry because they have different schedules of development, Dr. Coons says. They see only two alternatives—heterosexual or homosexual.

If a freshman has not had many dates or is not very interested in dating, he may panic and think he is not normal, when he is merely at an earlier stage of development, Dr. Coons says.

— Creating a value system. In college, Dr. Coons says, a student meets all kinds of people with many different values. A student's own system may collapse under the pressure.

One alternative—usually temporary—which some students choose, is the adoption of a new and different set of values, Dr. Coons says. He defends this temporary substitution—inappropriate as it may seem—because it keeps students from collapsing completely and gives them time to develop their own values.

— Establishing true intimacy with a person outside the family. Students may have problems, Dr. Coons says, in distinguishing between feelings and behavior in man-woman relationships. They may not realize that "sex" is not the same as "closeness."

Dr. Coons says that group therapy is often useful in helping students develop personal relationships.

— Choosing a career. College students also have to choose a life style, Dr. Coons says. Deciding on a career is not the end of the process, he says, because there is often a wide

Den Due To Open Sept. 21

The lower level of the Billings Student Center has been renovated to accommodate the expanded facilities of UVM's restaurant, the Den. Opening on September 21, the Den will be able to seat approximately three hundred and twenty people, twice as many as last year. Besides offering more seating space, the Den will also offer an enlarged menu, including special menu cooked on its new electric char-broiler.

The Den did not open at the beginning of the school year due to unforeseen construction delays. For example it was necessary to soundproof the ceiling of the rotunda. To do the latter, the construction crew had to foam in plates between the ceiling beams and the curing process, which should have only taken two days, took more than two weeks. Also there arose electrical and plumbing problems pertaining to the installation of the kitchen equipment.

The renovation of the lower level of Billings has necessitated the shifting of student offices. The "Ayer" and the "Cynic" staff rooms are now located where the old Den kitchen was and the new Den kitchen has taken over the space where the conference rooms were formerly located.

the SKI shop INC.

ORIGINAL Rang SPORTSWEAR

FLY KNEISSL

A FAMILY SPORTWEAR SHOP

50 Pearl St. Essex Jct. 879-0737

388 Shelburne Rd. Burlington 862-5488

DECORATIVE THINGS

We're a complete candle shop. A craft shop representing over 50 craftsmen. A kitchen shop, and A Paraphernalia shop.

1355 Williston Road (Route 2) South Burlington

It's the real thing. Coke.

Real life calls for real taste. For the taste of your life—Coca-Cola.

THE RED DOG

SEPT. 20 THRU SEPT. 25

PRESENTS

HAPPY HOUR ORANGE COVER CHARGE $1.00

MON: 730 to 1200 BEERS MIXED DRINKS

TUES. thru THURS: 730 to 930 AT REDUCED PRICES

OPEN 730 P.M. to 200 A.M.

LOCATED AT 165 CHURCH STREET

AMOUR TIRE AND BATTERY, INC.

106 MAIN STREET • DIAL 862-9643/862-9644 BURLINGTON, VERMONT

TRUCK-PASSENGER RETREADING (All Work Done On Premises)

WHEEL BALANCING (Bubble and Dynamic)

FRONT END ALIGNMENT

Nate's INC.

Vermont's Largest Men's Clothiers

World's toughest pants, cut to fit better, in the saddle or out. Double X denim, attached to stay, with copper rivets at all strain points. Pre-shrunk or Shrink-to-Fit.

Available in Super Slims Regular Cut & Flair Bottoms

Nate's INC.

Russell Stover CANDIES

VISIT OUR NEW GREETING CARD DEPT.

Vermont's Largest Costmetic Dept. featuring

GUERLAIN

- REVLO • COTY
- RUBINSTEIN • LOVE
- MAJA • YARDLEY
- DOROTHY GRAY

Vermont's Largest CAMERA CENTER featuring

HONEYWELL NIKON CANON • MINOLTA VIVITAR • HONEYWELL ABRAHAM'S

Drug & Camera Center
111 Church St. 863-3433

New girl in town!

She's the sleek sophisticate... the chic careerist... the style setting student... today's homemaker...

She's really lovely in the pink... and she's gracing our pretty new packaging.

She's our new look the face you'll be seeing often 'round town wherever you see a happy Mayfair shopper.

WE'RE HAVING A CONTEST!

If you look like her we're looking for you!

1. Bring in your picture—name and address on the back.
2. Contest closes October 10, 1971.
3. Winner will be selected by panel of independent judges and their decision will be final.
4. Winner will be announced October 20, 1971.
5. All photographs become the property of Mayfair Inc.

$100

MAYFAIR

Church Street—Burlington

CYNIC Interview: Dr. Miser Is Of UVM

by Jim Stevens

It is likely there will be some exciting developments for the 3300 students living in UVM's residence halls this year. Last week, the CYNIC came face to face with newly appointed Director of Housing, Dr. Keith Miser, who anticipates enthusiastically the initiation of some productive action from his staff.

Miser, who comes to UVM from a similar position at Indiana University, outlined the duties of his position and the purposes of the Housing Office in general previously, he explained, student housing worked out of two separate offices—that of the Dean of Students and the Housing Office. This year, however, the two have combined under one roof, a move which Dr. Miser feels will improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the housing program. His duties are broad: as Director of

Dr. Miser, the newly appointed

Housing, he works with his staff, Mr. George Henderson, and Miss Thore Thompson, Assistant Dean of Students, to oversee everything from billing and maintenance to resident advisor training. His position as Assistant Dean of Students keeps him in contact with all students, on and off campus, and allows him to serve as an administrative representative and catalyst for initiating projects. He maintains an academic viewpoint as well as an educator and instructor of a course in the College of Education required for all resident assistants.

The Director, in his position for five years, continually stresses his philosophy that a residence hall is not a dormitory—that is—a place to eat and sleep. Rather, it is a means for unlimited group experience, personal development, academic

Cynic P

The Vermont Cynic names of those who v staff. If you're inte name and phone num mailbox in upper Bill indicate what are o interested in photography, prod advertising, or any ot

Calendar / Announcements

The Den

Starting Monday, Sept. 27, the Den will finally be open. The long overdue renovation has approximately doubled the seating capacity and slightly expanded the menu offered. The new hours are:

Monday - Thursday 7:30 - 10:30 PM
Friday 7:30 - 4:00 PM
Saturday 4:00 - 1:30 PM
Sunday 3:00 - 10:30 PM

Abbott Receives Scholarship

St. Louis, Missouri, September 13, 1971. David L. Abbott, a Junior at the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont, has been selected to receive the Ralston Purina Scholarship Award for 1971-72, according to an announcement made in St. Louis by George H. Kyte.

Director of Public Relations of Ralston Purina Company. The Purina Scholarship amounts to $500. It is awarded each year to an outstanding junior or senior in the state university and land-grant colleges in each of the 30 states and in three Canadian agricultural colleges and in Puerto Rico.

Winners are selected at each college by a faculty scholarship committee on the basis of their scholastic record, leadership, character, ambition in agriculture and eligibility for financial assistance. Abbott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Knight W. Abbott, Cabot, Vermont.

The Ford Foundation is pleased to announce the continuation of the following programs for the 1972-1973 year: Doctoral Fellowships for American Indian Students; Doctoral Fellowships for Black Students; Doctoral Fellowships for Mexican American and Puerto Rican Students.

These fellowship programs are for students who have not undertaken any graduate or professional study, and who wish to pursue the Ph.D. and to enter careers in higher education. Each program will support full-time graduate study for up to five years contingent upon the Fellow's satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D. Eligibility requirements and further information may be found on the enclosed announcements.

We would appreciate your announcing these programs in your newspaper so that we may inform the seniors at your institution about the available fellowships and encourage all eligible seniors to apply.

Instructions and application forms may be obtained from The Ford Foundation, 330 East 43rd Street, New York 10017. Applications for all three programs must be complete by January 10, 1972.

We will be happy to provide additional information upon request.

Teacher Examinations

The Teacher Education examination in English will be given in 106 Cook on Thursday, September 28 and on Thursday, September 30, 1971. The general examination will be from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. and the writing test from 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Sign up for the evening you prefer in room 311 Waterman.

This test is not for Freshman. Freshman will be tested second semester. All candidates to Teacher Education in Art Education, Elementary Education, Home Economics, Music Education, Physical Education, Secondary Education, College of Arts and Sciences, Vocational-Technical Education, College of Agriculture and Forestry, and the College of Technology are eligible to take this test.

Any University of Vermont student who wishes to be accepted into a program in one of the above teaching fields, must pass these two written communication tests.

ONLY an artist can understand another artist's needs.

That's why we invite you to talk with Anne Clark in our new lower level art shop. You can see by the illustration exactly what her credentials are when it comes to draughtsmanship. After talking with her a few minutes you'll also see that she is qualified to recommend the exact tools and materials for your art needs. McAuliffe's new art shop on the lower level carries both Grumbacher and Weber oil, acrylics and water colors, Delta brushes along with canvas boards and canvas cut by the yard.

McAuliffe
CORNER BOOKSTORE
Art Shop - Lower Level
Center Church and College Streets,
Downtown Burlington

CASINO BEACH

St. Albans Bay, Vt.
Rte. 36 - Magram Shore Rd.
Open Fri. and Sat.

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
"HOME BREW"

Sororities Attract Freshmen

by Cheryl DeBock
This past week the sororities held open houses for all open to the new students, which will begin September 20 and end with balloting on October 6.

At many universities, freshmen rush first semester

or even the first week or so before school is officially in session. This is the first year at UVM, however, where freshmen will be rushing in previous years, freshmen were required to wait until spring semester to rush.

To date 219 girls have registered for rush. It is interesting to note that approximately half of those registered are freshmen. Rush counselors from each house, fourteen in all, are also available to those girls with any questions concerning sororities and rush. Sorority is involvement with and caring about people. It is one of many organizations on this campus available to students, through which they may become concerned with the functioning and affairs of the school and with the community at large.

your engagement in Profile.
The diamond, lifted to new light and beauty.

PRICES START UNDER $100.
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT.

A FAMILY OF JEWELERS IN VERMONT SINCE 1890
E.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
MEMBER AMERICAN JEWELRY SOCIETY
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON

The Cheese House

World Famous Vermont Cheese
New England Products
Gifts - Gourmet Foods

MAIL ORDERS
1040 SHELBOURNE ROAD
SHELBOURNE, VERMONT 05482
TELEPHONE 802-988-3697

This Ad was mistakenly run under the name of another Advertiser in the Sept. 1st issue

WHY?

WHY DO FRYE BOOTS COST MORE THAN BOOTS OF SIMILAR DESIGN?

- ALL TOP GRADE LEATHER
- FULLY LINED WITH BUCKLE
- PRE-EMPTED LAME
- ONE YEAR WARRANTY
- 100% CRAFTED IN VERMONT
- RIBBED SPRING TREAD ARCH
- FOLD-BACK HARK WARE
- MEREKINATED WITH ANGLON
- ONE EMBROIDERED LEATHER
- 100% CRAFTED IN VERMONT
- HAND MADE IN VERMONT
- 100% CRAFTED IN VERMONT

FRYE BOOT

$32.95

SUNDANCE

PLAYBOY Special Student Rates! Save!

Please order my subscription to PLAYBOY for:
☐ 7 months at $6 (save $2.00 off $8 single-copy price)
☐ 1 year at $10.00 (save $4.00 off $14 single-copy price)
☐ 2 years at $18.00 (save $10.00 off $28 single-copy price)
☐ 3 years at $25.00 (save $17.00 off $42 single-copy price)
☐ New subscription
☐ Renewal

Please include your check or money order.

Send information about:
☐ Playboy Club Keys
☐ Playboy Parties

© 1971 Playboy

Name _____ (please print)

Address _____

City _____

State _____ Zip _____

(If Box Number used - indicate whether P.O. Box or University Box)

Name of College/University _____

NOTE: This offer is made only to students currently enrolled in a college or university.

Send to:
PLAYBOY COLLEGE CENTER
115 NORTH AMERICAN AVENUE
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60611
Rates apply to U.S., U.S. Poss. and Canada only.

When you give your time to help someone less fortunate than yourself, you are making an investment in the future. You are a social being, and you have a stake in society. You can improve the community in which you live by working to raise the quality of the lives of the people who make up that community.

The Office of Volunteer Programs, OVP, wants to help you to become involved. With that in mind, we have invited six community leaders to share their thoughts on volunteering with you in the North Lounge, Billings Center, on Thursday, September 23 at 7:30 P.M. Kuno Olsen, elementary guidance counselor at Flynn School, will speak about the concept of Big Brothers; Brenda Lindeman will provide information about the Under 21 Program of Planned Parenthood; Jim Lefevre, from the Burlington YMCA, will discuss the innumerable opportunities for volunteering in recreation. John Brock and Pat Flynn, who are responsible for local urban youth centers, will inform us about the exciting potentiality in working with 6-19 year old low income youths, and Howard Goldberg from the Consumer Protection Bureau will speak about the need for volunteers in protecting consumers. In addition, the OVP film, which was made by volunteers and awarded first prize at Winter Weekend last year, will be shown. Watch the film, "Do Nothing With Someone."

Once you've made the decision to come to OVP, we'll inform you about the exciting potentiality in working with 6-19 year old low income youths, and Howard Goldberg from the Consumer Protection Bureau will speak about the need for volunteers in protecting consumers. In addition, the OVP film, which was made by volunteers and awarded first prize at Winter Weekend last year, will be shown. Watch the film, "Do Nothing With Someone."

Recently, many of you have become legal adults. You have the right and responsibility to act now to insure a better future for all. You have the opportunity to gain valuable experience in the field of your future profession. Don't limit yourself to classrooms. Work in the World Outside UVM.

Lane Horror

"Freaks," the first film on the Lane Series of Horror Classics, will be shown on Thursday, Sept. 30, at 9:00 p.m. in Marsh Life Sciences Building. There will be only one showing.

Tickets, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418. Season tickets, $5 for the entire season of films, are also on sale.

The remainder of the series includes "Vampyr" (Danish), Oct. 7; "Diabolique" (French), Oct. 14; "King Kong" (American), Oct. 21; "Hour of the Wolf" (Swedish), Oct. 28; and "Masque of the Red Death" (American), Nov. 18.

"Freaks" was directed by Tod Browning, and is based on the novel "Spurs" by Tod Robbins. Featured in the cinema are Olga Bacanova, Wallace Ford, and Lela Hyams.

One of the most remarkable facts about the film, perhaps reflecting Browning's own early associations, is that it does not use the freaks as side-show exhibits. They are an integral part of the daily life of the circus and are shown as human beings with human emotions and reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern-day society. In Europe it has been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War exploitation 1962 Canno Repertory, which is to film. It has available for showings.

Tod Browning referred to a Poe of the circus and other famous reactions.

Calendar/Announcements

The Den

Starting Monday, Sept. 27, the Den will finally be open. The long-overdue renovations have approximately doubled the seating capacity and slightly expanded the menu offered. The new hours are:

Monday - Thursday 7:30 - 10:30 PM
Friday 7:30 - 4:00 PM
Saturday 8:00 - 1:30 PM
Sunday 3:00 - 10:00 PM

Abbott Receives Scholarship

St. Louis, Missouri, September 13, 1971. David L. Abbott, a Junior at the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont, has been selected to receive the Ralston Purina Scholarship Award for 1971-72, according to an announcement made in St. Louis by George H. Kyd.

Director of Public Relations of Ralston Purina Company.

The Purina Scholarship amounts to $500. It is awarded each year to an outstanding junior or senior in the state universities and land-grant colleges in each of the 50 states, and in three Canadian agricultural colleges and in Puerto Rico.

Winners are selected at each college by a faculty scholarship committee on the basis of their scholastic record, leadership, character, ambition in agriculture and eligibility for financial assistance. Abbott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Knight W. Abbott, Cabot, Vermont.

The Ford Foundation is pleased to announce the continuation of the following programs for the 1972-1973 year: Doctoral Fellowships for American Indian Students; Doctoral Fellowships for Black Students; Doctoral Fellowships for Mexican American and Puerto Rican Students.

These fellowship programs are for students who have not undertaken any graduate or professional study, and who wish to pursue the Ph.D. and to enter careers in higher education. Each program will support full-time graduate study for up to five years contingent upon the Fellow's satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D. Eligibility requirements and further information may be found on the enclosed announcements.

We would appreciate your announcing these programs in your newspaper so that we may inform the seniors at your institution about the available fellowships and encourage all eligible seniors to apply.

Instructions and application forms may be obtained from The Ford Foundation, 320 East 43rd Street, New York 10017. Applications for all three programs must be complete by January 10, 1972.

We will be happy to provide additional information upon request.

Teacher Examinations

The Teacher Education examination in English will be given in 100 Cook on Thursday, September 28 and on Thursday, September 29, 1971. The general examination will be from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. and the writing test from 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Sign up for the evening you prefer in room 311 Waterman.

This test is not for freshmen. Freshmen will be tested second semester. All candidates to Teacher Education in Art Education, Elementary Education, Home Economics Education, Music Education, Physical Education, Secondary Education, College of Arts and Sciences, Vocational-Technical Education, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, and the College of Technology are eligible to take this test.

Any University of Vermont student who wishes to be accepted into a program in one of the above teaching fields, must pass these two written communication tests.

ONLY an artist can understand another artist's needs.

That's why we invite you to talk with Anne Clark in our new, semi-level art shop. You can see by the illustration exactly what her credentials are when it comes to draughtsmanship. After talking with her a few minutes you'll also see that she is qualified to recommend the exact tools and materials for your art needs. McAuliffe's new art shop on the lower level carries both

Grumbacher and Waber oils, acrylics and water colors. Delta brushes along with canvas boards and canvases cut by the yard. McAuliffe CORNER BOOKSTORE Art Shop - Lower Level Corner Church and College Streets, Downtown Burlington

CASINO BEACH

St. Albans Bay-Vt.
Rte. 36—Magram Shore Rd.
Open Fri. and Sat.

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
"HOME BREW"

Sororities Attract Freshmen

by Cheryl DeHoff

This past week the sororities held open houses at the University of Vermont, which will begin September 20 and end with balling on October 6.

At many universities, freshmen rush first semester

or even the first week or so before school is officially in session. This is the first year at UVM, however, where freshmen will be rushing fall semester. In previous years, freshmen were required to wait until spring semester to rush.

To date 219 girls have registered for rush. It is interesting to note that approximately half of those registered are freshmen. Rush counselors from each house, fourteen in all, are also available to those girls with any questions concerning sororities and rush. Sorority is involvement with and caring about people. It is one of many organizations on this campus available to students, through which they may become concerned with the functioning and affairs of the school and with the community at large.

Encounter Group Sessions End

The third and final Introductory Session on Encounter Groups and Sensitivity Training will be held on Monday Night, Sept. 27th, at 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at St. Anselm's Coffeehouse on Redstone Campus.

The sessions are designed to provide persons with little or no experience an opportunity to "sample" some basic encounter group techniques; to ask questions; and eventually to enroll in one or another form of group activity if they so wish.

Last Monday night about 30 students and faculty attended the second open meeting in the series. John Perry explained the encounter group movement and its relationship to the New Thing, a federally funded drug education and alternatives project on campus.

Participants were told that separate groups would be set up for Yoga and for Biomergistics Workshops, and that several forms of encounter group would be held this semester. People were given an opportunity to practice various techniques; for example, "Mirroring" and "Breaking In" from Schutz's book Joy, and "Boy Watching" from Emily Coleman's Making Friends with the Opposite Sex.

After Monday night's session specific kinds of groups will be finalized and will begin meeting on a regular basis. Students who are interested in group participation but unable to attend one of the Monday night Introductory meetings should write or call John Perry at 656-3233 before Tuesday noon in order to be assured of a place in a group.

The Cheese House

World Famous Vermont Cheese
New England Products
Gifts - Gourmet Foods

MAIL ORDERS
1040 SHELBURNE ROAD
SHELBURNE, VERMONT 05482
TELEPHONE 802-885-3897

This Ad was mistakenly run under the name of another Advertiser in the Sept.-1st issue

WHY?

WHY DO FRYE BOOTS COST MORE THAN "BOOTS OF SIMILAR DESIGN?"

- ALL TOP GRADE LEATHER
- HAND STITCHED WITH RUBBER SKIN
- REINFORCED KNEE
- POLYURETHANE SOLE
- REINFORCED HEEL
- RUBBER TREAD
- WATERPROOF
- WIND RESISTANT
- WARM
- COMFORTABLE
- DURABLE
- EASY TO CARE FOR
- EASY TO CLEAN
- EASY TO PUT ON AND TAKE OFF
- EASY TO STORE
- EASY TO WASH
- EASY TO DRY
- EASY TO REPAIR
- EASY TO REPLACE
- EASY TO DISPOSE OF
- EASY TO RECYCLE
- EASY TO REUSE
- EASY TO REPAIR
- EASY TO REPLACE
- EASY TO DISPOSE OF
- EASY TO RECYCLE
- EASY TO REUSE

FRYE BOOT

$32.95

SUNDANCE

PRICES START UNDER $100.
YOU ARE INVITED TO OPEN A PRESTON'S CHARGE ACCOUNT.

A FAMILY OF JEWELERS IN VERMONT SINCE 1888
F.J. PRESTON & SON INC.
JEWELERS AMERICAN BORN SOCIETY
17 UPPER CHURCH STREET - BURLINGTON

our engagement in Profile.
The diamond, lifted to new light and beauty.

PLAYBOY Special Student Rates! Save!

Please enter my subscription to PLAYBOY for:
☐ 2 months at $5.00 ($2.00 off $3.00 single-copy price)
☐ 3 months at $12.00 ($4.00 off $8.00 single-copy price)
☐ 6 months at $20.00 ($6.00 off $14.00 single-copy price)
☐ 1 year at $35.00 ($10.00 off $25.00 single-copy price)

☐ New subscription
☐ Renewal

Please include your check or money order.

Send information about:
☐ Playboy Club Key
☐ Playboy Position

Name _____ (please print)
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
(If Box Number used - indicate whether P.O. Box or University Box)
Name of College/University _____

NOTE: This offer is made only to students currently enrolled in a college or university.

Send to:
PLAYBOY COLLEGE CENTER
915 NORTH MICHIGAN AVENUE
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60611
Rates apply to U.S., U.S. Poss. and Canada only.

When you give your time to help someone less fortunate than yourself, you are making an investment in the future. You are a social being, and you have a stake in society. You can improve the community in which you live by working to raise the quality of the lives of the people who make up that community.

The Office of Volunteer Programs, OVP, wants to help you to become involved. With that in mind, we have invited six community leaders to share their thoughts on volunteering with you in the North Lounge, Billings Center, on Thursday, September 23 at 7:30 P.M.

Kuno Otaka, elementary guidance counselor at Flynn School, will speak about the concept of Big Brothers; Brenda Lindeman will provide information about the Under 21 Program of Planned Parenthood; Jim Lefevre, from the Burlington YMCA, will discuss the innumerable opportunities for volunteering in recreation. John Brock and Pat Flynn, who are responsible for local urban youth centers, will inform us about the exciting potentiality in working with 8-18 year old low income youths, and Howard Goldberg from the Consumer Protection Bureau volunteers in protecting consumers. In addition, the OVP film, which was made by volunteers and awarded first prize at Winter Weekend last year, will be shown... watch the film, "Do Nothing With Someone".

Once you've made the decision to come to OVP, the right and responsibility to act now to insure a better future will fill out an application with information about your previous volunteering experiences, if any, and your future profession. Don't limit special interests. An interviewer will try to direct you to a program that will be most

Lane Horror

"Freaks," the first film on the Lane Series of Horror Classics, will be shown on Thursday, Sept. 30, at 9:00 p.m. in Marsh Life Sciences Building. There will be only one showing.

Tickets, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418. Season tickets, $5 for the entire series of films, are also on sale.

The remainder of the series includes "Vampyr" (Danish), Oct. 7; "Dahomey" (French), Oct. 14; "King Kong" (American), Oct. 21; "Hour of the Wolf" (Swedish), Oct. 28; and "Masque of the Red Death" (American), Nov. 18.

"Freaks" was directed by Tod Browning, and is based on the novel "Spurs" by Tod Robbins. Featured in the cinema are Olga Bacanova, Wallace Ford, and Leila Hyams.

One of the most remarkable facts about the film, perhaps reflecting Browning's own early associations, is that it does not use the freaks as side-show exhibits. They are an integral part of the daily life of the circus and are shown as human beings with human emotions and reactions.

"Freaks" is the first film of its kind, and undoubtedly the last - it is a film that could never be made in our modern day society. In Europe it has always been considered a sensation and was highly praised by critics, though its American release was confined to grind-run

World War

to profess

good chain with a

Another

the disco

Personally,

speed; ex

handle b necessity

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

house b

Lane Horror Film Series Presents 'Freaks'

"Freaks," the first film in the Lane Series of Horror Classics, will be shown on Thursday, Sept. 30, at 9:00 p.m. in the 14th Screen Building. There will be only one showing.

Tickets, $1 each, are available in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman, and at the door. Reservations may be made by telephoning 656-3418. Season tickets, $5 for the entire series of films, are also on sale.

The remainder of the series includes "Vampyr" (Danish), Oct. 7; "Diabolique" (French), Oct. 14; "King Kong" (American), Oct. 21; "Hour of the Wolf" (Swedish), Oct. 28; and "Masque of the Red Death" (American), Nov. 18.

"Freaks" was directed by Tod Browning, and is based on the novel "Spurs" by Tod Robbins. Featured in the cinema are Olga Bacanova, Wallace Ford, and Lela Hyams.

unaware of the serialist's intentions, organizes a wedding celebration wherein they offer a macabre toast and honorary position to her with an organic chant of "We accept you, we accept you, we accept you."

Later, both the midgit and his friends discover the poisoning attempt and, in hair-raising climax, the freaks set upon the serialist and maim her.

According to the critic of the "N.Y. Times," "this gem stands in a class by itself as a venture into the grisly and the grotesque." And "Freaks" is a "surprisingly realistic drama of sideshow, freaks and a grotesque love affair."

exploitation theatres. At the 1962 Cannes Film Festival Repertory, "Freaks" was selected to represent the horror film. It has never before been available for film society showings.

and Browning was often referred to as "the Edgar Allan Poe of the cinema." Among his other famous film works were "THE UNHOLY THREE," "DRACULA," "MARK OF THE VAMPIRE," "THE IRON MAN," and "THE DEVIL, DOLL."

Before entering motion pictures, Browning had been with the circus and in vaudeville, and many of his films reflect his interest in those fields. Prior to World War II nearly every carnival and circus had its collection of human monsters, or freaks—persons deformed in birth or horribly maimed—who were proudly exhibited to the public for a price. Browning assembled the most famous of these performers from all parts of the world and employed them in a story of intrigue in the circus.

In its plot a beautiful "normal" serialist (Olga Bacanova) learns one of the midgits (Harry Earles) has inherited a fortune. She contrives to marry him, planning to kill him. In one of the many memorable scenes, almost surrealistic in quality, the midgit's fellow performers, include "Butterflies are Free," the Broadway smash comedy, Oct. 18; the Sierra Leone National Dance Troupe, Oct. 25; Ike and Tina Turner, Nov. 3; Gordon Lightfoot, folk singer, Nov. 13; the Juillard Quartet, Nov. 19; the Budapest Symphony, Nov. 29; the Vienna Opera Co. in Johann Strauss' comic opera "Die Fledermaus," Jan. 18; pianist Claudio Arrau, Feb. 4; violinist Daniel Heifetz, March 2; the Romeros, four guitarists, March 13; the Cleveland Orchestra, March 22; the Scots Guards, a marching band, April 11; Preservation Hall Jazz Band, from New Orleans, April 26; the Netherlands Dance Co., ballet, April 27; and Jesus Christ Superstar, rock opera, date to be announced.

Lane Series ticket orders are now being processed and mailed to subscribers. It is expected that all orders will be filled and mailed by the first week of October.

Tickets are still available, on a series basis only, for most of the concert series. Persons ordering "Butterflies are Free" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" should give alternative choices in the event these concerts are sold out. Also, the $17 tickets are sold out for the more popular attractions.

Ticket applications should be left in the Lane Office, 234 Waterman. For information, tel. 656-3418.

The complete list of concerts

Wondrous Bread Theatre At UVM

"We're going to tell a ghost story on stage," says Frazer MacLean, "Friday at four in the Arena Theater." Frazer is performer / author / art department for a traveling theater that has just come to Burlington.

The theater has exactly two members. Jane Schwartz is the name of the rest of Wondrous Bread Theater. She and Frazer have been sharing the work and travel of putting on shows across the country for six months, having started their tour in Big Sur, California, last March. They have performed before audiences as different as the funky communal craftsmen of a Eugene, Oregon, Renaissance Faire and the assembled congregation of the Madison, Wisconsin, First Congregational Church. They speak of being "able to communicate explosively with any audience."

"How can you see what I'm saying if you can't even hear what I'm feeling?" is the name of Jane and Frazer's play for the University audience here. It promises to be a boisterous piece.

"Our shows—for us—come from the best of the best. They're a lot of comedy with tragic relief as a kind of commercial. They're television for when the electricity fails... you know, after the End. Call—it revolution, nuclear war, ecological disaster or plague—some day we're going to have to bring the happiness business back to a personal level. Wondrous Bread Theater is looking forward to surviving the fall of civilization. How's that for a ghost story?"

Frazer smiles disarmingly when he says such things, but the End of the World idea is serious enough. The Wondrous Bread Theater does without advance-men, agents, even admission fees. They're not getting money from anywhere but voluntary contributions after their shows. And in fact, they don't even put much pressure on those.

"Anything can be a contribution, if we can carry it away. Food, costumes, nearly everything we use has been donated by folks who are giving money a rest themselves. It sounds like a chance kind of the past get out of it. Jane replies, "I like to draw, for example, but I don't like to school. Now I get to make posters whenever I want to, and they're used. I'm stronger with Wondrous Bread."

She pauses, smiles with her eyes, and looks right out of the page at you. "Come with your child, or the child in you. Friday at four, to the Arena Theater."

WATERBEDS—ALL SIZES

$30—with 5 year guarantee Accessories Available—Colors
call 862-2022
or 658-4278

ask about waterbeds!

FLYNN
Theatre
NOW PLAYING TODAY
THURSDAY
Forget everything
you've ever heard about heres.
Now there is
"The Red Tent."

THE RED TENT
IN FULL STEREO-PHONIC SOUND

A FRANCO CRISTALDI PRODUCTION
SEAN CONNERY • CLAUDIA CARDINALE • HAROLD KRUEGER • PETER FINCH
"THE RED TENT" • MASSIMO GIROTTI • JAMES HANCOCK • LORRAINE MASTERS • JIM HARRIS • HAROLD ADORF

ADMISSION PRICES UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE
WED.-SUN. ADULTS 12 & OVER $2.00
CHILDREN 11 & UNDER $.80
MON. & TUES. "DOLLAR NIGHTS"
ADULTS 12 & OVER $1.00
CHILDREN 11 & UNDER $.80

10-Speed Or 3? Tips On Buying A Bike

Artim Treacy

Have you stopped to think that Schlegelmich Super Star Professional Racing Tourer 88 speed bike with buttonholer, the one that cost $350 (or a grand larumy rap) is a real living breathing machine? As such, it's subject to wear, accident, rust, theft, and other slings and arrows.

If you're poor, or always living in a city, if you think it's crazy to ride when a car is available, or to ride over a couple of miles, get any bike, the cheapest you can find, and forget about caring and feeding.

If some of the above applies to you, get a cheap new three speed at best, from $35-$45. Sears sells a pretty good Austrian-made 3-speed with surprisingly good tires in this class. This kind deserves minimum care: keep air in the tires, oil on the moving parts, and avoid contact with solid objects like cars and trees.

Let's say you're not quite so poor; you manage without spare change and want to get into bicycling as a thing in itself. You have a choice. If you stay in the city, you can get a really good 10-speed lightweight way.

Compared to the cheaper bike, it'll be slightly lighter (not very important), stronger (always important), quieter, and generally easier to ride. The whole thing will feel smoother—the result of greater precision and slightly better bearings. Care is as with the cheaper bikes, though; perhaps more thorough, and with more love. We're also at the point where bikes start to look good to professional thieves—get a good chain, the strongest you're willing to tote, and use it.

Another choice in this class is the discount house 10-speed. Personally, I'd rather a good 3-speed, except for the dropped handlebars, an absolute necessity for any serious cycling. They're worth getting used to even if they rub you at first. These bikes are little and headwinds are a drag. The Discount House 10-speed is a reasonable compromise in many areas. This kind of bike is really a cheap "English racer" frame, with drop-style handlebars, narrow seat (another good idea for distance), and derailleurs—the cheapest available.

Derailleurs are gears that work by moving the chain from one sprocket (gear) to another, and on a 10-speed there are two of them, one with five sprockets at the back wheel and one with two sprockets at the chainwheel or crankset (the place where the pedals stick out).

Beyond the bikes mentioned thus far, we have machines designed for one thing: serious bicycling. I wish those who want status would find another way to get it than buying these bikes because there is a shortage of good bikes. A good, outstanding premium priced, and serious cyclist deserve not to get ripped off by unscrupulous bike stores. At any rate, we have essentially three classes of 10 or 15 speed bikes here. (You don't need a 15-speed bike unless you live in the Alps or Rockies. They're absolutely unnecessary except for going up mountains.) The low-priced 10-speeds, about $85-$100, usually give the same components as the discount house brand, but with a bigger frame, 27-inch wheels instead of 26-inch, and maybe center-pull handbrakes instead of the usual, cheaper side-pull variety.

Although the low-priced 10-speed is good, I'd recommend spending an extra $25-$60 and getting a good intermediate price 10-speed. What you get in the way of components is quick-release hubs that allow wheel removal without tools, better center-pull brakes, better derailleurs with wider range, a better seat, better pedals, etc.

Most important is that in this price range you have a right to demand Reynolds 531 tubing for the frame. This is absolutely the best frame material you can buy: strong, light, rigid when it should be to cushion bumps. Look for a deal on the frame—if the bike doesn't have one it isn't made with Reynolds 531 tubing.

The intermediate priced 10-speed is probably as good as any rider needs. In every area, it gives one at least the bare minimum of a really good bike—it's stronger, lighter, smoother, than anything cheaper, and a damn good investment if it isn't stolen.

Unfortunately, this kind of bike appeals not only to amateurs, but to true professional thieves. If you must have a 10-speed, or a 15-speed, or a 20-speed, or a 24-speed, or a 28-speed, or a 32-speed, or a 36-speed, or a 40-speed, or a 44-speed, or a 48-speed, or a 52-speed, or a 56-speed, or a 60-speed, or a 64-speed, or a 68-speed, or a 72-speed, or a 76-speed, or a 80-speed, or a 84-speed, or a 88-speed, or a 92-speed, or a 96-speed, or a 100-speed, or a 104-speed, or a 108-speed, or a 112-speed, or a 116-speed, or a 120-speed, or a 124-speed, or a 128-speed, or a 132-speed, or a 136-speed, or a 140-speed, or a 144-speed, or a 148-speed, or a 152-speed, or a 156-speed, or a 160-speed, or a 164-speed, or a 168-speed, or a 172-speed, or a 176-speed, or a 180-speed, or a 184-speed, or a 188-speed, or a 192-speed, or a 196-speed, or a 200-speed, or a 204-speed, or a 208-speed, or a 212-speed, or a 216-speed, or a 220-speed, or a 224-speed, or a 228-speed, or a 232-speed, or a 236-speed, or a 240-speed, or a 244-speed, or a 248-speed, or a 252-speed, or a 256-speed, or a 260-speed, or a 264-speed, or a 268-speed, or a 272-speed, or a 276-speed, or a 280-speed, or a 284-speed, or a 288-speed, or a 292-speed, or a 296-speed, or a 300-speed, or a 304-speed, or a 308-speed, or a 312-speed, or a 316-speed, or a 320-speed, or a 324-speed, or a 328-speed, or a 332-speed, or a 336-speed, or a 340-speed, or a 344-speed, or a 348-speed, or a 352-speed, or a 356-speed, or a 360-speed, or a 364-speed, or a 368-speed, or a 372-speed, or a 376-speed, or a 380-speed, or a 384-speed, or a 388-speed, or a 392-speed, or a 396-speed, or a 400-speed, or a 404-speed, or a 408-speed, or a 412-speed, or a 416-speed, or a 420-speed, or a 424-speed, or a 428-speed, or a 432-speed, or a 436-speed, or a 440-speed, or a 444-speed, or a 448-speed, or a 452-speed, or a 456-speed, or a 460-speed, or a 464-speed, or a 468-speed, or a 472-speed, or a 476-speed, or a 480-speed, or a 484-speed, or a 488-speed, or a 492-speed, or a 496-speed, or a 500-speed, or a 504-speed, or a 508-speed, or a 512-speed, or a 516-speed, or a 520-speed, or a 524-speed, or a 528-speed, or a 532-speed, or a 536-speed, or a 540-speed, or a 544-speed, or a 548-speed, or a 552-speed, or a 556-speed, or a 560-speed, or a 564-speed, or a 568-speed, or a 572-speed, or a 576-speed, or a 580-speed, or a 584-speed, or a 588-speed, or a 592-speed, or a 596-speed, or a 600-speed, or a 604-speed, or a 608-speed, or a 612-speed, or a 616-speed, or a 620-speed, or a 624-speed, or a 628-speed, or a 632-speed, or a 636-speed, or a 640-speed, or a 644-speed, or a 648-speed, or a 652-speed, or a 656-speed, or a 660-speed, or a 664-speed, or a 668-speed, or a 672-speed, or a 676-speed, or a 680-speed, or a 684-speed, or a 688-speed, or a 692-speed, or a 696-speed, or a 700-speed, or a 704-speed, or a 708-speed, or a 712-speed, or a 716-speed, or a 720-speed, or a 724-speed, or a 728-speed, or a 732-speed, or a 736-speed, or a 740-speed, or a 744-speed, or a 748-speed, or a 752-speed, or a 756-speed, or a 760-speed, or a 764-speed, or a 768-speed, or a 772-speed, or a 776-speed, or a 780-speed, or a 784-speed, or a 788-speed, or a 792-speed, or a 796-speed, or a 800-speed, or a 804-speed, or a 808-speed, or a 812-speed, or a 816-speed, or a 820-speed, or a 824-speed, or a 828-speed, or a 832-speed, or a 836-speed, or a 840-speed, or a 844-speed, or a 848-speed, or a 852-speed, or a 856-speed, or a 860-speed, or a 864-speed, or a 868-speed, or a 872-speed, or a 876-speed, or a 880-speed, or a 884-speed, or a 888-speed, or a 892-speed, or a 896-speed, or a 900-speed, or a 904-speed, or a 908-speed, or a 912-speed, or a 916-speed, or a 920-speed, or a 924-speed, or a 928-speed, or a 932-speed, or a 936-speed, or a 940-speed, or a 944-speed, or a 948-speed, or a 952-speed, or a 956-speed, or a 960-speed, or a 964-speed, or a 968-speed, or a 972-speed, or a 976-speed, or a 980-speed, or a 984-speed, or a 988-speed, or a 992-speed, or a 996-speed, or a 1000-speed, or a 1004-speed, or a 1008-speed, or a 1012-speed, or a 1016-speed, or a 1020-speed, or a 1024-speed, or a 1028-speed, or a 1032-speed, or a 1036-speed, or a 1040-speed, or a 1044-speed, or a 1048-speed, or a 1052-speed, or a 1056-speed, or a 1060-speed, or a 1064-speed, or a 1068-speed, or a 1072-speed, or a 1076-speed, or a 1080-speed, or a 1084-speed, or a 1088-speed, or a 1092-speed, or a 1096-speed, or a 1100-speed, or a 1104-speed, or a 1108-speed, or a 1112-speed, or a 1116-speed, or a 1120-speed, or a 1124-speed, or a 1128-speed, or a 1132-speed, or a 1136-speed, or a 1140-speed, or a 1144-speed, or a 1148-speed, or a 1152-speed, or a 1156-speed, or a 1160-speed, or a 1164-speed, or a 1168-speed, or a 1172-speed, or a 1176-speed, or a 1180-speed, or a 1184-speed, or a 1188-speed, or a 1192-speed, or a 1196-speed, or a 1200-speed, or a 1204-speed, or a 1208-speed, or a 1212-speed, or a 1216-speed, or a 1220-speed, or a 1224-speed, or a 1228-speed, or a 1232-speed, or a 1236-speed, or a 1240-speed, or a 1244-speed, or a 1248-speed, or a 1252-speed, or a 1256-speed, or a 1260-speed, or a 1264-speed, or a 1268-speed, or a 1272-speed, or a 1276-speed, or a 1280-speed, or a 1284-speed, or a 1288-speed, or a 1292-speed, or a 1296-speed, or a 1300-speed, or a 1304-speed, or a 1308-speed, or a 1312-speed, or a 1316-speed, or a 1320-speed, or a 1324-speed, or a 1328-speed, or a 1332-speed, or a 1336-speed, or a 1340-speed, or a 1344-speed, or a 1348-speed, or a 1352-speed, or a 1356-speed, or a 1360-speed, or a 1364-speed, or a 1368-speed, or a 1372-speed, or a 1376-speed, or a 1380-speed, or a 1384-speed, or a 1388-speed, or a 1392-speed, or a 1396-speed, or a 1400-speed, or a 1404-speed, or a 1408-speed, or a 1412-speed, or a 1416-speed, or a 1420-speed, or a 1424-speed, or a 1428-speed, or a 1432-speed, or a 1436-speed, or a 1440-speed, or a 1444-speed, or a 1448-speed, or a 1452-speed, or a 1456-speed, or a 1460-speed, or a 1464-speed, or a 1468-speed, or a 1472-speed, or a 1476-speed, or a 1480-speed, or a 1484-speed, or a 1488-speed, or a 1492-speed, or a 1496-speed, or a 1500-speed, or a 1504-speed, or a 1508-speed, or a 1512-speed, or a 1516-speed, or a 1520-speed, or a 1524-speed, or a 1528-speed, or a 1532-speed, or a 1536-speed, or a 1540-speed, or a 1544-speed, or a 1548-speed, or a 1552-speed, or a 1556-speed, or a 1560-speed, or a 1564-speed, or a 1568-speed, or a 1572-speed, or a 1576-speed, or a 1580-speed, or a 1584-speed, or a 1588-speed, or a 1592-speed, or a 1596-speed, or a 1600-speed, or a 1604-speed, or a 1608-speed, or a 1612-speed, or a 1616-speed, or a 1620-speed, or a 1624-speed, or a 1628-speed, or a 1632-speed, or a 1636-speed, or a 1640-speed, or a 1644-speed, or a 1648-speed, or a 1652-speed, or a 1656-speed, or a 1660-speed, or a 1664-speed, or a 1668-speed, or a 1672-speed, or a 1676-speed, or a 1680-speed, or a 1684-speed, or a 1688-speed, or a 1692-speed, or a 1696-speed, or a 1700-speed, or a 1704-speed, or a 1708-speed, or a 1712-speed, or a 1716-speed, or a 1720-speed, or a 1724-speed, or a 1728-speed, or a 1732-speed, or a 1736-speed, or a 1740-speed, or a 1744-speed, or a 1748-speed, or a 1752-speed, or a 1756-speed, or a 1760-speed, or a 1764-speed, or a 1768-speed, or a 1772-speed, or a 1776-speed, or a 1780-speed, or a 1784-speed, or a 1788-speed, or a 1792-speed, or a 1796-speed, or a 1800-speed, or a 1804-speed, or a 1808-speed, or a 1812-speed, or a 1816-speed, or a 1820-speed, or a 1824-speed, or a 1828-speed, or a 1832-speed, or a 1836-speed, or a 1840-speed, or a 1844-speed, or a 1848-speed, or a 1852-speed, or a 1856-speed, or a 1860-speed, or a 1864-speed, or a 1868-speed, or a 1872-speed, or a 1876-speed, or a 1880-speed, or a 1884-speed, or a 1888-speed, or a 1892-speed, or a 1896-speed, or a 1900-speed, or a 1904-speed, or a 1908-speed, or a 1912-speed, or a 1916-speed, or a 1920-speed, or a 1924-speed, or a 1928-speed, or a 1932-speed, or a 1936-speed, or a 1940-speed, or a 1944-speed, or a 1948-speed, or a 1952-speed, or a 1956-speed, or a 1960-speed, or a 1964-speed, or a 1968-speed, or a 1972-speed, or a 1976-speed, or a 1980-speed, or a 1984-speed, or a 1988-speed, or a 1992-speed, or a 1996-speed, or a 2000-speed, or a 2004-speed, or a 2008-speed, or a 2012-speed, or a 2016-speed, or a 2020-speed, or a 2024-speed, or a 2028-speed, or a 2032-speed, or a 2036-speed, or a 2040-speed, or a 2044-speed, or a 2048-speed, or a 2052-speed, or a 2056-speed, or a 2060-speed, or a 2064-speed, or a 2068-speed, or a 2072-speed, or a 2076-speed, or a 2080-speed, or a 2084-speed, or a 2088-speed, or a 2092-speed, or a 2096-speed, or a 2100-speed, or a 2104-speed, or a 2108-speed, or a 2112-speed, or a 2116-speed, or a 2120-speed, or a 2124-speed, or a 2128-speed, or a 2132-speed, or a 2136-speed, or a 2140-speed, or a 2144-speed, or a 2148-speed, or a 2152-speed, or a 2156-speed, or a 2160-speed, or a 2164-speed, or a 2168-speed, or a 2172-speed, or a 2176-speed, or a 2180-speed, or a 2184-speed, or a 2188-speed, or a 2192-speed, or a 2196-speed, or a 2200-speed, or a 2204-speed, or a 2208-speed, or a 2212-speed, or a 2216-speed, or a 2220-speed, or a 2224-speed, or a 2228-speed, or a 2232-speed, or a 2236-speed, or a 2240-speed, or a 2244-speed, or a 2248-speed, or a 2252-speed, or a 2256-speed, or a 2260-speed, or a 2264-speed, or a 2268-speed, or a 2272-speed, or a 2276-speed, or a 2280-speed, or a 2284-speed, or a 2288-speed, or a 2292-speed, or a 2296-speed, or a 2300-speed, or a 2304-speed, or a 2308-speed, or a 2312-speed, or a 2316-speed, or a 2320-speed, or a 2324-speed, or a 2328-speed, or a 2332-speed, or a 2336-speed, or a 2340-speed, or a 2344-speed, or a 2348-speed, or a 2352-speed, or a 2356-speed, or a 2360-speed, or a 2364-speed, or a 2368-speed, or a 2372-speed, or a 2376-speed, or a 2380-speed, or a 2384-speed, or a 2388-speed, or a 2392-speed, or a 2396-speed, or a 2400-speed, or a 2404-speed, or a 2408-speed, or a 2412-speed, or a 2416-speed, or a 2420-speed, or a 2424-speed, or a 2428-speed, or a 2432-speed, or a 2436-speed, or a 2440-speed, or a 2444-speed, or a 2448-speed, or a 2452-speed, or a 2456-speed, or a 2460-speed, or a 2464-speed, or a 2468-speed, or a 2472-speed, or a 2476-speed, or a 2480-speed, or a 2484-speed, or a 2488-speed, or a 2492-speed, or a 2496-speed, or a 2500-speed, or a 2504-speed, or a 2508-speed, or a 2512-speed, or a 2516-speed, or a 2520-speed, or a 2524-speed, or a 2528-speed, or a 2532-speed, or a 2536-speed, or a 2540-speed, or a 2544-speed, or a 2548-speed, or a 2552-speed, or a 2556-speed, or a 2560-speed, or a 2564-speed, or a 2568-speed, or a 2572-speed, or a 2576-speed, or a 2580-speed, or a 2584-speed, or a 2588-speed, or a 2592-speed, or a 2596-speed, or a 2600-speed, or a 2604-speed, or a 2608-speed, or a 2612-speed, or a 2616-speed, or a 2620-speed, or a 2624-speed, or a 2628-speed, or a 2632-speed, or a 2636-speed, or a 2640-speed, or a 2644-speed, or a 2648-speed, or a 2652-speed, or a 2656-speed, or a 2660-speed, or a 2664-speed, or a 2668-speed, or a 2672-speed, or a 2676-speed, or a 2680-speed, or a 2684-speed, or a 2688-speed, or a 2692-speed, or a 2696-speed, or a 2700-speed, or a 2704-speed, or a 2708-speed, or a 2712-speed, or a 2716-speed, or a 2720-speed, or a 2724-speed, or a 2728-speed, or a 2732-speed, or a 2736-speed, or a 2740-speed, or a 2744-speed, or a 2748-speed, or a 2752-speed, or a 2756-speed, or a 2760-speed, or a 2764-speed, or a 2768-speed, or a 2772-speed, or a 2776-speed, or a 2780-speed, or a 2784-speed, or a 2788-speed, or a 2792-speed, or a 2796-speed, or a 2800-speed, or a 2804-speed, or a 2808-speed, or a 2812-speed, or a 2816-speed, or a 2820-speed, or a 2824-speed, or a 2828-speed, or a 2832-speed, or a 2836-speed, or a 2840-speed, or a 2844-speed, or a 2848-speed, or a 2852-speed, or a 2856-speed, or a 2860-speed, or a 2864-speed, or a 2868-speed, or a 2872-speed, or a 2876-speed, or a 2880-speed, or a 2884-speed, or a 2888-speed, or a 2892-speed, or a 2896-speed, or a 2900-speed, or a 2904-speed, or a 2908-speed, or a 2912-speed, or a 2916-speed, or a 2920-speed, or a 2924-speed, or a 2928-speed, or a 2932-speed, or a 2936-speed, or a 2940-speed, or a 2944-speed, or a 2948-speed, or a 2952-speed, or a 2956-speed, or a 2960-speed, or a 2964-speed, or a 2968-speed, or a 2972-speed, or a 2976-speed, or a 2980-speed, or a 2984-speed, or a 2988-speed, or a 2992-speed, or a 2996-speed, or a 3000-speed, or a 3004-speed, or a 3008-speed, or a 3012-speed, or a 3016-speed, or a 3020-speed, or a 3024-speed, or a 3028-speed, or a 3032-speed, or a 3036-speed, or a 3040-speed, or a 3044-speed, or a 3048-speed, or a 3052-speed, or a 3056-speed, or a 3060-speed, or a 3064-speed, or a 3068-speed, or a 3072-speed, or a 3076-speed, or a 3080-speed, or a 3084-speed, or a 3088-speed, or a 3092-speed, or a 3096-speed, or a 3100-speed, or a 3104-speed, or a 3108-speed, or a 3112-speed, or a 3116-speed, or a 3120-speed, or a 3124-speed, or a 3128-speed, or a 3132-speed, or a 3136-speed, or a 3140-speed, or a 3144-speed, or a 3148-speed, or a 3152-speed, or a 3156-speed, or a 3160-speed, or a 3164-speed, or a 3168-speed, or a 3172-speed, or a 3176-speed, or a 3180-speed, or a 3184-speed, or a 3188-speed, or a 3192-speed, or a 3196-speed, or a 3200-speed, or a 3204-speed, or a 3208-speed, or a 3212-speed, or a 3216-speed, or a 3220-speed, or a 3224-speed, or a 3228-speed, or a 3232-speed, or a 3236-speed, or a 3240-speed, or a 3244-speed, or a 3248-speed, or a 3252-speed, or a 3256-speed, or a 3260-speed, or a 3264-speed, or a 3268-speed, or a 3272-speed, or a 3276-speed, or a 3280-speed, or a 3284-speed, or a 3288-speed, or a 3292-speed, or a 3296-speed, or a 3300-speed, or a 3304-speed, or a 3308-speed, or a 3312-speed, or a 3316-speed, or a 3320-speed, or a 3324-speed, or a 3328-speed, or a 3332-speed, or a 3336-speed, or a 3340-speed, or a 3344-speed, or a 3348-speed, or a 3352-speed, or a 3356-speed, or a 3360-speed, or a 3364-speed, or a 3368-speed, or a 3372-speed, or a 3376-speed, or a 3380-speed, or a 3384-speed, or a 3388-speed, or a 3392-speed, or a 3396-speed, or a 3400-speed, or a 3404-speed, or a 3408-speed, or a 3412-speed, or a 3416-speed, or a 3420-speed, or a 3424-speed, or a 3428-speed, or a 3432-speed, or a 3436-speed, or a 3440-speed, or a 3444-speed, or a 3448-speed, or a 3452-speed, or a 3456-speed, or a 3460-speed, or a 3464-speed, or a 3468-speed, or a 3472-speed, or a 3476

Editorial

Sec. 31 of the Vermont Liquor Control Board regulations reads:

No license of any class shall be granted in any University, college, school, home or hospital owned in whole or in part by the State of Vermont, nor shall a license be issued to any person or persons holding or claiming to hold any concessions, license, contract or right to conduct a business or perform a service as agent for any of the aforesaid institutions.

In effect, this regulation forbids the University, its recognized organizations of all kinds, and even contracted caterers from serving or furnishing alcoholic beverages except when permission from the Liquor Control Board is not required.

This most obvious motivation behind this regulation which comes to mind is the State of Vermont has taken a somewhat puritanical view. It chooses not to sanction the serving of the sale of alcoholic beverages in any institution subsidized by State funds. Closer scrutiny reveals, however, that the Pownel Race Track in Pownel Vermont, although heavily subsidized by the State, qualifies for license to operate several bars.

Most students at this University are required to assume all responsibilities of adulthood with no exceptions. As a result of this heavy burden, a few of us are driven to having a drink now and then during our leisure hours.

Fully realizing that change takes time and prodding, we'd like to help initiate the prodding NOW. Change is going to require cooperation between the student and the University administration and possibly even the cooperation of the Trustee (Student Association), this sounds like a job that requires your attention and coordination.

D.B.

McGovern Decries Nixon's Failures

In his inaugural Address, President Nixon pledged to increase the participation of our nation's youth in the decision making processes of our country. I applauded that pledge, and was encouraged by the President's expressed intentions.

Today, two and one half years later, it is clear that he has failed to keep that pledge. In three years, the Administration has left young people without the means to participate fully and equally in American life.

In July, 1971, 16 year olds won the right to vote, and yet millions of these newly enfranchised voters will not cast their ballots next year because of unfair local restrictions. In New York, state party enrollment closes on October 1 for a primary nine months later. In New Hampshire and North Carolina, among other states, there are no provisions for absentee balloting in primary elections. In 29 states, there are no provisions for absentee registration. In the majority of states, students are being denied the right to register and vote where they attend college. And servicemen are unable to register and vote in the communities where they are stationed. These are the communities where they go to school.

I have introduced legislation in the Senate along with Senator Alan Cranston of California which would allow students to register and vote where they attend college. I will introduce legislation which will allow our approximately 800,000 servicemen to vote where they are stationed. I call upon President Nixon to support these measures. I call upon the Justice Department to meet its responsibilities to defend Constitutional rights by establishing uniform guidelines for voter registration throughout the country so local barriers do not negate the most significant Constitutional reform of our time.

In a second area, the President has failed to match action to promise: he has appointed only scant numbers of young people to Federal Boards and Commissions. He did not place a single person under 30 on the President's Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse, an area in which young people are directly involved and about which they have a great deal of knowledge. The only person appointed as a student or young person to the Task Force on Priorities in Higher Education even though higher education exists for and because of students, and even though education is one area in which young people have the most experience. The youngest person on the Citizens Council on Youth Opportunity was 35, and the President has since abolished that commission. There were no students or young people on the Commission on Vietnam Veterans. He did not appoint one person under 30 to the Commission on All-Volunteer Armed Forces, even though young people are the ones who are drafted. Only one person under the age of 30 served on the Commission on Campus Unrest and that one appointment was publicly censured by Vice President Agnew, the second highest official in an Administration which pledged to "bring us together."

Out of a total of 1,433 Presidential appointments listed in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents, only 4 per cent of the appointments were under 30 years of age, and only a handful were students even though many of the commissions and boards were created specifically to deal with the problems which directly involve students and young people.

There is a third area of our national life, directly affecting young people, in which the Federal Administration can and must do better. That is youth unemployment. Under the Nixon Administration, unemployment among persons 16-21 years of age has risen 50 per cent to 17.3 per cent. Unemployment among Black youth is close to 40 per cent. Unemployment among recently returned Vietnam veterans, most of them young men, is at 10.5 per cent. 300,000 more young people were out of work this summer than in the summer of 1970.

The President has used to take action which would have prevented the rise in summer unemployment. The mayors of a number of major cities told him that $145 million would be needed to adequately fund the summer youth employment program this past summer. Incidentally, he requested from the Congress only $64 million. It is an indication of the mistaken sense of priorities of this Administration that it can request billions of dollars for atomic missiles, billions for senseless slaughter in Indochina, and billions for a snob appeal airplane to take the rich to Paris, while it cannot summon the effort even to request enough to put eager young men and women to work.

'If I Have To Hunt You Down...' Army Crackdown On Drugs In 'Nam

by Dennis A. Trease

Danang, August 23 (DMSI)—at a time when drastic changes in policy are often soft-pedaled to the frustrated GIs in Vietnam, Major John F. O'Brien's "Open Letter to All Drug Users" was tantamount to a declaration of war.

Stunned with the four letter words generally reserved for senior sergeants, it announced that O'Brien, the 4th of the 31st Infantry Battalion, would "seek out and find every drug user and pusher" in the unit. As in other amnesty programs, addicts were encouraged to turn themselves in with anonymity. The alternatives were also made painfully clear. "As I turn down the screws more and more you are going to start hurting. If I have to hunt you down and catch you and you refuse my help, I will prosecute you to the full extent of the law. I will put you behind bars as fast as I can for as long as I can. The maximum sentence for possession of smack (heroin) is ten years in the Federal Penitentiary, and I will bring the max."

Narcotics Problem

When O'Brien arrived at his unit early in July, he encountered a narcotics problem as serious as any in Vietnam. According to one former addict, ninety per cent of the GIs at the battalion support base, just outside Danang, were using drugs. The tough, graying veteran of 23 years service jumped in with both feet.

"I wrote the letter in language that the troops would understand," he explained. "If they understand that you're not part of the green machine they're going to react favorably to you. You just have to get down to their level and talk to them. By the same token they have to understand that if they don't cooperate if they don't go on with your program or alternate programs, they're going to get burned."

As enlisted men for ten years, Major O'Brien is one of the few field grade officers who can talk to the young GIs in their own language. "They trust me now; they know that I want to help them," he states proudly. His blue eyes are blurry from lack of sleep, and when he speaks, his voice almost cracks from a combination of emotional intensity and fatigue. "I was up 'til three o'clock this morning with a guy going through his 'Joneses' (the first agonizing phase of withdrawal). It's like that every night. I don't think I've had more than four hours sleep a night for the past two weeks." Perhaps because of his obvious sincerity and a growing reputation for fairplay, O'Brien's gruff Irish manner has not alienated the young soldiers who generally give "hardcore lifers" short shrift.

Drug Suppression and Control Council

Within a week of his arrival, O'Brien had organized a Drug Suppression and Control Council of fourteen men, including the battalion surgeon and enlisted representatives from each company, as well as a contingent from battalion headquarters. The council also utilized a carrot and stick approach.

simultaneously formed a "halfway house" for the treatment of drug users and an intelligence network among the unit's addicts. His first raid netted 150 capsules of heroin, as well as some marijuana and morphine. Since that time, four American and three Vietnamese pushers have been picked up on raids, and all seven are now behind bars. In the battalion orderly room, a five gallon water jug, one quarter full of heroin capsules, bags of marijuana, and morphine syrettes testifies to the success of the raids.

Operational Success

One former addict estimates that drug usage within the command has dropped by at least fifty per cent, and his is by far the most conservative estimate. A Pentagon spokesman stated that drug availability throughout the American Division had decreased significantly in recent months.

Among other things, Major O'Brien attributes the success of his operation to the quick reactions of his drug squad. "Because we keep up the constant pressure, having raids for two or three days in a row and then laying off, for a couple of days—they don't know what we're doing. They don't know how we operate, and they don't know how we're catching them. A lot of people think that because you're an officer, you won't get out and crawl on the ground, you won't go into the barracks—we do, and that's why we've been successful."

Another reason is the professional expertise the raiders have acquired from former addicts. "I know where to look," said one who now works as an informer. "They can bring it in taped to the backs of watches in the toes of their boots, or in Afro haircuts and I can find it."

One victim testified to the swift precision of the raiding squad. "A sergeant got busted when a scout brother sold him two caps at the back door of the barracks. Within two minutes, Major O'Brien's people had the place surrounded and everybody stripped down. They went through the lockers, searched everywhere. They found two vials on the sarge, and he's in the stockade now."

Yet success with a police approach has not ruled out more gentle methods of persuasion. Former addicts (continued on page seven)

The Bitch's Column

Recognizing the existence of injustices, both minor and major within the UVM community, the Cynic wishes to offer this space each issue for those who might otherwise not bring them to the attention of others. If you have a legitimate "pet peeve," we would like to hear about it. We're down stairs in the "new" renovated Billings Center.

I'm sure that most of the student body and faculty are well aware of the space problem at this University. Presently Billings Center is functioning as the Student Center, it is a place to relax, to socialize, and to study. It is unfortunate that the Den in Billings Center was not ready to open at the start of the year and will not open until September 21st or later. We must realize though that some things do happen over which the University has no control. However there are some things that the University can control that will ease this problem.

On Sept. 14 at about 11:00 A.M. Billings Center was so crowded that there were no available places to sit or study. The crowded quarters definitely seemed worse then usual. In my meandering through the crowds I discovered Marsh Lounge was closed. A class for resident assistants was being held there from about 10:00 to noon. I'm sure that this class could be held in another place. At another time, let alone close the Den and the Marsh lounge at the same time. I would call this less than judicious and less than fair use of space. Only by more careful planning and more judicious use of space can we ease this problem that we must all live with.

Submitted by Ronald D. Leveston
92 Pearl St.
Essex Jct., Vt.

Liberty Union Party Will Meet October 23

BRATTLEBORO — The Liberty Union will hold a convention on Oct. 23 to nominate candidates for special election to the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives. This was the decision of Liberty Union members meeting here Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Diamondstone.

A site for the convention has not yet been selected but several possible locations are being considered by the Executive Committee.

Also launched Saturday was a general fund-raising effort by the party membership to meet anticipated expenses in the special election contest and any costs incurred in the legal suit which the Party expects to file before Oct. 1. The suit, to seek a declaratory judgement on the ballot-status of the Liberty Union, will be filed by attorney Richard H. Thomas of Burlington. The legal action was prompted by an opinion issued by Vermont Attorney General James Jeffords declaring that the Liberty Union had not met the legal requirements which permit a party to place their nominees on the ballot.

Another topic for consideration at Saturday's meeting was the Conference on Peace and Justice to be held next weekend (Fri. and Sat. 24-25) at Middlebury College. It will be a meeting of anti-war, environmental, low-income and other groups from all over the state. The Liberty Union will conduct a workshop on third party electoral strategy at the Saturday session of that meeting.

A delegation was selected to attend a regional meeting of the national Peace and Freedom Party to be held at Worcester, Mass. on Oct. 17. The Peace and Freedom Party is attempting to organize a coalition of independent third parties in many states to nominate national third party candidates in the 1972 election. Liberty Union is not a formal member of the Peace and Freedom Coalition at this time but they have been invited to attend the Worcester Conference. The delegation of Liberty Union members to the Oct. 17 meeting are: William Meyer, S. Steve Kaplan, Martha Abbott, Tom Marlow, and Dennis Morrison.

CYNIC VERSE

The late hours spent over book all seem to blend into one amalgamation of time with CO and Henry IV allied as one mass assault upon my mental faculties.

The gray dawns which herald the day

Signify my victory over my weaker instincts—

Although those very same desires will return.

anonymous

Will The Media Kill The Election Again?

by Jay Belmont

The news media have in the U.S. are moving quickly to ensure that the American voting public will tire of the election campaign of 1972 before it actually gets under way. The pollsters were at work the day after Nixon's election in 1968 in their attempts to find a candidate for next year's election. And for months now the nation's leading journals have overpublicized the movements of Democratic candidates (or non-candidates, if you wish), to the extent where people are already tiring of political news.

The media did the same thing, more or less, four years ago. By the time the Republican and Democratic conventions rolled around in the summer of '68, no mention the election itself, people were so fed up with politics that apathy reigned for almost the entire remainder of the campaign. And now what do we have? One week Time does a cover story on Muskie, the next week Newsweek follows suit, while every week Life provides a pictorial chronicle of the candidates' movements. If these magazines had only recently begun extensive coverage of the political scene they would hardly be to blame. But we have been reading of this for almost three years already. Every time Edmund Muskie blows his nose it is interpreted by three different magazines, three newspaper columnists and the three major networks as a significant happening. True, politics is the lifeblood of the nation, but unless Time-Life and Newsweek want to ensure President Nixon's re-election (which hardly seems likely), they might do well to refrain from such intense coverage of a presidential election campaign that is not to officially begin until next summer. If not, the American may very well tire of politics and stay home on election day next year. How ironic it would be if Agnew's corps of effete snobs unknowingly worked for his re-election.

Students On Faculty Committees

All students can be eligible to sit on a Faculty Senate Committee. Applications must be made at the Student Association office, Billings, appointments which have already been made are:

- Administration—Sandy Friedman
- Mike Bedell
- Billings and Grounds—Mike Bedell
- Richard Cassidy
- Communications—Dale Edminster
- Curriculum—Jim Willy
- Jeff Yacker
- Planning—Dave Crosby
- Greg Nowles
- Public Relations—Mel-Lam
- Rice
- Ron Palmer
- Research—Wally Stooling
- Student Excellence—Jeff Yacker
- Dale Edminster
- Student Life—Debby Clement
- Emil George

The following committees still have student positions available: Campus Art, Ceremonies, Library, Research, Equal Opportunity, Final Exam Period

Exit Pax Americana, Enter Common Market

by Jeff Yacker

In many European newspapers and journals one of the favorite topics these days is the American "retreat from the world political scene. In a 'we've-travelled this road before,' "I-told-you-so" attitude, the political sagas of Germany, Italy, Holland, etc. gleefully trumpet the end of Pax Americana in Europe, and the world. That is about as far as many of the articles go, for the smart European of today loves to resent the United States, or specifically the fact that the U.S. rescued him from Hitler first, and later economic stagnation. All well and good, because Americans frankly are tiring of pouring dollars into countries, only to see them devalued substantially.

So let us assume that Pax Americana does end within the next five years, as many predict. What will replace it? Because, facing the international situation realistically, it may seem lovely to listen to idealistic proposals for mutual arms reduction in Europe, and although some progress is being made at the JALT talks in Helsinki and Vienna, a Soviet "threat" does still exist; not any American four-star general can France replace the U.S. Hardly, for all of DeGaulle's efforts to regain la gloire for France, it is not likely to replace us in Europe. West Germany? Now, there is a possibility, especially in light of Brandt's Oulpolitik and the favorable responses which have come from the "other side." But here the situation hinges on whether the U.S., Great Britain, and France trust Germany enough to allow it to assume total defensive capabilities. The memories of the past fifty-five years do not vanish overnight. Europe's best chance to survive as a viable economic unit without a major war is the Common Market. The old rivalries have not vanished completely, but they are minuscule compared to what they once were. And now that Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany no longer have colonial empires to rely on, their only hope for salvation lies in their ability to cooperate successfully, pooling resources and manpower. If America does indeed abdicate her title of World Policeman, as seems increasingly imminent, how far will the retreat go? Will isolationism emerge as the dominating national mood, as it did in the twenties? The question is a frightening one, and may turn out to be a subtle but important issue in the upcoming presidential campaign.

VERMONT CYNIC Number 15

- RALPH ROBBINS Editor-in-Chief
- JEFFREY YACKER Assistant Editor
- JILL DAVIDSON Managing Editor
- ARLENE ERICKSON News Editor
- DAVID BUCKLEY Feature Editor
- James Adams Art, Feature Editor
- NEN WHITTAKER Sports Editor
- TERRANCE DEMAS Research Manager
- GARY GARGO Advertising Manager
- Photography Editor
- JOHN FERRY Arts Editor
- ROSEMARY PEARSON

News Staff: Jerry Covey, Jill Stevens

Feature Staff: Lisa Charles, Colleen Sweeney, Kirby Kirkpatrick

Production Staff: Pat Cota, Sue Bravos, Ruth Hay, Sheila Jewett, Robin Hendler

Photography: Bob Rasopero, Shelly Eisenberg

Opinions expressed in editorials, cartoons, or columns in the CYNIC do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the University or the Student Association. Opinions expressed by columnists do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the majority of members of the CYNIC Editorial Board. Subscriptions: $10.00 per year, single copy 50c. Second Class Postage paid at Burlington, Vermont 05401.

September 24, 1971

VERMONT CYNIC

VERMONT CYNIC

Down... Drugs In 'Nam

tributes to the success of the raids

Operational Success

One former addict estimates that drug usage within the command has dropped by at least fifty per cent, and he is for the most conservative estimate

A Pentagon spokesman stated that drug availability throughout the Americal Division had decreased significantly in recent months.

Among other things,
Major O'Brien attributes the success of his operation to the quick reactions of his drug squad. "Because we keep up the constant pressure, having raids for two or three days in a row and then laying off for a couple of days—they don't know what we're doing.
They don't know how we operate, and they don't know how we're catching them. A lot of people think that because you're an officer, you won't get out and crawl on the ground, you won't go into the barracks—we do, and that's why we've been successful."

Another reason is the professional expertise the raiders have acquired from former addicts. "I know where to look," said one who now works as an informer.

"They can bring it in taped to the backs of watches, in the toes of their boots, or in Afro haircuts and I can find it."

One victim testified to the swift precision of the raiding squad. "A sergeant got busted when a soul brother sold him two caps at the back door of the barracks.
Within two minutes, Major O'Brien's people had the place surrounded and everybody stripped down.
They went through the lockers, searched everywhere. They found two vials on the sarge, and he's in the stockade now."

Yet success with a police approach has not ruled out more "gentle" methods of persuasion. Former addicts
(continued on page seven)

Common Market

European one of days a from the
In a road ou-so"
pages of Italy,
trumpet came in
That is of the smart omen to ates, or
the U.S.
her first agnation.
because firing of countries, devalued

that Pax within the product.
Because national it may idealistic al arms no, and is being talks in a Soviet is not any eral Can
U.S.?
DeGaulle's
ative for

France, it is not likely to replace us in Europe. West Germany?
Now, there is a possibility, especially in light of Brandt's Ostpolitik and the favorable response which have come from the "other side." But here the situation hinges on whether the U.S., Great Britain, and France trust Germany enough to allow it to assume total defensive capabilities. The memories of the past fifty-five years do not vanish overnight.

Europe's best chance to survive as a viable economic unit without a major war is the Common Market. The old rivalries have not vanished completely, but they are monstrous compared to what they once were. And now that Britain, France, Belgium,
Holland and Germany no longer have colonial empires to rely on, their only hope for salvation lies in their ability to cooperate successfully, pooling resources and manpower.

If America does indeed
abdicate her title of World Policeman, as seems increasingly imminent, how far will the retreat go? Will isolationism emerge as the dominating national mood, as it did in the twenties? The question is a frightening one, and may turn out to be a subtle but important issue in the upcoming presidential campaign.

BB King

OCTOBER 9th - 8:00
PRICE $3.50
UVM STUDENTS $3.00
PATRICK GYM - UVM
DOORS OPEN - 7:15

Tickets available UVM Bookstore, Bailey's, Billings.
Mail orders accepted - address: SA Concert Bureau, Billings Center, University of Vermont, Burlington, Vermont • 802-6562597.

VERMONT CYNIC

SA CONCERTS

SA Films

SASPEAKERS

SA FILMS

The Films of D. W. Griffith
FALL SEMESTER 1971
Evenings-BENEDICT MALL, Life Sciences Building.

September 17-THE AVENTING CONSCIENCE-1914-85 min. - silent - b/w - Harry B. Walthall, Blanche Sweet, D. W. Griffith. Biography. A seafarer wants to marry his sweetheart but his Uncle says no. The result is murder and Griffith shows the effects of conscience on the young man.

September 24 - THE MOTHER AND THE LAW and 1778-1915-85 min. - silent - b/w - Lillian Glash, Robert Harron, D. W. Griffith. Biography. Glash and Harron were two of Griffith's favorites. They were both seen in INTOLERANCE and HOME SWEET HOME, among many other films.

1914-84 min. - silent - b/w - unknown. Set in the Revolutionary War, this short Griffith is one of his many attempts to portray American history.

October 1 - THE SORROWS OF SATAN-1928-85 min. - silent - b/w - Adolphe Menjou, Ricardo Cortez, Lya dePuerty, Carol Dempster. (d) D. W. Griffith. Paramount. Originally a DuPont project, this film about a pair of penniless lovers eventually was given to Griffith, who applied his own indications of simplicity.

October 8-BROKEN BLOSSOMS-1919-90 min. - silent - b/w - Richard Barthelmess, Donald Crisp, Lillian Glash, D. W. Griffith. Griffith. Barthelmess was one of the leading matinee idols of the time. Here he plays a young Chinaman in love with Glash. This is one of Griffith's most poetic films.

October 15-AMERICA-1924-12 min. - silent - b/w - Loni Barrymore, Carol Dempster, Ned Hamilton (d) D. W. Griffith. United States. Griffith intended America to cap all his historical spectacles. It covers the whole scope of the American Revolution. Political as well as military. His handling of the Battle of Concord and Lexington is as brilliantly vivid as the battle scenes in THE BIRTH OF A NATION.

October 22 - ORPHANS OF STORM-1921-125 min. - sound - b/w-music score only - Dorothy and Lillian Glash, (d) D. W. Griffith. United Artists. Griffith's second attempt at melodrama. Orphans of the Storm is set against the French Revolution. Its storming of the Bastille scene is one of Griffith's most memorable film sequences.

October 25-TRUE HEART SUSIE (after Lillian Glash speech in his Allen Chapel)-1919-83 min. - silent - b/w - Lillian Glash, Robert Harron, (d) D. W. Griffith. Artcraft.

September 25 - ANNA KARENINA - 1935 - 95 min. - sound - b/w - Greta Garbo, Frederic March, Freddie Bartholomew, Maureen O'Sullivan (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. This highly acclaimed, award-winning film is a telescoping of the great novel down to the love story within it. Garbo's suicide of Anna is most effective.

October 2 - AS YOU DESIRE ME - 1932 - 71 min. - silent - b/w - Greta Garbo, Stroheim, (d) George Fitzmaurice - M-G-M. The pairing of Garbo and Stroheim is without a doubt one of the most electric, casting coups imaginable.

October 9 - NINETCHKA - 1929 - 110 min. - sound - b/w - Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas, Ina Claire, Gregory Gays (d) Ernst Lubitsch - M-G-M. Ninotchka was Garbo's first comedy. She sparkles against the comic background of the film - a minor miracle, because of her image as a tragic figure.

October 16 - CONQUEST - 1937 - 111 min. - sound - b/w - Greta Garbo, Charles Boyer, (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. From the conquest of Europe to exile in Elba, in a surging sweep of the Napoleonic era, the historical love affair of the Emperor and his Polish countess mistress is highlighted in a lavish, elaborate film.

October 23 - MATA HARI - 1932 - 90 min. - Greta Garbo, Ramon Novarro, Loyal Barrymore, Lewis Stone (d) George Fitzmaurice - M-G-M. The amazing world of espionage is the perfect setting for the most elemental of sexual conflicts; and rarely has the Dullian myth been treated so sympathetically. The unblinking eroticism of the film and its acceptance of sexual activity has been surpassed only very recently.

October 30 - GRAND HOTEL - 1932 - 115 min. - sound - b/w - John Barrymore, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Wallace Berry (d) Edmund Goulding - M-G-M. A film about a cross-section of life in an upper crust hotel, done with a grand and truly collaborating cast.

November 6 - THE PAINTED VEIL - 1934 - 83 min. - Greta Garbo, Herbert Marshall, George Brent, (d) Richard Boleslawski - M-G-M. Adapted from a W. Somerset Maugham novel, this film is set in China the story of a doctor, his wife and her lover.

November 13 - QUEEN CHRISTINA - 1933 - 100 min. - sound - b/w - Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, Ian Keith, Lewis Stone, (d) Ruben Mamoulian - M-G-M. The great team of Gilbert and Garbo returns after many year's separation to make this story of the Queen who had been married as a boy to succeed to the 17th century Swedish throne.

This important film which was directed by Clarence Brown is one of the most important silent ever made. The color tint process that will be seen is all done by hand.

November 3 - INAM THE TERRIBLE (PART I) - 1944 - 95 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - William Cherkassov (d) Sergei Eisenstein - Russia. Sergei Eisenstein was, after Griffith, one of the finest greatest creators. INAM THE TERRIBLE is one of his finest works.

November 10 - INAM THE TERRIBLE (PART II) - 1946 - 90 min. - sound - color sequences - subtitles - Nikolai Cherkassov, (d) Sergei Eisenstein - Russia. Part Two of what was to have been a three part film biography features some color sequences. Eisenstein died a few weeks after beginning shooting of INAM THE TERRIBLE PART III.

November 17 - THE THIRD MAN - 1949 - 93 min. - b/w - Joseph Cotten, Trevor Howard, Alida Valli, Orson Welles (d) Sir Carol Reed. This Sir Carol Reed film is set in postwar Vienna and features two of the greatest Mercury Theatre players Cotten and Welles himself.

December 1 - 000 MAN OUT - 1947 - 117 min. - sound - b/w - James Mason, Robert Newton, (d) Sir Carol Reed - Britain. This third film of the Postwar European trilogy that Sir Carol Reed made is set in Berlin and features some excellent acting by mason and his first Abbey Theatre counterparts.

December 8 - THE MAN BETWEEN - 1953 - 99 min. - b/w - Claire Bloom, James Mason, Wilfrid Brift (d) Sir Carol Reed. One of three Sir Carol Reed films that SAF Films is showing set in three postwar European cities. This one is set in Berlin.

SPECIAL SHOWING: Friday December 10 in Life Sciences Building THE CARTOON'S SON (in Yiddish with subtitles) 1940 - 90 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Boleslaw Oyster, Florence Weiss, (d) Ilya Metel' - JEWISH. A rare active print of a Yiddish theatrical classic which has subtitles for those who don't understand Yiddish. Of interest to any one who is interested in the dying Yiddish Theatre.

THE FILMS OF FEDERICO FELLINI
Second Semester - Benedict Hall - Friday Evenings - Life Sciences Building.

January 21 - Variety Lights - 1950 - 93 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Giulietta Masina, Poppino De Filippo, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. Fellini's first film. Although he was not the sole director, Variety Lights is obviously a Fellini work. The film has great insight, humor, and attention to realistic detail.

January 28 - White Shroud - 1952 - 86 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Alberto Sordi, Giulietta Masina, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. With The White Shroud, Fellini made his debut as sole director of a motion picture. A satire, it is Fellini's most humorous film. Full of biting force, caricature, and a taste of the circus world found in his later films.

February 8 - The Navigator - 1924 - 42 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Kathryn McGuire (d) Donald Crisp - Metro. A rich boy and a rich girl find themselves alone on an ocean liner, adrift with no crew, no passengers, no steam and no lights. It is Man versus Machine carried to the ultimate.

February 15 - Seven Chances - 1925 - 69 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Ruth Dwyer, (d) Keaton - Metro. Keaton portrays James Shannon, a young man who can inherit a fortune if he marries before 7 p.m. on his twenty-first birthday, which just happens to be the day he receives the notice.

February 22 - Go West - 1925 - 72 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Kathleen Myers, (d) Buster Keaton - METRO. In the female leading role - Brown eyes, a cow which Keaton himself trained in ten days.

1922 - 19 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Renee Adoree, Virginia Fox, Joe Roberts (d) Buster Keaton, Eddie Cline - Buster Keaton Productions. With its theme of wishful thinking, Daydreams is appropriately Keaton's most fractured short film, as well as a reprise of many of the best visual motifs from the fifteen shorts which preceded it.

February 29 - Battling Butler - 1926 - 75 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Sally O'Neill (d) Buster Keaton - METRO. The most dramatic comedy of the Keaton films, this is the story of a mistaken identity involving two millionaires. One is the fopish son of a millionaire; the other a contended for the world's lightweight boxing championship. Keaton plays the top.

Haunted House - 1921 - 19 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Virginia Fox, Joe Roberts, Eddie Cline (d) Keaton - METRO - Buster Keaton Productions. Keaton's most complicated short film, with Keaton as a bank teller, who inadvertently becomes a fugitive from justice.

March 7 - The General - 1921 - 20 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Virginia Fox (d) Buster Keaton, Eddie Cline - Buster Keaton Productions. Keaton's major plays about two dozen roles in a youth. Keaton plays about two dozen roles in a clever dream illusion.

The playhouse - 1927 - 82 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Marian Mack, Glen Cavender, Jim Farley - (d) Buster Keaton & Clyde Bruckman - Metro. This is the last comedy classic of the silent era. Based on the Civil War exploit of Captain Anderson's raiders who captured a locomotive in the South.

March 14 - College - 1927 - 70 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Florence Turner, (d) James W. Horne - M-G-M. Keaton plays a high school graduate who hates brown and loves books, but also loves a girl who loves athletes. Needless to say, Ronald (Keaton) goes out for every college sport imaginable.

April 25 - The Immortal Story - 1938 - 83 min. - color-English dialogue - Orson Welles, Jeanne Moreau, (d) Orson Welles, Roger Coggio, Norman Ashley. Welles plays an aging and wealthy merchant the turn of the century. It is another of Welles' films dealing with the tragedy of making reality out of an illusion. The Immortal Story is perhaps Welles' most mature work.

April 28 - Macbeth - 1948 - 85 min. - sound - b/w - Orson Welles, Jeanette Nolan, Reilly McDowell (d) Orson Welles. A very personal film. The Shakespearean tragedy is well suited to Welles' own attitudes toward faith in illusion and inevitable doom.

May 2 - The Trial - 1962 - 118 min. - sound - b/w - dubbed - Anthony Perkins, Jeanne Moreau, (d) Orson Welles - FRANCE. A film masterpiece based on Kafka's famous novel. It contains many memorable sequences with the Welles touch.

May 5 - Citizen Kane - 1941 - 119 min. - sound - b/w - Orson Welles, Joseph Cotten, (d) Orson Welles - RKO. Welles first, best known, and probably his greatest film; about a newspaper tycoon.

BILLINGS CENTER MOVIE FESTIVAL
North Lounge - Wednesday evenings - 8:00 p.m.

January 25 - St. Louis Blues - 1929 - 17 Minutes. Sound - Russian South. (d) Dudley Murphy, Boris Saitch, one of the great Negro blues singers, has been prepared in this self-associated arty but unique film record made in the thirty days of sound by the experimental director Dudley Murphy.

February 2 - Bodily Evidences - 1944 - 113 min. - sound - color - Benita Hidi, Tereza Stame, Dirk Bogarde, (d) Joseph Loopy - 20th Century Fox. Hidi captives spent based on a British-American comic strip. Director Joseph Loopy masterminds this furthest logical extension of the mid - 60's spy film, both a reaction to and a commentary on the genre.

February 9 - Cool Hand Luke - 1967 min. - sound - color - Paul Newman, George Kennedy, Jo Van Fleet, J. D. Cannon (d) Stuart Rosenberg. Luke was him an Academy Award nomination, and George Kennedy capped the Oscar for best supporting actor for this film.

February 16 - BLOODHOUNDS - 1938 - 50 min. - b/w - sound - Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Billy Gilbert, James Fliedson - Hal Roach film. February 16 - THE BUSBY BUS - 1931 - 32 - 38 min. b/w - Laurel & Hardy - Hal Roach film. Who needs to tell anyone about Laurel and Hardy?

February 23 - Dinner at 8:00 - 1932 - sound - black and white - Wallace Berry, Marie Dressler, Barrymore, Billie Seta, (d) George Coker. A series of vignettes that exposes the masses underlying urban high life.

March 1 - Rebel Without a Cause - 1955 - 113 min. - color-sound - James Dean, Natalie Wood, Sal Mineo, Jan Backus, Ann Doran, Warner Bros. James Dean's first movie is a well done tale of alienated

The Boat - 1921 - 19 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Eddie Cline, Sybil Seely, (d) Buster Keaton - Buster Keaton Productions. Buster and his family are reduced to a primal struggle for survival aboard a nightmarish vessel.

March 21 - Steamboat Bill Jr. - 1927 - 75 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton (d) E. A. Martini, Ernest Torrence, Marion Byron, Tom Lewis, February 4 - I Vitelloni - 1954 - 104 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - France - Alberto Sordi, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. This film is considered a masterpiece by many critics who feel that the films of Fellini's early period are his best. It is the story of five aimless, disillusioned young men.

February 11 - Le Strade - 1954 - 107 min. -

November 20 - ROMANCE - 1930 - 76 min. - silent - black and white - Greta Garbo, Lewis Stone, Gavin Gordon, (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. Garbo gives an inspiring performance of a woman who trusts love away from her because she considers herself unworthy of the man

European critics have compared this film to English pastoral poetry, and today it is possible to see a link between this vanished age of American innocence and the world of Wordsworth and Cowper. Griffith tells the simple story of a small village in rural America. It is a work full of the simplicity and depth of

October 25—TRUE HEART SUSIE (after Lillian Gish speech in Two Women)—1919 - 93 min. - silent - b/w - Lillian Gish, Robert Harron, (d) D. W. Griffith - Artcraft.

European critics have compared this film to English pastoral poetry, and today it is possible to see a link between this vanished age of American Innocence and the world of Wordsworth and Coleridge. Griffith tells the simple story of a small village in rural America. It is a work full of the simplicity and depth of feeling characteristic of him.

October 23—THE IDOL DANCER—1920 - 76 min. - silent - b/w - Richard Barthelmess, Clarence Seymour (d) D. W. Griffith - First National. The idol dancer offered the film public of 1920's the charm of its youthful leads, superb New England and Caribbean photography, and a theme of Puritanism succumbing to the tropics, than apparently triumphing in the end.

November 6—INTOLERANCE (titled) plus shorts—1916 - 180 min. - silent - b/w - Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Erich von Stroheim, (d) D. W. Griffith - Griffith. D. W. Griffith made this movie out of four separate tales which he cuts into all during the movie. The sets are some of the most magnificent ever built, especially in the Babylon scenes.

November 12—WAY DOWN EAST—1920 - 105 min. - b/w - music track - Lillian Gish, Richard Barthelmess, D. W. Griffith - United Artists. Partially filmed in Vermont. Gish and Barthelmess almost lost their lives on the ice in the rapid scene.

November 19—BIRTH OF A NATION plus editing sequences and BATTLE OF ELDERBUSH GULCH—1915 - 100 min. - silent - b/w - music and sound effects only - Henry B. Walthall, Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh - Griffith. Perhaps the greatest of all films ever made, Griffith made use of every technique he had ever dreamed of, techniques that are the basic language of every film director ever since.

December 3—ABRAHAM LINCOLN—1930 - 90 min. - sound - b/w - Walter Huston, Una Merkel, (d) D. W. Griffith - United Artists. Griffith's first sound movie is largely static and slow but has an interesting portrayal of Lincoln by Walter Huston.

THE FILMS OF GRETA GARBO

FALL SEMESTER 1971 - Saturday Evenings
BENEDICT HALL - Life Sciences Building.

September 11—FLESH AND THE DEVIL—1927 - 95 min. - silent - b/w - Greta Garbo, John Gilbert, (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. Possibly the most significant film of Garbo's career; it may also be the best, a classic of direction. Brown's association with Garbo was a long and fruitful one—a true collaboration.

September 18—ANNA CHRISTIE—1930 - 90 min. - sound - b/w - Greta Garbo, Marie Dressler, Charles Bickford, (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. Marie Dressler's definitive portrayal of Marthy started her on a second career; and Garbo's first speaking role proved to the world that her talent was theatrical as well as visual. Her first cinema words (as she enters a ginger ale on the side "Gimme a victory - ginger ale on the side...") don't be stingy, babes.

November 20—ROMANCE—1930 - 76 min. - silent - black and white - Greta Garbo, Lewis Stone, Gavin Gordon, Florence Lake, (d) Clarence Brown - M-G-M. Garbo gives an inspiring performance of a woman who thrusts love away from her because she considers herself unworthy of the man offering it.

December 4—SUSAN LENOX—HER FALL AND RISE—1931 - 75 min. - Greta Garbo, Clarke Gable, Jean Harlow, Alan Hale (d) Robert Z. Leonard. This, her only film with Gable, Garbo plays a "virtuous prostitute."

December 11—TWO FACES WOMAN—1941 - 94 min. - Greta Garbo, (last film) Melvyn Douglas, Constance Bennett (d) George Cukor - M-G-M. This was Garbo's last film, in which she plays a ski instructor married to a man whose ex-flame is plotting to get him back. Banned in Boston, the film was revised and later released.

BILLINGS CENTER MOVIE FESTIVAL

North Lounge - Wednesday Evenings - 8:00 pm

September 22—ON THE WATERFRONT—1954 - 108 min. - sound - b/w - Marlon Brando, Karl Malden, Eva Marie Saint, Lee J. Cobb (d) Elia Kazan. The story of a priest who sets out to smash mob control over the New York waterfront. A lot of an intricate longshoreman slowly becoming aware of what he could amount to in the world.

BORN YESTERDAY—1933 - 103 min. - sound - b/w - Judy Holiday, William Holden, Broderick Joop, (d) Michael Curtiz. A millionaire junkman finds a young man to "culture" his scatterbrained fiancée. Miss Holiday won an Academy Award for her performance.

September 25—THAT COLD DAY IN THE PARK—115 min. - sound - color - Sandy Dennis, Michael Burns, (d) Robert Altman. An electrifying exercise in symbolism—a journey through the deepest crevices of the human mind. Sandy Dennis is a thirty two year old sex-star. Michael Burns is a nineteen year old hippie; and he is her last chance. COMEDY OF TERRORS—86 min. - sound - color - Vincent Price, Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre, Joe E. Brown, Basil Rathbone. A stuporific horror romp—a creep between Arsanic and Old Lace and the Raven.

October 6—YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU—1938 - 127 min. - sound with subtitles - Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, (d) Frank Capra. Based on Kaufman and Hart's Broadway hit, Capra has "revised" the comedy a little to show his theme of the little guy counts.

October 13—THE NIEBUERGEN SAGA — PART I: SIEGFRIED—1924 - 80 min. - sound (musical soundtrack) - Paul Richter, Margarete Schön, Theodor Loos, Hanna Ralph, Hans Albers von Schabertow (d) Fritz Lang - German. Part one of one of Lang's most beautiful films. Lang also made METROPOLIS, FURY, and DESTINY.

October 20—THE NIEBUERGEN SAGA — PART II: KRIEMHILD'S REVENGE—1924 - 90 min. - Silent - Paul Richter, Margarete Schön, etc. (d) Fritz Lang - German. Lang, like many German impressionists of his time, based his film on Teutonic legends, trying to find answers in antiquity for the problems of his own Germany in the Twenties.

October 27—TOLABLE DAVID—1921 - 80 min. - color tint & music - Richard Barthelmess, Ernest Torrence, Warner Richmond, Gladys Hedrich (d) Clarence Brown - First National.

February 4—1 VITOLINI—1936 - 104 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Franco Fabrizi, Alberto Sordi, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. This film is considered a masterpiece by many critics who feel that the films of Fellini's early period are his best. It is the story of the aimless, disillusioned young men.

February 11—LA STRADA—1954 - 107 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Giulietta Masina, Anthony Quinn, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. The first of Fellini's films to bring him international recognition; with a notable performance by Giulietta Masina. La Strada translates as "The Road."

February 18—IL BIDONE—1955 - 92 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Richard Basehart, Giulietta Masina, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. The adventures of a trio of desperate confidence men who thrive on invention, humor, and intrigue. Fellini appears to be picking up where he left off in Vitelloni.

February 25—NIGHTS OF CABIRIA—1957 - 110 min. - sound - subtitles - color - Giulietta Masina (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. The third part of Fellini's unofficial "trilogy of solitude," which includes La Strada and Il Bidone. About prostitutes, the film is loosely constructed and episodic, with an essentially circular (and therefore not very hopeful) movement.

March 3—LA DOLCE VITA—1960 - 180 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Marcello Mastroianni, Anita Ekberg, Anouk Aimée (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. A significant film because it is a culmination of Fellini's earlier tendency to merge neo-realism with non-realism (White Ship, La Strada); and an indication of the new style which he developed in 60's. Juliet of the Spirits, and Satyricon. It is this later style that is the viewer in La Dolce Vita, with which Fellini has become identified.

March 10—8½—1963 - 135 min. - sound - b/w - subtitles - Marcello Mastroianni, Claude Cardinale, Anouk Aimée, (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. Generally considered to be Fellini's masterpiece, this is one of the most personal films ever made. 8½ is a compendium of every important image, character, and idea in Fellini's work prior to 1963.

March 17—JULIET OF THE SPIRITS—1965 - 137 min. - color - sound - subtitles - Giulietta Masina, Mario Pisu, Sandra Milo, Valentina Cortese (d) Federico Fellini - Italy. Fellini's first color feature film, and naturally he experimented. His fantastic and surreal elements are thrown at the viewer in lavish, overwhelming color. Not a subtle film.

March 24—SATYRICON—1969 - 120 min. - color - sound with subtitles - Martin Potter, Hiram Keller, Max Born (d) Fellini. Fellini's most recent compilation of fantasy and surrealism, a shock - provoking expression of decadence.

The Films of Buster Keaton
Second Semester - Tuesday evenings - Benedict Hall - Life Sciences Building

January 25—OUR HOSPITALITY—1923 - 72 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Natalie Talmadge (d) Buster Keaton/Jack Blystone - Metro. Keaton's second feature-length film. Its pace is much more leisurely and serene than his shorts, and contains genuine dramatic characterizations, setting a precedent for features of the twenties.

February 1—SHERLOCK II—1924 - 42 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Kathryn McGuire, (d) Buster Keaton - Metro. In his most daring screen experiment, Keaton plays a projectionist who dreams himself into the movies.

The Boat
1921 - 19 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Eddie Cline, Sybil Seely, (d) Buster Keaton - Buster Keaton Productions. Buster and his family are reduced to a primeval struggle for survival aboard a nightmarish vessel.

March 21—STEAMBOAT BILL, JR.—1927 - 75 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton (d) E. A. Martin, Ernest Torrence, Marion Byron, Tom Lewis, Keaton on the Mississippi River, caught in a bitter rivalry between two steamboat owners.

The Balloonatic
1923 - 23 min. - silent - b/w - Buster Keaton, Phyllis Haver, (d) Buster Keaton, Eddie Cline, Buster Keaton Productions. Buster, the city slicker, is carried into the wilderness by an errant balloon.

April 4—THE CAMERAMAN—1929 - 88 minutes - sound - b/w - Buster Keaton, Marceline Day, Harold Goodwin (d) Edward Sedgwick - MGM. Armed with an antique motion picture camera, street photographer Keaton seeks fame and fortune as a news cameraman. For years this film was shown to new employees at MGM as the ideal of solid comedy structure.

SAFILMS

The Films of Orson Welles
Second Semester—Benedict Hall—Life Sciences Building.

April 7—LADY FROM SHANGHAI—1947 - 87 min. - sound - b/w - Rita Hayworth, Orson Welles (d) Orson Welles - COLUMBIA. Welles' wildest film. It shows an abortion not found in the more formal Citizen Kane. The images in this film are among the most bizarre in Welles' work.

April 11—THE MAGNIFICENT AMBERSONS—1942 - 88 min. - sound - b/w - Joseph Cotton, Anne Baxter, Tim Holt, Agnes Moorehead, voice of Orson Welles, (d) Orson Welles - RKO. The story of the declining magnificence of the Amberson dynasty, where the individual was forced to change to meet the new socio-economic world head-on. Orson Welles' vivid imagination turns this film into a classic of cinematic invention.

April 14—JOURNEY INTO FEAR—1942 - 90 min. - sound - b/w - Orson Welles, Joseph Cotton, Dolores Del Rio, Ruth Warwick, Agnes Moorehead, (d) Orson Welles - RKO. Sharp moments of terror in this story of an American armament engineer's innocent involvement in Axis intrigue in Tokyo.

April 18—THE STRANGER—1946 - 95 min. - sound - b/w - Edward G. Robinson, Loretta Young, (d) Orson Welles - RKO. A distinctively Welles film, this is the story of a notorious Nazi posing as a schoolteacher in Connecticut after World War II. It expresses two of Welles' favorite themes - evil lurking beneath a calm surface, and the inevitability of tragedy and doom.

April 21—MR. ARKADIN—1955 - 99 min. - sound - b/w - Orson Welles, Sir Michael Redgrave, Patricia Medina, (d) Welles - Britain. Welles' genius focuses on a mysterious international financier obsessed by his unknown past. Illusion and reality fuse in a trenchant portrayal of the emptiness of modern life.

ALL SHOWINGS ARE FREE TO STUDENT ASSOCIATION MEMBERS

February 23—DANGER AT 8:00—1932 - sound - black and white - Wallace Beery, Marie Dressler, John Barrymore, Billie Burke, (d) George Cukor. A series of vignettes that express the uneasy underlying urban high life.

March 1—REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE—1955 - 113 min. - color - sound - James Dean, Natalie Wood, Sal Mineo, Jim Backus, Ann Doran - Warner Bros. James Dean's first movie is a well-done tale of alienated youth in the early fifties.

March 8—EAST OF EDEN—1955 - sound - color - James Dean, Raymond Massey, Jo Van Fleet, (d) Elia Kazan - WARNERS. The film is based on the John Steinbeck novel and was James Dean's second film. Fine acting by Raymond Massey.

March 15—SOME COUNTRY—1957 - 133 min. - b/w - Kubo Kishi, Karyn Yachuga - film by Shiro Toyoda. Novel by Yasunari Kawabata. The only Japanese movie of the SAFILMS list this year. It is a beautiful, poetic treatment of the noble prize winning author, Kawabata.

March 22—PRIVILEGE—1967 - 103 min. - color - sound - Paul Jones, Jean Shroff, (d) Peter Watkins - Britain. Jones, once a lead singer with the English rock group MANFRED MANN, plays young pop singer who becomes the center of a religious movement, and then realizes he is being used.

April 5—THE BLACK PUKE—1926 - 91 min. - silent - b/w - Douglas Fairbanks, Billie Dove, Anders Randolph, Tempo Pigott, Sam deGrasse - United Artists. A smashbuster by the man who invented the term, Douglas Fairbanks, in one of his better roles.

April 12—EVENTS (experimental film by Fred Baber)—1968 - 84 min. - color - Ryan Litzman, Joe Weller, Frank Cvetkovic, Marshall Ross, Robert Altman, by Fred Baber. An experimental film maker's attitude on making experimental films. It deals with the reality problem of participating in sex for commercial gain.

April 19—INTITUDE—113 min. - color - Oskar Werner, Barbara Ferris, (d) Karyn Billington. Werner, perhaps best remembered for this role in SHIP OF FOOLS, plays the character in this remake of the 1947 film with Ray Milland.

April 26—INCESS FLE—107 minutes - Color - Sound - Michael Caine, Nigel Green, (d) Sidney Furie. This film proves again that one of the first pleasures of movie going is a tug-of-war - no - suspense suspense yarn.

April 25—HIGH NOON—85 minutes - Sound - b/w - Gary Cooper, Grace Kelly, Lloyd Bridges, (d) Fred Zinnemann. Gary Cooper received an Academy Award for his performance in this film, which achieves a high pitch of tension as a whole town stands idly by while one man is left to fight single-handedly a fight which is theirs as well as his.

SA SPEAKERS

RALPH NADER
OCTOBER 8

Patrick Gym

LILLIAN GISH
OCTOBER 25

Ira Allen
Chapel

PIERRE SALINGER
NOVEMBER 2

Patrick Gym

DICK GREGORY
FEBRUARY 25

Patrick Gym

MARK VANDOREN
MARCH 15

Ira Allen Chapel

SAM JAFJE
APRIL 13

Ira Allen Chapel

Free with ID

All Speeches Begin At 8:00 PM

September 24, 1971

One View of

Analysis by David Mandel
Alternative Features Service
Congressman Pete McCloskey was asked, "Why do you support the draft?" "It's a hell of a lot better than the alternative," he replied. "For the privilege of being an American."
BERKELEY, CA. (AP)—Here's the man who was a Republican alternative to Richard Nixon: Congressman (Pete) McCloskey, the liberal anti-war voice.
The only problem is, he isn't.
A representative from California's wealthy San Mateo county, McCloskey is the prototype of a new kind of politician—the media aggressive—a legislator whose public image bears little resemblance to his record. A scumpling from campus to campus in search of the "youth vote," McCloskey is building a name around his new-found notoriety for the U.S. role in Vietnam—and the media laps up it. Meanwhile, McCloskey's long record in three and one-half years on Capitol Hill is lost in the shuffle.
McCloskey presents himself as a peace-loving liberal, but he's actually opposed efforts to limit military spending. He calls an alternative to the Nixon administration, but has been among the staunchest supporters of the President's domestic policies. His record in all liberties, social programs, and even in the realm of foreign policy—supposedly his strong suit—clashes resoundingly with his progressive image.
Here is a summary of my search on McCloskey's voting record in the House of Representatives from early 1968 through July, 1971. Most of my sources come from Congressional records. Procedural votes and possibly misleading indicators have been liberally excluded from my list.

Military Spending
On June 16 of this year, McCloskey voted against an $18.6 billion increase in military spending for the new fiscal year. On the same day, he initiated the work of the 1972 military research and development budget also met with McCloskey's opposition.
When on July 29, 1968, an attempt was made to block a military construction bill that included $200 million for the development of missile (ABM), McCloskey voted with the bill's supporters. (McCloskey's stance he opposes the ABM.)
In the last three years, Congressman McCloskey has voted in favor of ten military appropriations bills.

Civil Liberties
House's Omnibus Civil Liberties bill, allowing extensive wiretapping and search of mail, and several decisions which guard Constitutional rights of defendants. When the President Johnson opposed a Senate amendment, McCloskey voted to support the Senate measure. Although the measure was strongly attacked as an invasion of American civil liberties, McCloskey voted in final passage.
He also voted in favor of the D.C. Crime Bill of 1968, which contained provisions for preventive detention.

Environment
In addition, McCloskey voted to deny Federal students who participated in campus demonstrations twice voted in favor of limiting the right to picket in Washington, D.C.
In 1970 the House Security Committee of Congress because of refusal to testify before investigating the Mobilization Committee for the War in Vietnam. (Congressman)

Envl

If you were in the weekend, you may be a change of color. They switched students. Dorm-splash paint, pick up debris. from Robinson. He many environmentalists.

Last year, when was introduced to preserve the environment for the environment. Forty-four students in the new Environment. The majors of Forestry and Environmental and Home Economics. The main stream environment. Many have taken military appropriations bills.

Attica: An App

Carol Sabatine Brown
Attica village community is quiet in the early hours of September 9th, 1971. Suddenly, that quiet was pierced by the shriek of the prison's walls.
There had been talk in the Black prison community about a Black prisoner who had shaved heads and shaved faces. They don't have respect. An older guard was quoted as saying "We got to be tougher."
The rhetoric in that rural town is and was no different than in any community accustomed to an Uncle Tom's and being a Panther. It is not unusual for we whites in less favorable circumstances of life become apprehensive.

when our "life is" threatened. To fully control the "pulse" of the has only to look. The Prisoners Corrections report May 1971. Corrections. Oswald had a. Prisoners provide relevant training (i.e. economic security). Posters were late summer. "Unit" indifference against Ward fields of Human rights. And then, 9th, 1971, a combustion, turned to riot. On September

Carvel Ice

12 Pe

10% discor

Monday

(good

SA SPEAKERS

RALPH NADER
OCTOBER 8

Patrick Gym

LILLIAN GISH
OCTOBER 25

Ira Allen
Chapel

PIERRE SALINGER
NOVEMBER 2

Patrick Gym

DICK GREGORY
FEBRUARY 25

Patrick Gym

MARK VANDOREN
MARCH 15

Ira Allen Chapel

SAM
JAFJE
APRIL 13

Ira Allen Chapel

Free with ID

All Speeches Begin At 8:00 PM

September 24, 1971

One View of

Analysis by David
Mondstock
Alternative Features Service
Congressman Pete
McCluskey was asked, "Why do you support the flag?" "It's a half price to pay," McCluskey replied. "For the privilege of being an American."
BERKELEY, CA.—
Here's the man who was a Republican alternative Richard Nixon Congressman but (Pete) McCluskey, the verbal, the liberal and the leftist.
The only problem is, he doesn't exist.
A representative from California's wealthy San Mateo County, McCluskey is the prototype of a new kind of liberal—the media aggressive—a legislator whose bio image bears little resemblance to his record.
Stumping from campus to campus in search of the "youth vote," McCluskey is building a base around his new-found notoriety for the U.S. role in Vietnam—and the media laps up. Meanwhile, McCluskey's long record in three and one-half years on Capitol Hill is lost in the shuffle.
McCluskey presents himself as a down, while he has justly opposed efforts to increase military spending. He calls for an alternative to the Nixon administration, but has been among the staunchest supporters of the President's domestic policies. His record in all liberties, social programs, even in the realm of foreign policy—supposedly his strong point—clashes resoundingly with his progressive image.
Here is a summary of my search on McCluskey's voting record in the House of Representatives from early 1968 through July, 1971. Most of my data comes from Congressional Quarterly. Procedural votes and possibly misleading indicators have been liberally excluded from my analysis.

Military Spending
On June 16 of this year,
McCluskey voted against an effort to eliminate $370 million from the new B-1 long-range bomber. On the same day, he initiated the work of motions to reduce the fiscal 1972 military research and development budget also met McCluskey's opposition.
When on July 29, 1968 an attempt was made to block a military construction bill that included $200 million for the ballistic missile (ABM), McCluskey voted with the bill's supporters. (McCluskey maintains he opposes the ABM.)
In the last three years,
Congressman McCluskey has voted in favor of ten key military appropriations bills.

Environment
If you were in the weekend, you may be a change of color.
They watched students splash paint
pick up debris. It initiated the work
from Robinson Hall
many environmental
Last year, the bill was introduced to preserve the environment for the entire country. Forty-four students in the new Environment and Home Economy department. Max dorm have taken in
The Environmental

Attica: An App
by Carol Sabatino Brown
Attica village community is quiet in the early hours of September 9th, 1971.
Suddenly, that quiet was shattered by the shriek of the prison's walls.
There had been talk in the black prisoner community about the black prisoners at Attica name had shaved heads and they were "Radical Communist Sympathizers."
They don't have respect any older guard was quoted as saying "We got to be tough."
The rhetoric in that rural village is and was "no-different than in any community accustomed to Uncle Tom's and seeing a "Panther." It is not surprising that in less than a year circumstances of life become apprehensive

joining the Congress approving approximately billion worth of Pe-spending.
• Late in 1969, Mc-supported an appropri-$54.3 million to provide Kai-Shak with a squadron of jet fighters. One-forty two Congressmen against this expenditure.
McCluskey.
• In 1968 the U.S.
added amendments
House's Omnibus Bill allowing extensive wiretapping and authority and seek overturn several Supreme Court decisions which guarantee Constitutional rights of defendants. When the President Johnson opposed a amendment
McCluskey voted to support the Senate.
Although the measure strongly attacked as a upon American civil McCluskey voted in final passage.
• He also voted in fa-
D.C. Crime Bill of 1968 contained provisions
preventive detentions.
In addition, McCluskey voted to deny Federal students who participated in campus demonstrations the right to defer their military service in Washington, D.C.
• In 1970 the House
Security Committee
Arnold S. Johnson for refusal to testify before investigating the Mobilization Commission the War in Vietnam. (McCluskey's Congressman.)

Carvel

Ice

12 Per

10% disco

Monday

(good

September 24, 1971

One View of Senator McCloskey

News Analysis by David Mandel
Alternative Features Service

Senator McCloskey was asked, "Why do you support the draft?" "It's a small price to pay," McCloskey remarked, "for the privilege of being an American."

Berkeley, CA. McCloskey is the man who offers a Republican alternative to Richard Nixon. Congressman Paul (Pete) McCloskey, the liberal anti-war activist.

The only problem is, he doesn't exist.

A representative from California's wealthy San Mateo County, McCloskey is the prototype of a new kind of politician—the media progressive—a legislator whose public image bears little resemblance to his record.

Stumping from campus to campus in search of the "youth vote," McCloskey is building a crusade around his new-found notoriety for the U.S. role in Indochina—and the media lap up it.

Meanwhile, McCloskey's voting record in three and one-half years in Capitol Hill is lost in the shuffle.

McCloskey presents himself as a dove, while he has repeatedly opposed efforts to cut military spending. He calls for an alternative to the Nixon administration, but has been among the staunchest supporters of the President's domestic policies. His record in civil liberties, social programs, and even in the realm of foreign policy—supposedly his strong suit—clashes resoundingly with his progressive image.

Here is a summary of his record in the House of Representatives from early 1968 through July, 1971. Most of my data comes from Congressional Quarterly. Procedural votes and other possibly misleading indicators have been liberally excluded from my list.

Military Spending

On June 16 of this year, McCloskey voted against an effort to eliminate $370 million budgeted for the new B-1 long-range bomber. On the same day, he voted to reduce the fiscal 1972 military research and development budget also met with McCloskey's opposition.

When on July 29, 1968 an attempt was made to block a military construction bill that included $200 million for the anti-ballistic missile (ABM), McCloskey voted with the bill's supporters. (McCloskey maintains he opposes the ABM.)

In the last three years, McCloskey has voted in favor of ten key military appropriations bills.

joining the Congress in approving approximately $300 billion worth of Pentagon spending.

Less in 1969, McCloskey supported an appropriation of $54.5 million to provide Chiang Kai-Shek with a squadron of F-4D jet fighters. One hundred forty-two Congressmen voted against this expenditure, but not McCloskey.

Civil Liberties

In 1968 the U.S. Senate added amendments to the House's Omnibus Crime Bill, allowing extensive police wiretapping and bugging authority and seeking to overturn several Supreme Court decisions which guarantee the Constitutional rights of criminal defendants. When the bill was returned to the House, even President Johnson opposed the Senate amendments, yet McCloskey voted twice to support the Senate version.

Although the measure was strongly attacked as an assault upon American civil liberties, McCloskey voted in favor of final passage.

He also voted in favor of the D.C. Crime Bill of 1970 which contained provisions for preventive detention, "no-knock," and wiretapping. In addition, McCloskey backed a measure to deny Federal aid to students who participate in campus demonstrations, and twice voted in favor of bills limiting the right to demonstrate in Washington, D.C.

In 1970 the House Internal Security Committee cited Arnold S. Johnson for contempt of Congress because of his refusal to testify before hearings investigating the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam ("New Mobilization"). Congressman Edward Koch of New York argued that the contempt citation "is intimidating and chilling dissent by saying that the Congress is going to investigate peace groups opposing our continued involvement in Indo-China. This is probably the first of many such investigations and that is what I fear." While 13 anti-war Congressmen joined Koch in opposing the contempt citation, McCloskey supported it.

Although the Women's Rights Amendment passed the House by a vote of 352 to 13, McCloskey's was among the "No's."

Congressman McCloskey has consistently voted in favor of appropriations for investigative work by the House Internal Security Committee (formerly HUAC, the "Un-American Activities" Committee.) For many years the abolition of HUAC has been a major goal of civil libertarians, but McCloskey has unfailingly supported committee funding.

Most recently (last April 29) he voted for an appropriation of $570,000.

Social Programs

McCloskey has voted to limit expenditures for aid to education and food stamps. He supported a bill to compel food stamp recipients to take jobs paying $1.30 an hour, 30 under the minimum wage, and also backed a proposal to restrict the rights of students and striking workers to receive food stamps.

When Nixon vetoed a bill to provide Federal grants for hospital construction and the modernization of health facilities, McCloskey fell into line with the President and voted to sustain the veto even though he had originally supported the grants.

McCloskey also voted to sustain the President's veto of the $30 billion HEW bill for health and education programs and backed a veto of housing and urban development funds (1970).

Perhaps the contrasting priorities McCloskey assigns to military and domestic programs are best illustrated by his vote on an amendment to a 1968 appropriations bill. The amendment provided special continuing appropriations for the Defense Department but not for the Departments of Labor or HEW.

Foreign Policy

After President Nixon's famous speech of November 3, 1969 (proclaiming that the "silent majority" stood behind him), McCloskey co-sponsored a House resolution supporting Nixon's Vietnam policy. When a resolution endorsing Nixon's war policy came to a vote in the House on December 2, 1969, McCloskey backed the President.

Recently the Congressman claims to have changed his mind. Yet when a resolution was presented to Congress supporting the November 21, 1970 military commando raid upon North Vietnam that attacked an empty compound in a futile effort to rescue POW's, McCloskey again took Nixon's side, supporting the resolution.

McCloskey is also a supporter of the draft, having voted against its repeal last March 31 and in favor of a two-year extension on April 1. Ninety-nine Congressmen voted against the draft, but not McCloskey.

Congressional Quarterly calculates each Congressman's agreement with the (continued on page seven)

NO man is an island, entire of itself. Every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main, if a washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were, as if a major or the friends or of thine own were any man's death diminishes me because I am involved in mankind; therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls. It tolls for thee.

JOHN DONNE

Experimental Program Adds Physical Education

by John Clarke

Since the Experimental Program at present centers almost entirely around academic concerns, the idea to include an athletic program to complement the academic program was raised. This would help make it possible to draw the work of building the sound mind closer to that of building the sound body, and to have the two efforts enrich each other.

This is the opening statement of a brief outline called "Rationale For an Experimental Program Physical Education Program." This documentary was one of the first official proposals made to the EP director—Jon Fackler by sophomore Edward Hochman. Ed, supported by many enthusiastic EP students, submitted this idea during the first week of the semester. He continued his efforts to achieve University approval through establishing Experimental Program Physical Education Program (EPPEP) requirements and regulations.

With the approval and enthusiastic assistance of Mr. Christensen (director of physical education at UVM), course offerings were determined and permission was granted for use of university facilities and equipment. Classes will begin Monday, Sept. 20.

The approximate 150 EP students registered for EPPEP will participate co-educationally in such classes as Horseback Riding, Yoga, Ice Skating, Cycling, Hiking, Survival Training, and Fencing. Additional courses vary from the conventional Badminton to Swimming.

For course credit (equivalent to that of the university), a student must take or teach a course in two semesters. Credit will be distributed equally to both student and instructor.

Once again, the grading system will consist of student, teacher and director evaluation.

Theoretically, "The EPPEP would accomplish a number of objectives. One is the experimentation of determining the feasibility of emphasizing co-ed social sports, such as tennis, skiing and bowling. This program may also develop ideas or procedures that could be incorporated into the regular university PE program. The principle idea is to see whether physical education, as well as academic instruction, can successfully be decentralized," the proposal stated.

Environmental Dorm Work Projects more this year, hoping to arouse more support from the university and student.

Individuals within the dorm have branched out into many directions hoping to grasp and salvage parts of the environment. Recycling is a vital aspect and the basis for environmental projects. Peter Crow is heading the program hoping to spread it campus-wide.

Tom Martin is instituting an educational presentation for the various elementary schools in the area with films and environmental information. Carol Bishop is doing the same for the Junior high and high schools.

A committee is presently working as part of the interviewing staff for candidates to head the new Environmental Studies Program.

These projects have been initiated within Robinson Hall, but they reach far out, hoping to interest and educate students and the community. Suggestions and help are appreciated. The meeting is every Monday night at 9:00. They are open to the public, come join us in our fight for the environment.

The Environmental Dorm will be sponsoring many

If you were in the vicinity of Roosevelt Park this weekend, you may have noticed a bit of activity and a change of color. Youngsters' smiles widened as they watched students from the Environmental Dorm splash paint on swingsets and fences and pick up debris. The Environmental Exchange initiated the work project and received support from Robinson Hall. This was the beginning of many environmental projects.

Last year, the idea of an Environmental Dorm was introduced to educate students on ways to preserve the environment and to sponsor work projects for the entire campus and community. Forty-four students anxiously applied to live in the new Environmental Dorm, Robinson Hall.

The majors of the involved students vary from Forestry and Environmental Studies to Education and Home Economics balancing one another, but the main stream of interest is towards saving the environment. Many students living outside the dorm have taken interest in the available activities. The Environmental Dorm will be sponsoring many

Attica: An Appeal To An End To Indifference

by Carol Sebastian Brown

Attica village community is quiet in the early hours of September 9th, 1971. A quiet that is not the quiet of a peaceful town.

There had been talk in the white community about the Black prisoners at Attica. Some had shaved heads and beards, others were "Radical Communist Sympathizers." They don't have respect. The older guard was quoted as saying "We got to be tougher."

The rhetoric in that rural culture is and was no different than in any community accustomed to an Uncle Tom's and meeting a "Panther." It is not unusual for we whites in less secure circumstances of life become apprehensive when our "circumstance" of life is threatened.

To fully comprehend the "pulse" of the Guards, one has only to look here.

The Prisoner's plea for Corrections reform began in May, 1971. In July, Corrections Commissioner Oswald had been petitioned to correct: Health Care inadequacies, fair wages, provide relevant on the job training (i.e. for post release economic security).

Posters were "militant in late summer 'Black Men Unite'." Charges were levied against Warden Mansueti, in fields of Rehabilitation and Human rights.

And then, on September 9th, 1971 as spontaneous combustion, the rhetoric turned to riot.

On September 13th in four minutes, of... 40 Men Died.

Gov. Rockefeller ignored the pleas of Commissioner Oswald to "at least hear them out" and sent his emissaries instead. State, local and Sheriff's deputies.

The first dispatch stated that the hostages "had their throats slit" along with hysterical first hand accounts of the terror.

President Nixon called Gov. Rockefeller and congratulated him for his "wise action" in the only "avenue open to him."

Then on September 14th, 1971 was the word that "All had been shot."

There was a shocked silence.

An investigation was hastily called. According to 9/20/71 heading in the Free Press "Wild shooting in

Attica Riot, Prober thinks the article goes on to quote one Emerson Moran as saying, "The name of the game is to secure an indictment and successful prosecution."

The "Name of the Game" is to look at our "Corrections Departments and see if they correct."

The Name Sir, in humanity. Where was it in Attica? Where is it in America Today?

I pleaded that we extend a hand to a stranger.

I again plead that we, united in one ideal, seek the answers to the problems that surround and threaten to destroy us.

We have been indifferent too long... We must not let the blood shed that inundated Attica flow again.

Pegton's yardstick

fashion Fabrics for the Home Sew-er

115 St. Paul St.

SOLANACEÆ

NATURAL FOODS

115 So. Winooski Ave. • BURLINGTON.

• 868-6180

OPEN MON-THURS., SAT. 9:00-6:00

Friday Till 9:00

BOUTIQUE IN A BUS

long dresses shirts and tops, leather goods

jewelry jeans and other stuff parked on main campus & redstone

658-2932

interested in buying your handmades

"watch for RED, WHITE, & BLUE school bus" contemporary jewelry handcrafted in silver and gold fire & metal

silversmiths

8 north winoski avenue Burlington, Vermont 05401 862-0423

the silversmiths in Burlington

FALL SEMESTER — ISRAEL

Brandeis University/The Jacob Hiatt Institute Study in Jerusalem, Israel/July-December, 1971 (40) students from 25 universities enrolled in 1970)

Juniors and Seniors eligible

Four courses/Hebrew not required/Earn 16 credits

Cost: $2000/Tuition, room, board, round-trip travel

Some financial aid available.

Write today for information/application deadline March 1st.

THE HIATT INSTITUTE

Brandeis University

Waltham, Massachusetts 02154

Life Insurance is Good Property!!

Live Die or Quit

You Cannot Lose

EUGENE R. MANFREDI

Campana Representative

National Life

of Vermont

184 So. Winooski St.

Burlington, Vt. 864-6819

Carvel Ice Cream Supermarket

12 Pearl St. Essex Jct. Shopping Center

10% discount to all UVM Students, Faculty + Staff

Monday - Thursday (good until May 1972)

(good only at Essex Store) 879-0010

Good Adventure

interesting to go it when the Bond... (Cardinal) is as beautiful as... (part) it is to Peter Finch to carry... (well) He is what one would... (be) by the men but when the chips... (are) a sort of one of the men. By going... (he) makes errors that eventually lead the film concerns the lack of character... (intends). Although the film tries to be... (a) man, it can only be taken as a good ers are developed enough for what the... (an) interesting film by one of the more... (of) today. Rated G for ghosts.

Sean Connery (seated) and Hardy Kruger in a scene from 'The Red Dog'.

s Revisited

in Film Series Scheduled to Begin... (American) Western is the title of a film... (the) Coolidge Capital Commission, the... (the) Experimental Program

ed two outstanding forms to model... (in) jazz. The second of these is the... (on) the one hand from the body of the... (and) on the other hand coming... (the) generated from that experience and... (the) American Western. It is only in... (have) come to regard this sort of film for... (the) first time as a form from Europe... (of) John Ford, perhaps the most famous... (and) the director of 'Cheyenne Autumn'... (will) be shown during the film series, 'John... (for) in the world' But on the other hand... (of) the Western should have come from... (a) European whose land is already tightly... (the) the American land on which the... (the) out. Jean Mitry, a noted French critic... (the) 'Encyclopedia of the Cinema' in... (in) respect to a Shakespearean form.

it is quite true, among the most... (This) is part of their art, which is to say... (American) Western, being part of all of us, its... (achievement) are able to hit us all... (edge) Capital Commission presents these... (it) can be viewed as entertainment and... (here) that the viewer who brings to these... (artistic) awareness will receive even more... (include) 'Left-Handed Gun', an early effort... (actor) of 'Bonnie and Clyde', in which Paul... (into) the character which he was to have in... (Colorado) and 'Rio Bravo' two masterpieces... (genre) 'Notorious' with Marlene Dietrich, German-born director, Fritz Lang, 'Union... (starring) Cecil B. DeMille, 'One-Eyed... (actor) Brando, one of the most underrated... (and) others.

shown on Saturday nights at 8:00 P.M.,... (8:00 P.M.) Sunday evenings at 8:00 P.M.... (held) in Southwick Gym. Admission to the... (of) the Cinema Club. Membership in the... (for) the first six films. For non-Cinema... (and) the Cinema Club may be... (Membership) in the Cinema Club may be... (at) the time of the showings or at the E. P.... (of) Coolidge Hall. All proceeds from the... (used) for the benefit of the Experimental... (The) schedule of films is given below.

AMERICAN WESTERN

1st—Union Pacific—Directed by Cecil B...
2nd—The General—Directed by Buster...
3rd—The Yuma—Directed by Delmer Davis...
4th—High Noon—Directed by Fred...
5th—Rancho Notorious—Directed by Fritz...
6th—Cheyenne Autumn—Directed by John...
7th—Stagecoach—Directed by John Ford

AMERICAN WESTERN

8th—Big Sky—Directed by Howard Hawks...
9th—El Dorado—Directed by Howard...
10th—Two Rode Together—Directed by...
11th—One Eyed Jacks—Directed by Marlon...
12th—The Left-Handed Gun—Directed by...
13th—Duel in the Sun—Directed by David

BEACH

Bay, Vt.
on Shore Rd
& Sat.

TAINMENT

NEW

The General
To Be Shown
Saturday & Sunday
The General is the best American film which has yet to be made.

Come see it laugh your guts out. Come see it at 8:00 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday at Southwick Gym.

the doctor's bag

by Arnold Warner M.D.

Address letters to Dr. Arnold Warner,
Box 974, East Lanning, ME. 04823 Copyright, 1971

QUESTION: I have heard that men go through a hormonal cycle every 55 days comparable to the female's cycle, causing grogginess and irritability. Is this true or is this merely a "husband's tale?"

ANSWER: Men and other animals show rhythmic behavior in a number of areas of function, including the emotional. On a personal level, there are a variety of 24 hour cycles (circadian), on the Latin meaning "about a day") which correlate with sleeping and waking states. Sleep itself has a rhythmic pattern and fluctuates from deep states to shallow states of sleep all night. The menstrual cycle in the woman is perhaps the best known biological rhythm, with ovulation and menses being related to hormonal levels. There are other longer duration cycles in both men and women which show themselves through subtle changes in mood and physical activity. They tend to be between four and a half and nine weeks in length and the person might be unaware of their existence. Grogginess and irritability can be one sign. Other signs include changes in the need for sleep and changing appetite. There probably are seasonal rhythms as well, but the longer the rhythm, the more difficult it is to observe. In extreme forms, there are emotional illnesses which occur periodically and, for some people, with remarkable regularity. Manic-depressive illness is the best known.

Knowing one's own cycle could conceivably have tremendous applications. For instance one could schedule courses around daily variation in mood and examinations around seasonal variations. Men and women could have code numbers assigned based on their biological cycles making it possible to find someone with matching pulsations by comparing numbers.

"Biological Rhythms in Psychiatry and Medicine," Public Health Service Publication 2003 is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 for $1.75. It makes fascinating reading.

QUESTION: My ex-boyfriend recently forced his attention on me in spite of the fact that I told him I was a virgin. When he was through with me, he stated that I couldn't have been a virgin because "it went in too easily" and I didn't bleed. It is my body and I know that I never had previous sexual relations. Please clarify this because he honestly believes I'm a loose woman.

I'm writing this the day after it happened, but are there any very early signs of pregnancy? I seem to feel sick to my stomach.

ANSWER: Very sadly, situations such as the one you describe happen frequently, and I, for one, have a difficult time distinguishing such an event from rape. In addition to being grossly selfish, your ex-boyfriend is also ignorant of some basic sexual facts. Ease of intercourse the first time and an absence of bleeding is no indication of lack of virginity.

A woman has the right not to have intercourse unless she wants to and this should be unrelated to whether or not she is a virgin. Rather than hide behind technicalities, she should be prepared to take drastic measures to insure her basic human rights.

It is too early to tell if you are pregnant now, but it sounds as if the way you feel may be related to the upsetting experience you had. In such circumstances you may miss your next menstrual period without being pregnant; instead of becoming panicked, you might visit a physician that you know if you have not had a period in another month. In the meantime, if you remain upset very much longer, it would be wise for you to talk this out with someone so that this experience does not jeopardize future relationships with men. Your ex-boyfriend sounds like he needs professional help.

McCloskey

(continued from page five)

"Conservative Coalition," an alliance of Republicans and Southern Democrats which has been the traditional obstacle to progressive legislation in Congress. In 1970, McCloskey lost 43% of his votes in support of their position, 39% in opposition (he was absent for other votes.)

McCloskey's favorable campaign publicity is a tribute to the power of press agents and the media to create a progressive image that cannot be supported by the facts. How far McCloskey's media image can take him is anybody's guess, but sooner or later his record is bound to catch up with him.

CASINO BEACH

St. Albans Bay, Vt.

Rt. 36—Maquam Shore Rd

Open Fri. & Sat.

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

"HOME BREW"

WEIGHT WATCHERS

Mon.—Winco—St. Francis Xavier Church at 7 P.M.
Mon.—Burlington—Christ Church—North Ave. at 7 P.M.
Tue.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 7 P.M.
Tue.—Shelburne—St. Catherine's Hall at 7 P.M.
Wed.—Burlington—171 Church St. at 9:15 P.M.
Wed.—Essex Junction—Hemlock School at 7 P.M.

171 Church St.

Burlington Vt.

Rene Loppert, President, Director

658-1920

THE RED DOG

Sept. 27 thru Oct. 2

COVER $1.00

BAND—6 NITES A WEEK

PRESENTS ROAD

HAPPY HOUR

Mon 7:30-12:00 25¢

BEERS MIXED DRINKS

TUES. thru THURS. 2:30 to 5:00

AT REDUCED PRICES

OPEN 7:30 P.M. TO 2:00 A.M.

LOCATED AT 165 CHURCH STREET

McNASH MOTORS INC.

1325 Shelburne Road

Your VW's Home Away From Home

Factory Trained experts to Sell and Service

Drugs in Army

are used to encourage current users to turn themselves in, and that portion of the program is also gaining momentum.

O'Brien noted that "now guys are starting to come in and ask me to help a buddy who's got a problem—or I might get an anonymous note about a drug cache in the barracks."

Treatment

Under the direction of the drug council, help for the addict does not stop after he goes through the first stage of physical withdrawal, as if often the case in other units. The council soon realized that the user retains his psychological need for the release that drugs offer long after the physical craving has subsided. To combat this tendency, a "one to one" method of continuing treatment has been devised, whereby each addict works closely with a volunteer for at least several weeks after his stay at the halfway house to prevent backsliding.

(continued from page four)

Dr. Miser

(continued from page one)

people when funds are limited. Although his objectives will take time, Dr. Miser remains confident, judging from the enthusiasm of staff and students, that living in residence halls will become preferable even to downtown apartments for a growing number of students.

S.A....

(continued from page one)

ballot should sign up in their respective living units by noon. Student Association were duly impressed with the Administration, for even in times of tight money the University is willing to move in the direction of environmental control.

Bucknell Prospectus

the Bucknell staff, under the direction of Coach Fred Prender, has changed their offensive strategy. In a style much similar to that of Connecticut, they have switched to a 4-4 defense. Hopefully, the Catamount offense will prove as effective as it was in last Saturday's contest.

Problem's will continue to plague the Bucknell defensive secondary, with lack of depth and speed serving to be the chief drawbacks. However, there are several returning lettermen to these positions, so there is possible compensation.

The picture looks much brighter for the offensive unit. There will be a large number of experienced men who will be carrying the ball. The running game has been the chief strategy of the Bisons, and their attack will not be much different from the coming contest on Saturday. Veteran Quarterback Howard Burke will serve as the chief signal caller. He also stays chiefly on the ground, and likes to carry himself, as shown by the 316 yards he personally gained last season. His passing ability should prove no real difficulty for the defensive unit of the secondary.

Several of the men to watch crashing the line will be Rick Diaz, who gained almost 600 yards last year, and his cohort in the backfield Mitch Farabee. Diaz contributed five touchdowns to the offensive effort during last season.

Most of the front line, both in the offensive and defensive units, will consist of men right around the 200 pound mark, so the Vermont front line will not be outweighed to any great degree.

It appears as though the Catamounts have an excellent chance to enlarge on their victory tally. All things considered, the defense will once again prove to be the crucial point of the game. Judging from last week's performance, UVM should have little trouble in stopping the Bisons', and the Bucknell defensive record last year provides nothing but optimism for the Catamount offense.

"how long can you keep an ice cube frozen in your room?"

rent a refrigerator!

only $22.50* per semester

The perfect solution for late night snacks, study breaks, and even a whole meal... save money... no more vending machines to gobble up your funds... save time... it's right in your own room... rent one for the whole year for only pennies per day... even less... when cost is split with your roommate... approved by the university for in-room use... compact... lightweight... handsome walnut exterior has a beautiful furniture appearance... doubles as a table... quick freezing... can freeze a new tray of large size ice cubes in only 45 minutes... holds over 36 cans of canned drinks... if unit fails call representative for immediate replacement... free pick up and delivery included in rental fee... limited supply—call now to reserve your unit today!

*based on yearly rates.

INTER-RESIDENCE ASSOCIATION
VERMONT STUDENT ASSOCIATION billing center
university of vermont
burlington, vermont 05401

CONTACT: Margaret Tetricick or Linda Daskiewicz
656-2959 656-3874

Saturday was the kind of day that leaves you with the feeling of walking out of Hannibal's with four beers under your belt and no copper. You finally make your way out onto the sidewalk, knowing that even though things are still going on around you, they all seem somewhat distant, and somewhat surreal.

The Catamounts are in a very similar position. To be sure, they haven't had a steady diet of victories in the past. But, just as those four beers force you to become accustomed to this new world which surrounds you, UVM has to get used to a new view of things; to a world of looking ahead with pride instead of looking back with depression.

It all stems from the fact that Saturday was one of those perfect days, one of those days when everything goes right. They sometimes happen once a year, sometimes once in a college career, and sometimes once in a lifetime. Nevertheless, they do happen.

It happened in a big way on Saturday, with the crowds, the weather, the spirit, and the victories. The Catamounts tasted the sweetness of revenge by sending the UConn Huskies scurrying home with their tails between their legs and a double loss to account for. The eyes of the shocked UConn fans and the entire Yankee Conference kingdom as well may begin to turn to the North.

The teams performed well, the crowds shrieked and shouted well, and even the band played well as the football and soccer teams proudly fought their way into the winners circle. Such a day leaves little to be desired, but blows open the doors of optimism stemming from such a fine showing in the season openers.

I guess the feeling I'm trying to represent can be best shown during the last ten seconds on the gridiron. Whereas before, the final ticks of the clock were painful as the last strands of hope were wrung free, last Saturday brought an altogether different kind of suffering. The agony of holding all the exuberance stored up for over a year of disappointment, just waiting for that final moment of decisiveness to allow the explosion, is in many ways more painful, but nevertheless welcome.

Hopefully, just as the Vermont Transit driver bears down on the Volkswagen with sadistic vehemence, the UVM machine can grind the opposition into losing turf. Then, there will be no need to store up the joy which has been such a long, long, time in coming.

Kickers Tally Up Second

The UVM Soccer Club, under the direction of Coach Don Soderburg, tallied up their second win of the season as they posted a 3-0 victory of the team from St. Michael's college here on Tuesday. However, the final score is not indicative of the performance of either team.

The Knight's, in their first outing of the season, put on a strong offense during the entire contest, and for the most of the contest, had the Vermont club desperately trying to prevent the score. It is indeed surprising that the final point spread was as wide as it was.

The Knight's indeed held the edge in the first period, keeping the ball in UVM territory for the majority of the time. The team from St. Michael's completed dominated the second period and made many shots on goal. Vermont goalie Jim Kelly proved to be outstanding all afternoon as he blocked many of the UVM attempts. The first half ended with the Knight's holding a 13-7 edge in shots on goal. Goalie Kelly was credited with 11 saves.

Vermont has already posted more wins than all of last year. The Catamounts had no less than six wins during its previous season, and one of its three losses was to St. Michael's, who posted an upset last season.

Last Saturday, Vermont took the victory in its first outing of the season against the University of Connecticut. During last year's regular season, these two clubs battled to a 1-1 tie.

Soderburg's club has been the Yankee Conference champion

Quarterback Earl Olson hits the fly to take a heavy toll in yardage. Credit: Bob Kasper

UVM Topples 1970 YanCon King

It would be hard to find a more suitable memorial to Bob Swift than to have the team with which he shared so much defeat come back under his name and trounce last year's Yankee Conference champions. The UVM Catamounts did just that as they got hold of the lead and never let it go, breaking a 13 game losing streak and handing the Huskies from UConn a 20-7 defeat.

The contest was held at Centennial field last Saturday, and is where the Catamounts will meet a strong Bucknell club next Saturday at the same time. During the contest, Vermont held the upper hand in just about all the statistics as they let no room for doubt that they were the superior team, of the day. The hard, strong defense from Vermont not only limited the Huskies to 92 yards on the ground and 68 in the air, but also by good steady hitting caused many forced fumbles to take the pressure off and leave them in good field position.

The Vermont passing attack appears to be evolving into a fine machine. Despite the fact that it was not utilized to any great degree, almost 70% of the attempted aeriels were completed, two of these completions resulted in six points for the home club.

